Dr. Munch will follow his regular custom of closing the Berkshire Festival season with a performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony on Sunday afternoon. Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass, with the Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross and Alfred Nash Patterson. The program will open with Sir William Walton's Johannesbury Festival Overture, which was written for the 70th Anniversary of the city of Johannesburg in South Africa and first performed there in 1956. The Boston Symphony Orchestra presented the United States premiere of the Overture during the 1956-57 season.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

AUG 1 1958

Beethoven Works At Tanglewood Final Weekend

The final weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, will feature music by Beethoven. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct the concerts of August 8 and August 10. The concert on Saturday evening, August 9, will be under the direction of Pierre Monteux. Soloists will include Eugene Istomin, pianist and Berl Senofsky, violinist.

Dr. Munch will open Friday's concert with Honegger's Prelude, Fugue and Postlude, followed by Beethoven's Symphony No. 7. Eguene Istomin will be soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 5 "Emperor."

The concert conducted by Pierre Monteux will open with music from 'Prometheus" by Beethoven. Berl Senofsky will be soloist in the Beethoven Violin Concerto. In the second half of the prgram Mr. Monteux will present Hindemith's "Nobilissima Visione" and Beethoven's Leonore Overture No. 3.

Dr. Munch will follow his custom of closing the Berkshire Festival season with a performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony on Sunday afternoon. Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass, with the Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross and Alfred Nash Patterson. The program will open with Sir William Walton's Johannesburg Festival Overture, which was written for the 70th Anniversary of the city of Johannesburg in South Africa and first performed there in 1956.

Sunday Journal
PROVIDENCE, R. I.
Independent
Circ. 183,539

AUG 3 1958

Beethoven Featured In Final Week by Boston Symphony

Eugene Istomin, young pianist, plays Beethoven's 'Emperor' Concerto at Lenox on Friday.

THE final weekend of Berkshire Festival concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the ~~Music Shed at~~ Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will feature music of Beethoven. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct the concerts of Friday evening, Aug. 8 at 8:30 and Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, at 2:30. The concert on Saturday evening at 8:30 will be under the direction of Pierre Monteux. Soloists will include Eugene Istomin, pianist (Aug. 8) and Berl Senofsky, violinist (Aug. 9).

Dr. Munch will open Friday evening's concert with Honegger's Prelude, Fugue and Postlude, followed by Beethoven's Symphony No. 7. Eugene Istomin will be soloist in Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 5, "Emperor." Mr. Istomin is the sixth of the outstanding young pianists who have appeared at Tanglewood during the current season, others being Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis and Leonard Pennario.

The concert on Saturday will open with music from "Prometheus" by Beethoven. Berl Senofsky will be soloist in the Beethoven Violin Concerto. Mr. Senofsky was the winner of the 1955 Brussels Competition and has appeared with many of the outstanding American orchestras since his United States debut in 1956. In the second half of the program Mr. Monteux will present Hindemith's "Nobilissima Visione" and Beethoven's Leonore Overture No. 3.

Dr. Munch will follow his custom of closing the Berkshire Festival season with a performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony next Sunday afternoon. Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass, with the Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross and Alfred Nash Patterson. The program will open with Sir William Walton's Johannesburg Festival Overture, which was written for the 70th anniversary of the City of Johannesburg in South Africa and first performed there in 1956.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's rehearsal Saturday morning at 10 o'clock will be open to the public for the benefit of the pension fund.

Tomorrow evening and Tuesday evening at 8:30 in the Theater-Concert Hall the Tanglewood Opera Department will present Rossini's comic opera "Count Ory."

The final concert in the Chamber Music Series Wednesday evening at 8:30 features the Kroll Quartet in a program which includes Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3; Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tanglewood-on-Parade, annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, will be held Thursday evening, Aug. 7, between 6 and 11 p.m. Concerts by the various departments of the school including orchestra, opera, chamber music and choir, will be followed by picnic suppers on the lawn and a gala concert at 8:15 in the Music Shed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Boston Pops Orchestra. Eleazar de Carvalho will conduct works of Gomes and Falla, followed by Aaron Copland performing the piano part of his own piano concerto. The orchestra will be under the direction of Richard Burgin. Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra will present a program of Pops favorites.

Mr. Copland will also be heard in the final session of the Seminar in Contemporary Music, Friday afternoon, Aug. 8, at 3:15. He will discuss his own music and there will be performances of his Four Songs from Twelve Poems of Emily Dickinson and the Piano Fantasy, with guest soloist Noel Lee.

The final concert of the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra will be given Saturday afternoon at 3, in the Music Shed. The final student chamber music concert on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock will be held in the Theater-Concert Hall.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

AUG 3 - 1958

Tanglewood On Parade Ends Berkshire Music Season

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

This is the "big week" and incidentally, the final week of activities at the Berkshire Music Festival which will conclude with next Sunday afternoon's presentation of the Beethoven Ninth. The annual highlight of the season, "Tanglewood on Parade," will come on Thursday when the usual gala round of programs will start early and finish late.

This week's culminating student event, which represents the major production this season of the Berkshire Music Center's opera department, will be the staging of Rossini's "Count Ory." Revolutionary scenic effects will be featured in the opera which is scheduled for performances on Monday and Tuesday evenings in the Theater-Concert Hall.

The scenery was designed by Dr. Elemer Nagy, of the Hartt College of Music in Hartford. Scenic effects will be obtained by the use of a fibreglass shell on which the different scenes of the opera will be shown by 15 projectors located behind the shell. This innovation, which does away with the standard bulky scenery, is the result of a project which was started last year under the sponsorship of the New England Opera Theater and the Ford Foundation.

The opera will be given in an English version by Robert A. Simon, who was commissioned by the Juilliard Opera Theater. Boris Goldovsky, head of the Music Center's opera department is directing this week's performances. As the director also of the New England Opera Theater, Goldovsky has been an enthusiastic supporter of the research involved in the development of new scenic materials. Wyn Morris, a student of conducting at the Music Center and winner of last year's Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, will conduct both performances of "Count Ory."

Thursday's "Tanglewood on Parade" will commence at 6 p. m. when simultaneous programs will be given by students in the various departments of the Music Center including orchestra, opera, chamber music and choir. Following picnic suppers on the lawn after the student concerts, the Music Shed will be the scene of a concert during which the Boston Pops Orchestra conducted by Arthur Fiedler will have a featured role. Fiedler's ensemble will play a group of lighter selections and Pops favorites following the earlier portion of the program by the regular Boston Symphony.

A highlight will be the performance of Aaron Copland's Piano Concerto, with the composer himself as the soloist under the baton of concert-master Richard Burgin. Eleazar DeCarvalho, a protege of former Boston conductor Serge Koussevitzky, will conduct the two opening works in the concert—Gomes' Overture to "Il Guarany" and Falla's "El Amor Brujo."

Works by Beethoven will predominate in the three final concerts of the festival this weekend. Friday evening's concert will have as its mainstays the Symphony No. 7 and the Fifth Piano Concerto (Emperor), with Eugene Istomin as the soloist. The opening work is to be Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude. Charles Munch, regular conductor of the Boston Orchestra, will be on the podium.

Beethoven works to be heard Saturday evening include selections from "Prometheus" and the Violin Concerto with Berl Senofsky as soloist. Pierre Monteux, this season's principal guest conductor, will conduct the program which also includes an established contemporary work, Hindemith's "Nobilissima Visione."

The final festival concert on Sunday will be practically a Beethoven program with the monumental choral symphony consuming the bulk of the program after a lone nod to contemporary music in the opening offering, Sir William Walton's Johannesburg's Festival Overture. The latter was composed for the 70th anniversary of the City of Johannesburg, South Africa, and the work received its American premiere in a performance by the Boston Orchestra two years ago. The soloists in the Beethoven performance, in which the Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross and Alfred Nash Patterson will assist the orchestra, are to be: Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass. Dr. Munch will conduct this festival farewell.

The Kroll String Quartet will give the final program in the Wednesday evening Chamber Music events. Their program lists the Haydn Quartet in G minor (Op. 74 No. 3), Bartok's Second Quartet (Op. 17), and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

AUG 3 1958

Headliners in Week's Features at Tanglewood

EUGENE ISTOMIN

Piano soloist in Beethoven's "Emperor" concerto Friday night.

ARTHUR FIEDLER

Conductor of Boston Pops Orchestra in second half of "Tanglewood-on-Parade" program Thursday night.

BEREL SENOFSKY

Violin soloist in Beethoven's violin concerto Saturday night.

Fiedler and Boston Pops At Tanglewood-On-Parade

Aaron Copland Soloist in Own Piano Concerto With Boston Symphony Thursday Night

The gala concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Charles Munch music director, and the Boston Pops Orchestra, Arthur Fiedler conductor, will climax the annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit for the Berkshire Music Center Thursday evening at 8.15.

DeCarvalho to Conduct

Eleazar de Carvalho, who will open the program conducting Gomes' Overture to "Il Guarany" and Falla's "El Amor Brujo," is the head of the Department of Orchestral Conducting at the Berkshire Music Center and has been affiliated with the school for many years. Mr. Carvalho began his association with Tanglewood as a conducting student of Serge Koussevitzky.

Aaron Copland will appear as soloist in his own piano concerto for the first time with this orchestra in 31 years. Richard Burgin will conduct the performance. Mr. Copland last performed the work with the Boston Symphony under Serge Koussevitzky's direction in 1927. When the concerto (sometimes called the "Jazz Concerto") was first performed, in 1927, it was the subject of some controversy.

AARON COPLAND

After a recent performance of the concerto in Boston the late Rudolph Elie wrote, "The...concerto is both a milestone and a masterpiece...the critics of 1927 did not see it that way, nor could they have, the true creative artist is always ahead of his time." The Musical Quarterly has written of the work "...a period piece of the best kind...evoking the atmosphere of the 'twenties perhaps more effectively than any other work of 'serious' American music."

Fiedler and "Pops"

Arthur Fiedler, who will conduct the Boston Pops Orchestra in a group of Pops favorites in the second half of the program, will come to Tanglewood from San Francisco, where he has conducted nine concerts with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Fiedler will return to San Francisco, following a week of Esplanade concerts in Boston, and in late August will conduct the Louisville Symphony Orchestra at the French Lick (Ind.) Music Festival. He then returns to San Francisco until Sept. 7.

His program Thursday will include Offenbach's Suite from "Gaite Parisienne," Ginastera's "Dance of Wheat" and "Malambo," from "Estancia," a selection from the "West Side Story" by Leonard Bernstein; "Dancing Through the Years," an arrangement by Richard Hayman of Hayman of dance tunes from the cakewalk to rock and roll. The program will close with "76 Trombones" from "The Music Man" by Meredith Willson, and Mr. Fiedler will also offer some of the traditional Pops encores.

There will be a drawing of door prizes in the intermission.

Early Events

Two preliminary events of Tanglewood-on-Parade will take place at 4 p. m. when holders of box and reserved seats are invited to attend a special opera performance in the formal gardens. All ticket holders are invited to a concert by the Tanglewood Study Group in the Barn, also at 4.

At 5.45 all ticket holders are admitted to the Tanglewood grounds. A brass fanfare by students under the direction of Roger Voisin, first trumpet of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and member of the Berkshire Music Center faculty, will be followed by a welcome to all guests from Ralph Berkowitz, dean of the school.

There will be several simultaneous performances by different school departments at 6, the Student Orchestra in the Shed, Tanglewood composers in the Chamber Music Hall, and opera scenes in the Theater. These performances will summarize the work of the students during the six-week session.

Orchestra Program

The program of the student orchestra will include Weber's Oveture to "Der Freischutz" conducted by Wonsik Lim of Seoul, Korea; William Schuman's "New England Triptych" conducted by David Zinman of New York City; "Don Juan" of Richard Strauss conducted by Zubin Mehta of India and the first movement ("Angelic Concert") of Hindemith's "Mathis der Maler" conducted by Gustav Meier of Switzerland.

The concert in the Chamber Music Hall will include works composed during the summer by students of the composition department performed by Fromm Fellowship players. At 7, while visitors are enjoying a picnic supper on the grounds, the Tanglewood Choir will present a choral program on the porch of the main house.

[222]

George
Sokolsky

[223]

BILLINGS, MONT.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 25,141 S. 37,337
AUG 24 1958

TRENTON, N. J.
TIMES-ADVERTISER
Circ. S. 64,849
AUG 24 1958

Sunday Courant
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 142,739
AUG 24 1958

BUTTE, MONT.
MONTANA STANDARD
D 9.36 S 25.432
AUG 25 1958

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886
AUG 31 1958

ANANDAIGUA, N. Y.
MESSENGER
Circ. D. 4,768
AUG 22 1958

Republican (m)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 21,034
AUG 22 1958

RICHMOND, VA.
TIMES-DISPATCH
D. 132,690 S. 183,519
AUG 24 1958

Time (e)
GREENWICH, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 9,477
AUG 22 1958

Point Pleasant, W. Va.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 3,195
AUG 23 1958

STON, N.Y.
MAN
.969
AUG 22 1958

W YORK CITY, N. Y.
URNAL AMERICAN
irc. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925
AUG 22 1958

CORTLAND, N. Y.
STANDARD
Circ. D. 8,530
AUG 22 1958

TSBURG. N.Y.
S-REPUBLICAN
624
AUG 22 1958

SVILLE, N.Y.
-HERALD
86
G 22 1958

ICOTT, N. Y.
ULLETIN
irc. D. 10,110
G 22 1958

EPSIE, N.Y.
KER
S. 28.943
G 22 1958

LLS, N.Y.
R
G 22 1958

HORNELL, N.Y.
TRIBUNE
D. 9,497
AUG 22 1958

NEWS
Circ. D 11,614
AUG 22 1958

CORNING, N. Y.
LEADER
Circ. D. 13,277
AUG 22 1958

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
CALL-BULLETIN
Circ. D. 137,340
AUG 22 1958

Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 9,604
AUG 22 1958

Bulletin (m)
NORWICH, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 24,968
AUG 22 1958

Sentinal (e)
ANSONIA, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,719
AUG 22 1958

NYACK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-NEWS
Circ. D. 10,786
AUG 22 1958

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 35,931 S.
AUG 22 1958

ONEONTA, N. Y.
STAR
Circ. D. 14,061
AUG 22 1958

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.
POST-JOURNAL
Circ. D. 26,661
AUG 25 1958

DANVILLE, VA.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 11,002 - S. 19,765
AUG 23 1958

Messenger (e)
ST. ALBANS, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 3,199
AUG 23 1958

Register (e)
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 94,453
AUG 22 1958

Chronicle (e)
WILLIMANTIC, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 6,225
AUG 22 1958

Post (e)
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 78,913
AUG 22 1958

American (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 176,318
AUG 22 1958

Press (e)
MIDDLETOWN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 16,139
AUG 22 1958

Sentinel (m)
WATERVILLE, Me.
Independent
Circ. 17,600
AUG 22 1958

Thousands Journey To Tanglewood Each Week To Hear Music Under The Stars

Summer Concerts Given By Boston Symphony Great Attraction

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—The Summer wanes, and many a traveler returns home eager to share his color slides.

"When, in his narration, he comes to ". . . and then we went to Tanglewood. . ." he pauses to let it sink in. Tanglewood means culture, and no maybes about it.

"Oh, and what was it like?" asks his listener respectfully.

"Well, you know, concert under the stars, that sort of thing. Boston Symphony can't be beat. The conductor was good, too—Charles Munch. Didn't care too much for that Stravinsky, but love that Tchaikowsky. We sat on the grass. Myrtle didn't bring a sweater and had the sniffles all the way to Niagara Falls. Say, speaking of Niagara Falls, we met a honeymooning couple there from Peoria who . . ."

This Is Tanglewood

And that's Tanglewood to a tidy percentage of its visitors: the curious, the tourists who want to say they've been there, the picknickers who don't object to music in the background, the hand-holders who think it's a terribly romantic setting, the arty pretenders who privately are convinced music reached its highest form in the Strauss waltzes but insist on Bartok or nothing.

Nobody's complaining, they get their money's worth. But they miss the Tanglewood beloved by thousands of sincere music devotees and musicians—the real Tanglewood.

And what is that?

It's a student flutist practicing under a tree on the rolling lawn, Pan in sneakers and slacks in a sylvan glen of Arcadia.

It's the goosebumps you get the first time you hear that flashing precision instrument, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, knife through the darkness with purest sound, answered by sighing pines.

It's the proud way the boy at the gate—a strapping youngster you'd think would like nothing more long-haired than Presley sideburns—flings it open wide for a car to pass through, and then turns to a group at the information desk with awe in his voice: "that was Munch's chauffeur."

A Hallowed Name

It's the look of complete devotion you see when they—and that's just about everybody at Tanglewood — mention Serge Koussevitsky, the Boston symphony conductor who dreamed of a great music festival combined with a great music school and made it a reality with Tanglewood. He died seven years ago, but the way they talk about him you'd think he was at a rehearsal right now.

Tanglewood is all these. — although technically Tanglewood is only the name of the estate on which the Berkshire Music Festival and the school, called the Berkshire Music Center, are held for six weeks each summer.

Weekends Busiest

During the week school activities for the 350 students hold full sway. But on weekends, beginning late Friday afternoon, a steady stream of cars moves past palatial mansions — mostly private schools or guest homes now — through Lenox and on out to Tanglewood.

At Tanglewood, the festival visitors first roam over the 210 acres of lawns, meadows and formal gardens down to Lake Mahkeenac; inspect a replica (the original burned down) of the little red house where Nathaniel Hawthorne lived a couple of years and wrote "The Wonder Book" and planned "Tanglewood Tales" — then spread a picnic lunch.

Bout With Culture

By concert time, fortified with food and nature, visitors amble toward the Music Shed, for a bout with culture.

The shed is an open, fan-shaped, modernistic structure that covers 1½ acres and seats 6,000. When you're in the audience looking up at the steel girders, it seems more than anything like a hangar designed to keep a dirigible from getting claustrophobia.

Its remarkable acoustics and open colonnades carry the music far back on the lawn, which is blanketed at each concert with an overflow crowd of from two to nine thousand loungers.

Tanglewood was given to the Boston Symphony by the heirs of William Aspinwall Tappan, the Boston banker who had laid out

Center Also Conducts Summer School For Music Students

Tanglewood nearly 100 years before.

Open Rehearsal

A tradition instituted years ago by Dr. Koussevitsky is the Saturday morning open rehearsal. The orchestra goes about its business, ignoring the shifting mass across the footlights. Occasionally the noise becomes distracting and Munch sharply asks the audience to be quiet.

This chastens for all of five seconds the squirmy, chattering children arriving by busloads from nearby Summer camps for the peek at culture. And in the aisles people come and go. Tourists snap pictures everywhere.

"Well," shrugged an orchestra member later, "it's for a worthy cause. The dollar admission goes for the orchestra's pension fund. Munch was one of France's foremost conductors when he went to Boston in 1949 after Koussevitsky's retirement. Now 66, he is tall, broad-shouldered and from an audience point of view, has one of the most impressive backs in the conducting field. The 105-member orchestra finds him inspirational.

Monteux Guest Conductor

This year Munch shared the podium with Pierre Monteux, at 83 a barrel of a man, mixing embonpoint and counterpoint with complete disregard for the field of geriatrics.

Munch is also director of the Berkshire Music Center which ~~Koussevitsky started in 1940 and~~ headed as director until he died. Boston Symphony Orchestra members comprise the faculty, of which Aaron Copland, the well known composer, is chairman.

Through the school pass some of the most talented young musicians in the country. Right now 269 former students are engaged by 45 U.S. orchestras—nine are conductors including Leonard Bernstein of the New York Philharmonic, Koussevitsky's prize pupil — and 67 are principals, or first desk players.

Dean Ralph Berkowitz says: "The great thing about the school is that it allows a young person to meet his contemporaries and see how he stacks up."

Typical Students

Who are the students?

There's small, shy Helen Garvey of Minneapolis who has studied piano 14 of her 19 years and wants to teach piano in college after she graduates from the University of Minnesota.

Dark-haired Karen Rosenwald of Philadelphia, in the scenic arts division in opera, is 18 and very serious.

Wadad Mouzannar, pianist from Lebanon, is one of the 30 students from 14 foreign countries.

Blond, lanky Bill Schlottman, 25, a baritone, quit his job as advertising manager of the River Oaks Times, a weekly society magazine in Houston, to come to Tanglewood to study opera with Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department.

Goldovsky, whose voice is familiar to millions from his years of intermission appearances on Saturday broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera, says: "We get the cream of the cream, the very best people from everywhere. Half of the best opera singers in the country have been here. It doesn't mean we have trained them, but we get them in training while they are still young professionals."

Every Summer his department puts on an opera, with the students doing everything from painting scenery to staging and singing it. This year it was Rossini's "The Count Ory," and a former student, John McCollum, returned to take the title role. Big city music critics were highly complimentary.

But success and talent aren't the first considerations at Tanglewood.

Says Aaron Copland: "We hope to train perceptive and sensitive human beings first who will be artists second. That's what Tanglewood is about in the larger sense."

George E. Sok

ELDS
MENT

RADIO NOW HAS three principal fu comment and music.

As for news, radio can be as good or ision, both being rewrites of AP and although the large networks have establi staffs which report on great events.

On the whole, their staffs do not com of the newspapers or news agencies bec ering is secondary to entertainment in business.

Besides, gathering news is only one ished product. The news must be edited proper emphasis by headlines and by pl

Neither radio nor television can do tively as the printed newspaper. Thei speed, namely, that if there is a flash, into any program and make the anno often, that is done by a baritone who what he is reading.

It is clear, however, that both radio have a news function and all that it i mature handling.

IN THE FIELD of comment, both radio on the whole, are still somewhat fea controversy, although the American Br pany has always encouraged controver

Some of the networks and stations s either to please themselves or to what the trend in their communities, assum leadership.

This is also happening to newspaper as Horace Greeley, Charles Dana, Joseph Pulitzer, William Randolph Hearst or William Allen White, and many of their kind, being on hand to fight the good fight for its own sake.

They lived, however, in another era, when men fought hard over governmental problems, when the Constitution was sacred, and when neither balance sheets nor cash registers dominated newspapermen's minds.

Incidentally, they generally earned more money than those to whom they left their properties are able to.

Both radio and the newspapers will need to free themselves from an attitude which came in with the Roosevelt administration, namely, that newspapers, radio and television feared that anything they might do to expose government operations would imperil the national defense.

This was clearly a government trick designed to curb columnists acit White

ostwar psyhave taken at is music?

ng perform-n the cen-
her words, listeners a very well

R in New world.
any years at," which o happens

t to music re falling cultured rds many ned to as an lecture. Altogether it was ibution.

w been abandoned after many years and has come an ordinary mish-mash of good music in a wide but meaningless range.

IT MUST BE GRANTED that what is called popular music is popular, but the attendance this summer at Tanglewood, exceeding all previous records, cannot be ignored even by the most rigid balance-sheet studier.

For Tanglewood, except on one night when Arthur Fiedler puts on a wonderful show, makes no compromise with vulgar music, and Fiedler can make jazz sound classical.

Tanglewood may occasionally be responsible for some stupid exhibitionism of which modern composers are sometimes guilty, but it does not lower its standards to sell tickets.

So Tanglewood had more young people than ever and it costs a bit to get there and to get into the grounds.

And this year the enthusiasm was enormous.

Radio might think that one over—even from a cash register point of view.

Copyright, 1958, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

George Sokolsky

[223]

BILLINGS, MONT.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 25,141 S. 37,337
AUG 24 1958

TRENTON, N. J.
TIMES-ADVERTISER
Circ. S. 64,849
AUG 24 1958

Sunday Courant
HARTFORD, Conn.
Republican
Circ. 142,739
AUG 24 1958

BUTTE, MONT.
MONTANA STANDARD
D 9,36 S 25,432
AUG 25 1958

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886
AUG 31 1958

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y.
MESSENGER
Circ. D. 4,768
AUG 22 1958

Republican (m)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 21,034
AUG 22 1958

RICHMOND, VA.
TIMES-DISPATCH
D. 132,690 S. 183,519
AUG 24 1958

ELKINS, W. VA.
INTER-MOUNTAIN
Circ. D. 5,087
AUG 22 1958

Time (e)
GREENWICH, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 9,477
AUG 22 1958

Point Pleasant, W. Va.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 3,195
AUG 23 1958

INGSTON, N.Y.
REEMAN
15,969
AUG 22 1958

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
JOURNAL AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925
AUG 22 1958

CORTLAND, N. Y.
STANDARD
Circ. D. 8,530
AUG 22 1958

PLATTSBURG, N.Y.
PRESS-REPUBLICAN
D 11,624
AUG 22 1958

GLOVERSVILLE, N.Y.
LEADER-HERALD
D. 14,586
AUG 22 1958

ENDICOTT, N. Y.
BULLETIN
Circ. D. 10,110
AUG 22 1958

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y.
NEW YORKER
D. 27,999 S. 28,943
AUG 22 1958

GLENS FALLS, N.Y.
POST-STAR
D. 5,563
AUG 22 1958

HORNELL, N.Y.
TRIBUNE
D. 9,497
AUG 22 1958

NEWS
Circ. D. 11,614
AUG 22 1958

CORNING, N. Y.
LEADER
Circ. D. 13,277
AUG 22 1958

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
CALL-BULLETIN
Circ. D. 137,340
AUG 22 1958

Martinsburg, W. Va.
JOURNAL
Circ. D. 10,277
AUG 22 1958

BLUEFIELD, W. VA.
TELEGRAPH
Circ. D. 27,748 - S. 36,709
AUG 22 1958

BEACON, N. Y.
NEWS
Circ. D. 5,143
AUG 22 1958

ERTISER, SUNDAY, AUG

Thousands Journey To Week To Hear Mus

Summer Concerts Given By Boston Symphony Great Attraction

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—The Summer wanes, and many a traveler returns home eager to share his color slides.

"When, in his narration, he comes to ". . . and then we went to Tanglewood. . ." he pauses to let it sink in. Tanglewood means culture, and no maybes about it.

"Oh, and what was it like?" asks his listener respectfully.

"Well, you know, concert under the stars, that sort of thing. Boston Symphony can't be beat. The conductor was good, too—Charles Munch. Didn't care too much for that Stravinsky, but love that Tchaikowsky. We sat on the grass. Myrtle didn't bring a sweater and had the sniffles all the way to Niagara Falls. Say, speaking of Niagara Falls, we met a honeymooning couple there from Peoria who . . ."

This Is Tanglewood

And that's Tanglewood to a tidy percentage of its visitors: the curious, the tourists who want to say they've been there, the picknickers who don't object to music in the background, the hand-holders who think it's a terribly romantic setting, the arty pretenders who privately are convinced music reached its highest form in the Strauss waltzes but insist on Bartok or nothing.

Nobody's complaining, they get their money's worth. But they miss the Tanglewood beloved by thousands of sincere music devotees and musicians—the real Tanglewood.

And what is that?

It's a student flutist practicing under a tree on the rolling lawn, Pan in sneakers and slacks in a sylvan glen of Arcadia.

It's the goosebumps you get the first time you hear that flashing precision instrument, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, knife through the darkness with purest sound, answered by sighing pines.

It's the proud way the boy at the gate—a strapping youngster you'd think would like nothing more long-haired than Presley sideburns—flings it open wide for a car to pass through, and then turns to a group at the information desk with awe in "that was Munch's ch

A Hallowed Na

It's the look of com
tion you see when they-just about everybody wood — mention Serge sky, the Boston symph tor who dreamed of a festival combined wit music school and made with Tanglewood. He years ago, but the wa about him you'd think a rehearsal right now

Tanglewood is all t though technically Ta only the name of the which the Berkshire M val and the school,
Berkshire Music Cente
for six weeks each su

Weekends Bu

During the week sc ties for the 350 studen
way. But on weekend late Friday afternoon stream of cars moves tial mansions — mos schools or guest hon through Lenox and
Tanglewood.

At Tanglewood, t visitors first roam o acres of lawns, me formal gardens dow Mahkeenac; inspect a original burned down red house where Nat thorne lived a couple o wrote "The Wonder planned "Tanglewood then spread a picnic

Bout With Cult

By concert time, fo food and nature, vis toward the Music Shed with culture.

The shed is an open, modernistic structure that covers 1½ acres and seats 6,000. When you're in the audience looking up at the steel girders, it seems more than anything like a hangar designed to keep a dirigible from getting claustrophobia.

Its remarkable acoustics and open colonnades carry the music far back on the lawn, which is blanketed at each concert with an overflow crowd of from two to nine thousand loungers.

Tanglewood was given to the Boston Symphony by the heirs of William Aspinwall Tappan, the Boston banker who had laid out headed as director un Boston Symphony Orch

bers comprise the which Aaron Coplan known composer, is c

Through the school of the most talented cians in the country
269 former students by 45 U.S. orchestra conductors includin Bernstein of the New harmonic, Koussevit pupil — and 67 are p
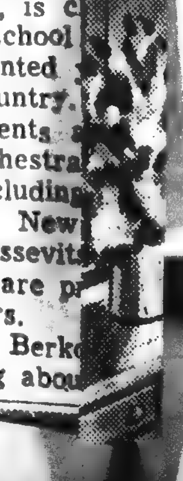
first desk players.

Dean Ralph Berk
"The great thing abo



---

physical education and some of the special fields like art.

Increased enrollment in the colleges is encouraging for the future of the secondary and elementary schools, where teachers will be needed. However, what isn't encouraging, according to Dr. Raubinger is the fact that in the next few years building projects are going to slack off because of the failure of voters in New Jersey school districts to approve funds.

Although building projects are going strong now because of plans voted into effect a couple years ago, this will not be true in two years when the effect of today's voter is felt.

Many Bond Issues Defeated

One-third of all school bond referendums submitted to the voters throughout the state during the last school year were defeated, according to Dr. Raubinger. "The record of voting on school bonds is disappointing if not dangerous," he states.

While the outlook in future building is not so good, the outlook concerning pupils is that there will be more and more each year. When the school bells ring this Fall, nearly one million public school children will answer the call. Despite current building, this record enrollment is running ahead of efforts to provide enough classrooms.

And while teacher colleges are training teachers at a higher rate than ever before, a shortage exists right now in teachers for today's classrooms.

De
F

Rea
D

The boy w aware berton neglig of T
Georg
Depar
groun
Ren Street for th
He cl remov guard or sh beach Riel closed
the Healt
The water
File half c Warre from from Anc Court for in

DAY

George E. Sokolsky

FUNCTIONS OF RADIO IN FIELDS OF NEWS, MUSIC AND COMMENT

RADIO NOW HAS three principal functions: News, comment and music.

As for news, radio can be as good or as bad as television, both being rewrites of AP and UPI bulletins, although the large networks have established reportorial staffs which report on great events.

On the whole, their staffs do not compare with those of the newspapers or news agencies because news gathering is secondary to entertainment in this particular business.

Besides, gathering news is only one phase of the finished product. The news must be edited, collated, given proper emphasis by headlines and by placement.

Neither radio nor television can do this as effectively as the printed newspaper. Their advantage is speed, namely, that if there is a flash, they can break into any program and make the announcement. Too often, that is done by a baritone who does not know what he is reading.

It is clear, however, that both radio and television have a news function and all that it is waiting for is mature handling.

IN THE FIELD of comment, both radio and television, on the whole, are still somewhat fearful of editorial controversy, although the American Broadcasting Company has always encouraged controversy.

Some of the networks and stations slant controversy either to please themselves or to what they believe is the trend in their communities, assuming no editorial leadership.

This is also happening to newspapers, no such giants as Horace Greeley, Charles Dana, Joseph Pulitzer, William Randolph Hearst or William Allen White, and many of their kind, being on hand to fight the good fight for its own sake.

They lived, however, in another era, when men fought hard over governmental problems, when the Constitution was sacred, and when neither balance sheets nor cash registers dominated newspapermen's minds.

Incidentally, they generally earned more money than those to whom they left their properties are able to.

Both radio and the newspapers will need to free themselves from an attitude which came in with the Roosevelt administration, namely, that newspapers, radio and television feared that anything they might do to expose government operations would imperil the national defense.

This was clearly a government trick designed to curb press criticism. Were it not for a few intrepid columnists and publishers, there would today be a tacit White House censorship of the news.

This has been a product of war and postwar psychology of which presidential press advisers have taken full advantage.

Now the question comes as to music. What is music?

For some listeners music is the continuing performance of those works which have come down the centuries as the flowering of civilization; in other words, the classics.

There are radio stations which give the listeners a very full program of such music and they do very well financially.

The most famous of such stations is WQXR in New York, which has set a standard for the entire world.

The National Broadcasting Company for many years produced a program, "Music Through the Night," which was handled by an announcer, Fleetwood, who happens to know and understand music.

This particular program was a great comfort to music lovers who could snatch something just before falling asleep or if sleep proved difficult.

Fleetwood approached programming with cultured intelligence, selecting from great stores of records many items which were unusual and which one listened to as one might to an instructive lecture. Altogether it was a great contribution.

It has now been abandoned after many years and in its place has come an ordinary mish-mash of good and vulgar music in a wide but meaningless range.

IT MUST BE GRANTED that what is called popular music is popular, but the attendance this summer at Tanglewood, exceeding all previous records, cannot be ignored even by the most rigid balance-sheet studier.

For Tanglewood, except on one night when Arthur Fiedler puts on a wonderful show, makes no compromise with vulgar music, and Fiedler can make jazz sound classical.

Tanglewood may occasionally be responsible for some stupid exhibitionism of which modern composers are sometimes guilty, but it does not lower its standards to sell tickets.

So Tanglewood had more young people than ever and it costs a bit to get there and to get into the grounds.

And this year the enthusiasm was enormous.

Radio might think that one over—even from a cash register point of view.

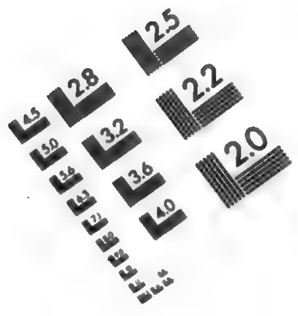
Copyright, 1958, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

REDUCTION
RATIO
16x

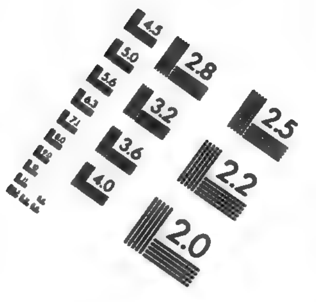
2.5 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

2.0 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.5 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

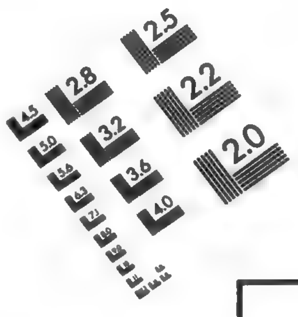


2.5
2.8
2.2
3.2
2.0
3.6
4.0

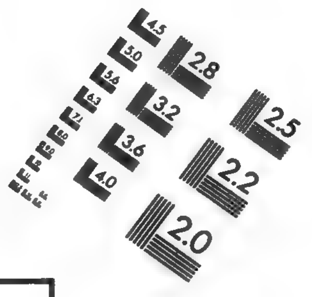


2.8
3.2
2.5
3.6
2.2
4.0
2.0

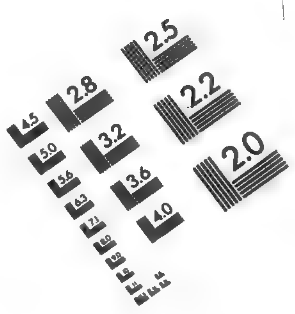
PM-MGP 13″x18″ METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET PHOTOGRAPHIC



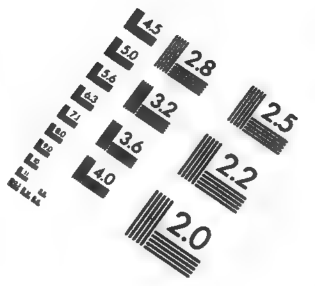
2.5
2.8
2.2
3.2
3.6
2.0
4.0



2.8
3.2
2.5
3.6
2.2
4.0
2.0



2.5
2.8
2.2
3.2
3.6
2.0
4.0

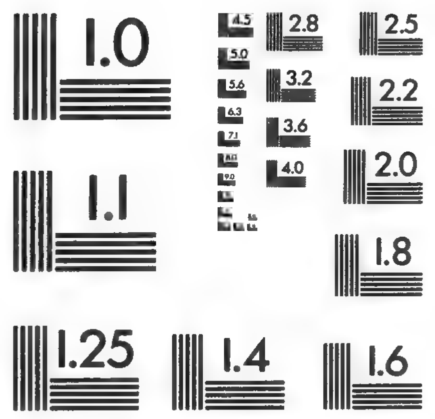


2.8
3.2
2.5
3.6
2.2
4.0
2.0

200 mm

150 mm

100 mm



1.0
2.8
2.5
3.2
2.2
3.6
2.0
4.0
1.1
1.8
1.25
1.4
1.6

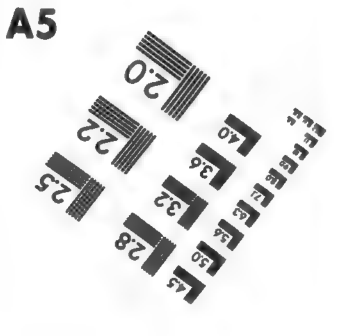
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890
1.0 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890
1.5 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890
2.0 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890
2.5 mm

A5

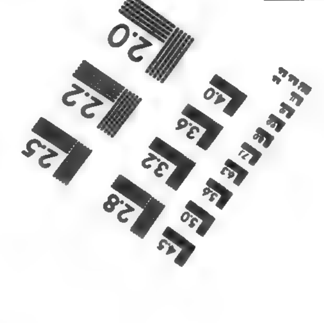


2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0

2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0

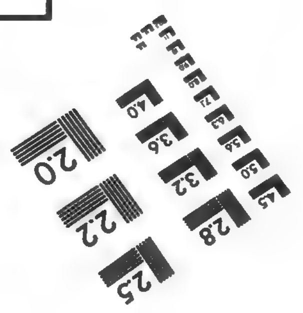
A4

A3



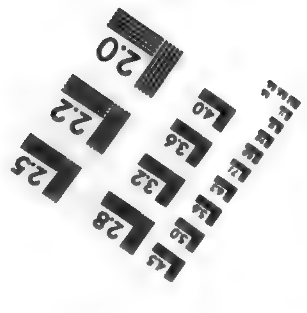
2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS



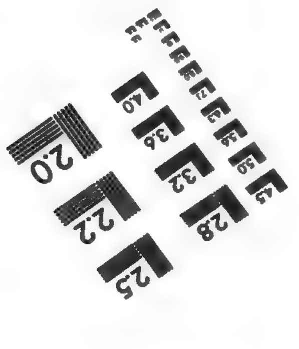
2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0

Century
A&P
1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119



2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
4.5 mm 1234567890



2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0

3.5 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

3.0 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

DURHAM, N. C.
HERALD
Circ. D. 30,668 - S. 31,559
AUG 24 1958

CHARLESTON, W. VA.
GAZETTE-MAIL
SUN. 110,000
AUG 24 1958

SIOUX CITY, IOWA
JOURNAL
D. 56 354 S. 57 956
AUG 24 1958

TULSA, OKLA.
WORLD
Circ. D. 89,296 - S. 147,882
AUG 24 1958

Sunday Republican
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 46,025
AUG 24 1958

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 95,656 - S. 101,553
AUG 24 1958

NASHVILLE, TENN.
TENNESSEAN
Circ. D. 116,256 - S. 200,558
AUG 24 1958
READING EAGLE

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,969
AUG 24 1958

Sunday, Aug. 24, 1958

CULTURE UNDER THE ELMS

Berkshires' Tanglewood Mecca to Music Lovers

(Editor's note: It has been called the summer music capital of the United States, a mecca of music, America's answer to the Salzburg festival. But Tanglewood in the brooding Berkshires means many different things to the hundreds of thousands of tourists and music lovers who visit it each year. This is the last in a three-part series on summer culture.)

BY JOY MILLER

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — The summer wanes, and many a traveler returns home eager to share his color slides.

When, in his narration, he comes to ". . . and then we went to Tanglewood . . ." he pauses to let it sink in. Tanglewood means culture, and no maybes about it.

"Oh, and what was it like?" asks his listener respectfully.

"Well, you know, concert under the stars, that sort of thing. Boston symphony can't be beat. The conductor was good, too — Charles Munch. Didn't care too much for the Stravinsky, but love that Tchaikowsky. We sat on the grass. Myrtle didn't bring a sweater and had the sniffles all the way to Niagara Falls. Say, speaking of Niagara Falls, we met a honeymooning couple there from Peoria who . . ."

And that's Tanglewood to a tidy percentage of its visitors: The curious, the tourists who want to say they've been there, the picnickers who don't object to the music in the background, the hand-holders who think it's a terribly romantic setting, the arty pretenders who privately are convinced music reached its highest form in the Strauss waltzes but insist on Bartok or nothing.

Nobody's complaining, they get their money's worth. But they miss the Tanglewood beloved by thousands of sincere music devotees and musicians — the real Tanglewood.

And what is that?

It's a student flutist practicing under a tree on the rolling lawn, Pan in sneakers and slacks in a sylvan glen of Arcadia.

It's the goosebumps you get the first time you hear that flashing precision instrument, the Boston Symphony orchestra, knife through the darkness with purest sound, answered by sighing pines.

It's the proud way the boy at the gate — a strapping youngster you'd think would like nothing more long-haired than Presley sideburns — flings it open wide for a car to pass through, and then turns to a group at the information desk with awe in his voice: "That was Munch's chauffeur."

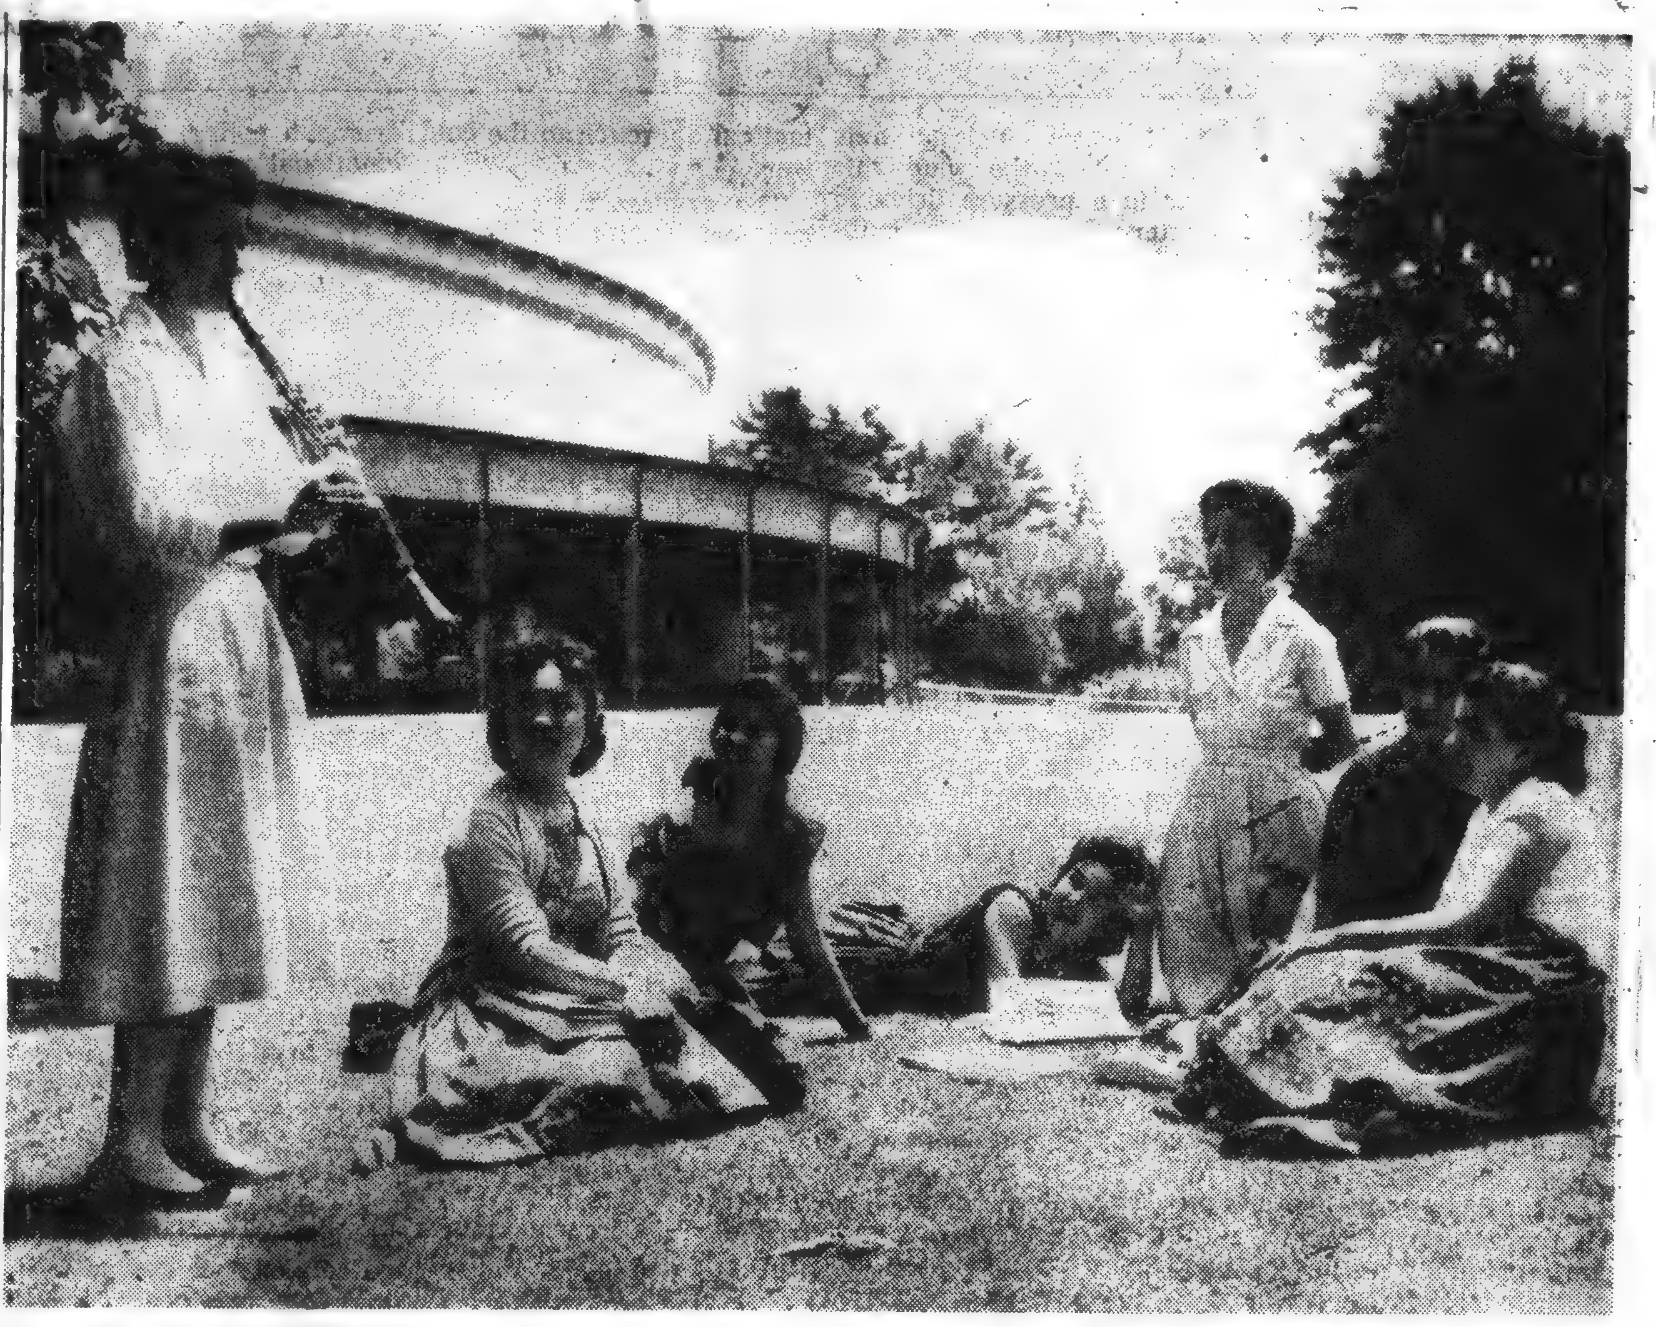
It's the look of complete devotion you see when they — and that's just about everybody at Tanglewood — mention Serge Koussevitsky, the Boston symphony conductor who dreamed of a great music festival combined with a great music school and made it a reality with Tanglewood. He died seven years ago, but the way they talk about him you'd think he was at a rehearsal right now and any minute would come bounding along the path of pines, hands outstretched in greeting, eyes crinkling in delight, as usual.

Tanglewood is all these — although technically Tanglewood is only the name of the estate on which the Berkshire Music festival and the school, called the Berkshire Music center, are held for six weeks each summer.

During the week school activities for the 350 students hold full sway. But on weekends, beginning late Friday afternoon, a steady stream of cars moves past palatial mansions — mostly private schools or guest homes now —through Lenox and on out to Tanglewood.

Special policemen wave the traffic on, hoping with the rest of Lenox citizenry that most of it will want to stay overnight. The town of 3,000 hibernates in winter without tourist trade and doubles in size on summer weekends.

Once at Tanglewood, the festival visitors first roam over the 210 acres of lawns, meadows and formal gardens down to Lake Mahkeenac; inspect a replica (the original burned down) of the little red house where Nathaniel Hawthorne lived a couple of years and wrote The Wonder Book and planned Tanglewood Tales—then spread a picnic lunch.



John McCollum (in costume at left) and Boris Goldovsky, director of the Berkshire Music center opera department at Tanglewood, Mass., go over the score of Rossini's opera, The Count Ory, presented this summer as part of the Berkshire festival. They are in a shed behind the theater-concert hall. McCollum, a former student at Tanglewood, returned to sing the leading role in the opera. (A. P. Newsfeatures Photo.)

By concert time, fortified with food and nature, they amble toward the Music Shed, for a bout with culture.

The shed is an open, fan-shaped, modernistic structure that covers 1½ acres and seats 6,000. When you're in the audience looking up at the steel girders, it seems more than anything like a hangar designed to keep a dirigible from getting claustrophobia.

It's remarkable acoustics and open colonnades carry the music far back on the lawn, which is blanketed at each concert with an overflow crowd of up to 9,000 loungers.

When the rains come — and there's something about the challenge of a composition with heavy timpani that brings out the best in a rainstorm — the guests far-scattered on the grass make a break for shelter at the back of the shed. Some just pull their blankets over the heads and wait it out.

How Tanglewood got its shed is a tale that goes back years to the orchestra's early brush with untrammeled nature.

Outdoor concerts had been held at a horse show ring for a couple of summers when Dr. Koussevitsky was invited to bring his orchestra down from Boston to play in a shell to an audience crammed under a huge rented tent.

That was in 1936. Before the next summer came, the heirs of William Aspinwall Tappan, the Boston banker who had laid out Tanglewood nearly 100 years before, gave the estate to the orchestra.

For the 1937 summer season, the same shell and rented tent were moved to Tanglewood. One night, during the playing of the stormy Ride of the Valkyries, the heavens opened wide. Rain pelting on the canvas tent drowned out the music — and the instruments.

"Even the French horns were shipping water," one critic wrote.

Right then and there a subscription campaign for a permanent auditorium was launched among the half-downed music lovers. By the next summer the music shed was open for business.

A tradition instituted years ago by Dr. Koussevitsky is the Saturday morning open rehearsal. The orchestra goes about its business, ignoring the shifting mass across the footlights. Occasionally the noise becomes distracting and Munch sharply asks the audience to be quiet.

Brahms and Confusion

This chastens for all of five seconds the squirmy, chattering children arriving by busloads from nearby summer camps for the peek at culture. And in the aisles people come and go. Tourists snap pictures everywhere.

"Well," shrugged an orchestra member later, "It's for a worthy cause. The dollar admission goes for the orchestra's pension fund. But does everybody and his grandmother, especially his grandmother, have to wear short shorts to concerts. The girl students can't wear them at the music school, you know. I don't mean to sound stuffy, but after all this is sort of a shrine of music. I guess, though, if Mr. Munch can stand it, we can."

Munch was one of France's foremost conductors when he went to Boston in 1949 after Koussevitsky's retirement. Now 66, he is tall, broad-shouldered and from an audience point of view, has one of the most impressive backs in the conducting field. The 105-member orchestra finds him inspirational.

This year Munch shared the podium with Pierre Monteux, at 83 a barrel of a man, mixing embonpoint and counterpoint with complete disregard for the field of geriatrics.

"Monteux is sort of our Herbert Hoover," says Leonard Burkat, the orchestra's music administrator. "He was conductor of the Boston symphony in 1919-1924, and he still jaunts around the world. He came here from Europe and is going right back to conduct. Many people don't realize it but conducting a concert is equivalent to a 10-round fight with no time out."

Munch and Monteux are bon vivants and the best of friends. Not long ago a fervent admirer sighted them together in a Lenox restaurant. He wangled a table next to theirs, could barely order dinner he was so excited at the thought of the pearls of musical wisdom that would fall into his eavesdropping ears.

"And do you know," he later told a friend indignantly, "for the length of that dinner, and it was a prodigious one, they talked about only one thing: Food."

Directs Music Center

Munch also is director of the Berkshire Music center which Koussevitsky started in 1940 and headed as director until he died. Boston Symphony orchestra members comprise the faculty, of which Aaron Copland, the well-known composer, is chairman.

Through the school pass some of the most talented young musicians in the country. Right now 269 former students are engaged by 45 United States orchestras — nine are conductors, including Leonard Bernstein of the New York Philharmonic, Koussevitsky's prize pupil — and 67 are principals, or first desk players.

Dean Ralph Berkowitz says: "The great thing about the school is that it allows a young person to meet his contemporaries and see how he stacks up. It's a great place for evaluating on a very high level. The atmosphere makes them better than they are."

Foreign students at the Berkshire Music center in Tanglewood, Mass., listen attentively as Patricia Lissack (left) of London plays a piece. Others are, left to right, Maria Lopez-Vito and Marilyn Gatmaitan, both of Quezon City, Philippines; Atipet Usmanbus, Ankara, Turkey; Wadad Mouzannar, Beirut, Lebanon; Liwiang Cruz, San Juan, Rizal, Philippines, and Shoshana Ben-Yohanan, Tel Aviv, Israel. This summer 30 students from 14 foreign countries were among the 350 who studied at the music center. (A. P. Newsfeatures Photo.)

Who are the students?

There's small, shy Helen Garvey of Minneapolis who has studied piano 14 of her 19 years and wants to teach piano in college after she graduates from the University of Minnesota.

Dark-haired Karen Rosenwald of Philadelphia, in the scenic arts division in opera, is 18 and very serious.

"I paint scenery and do all sorts of menial tasks, but it's necessary to understand the component parts of everything," Karen said. "I'm really here for the experience and to grow intellectually."

Wadad Mouzannar, pianist from Lebanon, is one of the 30 students from 14 foreign countries. She met Munch last year when he conducted a Lebanon festival and he encouraged her to come to Tanglewood. She intends to go back home and become a concert pianist.

Adman Studies Opera

Blond, lanky Bill Schlottman, 25, a baritone quit his job as advertising manager of the River Oaks Times, a weekly society magazine in Houston, to come to Tanglewood to study opera with Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department.

Goldovsky, whose voice is familiar to millions from his years of intermission appearances on Saturday broadcasts of the Metropolitan opera, says: "We get the cream of the cream, the very best people from everywhere. Half of the best opera singers in the country have been here. It doesn't mean we have trained them, but we get them in training while they are still young professionals."

Every summer his department puts on an opera, with the students doing everything from paintng scenery to staging and singing it. This year it was Rossini's The Count Ory, and a former student, John McCollum, returned to take the title role. Big city music critics were highly complimentary.

But success and talent aren't the first considerations at Tanglewood.

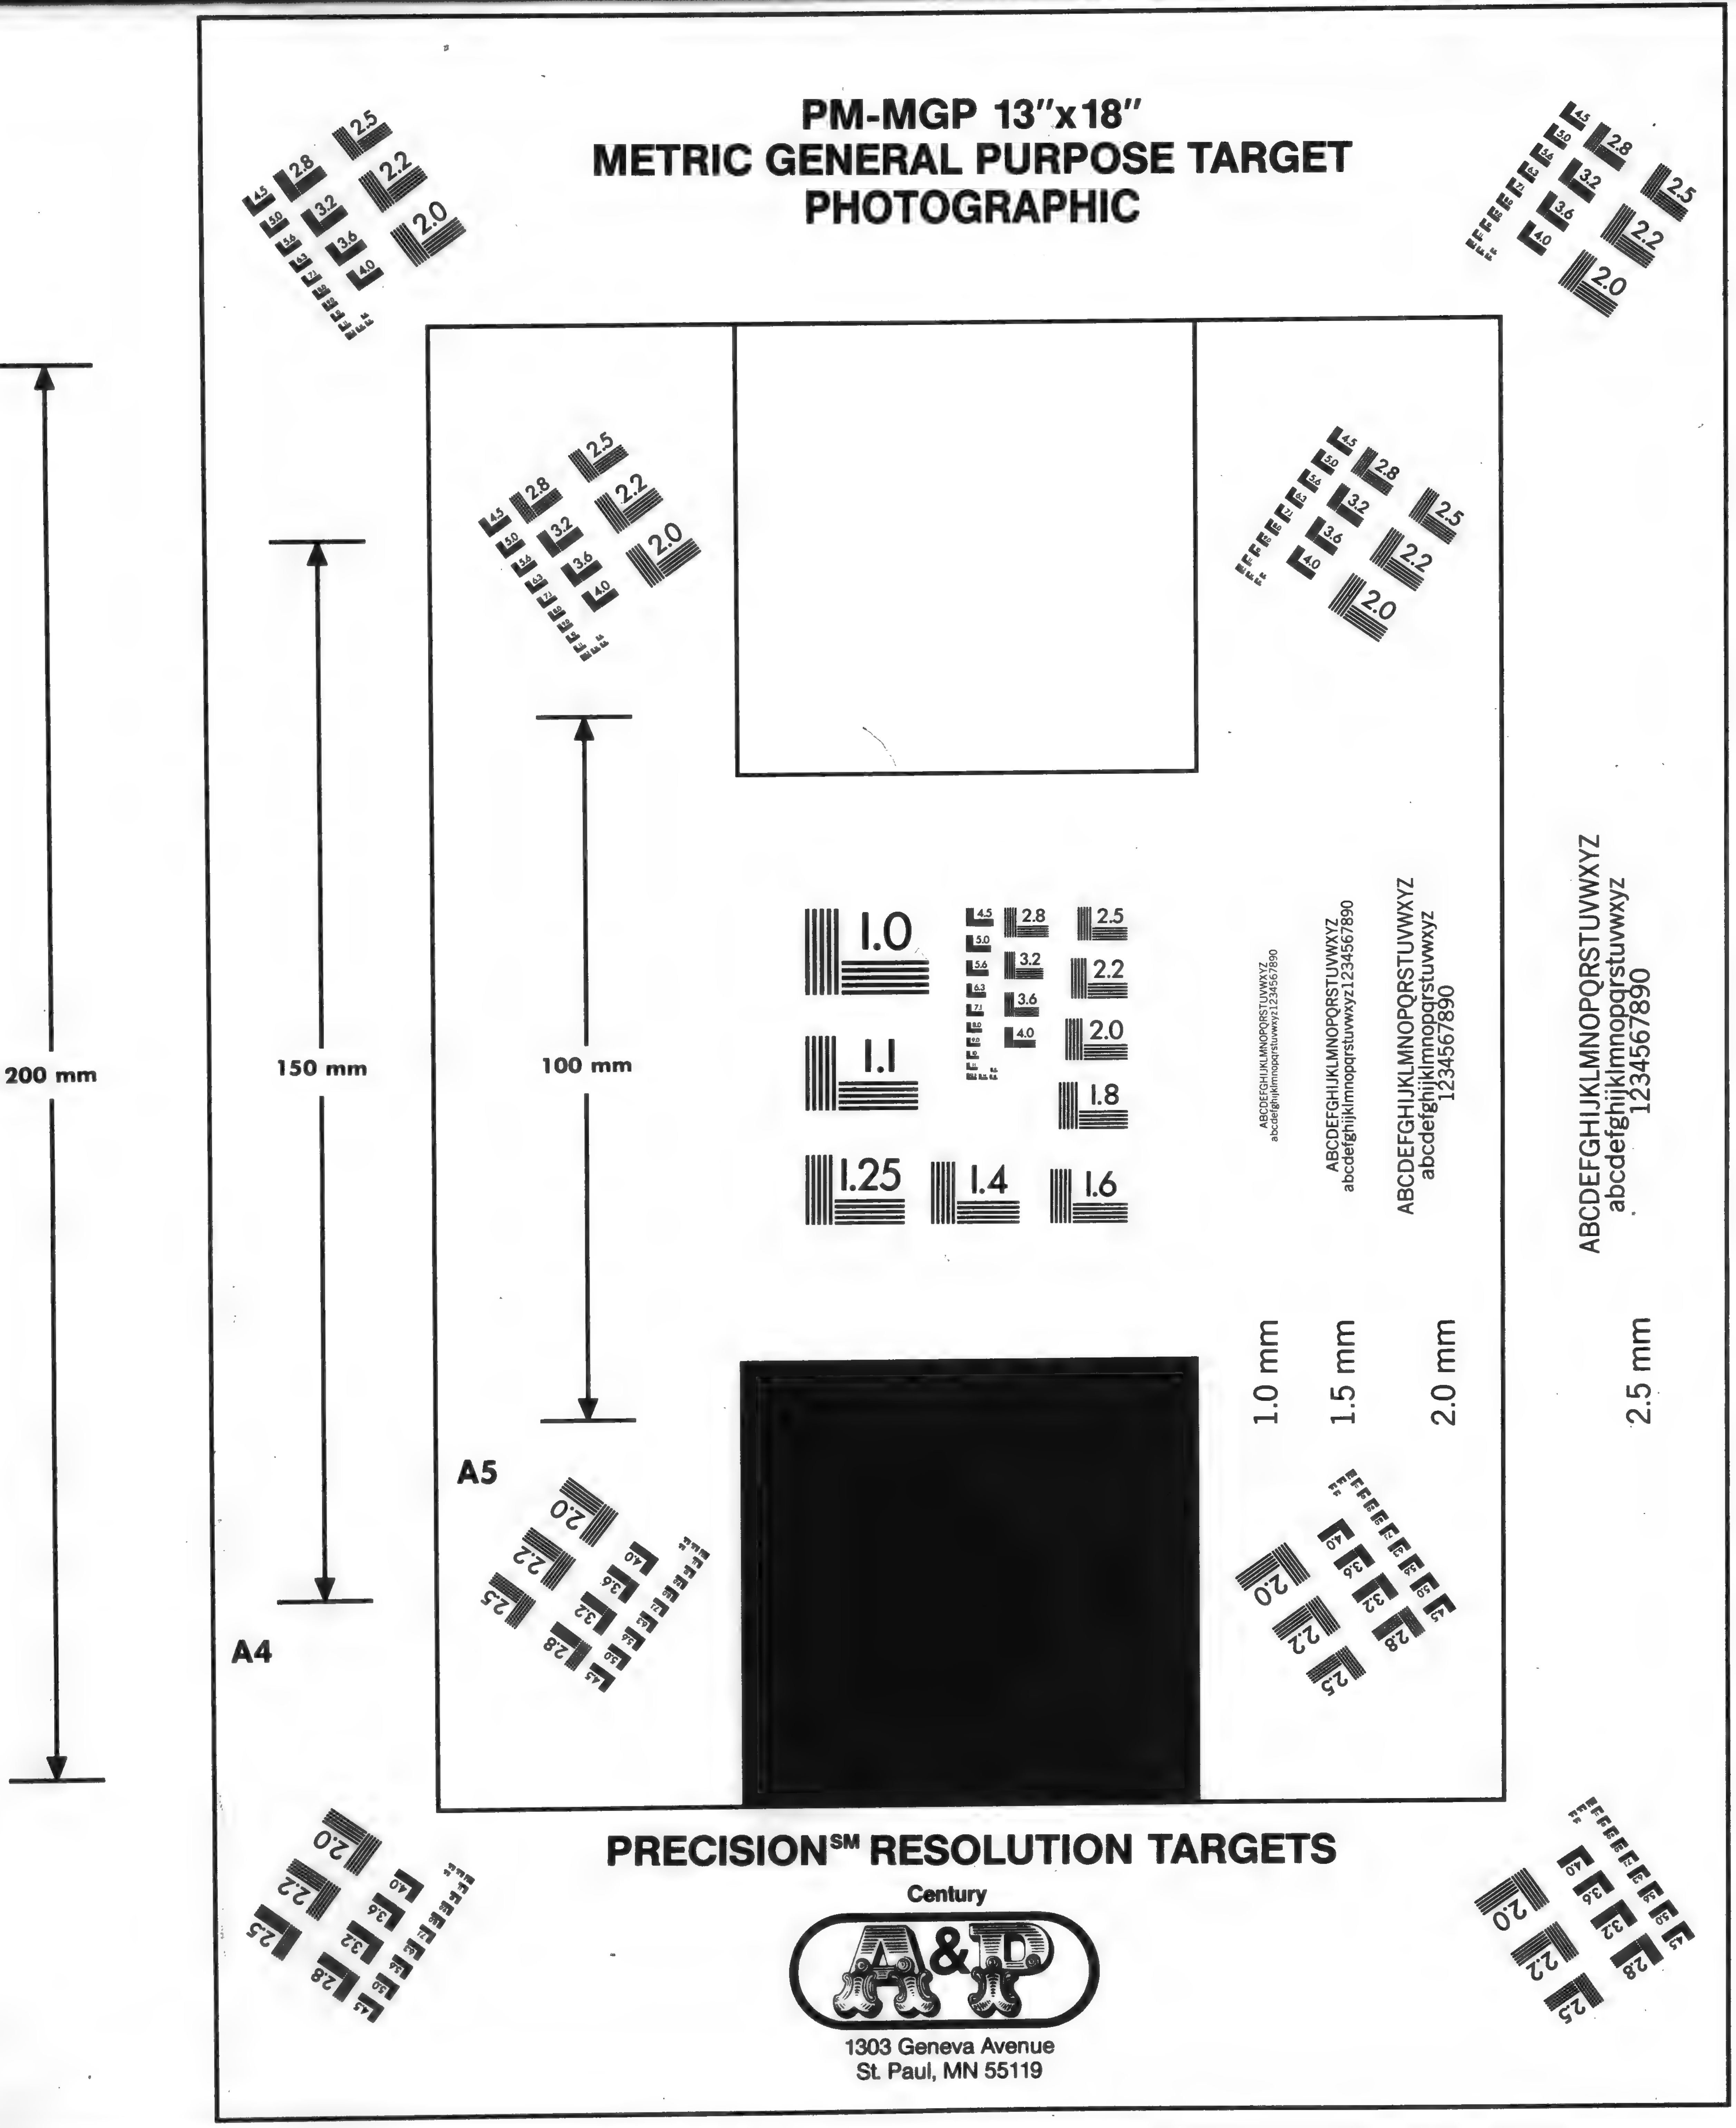
Says Aaron Copland: "We hope to train perceptive and sensitive human beings first, who will be artists second. That's what Tanglewood is about in the larger sense."

REDUCTION

RATIO

14x

PM-MGP 13"x18"
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC



2.5
2.8
2.2
4.5
5.0
3.2
2.0
5.6
3.6
4.0
1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
200 mm
150 mm
100 mm
A5
A4
A3

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

1.0 mm
1.5 mm
2.0 mm
2.5 mm

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century
A&P
1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119

Copyright 1958, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

DURHAM, N. C.
HERALD
Circ. D. 30,668 - S. 31,559

AUG 24 1958

CHARLESTON, W. VA.
GAZETTE-MAIL
SUN. 110,000

AUG 24 1958

SIOUX CITY, IOWA
JOURNAL
D. 56.354 S. 57.956

AUG 24 1958

TULSA, OKLA.
WORLD
Circ. D. 89,296 - S. 147,882

AUG 24 1958

Sunday Republican
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 46,025

AUG 24 1958

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 95,656 - S. 101,553

AUG 24 1958

NASHVILLE, TENN.
TENNESSEAN
Circ. D. 116,256 - S. 200,558

AUG 24 1958

READING EAGLE

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,969

AUG 24 1958

Sunday, Aug. 24, 1958

CULTURE UNDER THE ELMS

Berkshires' Tanglewood Mecca to Music Lovers

(Editor's note: It has been called the summer music capital of the United States, a mecca of music, America's answer to the Salzburg festival. But Tanglewood in the brooding Berkshires means many different things to the hundreds of thousands of tourists and music lovers who visit it each year. This is the last in a three-part series on summer culture.)

BY JOY MILLER

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — The summer wanes, and many a traveler returns home eager to share his color slides.

When, in his narration, he comes to ". . . and then we went to Tanglewood . . ." he pauses to let it sink in. Tanglewood means culture, and no maybes about it.

"Oh, and what was it like?" asks his listener respectfully.

"Well, you know, concert under the stars, that sort of thing. Boston symphony can't be beat. The conductor was good, too — Charles Munch. Didn't care too much for the Stravinsky, but love that Tchaikowsky. We sat on the grass. Myrtle didn't bring a sweater and had the sniffles all the way to Niagara Falls. Say, speaking of Niagara Falls, we met a honeymooning couple there from Peoria who . . ."

And that's Tanglewood to a tidy percentage of its visitors: The curious, the tourists who want to say they've been there, the picnickers who don't object to the music in the background, the hand-holders who think it's a terribly romantic setting, the arty pretenders who privately are convinced music reached its highest form in the Strauss waltzes but insist on Bartok or nothing.

Nobody's complaining, they get their money's worth. But they miss the Tanglewood beloved by thousands of sincere music devotees and musicians — the real Tanglewood.

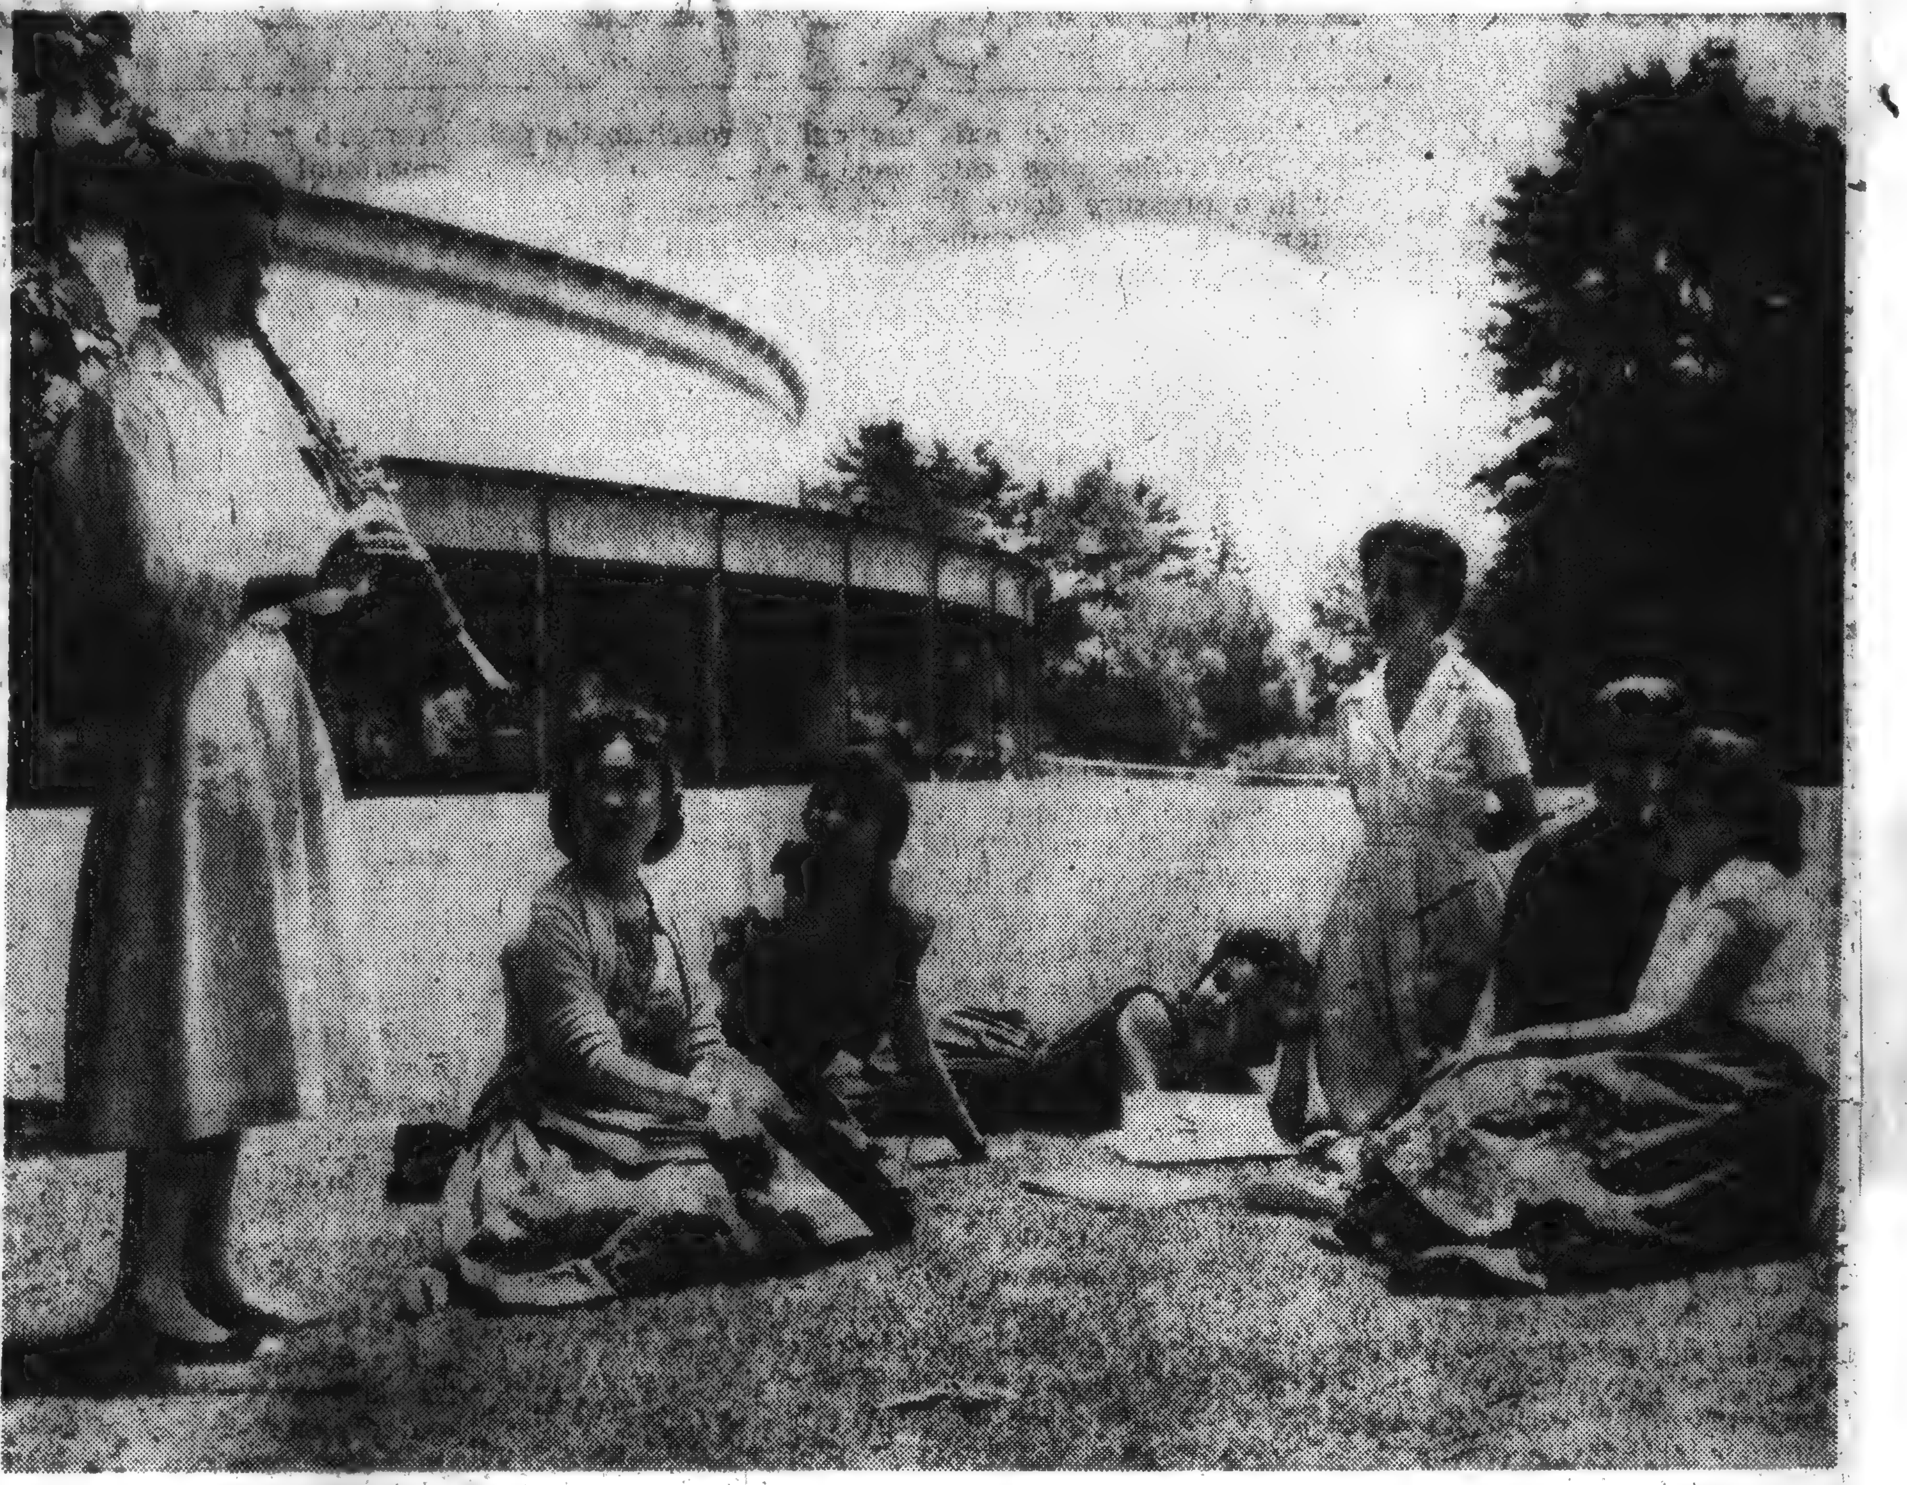
And what is that?

It's a student flutist practicing under a tree on the rolling lawn, Pan in sneakers and slacks in a sylvan glen of Arcadia.

It's the goosebumps you get the first time you hear that flashing precision instrument, the Boston Symphony orchestra, knife through the darkness with purest sound, answered by sighing pines.

It's the proud way the boy at the gate — a strapping youngster you'd think would like nothing more longhaired than Presley sideburns — flings it open wide for a car to pass through, and then turns to a group at the information desk with awe in his voice: "That was Munch's chauffeur."

It's the look of complete devotion you see when they — and that's just about everybody at Tanglewood — mention Serge Koussevitsky, the Boston symphony conductor who dreamed of



John McCollum (in costume at left) and Boris Goldovsky, director of the Berkshire Music center opera department at Tanglewood, Mass., go over the score of Rossini's opera, The Count Ory, presented this summer as part of the Berkshire festival. They are in a shed behind the theater-concert hall. McCollum, a former student at Tanglewood, returned to sing the leading role in the opera. (A. P. Newsfeatures Photo.)

keenac; inspect a replica (the original burned down) of the little red house where Nathaniel Hawthorne lived a couple of years and wrote The Wonder Book and planned Tanglewood Tales—then spread a picnic lunch.

By concert time, fortified with food and nature, they amble toward the Music Shed, for a bout with culture.

The shed is an open, fan-shaped, modernistic structure that covers 1½ acres and seats 6,000. When you're in the audience looking up at the steel girders, it seems more than anything like a hangar designed to keep a dirigible from getting claustrophobia.

It's remarkable acoustics and open colonnades carry the music far back on the lawn, which is blanketed at each concert with an overflow crowd of up to 9,000 loungers.

When the rains come — and there's something about the challenge of a composition with heavy timpani that brings out the best in a rainstorm — the guests far-scattered on the grass make a break for shelter at the back of the shed. Some just pull their blankets over the heads and wait it out.

How Tanglewood got its shed is a tale that goes back years to the orchestra's early brush with untrammeled nature.

Outdoor concerts had been held at a horse show ring for a couple of summers when Dr. Koussevitsky was invited to bring his orchestra down from Boston to play in a shell to an audience crammed under a huge people come and go. Tourists snap pictures everywhere.

"Well," shrugged an orchestra member later, "It's for a worthy cause. The dollar admission goes for the orchestra's pension fund. But does everybody and his grandmother, especially his grandmother, have to wear short shorts to concerts. The girl students can't wear them at the music school, you know. I don't mean to sound stuffy, but after all this is sort of a shrine of music. I guess, though, if Mr. Munch can stand it, we can."

Munch was one of France's foremost conductors when he went to Boston in 1949 after Koussevitsky's retirement. Now 66, he is tall, broad-shouldered and from an audience point of view, has one of the most impressive backs in the conducting field. The 105-member orchestra finds him inspirational.

This year Munch shared the podium with Pierre Monteux, at 83 a barrel of a man, mixing embonpoint and counterpoint with complete disregard for the field of geriatrics.

"Monteux is sort of our Herbert Hoover," says Leonard Burkat, the orchestra's music administrator. "He was conductor of the Boston symphony in 1919-1924, and he still jaunts around the world. He came here from Europe and is going right back to conduct. Many people don't realize it but conducting a concert is equivalent to a 10-round fight with no time out."

Foreign students at the Berkshire Music center in Tanglewood, Mass., listen attentively as Patricia Lissack (left) of London plays a piece. Others are, left to right, Maria Lopez-Vito and Marilyn Gatmaitan, both of Quezon City, Philippines; Atipet Usmanbus, Ankara, Turkey; Wadad Mouzannar, Beirut, Lebanon; Liwiang Cruz, San Juan, Rizal, Philippines, and Shoshana Ben-Yohanan, Tel Aviv, Israel. This summer 30 students from 14 foreign countries were among the 350 who studied at the music center. (A. P. Newsfeatures Photo.)

how he stacks up. It's a great place for evaluating on a very high level. The atmosphere makes them better than they are."

Who are the students?

There's small, shy Helen Garvey of Minneapolis who has studied piano 14 of her 19 years and wants to teach piano in college after she graduates from the Uni-

while they are still young professionals."

Every summer his department puts on an opera, with the students doing everything from paintng scenery to staging and singing it. This year it was Rossini's The Count Ory, and a former student, John sideburns—flings it open wide for Boston Symphony by the heirs of first desk players.

---

a car to pass through, and then William Aspinwall Tappan, the Dean Ralph Berkowitz says:
turns to a group at the informa- Boston banker who had laid out "The great thing about the school

LENOX, Mass. (AP) — The summer wanes, and many a traveler returns home eager to share his color slides.

When, in his narration, he comes to ". . . and then we went to Tanglewood . . ." he pauses to let it sink in. Tanglewood means culture, and no maybes about it.

"Oh, and what was it like?" asks his listener respectfully.

"Well, you know, concert under the stars, that sort of thing. Boston symphony can't be beat. The conductor was good, too — Charles Munch. Didn't care too much for the Stravinsky, but love that Tchaikowsky. We sat on the grass. Myrtle didn't bring a sweater and had the sniffles all the way to Niagara Falls. Say, speaking of Niagara Falls, we met a honeymooning couple there from Peoria who . . ."

And that's Tanglewood to a tidy percentage of its visitors: The curious, the tourists who want to say they've been there, the picnickers who don't object to the music in the background, the hand-holders who think it's a terribly romantic setting, the arty pretenders who privately are convinced music reached its highest form in the Strauss waltzes but insist on Bartok or nothing.

Nobody's complaining, they get their money's worth. But they miss the Tanglewood beloved by thousands of sincere music devotees and musicians — the real Tanglewood.

And what is that?

It's a student flutist practicing under a tree on the rolling lawn, Pan in sneakers and slacks in a sylvan glen of Arcadia.

It's the goosebumps you get the first time you hear that flashing precision instrument, the Boston Symphony orchestra, knife through the darkness with purest sound, answered by sighing pines.

It's the proud way the boy at the gate — a strapping youngster you'd think would like nothing more longhaired than Presley sideburns — flings it open wide for a car to pass through, and then turns to a group at the information desk with awe in his voice: "That was Munch's chauffeur."

It's the look of complete devotion you see when they — and that's just about everybody at Tanglewood — mention Serge Koussevitsky, the Boston symphony conductor who dreamed of a great music festival combined with a great music school and made it a reality with Tanglewood. He died seven years ago, but the way they talk about him you'd think he was at a rehearsal right now and any minute would come bounding along the path of pines, hands outstretched in greeting, eyes crinkling in delight, as usual.

Tanglewood is all these — although technically Tanglewood is only the name of the estate on which the Berkshire Music festival and the school, called the Berkshire Music center, are held for six weeks each summer.

During the week school activities for the 350 students hold full sway. But on weekends, beginning late Friday afternoon, a steady stream of cars moves past palatial mansions — mostly private schools or guest homes now —through Lenox and on out to Tanglewood.

Special policemen wave the traffic on, hoping with the rest of Lenox citizenry that most of it will want to stay overnight. The town of 3,000 hibernates in winter without tourist trade and doubles in size on summer weekends.

Once at Tanglewood, the festival visitors first roam over the 210 acres of lawns, meadows and formal gardens down to Lake Mahkeenac; Inspect a replica (the original burned down) of the little red house where Nathaniel Hawthorne lived a couple of years and wrote The Wonder Book and planned Tanglewood Tales—then spread a picnic lunch.

John McCollum (in costume at left) and Boris Goldovsky, director of the Berkshire Music center opera department at Tanglewood, Mass., go over the score of Rossini's opera, The Count Ory, presented this summer as part of the Berkshire festival. They are in a shed behind the theater-concert hall. McCollum, a former student at Tanglewood, returned to sing the leading role in the opera. (A. P. Newsfeatures Photo.)

By concert time, fortified with food and nature, they amble toward the Music Shed, for a bout with culture.

The shed is an open, fan-shaped, modernistic structure that covers 1½ acres and seats 6,000. When you're in the audience looking up at the steel girders, it seems more than anything like a hangar designed to keep a dirigible from getting claustrophobia.

It's remarkable acoustics and open colonnades carry the music far back on the lawn, which is blanketed at each concert with an overflow crowd of up to 9,000 loungers.

When the rains come — and there's something about the challenge of a composition with heavy timpani that brings out the best in a rainstorm — the guests far-scattered on the grass make a break for shelter at the back of the shed. Some just pull their blankets over the heads and wait it out.

How Tanglewood got its shed is a tale that goes back years to the orchestra's early brush with untrammeled nature.

Outdoor concerts had been held at a horse show ring for a couple of summers when Dr. Koussevitsky was invited to bring his orchestra down from Boston to play in a shell to an audience crammed under a huge rented tent.

That was in 1936. Before the next summer came, the heirs of William Aspinwall Tappan, the Boston banker who had laid out Tanglewood nearly 100 years before, gave the estate to the orchestra.

For the 1937 summer season, the same shell and rented tent were moved to Tanglewood. One night, during the playing of the stormy Ride of the Valkyries, the heavens opened wide. Rain pelting on the canvas tent drowned out the music — and the instruments.

"Even the French horns were shipping water," one critic wrote.

Right then and there a subscription campaign for a permanent auditorium was launched among the half-downed music lovers. By the next summer the music shed was open for business.

A tradition instituted years ago by Dr. Koussevitsky is the Saturday morning open rehearsal. The orchestra goes about its business, irnoring the shifting mass across the footlights. Occasionally the noise becomes distracting and Munch sharply asks the audience to be quiet.

Brahms and Confusion

This chastens for all of five seconds the squirmy, chattering children arriving by busloads from nearby summer camps for the peek at culture. And in the aisles people come and go. Tourists snap pictures everywhere.

"Well," shrugged an orchestra member later, "It's for a worthy cause. The dollar admission goes for the orchestra's pension fund. But does everybody and his grandmother, especially his grandmother, have to wear short shorts to concerts. The girl students can't wear them at the music school, you know. I don't mean to sound stuffy, but after all this is sort of a shrine of music. I guess, though, if Mr. Munch can stand it, we can."

Munch was one of France's foremost conductors when he went to Boston in 1949 after Koussevitsky's retirement. Now 66, he is tall, broad-shouldered and from an audience point of view, has one of the most impressive backs in the conducting field. The 105-member orchestra finds him inspirational.

This year Munch shared the podium with Pierre Monteux, at 83 a barrel of a man, mixing embonpoint and counterpoint with complete disregard for the field of geriatrics.

"Monteux is sort of our Herbert Hoover," says Leonard Burkat, the orchestra's music administrator. "He was conductor of the Boston symphony in 1919-1924, and he still jaunts around the world. He came here from Europe and is going right back to conduct. Many people don't realize it but conducting a concert is equivalent to a 10-round fight with no time out."

Munch and Monteux are bon vivants and the best of friends. Not long ago a fervent admirer sighted them together in a Lenox restaurant. He wangled a table next to theirs, could barely order dinner he was so excited at the thought of the pearls of musical wisdom that would fall into his eavesdropping ears.

"And do you know," he later told a friend indignantly, "for the length of that dinner, and it was a prodigious one, they talked about only one thing: Food."

Directs Music Center

Munch also is director of the Berkshire Music center which Koussevitsky started in 1940 and headed as director until he died. Boston Symphony orchestra members comprise the faculty, of which Aaron Copland, the well-known composer, is chairman.

Through the school pass some of the most talented young musicians in the country. Right now 269 former students are engaged by 45 United States orchestras — nine are conductors, including Leonard Bernstein of the New York Philharmonic, Koussevitsky's prize pupil — and 67 are principals, or first desk players.

Dean Ralph Berkowitz says: "The great thing about the school is that it allows a young person to meet his contemporaries and see how he stacks up. It's a great place for evaluating on a very high level. The atmosphere makes them better than they are."

Foreign students at the Berkshire Music center in Tanglewood, Mass., listen attentively as Patricia Lissack (left) of London plays a piece. Others are, left to right, Maria Lopez-Vito and Marilyn Gatmaitan, both of Quezon City, Philippines; Atipet Usmanbus, Ankara, Turkey; Wadad Mouzannar, Beirut, Lebanon; Liwiang Cruz, San Juan, Rizal, Philippines, and Shoshana Ben-Yohanan, Tel Aviv, Israel. This summer 30 students from 14 foreign countries were among the 350 who studied at the music center. (A. P. Newsfeatures Photo.)

Who are the students?

There's small, shy Helen Garvey of Minneapolis who has studied piano 14 of her 19 years and wants to teach piano in college after she graduates from the University of Minnesota.

Dark-haired Karen Rosenwald of Philadelphia, in the scenic arts division in opera, is 18 and very serious.

"I paint scenery and do all sorts of menial tasks, but it's necessary to understand the component parts of everything," Karen said. "I'm really here for the experience and to grow intellectually."

Wadad Mouzannar, pianist from Lebanon, is one of the 30 students from 14 foreign countries. She met Munch last year when he conducted a Lebanon festival and he encouraged her to come to Tanglewood. She intends to go back home and become a concert pianist.

Adman Studies Opera

Blond, lanky Bill Schlottman, 25, a baritone quit his job as advertising manager of the River Oaks Times, a weekly society magazine in Houston, to come to Tanglewood to study opera with Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department.

Goldovsky, whose voice is familiar to millions from his years of intermission appearances on Saturday broadcasts of the Metropolitan opera, says: "We get the cream of the cream, the very best people from everywhere. Half of the best opera singers in the country have been here. It doesn't mean we have trained them, but we get them in training while they are still young professionals."

Every summer his department puts on an opera, with the students doing everything from paintng scenery to staging and singing it. This year it was Rossini's The Count Ory, and a former student, John McCollum, returned to take the title role. Big city music critics were highly complimentary.

But success and talent aren't the first considerations at Tanglewood.

Says Aaron Copland: "We hope to train perceptive and sensitive human beings first, who will be artists second. That's what Tanglewood is about in the larger sense."

sideburns—flings it open wide for a car to pass through, and then turns to a group at the informa- Boston Symphony by the heirs of William Aspinwall Tappan, the Boston banker who had laid out first desk players. Dean Ralph Berkowitz says: "The great thing about the school

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,590

AUG 24 1958

Cream of Nation's Young Musicians Train at School

Casual Visitors Miss the Real Tanglewood

By JOY MILLER

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—The summer wanes, and many a traveler returns home eager to share his color slides.

When, in his narration, he comes to "... and then we went to Tanglewood..." he pauses to let it sink in. Tanglewood means culture, and no maybes about it.

"Oh, and what was it like?" asks his listener respectfully.

"Well, you know, concert under the stars, that sort of thing. Boston symphony can't be beat. The conductor was good, too—Charles Munch. Didn't care too much for the Stravinsky, but love that Tchaikowsky. We sat on the grass. Myrtle didn't bring a sweater and had the sniffles all the way to Niagara Falls. Say, speaking of Niagara Falls, we met a honeymooning couple there from Peoria who ...."

And that's Tanglewood to a tidy percentage of its visitors: the curious, the tourists who want to say they've been there, the picknickers who don't object to music in the background, the hand-holders who think it's a terribly romantic setting, the arty pretenders who privately are convinced music reached its highest form in the Strauss waltzes but insist on Bartok or nothing.

Nobody's complaining, they get their money's worth. But they miss the Tanglewood beloved by thousands of sincere music devotees and musicians—the real Tanglewood.

And what is that?

It's a student flutist practicing under a tree on the rolling lawn, Pan in sneakers and slacks in a sylvan glen of Arcadia.

It's the goosebumps you get the first time you hear that flashing precision instrument, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, knife through the darkness with purest sound, answered by sighing pines.

It's the proud way the boy at the gate—a strapping youngster you'd think would like nothing more long-haired than Presley sideburns—flings it open wide for a car to pass through, and then turns to a group at the information desk with awe in his voice: "that was Munch's chanffeur."

It's the look of complete devotion you see when they—and that's just about everybody at Tanglewood — mention Serge Koussevitsky, the Boston symphony conductor who dreamed of a great music festival combined with a great music school and made it a reality with Tanglewood. He died seven years ago, but the way they talk about him you'd think he was at a rehearsal right now.

Tanglewood is all these — although technically Tanglewood is only the name of the estate on which the Berkshire Music Festival and the school, called the Berkshire Music Center, are held for six weeks each summer.

During the week school activities for the 350 students hold full sway. But on weekends, beginning late Friday afternoon, a steady stream of cars moves past palatial mansions — mostly private schools or guest homes now — through Lenox and on out to Tanglewood.

At Tanglewood, the festival visitors first roam over the 210 acres of lawns, meadows and formal gardens down to Lake Mahkeenac; inspect a replica (the original burned down) of the little red house where Nathaniel Hawthorne lived a couple of years and wrote "The Wonder Book" and planned "Tanglewood Tales" — then spread a picnic lunch.

By concert time, fortified with food and nature, visitors amble toward the Music Shed, for a bout with culture.

The shed is an open, fan-shaped, modernistic structure that covers 1½ acres and seats 6,000. When you're in the audience looking up at the steel girders, it seems more than anything like a hangar designed to keep a dirigible from getting claustrophobia.

Its remarkable acoustics and open colonnades carry the music far back on the lawn, which is blanketed at each concert with an overflow crowd of from two to nine thousand loungers.

Tanglewood was given to the Boston Symphony by the heirs of William Aspinwall Tappan, the Boston banker who had laid out Tanglewood nearly 100 years before.

A tradition instituted years ago by Dr. Koussevitsky is the Saturday morning open rehearsal. The orchestra goes about its business, ignoring the shifting mass across the footlights. Occasionally the noise becomes distracting and Munch calls on the onlookers to be quiet.

This chastens for all of five seconds the squirmy, chattering children arriving by busloads from nearby summer camps for the peek at culture. And in the aisles people come and go. Tourists snap pictures everywhere.

"Well," shrugged an orchestra member later, "it's for a worthy cause. The dollar admission goes for the orchestra's pension fund." Munch was one of France's foremost conductors when he went to Boston in 1949 after Koussevitsky's retirement. Now 66, he is tall, broad-shouldered and from an audience point of view, has one of the most impressive backs in the conducting field. The 105-member orchestra finds him inspirational.

This year Munch shared the podium with Pierre Monteux, at 83 a barrel of a man, mixing embonpoint and counterpoint with complete disregard for the field of geriatrics.

Munch is also director of the Berkshire Music Center which Koussevitsky started in 1940 and headed as director until he died. Boston Symphony Orchestra members comprise the faculty, of which Aaron Coplan. the well known composer, is chairman.

Through the school pass some of the most talented young musicians in the country. Right now 269 former students are engaged by 45 U.S. orchestras—nine are conductors including Leonard Bernstein of the New York Philharmonic, Koussvitsky prize pupil—and 67 are principals, or first deck players.

Dean Ralph Berkowitz says: "The great thing about the school is that it allows a young person to meet his contemporaries and see how he stacks up."

Who are the students?

There's small, shy Helen Garvey of Minneapolis who has studied piano 14 of her 19 years and wants to teach piano in college after she graduates from the University of Minnesota.

Dark-haired Karen Rosenwald of Philadelphia, in the scenic arts division in opera, is 18 and very serious.

Wadad Mouzannar, pianist from Lebanon, is one of the 30 students from 14 foreign countries.

Blond, lanky Bill Schlottman, 25, a baritone, quit his job as advertising manager of the River Oaks Times, a weekly society magazine in Houston, to come to Tanglewood to study opera with Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department.

Goldovsky, whose voice is familiar to millions from his years of intermission appearances on Saturday broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera, says: "We get the cream of the cream, the very best people from everywhere. Half of the best opera singers in the country have been here. It doesn't mean we have trained them, but we get them in training while they are still young professionals."

Every summer his department puts on an opera, with the students doing everything from painting scenery to staging and singing it. This year it was Rossini's "The Count Ory," and a former student, John McCollum, returned to take the title role. Big city music critics were highly complimentary.

But success and talent aren't the first considerations at Tanglewood.

Says Aaron Copland: "We hope to train perceptive and sensitive human beings first who will be artists second. That's what Tanglewood is about in the larger sense."

TANGLEWOOD IN THE BERKSHIRES FROM THE AIR
Fan-shaped Music Shed, seating 6,000, sits on 210 acres of lawns, meadows and formal gardens

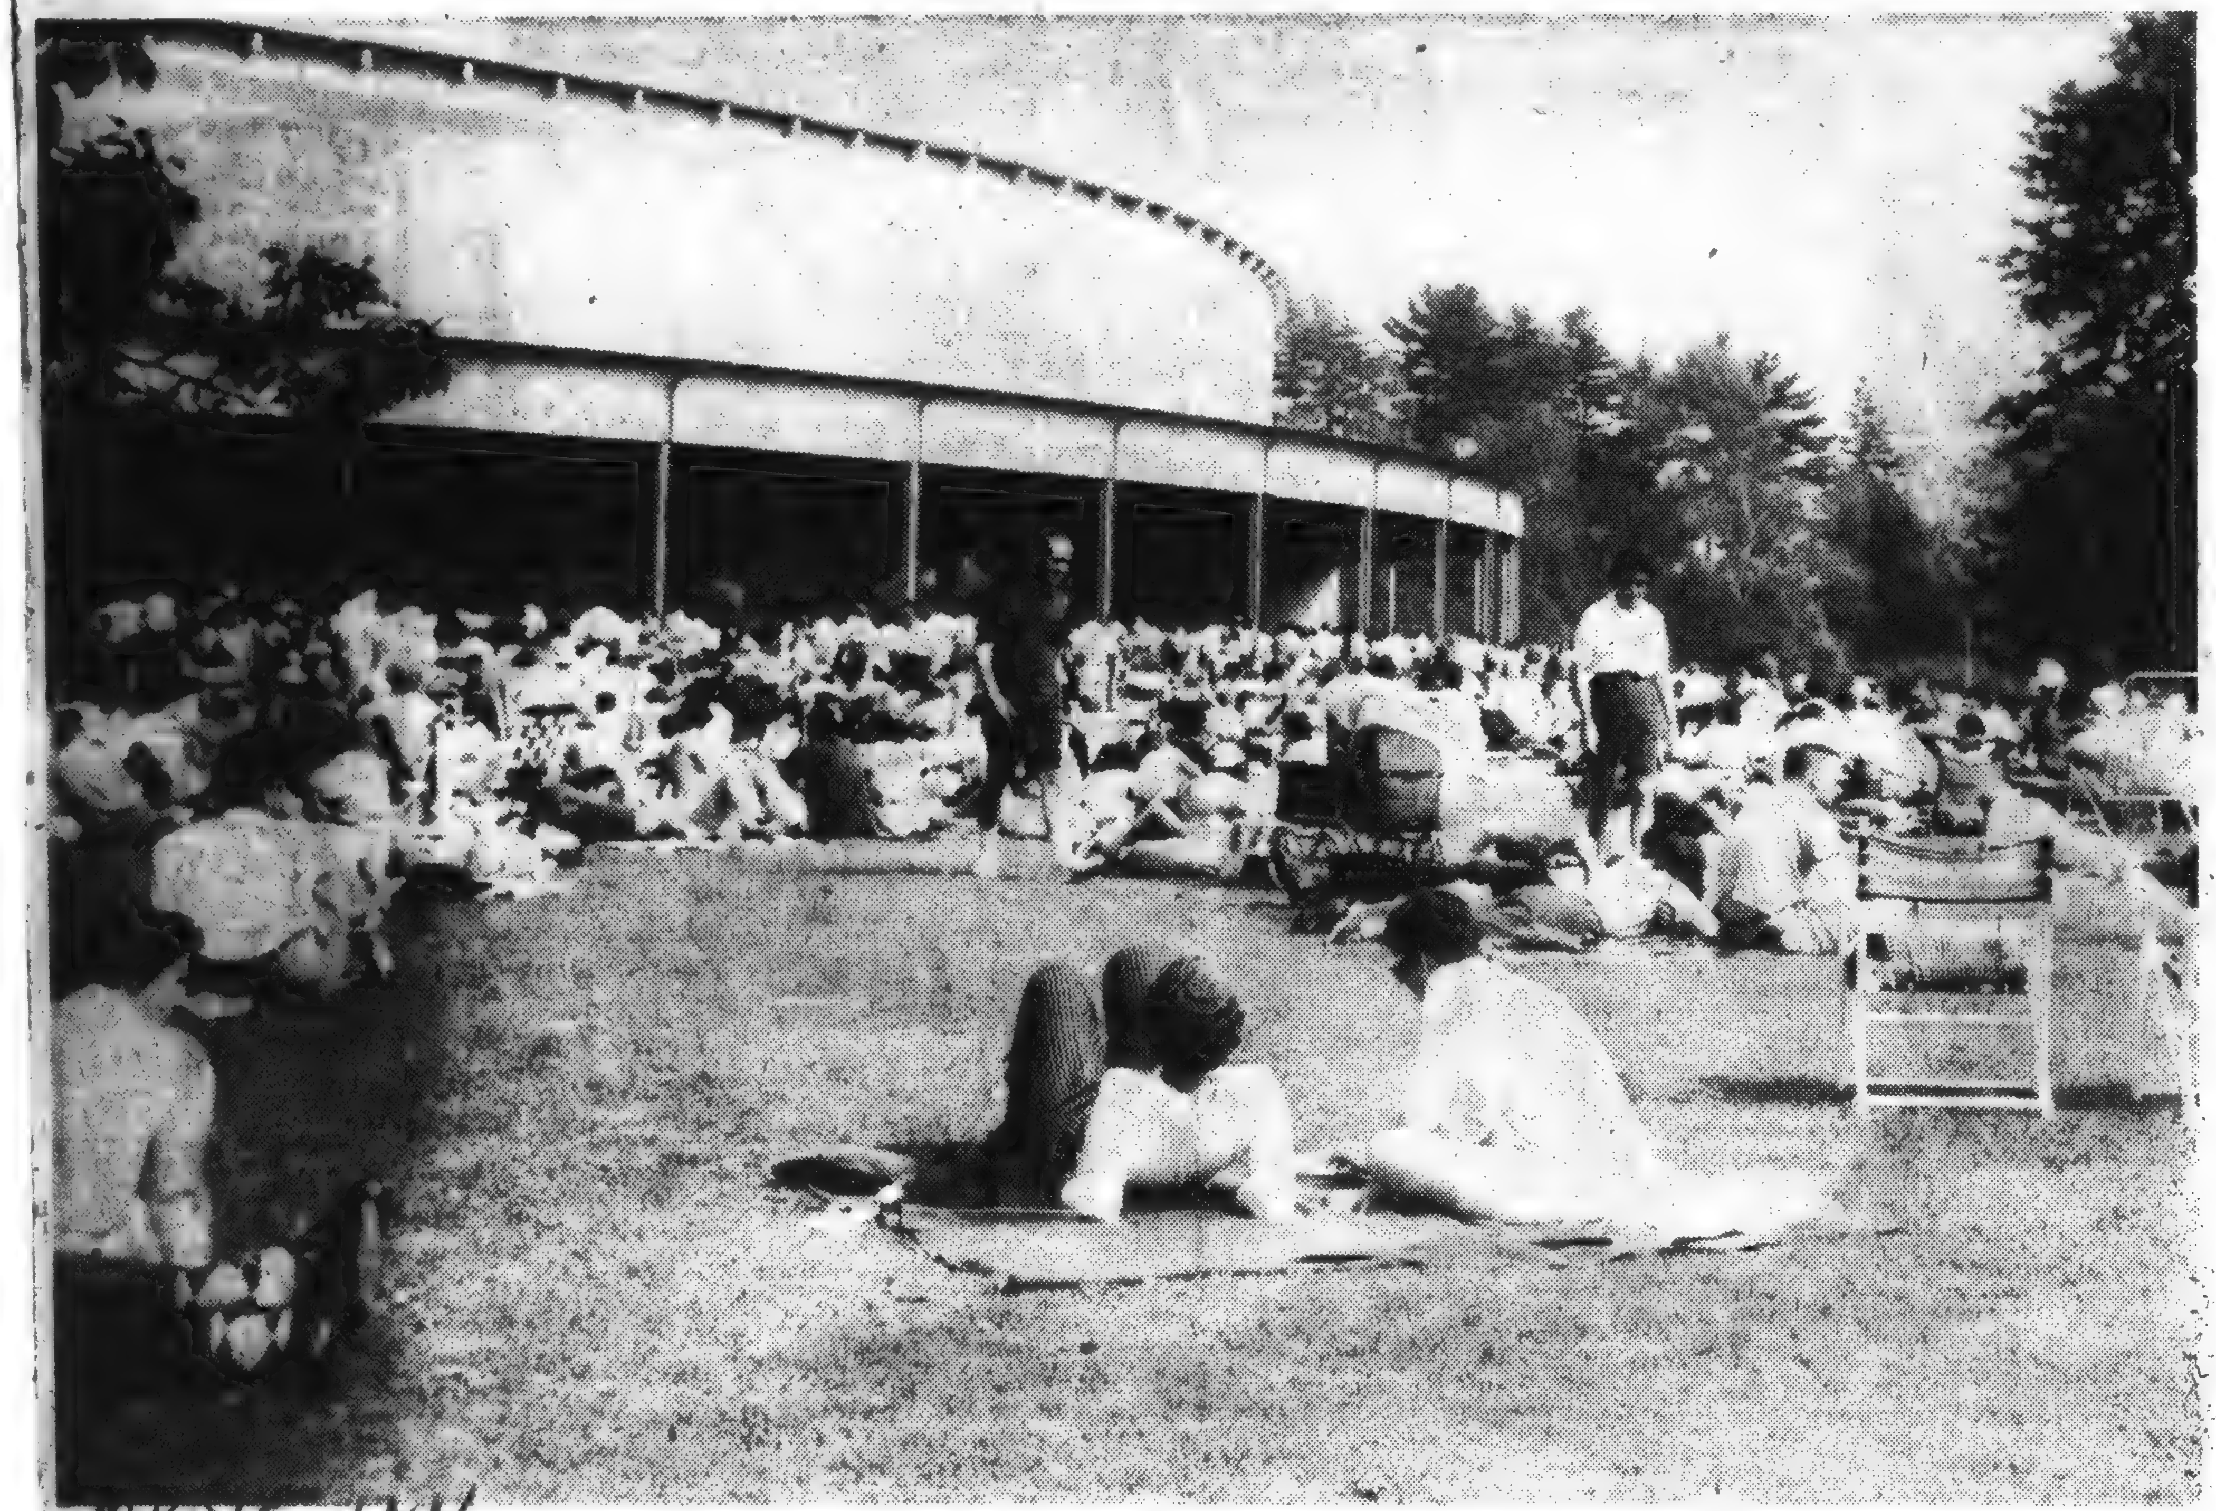
SPOKANE, WASH.
SPOKESMAN-REVIEW
Circ. D. 89,817 - S. 144,303

SEP 1 1958

URBANA, ILL.
COURIER
Circ. D. 28,610 - S. 29,174

AUG 25 1958

Music from the "Shed"



MUSIC INN

MUSIC lovers overflow onto the lawn of the Shed while listening to the Boston symphony orchestra play a Sunday afternoon concert at Tanglewood, in the Berkshire mountains near Lenox, Mass. Shed's 6000 seats are scaled from $2.50 to $6.50. The price of sitting on the lawn is $2. Day and night music concerts, operas and chamber recitals are presented there.

HIGH POINT, N.C.
ENTERPRISE
D. 23 476 S. 23 529

AUG 24 1958

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

AUG 24 1958

DAVENPORT, IOWA
Democrat & Times
Circ. S. 48,790

AUG 24 1958

AT TANGLEWOOD MUSIC FESTIVAL

Culture Offered Under Elms

By JOY MILLER

LENOX, Mass. (AP)—The summer wanes, and many a traveler returns home eager to share his color slides.

When, in his narration, he comes to ". . . and then we went to Tanglewood..." he pauses to let it sink in. Tanglewood means culture, and no maybes about it.

"Oh, and what was it like?" asks his listener respectfully.

"Well, you know, concert under the stars, that sort of thing. Boston symphony can't be beat. The conductor was good, too—Charles Munch. Didn't care too much for the Stravinsky, but love that Tchaikowsky. We sat on the grass. Myrtle didn't bring a sweater and had the sniffles all the way to Niagara Falls. Say, speaking of Niagara Falls we met a honeymooning couple there from Peoria who ...."

And that's Tanglewood to a tidy percentage of its visitors: the curious, the tourists who want to say they've been there, the picknickers who don't object to music in the background, the hand-holders, who think it's a terribly romantic setting, the arty pretenders who privately are convinctd music reached its highest form in the Strauss waltzes but insist on Bartok or nothing.

No Complaints

Nobody's complaining, they get their money's worth. But they miss the Tanglewood beloved by thousands of sincere music devotees and musicians—the real Tanglewood.

And what is that?

It's a student flutist practicing under a tree on the rolling lawn, Pan in sneakers and slacks in a sylvan glen of Arcadia.

It's the goosebumps you get the first time you hear that flashing precision instrument, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, knife through the darkness with purest sound, answered by sighing pines.

It's the proud way the boy at the gate—a strapping youngster you'd think would like nothing more long-haired than Presley sideburns—flings it open wide for a car to pass through, and then turns to a group at the information desk with awe in his voice: "that was Munch's chauffeur."

It's the look of complete devotion you see when they—and that's just about everybody at Tanglewood — mention Serge Koussevitsky, the Boston symphony conductor who dreamed of a great music festival combined with a great music school and made it a reality with Tanglewood. He died seven years ago, but the way they talk about him you'd think he was at a rehearsal right now.

All These

Tanglewood is all these — although technically Tanglewood is only the name of the estate on which the Berkshire Music Festival and the school, called the Berkshire Music Center, are held for six weeks each summer.

During the week school activities for the 350 students hold full sway. But on weekends, beginning late Friday afternoon, a steady stream of cars moves past palatial mansions — mostly private schools or guest homes now — through Lenox and on out to Tanglewood.

At Tanglewood, the festival visitors first roam over the 210 acres of lawns, meadows and formal gardens down to Lake Mahkeenac; inspect a replica (the original burned down) of the little red house where Nathaniel Hawthorne lived a couple of years and wrote "The Wonder Book" and planned "Tanglewood Tales" — then spread a picnic lunch.

By concert time, fortified with food and nature, visitors amble toward the Music Shed, for a bout with culture.

The shed is an open, fan-shaped, modernistic structure that covers 1¼ acres and seats 6,000. When you're in the audience looking up at the steel girders, it seems more than anything like a hangar designed to keep a dirigible from getting claustrophobia.

It's remarkable acoustics and open colonnades carry the music far back on the lawn, which is blanketed at each concert with an overflow crowd of from two to nine thousand loungers.

Tanglewood was given to the Boston Symphony by the heirs of William Aspinwall Tappan, the Boston banker who had laid out Tanglewood nearly 100 years before.

Audience Noisy

A tradition insituted years ago by Dr. Koussevitsky is the Saturday morning open rehearsal. The orchestra goes about its business, ignoring the shifting mass across the footlights. Occasionally the Munch sharply asks the audience to be quiet.

This chastens for all of five seconds the squirmy, chattering children arriving by busloads from nearby summer camps for the peek at culture. And in the aisles people come and go. Tourists snap pictures everywhere.

"Well," shrugged an orchestra member later, "it's for a worthy cause. The dollar admission goes for the orchestra's pension fund.

Munch was one of France's foremost conductors when he went to Boston in 1949 after Koussevitsky's retirement. Now 66, he is tall, broad-shouldered and from an audience point of view, has one of the most impressive backs in the conducting field. The 105-member orchestra finds him inspirational.

This year Munch shared the podium with Pierre Monteux, at 83 a barrel of a man, mixing embonpoint and counterpoint with complete disregard for the field of geriatrics.

Munch is also director of the Berkshire Music Center which Koussevitsky started in 1940 and headed as director until he died. Boston Symphony Orchestra members comprise the faculty, of which Aaron Copland, the well known composer, is chairman.

Through the school pass some of the most talented young musicians in the country. Right now 269 former students are engaged by 45 U.S. orchestras—nine are conductors including Leonard Bernstein of the New York Philharmonic, Koussevitsky's prize pupil—and 67 are principals, or first desk players.

Dean Ralph Berkowitz says: "The great thing about the school is that it allows a young person to meet his contemporaries and see how he stacks up."

Students Diversified

Who are the students?

There's small, shy Helen Garvey of Minneapolis who has studied piano 14 of her 19 years and wants to teach piano in college after she graduates from the University of Minnesota.

Dark-haired Karen Rosenwald of Philadelphia, in the scenic arts division in opera, is 18 and very serious.

Wadad Mouzannar, pianist from Lebanon, is one of the 30 students from 14 foreign countries.

Blond, lanky Bill Schlottman, 25, a baritone, quit his job as advertising manager of the River Oaks Times, a weekly society magazine in Houston, to come to Tanglewood to study opera with Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department.

Goldovsky, whose voice is familiar to millions from his years of intermission appearances on Saturday broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera, says: "We get the cream of the cream, the very best people from everywhere. Half of the best opera singers in the country have been here. It doesn't mean we have trained them, but we get them in training while they are still young professionals."

Every summer his department puts on an opera, with the students doing everything from painting scenery to staging and singing it. This year it was Rossini's "The County Ory," and a former student, John McCollum, returned to take the title role. Big city music critics were highly complimentary.

But success and talent aren't the first considerations at Tanglewood.

Says Aaron Copland: "We hope to train perceptive and sensitive human beings first who will be artists second. That's what Tanglewood is about in the larger sense."

FOREIGN STUDENTS AT TANGLEWOOD

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.
TIMES
D 52 137 S 80 491
AUG 24 1958

WILMINGTON, N. C.
STAR
Circ. D. 17,998
AUG 28 1958

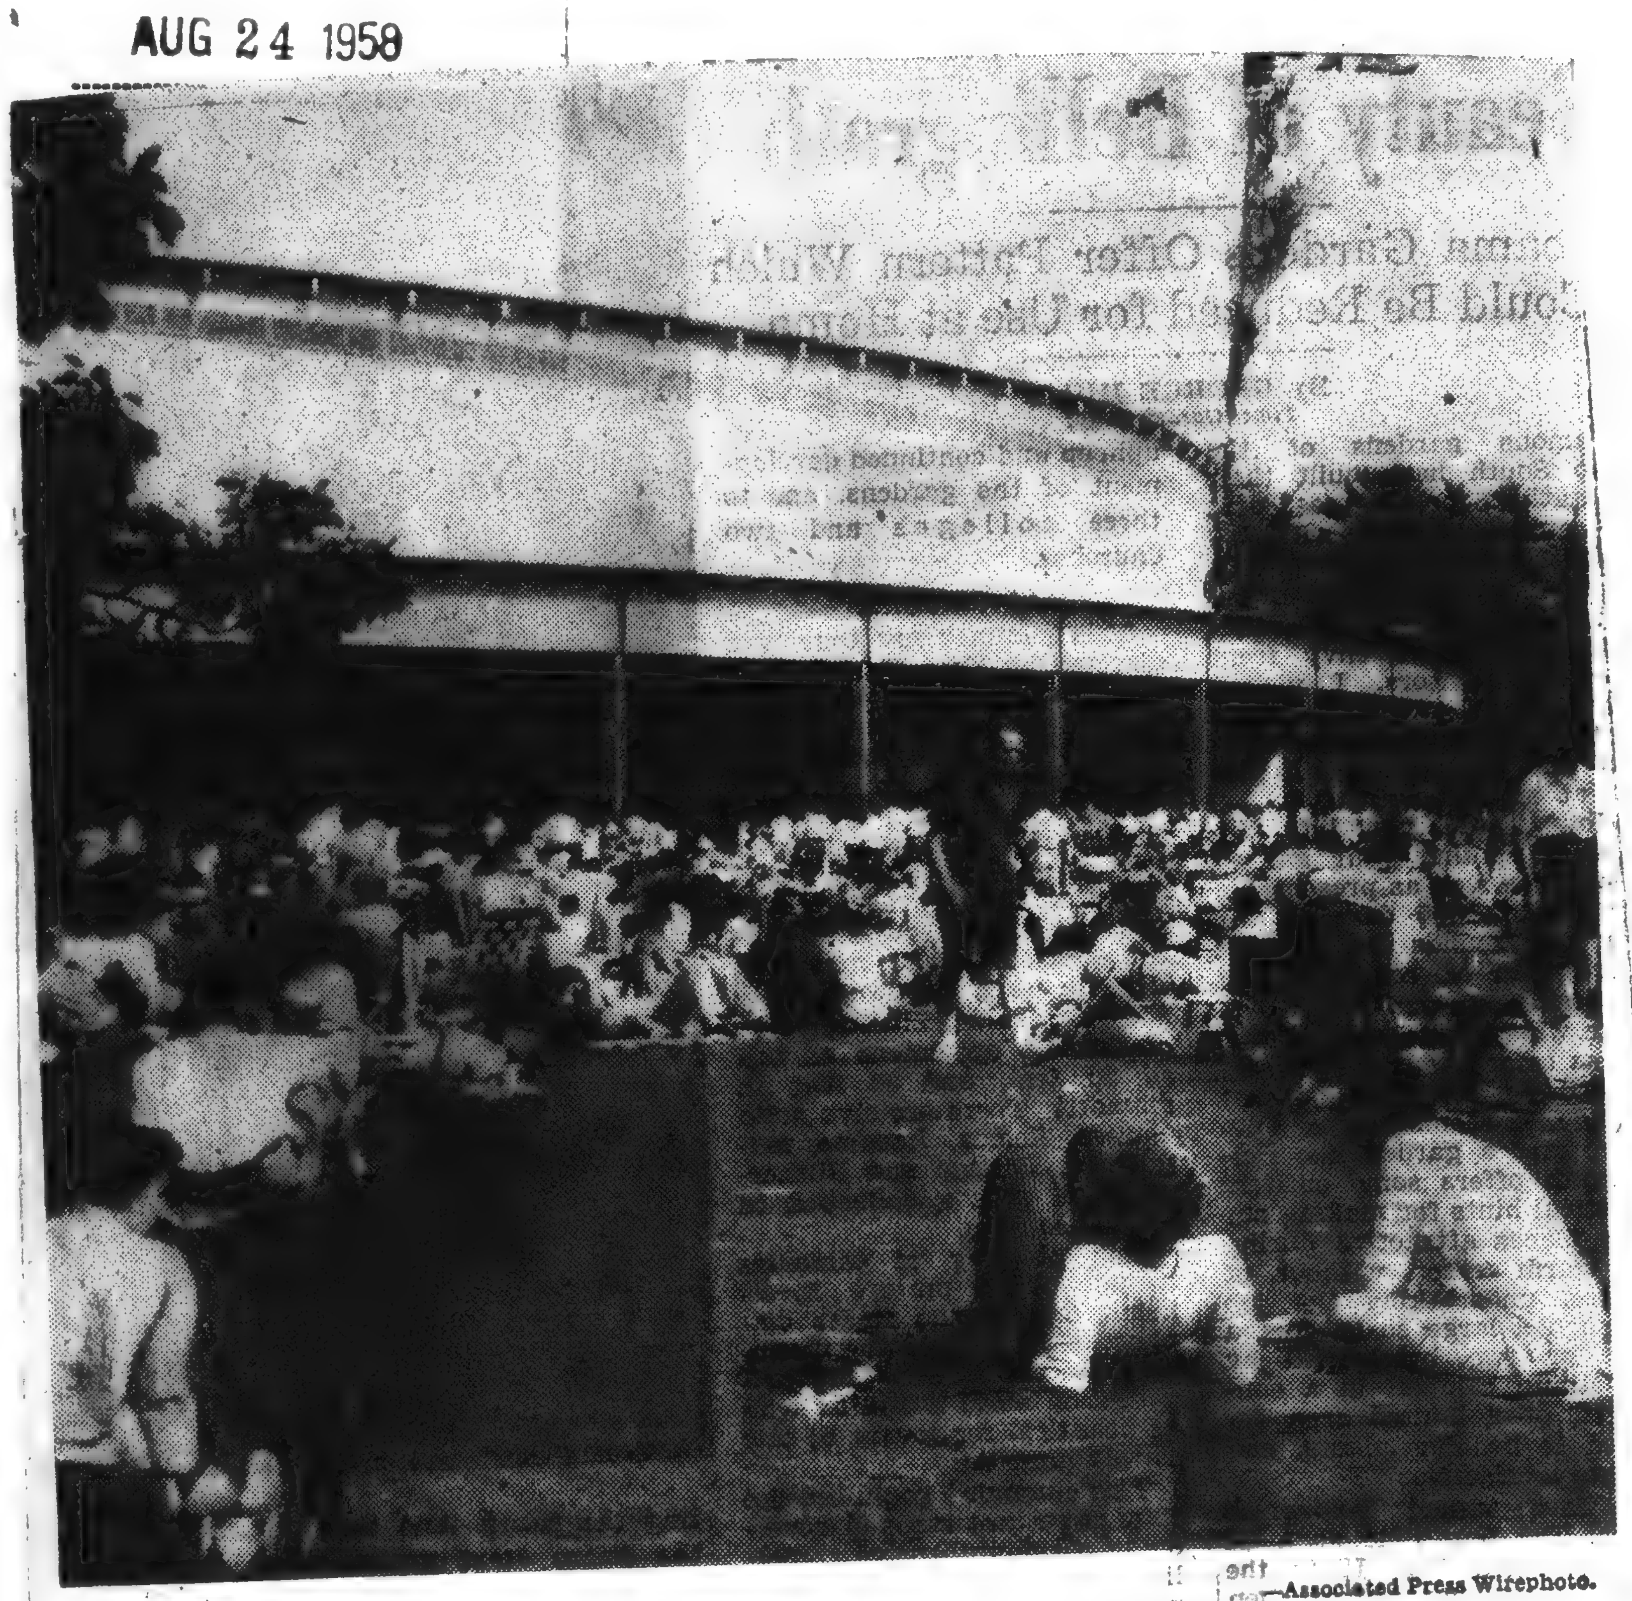
ROCKY MOUNT, N.C.
TELEGRAM
D 3 453 S 3 532
AUG 27 1958

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL.
JOURNAL
Circ. D. 31,696 - S. 34,324
AUG 24 1958

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 295,512
AUG 24 1958

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO
VINDICATOR
Circ. D. 98,352 - S. 140,293
AUG 24 1958

SPRINGFIELD, OHIO
NEWS-SUN
Circ. S. 38,971
AUG 24 1958



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Lawn seats outside The Shed go for $2 at Tanglewood.

Tanglewood: Mecca of Music

By JOY MILLER

LENOX, Mass. — The summer wanes, and many a traveler returns home eager to share his color slides.

When, in his narration, he comes to ". . . and then we went to Tanglewood . . .," he pauses to let it sink in. Tanglewood means culture, and no maybes about it.

"Oh, and what was it like?" asks his listener respectfully.

"Well, you know, concert under the stars, that sort of thing. Boston symphony can't be beat. The conductor was good, too—Charles Munch. Didn't care too much for the Stravinsky, but love that Tchaikowsky. We sat on the grass. Myrtle didn't bring a sweater and had the sniffles all the way to Niagara Falls. Say, speaking of Niagara Falls, we met a honeymooning couple there from Peoria who . . ."

And that's Tanglewood to a tidy percentage of its visitors: the curious, the tourists who want to say they've been there, the picknickers who don't object to music in the background, the hand-holders who think it's a terribly romantic setting, the arty pretenders who privately are convinced music reached its highest form in the Strauss waltzes but insist on Bartok or nothing.

Nobody's complaining, they get their money's worth. But they miss the Tanglewood beloved by thousands of sincere music devotees and musicians—the real Tanglewood.

And what is that?

It's a student flutist practicing under a tree on the rolling lawn, Pan in sneakers and slacks in a sylvan glen of Arcadia.

It's the goosebumps you get the first time you hear that flashing precision instrument, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, knife through the darkness with purest sound, answered by sighing pines.

It's the proud way the boy at the gate—a strapping youngster you'd think would like nothing more long-haired than Presley sideburns—flings it open wide for a car to pass through, and then turns to a group at the information desk with awe in his voice: "that was Munch's chauffeur."

It's the look of complete devotion you see when they—and that's just about everybody at Tanglewood — mention Serge Koussevitsky, the Boston symphony conductor who dreamed of a great music festival combined with a great music school and made it a reality with Tanglewood. He died seven years ago, but the way they talk about him you'd think he was at a rehearsal right now.

TANGLEWOOD is all these — although technically Tanglewood is only the name of the estate on which the Berkshire Music Festival and the school, called the Berkshire Music Center, are held for six weeks each summer.

During the week school activities for the 350 students hold full sway. But on weekends, beginning late Friday afternoon, a steady stream of cars moves past palatial mansions — mostly private schools or guest homes now — through Lenox and on out to Tanglewood.

At Tanglewood, the festival visitors first roam over the 210 acres of lawns, meadows and formal gardens down to Lake Mahkeenac; inspect a replica (the original burned down) of the little red house where Nathaniel Hawthorne lived a couple of years and wrote "The Wonder Book" and planned "Tanglewood Tales" — then spread a picnic lunch.

By concert time, fortified with food and nature, visitors amble toward the Music Shed, for a bout with culture.

The shed is an open, fan-shaped, modernistic structure that covers 1½ acres and seats 6,000. When you're in the audience looking up at the steel girders, it seems more than anything like a hangar designed to keep a dirigible from getting claustrophobia.

It's remarkable acoustics and open colonnades carry the music far back on the lawn, which is blanketed at each concert with an overflow crowd of from two to nine thousand loungers.

TANGLEWOOD was given to the Boston Symphony by the heirs of William Aspinwall Tappan, the Boston banker who had laid out Tanglewood nearly 100 years before.

A tradition instituted years ago by Dr. Koussevitsky is the Saturday morning open rehearsal. The orchestra goes about its business, ignoring the shifting mass across the footlights. Occasionally the noise becomes distracting and Munch sharply asks the audience to be quiet.

This chastens for all of five seconds the squirmy, chattering children arriving by busloads from nearby summer camps for the peek at culture. And in the aisles people come and go. Tourists snap pictures everywhere.

"Well," shrugged an orchestra member later, "it's for a worthy cause." The dollar admission goes for the orchestra's pension fund. Munch was one of France's foremost conductors when he went to Boston in 1949 after Koussevitsky's retirement. Now 66, he is tall, broad-shouldered and from an audience point of view, has one of the most impressive backs in the conducting field. The 105-member orchestra finds him inspirational.

This year Munch shared the podium with Pierre Monteux, at 83 a barrel of a man, mixing embonpoint and counterpoint with complete disregard for the field of geriatrics.

Munch is also director of the Berkshire Music Center which Koussevitsky started in 1940 and headed as director until he died. Boston Symphony Orchestra members comprise the faculty, of which Aaron Copland, the well-known composer, is chairman.

Through the school pass some of the most talented young musicians in the country. Right now 269 former students are engaged by 45 U.S. orchestras—nine are conductors including Leonard Bernstein of the New York Philharmonic, Koussevitsky's prize pupil—and 67 are principals, or first desk players.

Dean Ralph Berkowitz says: "The great thing about the school is that it allows a young person to meet his contemporaries and see how he stacks up."

WHO are the students? There's small, shy Helen Garvey of Minneapolis who has studied piano 14 of her 19 years and wants to teach piano in college after she graduates from the University of Minnesota.

Dark - haired Karen Rosenwald of Philadelphia, in the scenic arts division in opera, is 18 and very serious.

Wadad Mouzannar, pianist from Lebanon, is one of the 30 students from 14 foreign countries.

Blond, lanky Bill Schlottman, 25, a baritone, quit his job as advertising manager of the River Oaks Times, a weekly society magazine in Houston, to come to Tanglewood to study opera with Boris Goldovsky, head of the opera department.

Goldovsky, whose voice is familiar to millions from his years of intermission appearances on Saturday broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera, says: "We get the cream of the cream, the very best people from everywhere. Half of the best opera singers in the country have been here. It doesn't mean we have trained them, but we get them in training while they are still young professionals."

Every summer his department puts on an opera, with the students doing everything from painting scenery to staging and singing it. This year it was Rossini's "The Country Cry," and a former student, John McCollum, returned to take the title role. Big city music critics were highly complimentary.

But success and talent aren't the first considerations at Tanglewood.

Says Aaron Copland: "We hope to train perceptive and sensitive human beings first who will be artists second. That's what Tanglewood is about in the larger sense."

BRISTOL, VA.
HERALD-COURIER
Circ. D. 23,879
AUG 7 1958

VI ARTISTS AT TANGLEWOOD—During a brief moment of relaxation, Mr. and Mrs. John Atwood, of Virginia Intermont College, Bristol, look over a score from which Mrs. Atwood sang one of the sirens in the Overture and Bacchanale from Wagner's Tannhauser during the Boston Symphony Concert of August 2. Mr. Atwood has done considerable work conducting various choruses at the Berkshire Music Center as this is his third year.

John Atwoods Take Part In Berkshire Festival

TANGLEWOOD, Lenox, Mass, Aug. 6—In pleasant surroundings the change from teacher to student is not overly difficult especially if one is happily engaged in his work. For six weeks during the session of the Berkshire Music Center, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Atwood of Virginia Intermont College Bristol, Va., have made just such a change. Mr. and Mrs. Atwood are active choristers in the Department of Choral Music, but Mr. Atwood is further engaged as a choral conducting student under the guidance of Hugh Ross, head of this department. The choral department is one of the busiest at the Music Center, though other departments are apt to challenge such a statement. At the beginning of the last week of the Berkshire Festival the Festival Chorus has performed on five occasions with the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Its final appearance will be in the concluding concert of the Festival Sunday August 10 during the Ninth Symphony of Beethoven.

The Tanglewood Choir which is made up of selected voices from choral department has had two of its own concerts, and at each of these Mr. Atwood conducted a portion of the program. At the opening concert of this group, Rorem's From An Unknown Past was performed after the intermission. This is an unusual work in that two separate choirs are used. It was one of these which Mr. Atwood conducted. Mrs. Atwood will be one of twenty voices singing as the sirens in the Overture and Bacchanale from the Wagner opera Tannhauser. This concert is one of the series of the Wagner portion of the Berkshire Festival with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

In the winter season when the Atwoods revert to their teaching roles, Mrs. Atwood teaches art at Virginia Intermont. Mr. Atwood teaches voice and conducts the college choir. Prior to this season Mr. Atwood attended previous sessions of the Berkshire Music Center in 1955 and 1956. Mrs. Atwood, a native of Richmond, Va., has taught at the Henrico County Schools.

MANHASSET, N. Y.
PRESS
Circ. W, 1,863
JUL 31 1958

Robert Gordon Wins Scholarship

Robert Gordon, a Manhasset Clarinet Player, won first prize at the Great South Bay Jazz Festival held at the Timber Grove Club

The award, valued at $1,000 is for the Tangelwood School Music Festival in Lenox Massachusetts.

MONROE, LA.
NEWS-STAR
Circ. D. 16,805
JUN 27 1958

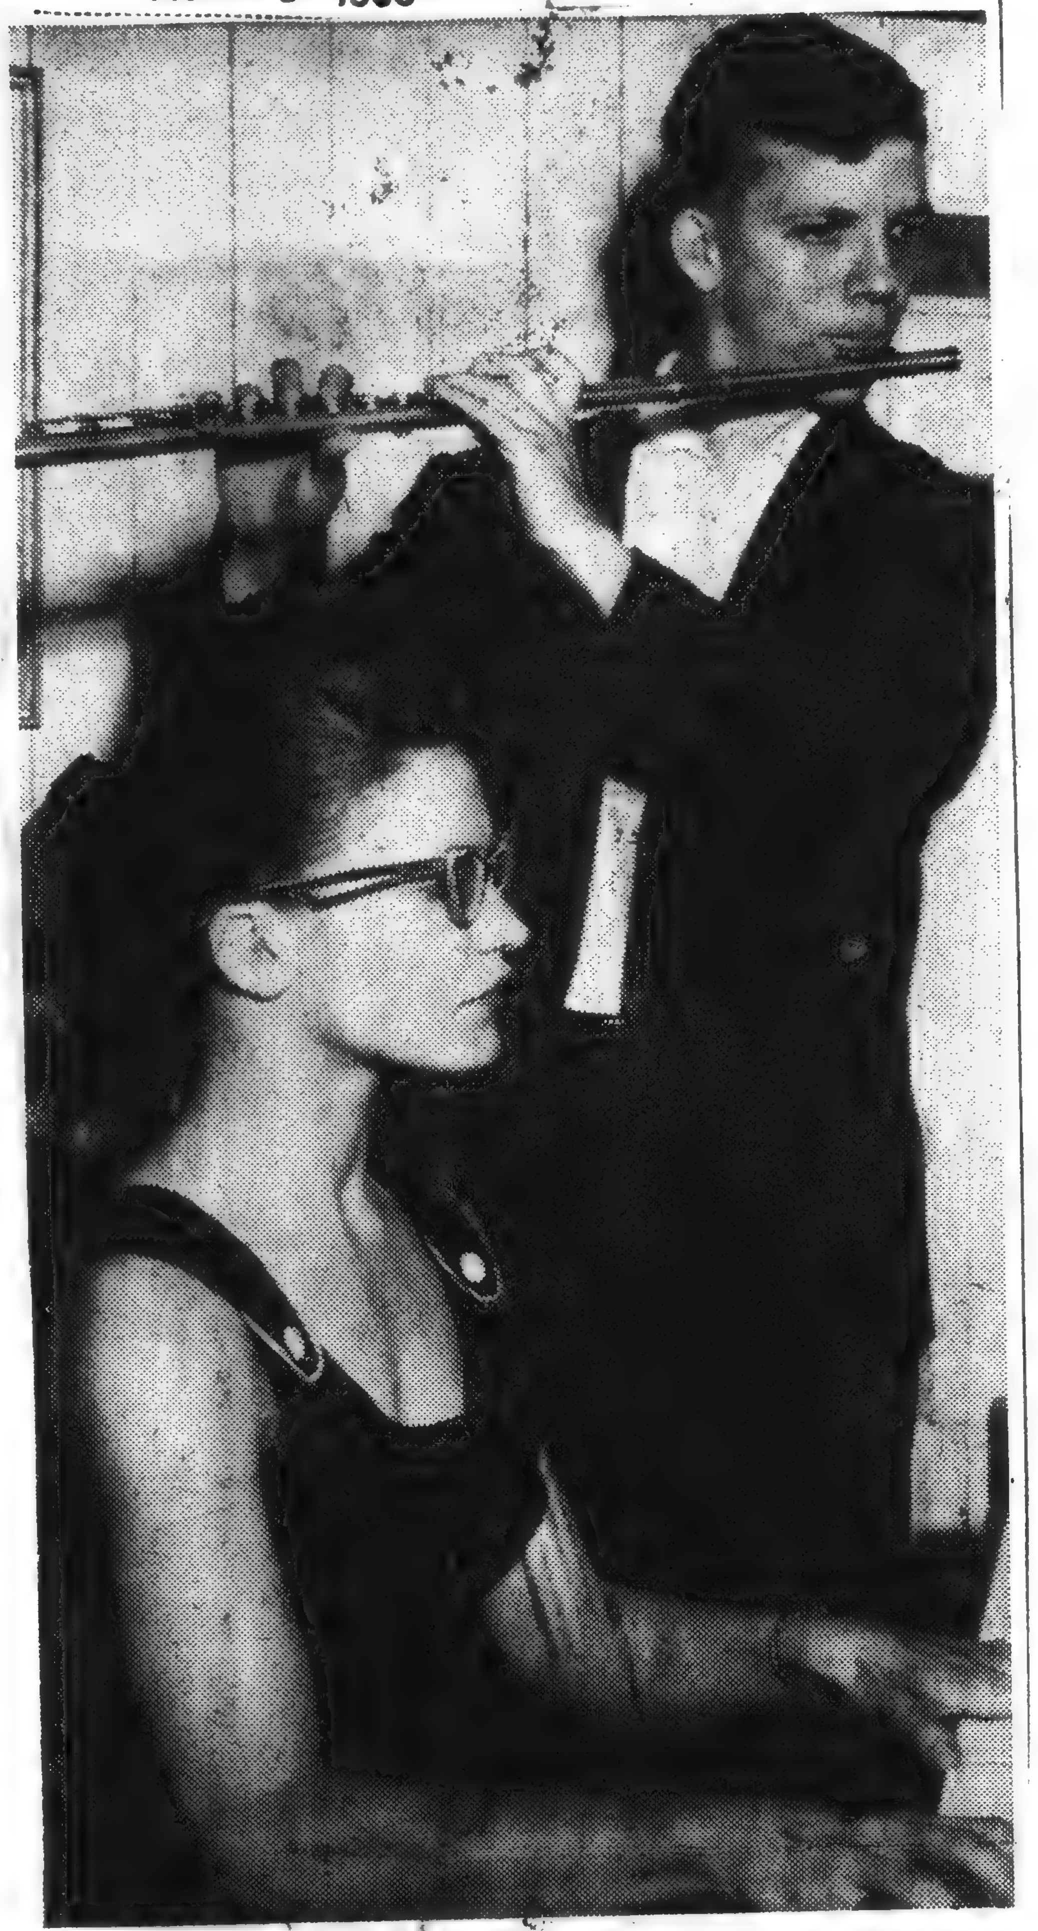
Opera Student

RUSTON (Special) —Miss Mary Lou Henry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Henry of Ruston, has been accepted as a member of the opera department at Berkshire Music Center in Lenox, Massachusetts. This workshop is under the auspices of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Henry received her Master of Music degree from LSU and was recommended by P. P. Fuchs for the present position. This position is a high honor because the classes are very limited.

The coaching sessions will offer singers intensive training for the stage and leads to a number of public performances.

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.
FREE PRESS
D. 13,342 S. 12,815
AUG 13 1958



Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Boatright, 844 E. Monument, spend a few moments practicing together during a respite from their busy musical activities at the Berkshire Music Center where they are both enrolled for the current session at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Local Couple Featured Musicians At Famed Berkshire Music Center

In the Berkshire Hills of western Massachusetts, the Boston Symphony Orchestra maintains the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, established in 1940 in fulfillment of the ambition of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, then the music director of the orchestra.

It was Dr. Koussevitzky's plan to provide a center where young musicians could continue their professional training and add to their artistic experience under the guidance of eminent musicians and teachers.

To the Music Center's 16th session have come Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Boatright of 844 E. Monument Street, Colorado Springs. Both Mr. and Mrs. Boatright have had challenging opportunities this summer in their separate fields of endeavor.

BOATRIGHT is a flute player with the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, while his wife, a pianist, has been playing with ensembles of chamber music players who give concerts each Sunday morning during the season.

The orchestra has its concerts on Thursday evenings. At the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra concert of July 24, the Boatrights had an opportunity to play under the direction of Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Dr. Munch led the orchestra through a stirring performance of the Roussel Suite in F Major. Since there is a part for celeste in this work, Mrs. Boatright was able to join the orchestra for this once in the season occasion.

At the opening Chamber Music Concert just six days following the Opening Exercises of the Music Center, Mrs. Boatright appeared in the Poulenc Sextet for Piano, Flute, Oboe, Clarinet, Bassoon and Horn.

The following week her husband played in a performance of Jacques Ibert's Three Pieces for Wind Quintet.

As the season draws to a close each of the Boatrights is at work rehearsing other chamber music.

Mrs. Boatright holds a Bachelor of Arts Degree from Colorado College, and is currently studying for an advanced degree at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Massachusetts. Her husband also attended Colorado College, and is working toward a degree at the New England Conservatory.

DALLAS, TEXAS
NEWS
D. 203.011 S. 213.568
AUG 14 1958

Caldwell Wins Spalding Award

LENOX, Mass. (Sp.)—James B. Caldwell, of Gladewater, Texas, was among students receiving awards at the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra's concluding concert this week.

Caldwell, an oboist, received the Albert Spalding Prize, traditionally awarded to the most promising instrumentalist in the student body.

He has attended the Curtis Institute of Music for the last two years and has just completed his first year at the Berkshire Music Center.

Item (e)
WAKEFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 6,360
AUG 15 1958

Miss Capone Home After Summer Study

Miss Patricia L. Capone

Miss Patricia L. Capone, lyric coloratura soprano, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis P. Capone, 351 Lowell st, returned, this week, from a successful summer at "Tanglewood," the Berkshire Music Center, where she has been studying under a national scholarship given by Delta Omicron, National Professional Women's Fraternity.

Miss Capone was a chorus leader in the Tanglewood Choir, under the direction of Dr. Hugh Ross, well known New York director; Alfred Nash Patterson of the Boston Chorus Pro Musica and Mme. Lorna Cooke deVaron of the New England Conservatory of Music. Miss Capone was featured as soloist in all concerts given by the Tanglewood Choir as well as soloist at the gala "Tanglewood on Parade" before an audience of more than 20,000.

Miss Capone sang with the Festival Chorus and the Boston Symphony orchestra, in performances of great works such as "Brahms Requiem" and Beethoven's 9th Symphony. She was chosen to sing with the Boston Symphony and small chorus groups in performances of Stravinsky's "Conticum Sacrum", Debussy's "Sirines" from "Les Preludes" and during the gala Wagner weekend she sang the "Venusburg Music" from Tannhauser.

Among many extraordinary experiences of this young artist was that of being chosen as soloist for the annual memorial service in the historic church on the hill for the famous founder of "Tanglewood," Dr. Serge Koussevitzky. At the grave of Koussevitzky, Miss Capone and members of the choir were greeted and served cake in traditional Russian fashion by Madame Koussevitzky.

At Tanglewood, Miss Capone worked side by side with gifted artists from all over the word. Among them were conductors from Italy, Switzerland and India. Singers from Hungary, Israel, Canada, Brazil and every corner of the United States. At Lenox School, she lived in a cottage with a composer from Scotland, two pianists from the Philippines, and 13 other young women from all over the United States.

Miss Capone, the youngest singer in her department, achieved success this summer and is now fulfilling vocal engagements in this area before resuming her studies in the New England Conservatory of Music in September.

[229]

SHREVEPORT, LA.
TIMES
D. 85,052 S. 105,321

AUG 3 1958

Music Degree, Scholarship to Centenary Ex

Joe Kirkland, a 1956 graduate of Centenary College, has been awarded a Master of Music degree at the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston, Mass.

Kirkland now is attending Tanglewood, the Berkshire Music Center near Lennox, Mass., on a scholarshop awarded him by Boris Goldovsky. Goldovsky offered the former Centenary student the Tanglewood scholarship on the basis of a recital given recently by the youth in conjunction with requirements for the MM degree.

A former pupil of Helen Ruffin Marshall in the voice department of the Centenary school of music, Kirkland is a tenor and sang in the Centenary College Choir while on the local campus. Shortly after receiving the Bachelor of Music degree in voice from Centenary, he was offered a scholarship to the New England Conservatory, and the scholarship was renewed for a second year on the basis of his record there.

The Huntington, Tex., youth also has been initiated into Pi Kappa Lambda, honorary musical fraternity and the musical equivalent of Phi Beta Kappa, at the New England institution. He plans to do further studying in Boston upon the completion of his period at Tanglewood.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y.
GAZETTE
Circ. D. 35,931 S.

JUL 24 1958

Music Student Gets Scholarship

Joseph Laspisa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Laspisa, Memorial Pkwy., has received a full scholarship from the Boston Symphony Orchestra to study and perform at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., for six weeks.

Mr. Laspisa is a student at the New England Conservatory School of Music, Boston. He is a percussionist.

BILLINGS, MONT.
GAZETTE (Sunday)
Cir. S. 21,712

[illegible]

Practicing at Tanglewood Music Center

Before leaving for Buffalo, N.Y., to join the Philharmonic Mr. and Mrs. Don McComas attended the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, in Lenox, Mass. They are pictured practicing during one of the brief periods when students of the music center were not engaged in formal classes.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 25 1958

She Shall Have Music Wherever She Goes

Whitestone

SERENADING FAIR LADIES from other countries is clarinetist Patricia Lissack, England. Students sitting in front of Music Shed at Tanglewood are Maria Lopez-Vito and Marilyn Gatmaitan, the Philippines; Atipet Usmanbus, Turkey; Wadad Mouzannar, Lebanon; Liwanag Cruz, Philippines; Mrs. Asher Ben Yohanan, here from Tel Aviv, Israel.

The red-headed clarinetist pictured to the right has a problem that would buffalo Benny Goodman. It's a matter of clarinet etiquette. Should she use lipstick for a smear-proof performance, or should she sport the only Arpeggio Pink mouthpiece at Tanglewood?

Clarinetist Patricia Lissack, flown fresh from London to the Berkshire Music Center, compromises. Although she doesn't use stay-proof lipstick, she does sparingly apply the old-fashioned erasable type for short selections. For long practice sessions, war paint is out since it generally wears off anyway.

The only musician in her family, Pat decided to take up the clarinet after hearing an inspiring recording of a Mozart clarinet concerto. As a graduate of the Royal College of Music in London, she now teaches the instrument. When asked about her impressions of America this cautious clarinetist would venture only one opinion: "People over here seem to adore an English accent."

Damp Cantata

Pat's lipstick problem is unique among the several foreign women students at Tanglewood, but her adorable accent isn't. One of her compatriots is composer Thea Musgrave, who already has an opera, a ballet and a cantata, among other works, under her British belt. The "Cantata for a Summer's Day," which won the much-coveted Lilly Boulanger prize for Miss Musgrave, was originally written for the BBC in Scotland. It was also performed at the Edinburgh Festival, on a "horrible, wet, rainy summer day" which rated a dirge rather than a cantata. Her opera, "The Abbott of Dimrock," was performed by the Park Lane Opera Group in London just before her departure for Tanglewood.

Miss Musgrave bridles when asked whether women composers aren't a rarity. "If women can write books and paint pictures, why can't they compose?" she asks in the finest feminist fashion. She admits that women composers are in the minority, but points out that in England and France there are at present several outstanding ones.

What kind of music does Miss Musgrave write? "If I could describe music properly in words, I would write a book instead," she smiles. Now studying composition with Aaron Copland at the Music Center, she is adding to her long list of scores by finishing off an orchestral piece titled "Obliques." When asked a non-musical question about her splendid English complexion, Miss Musgrave turned absolutely ruddy and said, "Oh my complexion is not good at all — the girls from the west coast of Scotland, they're the ones to see, with all that fog."

Shy Islanders

No lassies from Scotland were available, but there were two beautifully complected girls from the Philippines sitting across the table. Both the girls, Maria Lopez-Vito and Marilyn Gatmaitan have been studying piano at the Mannes School in Manhattan, share similar views on Philippine mores: "We are more reserved and shy than American women. We don't go out with boys alone before 18; we have more of the Spanish influence in our lives." Like most students at the center, they spend several hours a day in class, while the rest of their time is blotted up by practice, eating and sleeping. When they do have a few spare minutes, they find themselves missing the "peaceful, slow" way of life they were used to in the Philippines. Similar as their thoughts are on these subjects, they have dissimilar taste in composers. Miss Lopez-Vita prefers Brahms; Miss Gatmaitan is a Mozart-Chopin buff.

Another pianist, this one from Lebanon, also endorses Mozart for women performers. Wadad Mouzannar teaches and performs as a concert pianist alternately in Beirut and Paris and prefers the clavichordists herself. Scarlatti is one of her special favorites, but the Mozart piano concerto in A major is her piece de resistance. She played it recently with L'Orchestre de la Conservatoire National de Musique in Beirut.

Comments From Lebanon

Since this reporter's Arabic is poor, our conversation was conducted half in English and half in my halting French, with occasional Hebrew footnotes added by an Israeli who knew both languages and helped us over the bumps, then re-translated for his wife.

Miss Mouzannar did not wish to discuss the crisis in Lebanon in any language. "I am a musician, not a politician," she said simply. When "hem lengths" was finally translated into French, she explained that Lebanese women are of course wearing them short since they always dress "tout a fait a la Parisienne, dans la dernier mode." This emphasis on the latest styles in Beirut is due chiefly to the Paris influence on the city's wealthy and elegantly dressed women. Veils and other traditional clothes are rarely worn by Lebanese women, since the majority of them work and would find them too much of a hindrance in their active jobs. When they plan a favorite family meal, it's generally a combination of kebbe (meat) and tabboule (salad) which will probably be prepared by servants. Housekeeping in Lebanon is generally "plus facile" — eased by servants' presence.

Neither servants nor that American staple, the washing machine, are prevalent in Israel. Mrs. Asher Ben-Yohanan, a contralto studying with her husband at the Music Center, has even shouldered a gun in the Israeli Army. During the "independence war" in 1948 she served near the Jordan border, a hot spot even for a seasoned male soldier. "Israeli women are a little more idealistic than others about everything which concerns the state," explains her husband. He then pointed out proudly that she had also sung with the Israeli Philharmonic, which ranks high in musical circles. She may be the only concert-caliber contralto with sergeant's stripes in the world.

—L A S.

CLEVELAND, OHIO
NEWS
Cir. D. 137,553

JUL 4 1958

Singer to Study With Goldovsky

Cullen Maiden, male Negro singer recently heard in "Karamu Album" at Karamu Theater, begins scholarship studies next week with Boris Goldovsky at Lenox, Mass. He will study at the Berkshire Festival where the Tanglewood concerts are presented by the Boston Symphony each summer.

Maiden, 26, who has a rich, bass voice compared to William Warfield's, is a native of Cleveland, a graduate of Central High School and Ohio Wesleyan. During his two years in the Army he made many concert appearances.

Following his studies with Goldovsky, Maiden will return to New York City to resume his studies at the Juilliard School of Music. Maiden's home address in Cleveland is 2403 Unwin Road.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354
JUL 31 1958

Choral Group Appears Tonight With BMC Orchestra

TANGLEWOOD—The most ambitious program of the season will be performed by the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra at its fifth concert tonight at 8:30 in the Music Shed. Each of the student conductors appearing at this concert will be conducting for the second time this season. A number of soloists have been selected from the department of instrumental music, and for the first time this season the department of choral music will join with the orchestra in a performance of the Bach Magnificat.

Other works to be heard will be the Tombeau de Couperin of Ravel conducted by Joseph Krienes of Chicago. This will be followed by the playing of Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat Major to be conducted by Claudio Abbado from Milan, Italy. Soloists in the Mozart work will be James Caldwell, oboe; Donald Rosenthal, bassoon; William Slocum, French horn.

Two modern pieces will precede the concluding Bach number. The first of these is the Concert Music for Piano, Brass and Two Harps of Hindemith. Gustav Meier of Zurich, Switzerland will conduct with Marilyn Neely as piano soloist. Arnold Schoenberg's Kammer Symphony For Fifteen Solo Instruments, conducted by Zuben Mehta of Bombay, India, completes the modern music on this program.

In the concluding Bach Magnificat in D, David Buttolph of New York will be the conductor. The Tanglewood Choir will be heard with the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, and Aracy Bellas Campos, Doralene McNeely, Elaine Panaretos, Sopranos; Shirley Sudock, mezzo-soprano; Armando Pacheco, tenor; Cullen Maiden, baritone are to be the soloists.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
SUN-TELEGRAPH
Circ. D. 183,882 - S. 415,149
AUG 1 1958

NANCY WILLIAMS TO APPEAR IN OPERA
. . . the day before her marriage in New York
Whitestone Photo

Busy Week In Offing For Nancy

By PATRICIA PITT

Next week truly will be hectic for Nancy Lee Williams.

She will give her last operatic performance at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., Tuesday . . . will be married Wednesday to Charles Wesley Ridinger III in the Church of the Transfiguration in New York City . . . and they will fly to London Thursday.

Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Lee Williams of Mt. Lebanon, and Charles the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Ridinger Jr. of Amberson Ave.

Dinner for the two families will follow the wedding ceremony at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

MRS. CLARENCE Moore of Cincinnati will be her sister's matron of honor. William Herron Woodwell of Pittsburgh will be best man.

Charles is a graduate of Shady Side Academy and Lehigh University. Nancy, an alumna of Chatham College, received her master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh.

MRS. CHESTER Meyer of Mt. Lebanon made herself a sea-going dress as her first attempt at stitching; and, as she says, it's "nautical but nice." She wore it on a boat ride the other morning.

Colorful ships' pennants are on a white background; they include such amusing pictures as a ball and chain on a red flag with the caption, "wife aboard"; a witch flying on a broom with "mother-in-law aboard"; ones saying "wife ashore" and "mother-in-law ashore" . . . and best of all, a bright red pierced heart on blue with "sweetheart aboard."

The Meyers are building in Greesnburg on a three-acre piece of property and will soon leave their beloved home in Mt. Lebanon.

THEY SENT A backyard plastic swimming pool to their little grandson, Bobby, at Twenty-Nine Palms Marine Base in California, which is in the desert. He is with his parents, Mrs. Robert Arnett, the Meyers's daughter, and Mr. Arnett.

The Arnetts were home in May; and Mrs. Arnett made her mother four dresses and a ballgown for the annual Harlequin Ball of St. Clair Memorial Hospital.

Others on the boat were Mrs. Willard H. Neu and Mrs. Edgar Foster, who appropriately wore Bermuda shorts for the ride.

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292
AU 1958

TANGLEWOOD STUDENTS: Music And Practice

By Ruth SoRelle

Two slim, pretty girls passed through the gates at Tanglewood a little before nine o'clock. Marilyn Gatmaitan and Maria Luisa Lopez-Vito are two music students from the Philippine Islands. Though they are both from Manila, they met for the first time at the Mannes School of Music in New York.

Slim and attractive in their bright summer prints, they joined a stream of people walking through the green and gold of a lovely summer morning, the Tanglewood Study Group. Some carried books, some music and some instruments. This would be another full day of work and practice, study and relaxed companionship for the mixed assembly of about 300 individuals, all of widely varying ages but with a common interest.

The two girls room together at the Lenox School, not far from Tanglewood. For them, the day begins at 7:30, with breakfast at the school at 8:00. Then, a short ride to Tanglewood, on the bus or with another student, where the day's work begins at 9 a.m.

As the groups crossed the lawns, they scattered in different directions to their various activities. Marilyn and Maria Luisa went to the Chamber Music Hall, where they would sing from nine to eleven with the festival chorus.

From eleven until lunch-time is free time, and the girls spend it in practice, listening to orchestra practice, or just in strolling about the beautiful grounds enjoying the New England summer. As noon approached, a queue began to form at the cafeteria, but Marilyn and Maria Luisa belong to a luncheon club and joined their friends on the lawn. The members take turns providing materials, and sandwiches are made and eaten in the shade of a spreading evergreen tree. The Philippines permit only a limited sum of money to be taken from the Islands, and "the sandwiches are just as good, and a lot cheaper," said Marilyn.

One-thirty, and back to work. Today, Wednesday, there would be singing again, in the Red Barn, beyond the south gate. Riding around Tanglewood with a friend, they joined the class grouped in the shade of a great tree. This was a more informal type of singing, rounds and changes, without an accompanying instrument.

The singing over at 3, the schedule called for either a lecture or practice depending on the day of the week. Wednesday is not a lecture day, so the girls returned to the Lenox School to practice duets until dinner time at six. After dinner, the evening would be spent attending a concert or with still more practice.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT . . . Maria Luisa and Marilyn work together on a composition for four hands.
Ruth SoRelle, Journal Photos

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354
JUL 31 1958

Choral Group Appears Tonight With BMC Orchestra

TANGLEWOOD—The most ambitious program of the season will be performed by the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra at its fifth concert tonight at 8:30 in the Music Shed. Each of the student conductors appearing at this concert will be conducting for the second time this season. A number of soloists have been selected from the department of instrumental music, and for the first time this season the department of choral music will join with the orchestra in a performance of the Bach Magnificat.

Other works to be heard will be the Tombeau de Couperin of Ravel conducted by Joseph Krienes of Chicago. This will be followed by the playing of Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat Major to be conducted by Claudio Abbado from Milan, Italy. Soloists in the Mozart work will be James Caldwell, oboe; Donald Rosenthal, bassoon; William Slocum, French horn.

Two modern pieces will precede the concluding Bach number. The first of these is the Concert Music for Piano, Brass and Two Harps of Hindemith. Gustav Meier of Zurich, Switzerland will conduct with Marilyn Neely as piano soloist. Arnold Schoenberg's Kammer Symphony For Fifteen Solo Instruments, conducted by Zuben Mehta of Bombay, India, completes the modern music on this program.

In the concluding Bach Magnificat in D, David Buttolph of New York will be the conductor. The Tanglewood Choir will be heard with the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, and Aracy Bellas Campos, Doralene McNeely, Elaine Panaretos, Sopranos; Shirley Sudock, mezzo-soprano; Armando Pacheco, tenor; Cullen Maiden, baritone are to be the soloists.

PITTSBURGH, PA.
SUN-TELEGRAPH
Circ. D. 183,882 - S. 415,149
AUG 1 1958

NANCY WILLIAMS TO APPEAR IN OPERA
. . . the day before her marriage in New York
Whitestone Photo

Busy Week In Offing For Nancy

By PATRICIA PITT

Next week truly will be hectic for Nancy Lee Williams.

She will give her last operatic performance at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., Tuesday . . . will be married Wednesday to Charles Wesley Ridinger III in the Church of the Transfiguration in New York City . . . and they will fly to London Thursday.

Nancy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Lee Williams of Mt. Lebanon, and Charles the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wesley Ridinger Jr. of Amberson Ave.

Dinner for the two families will follow the wedding ceremony at the Fifth Avenue Hotel.

MRS. CLARENCE Moore of Cincinnati will be her sister's matron of honor. William Herron Woodwell of Pittsburgh will be best man.

Charles is a graduate of Shady Side Academy and Lehigh University; Nancy, an alumna of Chatham College, received her master's degree from the University of Pittsburgh.

MRS. CHESTER Meyer of Mt. Lebanon made herself a sea-going dress as her first attempt at stitching; and, as she says, it's "nautical but nice." She wore it on a boat ride the other morning.

Colorful ships' peannants are on a white background; they include such amusing pictures as a ball and chain on a red flag with the caption, "wife aboard"; a witch flying on a broom with "mother-in-law aboard"; ones saying "wife ashore" and "mother-in-law ashore" . . . and best of all, a bright red pierced heart on blue with "sweetheart aboard."

The Meyers are building in Greensburg on a three-acre piece of property and will soon leave their beloved home in Mt. Lebanon.

THEY SENT A backyard plastic swimming pool to their little grandson, Bobby, at Twenty-Nine Palms Marine Base in California, which is in the desert. He is with his parents, Mrs. Robert Arnett, the Meyers's daughter, and Mr. Arnett.

The Arnetts were home in May; and Mrs. Arnett made her mother four dresses and a ballgown for the annual Harlequin Ball of St. Clair Memorial Hospital.

Others on the boat were Mrs. Willard H. Neu and Mrs. Edgar Foster, who appropriately wore Bermuda shorts for the ride.

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292
AUG 7 1958

TANGLEWOOD STUDENTS: Music And Practice

By Ruth SoRelle

Two slim, pretty girls passed through the gates at Tanglewood a little before nine o'clock. Marilyn Gatmaitan and Maria Luisa Lopez-Vito are two music students from the Philippine Islands. Though they are both from Manila, they met for the first time at the Mannes School of Music in New York.

Slim and attractive in their bright summer prints, they joined a stream of people walking through the green and gold of a lovely summer morning, the Tanglewood Study Group. Some carried books, some music and some instruments. This would be another full day of work and practice, study and relaxed companionship for the mixed assembly of about 300 individuals, all of widely varying ages but with a common interest.

The two girls room together at the Lenox School, not far from Tanglewood. For them, the day begins at 7:30, with breakfast at the school at 8:00. Then, a short ride to Tanglewood, on the bus or with another student, where the day's work begins at 9 a.m.

As the groups crossed the lawns, they scattered in different directions to their various activities. Marilyn and Maria Luisa went to the Chamber Music Hall, where they would sing from nine to eleven with the festival chorus.

From eleven until lunch-time is free time, and the girls spend it in practice, listening to orchestra practice, or just in strolling about the beautiful grounds enjoying the New England summer. As noon approached, a queue began to form at the cafeteria, but Marilyn and Maria Luisa belong to a luncheon club and joined their friends on the lawn. The members take turns providing materials, and sandwiches are made and eaten in the shade of a spreading evergreen tree. The Philippines permit only a limited sum of money to be taken from the Islands, and "the sandwiches are just as good, and a lot cheaper," said Marilyn.

One-thirty, and back to work. Today, Wednesday, there would be singing again, in the Red Barn, beyond the south gate. Riding around Tanglewood with a friend, they joined the class grouped in the shade of a great tree. This was a more informal type of singing, rounds and changes, without an accompanying instrument.

The singing over at 3, the schedule called for either a lecture or practice depending on the day of the week. Wednesday is not a lecture day, so the girls returned to the Lenox School to practice duets until dinner time at six. After dinner, the evening would be spent attending a concert or with still more practice.

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT . . . Maria Luisa and Marilyn work together on a composition for four hands.
Ruth SoRelle, Journal Photos

Honolulu Star-Bulletin Aug. 23, 1958

Studying a musical score are Mr. and Mrs. John E. Murphy II, of Honolulu, who have been attending the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Massachusetts. Mrs. Murphy sang with the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a recent concert and Mr. Murphy participated in choral conducting classes.

John Edmund Murphy, conductor of the Honolulu Oratorio Society, has been enrolled at the famed Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood, Massachusetts, this summer.

His field of study was choral conducting under Hugh Rose, conductor for many years of the Schola Cantorum of New York and a member of the Berkshire faculty since the summer program began in 1940.

Murphy conducted the Tanglewood Choir in a July 29 performance of "We Sing With Rejoicing" by Ritter.

JOINED BY WIFE

Mrs. Murphy joined her husband for the final period of classes.

A member of the Tanglewood Study Group, she was one of 20 women who appeared with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony in a performance of Wagner's "Tannhauser" August 2.

The Boston Symphony maintains the summer music center, which has gained worldwide recognition for the excellence of its faculty and study program.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy are expected home the first week of September.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

AUG 11 1958

Two End Berkshire Music Center Study; Held Scholarships

Two area residents who were winners of Berkshire scholarships to the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood this summer have completed their studies at the center, and yesterday took part in the final concert by the student orchestra. The concert marked the end of the 16th season, and was attended by more than 2,000 persons.

Miss Mary Ann McLaren, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. McLaren of 18 Marion Ave., was the winner of a four-week scholarship and began her studies July 14. Thomas Griswold of Stetson Rd., Williamstown, instructor in music at Williams College, was the winner of a six-week scholarship and began his studies at the beginning of the season. Both were members of the Tanglewood Study Group.

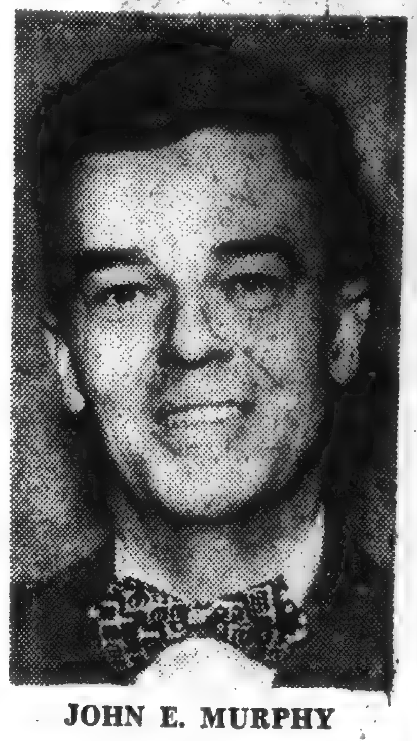
Miss McLaren was a member of the Festival Chorus which yesterday presented Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under the direction of Charles Munch. Mr. Griswold studied conducting and earlier in the season led the student orchestra.

Announcement of various awards to outstanding students was made yesterday during the concert intermission.

The Berkshire Music Center is maintained by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood. This year there were 350 students enrolled from 36 states and 15 foreign countries. Nine were from Berkshire County.

Honolulu Advertiser Jul. 4, 1958

Tanglewood Scholarship Awarded to Join Murphy



JOHN E. MURPHY

John Edmund Murphy, founder of the Oratorio Society of Honolulu and president of the House of Music, left recently to spend the summer at the famed Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., where he has been awarded a scholarship in choral study.

Andre Kostelanetz and Arthur Fielder, old friends of Murphy, helped the 50-year-old Island musician-businessman realize a dream of many years. He credited them with "great kindness" in helping him obtain the full tuition scholarship.

* * *

THE AWARD was made with the understanding that it be repaid for the use of another worthy scholar at a future date. Murphy has already recontributed his award.

While at Tanglewood he has been invited to conduct during the course of the six-week festival.

* * *

A NATIVE of Framingham, Mass., he founded a choral society there in 1930. He attended Harvard University from 1924 to 1927 and studied music at Boston University. He came to Hawaii in 1947.

Mrs. Murphy will join her husband for the last two weeks of his attendance at Tanglewood, after which they and their children, Jane, John and Pierce, will visit family members in the southern and northeastern states.

They will return to Honolulu early in September.

Putsche Wins Music Award At Tanglewood

T. Putsche Jr.

A HARTT COLLEGE instructor in music composition who studied at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood this Summer has won a commission to write a composition which will be played at next Summer's session at the center. He is Thomas R. Putsche Jr. of 27 Lexington Rd., West Hartford.

Mr. Putsche received his master's degree at Hartt in 1955 and won a scholarship to Tanglewood in 1956 on recommendation of Aaron Copland under whom he studied there.

A fellow student at the center this Summer, Jack H. Lund of Pittsburgh, established the Lund Commission under which Mr. Putsche as winner will compose music for an ensemble of ten specified instruments.

Two compositions by Mr. Putsche were played at composers' forums at Tanglewood this Summer.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

AUG 12 1958

SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED STUDENTS AT TANGLEWOOD MUSIC CENTER SATURDAY

At the intermission of the final concert of the student orchestra at Tanglewood Saturday, scholarship awards were presented to the outstanding students at the 16th session of the Music Center maintained by the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The winners were chosen from the 350 students enrolled this summer from 36 states and 15 foreign countries. Aaron Copland, chairman of the faculty, presented the awards before 2,000 persons.

Charles Goetz, a student in the department of choral music studying choral conducting, was announced as winner of the Carlotta M. Dreyfus Scholarship. A recent refugee from Budapest, he is currently residing at Merion Station, Pa.

Portland, Oregon
Oregon Journal
(Cir. D. 183,910 - S. 203,476)

AUG 24 1958

722

TROMBONIST GEORGE Reinmiller of 6277 SE Stark, Portland, is this year's winner of Portland Junior Symphony scholarship to Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Mass. Above, Reinmiller talks with Eleazar de Carvalho (center) and Seymour Lipkin (right), two of distinguished musicians serving as instructors at Tanglewood.

Portland, Oregon
The Oregonian
(Cir. D. 232,105 - S. 295,884)

AUG 24 1958

722

Approval From Maestro

TANGLEWOOD, Mass.—George Reinmiller, winner of the Portland Junior Symphony Orchestra scholarship at Tanglewood, and member of the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, plays while conductor Eleazar de Carvalho, and his associate, Seymour Lipkin, listen.

[231]

[232]

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

[illegible] 1958

Tanglewood Awards

Nine County Students Music Center Winners

TANGLEWOOD— Nine Berkshire County students at the Berkshire Music Center were awarded Berkshire scholarships to the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer [illegible] this afternoon, when Aaron Copland, chairman of the faculty, announced the award winners at intermission of the final concert by the student orchestra.

Morgenstern Scholarships

Two of the nine county students, Mrs. Elizabeth Abetti and Diana Bulgarelli, both of Pittsfield, also won the David Morgenstern scholarships for string players in the Tanglewood Study Group.

The other seven county students who won Berkshire scholarships were Jacqueline Abbott of Lee, Thomas Griswold of Williamstown, Mrs. Winifred Keane of Lenox, Paul Marino of Pittsfield, Mary Ann McLaren of North Adams and Mrs. Irma Smith and Susan Smith of Pittsfield.

The presentation marked the end of the 16th session of the Music Center maintained by the BSO. The award winners were chosen from among 350 students enrolled this summer from 36 states and 15 foreign countries. Witnessing the award presentations was a crowd of more than 2,000 people.

Charles Goetz, a student of the department of choral music studying choral conducting, was announced as the winner of the Carlotta M. Dreyfus scholarship. Mr. Goetz, a recent refugee from Budapest, is currently residing in Merion Station, Penn. Another member of the choral department, Richard M. Foster, was the recipient of the Selly A. Eisemann scholarship. Mr. Foster, another student of choral conducting, also served as accompanist for the various choruses of the Music Center. He is from Bangor, Maine.

Mrs. Jo Evelyn Boatright of Colorado Springs, Col., a pianist who worked with chamber music ensembles, won the Jenny Fels memorial scholarship.

An award made possible by a gift from High Fidelity Magazine of Great Barrington was made to Gustav Meier of Zurich, Switzerland. Mr. Meier was a student at the 1957 session of the Berkshire Music Center, and again this year was an active conductor under the guidance of Eleazer de Carvalho and Seymour Lipkin.

Miss Robinson Smith Award

The Gertrude Robinson Smith scholarship, named for the chairman of the founding festival committee, and derived from the income of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund established for students of conducting was presented to Zubin Mehta of Bombay, India.

Another conducting student, Claudio Abbado of Milan, Italy, received the coveted Koussevitzky memorial scholarship. This scholarship is provided by the income from a fund established by the residents of Berkshire County as a memorial to Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, founder of the Berkshire Music Center.

The Lydia Watson Hersloff scholarship for a student in the department of instrumental music was won by Olga Kwasniak of Toronto, Can., a cellist and a member of the student orchestra.

Albert Spalding Prize

To the most promising and outstanding instrumentalist in the student body each year goes the Albert Spalding prize. The winner for the session of 1958 was James B. Caldwell, an oboe player, from Gladewater, Tex.

Awarded by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, the Koussevitzky composition prize for the best composition of the summer by a student in the composition department went to Ilhan Usmanbas of Ankara, Turkey. Mario Davidovsky of Buenos Aires, Argentina received the Raphael Sagalyn award for the best orchestral work by a composition student.

Announcement was also made of two commissions offered to

Music Awards
Continued on page 9

Students of Composition

For students of composition the Margaret Lee Crofts scholarships went to Rolv Yttrehus of Duluth, Minn. and Douglas Leedy of Portland, Ore. The Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity scholarship, which is designated for a member of Delta Omicron, was awarded to Patricia Capone of Wakefield. Miss Capone has been a student in the department of choral music headed by Hugh Ross.

The Fromm Music Foundation fellowships for the study and performance of contemporary music under grants from the foundation created by Paul Fromm of Chicago were awarded to a select group of especially qualified young musicians. The 1958 winners include Peter Marsh, Seattle, Wash.; Theodora Mantz, Minneapolis, Minn.; Scott Nickrenz, Hamburg, N.Y.; Donald McCall, Kansas City, Mo.; Gerardo Levy, Buenos Aires, Argentina; Herbert Resnick, Bronx, N.Y.; Efain Guigui, Buenos Aires, Argentina; Richard Lottridge, Havertown, Pa.; Paul Ingraham, Wallingford, Conn.; Robert Miller, Bronxville, N.Y., and Corinne Curry, Barrington, R.I.

The Ann M. Gannett scholarships of the National Federation of Music Clubs were presented to Fred Orkiseski of Altoona, Pa. and Marvin Salzberg of Ithaca, N.Y.

Koussevitzky Grants

Homer Lee, San Fransisco; Mario Davidovsky, Buenos Aires, Argentina; E. Evans Moore, Camden, N.J., and Ronald Knudsen, Baltimore, Md., were the recipients of Koussevitzky Music Foundation grants. Other winners of the David Morgenstern scholarships for string players in the Tanglewood study group, besides the two Pittsfield winners, were Robert Benjamin of Wellesly Hills and Ellen Thiberg of Cedar Knolls, N.J.

George Reinmiller of Portland, Ore., received the Portland Junior Symphony Orchestra scholarship for a member of the Berkshire Music Center orchestra. The scholarship created by the Minneapolis Star-Tribune was awarded to Helen Garvey of Anoka, Minn.

C-10 THE SUNDAY STAR, Washington, D. C.
SUNDAY, JULY 27, 1958

THREE FROM WASHINGTON—James Deane, Star record critic, found three Washington musicians rehearsing at the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood, Mass. They are Marie Kopulos, piano; Cecelia Hopkins, flute, and Rita Roudabush, oboe. Looking on is Ralph Gomberg, principal oboe of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

NEWS OF MUSIC

Pattern Changing At Summer Centers

By JAMES G. DEANE
Star Staff Writer

New England's most flourishing summer music centers—Tanglewood and Marlboro—are showing gratifying vitality.

The established pattern of concerts of the great orchestral repertoire at the Boston Symphony's summer home in the Berkshires is being enlivened with a stimulating excursion into new music.

At the Rudolf Serkin-led Marlboro School of Music in Vermont's Green Mountains, promising young American musicians steadily gain richer experience in performing chamber music in company with veterans seasoned in the European tradition.

Tanglewood, under the aegis of the late Serge Koussevitzky and of Aaron Copland, faculty head of its music school, always has been reasonably hospitable to modern music. But in the last year this cordial spirit has been solidified and extended.

This has been accomplished through a program of instruction and performances specifically centered on contemporary music. This program began in earnest last summer with the establishment of a special student-faculty group. It embraces seminars, lectures and concerts, which are open to the public. The student group is hand-picked, and participants include distinguished American composers.

Fromm is Backer

The sponsor of this enterprising activity is the Fromm Music Foundation. Paul Fromm, the foundation's president and financial backer, is a genial Chicago wine-importer in his 40s who brought his musical interest with him when he emigrated from Germany in 1938. Mr. Copland and Alexander Schneider, member of the Budapest Quartet who has been active on many musical fronts, also are playing important roles in its work.

Mr. Fromm's conviction is that the contemporary composer is entitled to a better deal, in terms of a market for his wares. Such a deal means having more performing musicians tackle new scores, and having more people listen.

Since its establishment six years ago, Mr. Fromm's foundation has commissioned more than 100 new compositions. It has also provided the funds to give them first and second performances and has financed some recordings. And now, with the Tanglewood project, it is seeking to push the cause of contemporary music forward still further.

New Music Lectures

The Fromm program at Tanglewood is a busy one. There are 11 student fellows, young musicians invited to attend on scholarships because of demonstrated ability and interest. (Two are from Buenos Aires.) They perform frequently. The foundation this summer is sponsoring six seminars on American composers and three lectures on new music of this country, Europe and Latin America. The fellows, augumented by other musicians when necessary, are heard on all these occasions.

Players from the Boston Symphony itself also are enlisted. A special all-modern concert by symphony members was given on July 14, featuring a Hindemith piano concerto, Ives' second sonata, Stravinsky's "Ragtime," a piece by Silvestre Revueltas, and two new wind quintets commissioned by the foundation, by David Diamond and Robert Lombardo, a 26-year-old composer who teaches in Hartford, Conn. Mr. Fromm, who attends all foundation premieres, was in the audience.

This season's list of lecturers includes Mr. Copland, Roger Sessions, Marc Blitzstein, John Kirkpatrick, Lukas Foss, Elliott Carter, Leon Kirchner and Milton Babbitt.

An Uphill Battle

Mr. Fromm is under no illusions about the task facing a campaigner for his chosen cause. Contemporary music has an uphill battle. The audiences at the Fromm concerts and lectures are no rivals numerically for the giant ones overflowing the Tanglewood shed on a Brahms or Beethoven night.

But Mr. Fromm has faith, and also great enthusiasm. This century, he maintains, has already produced some master composers who will take their places in history alongside those of earlier eras. His own mission, as he sees it, is to help encourage still others.

"We have kept the composer on the fringe of the mainstream of musical life," he told me. He seemed unquenchably optimistic about changing this situation.

Mr. Fromm plans to sponsor a three-week institute for 10 invited young composers at Princeton next year, under the chairmanship of Mr. Sessions. He also is hopeful that foundations larger than his may be induced to take up the cudgels. Tanglewood, doubtless, will continue to play a major part in his crusade.

Classics Still Heard

Tanglewood is still rendering service to older composers. Bach and Mozart as usual started off the summer, the seldom heard "Musical Joke" and the "Coronation" mass and wonderful D minor Kyrie (K. 341) providing a strikingly contrasted start and finish to the Mozart weekend, and the B minor mass climaxing the three concerts devoted to Bach.

On August 4 and 5 the student singers will provide a special fillip with a production of the little known, delightful Rossini French opera, "Count Ory." Preceding this will be almost a whole week end of Wagner, and the season will wind up August 10 with Beethoven's Ninth.

Marlboro's activities are of different dimensions. Seventy-three students and faculty members—the former selected from some 500 who applied — are spending seven weeks on the campus of tiny Marlboro College, working together on weekdays and giving public concerts on week ends. The main focus is on quartets, trios and other pieces of intimate size. The music is primarily traditional.

Faculty Subdued

The Marlboro spirit is democratic. The stress is on the group, and on music-making more than concert-giving. This summer, a new rule has been adopted which bars faculty members from playing together without student participation. Elsewhere such a rule might be hazardous, but at Marlboro the level of student ability is so high that a difference is hardly noticeable.

Thus, last week end, Mr. Serkin played with Yuan Tung, young Chinese-born cellist from the New Orleans Symphony, in a Beethoven sonata, and Richard Goode, 14-year-old New Yorker, presided at the keyboard with considerably senior, but hardly more ebullient, colleagues (one was Herman Busch) in Dvorak's "Dumky" trio.

At Marlboro the "star system" is strictly taboo. Mr. Serkin seems to be the most ardent adherent of this rule. He works hard at keeping in the background. It is not much wonder that some of the summer school's Vermont neighbors find this viewpoint a bit mysterious, however, and voice desires for more Serkin public appearances. Between now and the season's end August 24 Mr. Serkin is scheduled to play some Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven's taxing "Hammerklavier" sonata. And it is possible he will appear with the school's orchestra, led by Alexander Schneider.

Not all the music at Marlboro is old. Last Sunday Harold Wright, the National Symphony's first clarinetist and a Marlboro veteran, and his flutist wife Ruth were among participants in a concertino by the contemporary American, Ben Weber. And Villa-Lobos' fifth "Bachianas Brasilieras" is scheduled to be led by Marlboro's new director, Andrew Heath, on August 17. There is nothing limited about Marlboro's horizons, or about its zest.

ty Students
er Winners

present or former Tanglewood composition students. The Samuel Wechsler commission was awarded to Edward Miller of Miami, Fla., who was a student here in 1953 and 1955. The Lund commission, established this year by Jack H. Lund of Pittsburgh, Pa., a student enrolled in the 1958 Tanglewood Study Group, was awarded to Thomas Putsche of West Hartford, Conn., a student in this year's composition class.

In addition to the awards announced today by Mr. Copland, a number of scholarships were presented to students at the beginning of the Berkshire Music Center session. Among these were 165 grants from the Tanglewood Revolving Fund, of which 36 were granted to students from outside of the United States.

Students of Composition

For students of composition the Margaret Lee Crofts scholarships went to Rolv Yttrehus of Duluth, Minn. and Douglas Leedy of Portland, Ore. The Delta Omicron National Professional Music Fraternity scholarship, which is designated for a member of Delta Omicron, was awarded to Patricia Capone of Wakefield. Miss Capone has been a student in the department of choral music headed by Hugh Ross.

The Fromm Music Foundation fellowships for the study and 'performance of contemporary music under grants from the foundation created by Paul Fromm of Chicago were awarded to a select group of especially qualified young musicians.. The 1958 winners include Peter Marsh, Seattle, Wash.; Theodora Mantz, Minneapolis, Minn.; Scott Nickrenz, Hamburg, N.Y.; Donald McCall, Kansas City, Mo.; Gerardo Levy, Buenos Aires, Argentina; Herbert Resnick, Bronx, N.Y.; Efain Guigui, Buenos Aires, Argentina; Richard Lottridge, Havertown, Pa.; Paul Ingraham, Wallingford, Conn.; Robert Miller, Bronxville, N.Y., and Corinne Curry, Barrington, R.I.

The Ann M. Gannett scholarships of the National Federation of Music Clubs were presented to Fred Orkiseski of Altoona, Pa. and Marvin Salzberg of Ithaca, N.Y.

Koussevitzky Grants

Homer Lee, San Fransisco; Mario Davidovsky, Buenos Aires, Argentina; E. Evans Moore, Camden, N.J., and Ronald Knudsen, Baltimore, Md., were the recipients of Koussevitzky Music Foundation grants. Other winners of the David Morgenstern scholarships for string players in the Tanglewood study group, besides the two Pittsfield winners, were Robert Benjamin of Wellesly Hills and Ellen Thiberg of Cedar Knolls, N.J.

George Reinmiller of Portland, Ore., received the Portland Junior Symphony Orchestra scholarship for a member of the Berkshire Music Center orchestra. The scholarship created by the Minneapolis Star-Tribune was awarded to Helen Garvey of Anoka, Minn.

Thomas Griswold of Williamstown, Mrs. Winifred Keane of Lenox, Paul Marino of Pittsfield, Mary Ann McLaren of North Adams and Mrs. Irma Smith and Susan Smith of Pittsfield.

The presentation marked the end of the 16th session of the Music Center maintained by the BSO. The award winners were chosen from among 350 students enrolled this summer from 36 states and 15 foreign countries. Witnessing the award presentations was a crowd of more than 2,000 people.

Charles Goetz, a student of the department of choral music studying choral conducting, was announced as the winner of the Carlotta M. Dreyfus scholarship. Mr. Goetz, a recent refugee from Budapest, is currently residing in Merion Station, Penn. Another member of the choral department, Richard M. Foster, was the recipient of the Selly A. Eisemann scholarship. Mr. Foster, another student of choral conducting, also served as accompanist for the various choruses of the Music Center. He is from Bangor, Maine.

Mrs. Jo Evelyn Boatright of Colorado Springs, Col., a pianist who worked with chamber music ensembles, won the Jenny Fels memorial scholarship.

An award made possible by a gift from High Fidelity Magazine of Great Barrington was made to Gustav Meier of Zurich, Switzerland. Mr. Meier was a student at the 1957 session of the Berkshire Music Center, and again this year was an active conductor under the guidance of Eleazer de Carvalho and Seymour Lipkin.

Miss Robinson Smith Award

The Gertrude Robinson Smith scholarship, named for the chairman of the founding festival committee, and derived from the income of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Scholarship Fund established for students of conducting was presented to Zubin Mehta of Bombay, India.

Another conducting student, Claudio Abbado of Milan, Italy, received the coveted Koussevitzky memorial scholarship. This scholarship is provided by the income from a fund established by the residents of Berkshire County as a memorial to Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, founder of the Berkshire Music Center.

The Lydia Watson Hersloff scholarship for a student in the department of instrumental music was won by Olga Kwasniak of Toronto, Can., a cellist and a member of the student orchestra.

Albert Spalding Prize

To the most promising and outstanding instrumentalist in the student body each year goes the Albert Spalding prize. The winner for the session of 1958 was James B. Caldwell, an oboe player, from Gladewater, Tex.

Awarded by the Koussevitzky Music Foundation, the Koussevitzky composition prize for the best composition of the summer by a student in the composition department went to Ilhan Usmanbas of Ankara, Turkey. Mario Davidovsky of Buenos Aires, Argentina received the Raphael Sagalyn award for the best orchestral work by a composition student.

Announcement was also made of two commissions offered to

Music Awards
Continued on page 9

THREE FROM WASHINGTON—James Deane, Star record critic, found three Washington musicians rehearsing at the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood, Mass. They are Marie Kopulos, piano; Cecelia Hopkins, flute, and Rita Roudabush, oboe. Looking on is Ralph Gomberg, principal oboe of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

NEWS OF MUSIC

Pattern Changing At Summer Centers

By JAMES G. DEANE
Star Staff Writer

New England's most flourishing summer music centers—Tanglewood and Marlboro—are showing gratifying vitality.

The established pattern of concerts of the great orchestral repertoire at the Boston Symphony's summer home in the Berkshires is being enlivened with a stimulating excursion into new music.

At the Rudolf Serkin-led Marlboro School of Music in Vermont's Green Mountains, promising young American musicians steadily gain richer experience in performing chamber music in company with veterans seasoned in the European tradition.

Tanglewood, under the aegis of the late Serge Koussevitzky and of Aaron Copland, faculty head of its music school, always has been reasonably hospitable to modern music. But in the last year this cordial spirit has been solidified and extended.

This has been accomplished through a program of instruction and performances specifically centered on contemporary music. This program began in earnest last summer with the establishment of a special student-faculty group. It embraces seminars, lectures and concerts, which are open to the public. The student group is hand-picked, and participants include distinguished American composers.

Fromm is Backer

The sponsor of this enterprising activity is the Fromm Music Foundation. Paul Fromm, the foundation's president and financial backer, is a genial Chicago wine-importer in his 40s who brought his musical interest with him when he emigrated from Germany in 1938. Mr. Copland and Alexander Schneider, member of the Budapest Quartet who has been active on many musical fronts, also are playing important roles in its work.

Mr. Fromm's conviction is that the contemporary composer is entitled to a better deal, in terms of a market for his wares. Such a deal means having more performing musicians tackle new scores, and having more people listen.

Since its establishment six years ago, Mr. Fromm's foundation has commissioned more than 100 new compositions. It has also provided the funds to give them first and second performances and has financed some recordings. And now, with the Tanglewood project, it is seeking to push the cause of contemporary music forward still further.

New Music Lectures

The Fromm program at Tanglewood is a busy one. There are 11 student fellows, young musicians invited to attend on scholarships because of demonstrated ability and interest. (Two are from Buenos Aires.) They perform frequently. The foundation this summer is sponsoring six seminars on American composers and three lectures on new music of this country, Europe and Latin America. The fellows, augumented by other musicians when necessary, are heard on all these occasions.

Players from the Boston Symphony itself also are enlisted. A special all-modern concert by symphony members was given on July 14, featuring a Hindemith piano concerto, Ives' second sonata, Stravinsky's "Ragtime," a piece by Silvestre Revueltas, and two new wind quintets commissioned by the foundation, by David Diamond and Robert Lombardo, a 26-year-old composer who teaches in Hartford, Conn. Mr. Fromm, who attends all foundation premieres, was in the audience.

This season's list of lecturers includes Mr. Copland, Roger Sessions, Marc Blitzstein, John Kirkpatrick, Lukas Foss, Elliott Carter, Leon Kirchner and Milton Babbitt.

An Uphill Battle

Mr. Fromm is under no illusions about the task facing a campaigner for his chosen cause. Contemporary music has an uphill battle. The audiences at the Fromm concerts and lectures are no rivals numerically for the giant ones overflowing the Tanglewood shed on a Brahms or Beethoven night.

But Mr. Fromm has faith, and also great enthusiasm. This century, he maintains, has already produced some master composers who will take their places in history alongside those of earlier eras. His own mission, as he sees it, is to help encourage still others.

"We have kept the composer on the fringe of the mainstream of musical life," he told me. He seemed unquenchably optimistic about changing this situation.

Mr. Fromm plans to sponsor a three-week institute for 10 invited young composers at Princeton next year, under the chairmanship of Mr. Sessions. He also is hopeful that foundations larger than his may be induced to take up the cudgels. Tanglewood, doubtless, will continue to play a major part in his crusade.

Classics Still Heard

Tanglewood is still rendering service to older composers. Bach and Mozart as usual started off the summer, the seldom heard "Musical Joke" and the "Coronation" mass and wonderful D minor Kyrie (K. 341) providing a strikingly contrasted start and finish to the Mozart weekend, and the B minor mass climaxing the three concerts devoted to Bach.

On August 4 and 5 the student singers will provide a special fillip with a production of the little known, delightful Rossini French opera, "Count Ory." Preceding this will be almost a whole week end of Wagner, and the season will wind up August 10 with Beethoven's Ninth.

Marlboro's activities are of different dimensions. Seventy-three students and faculty members—the former selected from some 500 who applied — are spending seven weeks on the campus of tiny Marlboro College, working together on weekdays and giving public concerts on week ends. The main focus is on quartets, trios and other pieces of intimate size. The music is primarily traditional.

Faculty Subdued

The Marlboro spirit is democratic. The stress is on the group, and on music-making more than concert-giving. This summer, a new rule has been adopted which bars faculty members from playing together without student participation. Elsewhere such a rule might be hazardous, but at Marlboro the level of student ability is so high that a difference is hardly noticeable.

Thus, last week end, Mr. Serkin played with Yuan Tung, young Chinese-born cellist from the New Orleans Symphony, in a Beethoven sonata, and Richard Goode, 14-year-old New Yorker, presided at the keyboard with considerably senior, but hardly more ebullient, colleagues (one was Herman Busch) in Dvorak's "Dumky" trio.

At Marlboro the "star system" is strictly taboo. Mr. Serkin seems to be the most ardent adherent of this rule. He works hard at keeping in the background. It is not much wonder that some of the summer school's Vermont neighbors find this viewpoint a bit mysterious, however, and voice desires for more Serkin public appearances. Between now and the season's end August 24 Mr. Serkin is scheduled to play some Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven's taxing "Hammerklavier" sonata. And it is possible he will appear with the school's orchestra, led by Alexander Schneider.

Not all the music at Marlboro is old. Last Sunday Harold Wright, the National Symphony's first clarinetist and a Marlboro veteran, and his flutist wife Ruth were among participants in a concertino by the contemporary American, Ben Weber. And Villa-Lobos' fifth "Bachianas Brasilieras" is scheduled to be led by Marlboro's new director, Andrew Heath, on August 17. There is nothing limited about Marlboro's horizons, or about its zest.

C233

PAN PIPES OF SIGMA ALPHA IOTA

SUMMER TREK*

Tanglewood

Ten Sigma Alpha Iotas from all over the United States gathered together at Tanglewood in the Berkshires for a period that was brief but exhilarating. They enjoyed six weeks of active participation in music of many origins and with people of diverse backgrounds.

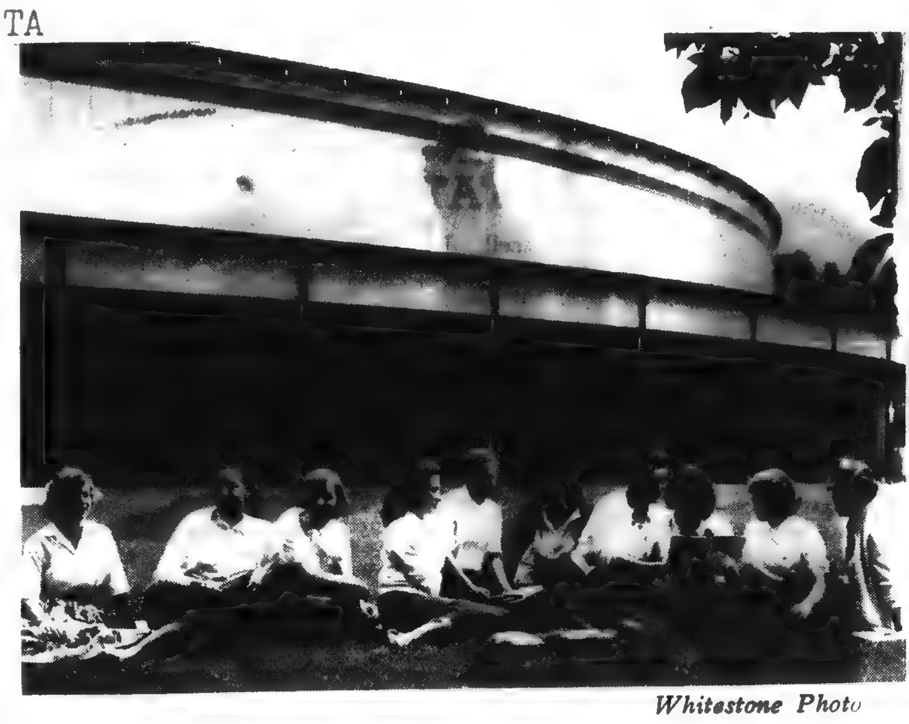
Seven members were in Department I, Orchestra and Chamber Music, and three were in Department IV, The Opera Workshop.

Phyliss Bleck who played trumpet in the department I Orchestra, graduated from the University of Illinois at Urbana, where she was a member of Sigma Delta Chapter. Phyliss lives in Aurora, Illinois. Dottie Malone, 'cellist in the Department I Orchestra attended Carnegie Institute of Technology where she became a member of Alpha Mu, SAI. Dottie now lives in Springfield, Massachusetts. Jean Harter played viola in the Department I Orchestra. She is a patroness member of Alpha Chapter at the University of Michigan, and now lives in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Rheta Roudabush played oboe in the Department I Orchestra. She was editor, and program chairman of Eta-Iota chapter at the College-Conservatory of Music of Cincinnati where she was awarded the Sword of Honor. Rheta now lives in Washington, D.C.

Shirley Vineyard, a former treasurer of Iota Beta from Murray State College, Murray, Kentucky where she received the Sword of Honor, played bassoon in the Department I Orchestra. She now teaches High School Music in Miami, Florida.

A member of the Choral Department and also of the chamber music division of Department I, Karen Larson from Minneapolis, Minnesota was a member of Sigma Sigma at the University of Minnesota where she graduated in 1957. Ann Turner from Miami, Florida is a senior at the University of Miami where she is president of Sigma Chi Chapter.

SAIs in the Opera Department were Doris Okerson, Joan Aceto and Marylyn Scott. Soprano Doris Okerson was a member of Iota Theta at North Texas State College, Denton, Texas and now lives in New York. Joan Aceto from Westbrook, Maine, was also a member of the Opera Department. Joan is a Sigma Iota at Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York, where she is a junior and Marylyn Scott from Baton Rouge, Louisiana, graduated from Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge where she was president of the Sigma Phi Chapter in 1956.



Whitestone Photo

SIGMA ALPHA IOTAS AT TANGLEWOOD, SUMMER 1958. Left to right: Dottie Malone, Shirley Vineyard, Rheta Roudabush, Karen Larson, Ann Turner, Phyliss Bleck, Doris Okerson, Joan Aceto, Marylyn Scott, and Jean Harter.

---

* In addition to these special summer gatherings, Sigma Alpha Iotas were teaching and studying, as well as being counsellors, at Interlochen, Aspen, Idyllwild, Inspiration Point, and others, with many on special European tours.

MIAMI, FLA.
HERALD
D. 287,449 S. 345,387

SEP 7 1958

Seven Played in Orchestra

Young Miami Musicians Return from Tanglewood

Recently returned from spending a musical summer at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., are seven young Miamians who played a wide variety of instruments in the student orchestra there.

The list included Ann Turner and Taavo Virkhaus, violins; Don Rose, trombone; Shirley Vineyard, bassoon; Ed Parise, oboe and English horn; and Al Troppe, bass clarinet. Paul Marino, baritone, represented Miami in the choral department.

Troppe also served as personnel manager of the Center's orchestra for the second year, and Miss Vineyard served on the Student Council.

All the orchestral students played under the baton of Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony and director of the Center, in one Thursday evening concert.

Mr. Marino was a soloist with the Tanglewood Choir and participated in the performances of Brahms' German Requiem and the Beethoven Ninth Symphony conducted by Munch.

READING, PA.
EAGLE
D. 46,935 S. 59,157

AUG 31 1958

Socially Speaking

By Betty Troy

It was a real pleasure to hear Mary Alice Wotring, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Wotring, 1319 Van Steffy Ave., Wyomissing, give such an enthusiastic account of a couple of days she spent at the Tanglewood Music Festival in the Berkshires at Lenox, Mass.

If you've been reading reports recently of what's been going on at the summer home of the Boston Symphony then you'll recall that one of the highlights of the season has been the two performances of "Le Comte Ory" by Rossini, given in the U.S. for the first time in 130 years and in a new English version commissioned by the Julliard School of Music.

Mary Alice, while studying at Erie College last winter, attended each of the concerts given by the Cleveland Symphony and through friends became acquainted with the young Welshman, Wyn Morris, who spent the last symphony season in that city observing the Cleveland orchestra while studying conducting techniques at Severance Hall. A graduate at the University of South Wales, which prepared him at the age of 16 for entrance to the Royal Academy of Music, where he specialized in piano, organ and conducting, Mr. Morris was given the coveted Koussevitsky Memorial award last summer at Tanglewood. This summer he was invited to conduct both performances of Rossini's sparkling opera.

Mary Alice was especially pleased with a new idea being tried out in scenery. She reported that replacing the usual drops, settings consisting chiefly of colored slides projected on a series of translucent, lightweight panels devised by Dr. Elemer Nagy, of the Hart School in Hartford and used for the first time at the Berkshire Center They were made possible by a grant from the Ford Foundation.

When perfected the idea will obviously be valuable particularly in small operatic or other summer theater productions with limited transportation or storage space.

Miss Wotring, who was graduated from Erie in June, leaves early in September for France, where she plans to study during the next year at the Sorbonne.

* * * *

HUNTINGTON, W.VA.
ADVERTISER
D. 22,609

AUG 27 1958

Church Names Music Director

Appointment of Wyn Morris, a native of South Wales, as director of music was announced this week by the Noble Road Presbyterian Church, Cleveland Heights.

Morris, 29, studied for five years at the Royal Academy of Music, London, and has conducted orchestra and choral groups in England, Wales, Eire, Austria and Germany. He attended the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, N. J., where he was awarded the Koussevitsky Prize.

Earlier this week he was named conductor of the Orpheus Male Chorus. At the Noble Road church he will conduct the chancel, Westminster and Junior choirs.

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 6,724

JUL 10 1958

Bob Benjamin Has Tanglewood Grant

Robert S. Benjamin, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Benjamin of 34 Cliff road, Wellesley Hills, is happy to be spending six weeks at Tanglewood in the Berkshires on a scholarship sponsored by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He is playing viola both in the orchestra and with a string ensemble at Tanglewood. A June graduate of Haverford College, young Benjamin has a scholarship to Mannes College of Music, New York City, where he will continue his study of composition. His entire family are musicans.

BATAVIA, N. Y.
DAILY NEWS

JUN 14 1958

New Orchestra Director Once With Boston Symphony

BY VIRGINIA TRIETLEY

The depression turned Willis Page, who has become music director of the Batavia Civic Orchestra, to music as a career. When he was graduated from the Monroe High School in Rochester,

WILLIS PAGE

Mr. Page had been accepted at the Harvard Law School and given a scholarship.

"Even with a scholarship I could not manage," the conductor related. "During the depression there were no jobs for students and we just could not afford the room, board and other expenses that would come up."

Then the high school graduate went to the Eastman School of Music to audition for a scholarship which was awarded him. In 1939 he graduated with distinction and received the first double performer's degree (double bass and tuba) ever given by the school.

"Now I realize that music was my real career," Mr. Page said. "Throughout high school, when I had tried to plan for college my thinking was this: will it be music, or law, or something else? In other words, whatever I considered I placed against music as a choice.

"Probably this seemed a strange career because no one in my family, although we all have enjoyed music as a hobby, made music his life's work."

The musician had been outstanding in high school music. In the Monroe High School and in Inter-School Orchestra he played bass and in their bands he was at the tuba. The inter-school groups were under the direction of Karl van Hoesen, who is now director of music in all of Rochester's public schools. Mr. Page became the student conductor of the band.

Played under Iturbi

Mr. Page's work still attracted attention at the Eastman School. In his junior year he was made a member of the Rochester Philharmonic under Jose Iturbi, after having played in the Rochester Civic Orchestra for a year.

In 1940, when Leopold Stokowski was organizing the All-American Youth Orchestra, which was scheduled to tour South America, Mr Page was assigned to play bass. Everything was signed and official when word came that the late Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony, and a virtuoso on the double bass, was coming through Rochester and wanted to audition Mr. Page.

"He came, heard me and immediately offered me a position with the Boston Symphony," Mr. Page related. "The season started the next Fall and he asked me to go to the Berkshire Music Center, at Tanglewood, in Massachusetts, for the Summer.

"I asked Mr. Koussevitzky whether I could tour with Stokowski for the Summer instead, considering that experience in playing with a symphony.

"The conductor snapped, 'What, you would play with this child's orchestra when you can play with the greatest in the world?' "

Mr. Page went to Tanglewood after finding the noted Stokowski very understanding and co-operative.

Test of Endurance

Mr. Page's first year with the Boston Symphony was a real test of endurance. He soon learned that this was typical of Koussevitzky, who treated his beginners as apprentices. As the youngest member of the orchestra, he was self-conscious. When rehearsals were stopped, it always seemed to be the basses at fault and Mr. Koussevitzky's gaze of criticism seemed to be for him alone.

Mr. Page laughingly remembered one rehearsal when Koussevitzky put down his baton, walked over, stood in front of his stand and said, "My dear boy, you are crazy."

"I had been bowing in the opposite direction of the other players." Then the new Batavia conductor added, "I lost 15 pounds that year."

He survived the year and 13½ more with the Boston Symphony. For nine years he was first desk player in the bass section. He has kept a deep respect and affection for the exacting and great conductor who started him on his professional career. After 1949, Charles Munch was conductor of the Boston Symphony.

While he was in Boston Mr. Page studied conducting in the Master Class of Pierre Monteux, Mr. Koussevitzky's predecessor at the Boston Symphony, and later conductor of the San Francisco Symphony. He became conductor of the Cecelia Society, the second oldest mixed chorus in the United States, and music director of the New Orchestral Society of Boston.

He was a frequent conductor of both the Boston Pops and the Esplanade Concerts. In the Spring of 1953, Emory Cook, a pioneer in binaural techniques of high fidelity recording and one of the country's leading audio engineers, asked Mr. Page and the New Orchestral Society to tape the first symphonic binaural records. Since then the two men have produced 11 high fidelity recordings together.

Mr. Page has more than 50 Kapp recordings to his credit, the last released in May, being "Rhapsody in Blue" with Roger Williams at the piano.

Served In Army

Twenty-eight months were taken out of his music career while Mr. Page served with the 95th Infantry, Patton's 3rd Army, in Europe. He participated in the major offensives reaching the Ruhr following the Battle of the Bulge. Here, because he knew German, he became the Gen Patton's interpreter, helping with work with 100,000 displaced persons in the Essen vicinity. He won the Bronze Star for meritorious achievement for this work.

Mr. Page, by then Sgt. Page, had reached Mississippi on his way to Japan when World War II ended. He returned to the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

It was following the Summer of 1954 as conductor of the Pops concerts of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra that he was asked to become the associate conductor of the Philharmonic. After considering and making arrangements with Mr. Munch, he came to take that post in January 1955.

In Buffalo, Mr. Page also conducts the Buffalo Schola Cantorum, a chorus of about 175 members, which presents several concerts each season with the Buffalo Philharmonic.

With those concerts, the Pops concerts which are his responsibility, and other appearances when Josef Krips, the regular conductor is elsewhere, Mr. Page leads at least 55 concerts each season in Buffalo or on tour. Each summer he is music director of the Linwood School of Music, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Gratwick Jr., in Linwood.

Now he is adding one more activity to a busy schedule to be music director of the Batavia Civic Orchestra. It is his first work with a non-professional symphony and he is looking forward to an interesting experience.

This area's own symphony seems auspiciously located for finding outstanding conductors. Dr. Frederick Fennell, who just resigned after three years here, presented brilliantly outstanding concerts with players from Genesee County and nearby vicinities. Mr. Page promises to follow in excellence.

[233]

PAN PIPES OF SIGMA ALPHA IOTA

SUMMER TREK*

Tanglewood

Ten Sigma Alpha Iotas from all over the United States gathered together at Tanglewood in the Berkshires for a period that was brief but exhilarating. They enjoyed six weeks of active participation in music of many origins and with people of diverse backgrounds.

Seven members were in Department I, Orchestra and Chamber Music, and three were in Department IV, The Opera Workshop.

Phyliss Bleck who played trumpet in the department I Orchestra, graduated from the University of Illinois at Urbana where she was a member of Sigma Delta Chapter. Phyliss lives in Aurora, Illinois. Dottie Malone, 'cellist in the Department I Orchestra attended Carnegie Institute of Technology where she became a member of Alpha Mu, SAI. Dottie now lives in Springfield, Massachusetts. Jean Harter played viola in the Department I Orchestra. She is a patroness member of Alpha Chapter at the University of Michigan, and now lives in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Rheta Roudabush played oboe in the Department I Orchestra. She was editor, and program chairman of Eta-Iota chapter at the College-Conservatory of Music of Cincinnati where she was awarded the Sword of Honor. Rheta now lives in Washington, D.C.

Shirley Vineyard, a former treasurer of Iota Beta from Murray State College, Murray, Kentucky where she received the Sword of Honor, played bassoon in the Department I Orchestra. She now teaches High School Music in Miami, Florida.

A member of the Choral Department and also of the chamber music division of Department I, Karen Larson from Minneapolis, Minnesota was a member of Sigma Sigma at the University of Minnesota where she graduated in 1957. Ann Turner from Miami, Florida is a senior at the University of Miami where she is president of Sigma Chi Chapter.

SAIs in the Opera Department were Doris Okerson, Joan Aceto and Marylyn Scott. Soprano Doris Okerson was a member of Iota Theta at North Texas State College, Denton, Texas and now lives in New York. Joan Aceto from Westbrook, Maine, was also a member of the Opera Department. Joan is a Sigma Iota at Syracuse University, Syracuse, New York, where she is a junior and Marylyn Scott from Baton Rouge, Louisiana, graduated from Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge where she was president of the Sigma Phi Chapter in 1956.

Whitestone Photo

SIGMA ALPHA IOTAS AT TANGLEWOOD, SUMMER 1958. Left to right: Dottie Malone, Shirley Vineyard, Rheta Roudabush, Karen Larson, Ann Turner, Phyliss Bleck, Doris Okerson, Joan Aceto, Marylyn Scott, and Jean Harter.

---

* In addition to these special summer gatherings, Sigma Alpha Iotas were teaching and studying, as well as being counsellors, at Interlochen, Aspen, Idyllwild, Inspiration Point, and others, with many on special European tours.

MIAMI, FLA.
HERALD
D. 287,449 S. 345,387

SEP 7 1958

Seven Played in Orchestra

Young Miami Musicians Return from Tanglewood

Recently returned from spending a musical summer at the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, Mass., are seven young Miamians who played a wide variety of instruments in the student orchestra there.

The list included Ann Turner and Taavo Virkhaus, violins; Don Rose, trombone; Shirley Vineyard, bassoon; Ed Parise, oboe and English horn; and Al Troppe, bass clarinet. Paul Marino, baritone, represented Miami in the choral department.

Troppe also served as personnel manager of the Center's orchestra for the second year, and Miss Vineyard served on the Student Council.

All the orchestral students played under the baton of Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Symphony and director of the Center, in one Thursday evening concert.

Mr. Marino was a soloist with the Tanglewood Choir and participated in the performances of Brahms' German Requiem and the Beethoven Ninth Symphony conducted by Munch.

READING, PA.
EAGLE
D. 46,935 S. 59,157

AUG 31 1958

Socially Speaking

By Betty Troy

It was a real pleasure to hear Mary Alice Wotring, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Wotring, 1319 Van Steffy Ave., Wyomissing, give such an enthusiastic account of a couple of days she spent at the Tanglewood Music Festival in the Berkshires at Lenox, Mass.

If you've been reading reports recently of what's been going on at the summer home of the Boston Symphony then you'll recall that one of the highlights of the season has been the two performances of "Le Comte Ory" by Rossini, given in the U.S. for the first time in 130 years and in a new English version commissioned by the Julliard School of Music.

Mary Alice, while studying at Erie College last winter, attended each of the concerts given by the Cleveland Symphony and through friends became acquainted with the young Welshman, Wyn Morris, who spent the last symphony season in that city observing the Cleveland orchestra while studying conducting techniques at Severance Hall. A graduate at the University of South Wales, which prepared him at the age of 16 for entrance to the Royal Academy of Music, where he specialized in piano, organ and conducting, Mr. Morris was given the coveted Koussevitsky Memorial award last summer at Tanglewood. This summer he was invited to conduct both performances of Rossini's sparkling opera.

Mary Alice was especially pleased with a new idea being tried out in scenery. She reported that replacing the usual drops, settings consisting chiefly of colored slides projected on a series of translucent, lightweight panels devised by Dr. Elemer Nagy, of the Hart School in Hartford and used for the first time at the Berkshire Center. They were made possible by a grant from the Ford Foundation.

When perfected the idea will obviously be valuable particularly in small operatic or other summer theater productions with limited transportation or storage space.

Miss Wotring, who was graduated from Erie in June, leaves early in September for France, where she plans to study during the next year at the Sorbonne.

* * * *

HUNTINGTON, W.VA.
ADVERTISER
D. 22,609

AUG 27 1958

Church Names Music Director

Appointment of Wyn Morris, a native of South Wales, as director of music was announced this week by the Noble Road Presbyterian Church, Cleveland Heights.

Morris, 29, studied for five years at the Royal Academy of Music, London, and has conducted orchestra and choral groups in England, Wales, Eire, Austria and Germany. He attended the Berkshire Music Center, Tanglewood, N. J., where he was awarded the Koussevitsky Prize.

Earlier this week he was named conductor of the Orpheus Male Chorus. At the Noble Road church he will conduct the chancel, Westminster and Junior choirs.

Townsman
WELLESLEY, Mass.
Weekly Republican
Circ. 6,724

JUL 10 1958

Bob Benjamin Has Tanglewood Grant

Robert S. Benjamin, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. Benjamin of 34 Cliff road, Wellesley Hills, is happy to be spending six weeks at Tanglewood in the Berkshires on a scholarship sponsored by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. He is playing viola both in the orchestra and with a string ensemble at Tanglewood. A June graduate of Haverford College, young Benjamin has a scholarship to Mannes College of Music, New York City, where he will continue his study of composition. His entire family are musicans.

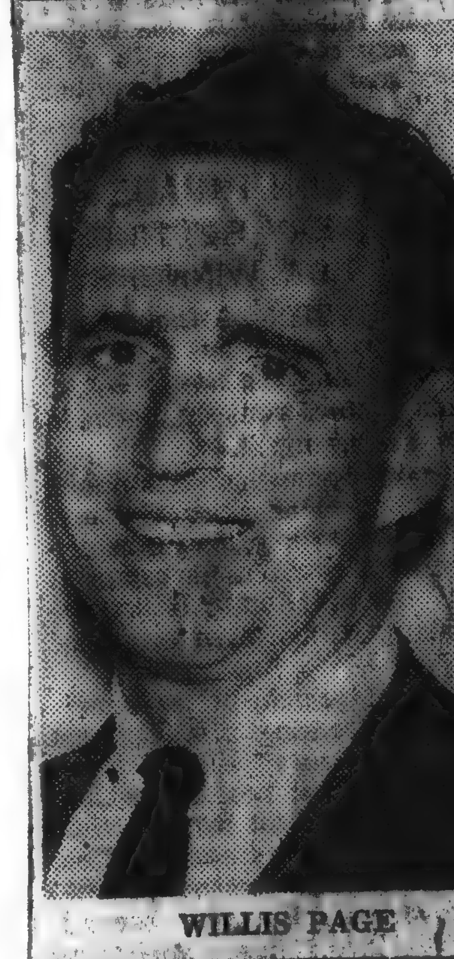
BATAVIA, N. Y.
DAILY NEWS

JUN 14 1958

New Orchestra Director Once With Boston Symphony

BY VIRGINIA TRIETLEY

The depression turned Willis Page, who has become music director of the Batavia Civic Orchestra, to music as a career. When he was graduated from the Monroe High School in Rochester, Mr. Page had been accepted at the Harvard Law School and given a scholarship.



WILLIS PAGE

"Even with a scholarship I could not manage," the conductor related. "During the depression there were no jobs for students and we just could not afford the room, board, and other expenses that would come up."

Then the high school graduate went to the Eastman School of Music to audition for a scholarship which was awarded him. In 1939 he graduated with distinction and received the first double performer's degree (double bass and tuba) ever given by the school.

"Now I realize that music was my real career," Mr. Page said. "Throughout high school, when I had tried to plan for college my thinking was this: will it be music, or law, or something else? In other words, whatever I considered I placed against music as a choice.

"Probably this seemed a strange career because no one in my family, although we all have enjoyed music as a hobby, made music his life's work."

The musician had been outstanding in high school music. In the Monroe High School and in Inter-School Orchestra he played bass and in their bands he was at the tuba. The inter-school groups were under the direction of Karl van Hoesen, who is now director of music in all of Rochester's public schools. Mr. Page became the student conductor of the band.

Played under Iturbi

Mr. Page's work still attracted attention at the Eastman School. In his junior year he was made a member of the Rochester Philharmonic under Jose Iturbi, after having played in the Rochester Civic Orchestra for a year.

In 1940, when Leopold Stokowski was organizing the All-American Youth Orchestra, which was scheduled to tour South America, Mr Page was assigned to play bass. Everything was signed and official when word came that the late Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony, and a virtuoso on the double bass, was coming through Rochester and wanted to audition Mr. Page.

"He came, heard me and immediately offered me a position with the Boston Symphony," Mr. Page related. "The season started the next Fall and he asked me to go to the Berkshire Music Center, at Tanglewood, in Massachusetts, for the Summer.

"I asked Mr. Koussevitzky whether I could tour with Stokowski for the Summer instead, considering that experience in playing with a symphony.

"The conductor snapped, 'What, you would play with this child's orchestra when you can play with the greatest in the world?' "

Mr. Page went to Tanglewood after finding the noted Stokowski very understanding and co-operative.

Test of Endurance

Mr. Page's first year with the Boston Symphony was a real test of endurance. He soon learned that this was typical of Koussevitzky, who treated his beginners as apprentices. As the youngest member of the orchestra, he was self-conscious. When rehearsals were stopped, it always seemed to be the basses at fault and Mr. Koussevitzky's gaze of criticism seemed to be for him alone.

Mr. Page laughingly remembered one rehearsal when Koussevitzky put down his baton, walked over, stood in front of his stand and said, "My dear boy, you are crazy."

"I had been bowing in the opposite direction of the other players." Then the new Batavia conductor added, "I lost 15 pounds that year."

He survived the year and 13½ more with the Boston Symphony. For nine years he was first desk player in the bass section. He has kept a deep respect and affection for the exacting and great conductor who started him on his professional career. After 1949, Charles Munch was conductor of the Boston Symphony.

While he was in Boston Mr. Page studied conducting in the Master Class of Pierre Monteux, Mr. Koussevitzky's predecessor at the Boston Symphony, and later conductor of the San Francisco Symphony. He became conductor of the Cecelia Society, the second oldest mixed chorus in the United States, and music director of the New Orchestral Society of Boston.

He was a frequent conductor of both the Boston Pops and the Esplanade Concerts. In the Spring of 1953, Emory Cook, a pioneer in binaural techniques of high fidelity recording and one of the country's leading audio engineers, asked Mr. Page and the New Orchestral Society to tape the first symphonic binaural records. Since then the two men have produced 11 high fidelity recordings together.

Mr. Page has more than 50 Kapp recordings to his credit, the last released in May, being "Rhapsody in Blue" with Roger Williams at the piano.

Served In Army

Twenty-eight months were taken out of his music career while Mr. Page served with the 95th Infantry, Patton's 3rd Army, in Europe. He participated in the major offensives reaching the Ruhr following the Battle of the Bulge. Here, because he knew German, he became the Gen Patton's interpreter, helping with work with 100,000 displaced persons in the Essen vicinity. He won the Bronze Star for meritorious achievement for this work.

Mr. Page, by then Sgt. Page, had reached Mississippi on his way to Japan when World War II ended. He returned to the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

It was following the Summer of 1954 as conductor of the Pops concerts of the Buffalo Philharmonic Orchestra that he was asked to become the associate conductor of the Philharmonic. After considering and making arrangements with Mr. Munch, he came to take that post in January 1955.

In Buffalo, Mr. Page also conducts the Buffalo Schola Cantorum, a chorus of about 175 members, which presents several concerts each season with the Buffalo Philharmonic.

With those concerts, the Pops concerts which are his responsibility, and other appearances when Josef Krips, the regular conductor is elsewhere, Mr. Page leads at least 55 concerts each season in Buffalo or on tour. Each summer he is music director of the Linwood School of Music, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Gratwick Jr., in Linwood.

Now he is adding one more activity to a busy schedule to be music director of the Batavia Civic Orchestra. It is his first work with a non-professional symphony and he is looking forward to an interesting experience.

This area's own symphony seems auspiciously located for finding outstanding conductors. Dr. Frederick Fennell, who just resigned after three years here, presented brilliantly outstanding concerts with players from Genesee County and nearby vicinities. Mr Page promises to follow in excellence.

Union (m)
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 81,541

AUG 28 1958

Educational Radio Listing Available

A September program guide for regional educational radio station WEDK, 91.7 mc, FM, is available to listeners.

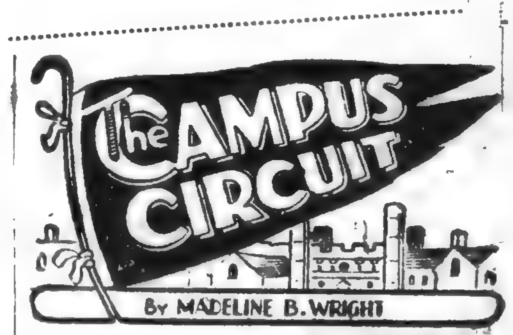
The guide includes the program for nine Tanglewood concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra to be broadcast Monday and Saturday nights. The concerts were recorded in the Music Shed at Tanglewood during July and August.

WEDK's program guide may be received regularly without charge by writing to WEDK, 210 Hasbrouck Laboratory, University of Massachusetts, Amherst.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

AUG 24 1958



EDUCATIONAL NETWORK

Springfield, this month of August, became hooked up with an instantaneous radio relay that from Boston west to the Berkshires. FM listeners who set their dials at 91.7 hear the station announced as WEDK, an affiliate of the Educational Radio Network. What it means is that this area is now directly connected with 18 educational institutions, of which 13 are in the Boston area and five in the Springfield area. It means that technical facilities are available to bring into our homes discussions of current affairs by experts from the faculties of the various colleges. It means the best music will come to our living rooms through live broadcasts and recordings of live concerts.

For a long time persons in this part of the state who like this type of radio programs have felt envious of those who live in the Boston area which is effectively served by the educational radio, WGBH-FM. But now Western Massachusetts is equally privileged. As of the present, a large part of WEDK's programs are identical with WGBH's broadcasts.

Received on Mt. Tom

The Boston broadcasts are picked up off the air by a receiver on Mount Tom, relayed by phone to our Trade School on State St., and broadcast from there over the station's powerful 15,000 watt transmitter. Its effective range north and south is from north of Greenfield to the outskirts of New Haven, and east and west from Ware to the Berkshire foothills.

When the nearby colleges open and after a few months of settling into routine, more and more of the programs offered by the local station will originate at this end of the air line and be sent to the Boston station, this reversing the present course. Policies are set by the Western Massachusetts Broadcasting Council, Inc. Its members are Amherst, Mount Holyoke and Smith Colleges, the University of Massachusetts, and the Springfield School Committee.

The transmitter is the property of the local school committee which received it as a gift several years ago from the previous owner which had no further use for it.

The schools have the responsibility for the technical maintenance of the transmitter. The four colleges assume responsibility for the programs and the costs that go with them. These include the salary of the station manager, his office, supplies, and auxiliary equipment, such as tapes, etc. The more tangible items, such as the office and printing facilities for programs, are supplied by the University of Massachusetts. The other three colleges contribute cash, which this year amounted to $4000 each. The plan is to produce on as limited a budget as possible.

Lecture, Concert Nightly

Station Manager Will Lewis came to WEDK from previous association with the staff of WGBH. The connection bids fare to benefit greatly the new station here. In a recent interview with the writer, Mr. Lewis outlined the general program format for the evening. The aim is to have each night one good lecture or forum discussion and one live concert or recording of a live concert.

"If something of news value breaks in the morning," he explained "we can have a program arranged for that evening that will involve comment or interpretation by local experts in that particular field."

Any evening program can be interruped if an event is considered worth "entering."

All Concerts to be Aired

One claim to fame appears evident in advance. That is, that this Educational Radio Network will broadcast more live symphony and other concerts than any other network. Take the program for the month of September. On Monday and Saturday evenings at 8.30 the rest of the Boston Symphony Tanglewood concerts, that were not broadcast in August, will be broadcast by recordings. Starting in October and continuing throughout the year, the Boston Symphony concerts will be broadcast, live, Friday afternoons and Saturday evenings. Not only, is every home concert of the Boston Symphony to be broadcast plus all its Tanglewood concerts, but in addition the sound of all its TV concerts is to be put on the air by the network.

Recorder-Gazette (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,393

AUG 30 1958

Educational Radio Expand Programs In New Schedule

AMHERST — WEDK, regional educational FM radio station will begin its fall broadcasting schedule Monday with substantial additions to its classical music programs, including nine broadcasts of Tanglewood concerts.

The station will broadcast about 100 hours of classical music during the month in addition to programs of news, discussions and drama. Among the classical music broadcasts will be two Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts weekly (Mondays and Saturdays at 8:30 p.m.), concerts of the Springfield Symphony Sundays and recorded music at various other times. The Springfield Symphony concerts were recorded during the symphony's regular concerts last season. The B.S.O. concerts were recorded earlier this summer at the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

Journal Record
AMHERST, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 1,353

AUG 28 1958

WEDK Program Guides Available on Request

A September program guide for Educational Radio Station WEDK, 91.7 mc. FM, is now available to interested listeners.

This month's guide includes the program for nine Tanglewood Concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra to be broadcast on Monday and Saturday evenings. These concerts were recorded in the Music Shed at Tanglewood during July and August.

CHICAGO, ILL.
AMERICAN
Circ. D. 524,823 - S. 706,407

AUG 17 1958

WFMT Programs Berk

Highlight

TWELVE concerts from the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be broadcast by WFMT (98.7 FM) on Wednesday nights at 8 p. m., starting Aug. 20.

Conductors for the series will be Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux. Soloists include Lucas Foss, Seymour Lipkin and Hilde Gueden.

The Berkshire Festival, which began in 1934, is one of the outstanding summer festivals in the United States.

The works of Bach, Mozart, Brahms and Beethoven will be featured.

NILES, MICH.
STAR
Circ. D. 7,711

AUG 20 1958

'58 Berkshire Music on Air

Twelve concerts from the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, featuring the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be broadcast by WFMT [98.7 FM], Chicago's fine arts station, beginning tonight at 8 o'clock.

Conductors for the series will be Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux with such soloists as Lucas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Hilde Gueden, Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis, Zino Francescatti, Leonard Pennario, and Eugene Istomin. The Berkshire Festival, which began in 1934, is one of the outstanding summer festivals in the United States.

These delayed broadcasts will present the Friday, Saturday, and Sunday performances which were given in the Music Shed at Lenox, Massachusetts between July 4 and August 10, 1958. Earlier this year, WFMT has broadcast exclusively in Chicago the regular season concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and nine concerts by the Boston "Pops" Orchestra, both from Symphony Hall in Boston.

Major choral and orchestral works will be presented. The first three programs will be devoted to music of Bach. On August 20, Bach's four orchestral suites will be heard; on August 27, his first piano concerto and the complete "Art of the Fugue" with Lucas Foss as soloist; and on September 3, the famous "Mass in B Minor" [with the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliff Choral Society and soloists Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, and Donald Gramm].

Three Mozart concerts will follow, starting on September 10, the third offering the Coronation Mass. This will be followed by two Brahms concerts and two Beethoven concerts. The Brahms "German Requiem" and Beethoven "Choral Symphony" will be included.

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178

AUG 9 1958

The We

8:30-10:30—Boston Symphony Orchestra: Broadcast from The Shed at Tanglewood with Pierre Monteauxx, guest conductor. Beethoven The Creatures of Prometheus: Overture; Allegretto, and Finale; Beethoven — Violin Concerto, in D, Op. 61, with Berl Sanofsky, soloist. Hindemith — Nobilissima; Beethoven — Leonore Overture No. 3. (WFLY)

CHICAGO, ILL.
SUN-TIMES
Circ. D. 584,509 - S. 611,899

AUG 19 1958

Announcers Have High Voices?

SIV NILLSON, an attractive advertising copywriter from Sweden, spent a few days here observing the Chicago advertising scene. She dropped in at The Sun-Times to report that she was both impressed (as a professional) and irritated (as a viewer) by the commercials on TV. In Sweden, the medium is state-run and does not have commercials. Says she, of announcers: "I admire their hard sell, but not their high voices. Why do all the American announcers have such unpleasant voices?"

CHUCK BILL
Back from Russia

Channel 7's Chuck Bill, who recently returned from a junket in Europe, went to Russia to look at TV operations there. He tells me the Russians have TV aerials all over the landscape, but sets are scarce. He finally got his first real look at Russian TV sets at the Brussels World's Fair.

Bill was impressed by these findings: The families are small in Russia. There are social classes, contrary to Red claims, and they are categorized by income. Only the old people go to church. The Soviets are fascinated by movies about cowboys and Indians, and TV there "is about like we had it 10 years ago."

Here, There; On The Air

CHANNEL 2 has abandoned plans to emanate a local show for the CBS network, with WLS' Red Blanchard as star. The pilot film failed to arouse any interest. . . . Channel 7's Jim Lounsbury will be in charge of Dick Clark's American Bandstand next Tuesday. Clark, now vacationing, is being replaced by disk jockeys across the country. . . . Robert Cosbey, associate English professor at Roosevelt University, premieres a folk music program on WBBM at 8:05 p.m. Saturday. . . . Twelve concerts from the Berkshire Festival at Lenox, Mass., will be aired by WFMT, starting at 8 p.m. Wednesday. . .

REDUCTION

RATIO

16x

2.5 mm

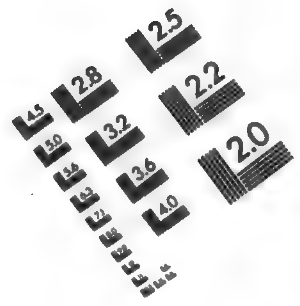
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

2.0 mm

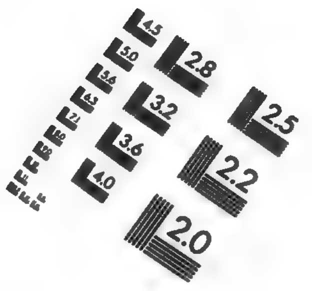
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.5 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

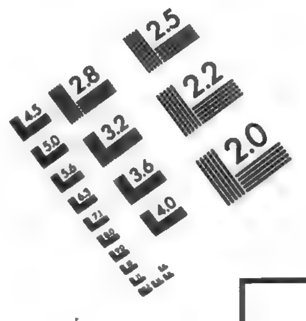


2.5
2.8
2.2
3.2
3.6
4.0
2.0

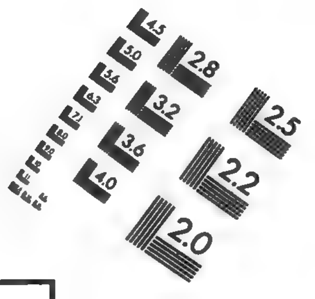


2.8
3.2
2.5
2.2
4.0
2.0

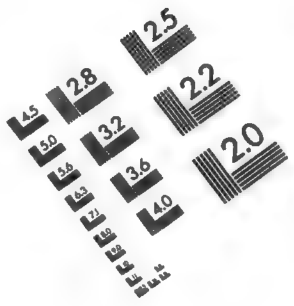
PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC



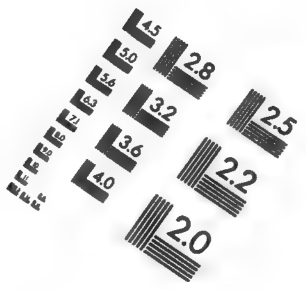
2.5
2.8
2.2
3.2
3.6
4.0
2.0



2.8
3.2
2.5
3.6
2.2
4.0
2.0



2.5
2.8
2.2
3.2
3.6
4.0
2.0

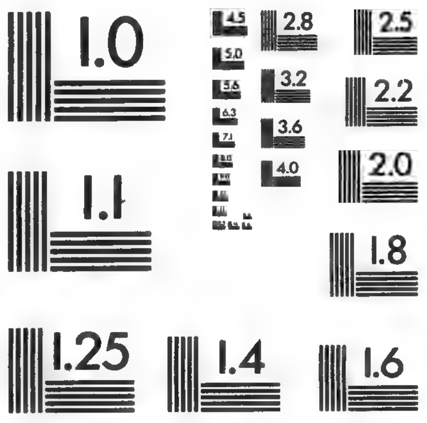


2.8
3.2
2.5
3.6
2.2
4.0
2.0

200 mm

150 mm

100 mm



1.0
2.8
2.5
3.2
2.2
3.6
4.0
2.0
1.1
1.8
1.25
1.4
1.6

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.0 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.5 mm

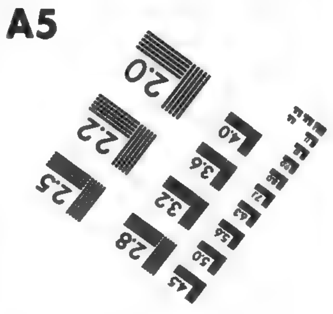
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

2.0 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

2.5 mm

A5

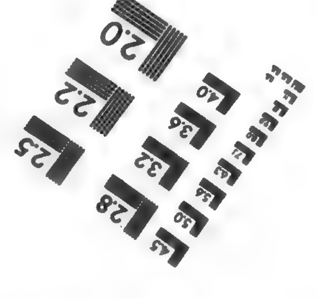


2.0
2.2
4.0
3.6
2.5
3.2
2.8

4.0
3.6
2.0
3.2
2.2
2.8
2.5

A4

A3

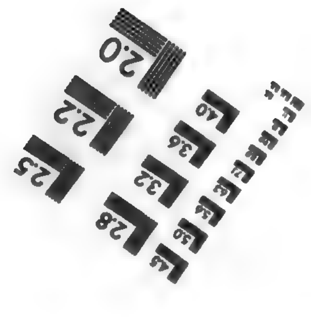


2.0
4.0
2.2
3.6
2.5
3.2
2.8

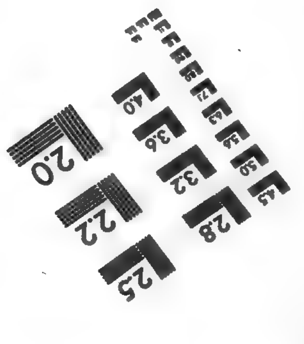
4.0
3.6
2.0
3.2
2.2
2.8
2.5

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century
A&P
1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119



2.0
4.0
2.2
3.6
2.5
3.2
2.8



4.0
3.6
2.0
3.2
2.2
2.8
2.5

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

4.5 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

3.5 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

3.0 mm

TROY, N. Y.
TIMES RECORD
Circ. D. 41,000

JUL 1 8 1958

Boston Symphony To Offer Brahms Concert On WFLY

Listeners of WFLY, FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will again hear the music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra tomorrow from 8:30 to 10.30 p.m.

This concert, with Charles Munch as music director, will be the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The concert will feature Brahms music and some 70 members of the orchestra will journey from Boston to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood.

TROY, N. Y.
TIMES RECORD
Circ. D. 41,000

2 5 1958

Boston Symphony Concert On WFLY Tomorrow Night

Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will bring the Boston Symphony Orchestra from Tanglewood tomorrow at 8:30 p.m.

The works of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky will be featured at the fourth weekend concert from the famed Music Shed at Lenox, Mass.

Dr. Charles Munch, the conductor, will open with Stravinsky's "Canticum Sacrum" which was presented last season for the first time at Tanglewood.

The soloists in this composition will be Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, baritone, who will be supported by the Festival Chorus.

Byron Janis will be soloist in Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3. He appeared with the orchestra and recorded it.

The two-hour concert will close with Debussy's "La Mer."

TROY, N.Y.
TIMES RECORD
D. 40.593

AUG 1 1958

Boston Symphony Will Be Carried On Station WFLY

Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will bring tomorrow night Boston Symphony Orchestra's concert of Wagner music. The WFLY listeners will hear the complete concert from Tanglewood beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Charles Munch will open the program with Wagner's Overture and Bacchale from Tannhauser. Leonard Pennario, pianist, will be heard in the Liszt First Piano Concerto.

Following the intermission, Dr. Munch will conduct Vaughan Williams' Symphony No. 8 which will be receiving its first Tanglewood performance. The two-hour concert will close with Siegfried's Rhine Journey from Gotterdammerung.

ROME, N. Y.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 17,143

AUG 9 1958

Weekend R

By MARGARET McCARTHY

Bob Crosby's guest stars on the colorcast on Channels 3 and 13 tonight at 8 will be the singing Andrews Sisters, Edgar Bergen with "friends" Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd, and young vocalist George Hamilton IV.

8:30 — Boston Symphony: The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Pierre Monteux will present a program of Beethoven music. Berl Senofsky will be violin soloist in the Beethoven Violin Concerto. This is the final program from the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. WRUN-FM-106.

Stev
on t Cha.
2
Yan
WR 7 jure eye con hav
in Pro
Sh
sta

NEW YORK, N. Y.
AGE
W 24 475

JUL [illegible] 1958

Boston Symphony Back On Airwaves

The Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts return to WQXR airwaves, Saturday at 8:30 p.m. when the first of six programs from Berkshire Music Festival are heard. Charles Munch conducts and Martin Bookspan broadcasts interviews during the intermission.

The first program features Lucas Foss, pianist, in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor and "Art of the Fugue." Other artists to be heard on future programs include baritone Donald Gramm, soprano Hilde Gueden, pianist Seymour Lipkin and pianist Byron Janis.

TROY, N.Y.
RECORD
D. 6.681

AUG 8 1958

Symphony. To Conclude Lenox Season

Listeners of Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will hear the music of Beethoven tomorrow night from Tanglewood.

Boston Symphony Orchestra will play its last concert of the season at Lenox, Mass., beginning at 8:30 p.m. The complete concert is being transmitted to WFLY by WQXR, the FM station of The New York Times.

The concert, conducted by Pierre Monteux, will open with music from Prometheus by Beethoven. Berl Senofsky will be soloist in the Beethoven Violin Concerto.

Mr. Senofsky was the winner of the 1955 Brussels Competition and has appeared with many of the outstanding American orchestras since his U. S. debut in 1956. This will be his first appearance with the Boston Symphony.

In the second half of the program Mr. Monteux will present Hindemith's Noblissima Visione and Beethoven's Leonore Overture No. 3.

ROME, N. Y.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 17,143

JUL 26 1958

Weekend Ra

By MARGARET McCARTHY

The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch will present a concert of the works of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky, from the Berkshire Festival, over WRUN - FM - 106, tonight at 8:30. Byron Janis will be soloist in Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3.

ers, i
Bobby
all - Frisco
tet, c singer
The 13 at Benne
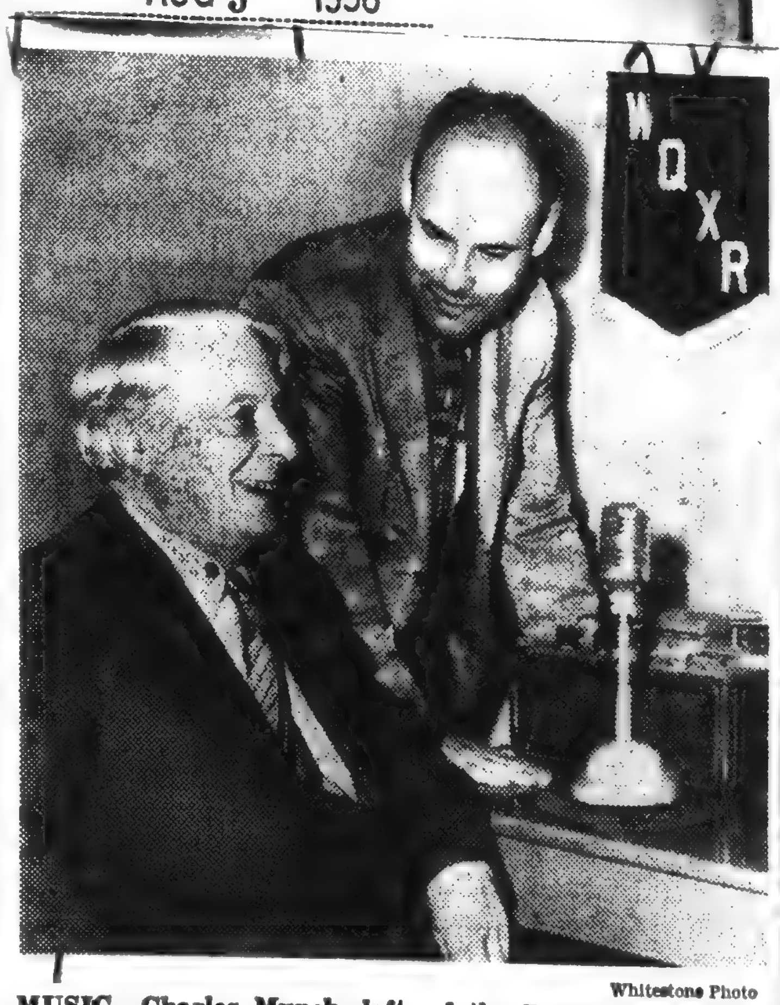
Brack

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

AUG 3 1958



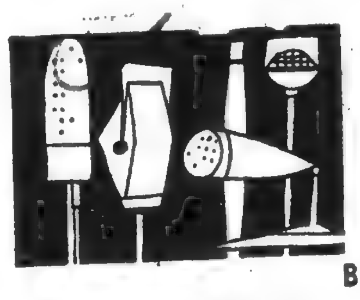
Whitestone Photo

MUSIC—Charles Munch, left, of the Boston Symphony, and Martin Bookspan, of radio station WQXR, prepare to broadcast a Tanglewood concert, Saturday, 8:30 P.M.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 66,613

AUG 3 1958



TURNING the DIALS

By FRED H. RUSSELL

Leading U.S. educators will assay the present state of the nation's schools in a series of four weekly NBC radio broadcasts to be presented in cooperation with the National Education Association on successive Wednesday nights, from 10 to 10:30 o'clock, starting this week. The title of the series will be "A Hard Look at U.S. Schools." Dr. James B. Conant, former president of Harvard University and former U.S. ambassador to West Germany, will take part in the first broadcast, "Are We Providing Talented Children With the Education for Leadership?"

Dr. Conant, who is currently director of the Study of the American High School (project financed by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York under the auspicies of the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N. J.), will discuss the question with Dr. Morris Meister, president of Bronx Community College, and Martha A. Shull, past president of the National Educational Association, and a teacher of high school English in Portland, Ore. Ben Grauer will be moderator.

Topics for subsequent weeks will be "Are We Preparing Our Children for Tomorrow's World." Aug. 13; "How Much Should a Good School Cost?" Aug. 20; and "What Is a Good Teacher?" Aug. 27.

Seven Concerts

Seven European music festival concerts will be broadcast over WQXR in the Saturday night, 8:30 to 10:30 o'clock periods following the conclusion of the Boston Symphony orchestra concerts from Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., next Saturday night. Among the festavals to be represented, beginning Aug. 16, will be the Strasbourgh and Aix-en-Provence Festovals in France, the Lucerne Festival in Switzerland, Scotland's Edinburgh Festival, and others. The special arrangements were made by WQXR earlier in the summer and the tapes are flown to New York as each concert takes place.

The first two programs to be broadcast on Aug. 16 and 23, will be from the Strasbourg Festival in France. They will be the concerts which were played at the Palais des Fetes by the French National Radio orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch. Isaac Stern will be heard as violin soloist on the Aug. 16 performances of the Bach "Violin Concerto No. 1," and the Prokofiev "Violin Concerto No. 1" This program will also present the Schmitt "Symphony No. 2" which had its premiere performance at a concert at Strasbourg.

Guest Book

Evelyn Rokus will be on hand Tuesday to warn Lydia Wells and her "Town Topics" program listeners that the huricane season is at hand once more. For her appearance on the 11 A. M., program over WNAB, she will discuss "Hurricane Hints."

Scheduled for the remainder of the week are:

Monday—An Apprentice at American Shakespeare Festival theater, Raymond Saint Jacques.

Wednesday — "Triple Play," Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy.

Thursday — "Tender, Loving Care, Mrs. Vincent Gorman.

Friday—Crime in Jordan, Lieutenant Fawzi El Faris.

Catholic Report

A documentary report of the recent symposium on the Catholic contribution to American intellectual life, conducted at Rosary College, River Forest, Ill., will be presented by the "Catholic Hour" on NBC radio on the five Sundays in August at 2:30 p. m. Host for the series, tape-recorded at the symposium, will be Dr. Jerome Kerwin, professor of political science, University of Chicago.

The Rev. Benedict Ashley, O. P., professor of philosophy, Dominican House of Studies, River Forest, will speak on "Philosophy" today. George N. Shuster, president of Hunter College, New York City, will report on "Education," Aug. 10 Caroline Gordon Tate, critics, educator and novelist, will consider "The Humanities" and Dr. James A. Reyniers, director of Lobund Innstitute, Notre Dame University, "The Biological Sciences," both on Aug. 17. Dr. Karl Stern, psychiatrist-in-chief, St. Mary's hospital, Montreal, will give "A Foreign View" Aug. 24. The Rev. Joseph H. Fichter, S. J., head of the department of sociology, Loyola University of the South, New Orleans, will view "The Social Studies" on Aug. 31.

New Radio Series

"International Bandstand," a new series of programs featuring outstanding orchestras from overseas, will be presented on NBC radio Monday nights from 10:05 to 10:30 o'clock, beginning tomorrow.

Ted Heath and his world famous orchestra, from London, will entertain during August. Subsequent programs will feature Ed Sauter and his orchestra, from Baden, where Sauter supervises the Jazz department of Southwest German Radio. Music by leading orchestras in Sweden, Greec and Japan will be presented later in the series.

"International Bandstand" will replace "Classical Music for People Who Hate Classical Music."

Sharbutt Signed

Del Sharbutt, natinally known radio and television personality has been signed to conduct his own program on Wabc radio beginning Monday, Aug. 18. The program, i combination of recorded music and informal talk will be heard Mondays through Friday from 4 to 6:30 p. m. and Soturday, 4 to 7 p. m.

Sharbutt is known for his work on such programs as "The Bob Hope Show," Bob Crosby's "Club 15," in which he served os co-host and commercial spokesman; the perennial "Hit Parade" and "Amos 'n' Andy" and the "Jim Backus Show," formerly heard on ABC radio.

"The signing of Sharbutt," according to Ben Hoberman, WABC general manager, "completes the first phase of a distinctive professional personality lineup for WABC."

Friendship Sunday

Today is Friendship Sunday, and Ruth Steinkraus makes the most of it by pointing up famous musicians' friendships on her "Music for a Sunday Evening" tonight at 8 o'clock over WICC.

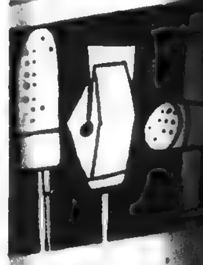
One of the most storied friendships was that of Mozart and the much older Hadyn, whom the former called "Papa." Miss Steinkraus will play one of the string quartets ozart wrote for him. And she will also offer the duo for viola and violin which Michael Haydn was too ill to write and which Mozart composed and signed under Haydn's name. This will be done by William Primose and Jascha Heifetz.

Schubert had many friends and one of his duets, "Our Friendship is Eternal," was for piano hands intertwined. Miss Steinkraus will play the recording by Paul Badura-Skoda and George Demus.

Other friendships to be spotlighted will be that of Brahms and his discoverer Schumann, of Liszt and Wagner, and of Brahms and Dvorak. Also to be represented by selections will be Samel Barber and Gian-Carlo Menotti, and Vaughan Williams and Gustave Holst.

Sunday
BRIDGEPO
Indep
Circ.

JUN 29



The Bosto
rn to WQX pproximately om the Berksh enox, Mass., ill bring listene
e Theater Conc unch will cond entator Marti on interviews val.

Quest soloists f
ts will be Luk ur Lipkin and nists; Hilde Gue
nd Donald Gram
sical highlight
th and all-Moza
nd performance
A German Requi
achmaninoff "Pian
o. 3."

The opening bro
urday will origin
Theater Conce
Munch will conduc in performances
"Piano Concerto
Foss as soloist, and Art of the Fugue."

WQXR listeners
urday night concer ton Symphony orc from Symphony Ha for the first tim 1957-58 season. Th were followed by broadcasts of the concerts, also fro series ended last

Three New Mus

Talented young join forces with A
and his orchestr
Ross to provide music and poetry programs to be roadio on Monda and Fridays, respe
to 9 p.m. effective

"Burt and Gloria
tomorrow will featu
lor and Gloria Lam vocalists. Miss made many telev
ances in Canada w
fame as a singer
Taylor, a baritone,
in night clubs b
in Canada.

"Mood Piece,"
will present, in Antonini's music
the veteran Ross poetry. Each week
will also feature
strumentalist, with classical alto-saxo heard this week.
vocalist.

On Friday, "The offers Carol Hugh Allen, vocalists, chestral backg
Hughes, a former has been seen on ion programs and records to her cr

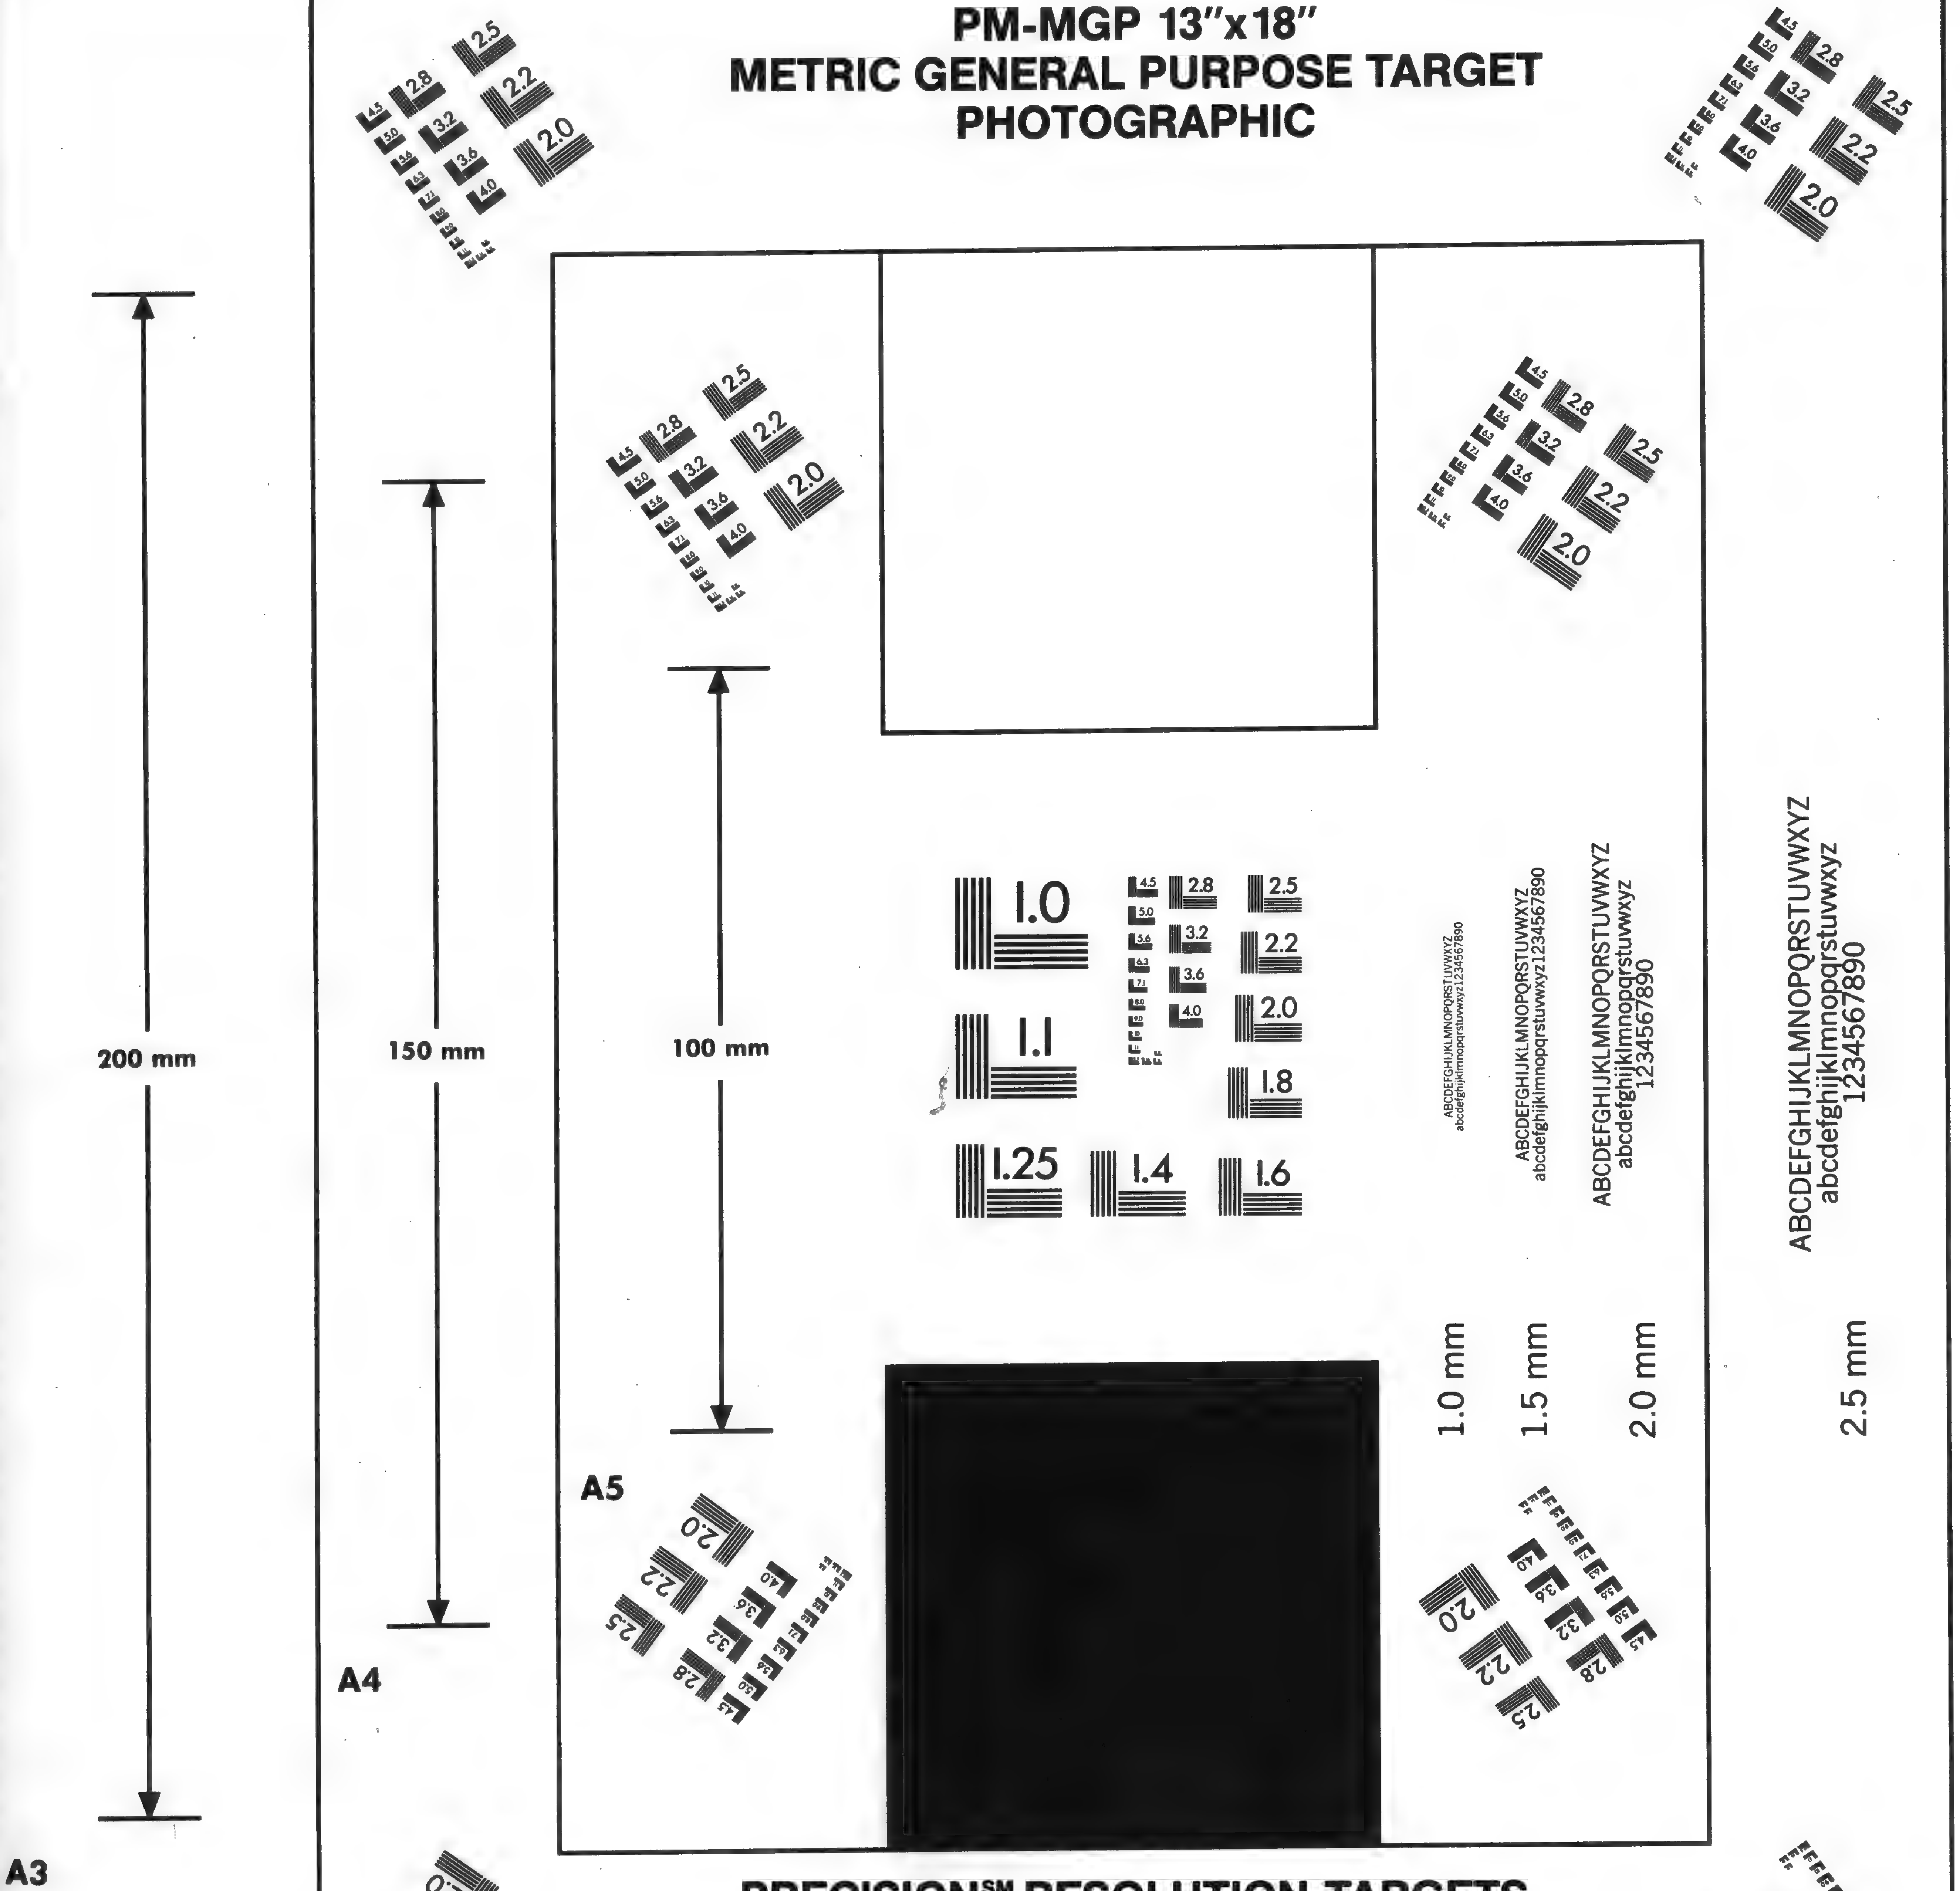
News

REDUCTION
RATIO
14x

PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC



2.5
2.8
2.2
4.5
5.0
3.2
2.0
3.6
4.0
1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
200 mm
150 mm
100 mm
A3
A4
A5
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890
1.0 mm
1.5 mm
2.0 mm
2.5 mm

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century
A&P
1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119

TROY, N. Y.
TIMES RECORD
Circ. D. 41,000

JUL 18 1958

Boston Symphony To Offer Brahms Concert On WFLY

Listeners of WFLY, FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will again hear the music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra tomorrow from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m.

This concert, with Charles Munch as music director, will be the first of four weekends of Berkshire Festival concerts by the full orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

The concert will feature Brahms music and some 70 members of the orchestra will journey from Boston to join their 35 colleagues already at Tanglewood.

TROY, N. Y.
TIMES RECORD
Circ. D. 41,000

JUL 25 1958

Boston Symphony Concert On WFLY Tomorrow Night

Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will bring the Boston Symphony Orchestra from Tanglewood tomorrow at 8:30 p.m.

The works of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky will be featured at the fourth weekend concert from the famed Music Shed at Lenox, Mass.

Dr. Charles Munch, the conductor, will open with Stravinsky's "Canticum Sacrum" which was presented last season for the first time at Tanglewood.

The soloists in this composition will be Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, baritone, who will be supported by the Festival Chorus.

Byron Janis will be soloist in Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3. He appeared with the orchestra and recorded it.

The two-hour concert will close with Debussy's "La Mer."

TROY, N.Y.
TIMES RECORD
D. 40,593

AUG 1 1958

Boston Symphony Will Be Carried On Station WFLY

Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will bring tomorrow night Boston Symphony Orchestra's concert of Wagner music. The WFLY listeners will hear the complete concert from Tanglewood beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Charles Munch will open the program with Wagner's Overture and Bacchale from Tannhauser. Leonard Pennario, pianist, will be heard in the Liszt First Piano Concerto.

Following the intermission, Dr. Munch will conduct Vaughan Williams' Symphony No. 8 which will be receiving its first Tanglewood performance. The two-hour concert will close with Siegfried's Rhine Journey from Gotterdammerung.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
AGE
W. 24.475

JUL 5 1958

Boston Symphony Back On Airwaves

The Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts return to WQXR airwaves, Saturday at 8:30 p.m. when the first of six programs from Berkshire Music Festival are heard. Charles Munch conducts and Martin Bookspan broadcasts interviews during the intermission.

The first program features Lucas Foss, pianist, in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor and "Art of the Fugue." Other artists to be heard on future programs include baritone Donald Gramm, soprano Hilde Gueden, pianist Seymour Lipkin and pianist Byron Janis.

TROY, N.Y.
RECORD
D. 6,681

AUG 8 1958

Symphony. To Conclude Lenox Season

Listeners of Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will hear the music of Beethoven tomorrow night from Tanglewood.

Boston Symphony Orchestra will play its last concert of the season at Lenox, Mass., beginning at 8:30 p.m. The complete concert is being transmitted to WFLY by WQXR, the FM station of The New York Times.

The concert, conducted by Pierre Monteux, will open with music from Prometheus by Beethoven. Berl Senofsky will be soloist in the Beethoven Violin Concerto.

Mr. Senofsky was the winner of the 1955 Brussels Competition and has appeared with many of the outstanding American orchestras since his U. S. debut in 1956. This will be his first appearance with the Boston Symphony.

In the second half of the program Mr. Monteux will present Hindemith's Noblissima Visione and Beethoven's Leonore Overture No. 3.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

AUG 3 1958

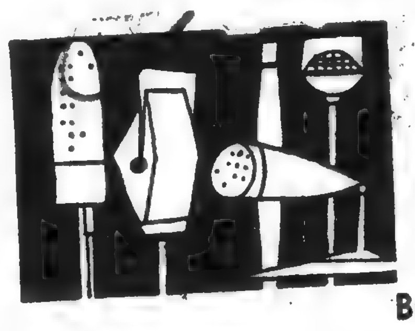
Whitestone Photo

MUSIC—Charles Munch, left, of the Boston Symphony, and Martin Bookspan, of radio station WQXR, prepare to broadcast a Tanglewood concert, Saturday, 8:30 P.M.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 66,613

AUG 3 1958



TURNING the DIALS

By FRED H. RUSSELL

Leading U.S. educators will assay the present state of the nation's schools in a series of four weekly NBC radio broadcasts to be presented in cooperation with the National Education Association on successive Wednesday nights, from 10 to 10:30 o'clock, starting this week. The title of the series will be "A Hard Look at U.S. Schools." Dr. James B. Conant, former president of Harvard University and former U.S. ambassador to West Germany, will take part in the first broadcast, "Are We Providing Talented Children With the Education for Leadership?"

Dr. Conant, who is currently director of the Study of the American High School (project financed by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York under the auspicies of the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N. J.), will discuss the question with Dr. Morris Meister, president of Bronx Community College, and Martha A. Shull, past president of the National Educational Association, and a teacher of high school English in Portland, Ore. Ben Grauer will be moderator.

Topics for subsequent weeks will be "Are We Preparing Our Children for Tomorrow's World." Aug. 13; "How Much Should a Good School Cost?" Aug. 20; and "What Is a Good Teacher?" Aug. 27.

Seven Concerts

Seven European music festival concerts will be broadcast over WQXR in the Saturday night, 8:30 to 10:30 o'clock periods following the conclusion of the Boston Symphony orchestra concerts from Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., next Saturday night. Among the festavals to be represented, beginning Aug. 16, will be the Strasbourgh and Aix-en-Provence Festovals in France, the Lucerne Festival in Switzerland, Scotland's Edinburgh Festival, and others. The special arrangements were made by WQXR earlier in the summer and the tapes are flown to New York as each concert takes place.

The first two programs to be broadcast on Aug. 16 and 23, will be from the Strasbourg Festival in France. They will be the concerts which were played at the Palais des Fetes by the French National Radio orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch. Isaac Stern will be heard as violin soloist on the Aug. 16 performances of the Bach "Violin Concerto No. 1," and the Prokofiev "Violin Concerto No. 1" This program will also present the Schmitt "Symphony No. 2" which had its premiere performance at a concert at Strasbourg.

Guest Book

Evelyn Rokus will be on hand Tuesday to warn Lydia Wells and her "Town Topics" program listeners that the huricane season is at hand once more. For her appearance on the 11 A. M., program over WNAB, she will discuss "Hurricane Hints."

Scheduled for the remainder of the week are:

Monday—An Apprentice at American Shakespeare Festival theater, Raymond Saint Jacques.

Wednesday — "Triple Play," Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy.

Thursday — "Tender, Loving Care, Mrs. Vincent Gorman.

Friday—Crime in Jordan, Lieutenant Fawzi El Faris.

Catholic Report

A documentary report of the recent symposium on the Catholic contribution to American intellectual life, conducted at Rosary College, River Forest, Ill., will be presented by the "Catholic Hour" on NBC radio on the five Sundays in August at 2:30 p. m. Host for the series, tape-recorded at the symposium, will be Dr. Jerome Kerwin, professor of political science, University of Chicago.

The Rev. Benedict Ashley, O. P., professor of philosophy, Dominican House of Studies, River Forest, will speak on "Philosophy" today. George N. Shuster, president of Hunter College, New York City, will report on "Education," Aug. 10 Caroline Gordon Tate, critics, educator and novelist, will consider "The Humanities" and Dr. James A. Reyniers, director of Lobund Innstitute, Notre Dame University, "The Biological Sciences," both on Aug. 17. Dr. Karl Stern, psychiatrist-in-chief, St. Mary's hospital, Montreal, will give "A Foreign View" Aug. 24. The Rev. Joseph H. Fichter, S. J., head of the department of sociology, Loyola University of the South, New Orleans, will view "The Social Studies" on Aug. 31.

New Radio Series

"International Bandstand," a new series of programs featuring outstanding orchestras from overseas, will be presented on NBC radio Monday nights from 10:05 to 10:30 o'clock, beginning tomorrow.

Ted Heath and his world famous orchestra, from London, will entertain during August. Subsequent programs will feature Ed Sauter and his orchestra, from Baden, where Sauter supervises the Jazz department of Southwest German Radio. Music by leading orchestras in Sweden, Greec and Japan will be presented later in the series.

"International Bandstand" will replace "Classical Music for People Who Hate Classical Music."

Sharbutt Signed

ROME, N. Y.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 17,143

AUG 9 1958

Weekend Ra

By MARGARET McCARTHY

Bob Crosby's guest stars on the colorcast on Channels 3 and 13 tonight at 8 will be the singing Andrews Sisters, Edgar Bergen with "friends" Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd, and young vocalist George Hamilton IV.

8:30 — Boston Symphony: The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Pierre Monteux will present a program of Beethoven music. Berl Senofsky will be violin soloist in the Beethoven Violin Concerto. This is the final program from the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. WRUN-FM-106.

Stev
on Cha

2
Yan
WRU

7 jure
eye con
hav
in Pro
She
sta

ROME, N. Y.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 17,143

JUL 26 1958

Weekend Ra

By MARGARET McCARTHY

The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch will present a concert of the works of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky, from the Berkshire Festival, over WRUN - FM - 106, tonight at 8:30. Byron Janis will be soloist in Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3.

ers, i
Bobby
all -
Frise
tet, c
singer

The 13 at Benne
Brack

Sund
BRIDGE
Inde
Circ

JUN 2

The Bo
to WQ oximate the B ox, Mass
bring li Theater
ch will ator M intervi

st soloi will be Lipkin
sts; Hild
Donald cal high and al perform
German maninoff
3."

he opening day will heater C Munch will co performance
"Piano Conce
Foss as soloist
Art of the Fug

WQXR liste urday night ton Symphony from Sympho for the first 1957-58 season were followed broadcasts of concerts, also series ended

Three New

Talented yo join forces wi and his orch
Ross to provid music and po programs to roadio on Mo and Fridays, to 9 p.m. eff

"Burt and tomorrow will lor and Glori vocalists. M made many ances in Can fame as a sin
Taylor, a bari in night club
in Canada.

"Mood Pie
will present, Antonini's
the veteran poetry. Each will also fea strumentalist classical alto heard this we vocalist.

On Friday,
offers Carol Allen, vocali chestral b a Hughes, a fo has been see ion programs records to who will be supported by the Festival Chorus.

Byron Janis will be soloist

TROY, N.Y.
TIMES RECORD
D. 40 593

AUG 1 1958

Boston Symphony Will Be Carried On Station WFLY

Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will bring tomorrow night Boston Symphony Orchestra's concert of Wagner music. The WFLY listeners will hear the complete concert from Tanglewood beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Charles Munch will open the program with Wagner's Overture and Bacchale from Tannhauser. Leonard Pennario, pianist, will be heard in the Liszt First Piano Concerto.

Following the intermission, Dr. Munch will conduct Vaughan Williams' Symphony No. 8 which will be receiving its first Tanglewood performance. The two-hour concert will close with Siegfried's Rhine Journey from Gotterdammerung.

ROME, N. Y.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 17,143

AUG 9 1958

Weekend R

By MARGARET McCARTHY

Bob Crosby's guest stars on the colorcast on Channels 3 and 13 tonight at 8 will be the singing Andrews Sisters, Edgar Bergen with "friends" Charlie McCarthy and Mortimer Snerd, and young vocalist George Hamilton IV.

8:30 — Boston Symphony: The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Pierre Monteux will present a program of Beethoven music. Berl Senofsky will be violin soloist in the Beethoven Violin Concerto. This is the final program from the Music Shed at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. WRUN-FM-106

Stev
on t Cha

2
Yan
WR

7 jure
eye con
hav
in Pro
She
sta

To Conclude Lenox Season

Listeners of Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers, will hear the music of Beethoven tomorrow night from Tanglewood.

Boston Symphony Orchestra will play its last concert of the season at Lenox, Mass., beginning at 8:30 p.m. The complete concert is being transmitted to WFLY by WQXR, the FM station of The New York Times.

The concert, conducted by Pierre Monteux, will open with music from Prometheus by Beethoven. Berl Senofsky will be soloist in the Beethoven Violin Concerto.

Mr. Senofsky was the winner of the 1955 Brussels Competition and has appeared with many of the outstanding American orchestras since his U. S. debut in 1956. This will be his first appearance with the Boston Symphony.

In the second half of the program Mr. Monteux will present Hindemith's Noblissima Visione and Beethoven's Leonore Overture No. 3.

ROME, N. Y.
SENTINEL
Circ. D. 17,143

JUL 26 1958

Weekend Ra

By MARGARET McCARTHY

The Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch will present a concert of the works of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky, from the Berkshire Festival, over WRUN - FM - 106, tonight at 8:30. Byron Janis will be soloist in Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3.

ers, i
Bobby
all - Frisc
tet, c
singer

The 13 at Benne
Brack

---

the DIALS

By FRED H. RUSSELL

Leading U.S. educators will assay the present state of the nation's schools in a series of four weekly NBC radio broadcasts to be presented in cooperation with the National Education Association on successive Wednesday nights, from 10 to 10:30 o'clock, starting this week. The title of the series will be "A Hard Look at U.S. Schools." Dr. James B. Conant, former president of Harvard University and former U.S. ambassador to West Germany, will take part in the first broadcast, "Are We Providing Talented Children With the Education for Leadership?"

Dr. Conant, who is currently director of the Study of the American High School (project financed by a grant from Carnegie Corporation of New York under the auspicies of the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, N. J.), will discuss the question with Dr. Morris Meister, president of Bronx Community College, and Martha A. Shull, past president of the National Educational Association, and a teacher of high school English in Portland, Ore. Ben Grauer will be moderator.

Topics for subsequent weeks will be "Are We Preparing Our Children for Tomorrow's World." Aug. 13; "How Much Should a Good School Cost?" Aug. 20; and "What Is a Good Teacher?" Aug. 27.

Seven Concerts

Seven European music festival concerts will be broadcast over WQXR in the Saturday night, 8:30 to 10:30 o'clock periods following the conclusion of the Boston Symphony orchestra concerts from Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., next Saturday night. Among the festavals to be represented, beginning Aug. 16, will be the Strasbourgh and Aix-en-Provence Festovals in France, the Lucerne Festival in Switzerland, Scotland's Edinburgh Festival, and others. The special arrangements were made by WQXR earlier in the summer and the tapes are flown to New York as each concert takes place.

The first two programs to be broadcast on Aug. 16 and 23, will be from the Strasbourg Festival in France. They will be the concerts which were played at the Palais des Fetes by the French National Radio orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch. Isaac Stern will be heard as violin soloist on the Aug. 16 performances of the Bach "Violin Concerto No. 1," and the Prokofiev "Violin Concerto No. 1" This program will also present the Schmitt "Symphony No. 2" which had its premiere performance at a concert at Strasbourg.

Guest Book

Evelyn Rokus will be on hand Tuesday to warn Lydia Wells and her "Town Topics" program listeners that the huricane season is at hand once more. For her appearance on the 11 A. M., program over WNAB, she will discuss "Hurricane Hints."

Scheduled for the remainder of the week are:

Monday—An Apprentice at American Shakespeare Festival theater, Raymond Saint Jacques.

Wednesday — "Triple Play," Hume Cronyn and Jessica Tandy.

Thursday — "Tender, Loving Care, Mrs. Vincent Gorman.

Friday—Crime in Jordan, Lieutenant Fawzi El Faris.

Catholic Report

A documentary report of the recent symposium on the Catholic contribution to American intellectual life, conducted at Rosary College, River Forest, Ill., will be presented by the "Catholic Hour" on NBC radio on the five Sundays in August at 2:30 p. m. Host for the series, tape-recorded at the symposium, will be Dr. Jerome Kerwin, professor of political science, University of Chicago.

The Rev. Benedict Ashley, O. P., professor of philosophy, Dominican House of Studies, River Forest, will speak on "Philosophy" today. George N. Shuster, president of Hunter College, New York City, will report on "Education," Aug. 10 Caroline Gordon Tate, critics, educator and novelist, will consider "The Humanities" and Dr. James A. Reyniers, director of Lobund Innstitute, Notre Dame University, "The Biological Sciences," both on Aug. 17. Dr. Karl Stern, psychiatrist-in-chief, St. Mary's hospital, Montreal, will give "A Foreign View" Aug. 24. The Rev. Joseph H. Fichter, S. J., head of the department of sociology, Loyola University of the South, New Orleans, will view "The Social Studies" on Aug. 31.

New Radio Series

"International Bandstand," a new series of programs featuring outstanding orchestras from overseas, will be presented on NBC radio Monday nights from 10:05 to 10:30 o'clock, beginning tomorrow.

Ted Heath and his world famous orchestra, from London, will entertain during August. Subsequent programs will feature Ed Sauter and his orchestra, from Baden, where Sauter supervises the Jazz department of Southwest German Radio. Music by leading orchestras in Sweden, Greec and Japan will be presented later in the series.

"International Bandstand" will replace "Classical Music for People Who Hate Classical Music."

Sharbutt Signed

Del Sharbutt, natinally known radio and television personality has been signed to conduct his own program on Wabc radio beginning Monday, Aug. 18. The program, i combination of recorded music and informal talk will be heard Mondays through Friday from 4 to 6:30 p. m. and Soturday, 4 to 7 p. m.

Sharbutt is known for his work on such programs as "The Bob Hope Show," Bob Crosby's "Club 15," in which he served os co-host and commercial spokesman; the perennial "Hit Parade" and "Amos 'n' Andy" and the "Jim Backus Show," formerly heard on ABC radio.

"The signing of Sharbutt," according to Ben Hoberman, WABC general manager, "completes the first phase of a distinctive professional personality lineup for WABC."

Friendship Sunday

Today is Friendship Sunday, and Ruth Steinkraus makes the most of it by pointing up famous musicians' friendships on her "Music for a Sunday Evening" tonight at 8 o'clock over WICC.

One of the most storied friendships was that of Mozart and the much older Hadyn, whom the former called "Papa." Miss Steinkraus will play one of the string quartets ozart wrote for him. And she will also offer the duo for viola and violin which Michael Haydn was too ill to write and which Mozart composed and signed under Haydn's name. This will be done by William Primose and Jascha Heifetz.

Schubert had many friends and one of his duets, "Our Friendship is Eternal," was for piano hands intertwined. Miss Steinkraus will play the recording by Paul Badura-Skoda and George Demus.

Other friendships to be spotlighted will be that of Brahms and his discoverer Schumann, of Liszt and Wagner, and of Brahms and Dvorak. Also to be represented by selections will be Samel Barber and Gian-Carlo Menotti, and Vaughan Williams and Gustave Holst.

---

broadca concerts, also from series ended last

Three New Musi Talented young pe join forces with Alf
and his orchestra,
Ross to provide ea
music and poetry programs to be h
roadio on Monday and Fridays, respec
to 9 p.m. effective

"Burt and Gloria
tomorrow will featu
lor and Gloria La vocalists. Miss I made many televi
ances in Canada w
fame as a singer o
Taylor, a baritone,
in night clubs bo
in Canada.

"Mood Piece,"
will present, in Antonini's musica
the veteran Ross i poetry. Each week will also feature a strumentalist, with classical alto-saxop heard this week. L
vocalist.

On Friday, "The offers Carol Hughe
Allen, vocalists, a chestral backgr
Hughes, a former
has been seen on on programs and h records to her cr

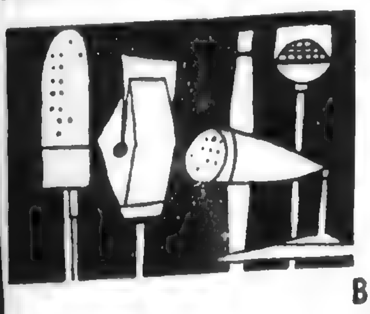
News

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 66,613

JUN 29 1958



TURNING the DIALS

By FRED H. RUSSELL

The Boston Symphony orchestra concerts will return to WQXR airwaves next Saturday, from 8:30 to approximately 10:30 p.m., when the first of six programs from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., will be broadcast. WQXR's weekly pickup will bring listeners the complete concert originating from the Theater Concert Hall or from "The Shed." Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra, and WQXR's commentator Martin Bookspan will be broadcasting intermission interviews and descriptions of the activities at the festival.

Guest soloists for the July concerts will be Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin and Byron Janis, pianists; Hilde Gueden, soprano; and Donald Gramm, baritone. Musical highlights will be all-Bach and all-Mozart programs, and performances of Brahms' "A German Requiem" and the Rachmaninoff "Piano Concerto No. 3."

The opening broadcast on Saturday will originate from the Theater Concert Hall where Munch will conduct the orchestra in performances of the Bach "Piano Concerto No. 1," with Foss as soloist, and Bach's "The Art of the Fugue."

WQXR listeners heard the Saturday night concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra direct from Symphony Hall in Boston for the first time during the 1957-58 season. These programs were followed by the weekly broadcasts of the Boston "Pops" concerts, also from Boston. This series ended last night.

Three New Musicals

Talented young performers will join forces with Alfredo Antonini and his orchestra, and David Ross to provide easy-on-the-ears music and poetry in three new programs to be heard on CBS roadio on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, respectively at 8:35 to 9 p.m. effective tomorrow.

"Burt and Gloria," premiering tomorrow will feature Burt Taylor and Gloria Lambert, young vocalists. Miss Lambert has made many television appearances in Canada where she won fame as a singer of pop ballads. Taylor, a baritone, is a favorite in night clubs both here and in Canada.

"Mood Piece," on Tuesday, will present, in addition to Antonini's musical offerings, the veteran Ross in readings of poetry. Each week the program will also feature a different instrumentalist, with Jimmy Abato, classical alto-saxophonist, to be heard this week. Lois Winters is vocalist.

On Friday, "The Light Touch" offers Carol Hughes and David Allen, vocalists, against an orchestral background. Miss Hughes, a former child prodigy, has been seen on many television programs and has several hit records to her credit. Allen, a ballad specialist, has sung with top bands, has appeared in night clubs and on television shows.

In addition to these new programs, CBS radio's "Summer in St. Louis" moves from its present Saturday nightime spots to Wednesday at 8:35 p.m., effective Wednesday. Also, the "Stuart Foster Show" will be heard Thursdays at 8:35 p.m.

The shows will fill the time spot occupied by "The Rusty Draper Show which takes a summer vacation and returns to the air on Sept. 29.

Literature Series

New York University in association with WMCA will present a summer literature series Sunday nights at 8:05 o'clock, beginning July 6. The program will be an extension of the past season's series entitled "America's Literary Heritage."

Host for the series will be Dr. Theodore Ehrsam, associate professor of general literature at New York University. He will provide an interpretation of modern American culture as reflected in the writings of some of the nation's outstanding novelists, playwrights and poets. This summer he will discuss the lives and works of such authors as William Faulkner, Thornton Wilder, Thomas Wolfe, Edgar Lee Masters, Willa Cather, Theodore Dreiser, Frank Norris, and James T. Farrell.

TROY, N. Y.
TIMES RECORD
Circ. D. 40,593

JUL 12 1958

Boston Symphony Presents Mozart Tonight On WFLY

This evening on WFLY-FM, the Boston Symphony will present an all-Mozart concert, the second in a series of six, broadcast live from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass.

This broadcast received from WQXR in New York City will bring WFLY-FM listeners the complete concert originating from the Theater Concert Hall or "The Shed" from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra and WQXR's commentator Martin Bookspan will be broadcasting intermission interviews.

The program will open with the Serenade for String Orchesta, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists Seymour Lupkin and Lukas Foss (also both members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty) will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361 and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

AUBURN, ALA.
LEE CO. BULLETIN
Circ. W. 2,170

JUL 10 1958

Symphony Performance To Be Televised Here

The Boston Symphony orchestra will make its second television appearance nationally Friday, July 18th, at 7:30 p. m. and can be seen locally over channel 7.

Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Symphony will perform the "Mother Goose Suite" by Ravel, Ibert's Chamber Concertino, and Ballade for Orchestra by Tomasi.

Second half of the telecast will present Symphony Number 4 in A, Opus 90 ("The Italian"), by Mendelssohn.

Appearance of the Boston Symphony on ETV channels marks the first time one of the nation's major orchestras can be appreciated across the United States by a vast audience who enjoy classical music.

DENVER, COLO.
POST
Circ. D. 254,120 - S. 350,439

JUL 17 1958

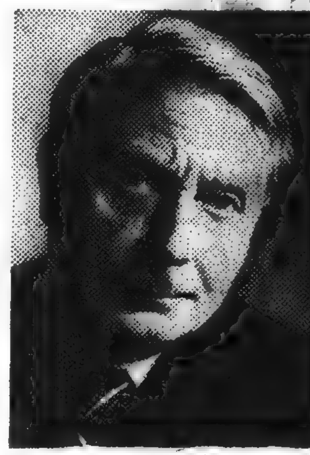
ON THE AIR

With THOMPSON R. WATT
Denver Post Radio and Television Editor

ETV Station to Telecast BostonSymphonyConcert

KRMA-TV tonight will present the second in a series of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, made available through an exchange of educational television programs.

The 88-minute film is to begin at 7:30.



Charles Munch

Conductor Charles Munch and the orchestra open the concert with the "Mother Goose Suite" by Ravel. Featured also in the first portion will be works by Ibert and Tomasi. After a brief intermission, Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4 is to be presented.

The first in the series of Boston Symphony concerts was seen over KRMA-TV in April.

KRMA-TV has rescheduled for a week from tonight the memorable hour-long debate on fallout and disarmament between Drs. Linus Pauling and Edward Teller.

The debate made front page news when it was staged in San Francisco in the spring.

* * *

TROY, N.Y.
RECORD
D. 6.681

JUL 4 1958

Berkshire Music Festival On WFLY

The first of six programs from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood will be broadcast tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. by Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers. The Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts will be received from Station WQXR in New York City.

Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra and Martin Bookspan will broadcast intermission interviews and descriptions of the activities from "The Shed."

The first broadcast from Tanglewood will include the performances of the Bach Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, with Lukas Foss as soloist, and Bach's The Art of the Fugue.

Station WFLY listeners heard the Saturday night concerts of the Boston Symphony direct from Boston for the first time earlier this year. These programs were followed by weekly broadcasts of the ton Pops concerts from Bo The pops series ended Jur

---

Live Broadcasts From Tanglewood Planned by WQXR

NEW YORK — Nine concerts of the Boston "Pops" Orchestra and six concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for the Berkshire Music Festival in Tanglewood, Mass., will be broadcast live to New Yorkers over radio station WQXR from May 3 through Aug. 9.

Elliott M. Sanger, executive vice president of WQXR, said that the success of present live Saturday night broadcasts of the Boston Symphony's concerts had prompted the move. The current season will end on April 26. The new series will be presented at the same time: Saturdays at 8:30 p.m.

WQXR, according to Sanger, has the largest audience rating of any New York radio station during these broadcasts from Boston. Arthur Fiedler and occasional guests will conduct the "Pops" series. Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux will conduct the Tanglewood concerts.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 26,550

JUN 26 1958

BSO Tanglewood Concert Series WGBH Broadcast

For the 5th consecutive year, WGBH-FM will present broadcasts of all the Boston Symphony Orchestra summer concerts at Tanglewood, beginning Saturday, July 5 at 8:25 p.m. Charles Munch, music director will conduct most of the concerts, including the one that Saturday, when he will direct the orchestra in a performance of Bach's Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass, broadcast on July 19, with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramm.

WGBH-FM broadcast dates for the following outstanding American pianists performing at this year's Festival are: Lukas Foss (July 12), Leon Fleisher (Aug. 9), Byron Janies (Aug. 23), Seymour Lipkin (Sept. 8), Eugene Istomin (Sept, 15), and Leonard Pennario (Sept. 20), performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti (Aug. 30), Ruth Posselt (Sept. 1) and Berl Senofsky (Sept. 22). Joseph de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto (broadcast Sept. 13).

In addition, chamber music by the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York and the New York Pro Musica Antiqua will be recorded. Performances by student ensembles will be presented throughout the coming WGBH-FM season.

NEWARK, N. J.
NEWS
Circ. D. 275,829 - S. 321,395

JUN 29 1958

News of Radio Events and Prog

Frontier Gentleman, a Western series, will be heard over WCBS Sunday nights at 7, starting tonight. The program will replace the Jack Benny show. The hero of Frontier Gentleman is a roving reporter for a British newspaper who covers life in the Western United States during the 1870's, and finds himself involved in Indian wars and other incidents in the rough frontier settlements.

* * *

The question "Should Capital Punishment Be Abolished in New Jersey" will be discussed tonight at 8:05 on the Rutgers Uni teacher and the man who probably had more influence upon his youth than any other, as dramatic narrator. The story links key areas of Jefferson's early life with the broad principles of the Declaration of Independence which he was to write later. Jefferson's concepts of human freedom and the nature of a democratic society are highlighted.

* * *

The Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts will return to WQXR Saturday at 8:30 p.m., when the first of six programs from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be broadcast. WQXR's weekly pickup will bring listeners the complete concert originating from the Theater Concert Hall or from The Shed. Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra and Martin Bookspan will present intermission interviews and descriptions of the activities at the festival.

Guest soloists for the July concerts will be pianists Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin and Byron Janis; soprano Hilde Gueden and baritone Donald Gramm. Musical highlights will be all-Bach and all-Mozart programs and performances of Brahms' A German Requiem and the Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto No. 3.

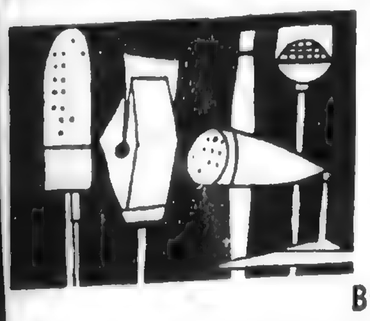
The opening broadcast will feature the orchestra in performances of the Bach Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, with Foss as soloist, and Bach's The Art of the Fugue.

* * *

[230]

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 66,613

JUN 29 1958



TURNING the DIALS

By FRED H. RUSSELL

The Boston Symphony orchestra concerts will return to WQXR airwaves next Saturday, from 8:30 to approximately 10:30 p.m., when the first of six programs from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass., will be broadcast. WQXR's weekly pickup will bring listeners the complete concert originating from the Theater Concert Hall or from "The Shed." Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra, and WQXR's commentator Martin Bookspan will be broadcasting intermission interviews and descriptions of the activities at the festival.

Guest soloists for the July concerts will be Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin and Byron Janis, pianists; Hilde Gueden, soprano; and Donald Gramm, baritone. Musical highlights will be all-Bach and all-Mozart programs, and performances of Brahms' "A German Requiem" and the Rachmaninoff "Piano Concerto No. 3."

The opening broadcast on Saturday will originate from the Theater Concert Hall where Munch will conduct the orchestra in performances of the Bach "Piano Concerto No. 1," with Foss as soloist, and Bach's "The Art of the Fugue."

WQXR listeners heard the Saturday night concerts of the Boston Symphony orchestra direct from Symphony Hall in Boston for the first time during the 1957-58 season. These programs were followed by the weekly broadcasts of the Boston "Pops" concerts, also from Boston. This series ended last night.

Three New Musicals

Talented young performers will join forces with Alfredo Antonini and his orchestra, and David Ross to provide easy-on-the-ears music and poetry in three new programs to be heard on CBS roadio on Mondays, Tuesdays and Fridays, respectively at 8:35 to 9 p.m. effective tomorrow.

"Burt and Gloria," premiering tomorrow will feature Burt Taylor and Gloria Lambert, young vocalists. Miss Lambert has made many television appearances in Canada where she won fame as a singer of pop ballads. Taylor, a baritone, is a favorite in night clubs both here and in Canada.

"Mood Piece," on Tuesday, will present, in addition to Antonini's musical offerings, the veteran Ross in readings of poetry. Each week the program will also feature a different instrumentalist, with Jimmy Abato, classical alto-saxophonist, to be heard this week. Lois Winters is vocalist.

On Friday, "The Light Touch" offers Carol Hughes and David Allen, vocalists, against an orchestral background. Miss Hughes, a former child prodigy, has been seen on many television programs and has several hit records to her credit. Allen, a ballad specialist, has sung with top bands, has appeared in night clubs and on television shows.

In addition to these new programs, CBS radio's "Summer in St. Louis" moves from its present Saturday nightime spots to Wednesday at 8:35 p.m., effective Wednesday. Also, the "Stuart Foster Show" will be heard Thursdays at 8:35 p.m.

The shows will fill the time spot occupied by "The Rusty Draper Show which takes a summer vacation and returns to the air on Sept. 29.

Literature Series

New York University in association with WMCA will present a summer literature series Sunday nights at 8:05 o'clock, beginning July 6. The program will be an extension of the past season's series entitled "America's Literary Heritage."

Host for the series will be Dr. Theodore Ehrsam, associate professor of general literature at New York University. He will provide an interpretation of modern American culture as reflected in the writings of some of the nation's outstanding novelists, playwrights and poets. This summer he will discuss the lives and works of such authors as William Faulkner, Thornton Wilder, Thomas Wolfe, Edgar Lee Masters, Willa Cather, Theodore Dreiser, Frank Norris, and James T. Farrell.

TROY, N. Y.
TIMES RECORD
Circ. D. 40,593

JUL 12 1958

Boston Symphony Presents Mozart Tonight On WFLY

This evening on WFLY-FM, the Boston Symphony will present an all-Mozart concert, the second in a series of six, broadcast live from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Mass.

This broadcast received from WQXR in New York City will bring WFLY-FM listeners the complete concert originating from the Theater Concert Hall or "The Shed" from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra and WQXR's commentator Martin Bookspan will be broadcasting intermission interviews.

The program will open with the Serenade for String Orchesta, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik." The pianists Seymour Lupkin and Lukas Foss (also both members of the Berkshire Music Center faculty) will be soloists in the Two Piano Concerto, K. 365. The concert will close with the Serenade for 13 Wind Instruments, K. 361 and the well-known Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

AUBURN, ALA.
LEE CO. BULLETIN
Circ. W. 2,170

JUL 10 1958

Symphony Performance To Be Televised Here

The Boston Symphony orchestra will make its second television appearance nationally Friday, July 18th, at 7:30 p. m. and can be seen locally over channel 7.

Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Symphony will perform the "Mother Goose Suite" by Ravel, Ibert's Chamber Concertino, and Ballade for Orchestra by Tomasi.

Second half of the telecast will present Symphony Number 4 in A, Opus 90 ("The Italian"), by Mendelssohn.

Appearance of the Boston Symphony on ETV channels marks the first time one of the nation's major orchestras can be appreciated across the United States by a vast audience who enjoy classical music.

DENVER, COLO.
POST
Circ. D. 254,120 - S. 350,439

JUL 17 1958

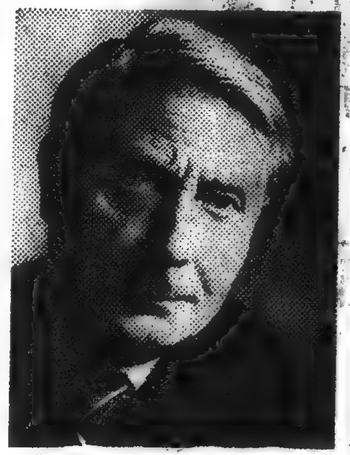
ON THE AIR

With THOMPSON R. WATT
Denver Post Radio and Television Editor

ETV Station to Telecast BostonSymphonyConcert

KRMA-TV tonight will present the second in a series of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, made available through an exchange of educational television programs.

The 88-minute film is to begin at 7:30.



Charles Munch

Conductor Charles Munch and the orchestra open the concert with the "Mother Goose Suite" by Ravel. Featured also in the first portion will be works by Ibert and Tomasi. After a brief intermission, Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4 is to be presented.

The first in the series of Boston Symphony concerts was seen over KRMA-TV in April.

KRMA-TV has rescheduled, for a week from tonight the memorable hour-long debate on fallout and disarmament between Drs. Linus Pauling and Edward Teller.

The debate made front page news when it was staged in San Francisco in the spring.

* * *

TROY, N.Y.
RECORD
D. 6,681

JUL 4 1958

Berkshire Music Festival On WFLY

The first of six programs from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood will be broadcast tomorrow at 8:30 p.m. by Station WFLY, the FM voice of The Record Newspapers. The Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts will be received from Station WQXR in New York City.

Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra and Martin Bookspan will broadcast intermission interviews and descriptions of the activities from "The Shed."

The first broadcast from Tanglewood will include the performances of the Bach Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, with Lukas Foss as soloist, and Bach's The Art of the Fugue.

Station WFLY listeners heard the Saturday night concerts of the Boston Symphony direct from Boston for the first time earlier this year. These programs were followed by the weekly broadcasts of the Boston Pops concerts from Boston. The pops series ended June 28.

...asts
...wood
...XR

...s of
...a and
...on Symphony
...he Berkshire
...in Tanglewood,
... broadcast live to
...s over radio station
...om May 3 through Aug.

...lliott M. Sanger, executive vice president of WQXR said that the success of present live Saturday night broadcasts of the Boston Symphony's concerts had prompted the move. The current season will end on April 26. The new series will be presented at the same time: Saturdays at 8:30 p.m.

WQXR, according to Sanger, has the largest audience rating of any New York radio station during these broadcasts from Boston. Arthur Fiedler and occasional guests will conduct the "Pops" series. Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux will conduct the Tanglewood concerts.

Jewish Advocate
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 26,550

JUN 26 1958

BSO Tanglewood Concert Series WGBH Broadcast

For the 5th consecutive year, WGBH-FM will present broadcasts of all the Boston Symphony Orchestra summer concerts at Tanglewood, beginning Saturday, July 5 at 8:25 p.m. Charles Munch, music director will conduct most of the concerts, including the one that Saturday, when he will direct the orchestra in a performance of Bach's Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass, broadcast on July 19, with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramm.

WGBH-FM broadcast dates for the following outstanding American pianists performing at this year's Festival are: Lukas Foss (July 12), Leon Fleisher (Aug. 9), Byron Janies (Aug. 23), Seymour Lipkin (Sept. 8), Eugene Istomin (Sept, 15), and Leonard Pennario (Sept. 20), performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti (Aug. 30), Ruth Posselt (Sept. 1) and Berl Senofsky (Sept. 22). Joseph de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto (broadcast Sept. 13).

In addition, chamber music by the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York and the New York Pro Musica Antiqua will be recorded. Performances by student ensembles will be presented throughout the coming WGBH-FM season.

NEWARK, N. J.
NEWS
Circ. D. 275,829 - S. 321,395

JUN 29 1958

News of Radio Events and Prog

Frontier Gentleman, a Western series, will be heard over WCBS Sunday nights at 7, starting tonight. The program will replace the Jack Benny show. The hero of Frontier Gentleman is a roving reporter for a British newspaper who covers life in the Western United States during the 1870's, and finds himself involved in Indian wars and other incidents in the rough frontier settlements.

* * *

The question "Should Capital Punishment Be Abolished in New Jersey" will be discussed tonight at 8:05 on the Rutgers Uni teacher and the man who probably had more influence upon his youth than any other, as dramatic narrator. The story links key areas of Jefferson's early life with the broad principles of the Declaration of Independence which he was to write later. Jefferson's concepts of human freedom and the nature of a democratic society are highlighted.

* * *

The Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts will return to WQXR Saturday at 8:30 p.m., when the first of six programs from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be broadcast. WQXR's weekly pickup will bring listeners the complete concert originating from the Theater Concert Hall or from The Shed. Charles Munch will conduct the orchestra and Martin Bookspan will present intermission interviews and descriptions of the activities at the festival.

Guest soloists for the July concerts will be pianists Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin and Byron Janis; soprano Hilde Gueden and baritone Donald Gramm. Musical highlights will be all-Bach and all-Mozart programs and performances of Brahms' A German Requiem and the Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto No. 3.

The opening broadcast will feature the orchestra in performances of the Bach Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor, with Foss as soloist, and Bach's The Art of the Fugue.

* * *

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.

OCT 1958

Music on Records

By Sherman Gottesman

Capitol EMI Label: Capitol Records has come out with a new catalogue based upon the recordings of the English Electrical and Musical Industrial, Ltd. Recording levels are extremely fine and this new label is a welcome addition. Here are some of the new releases:

Bach: Organ Music (G-7111). Fernando Germani at the St. Laurens Church Organ in Alkemaar, Holland, plays the Toccatas and Fugues in C, D minor and F, and the Fantasia and Fugue in G minor in a spirited virtuoso manner, giving Bach's massive Baroque style full effectiveness.

Puccini: Suor Angelica (G-7115). Puccini's one act tragic opera sung and performed exceptionally well by a cast headed by Victoria de los Angeles, and the Chorus and Orchestra of the Rome Opera House, conducted by Tullio Serafin. The performance has a high emotional impact even though this is one of Puccini's more static efforts.

Schubert: Octet in F (G-7112). A sensitive performance by the Chamber Music Ensemble of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. Schubert's lovely melodies dynamically brought out in this romantic interpretation.

Erika Koeth: Arias of Mozart and Richard Strauss (G-7114). This is a voice to reckon with. Miss Koeth not only has a bright and facile coloratura, she makes music. There is dramatic force and lyric tenderness with subtle nuances throughout. She is accompanied by the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra in Arias from "The Abduction from the Seraglio," "Don Giovanni," "The Magic Flute" and "Ariadne auf Naxos."

Scriabin: Preludes, Op. 11; Brahms: Waltzes, Op. 39 (G-7110). Gina Bachauer gives a fine poetic reading of the preludes, but in her playing of the Waltzes, there was a tendency to bang.

Other Capitol EMI Records — listed but not reviewed: Brahms Fourth Symphony (G-7100), played by Rudolfe Kemp and the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. Berlioz: Symphonie Fantastique (G-7102), Sir Thomas Beecham and the Orchestre de la Radio Diffusion Francaise. Rossini-Respighi: La Boutique Fantasque (G-7103), Sir Eugene Goossens and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

RCA Victor Stereo Releases: RCA Victor has begun releasing stereo records concurrently with its monaural releases. Stereo Catalogue numbers are LSC and Monaurals are LM. To date we have only heard:

Mendelssohn: Italian and Reformation Symphonies (LM and LSC 2221). A fine example of stereo, conducted by Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The inner voices come to the fore because of the separation of the two channels.

Mahler: Symphony No. 4 (Decca DL 9944). Leopold Ludwig leads the Dresden Saxon State Orchestra in a masterful performance of this serious and lyric work. Mr. Ludwig brings to the fore the composer's rhythmic vicissitudes, accelerating as the mood demands, but never losing sight of the lovely melodic lines. Anny Schlemm lends her beautiful soprano voice to the last movement.

Schubert: Trio No. 2 in E flat (Capitol FDS P-8442). The Immaculate Heart Trio performs this work in a clean and lucid style, perhaps a bit pedantic to those of us who prefer a more sentimental Schubert, but nevertheless valid in its interpretation and execution.

Samuel Barber: Vanessa (RCA Victor LM 6138). This is the Metropolitan Opera production of the Pulitzer Prize winning opera with Eleanor Steber, Rosalind Elias, Regina Resnik, Nicolai Gedda, and Giorgio Tozzi, with Dimitri Mitropolous conducting the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra and Chorus. A major effort, extremely well recorded and sung, with outstanding vocal performances by Rosalind Elias and Giorgio Tozzi. The music is dramatic and in spots, lyric, reminiscent of Richard Strauss. A bridge between these lyric passages are recitatives, half spoken and half sung with wild leaps, that are diametrically opposed to the meter of the English language, with distorted accents and words. Not seeing the action makes this distortion all the more noticeable.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 12 1958

One Night In July

This is the time of year that lovers of great music shut down their TV's, loaded in the big hours of the entertainment day with repeats and pinch hitting shows, and turn on their radios for a real feast. On the New York stations tonight, for instance, beginning with the "Masterwork Hour" from 7 to 8:30 we can listen to Schubert's Symphony No. 5 and other great offerings. Or in the same hour one may get the String Quartet doing Haydn's Quartet in D Minor and Beethoven's Quartet No. 3. Then, from 8 to 9 is "Music of the Masters" presenting Schumann's Symphonic Etudes.

Then, beginning at 8:30, one must make the difficult choice between the New York Symphony presenting Verdi's opera "Rigoletto" from the Central Park Mall or turn in on The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch at the Tanglewood Music Festival in an all-Mozart program. If not completely fed up with great music at the closing of that program one may turn on 'De Koven Presents" and hear the final part of a program which has such numbers as Byrd's "Mass for Four Voices" and Porpora's Salve Regina." Then there is just time off for a cup of tea — or "something" before Symphonic Highlights" time and Neilsen's Symphony No. 5.

That brings one up to midnight and high time to get to bed.

It has happened again, this time at Norwalk, Conn., where two property owners who had built private ponds on their places and stocked them with trout and bass, have collected $375 damages for loss of their fish because city employes working on an anti-mosquito detail dumped an excessive amount of DDT in the area. It killed the mosquito larvae all right but it also killed all the fish. Reminds one of burning down a house to drive out the rats.

WALNUT CREEK, CALIF.
Contra Costa Times
Circ. TW. 4,979

AUG 7 1958

Bass to Treble

by Frederick Freeman

Spending the summer up here in Maine brings me into rather close contact with all the musical activities now taking place in the northeast section of our land.

Actually I am not attending any of the concerts, but reading about them in the Boston and New York papers interests me tremendously.

One series of these orchestral concerts takes place in Tanglewood, a small country vacation spot. It was started by Koussevitsky, formerly a conductor of the Boston Symphony. He opened a school for conducting and trained the present New York Philharmonic conductor, Leonard Bernstein.

There is also a series of orchestral concerts in Lenox, Mass., called the Berkshire Music Festival. One of their most famous conductors is Pierre Monteux the former San Francisco conductor who preceded Enrique Jorda. Monsieur Monteux now lives here in Maine in a home chosen by his Maine-born wife. This lady was involved in many social activities when her husband conducted in San Francisco. They lived at the Fairmont.

Cark Munch, contemporary conductor of the Boston orchestra, is another of the guests at the Berkshire Festival.

As to the guest artists at these concerts, those chosen are the ones who will draw a crowd, and it will interest our Walnut Creekr readers, I am sure, to hear that two of the [illegible] chosen appeared a couple of years ago on our local Community Concerts series. They were Byron Janis and Leonard Pennario.

Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press (e)
BRISTOL, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,480

OCT 30 1958

Quality Of New Stereo Tapes May Hit Disc Use

By L. J. KRAMP

The superior quality of new stereo tapes of works by Beethoven, Tschaikovsky and Barber emphasizes the growing belief that stereo discs may attract new high fidelity listeners, but many will turn eventually from discs to tape.

The tapes cost more, require more expense in additional playback equipment, and are less convenient to handle and store. But generally they offer higher fidelity and many audiophiles never will be satisfied with less than the best.

In recent months, fewer tapes have been issued because of the advent of stereo discs. The breathing spell will give disc and tape makers a chance to determine whether two-channel tape still has buyers.

But at least one major company, RCA Victor, says it will continue issuing tapes for a long time to come. It is banking on sound fanciers to continue buying them, whether in addition to or in place of stereo discs.

The Tschaikovsky Piano Concerto No. 1, played by Van Cliburn, is a best seller on monaural and stereo discs, but the richness and range of the performance seems greater in the RCA Victor tape. Certainly the Texan's piano sounds more powerful than on the disc.

An exceptionally fine Tschaikowski taps is the "Sleeping Beauty" ballet by the London Symphony under Pierre Monteux (RCA Victor). The monaural disc is outstanding but hardly in a class with the crispness and the tonal beauty of the tape.

Tschaikowski's "Pathetique" symphony is offered, in its best tape available to date, by the New York Philharmonic under Dimitri Mitropolous (Columbia). The tape has a breath-taking quality in its sound directions and its detail. If quality is what is wanted, it is worth the extra cost.

Two Vanguard stereo tapes of Beethoven symphonies, No. 3 in E Flat and No. 5 in C Minor, demonstrate dramatically their sound superiority over the stereo disc versions. The No. 5, by Felix Prohaska and the Vienna State Opera Orchestra, is a bargain at $6.95, or about half the usual price for this length of tape. The No. 3, by Sir Adrian Boult and the Philharmonic Promenade Orchestra, is a majestic rendition, with clean bass, and is the best of Boult's three Beethoven symphonies for Vanguard.

Four RCA Victor tapes of recent issue are also recommended. These include Samuel Barber's "Medea's Meditation and Dance of Vengeance," by the Boston Symphony under Charles Munch, and Barber's "Adagio for Strings," also by the Boston orchestra under Munch. The first is powerful, passionate sound; the second, elegant and tender. Both are well recorded.

Two others are Stravinsky's "Song of the Nightingale" by the Chicago Symphony under Fritz Reiner, and Falla's "Nights in the Gardens of Spain," by pianist Artur Rubenstein and the San Francisco Symphony. The "Nightingale" has been a high fidelity showpiece for years, and never more colorful and exciting than in this tape, which is even more splendid than the excellent disc. Falla's "Nights" also sounds better in tape, and is music which is more appealing in stereo than in monaural.

[257]

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.

OCT 1958

Music on Records

By Sherman Gottesman

Capitol EMI Label: Capitol Records has come out with a new catalogue based upon the recordings of the English Electrical and Musical Industrial, Ltd. Recording levels are extremely fine and this new label is a welcome addition. Here are some of the new releases:

Bach: Organ Music (G-7111). Fernando Germani at the St. Laurens Church Organ in Alkemaar, Holland, plays the Toccatas and Fugues in C, D minor and F, and the Fantasia and Fugue in G minor in a spirited virtuoso manner, giving Bach's massive Baroque style full effectiveness.

Puccini: Suor Angelica (G-7115). Puccini's one act tragic opera sung and performed exceptionally well by a cast headed by Victoria de los Angeles, and the Chorus and Orchestra of the Rome Opera House, conducted by Tullio Serafin. The performance has a high emotional impact even though this is one of Puccini's more static efforts.

Schubert: Octet in F (G-7112). A sensitive performance by the Chamber Music Ensemble of the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. Schubert's lovely melodies dynamically brought out in this romantic interpretation.

Erika Koeth: Arias of Mozart and Richard Strauss (G-7114). This is a voice to reckon with. Miss Koeth not only has a bright and facile coloratura, she makes music. There is dramatic force and lyric tenderness with subtle nuances throughout. She is accompanied by the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra in Arias from "The Abduction from the Seraglio," "Don Giovanni," "The Magic Flute" and "Ariadne auf Naxos."

Scriabin: Preludes, Op. 11; Brahms: Waltzes, Op. 39 (G-7110). Gina Bachauer gives a fine poetic reading of the preludes, but in her playing of the Waltzes, there was a tendency to bang.

Other Capitol EMI Records — listed but not reviewed: Brahms Fourth Symphony (G-7100), played by Rudolfe Kemp and the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. Berlioz: Symphonie Fantastique (G-7102), Sir Thomas Beecham and the Orchestre de la Radio Diffusion Francaise. Rossini-Respighi: La Boutique Fantasque (G-7103), Sir Eugene Goossens and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

RCA Victor Stereo Releases: RCA Victor has begun releasing stereo records concurrently with its monaural releases. Stereo Catalogue numbers are LSC and Monaurals are LM. To date we have only heard:

Mendelssohn: Italian and Reformation Symphonies (LM and LSC 2221). A fine example of stereo, conducted by Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The inner voices come to the fore because of the separation of the two channels.

Mahler: Symphony No. 4 (Decca DL 9944). Leopold Ludwig leads the Dresden Saxon State Orchestra in a masterful performance of this serious and lyric work. Mr. Ludwig brings to the fore the composer's rhythmic vicissitudes, accelerating as the mood demands, but never losing sight of the lovely melodic lines. Anny Schlemm lends her beautiful soprano voice to the last movement.

Schubert: Trio No. 2 in E flat (Capitol FDS P-8442). The Immaculate Heart Trio performs this work in a clean and lucid style, perhaps a bit pedantic to those of us who prefer a more sentimental Schubert, but nevertheless valid in its interpretation and execution.

Samuel Barber: Vanessa (RCA Victor LM 6138). This is the Metropolitan Opera production of the Pulitzer Prize winning opera with Eleanor Steber, Rosalind Elias, Regina Resnik, Nicolai Gedda, and Giorgio Tozzi, with Dimitri Mitropolous conducting the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra and Chorus. A major effort, extremely well recorded and sung, with outstanding vocal performances by Rosalind Elias and Giorgio Tozzi. The music is dramatic and in spots, lyric, reminiscent of Richard Strauss. A bridge between these lyric passages are recitatives, half spoken and half sung with wild leaps, that are diametrically opposed to the meter of the English language, with distorted accents and words. Not seeing the action makes this distortion all the more noticeable.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 12 1958

One Night In July

This is the time of year that lovers of great music shut down their TV's, loaded in the big hours of the entertainment day with repeats and pinch hitting shows, and turn on their radios for a real feast. On the New York stations tonight, for instance, beginning with the "Masterwork Hour" from 7 to 8:30 we can listen to Schubert's Symphony No. 5 and other great offerings. Or in the same hour one may get the String Quartet doing Haydn's Quartet in D Minor and Beethoven's Quartet No. 3. Then, from 8 to 9 is "Music of the Masters" presenting Schumann's Symphonic Etudes.

Then, beginning at 8:30, one must make the difficult choice between the New York Symphony presenting Verdi's opera "Rigoletto" from the Central Park Mall or turn in on The Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch at the Tanglewood Music Festival in an all-Mozart program. If not completely fed up with great music at the closing of that program one may turn on "De Koven Presents" and hear the final part of a program which has such numbers as Byrd's "Mass for Four Voices" and Porpora's Salve Regina." Then there is just time off for a cup of tea — or "something" before "Symphonic Highlights" time and Neilsen's Symphony No. 5.

That brings one up to midnight and high time to get to bed.

It has happened again, this time at Norwalk, Conn., where two property owners who had built private ponds on their places and stocked them with trout and bass, have collected $375 damages for loss of their fish because city employes working on an anti-mosquito detail dumped an excessive amount of DDT in the area. It killed the mosquito larvae all right but it also killed all the fish. Reminds one of burning down a house to drive out the rats.

WALNUT CREEK, CALIF.
Contra Costa Times
Circ. TW. 4,979

AUG 7 1958

Bass to Treble

by Frederick Freeman

Spending the summer up here in Maine brings me into rather close contact with all the musical activities now taking place in the northeast section of our land.

Actually I am not attending any of the concerts, but reading about them in the Boston and New York papers interests me tremendously.

One series of these orchestral concerts takes place in Tanglewood, a small country vacation spot. It was started by Koussevitsky, formerly a conductor of the Boston Symphony. He opened a [illegible] conducting and trained the present New York Philharmonic conductor, Leonard Bernstein.

There is also a series of orchestral concerts in Lenox, Mass., called the Berkshire Music Festival. One of their most famous conductors is Pierre Monteux the former San Francisco conductor who preceded Enrique Jorda. Monsieur Monteux now lives here in Maine in a home chosen by his Maine-born wife. This lady was involved in many social activities when her husband conducted in San Francisco. They lived at the Fairmont.

Cark Munch, contemporary conductor of the Boston orchestra, is another of the guests at the Berkshire Festival.

As to the guest artists at these concerts, those chosen are the ones who will draw a crowd, and it will [illegible] our Walnut Creek readers, I am sure to hear that two of the pianists chosen appeared a couple of years ago on our local Community Concerts series. They were Byron Janis and Leonard Pennario.

Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Press (e)
BRISTOL, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,480

OCT 30 1958

Quality Of New Stereo Tapes May Hit Disc Use

By L. J. KRAMP

The superior quality of new stereo tapes of works by Beethoven, Tschaikovsky and Barber emphasizes the growing belief that stereo discs may attract new high fidelity listeners, but many will turn eventually from discs to tape.

The tapes cost more, require more expense in additional playback equipment, and are less convenient to handle and store. But generally they offer higher fidelity and many audiophiles never will be satisfied with less than the best.

In recent months, fewer tapes have been issued because of the advent of stereo discs. The breathing spell will give disc and tape makers a chance to determine whether two-channel tape still has buyers.

But at least one major company, RCA Victor, says it will continue issuing tapes for a long time to come. It is banking on sound fanciers to continue buying them, whether in addition to or in place of stereo discs.

The Tschaikovsky Piano Concerto No. 1, played by Van Cliburn, is a best seller on monaural and stereo discs, but the richness and range of the performance seems greater in the RCA Victor tape. Certainly the Texan's piano sounds more powerful than on the disc.

An exceptionally fine Tschaikowski tape is the "Sleeping Beauty" ballet by the London Symphony under Pierre Monteux (RCA Victor). The monaural disc is outstanding but hardly in a class with the crispness and the tonal beauty of the tape.

Tschaikowski's "Pathetique" symphony is offered, in its best tape available to date, by the New York Philharmonic under Dimitri Mitropolous (Columbia). The tape has a breath-taking quality in its sound directions and its detail. If quality is what is wanted, it is worth the extra cost.

Two Vanguard stereo tapes of Beethoven symphonies, No. 3 in E Flat and No. 5 in C Minor, demonstrate dramatically their sound superiority over the stereo disc versions. The No. 5, by Felix Prohaska and the Vienna State Opera Orchestra, is a bargain at $6.95, or about half the usual price for this length of tape. The No. 3, by Sir Adrian Boult and the Philharmonic Promenade Orchestra, is a majestic rendition, with clean bass, and is the best of Boult's three Beethoven symphonies for Vanguard.

Four RCA Victor tapes of recent issue are also recommended. These include Samuel Barber's "Medea's Meditation and Dance of Vengeance," by the Boston Symphony under Charles Munch, and Barber's "Adagio for Strings," also by the Boston orchestra under Munch. The first is powerful, passionate sound; the second, elegant and tender. Both are well recorded.

Two others are Stravinsky's "Song of the Nightingale" by the Chicago Symphony under Fritz Reiner, and Falla's "Nights in the Gardens of Spain," by pianist Artur Rubenstein and the San Francisco Symphony. The "Nightingale" has been a high fidelity showpiece for years, and never more colorful and exciting than in this tape, which is even more splendid than the excellent disc. Falla's "Nights" also sounds better in tape, and is music which is more appealing in stereo than in monaural.

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

AU 21 1958

Festival Crowds Show An Increase Over 1956 And '57

With the summer season of the Berkshire Music Festival concluded, a resume of this year's financial and artistic operation should be of interest to this area, where Tanglewood acts as a magnet to the resort industry and a cultural asset to the local residents.

Financially, the Festival's 21st season shows an increase over previous years. The total ticket sales for this year was $376,117.50 as against $366,943 in 1957 and $297,956 in 1956.

The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players were attended by 22,937 (for the Bach weekend 10,166, for the Mozart weekend 12,771). Last season's total attendance for the Bach-Mozart concerts was 22,052. Total ticket sales were $56,390 (in 1957 $52,662). As last season, one concert of each weekend was held in the large Music Shed.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286

AUG 11 1958

Popularity Of Tanglewood Continues To Increase

The gusty but gently falling rain joined the chorus' "Ode to Joy" in the finale of Beethoven's magnificent Ninth Symphony Sunday afternoon, as if sent by the composer himself to add to the magical excitement this music always engenders.

The Ninth Symphony has become a tradition for the last concert of the Berkshire Festival, this being the fourth successive presentation. Its superlative construction was revealed in the magnitude of musical ideas contained in all four movements with precision finesse and the wide range of dynamics and emotional depth Dr. Munch constantly coerces from his reliable and responsive musicians.

The Berkshire Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross and Alfred Nash Patterson showed considerable spirit and sensitivity. Their declamatory phrases were unified and succint, the exacting score surmounted with little difficulty.

The orchestra and chorus were assisted by the familiar quartet, Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass, all contributed their fine talents to the changing musical atmospheres and the demanding vocal score, with practised skill and good taste.

A comparatively short concert, the audience of 13,771 reacted with rather reverent jubilation to the finale of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony and the finale of the current Berkshire Festival Series. The applause was almost an ovation, and not only because of the tendency to linger under the shelter of the Big Shed, before braving the damp jaunt to the distantly parked car, but in genuine appreciation to all those responsible for an exhilarating performance.

Written for the 70th anniversary of the city of Johannesburg, William Walton's "Johannesburg Festival Overture" was the only other work presented. A mixture of his romantic lyricism and indigenous rhythms, tender and skittish, it was no less genuine in its human appeal than the majestic Beethoven that followed and dominated.

A total of 168,773 visitors to the 1958 Berkshire Festival events shows an increase over last year's attendance, and also the need for, and the continuing interest in, all the Berkshire Festival events. We are fortunate indeed to be so near to these easily available musical opportunities.

M deR

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

AUG 11 1958

Music Festival Ends

Tanglewood Records Total 1958 Attendance of 168,773

In spite of rain, an audience of 13,773 attended the final 1958 Berkshire Music Festival performance of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood yesterday afternoon. The orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch finished up the season with Beethoven's "Ninth Sumphony."

The Saturday night concert, which was conducted by Pierre Monteux, drew 12,680 to the Shed.

This brought the total attendance for the six week festival season to 168,773 compared with 162,936 for 1957. Ticket sales for 1958 amounted to $376,117.50. Last year's sales came to $366,943 and in 1956 to $297,956.

The Shed concerts brought in the largest share of the crowds with 86,045 people attending the 12 that were presented. The rest attended the 41 student concerts, six chamber music concerts and six Saturday morning rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

These rehearsals open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's pension Fund, grossed $14,223.50. The Wednesday night Chamber Music Concerts, given for the benefit of Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, grossed $11,100, and had an attendance of 8,168 persons.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

7 16 1958

Tanglewood Record

TO THE RESOUNDING strains of Beethoven's Ninth, conductor Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra rang down the curtain Sunday afternoon on another record-breaking Tanglewood season. Despite indifferent weather, total attendance for the summer was 168,773 (up about 6,000 from 1957) while ticket sales came to an all-time high of $376,117.

As it happened, attendance was down slightly at the four weekends of full orchestra concerts in the Music Shed, which drew 107,078 customers this year against 107,479 last. But this loss was much more than offset by record turnouts at the Theater Concert Hall, the chamber music concerts, the Saturday morning rehearsals and Tanglewood on Parade, which was the most popular single event of the season with an attendance of 14,588. Insofar as the box office could tell, Beethoven is still by far the most popular name on the Tanglewood hit parade.

The morning after the Tanglewood finale Dr. Munch took off in an Air France plane at Idlewild for Paris and home. Following a rest and several guest-conductor appearances in Europe, he will return to Boston for the opening of the winter season at Symphony Hall in October.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

AUG 17 1958

Best Berkshire Season

By MILES KASTENDIECK

MORE AND MORE people have been attending the Berkshire Festival events this Summer. With the total approximately 168,773 almost 6,000 more than last year were accounted for in the final summing up.

This number is a whole shed full in itself. Obviously the weather did not prevent the crowds from coming.

One of the interesting facts about the figures is that the Wagner weekend drew the smallest number. Whether this indicates a positive dip in interest in Wagner or a lack of enthusiasm for the kind of programs offered remains debatable. It is quite probable that the selection of large units from the operas would be more alluring fare.

In the light of attendance records, the Great Composer idea as a focal point for the second year must be considered successful. The Brahms, Debussy-Ravel, Wagner, and Beethoven weekends did not offer much beyond standard repertory.

Worth Hearing

The sprinkling of contemporary works that punctuated each concert brought only three that were unfamiliar: Copland's Orchestral Variations, Piston's Viola Concerto, and Vaughan Williams' Eighth Sympnony, all worth hearing to be sure.

If this policy continues, then a more expensive point of view should be taken. The time has come for contemporary entries. Two great composers like Sibelius and Prokofieff certainly deserve inclusion.

Inevitably Handel should be selected for his anniversary year with perhaps more choral participation than ever before, just as long as "Messiah" is not one of the works selected.

As a variant on the composer weekends, the programs might be built around nationalism in music. German, French and Russian weekends would be logical. Perhaps an American weekend might be worked out.

Devise Program

It is again time for taking stock of American composers. A most interesting series of programs could be devised that would make the public aware that native talent can hold its own in any lineup.

Though 13,771 people came to hear the Beethoven Ninth at the end of the Festival, a record-breaking crowd of 14,568 attended Tanglewood-on-Parade, the annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center.

The main attraction was Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra. Perhaps this was just a time to let down hair otherwise so properly cared for in regular concerts of the full Boston Symphony.

The playing of the orchestra is still the chief lure of the Berkshire Festival. Performing as it does in a perfect setting, however, makes a trip to Tanglewood the more memorable.

What festival in the world has more beautiful natural surroundings?

OBSCURED TEXT

WESTSIDER
NEW YORK, N.Y.
3 TI. a YR.

SUMMER 1958

2

New York Thrives on Music

By Gerald T. Kenny

NE wonders at the oft-expressed statement that Americans generally, and New Yorkers in particular, are not real music-lovers. If this fact is true, then a person may be pardoned for wondering why in the Summertime New York is a veritable [illegible] in music. There was a time, of course, when Vienna was synonomous with music, but, from experience, we venture the thought that more music per square foot is to be found in the New York area than in all of Vienna, including the Vienna Woods.

While it is not actually in the New York area, the Tanglewood Music Festival in the Berkshires, which depends to a great extent on New York and its visitors for support, is probably the greatest Summer musical treat offered in this country. It is becoming as well known as Salzburg and some of the other European festivals.

[238]

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

AUG 21 1958

Festival Crowds Show An Increase Over 1956 And '57

With the summer season of the Berkshire Music Festival concluded, a resume of this year's financial and artistic operation should be of interest to this area, where Tanglewood acts as a magnet to the resort industry and a cultural asset to the local residents.

Financially, the Festival's 21st season shows an increase over previous years. The total ticket sales for this year was $376,117.50 as against $366,943 in 1957 and $297,956 in 1956.

The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players were attended by 22,937 (for the Bach weekend 10,166, for the Mozart weekend 12,771). Last season's total attendance for the Bach-Mozart concerts was 22,052. Total ticket sales were $56,390 (in 1957 $52,662). As last season, one concert of each weekend was held in the large Music Shed.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286

AUG 11 1958

Popularity Of Tanglewood Continues To Increase

The gusty but gently falling rain joined the chorus' "Ode to Joy" in the finale of Beethoven's magnificent Ninth Symphony Sunday afternoon, as if sent by the composer himself to add to the magical excitement this music always engenders.

The Ninth Symphony has become a tradition for the last concert of the Berkshire Festival, this being the fourth successive presentation. Its superlative construction was revealed in the magnitude of musical ideas contained in all four movements with precision finesse and the wide range of dynamics and emotional depth Dr. Munch constantly coerces from his reliable and responsive musicians.

The Berkshire Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross and Alfred Nash Patterson showed considerable spirit and sensitivity. Their declamatory phrases were unified and succint, the exacting score surmounted with little difficulty.

The orchestra and chorus were assisted by the familiar quartet, Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass, all contributed their fine talents to the changing musical atmospheres and the demanding vocal score, with practised skill and good taste.

A comparatively short concert, the audience of 13,771 reacted with rather reverent jubilation to the finale of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony and the finale of the current Berkshire Festival Series. The applause was almost an ovation, and not only because of the tendency to linger under the shelter of the Big Shed, before braving the damp jaunt to the distantly parked car, but in genuine appreciation to all those responsible for an exhilarating performance.

Written for the 70th anniversary of the city of Johannesburg, William Walton's "Johannesburg Festival Overture" was the only other work presented. A mixture of his romantic lyricism and indigenous rhythms, tender and skittish, it was no less genuine in its human appeal than the majestic Beethoven that followed and dominated.

A total of 168,773 visitors to the 1958 Berkshire Festival events shows an increase over last year's attendance, and also the need for, and the continuing interest in, all the Berkshire Festival events. We are fortunate indeed to be so near to these easily available musical opportunities.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

AUG 11 1958

Music Festival Ends

Tanglewood Records Total 1958 Attendance of 168,773

In spite of rain, an audience of 13,773 attended the final 1958 Berkshire Music Festival performance of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood yesterday afternoon. The orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch finished up the season with Beethoven's "Ninth Sumphony."

The Saturday night concert, which was conducted by Pierre Monteux, drew 12,680 to the Shed.

This brought the total attendance for the six week festival season to 168,773 compared with 162,936 for 1957. Ticket sales for 1958 amounted to $3[illegible]17.50. Last year's sales came to $366,943 and in 1956 to $297,956.

The Shed concerts brought in the largest share of the crowds with 86,045 people attending the 12 that were presented. The rest attended the 41 student concerts, six chamber music concerts and six Saturday morning rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

These rehearsals open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's pension Fund, grossed $14,223.50. The Wednesday night Chamber Music Concerts, given for the benefit of Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, grossed $11,100, and had an attendance of 8,168 persons.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

AUG 16 1958

Tanglewood Record

TO THE RESOUNDING strains of Beethoven's Ninth, conductor Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra rang down the curtain Sunday afternoon on another record-breaking Tanglewood season. Despite indifferent weather, total attendance for the summer was 168,773 (up about 6,000 from 1957) while ticket sales came to an all-time high of $376,117.

As it happened, attendance was down slightly at the four weekends of full orchestra concerts in the Music Shed, which drew 107,078 customers this year against 107,479 last. But this loss was much more than offset by record turnouts at the Theater Concert Hall, the chamber music concerts, the Saturday morning rehearsals and Tanglewood on Parade, which was the most popular single event of the season with an attendance of 14,588. Insofar as the box office could tell, Beethoven is still by far the most popular name on the Tanglewood hit parade.

The morning after the Tanglewood finale Dr. Munch took off in an Air France plane at Idlewild for Paris and home. Following a rest and several guest-conductor appearances in Europe, he will return to Boston for the opening of the winter season at Symphony Hall in October.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

AUG 17 1958

Best Berkshire Season

By MILES KASTENDIECK

MORE AND MORE people have been attending the Berkshire Festival events this Summer. With the total approximately 168,773 almost 6,000 more than last year were accounted for in the final summing up.

This number is a whole shed full in itself. Obviously the weather did not prevent the crowds from coming.

One of the interesting facts about the figures is that the Wagner weekend drew the smallest number. Whether this indicates a positive dip in interest in Wagner or a lack of enthusiasm for the kind of programs offered remains debatable. It is quite probable that the selection of large units from the operas would be more alluring fare.

In the light of attendance records, the Great Composer idea as a focal point for the second year must be considered successful. The Brahms, Debussy-Ravel, Wagner, and Beethoven weekends did not offer much beyond standard repertory.

Worth Hearing

The sprinkling of contemporary works that punctuated each concert brought only three that were unfamiliar: Copland's Orchestral Variations, Piston's Viola Concerto, and Vaughan Williams' Eighth Symphony, all worth hearing to be sure.

If this policy continues, then a more expensive point of view should be taken. The time has come for contemporary entries. Two great composers like Sibelius and Prokofieff certainly deserve inclusion.

Inevitably Handel should be selected for his anniversary year with perhaps more choral participation than ever before, just as long as "Messiah" is not one of the works selected.

As a variant on the composer weekends, the programs might be built around nationalism in music. German, French and Russian weekends would be logical. Perhaps an American weekend might be worked out.

Devise Program

It is again time for taking stock of American composers. A most interesting series of programs could be devised that would make the public aware that native talent can hold its own in any lineup.

Though 13,771 people came to hear the Beethoven Ninth at the end of the Festival, a record-breaking crowd of 14,568 attended Tanglewood-on-Parade, the annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center.

The main attraction was Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra. Perhaps this was just a time to let down hair otherwise so properly cared for in regular concerts of the full Boston Symphony.

The playing of the orchestra is still the chief lure of the Berkshire Festival. Performing as it does in a perfect setting, however, makes a trip to Tanglewood the more memorable.

What festival in the world has more beautiful natural surroundings?

OBSCURED TEXT

WESTSIDER
NEW YORK, N.Y.
3 Ti. a YR.
SUMMER 1958

2

New York Thrives on Music

By Gerald T. Kenny

[illegible]NE wonders at the oft-expressed statement that Americans generally, and New Yorkers in particular, are not real music-lovers. If this fact is true, then a person may be pardoned for wondering why in the Summertime New York is a veritable [illegible] in music. There was a time, of course, when Vienna was synonomous with music, but, from experience, we venture the thought that more music per square foot is to be found in the New York area than in all of Vienna, including the Vienna Woods.

While it is not actually in the New York area, the Tanglewood Music Festival in the Berkshires which depends to a great extent on New York and its visitors for support, is probably the greatest Summer musical treat offered in this country. It is becoming as well known as Salzburg and some of the other European festivals.

Journal
LAKEVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,292

AUG 21 1958

Festival Crowds Show An Increase Over 1956 And '57

With the summer season of the Berkshire Music Festival concluded, a resume of this year's financial and artistic operation should be of interest to this area, where Tanglewood acts as a magnet to the resort industry and a cultural asset to the local residents.

Financially, the Festival's 21st season shows an increase over previous years. The total ticket sales for this year was $376,117.50 as against $366,943 in 1957 and $297,956 in 1956.

The first two weekends of concerts in the Theatre-Concert Hall by a chamber orchestra of Boston Symphony players were attended by 22,937 (for the Bach weekend 10,166, for the Mozart weekend 12,771). Last season's total attendance for the Bach-Mozart concerts was 22,052. Total ticket sales were $56,390 (in 1957 $52,662). As last season, one concert of each weekend was held in the large Music Shed.

Hampshire Gazette (e)
NORTHAMPTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,286

AUG 11 1958

Popularity Of Tanglewood Continues To Increase

The gusty but gently falling rain joined the chorus' "Ode to Joy" in the finale of Beethoven's magnificent Ninth Symphony Sunday afternoon, as if sent by the composer himself to add to the magical excitement this music always engenders.

The Ninth Symphony has become a tradition for the last concert of the Berkshire Festival, this being the fourth successive presentation. Its superlative construction was revealed in the magnitude of musical ideas contained in all four movements with precision finesse and the wide range of dynamics and emotional depth Dr. Munch constantly coerces from his reliable and responsive musicians.

The Berkshire Festival Chorus prepared by Hugh Ross and Alfred Nash Patterson showed considerable spirit and sensitivity. Their declamatory phrases were unified and succint, the exacting score surmounted with little difficulty.

The orchestra and chorus were assisted by the familiar quartet, Adele Addison, soprano; Florence Kopleff, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass, all contributed their fine talents to the changing musical atmospheres and the demanding vocal score, with practised skill and good taste.

A comparatively short concert, the audience of 13,771 reacted with rather reverent jubilation to the finale of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony and the finale of the current Berkshire Festival Series. The applause was almost an ovation, and not only because of the tendency to linger under the shelter of the Big Shed, before braving the damp jaunt to the distantly parked car, but in genuine appreciation to all those responsible for an exhilarating performance.

Written for the 70th anniversary of the city of Johannesburg, William Walton's "Johannesburg Festival Overture" was the only other work presented. A mixture of his romantic lyricism and indigenous rhythms, tender and skittish, it was no less genuine in its human appeal than the majestic Beethoven that followed and dominated.

A total of 168,773 visitors to the 1958 Berkshire Festival events shows an increase over last year's attendance, and also the need for, and the continuing interest in, all the Berkshire Festival events. We are fortunate indeed to be so near to these easily available musical opportunities.

[illegible]

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

AUG 11 1958

Music Festival Ends

Tanglewood Records Total 1958 Attendance of 168,773

In spite of rain, an audience of 13,773 attended the final 1958 Berkshire Music Festival performance of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the Music Shed at Tanglewood yesterday afternoon. The orchestra under the direction of Charles Munch finished up the season with Beethoven's "Ninth Sumphony."

The Saturday night concert, which was conducted by Pierre Monteux, drew 12,680 to the Shed.

This brought the total attendance for the six week festival season to 168,773 compared with 162,936 for 1957. Ticket sales for 1958 amounted to $37[illegible]117.50. Last year's sales came to $366,943 and in 1956 to $297,956.

The Shed concerts brought in the largest share of the crowds with 86,045 people attending the 12 that were presented. The rest attended the 41 student concerts, six chamber music concerts and six Saturday morning rehearsals of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

These rehearsals open to the public for the benefit of the Orchestra's pension Fund, grossed $14,223.50. The Wednesday night Chamber Music Concerts, given for the benefit of Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund, grossed $11,100, and had an attendance of 8,168 persons.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

AUG 16 1958

Tanglewood Record

TO THE RESOUNDING strains of Beethoven's Ninth, conductor Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony orchestra rang down the curtain Sunday afternoon on another record-breaking Tanglewood season. Despite indifferent weather, total attendance for the summer was 168,773 (up about 6,000 from 1957) while ticket sales came to an all-time high of $376,117.

As it happened, attendance was down slightly at the four weekends of full orchestra concerts in the Music Shed, which drew 107,078 customers this year against 107,479 last. But this loss was much more than offset by record turnouts at the Theater Concert Hall, the chamber music concerts, the Saturday morning rehearsals and Tanglewood on Parade, which was the most popular single event of the season with an attendance of 14,588. Insofar as the box office could tell, Beethoven is still by far the most popular name on the Tanglewood hit parade.

The morning after the Tanglewood finale Dr. Munch took off in an Air France plane at Idlewild for Paris and home. Following a rest and several guest-conductor appearances in Europe, he will return to Boston for the opening of the winter season at Symphony Hall in October.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
JOURNAL-AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

AUG 17 1958

Best Berkshire Season

By MILES KASTENDIECK

MORE AND MORE people have been attending the Berkshire Festival events this Summer. With the total approximately 168,773 almost 6,000 more than last year were accounted for in the final summing up.

This number is a whole shed full in itself. Obviously the weather did not prevent the crowds from coming.

One of the interesting facts about the figures is that the Wagner weekend drew the smallest number. Whether this indicates a positive dip in interest in Wagner or a lack of enthusiasm for the kind of programs offered remains debatable. It is quite probable that the selection of large units from the operas would be more alluring fare.

In the light of attendance records, the Great Composer idea as a focal point for the second year must be considered successful. The Brahms, Debussy-Ravel, Wagner, and Beethoven weekends did not offer much beyond standard repertory.

Worth Hearing

The sprinkling of contemporary works that punctuated each concert brought only three that were unfamiliar: Copland's Orchestral Variations, Piston's Viola Concerto, and Vaughan Williams' Eighth Symphony, all worth hearing to be sure.

If this policy continues, then a more expensive point of view should be taken. The time has come for contemporary entries. Two great composers like Sibelius and Prokofieff certainly deserve inclusion.

Inevitably Handel should be selected for his anniversary year with perhaps more choral participation than ever before, just as long as "Messiah" is not one of the works selected.

As a variant on the composer weekends, the programs might be built around nationalism in music. German, French and Russian weekends would be logical. Perhaps an American weekend might be worked out.

Devise Program

It is again time for taking stock of American composers. A most interesting series of programs could be devised that would make the public aware that native talent can hold its own in any lineup.

Though 13,771 people came to hear the Beethoven Ninth at the end of the Festival, a record-breaking crowd of 14,568 attended Tanglewood-on-Parade, the annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center.

The main attraction was Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra. Perhaps this was just a time to let down hair otherwise so properly cared for in regular concerts of the full Boston Symphony.

The playing of the orchestra is still the chief lure of the Berkshire Festival. Performing as it does in a perfect setting, however, makes a trip to Tanglewood the more memorable.

What festival in the world has more beautiful natural surroundings?

OBSCURED TEXT

WESTSIDER
NEW YORK, N.Y.
3 Ti.a YR.

SUMMER 1958

While it is not actually in the New York area, the Tanglewood Music Festival in the Berkshires which depends to a great extent on New York and its visitors for support, is probably the greatest Summer musical treat offered in this country. It is becoming as well known as Salzburg and some of the other European festivals.

---

the Children
Civic Centers

July, with showings on W and Thursday at 11:30 P.M. The Museum,
and Fifth Avenue,
manent exh
of all ages
In addi tioned
Ci

ox, General Manager
Hilton Hotel

MASSACHUSETTS SAYS —

YANKEE COME HOME!

BY JOHN F. NEARY

GEORGE BARKENTIN

Daniel Webster once said of his adopted state: "I shall enter on no encomium upon Massachusetts: she needs none . . . There is her history; the world knows it by heart. The past, at least, is secure." "Black Dan'l" seemed strangely hesitant to prophesy continuing leadership and glory for the old Bay State, in the tradition of less celebrated orators. And there have been others in recent years, lugubriously noting the movement of sizable chunks of Massachusetts industry southward, who have despaired of the state's famed Yankee ingenuity, resourcefulness, and enterprise. "A finished place" is the way a great English writer characterized the state, "completed, while the rest of America grows and develops."

Lest too many Americans be inclined to accept this view, it should be firmly stated that such is not the case. Massachusetts is currently stirring with new life and industry, and those who are planning a summer visit to this historic ground will quickly become aware of it.

Last month, with opening exercises on the village green at Lexington, "Yankee Homecoming 1958," an event possibly unique in our national life was inaugurated—a summer-long regional reunion to which New Englanders, wherever they may be, are summoned. The invitation, "Come Home in 1958, Yank" is being (Continued on page 59)

Governor Foster Furcolo, of Massachusetts, sits at his desk in Boston's historic State House. Born in New Haven and educated at Yale, Governor Furcolo is a maverick in the Massachusetts gubernatorial tradition that in its time has included some of the Bay State's oldest Brahmin names

GEORGE BARKENTIN

MASSACHUSETTS SAYS —

YANKEE COME HOME!

Berkshire [illegible]

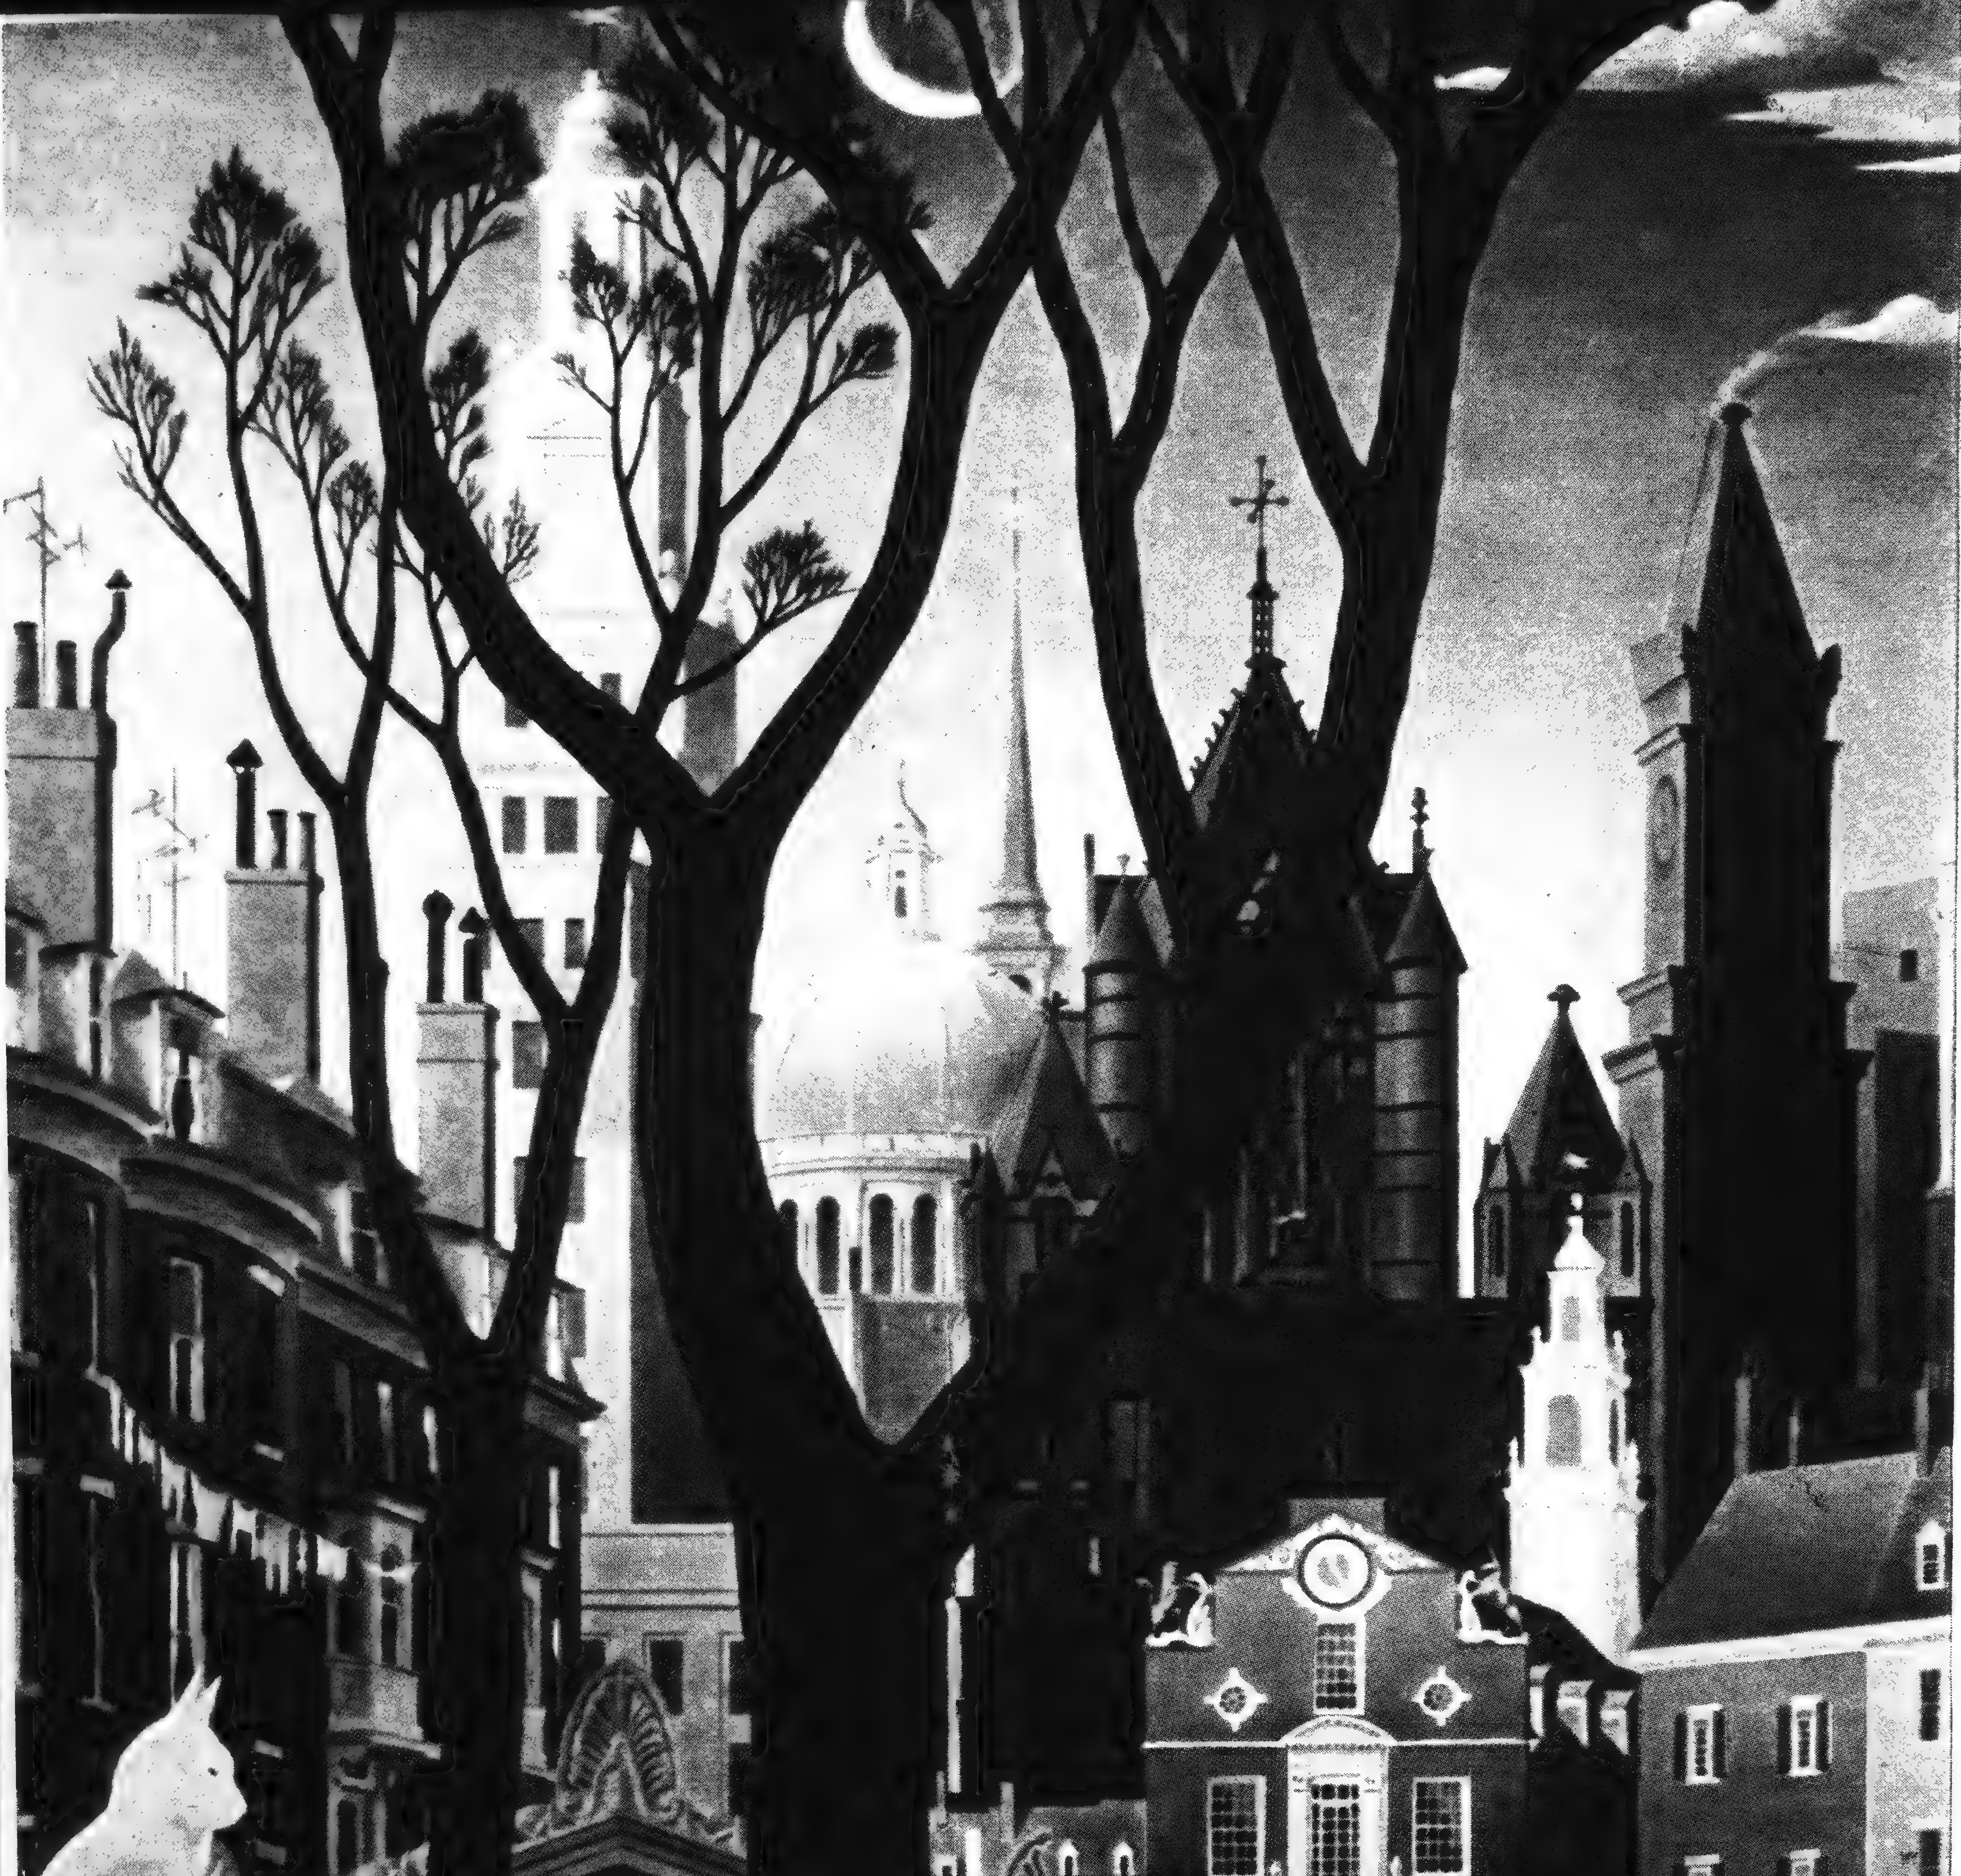
BY JOHN F. NEARY

Daniel Webster once said of his adopted state: "I shall enter on no encomium upon Massachusetts; she needs none . . . There is her history; the world knows it by heart. The past, at least, is secure." "Black Dan'l" seemed strangely hesitant to prophesy continuing leadership and glory for the old Bay State, in the tradition of less celebrated orators. And there have been others in recent years, lugubriously noting the movement of sizable chunks of Massachusetts industry southward, who have despaired of the state's famed Yankee ingenuity, resourcefulness, and enterprise. "A finished place" is the way a great English writer characterized the state, "completed, while the rest of America grows and develops."

Lest too many Americans be inclined to accept this view, it should be firmly stated that such is not the case. Massachusetts is currently stirring with new life and industry, and those who are planning a summer visit to this historic ground will quickly become aware of it.

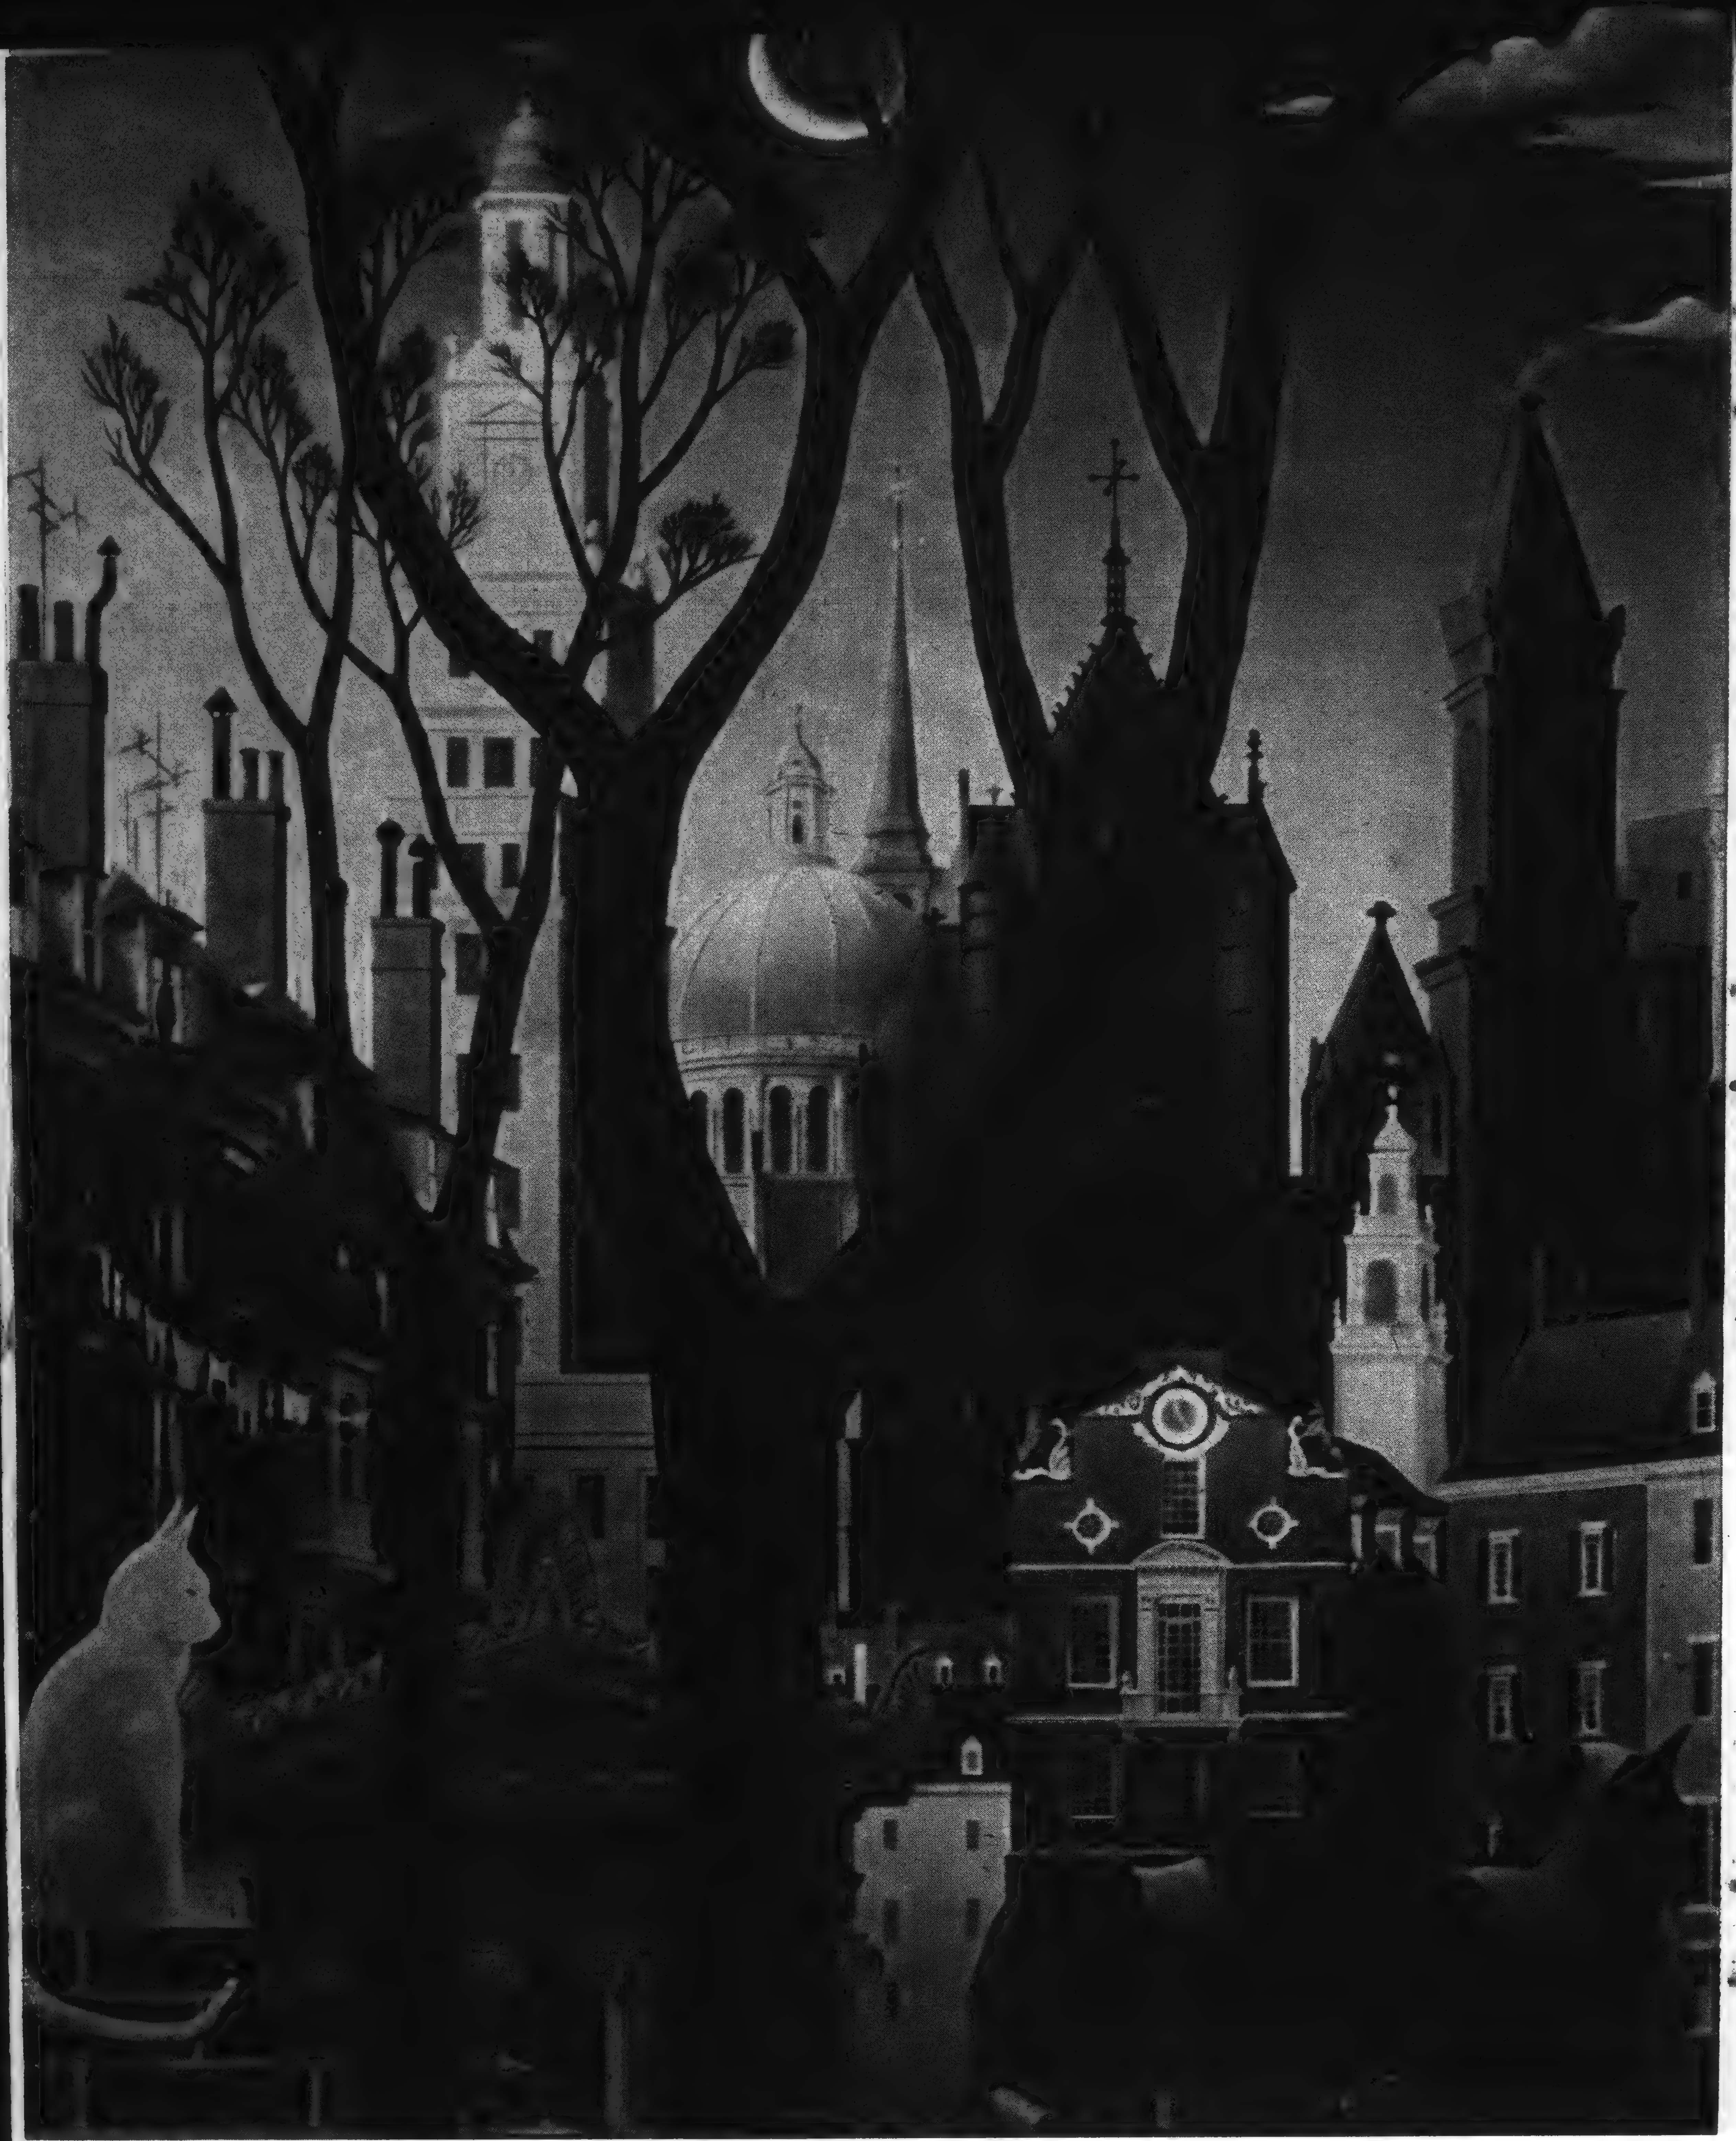
Last month, with opening exercises on the village green at Lexington, "Yankee Homecoming 1958," an event possibly unique in our national life was inaugurated—a summer-long regional reunion to which New Englanders, wherever they may be, are summoned. The invitation, "Come Home in 1958, Yank" is being (Continued on page 59)

Governor Foster Furcolo, of Massachusetts, sits at his desk in Boston's historic State House. Born in New Haven and educated at Yale, Governor Furcolo is a maverick in the Massachusetts gubernatorial tradition that in its time has included some of the Bay State's oldest Brahmin names



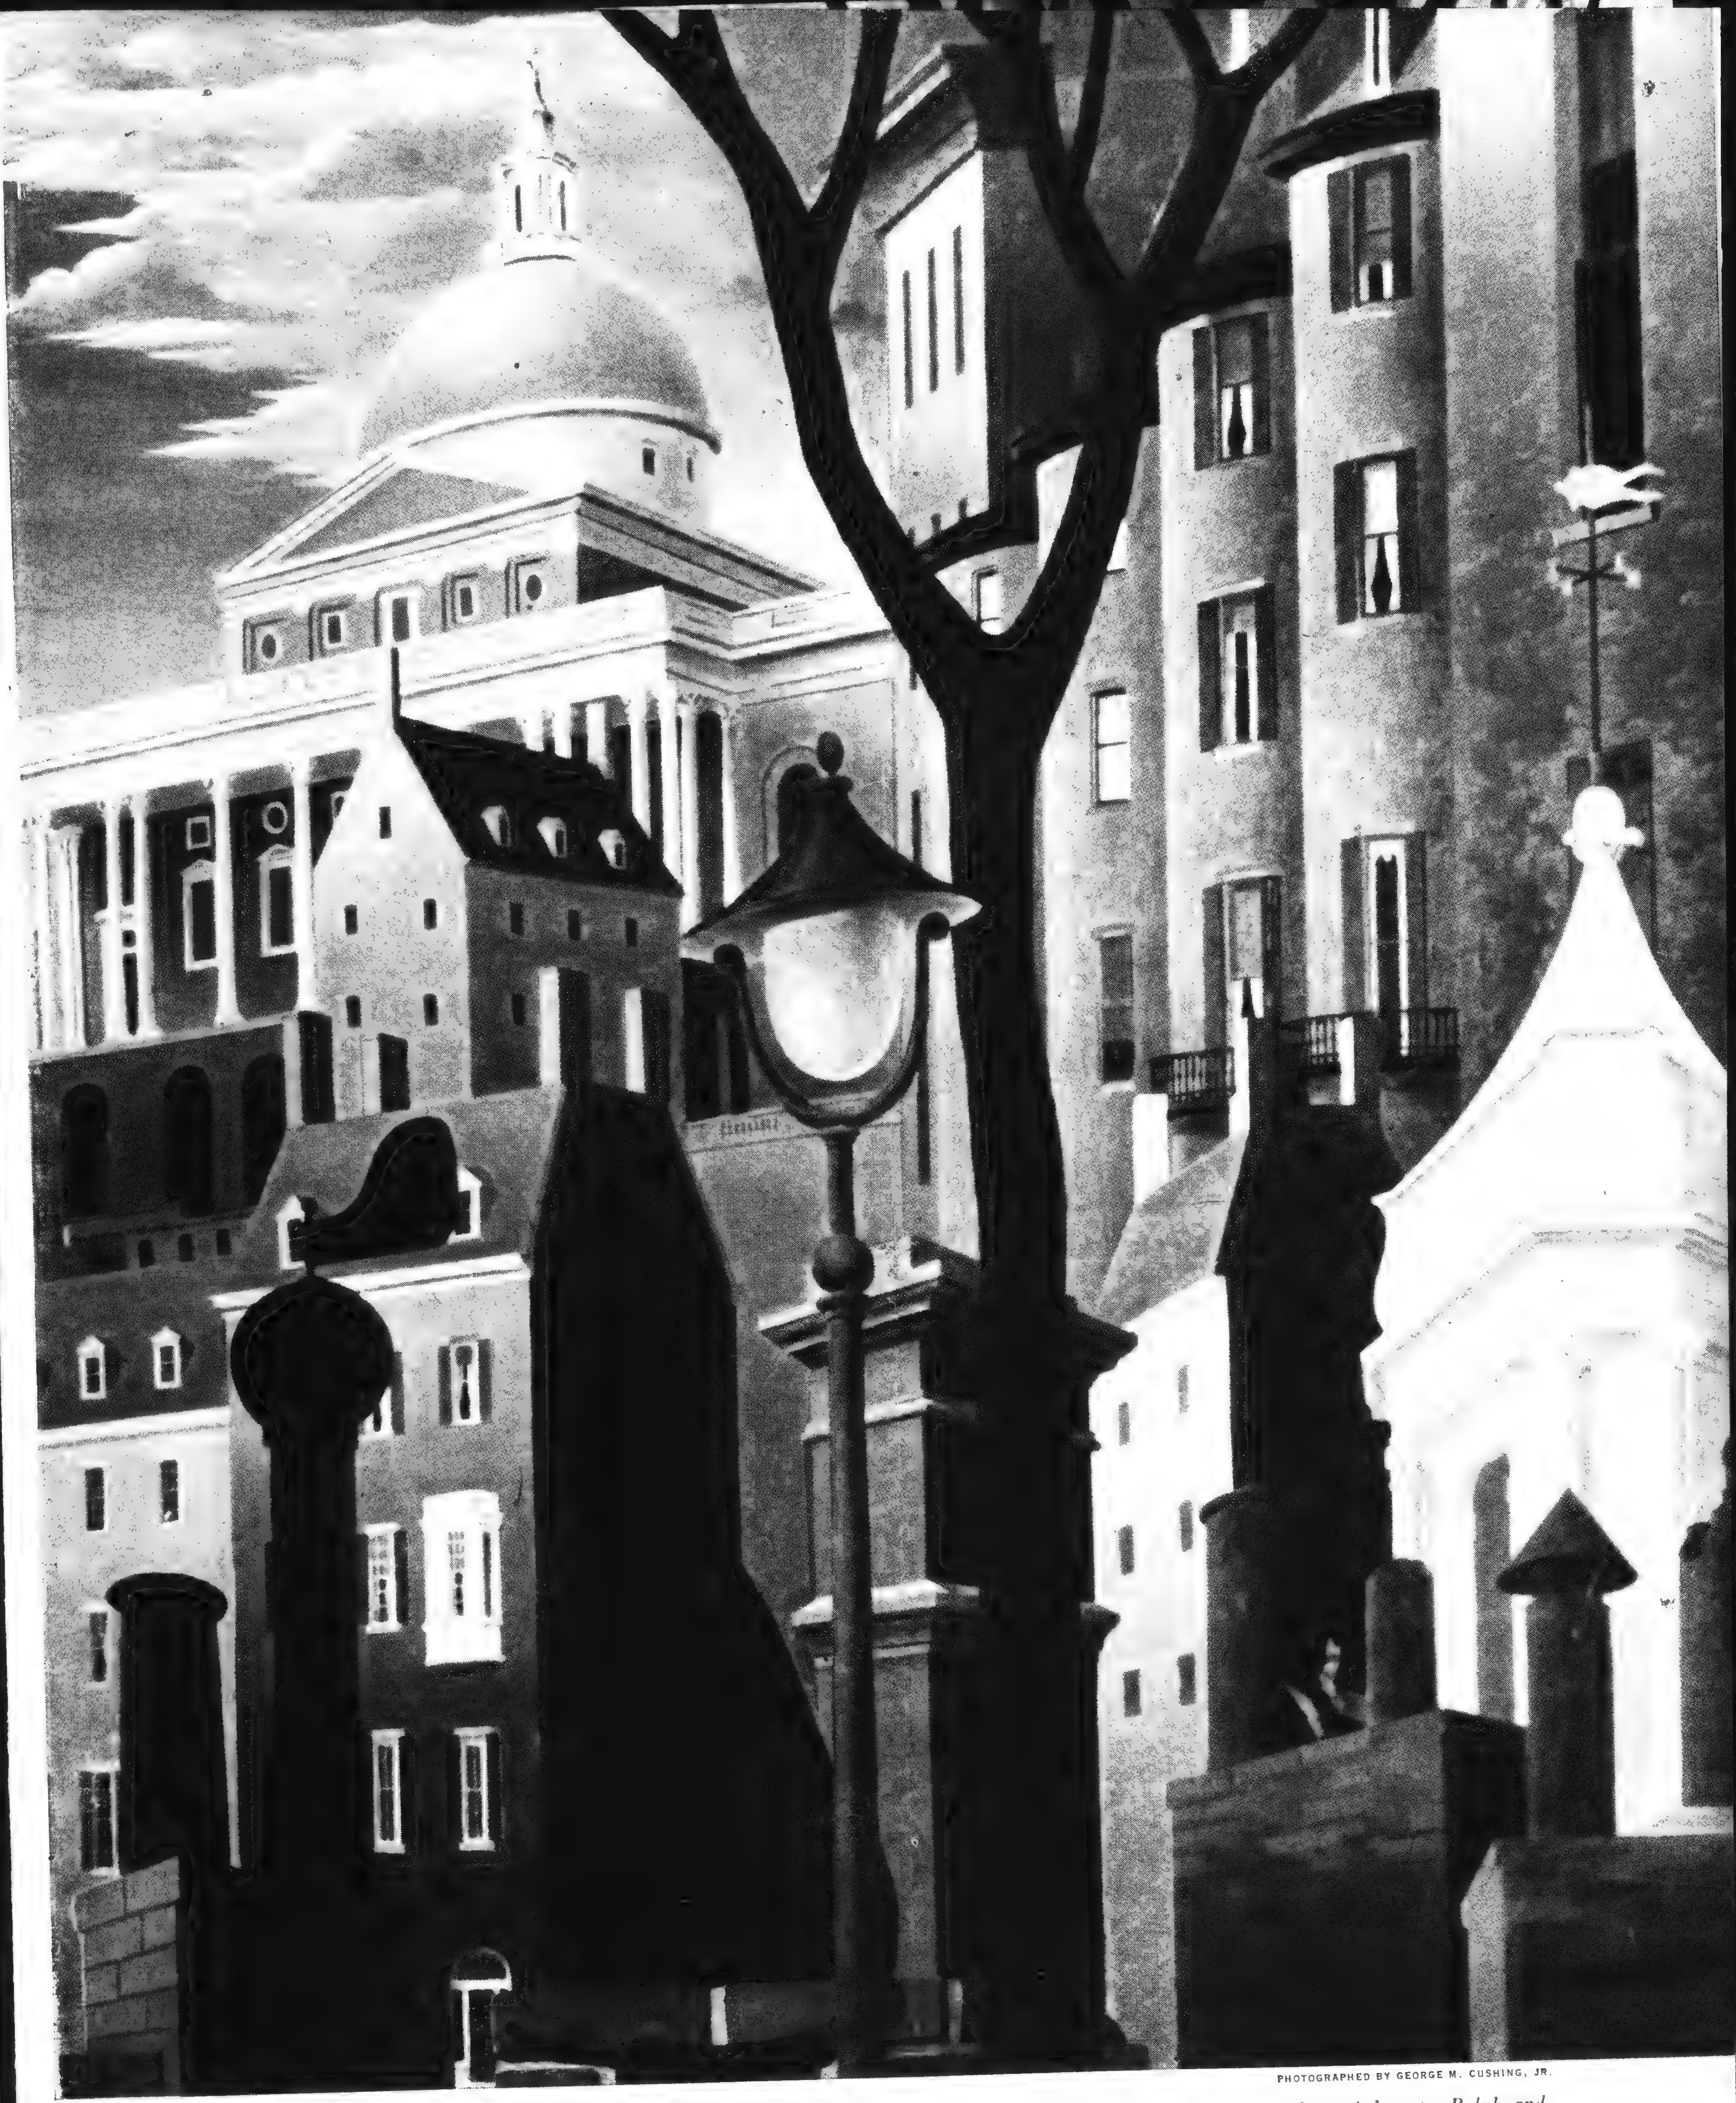
MURALS PAINTED BY THOMAS FRANSIOLI FOR JOSEPH'S RESTAURANT, IN BOSTON

At the extreme left are houses on Union Square, which was "fashionable Boston" before the Back Bay was filled in. In the background, from left to right, are the tower of the Mutual Life Insurance Building; the Christian Science Mother Church, with the steeple of the Arlington Street Church behind it; the turreted Trinity Church, on Copley Square; the tower of the Old State House, with the tall Cus-



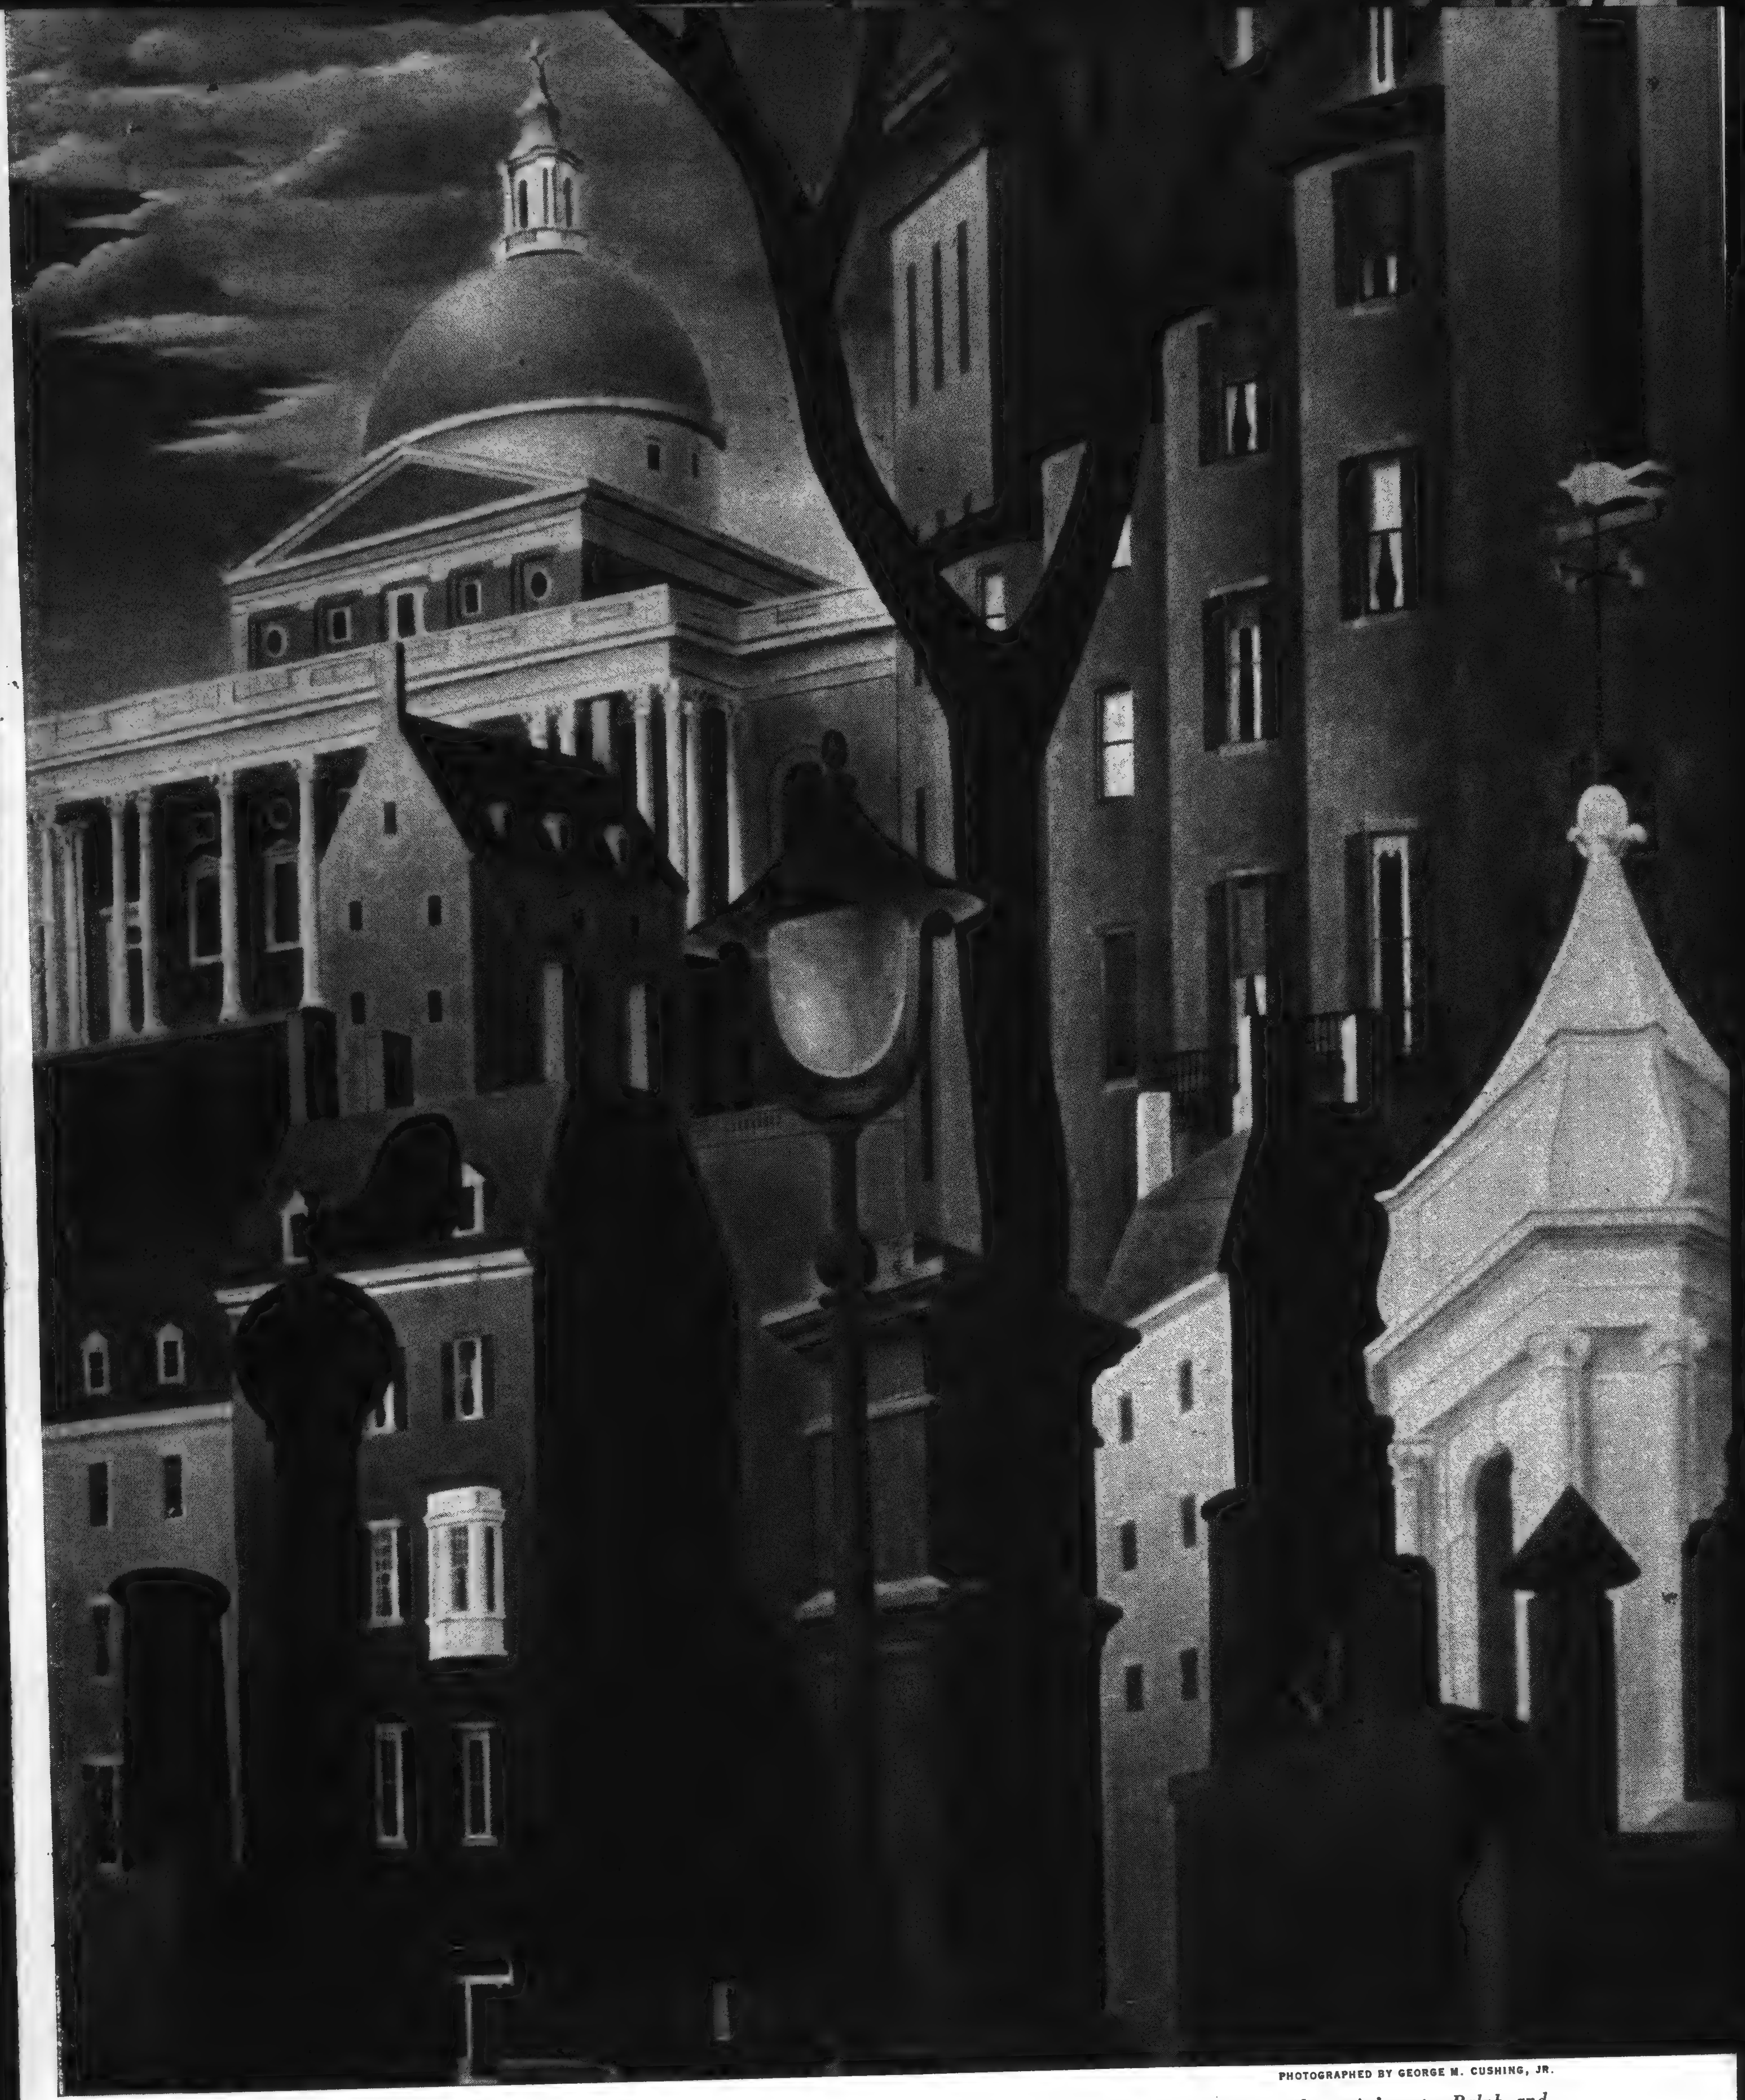
MURALS PAINTED BY THOMAS FRANSIOLI FOR JOSEPH'S RESTAURANT, IN BOSTON

At the extreme left are houses on Union Square, which was "fashionable Boston" before the Back Bay was filled in. In the background, from left to right, are the tower of the Mutual Life Insurance Building; the Christian Science Mother Church, with the steeple of the Arlington Street Church behind it; the turreted Trinity Church, on Copley Square; the tower of the Old State House, with the tall Cus-



PHOTOGRAPHED BY GEORGE M. CUSHING, JR.

tom House tower behind it. Just to the right of the middle of the spread are the Massachusetts State House, sometimes called "New State House"; and, at far right, the upper side of Louisburg Square, on Beacon Hill. In the foreground are the artist's cats, Ralph and Leonard, and, left of the lamppost, the Pinckney Street end of Louisburg Square. At far right, the cupola of Charles Street Meeting Hous



PHOTOGRAPHED BY GEORGE M. CUSHING, JR.

tom House tower behind it. Just to the right of the middle of the spread are the Massachusetts State House, sometimes called "New State House"; and, at far right, the upper side of Louisburg Square, on Beacon Hill. In the foreground are the artist's cats, Ralph and Leonard, and, left of the lamppost, the Pinckney Street end of Louisburg Square. At far right, the cupola of Charles Street Meeting House

YANKEE COME HOME!

President Nathan M. Pusey, above, left, discusses Harvard College's unprecedented $82,500,000 fund-raising campaign with Senator John F. Kennedy during a recent meeting in the Harvard Yard. One of the oldest and richest universities in America, Harvard is giving dramatic meaning to the plight of private education in this country and is clearly indicating the scale upon which action must be taken if our schools and colleges are to maintain their intellectual leadership. One of the program's aims is to effect an immediate raising of faculty salaries

YANKEE COME HOME!

President Nathan M. Pusey, above, left, discusses Harvard College's unprecedented $82,500,000 fund-raising campaign with Senator John F. Kennedy during a recent meeting in the Harvard Yard. One of the oldest and richest universities in America, Harvard is giving dramatic meaning to the plight of private education in this country and is clearly indicating the scale upon which action must be taken if our schools and colleges are to maintain their intellectual leadership. One of the program's aims is to effect an immediate raising of faculty salaries broadcast far and wide. Washington has given it support, and a campaign is being drummed up through the six states by civic and business leaders. A continuing program of events and tour itineraries has been prepared. The traditional wave of summer visitors is expected to be swelled to an inundating flood this year. Massachusetts, the place where it all began, is the natural focal point of homecoming activities and, if the state's far-ranging migrants do indeed head home, they may find surprises awaiting them.

RONNY JAQUES

Those who have been long absent will expect to find Massachusetts' historic shrines intact, its cultural wellsprings bubbling, its scenic and recreational wonders no less wonderful, its politics as turbulent as of yore. And so will they find all these. But they may be little prepared for the new business and industrial resurgence currently animating the venerable corpus of their native state.

The leaven in all this, the new dynamic, is science—the science of the atomic age, whose research and developmental practitioners have found in Massachusetts the climate, brains, and skills necessary for their vital work. The Massachusetts of textiles and leather and paper and wool and investment trusts has a new tiger by the tail: scientific research and development in electronics, nucleonics, physics, and plastics.

Massachusetts, of all our states, has been a notable spawning ground for great men, no less in business, industry, and political science than in the arts and letters. Now, on that illustrious list, place must be made for a new breed of men, a new kind of genius. It must record such masters of modern science as Dr. Vannevar Bush, Dr. James Killian, and Norbert Wiener of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Harvard's Nobel Prize-winner Edward Purcell; Dr. Bruno Rossi, cosmic ray authority; Dr. Arthur Kantrowitz, pioneer in guided missiles; Edwin H. Land of Polaroid; Dr. John G. Trump, high-voltage expert; Dr. Richard Bolt, acoustical engineer; Bradley Dewey of Dewey & Almy; Raymond Stevens of Arthur D. Little; and Dr. Harold Edgerton, high-speed photography authority. These are but a few of the modern titans who live and work in Massachusetts, midwives of her industrial rebirth.

A short drive along the nerve cord which is Route 128, but has been more graphically labeled "Electronics Highway," will enlighten the visitor. Here, in a semicircular highway belt near the fountainhead, M.I.T., are concentrated a sizable segment of the scientific installations of the new industrial Massachusetts. The very newness of this highway, which is still not completed in its swing from Gloucester on the north to Cape Cod on the south, illustrates the pace of this remarkable growth. Here are some of the names which catch the eye as the motorist encounters industrial plant after industrial plant—stark, new, modern, functional—each with its prominent and well-filled parking areas: Transitron, Vectron, Polaroid, RCA, Sylvania, CBS-Hytron, High Voltage Engineering, Tracerlab, Baldwin-Lima-Hamilton, Bomac. All this is but a sample. In Waltham there is Raytheon; in Lynn, General Electric; in Cambridge, Arthur D. Little, Inc.; in North Adams, Sprague Electric; and, along Cambridge's Memorial Drive, it's National Research Corporation, Electronics Corporation of America, etc.

All this is by way of saying that in something over ten years almost one-fifth of the nation's electronic and nuclear operations in research, development, and manufacture have come to Massachusetts. It is a dynamic demonstration of how a mature civilization contains the seeds of rebirth and revitalization.

Significant and exciting as these new industrial directions are to Massachusetts, they represent but one facet of a many-sided and varicolored gem. No other state can offer the visitor so much in such a neatly tied package. In a matter of hours, he can leave the sand dunes of Ipswich or the narrow village streets of picturesque Marblehead or the artists' (Continued on page 60)

YANKEE COME HOME!

colonies of Provincetown and find himself high in the calm of the rolling Berkshires or traversing the peaceful farmlands of the Connecticut Valley. Most of the hallowed scenes of old Boston, too, can be seen in a morning's walk. In fact, "The Freedom Trail," a walking tour through the pages of Colonial history, has been charted through the city streets with just such an idea in mind. For example, in the shadow of the gold-domed State House, down the slope of Beacon Hill, lies the Old Granary Burial Ground, whose mossy headstones mark the graves of Paul Revere, Samuel Adams, John Hancock, and the parents of Benjamin Franklin. Overlooking the Old Granary is Boston's storied Athenaeum, hoary with genteel tradition, very likely the finest private library in America. Here are "Brimstone Corner" and the Park Street Church. And across Tremont Street stands King's Chapel, first Unitarian Church in the new land, a masterpiece of wainscoted Colonial interior design. The Old State House, lion and unicorn still adorning its handsome gable, is but a few steps away. Built in 1713, it served as headquarters for British colonial governors of Massachusetts. Nearby is the Old North Church with its famous belfry; en route is the scene of the Boston Massacre. Close at hand is the celebrated grasshopper weather vane atop Faneuil Hall, "Cradle of Liberty," scene of the noisy protest meetings that preceded the Revolution. Now the sightseer is practically at the door of Paul Revere's house, the only seventeenth-century building still standing in downtown Boston, an architectural delight with its almost medieval feeling and its 1677 origins. Not far away, the valiant frigate Con-

(Continued on page 62)

A panorama of Cambridge's historic buildings shows, in the background, left to right, First Parish Church, Unitarian, of Cambridge; St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church: Harvard's Eliot House Tower: Lowell House Tower; Memorial Church; Memorial Hall; and University Hall. In the foreground, left to right, Wadsworth House (second oldest Harvard building now standing), Christ Church, the Gymnasium, Lampoon Building, the many-chimneyed Massachusetts Hall (Harvard's oldest surviving building), and Harvard Hall, at far right, with Holden Chapel's pediment in the foreground. Murals painted by Thomas Fransioli for Joseph's Restaurant, in Boston

PHOTOGRAPHED BY GEORGE M. CUSHING, JR.

YANKEE COME HOME!

colonies of Provincetown and find himself high in the calm of the rolling Berkshires or traversing the peaceful farmlands of the Connecticut Valley. Most of the hallowed scenes of old Boston, too, can be seen in a morning's walk. In fact, "The Freedom Trail," a walking tour through the pages of Colonial history, has been charted through the city streets with just such an idea in mind. For example, in the shadow of the gold-domed State House, down the slope of Beacon Hill, lies the Old Granary Burial Ground, whose mossy headstones mark the graves of Paul Revere, Samuel Adams, John Hancock, and the parents of Benjamin Franklin. Overlooking the Old Granary is Boston's storied Athenaeum, hoary with genteel tradition, very likely the finest private library in America. Here are "Brimstone Corner" and the Park Street Church. And across Tremont Street stands King's Chapel, first Unitarian Church in the new land, a masterpiece of wainscoted Colonial interior design. The Old State House, lion and unicorn still adorning its handsome gable, is but a few steps away. Built in 1713, it served as headquarters for British colonial governors of Massachusetts. Nearby is the Old North Church with its famous belfry; en route is the scene of the Boston Massacre. Close at hand is the celebrated grasshopper weather vane atop Faneuil Hall, "Cradle of Liberty," scene of the noisy protest meetings that preceded the Revolution. Now the sightseer is practically at the door of Paul Revere's house, the only seventeenth-century building still standing in downtown Boston, an architectural delight with its almost medieval feeling and its 1677 origins. Not far away, the valiant frigate Con- (Continued on page 62) stitution lies at its permanent Charlestown Navy Yard mooring, now visible daily to the thousands who speed high overhead along Boston's soaring Mystic Bridge. Here, too, is Bunker Hill and its once-imposing, but now strangely spindling, monument. All this the traveler has seen in an hour or two.

A panorama of Cambridge's historic buildings shows, in the background, left to right, First Parish Church, Unitarian, of Cambridge; St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church; Harvard's Eliot House Tower; Lowell House Tower; Memorial Church; Memorial Hall; and University Hall. In the foreground, left to right, Wadsworth House (second oldest Harvard building now standing), Christ Church, the Gymnasium, Lampoon Building, the many-chimneyed Massachusetts Hall (Harvard's oldest surviving building), and Harvard Hall, at far right, with Holden Chapel's pediment in the foreground. Murals painted by Thomas Fransioli for Joseph's Restaurant, in Boston

PHOTOGRAPHED BY GEORGE M. CUSHING, JR.

There is still ample time, after a sumptuous luncheon at informal Durgin-Park's, or elegant Locke-Ober's, or the comfortable Parker House, to see most of the city's guidebook attractions before nightfall: T wharf and the sprawling waterfront; historic and unkempt Boston Common; the trim, colorful Public Garden and the celebrated swan boats, scene of the summer Arts Festival; the Fenway with its handsome Mother Church, Scientist; its notable planetarium; Mrs. Jack Gardner's palatial museum with its art treasures and its memories of the fabulous lady who strolled with her lion cub down Tremont street; the unique Arnold Arboretum with its colorful flowering pageant progressing through the seasons; and then Beacon Hill itself. There is nothing quite like the stately charm of its Louisburg Square and Chestnut Street, and Mount Vernon Street, and the old brick sidewalks that dip down to the Charles River, beyond. Much of the most personal history of old Boston is still sealed in the elegant interiors of these prim, proud structures, where occasionally one discerns the glint of a delicate lilac window pane, the matchless early nineteenth-century purple glass of Beacon Hill. All this, in a sweeping, sketchy glance, is the traditional Boston. But there is something, too, to be said for the new—for changes that are transforming the face of the old town.

Boston is acquiring a metropolitan skyline: the towering John Hancock Building, the stately New England Mutual headquarters, the United States Machinery building, to mention a few. Sections of a great interlocking overhead-highway ramp system are falling into place, are already in operation to relieve threatened vehicular strangulation. The first few in a series of multifloored municipal parking structures are now in use. But the most powerful impetus to Boston's economy is yet to come, as a result of the recent action taken by Prudential Insurance Company. In an inspiring demonstration of faith in the future of The Hub, representing an investment of some hundred millions, Prudential has taken over a huge central tract of blighted property—much of it unused railroad yards—and has already embarked upon the first stages of creation of a magnificent office center and business community, to which the city will eventually add a spacious twelve-million-dollar convention hall. Fast upon this development came Federal approval for demolition of the entire slummish West End area and the erection of modern low-rental apartment buildings. This is the area below Beacon Hill that stretches from Bowdoin Square to the Charles and envelops the famous medical landmark which is the Massachusetts General Hospital. The city itself is doing much the same kind of job in the squalid "Skid Row" section of the South End. And even bawdy, notorious Scollay Square, famous hunting ground of the fleet ashore, may soon, as such, be no more.

Currently, local and federal governments are uniting in plans for an impressive municipal office-building concentration in the Scollay Square-School Street section, including city hall and state office building. All is not rosy and promising, however. Boston is bedeviled by high municipal taxes born of ancient buildings and questionable politics, choked with transportation and other problems. But, just as Massachusetts as a whole stirs anew with industrial action, its fabled capital city, too, seethes with urban-redevelopment thinking and planning.

Boston and Massachusetts have always been the scene of social ferment—even violence—political, economic, religious, and racial. For over three hundred years, Bay State history has been one of strong contrasts, but, at the same time, it represents what someone has called a "triumph of adaptation." Perhaps the political adaptation in the long struggle between the well-entrenched Yankee descendants of the Puritans and the aggressive second and third generations of descendants of Irish immigrants is best illustrated and symbolized by Massachusetts' two senators—Leverett B. Saltonstall and John F. Kennedy. Senator Saltonstall is a direct descendant of Sir Richard Saltonstall, who arrived in 1630 aboard the good ship Arbella to found what is now the city of Watertown, adjoining Cambridge. Senator Kennedy had an immigrant grandfather who ran a proper saloon in East Boston, and another, the colorful John F. Fitzgerald ("Honey Fitz"), several times Mayor of Bos-

(Continued on page 111)

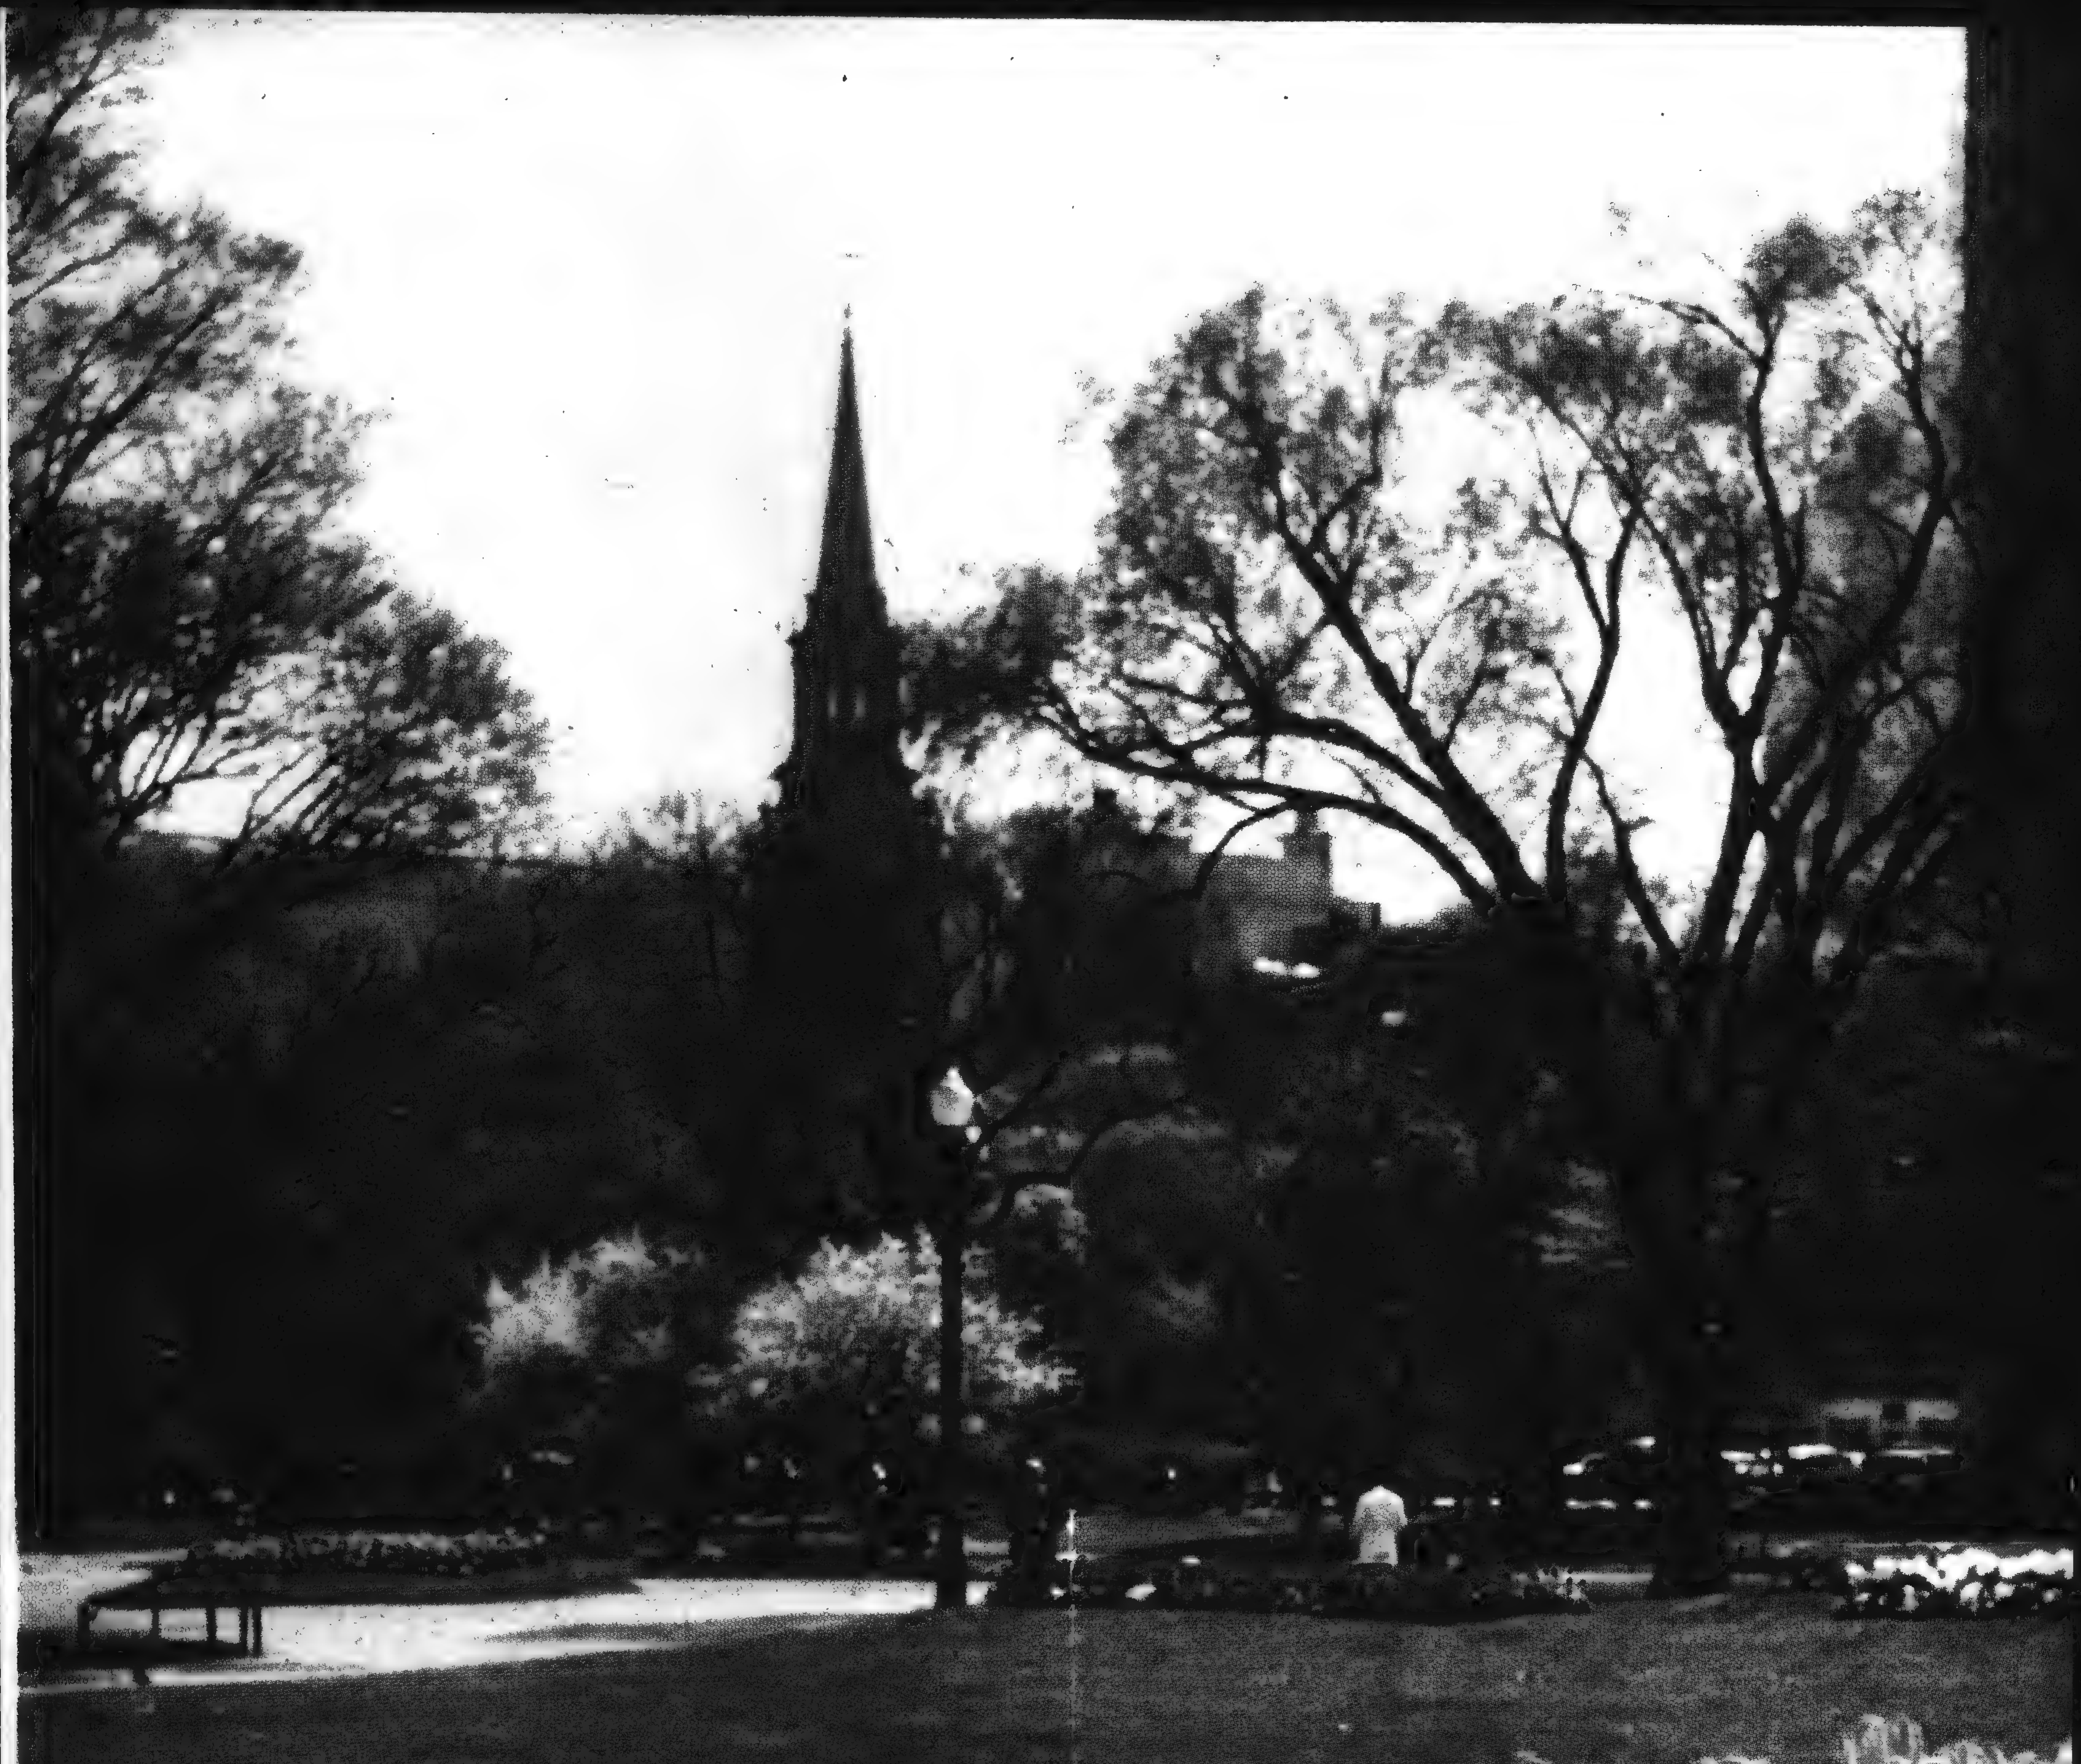
Much of the charm of present-day Boston is due to the fact that it has managed to retain its air of an old-world city. The tranquility of the springtime view, opposite, taken in the Boston Public Garden, completely belies the fact that it is situated only a stone's throw from one of the city's busiest districts ton. The name of Saltonstall stands for tradition, social eminence, entrenched wealth, Republican, Unitarian, Somerset Club. The Kennedy name, as personified in the junior senator, is a dramatic opposite: Democrat, Roman Catholic, heir to great wealth more recently acquired. Both are Harvard men. Significantly, both are outstanding public servants of national reputation, and their friendliness, mutual respect, and not infrequent legislative cooperation are well-known facts. This remarkable "adaptation" hardly spells the millennium for Massachusetts politics, but there is much promise in the manner in which these two have bridged the abyss which has so long divided Beacon Hill Brahmin from South Boston Irish.

THOMAS HOLLYMAN



YANKEE COME HOME!

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 62

Melting Potpourri

One of the most interesting political developments in Massachusetts has been the emergence of Italian-Americans as an articulate voice in state and local government. Piemontes and Iannellas have taken their places beside Foleys and McLaughlins in Boston's City Council, for instance. Edward Weeks, erudite and witty editor of The Atlantic Monthly, said recently of his hometown: "Boston is a town in which the different blood streams seem to be mutually stimulating. The Yankees strike sparks on the Irish, the Irish strike sparks on the Italians, the Italians strike sparks on the French Canadians. This is a singularly American process, and the result is good for us all."

Governor Foster Furcolo is himself of Italo-Irish extraction. Native of Springfield, a doctor's son, Yale man, athlete, lawyer, and former Democratic Congressman, he is a man of warm personality and high ideals, with a hard-won reputation for courage almost beyond the call of duty. This he demonstrated in his very first months of office by openly defying his party regulars and flying in the face of long-accepted Democratic doctrine, to espouse a sales tax as an answer to the pressing financial problems of the state. Governor Furcolo lives in suburban Newton with his busy and beautiful wife, "Kay," and their five stalwart youngsters. His versatility is evident in the authorship of a recently published political tour de force, Let George Do It, which, reportedly, is soon to be adapted for Broadway and, possibly, for moviemaking.

Massachusetts' "society" and its rituals center, of course, in Boston's winter season, with the traditional debutante parties, Vincent Club shows, Junior League activities, Waltz Evenings. Milton, Dedham, Cohasset, and Hamilton are outposts on the social periphery, and

(Continued on page 117)

YANKEE COME HOME!

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 111

The Country Club in Brookline, Myopia Hunt and Essex on the North Shore, and The Somerset in Boston are strongholds of "proper" festivities. More debutantes than ever return from the college ranks for presentation during the holidays, and more frequent double debuts reflect the economic realities of these amenities. The parties are gay, with lovely Gloria Kent currently taking up where such Boston beauties as Lucy Cochrane and "Sissy" Frothingham left off, as "glamour girl" of the season.

Bay State Culture

The rich Bay State heritage in matters cultural and educational has always been a challenge to later generations, and each has had its flowering in Massachusetts. The magnificent Boston Symphony Orchestra, under Dr. Charles Münch, upholds each week the traditions of Koussevitsky and his predecessors; and the place for the proper Bostonian on Friday afternoon continues to be Symphony Hall. Under the Symphony's aegis, Tanglewood, "the American Salzburg"—more correctly known as The Berkshire Music Center—draws thousands of students and music lovers to beautiful Lenox for six enchanting midsummer weeks, which the visitor would do well to include in his itinerary. It was back in 1934 that the trustees of the Symphony backed Dr. Koussevitsky's plan for such a festival in the rolling Berkshire hills. In those early, formal days at Tanglewood, black tie was de rigueur for the evening concerts. Now, a cross section of America makes the summer pilgrimage. Some six thousand listeners crowd the music shed, while three times as many more sprawl at their ease on the grass outside. The Boston Symphony sponsors a summer music center, and the sound of music, rehearsing voices, and instruments is never stilled.

Art centers flourish in Massachusetts, notably in such quaint and charming ports as East Gloucester, Rockport, and Provincetown. The Boston Museum of Fine Arts houses one of the world's finest collections of oriental art treasures, but it strives constantly to keep day-to-day art interest alive in Boston. Worcester's Museum of Art is ranked as one of the very best of the country's small-city museums, as is the Addison Gallery in Andover.

The Massachusetts of Emerson and Hawthorne and Thoreau, of Whittier and Longfellow and Holmes, does not rest on its literary laurels. It currently claims novelists such as the renowned John P. Marquand and Edwin O'Connor, whose The Last Hurrah painted an unforgettable picture of a thinly disguised Jim Curley and the days of his political high jinks in Boston; historians such as Pulitzer Prize-Winners Oscar Handlin and Samuel Eliot Morison; economists such as Sumner Slichter. There is scarcely a corner of Massachusetts without its own literary association, whether it be New Bedford or Concord or Amherst or Gloucester or Salem or Newburyport.

Massachusetts has never relinquished its educational leadership and shows no signs of doing so now. Harvard is in the midst of fund raising, its goal the staggering amount of $82,500,000, for improving facilities, providing scholarships, remunerating faculty. It has not hesitated to use even the persuasive magic of television and a nationwide radio show, The Case for the College, to implement this drive, and the eventual successful outcome is conceded. M.I.T. in the atomic age has lent its president to the nation and has drawn to Cambridge what is probably the greatest concentration of scientific brain power in the nation. Boston University sprawls in an ever increasing mass across the city proper. Boston College has sponsored a series of highly charged civic seminars which have won earnest support from the leaders of city and state. Schools and colleges too numerous to mention, of course, dot the map of Massachusetts, from Tufts and Holy Cross, in the east, to Amherst and Williams, in the west; from Radcliffe and Wellesley, near Boston, to Smith and Mt. Holyoke, in the Connecticut Valley. In addition to the work of these venerable seats of learning such immediate educational movements are afoot as a bill before the state legislature asking $5,000.000 for the establishment of a satellite-missile program at state-operated Johnny-come-lately Lowell Technological Institute.

The Commonwealth's medical tradition is a noble one. Scarcely a month passes but that, from some part of the nation or the world, patients arrive seeking the almost unique skills to be found on the medical staffs of the Massachusetts General Hospital, the Peter Bent Brigham, the Lahey Clinic—a prince or a prime minister, or an infant with an upside-down stomach, or twins in need of a kidney transplant, perhaps. Thus it has always been with medicine and Massachusetts; thus it continues to be.

Yankee Heritage

For the homecoming Bay State Yankee, there is a proud awareness of all these overtones of glory in his native state but, for him and most of his fellow visitors, the charm which is Massachusetts lies in its natural loveliness, colored and flavored by the landmarks of history on every side. He will find his purest enjoyment in a visit, perhaps, to Old Sturbridge Village, located between Worcester and

(Continued on page 126)

[239]

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-420

SATURDAY REVIEW
NEW YORK CITY
Circ. W. 165,049

APR 5 1958

Throughout the world the name "Tanglewood" means one of the [illegible] summer music festival centers. On the beautiful estate, located in Lenox, in the heart of the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts, six weeks of symphony concerts are presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in conjunction with the Berkshire Music Center School, where young musicians of promise receive advanced instruction in their chosen fields. The triangular shed, at the left, covers the orchestra and some of the thousands of listeners, the overflow relaxing on the spacious surrounding lawns

YANKEE COME HOME!

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 117

Springfield, an amazingly faithful recreation of an eigthteenth-century rural New England community built to actual scale. There are homes, shops, mills, barns, a general store, a meeting house, and a tavern erected around a village green dominated by the Mansion House.

The visitor can readily spend an entire vacation among the sights and scenes of eastern Massachusetts alone. Picturesque Plymouth and the Rock, with the much-publicized replica of the Mayflower lying at anchor offshore and the fascinating recreation of old Plimoth Plantation to view, will inevitably turn him toward Cape Cod. Two of the world's most enchanting thoroughfares—Chestnut Street, in Salem, with its McIntire houses, mansions of the shipmasters who sailed to the Orient; and High Street, in Newburyport, with its handsomely proportioned Colonial manses, including that of the fabulous Lord Timothy Dexter—will draw him to the North Shore of Massachusetts Bay. Then to Lexington and Concord, of course, and all the history-tinged villages along the way, such as Ipswich and Dedham, till the pilgrim wishes his days might be weeks.

But to know Massachusetts, the tourist would do well to save some time for the back country of Central Massachusetts pleasantly undulating around respectable factory towns. Here is an ever changing pattern of roads that curve and dip and climb among birch-bordered lakes and ponds and wandering roadside brooks. Here one passes apple orchards and boulder-strewn pastures and pine groves, and then tobacco farms and fields eventually rolling gently toward the foothills of the majestic Berkshires.

Historic Tour

Springfield offers the tourist another example of the Colonial village in Storrowton, on the grounds of the Eastern States Exposition, open to the public from June to October. After Springfield and Holyoke, the drive up the green and fertile Connecticut Valley is one of the most rewarding in Massachusetts. There are miles of tobacco and onion farms, and then Old Deerfield, now a sleepy village of infinite charm, once the scene of the terrifying Indian Massacre of 1704. Half of Deerfield's houses were burned, forty-nine of its inhabitants killed, and the rest carried off into captivity in the culmination of thirty years of savage fighting and bloodshed during King Philip's War and the French and Indian attacks. The old Colonial town has been restored with unsurpassed fidelity and provides a treasure house for antiquarians.

Farther north is a triangle of interesting college towns providing, in their proximity, coeducational advantages. Smith College for women, in Northampton, is but a few miles from Amherst and fast-developing University of Massachusetts, while "over the mountain" in South Hadley, another few miles distant, is situated another of America's great colleges for women, Mt. Holyoke. Northampton will always be associated with the Calvin Coolidges and Amherst with the strangely wonderful poet-recluse Emily Dickinson. Greenfield, beyond, as thoroughly attractive and thriving a town as any in Massachusetts, is the gateway to the exciting Mohawk Trail, a ribbon of scenically spectacular roadway rising west to the Berkshires and the Hoosac Range. From Greenfield, the highway climbs up and up between towering walls of green, with rushing streams and jagged rocks and shady groves on each side. Just as breathtakingly, the road finally drops, almost vertically, into the lap of the little mill town of North Adams. The whole experience is unforgettable, particularly the sweep and grandeur of the panorama which presents itself from the topmost point. Across the lush countryside your eye travels to Vermont, in the north—even to New Hampshire—and then swings southward to Pittsfield and the Taconic Range, which slopes into the valley of the Hudson River. Just ahead, like a hidden storybook canyon, the Berkshire Valley opens up before you. Here is a kind of beauty and repose that stirs you as some vast garden might. Lovely town follows lovely town: serenely dignified Williamstown, site of Williams College; exhilaratingly pleasant Lenox and Great Barrington and Stockbridge. Here, in this tranquil valley of undulating meadowland, you find the calm and restfulness that should come at journey's end.

So, come home, Yank, in 1958 . . . with our own people from all over America. There is something for everybody—the glory of yesterday—the challenge of today—in Massachusetts. Your home state always has the welcome mat out and is equally anxious to have you renew the ties with the past and to see the strides we have made toward the future. We are sure you will feel that Yankee enterprise is still as healthy a quality as in the days of yore.

LITERARY LANDMARKS, USA

NAULAKHA: Rudyard Kipling and his American-born wife Caroline built their Vermont home Naulakha with the royalties from the first "Jungle Book." They moved into the big grey frame house, "riding on its hillside like a boat on the flank of a far wave," in the fall of 1893. Here in the next three years, Kipling completed the second "Jungle Book," "Captains Courageous," "The Seven Seas" (a collection of poems), and "The Day's Work" (a collection of short stories). The Kiplings' life there was not serene. Foolishly, they made no attempt to fit themselves into rural Vermont life. They plastered Naulakha with "No Trespass" signs. They maintained a private post-office and tried to get their own railroad station. They dressed nightly for dinner; their servants were English. A liveried footman drove them about the astonished countryside in a phaeton. Such high-handed disregard for the natives was all very well in Kipling's imperial India, but snubbing the countryside is no way to get along in Vermont. After ten years, in 1903, Kipling returned to England, moving most of his possessions as well. But on the fireplace in the book-lined study is an inscription carved there by his father: "The night cometh when no man can work." Kipling's desk is there, too, but the inscription he carved on it—"Oft was I weary as I toiled at thee"—was removed at Mrs. Kipling's orders.

PETE'S TAVERN: "It was while living in Irving Place that Porter became the O. Henry of fact and legend," writes Gerald Langford. The well-known short-story writer lived in the front parlor of a narrow brownstone house at 55 Irving Place, which survives today as the New Starlight Restaurant, with the Building and Allied Trades Council in what was once the basement; the building today is also headquarters for the New York Writer's Guild. But his memory is warmly and appropriately cherished across the street in one of his favorite hangouts, Healy's Saloon. This was the neighborhood bar he called The Club or Con's in "The Lost Blend" after Cornelius Delaney, the night bartender. It survives today, with virtually no changes in appearance after forty years, as Pete's. Over a booth which O. Henry is supposed to have preferred, just inside the front door, hangs a photograph and a letter in his own shaky hand. Framed originals of his stories as they first appeared in The New York World and elsewhere are also in evidence, together with photographs of such latter-day celebrities as Ernest Boyd, who also found the mahogany-and-mirrored atmosphere of Pete's both friendly and conducive to literary ruminations. And like the better-known P. J. Clarke's on Third Avenue, Pete's has not yielded its Victorian virtues to chrome-and-steel modernization.

TANGLEWOOD: Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote "The Scarlet Letter" after the election of General Zachary Taylor to the Presidency cost him his job at the Salem, Massachusetts, Customs House in 1848. His next, and favorite of his own novels, was "The House of the Seven Gables." Although a combination restaurant and museum of that name is on the list of every tourist today who visits Salem, Hawthorne wrote "The House of the Seven Gables," "The Snow Image and Other Tales," and "The Wonder-Book" in eighteen months of 1850 and 1851 when he lived in a modest farmhouse a mile from the center of Lenox, Mass. The Hawthornes called their house Tanglewood, a name he appears to have coined for the "Tanglewood Tales." The little red house at the top of the pasture on the exterior looks exactly as it did in Hawthorne's day. Even the planting of flowers in the modest garden around the house follows Mrs. Hawthorne's own notes. The original house was destroyed by fire in 1891; the present structure was rebuilt at a cost of about $15,000 on the original foundations, from the author's descriptions and the original architect's plans, in 1948 by the American Federation of Music Clubs. Except for a parlor furnished in the period of the Hawthorne occupancy, no effort has been made to make it a literary museum.

BARBARA FRIETCHIE'S HOUSE: In 1943 Winston Churchill drove through Frederick, Md., where the principal tourist mecca is the reconstructed house of Barbara Frietchie. The British Prime Minister, who seems to know everything, hopped out of the car and recited John Greenleaf Whittier's famous poem from beginning to end, including of course the lines which every schoolboy knows: "Shoot if you must, this old gray head, But spare your country's flag, she said." A plaque on the modest story-and-a-half house on Carroll Creek replacing the original in which Dame Barbara actually lived (and which fell into the creek years ago), now commemorates W.C.'s visit, but the townspeople of Frederick are a little less certain that the glovemaker's widow actually waved the Union flag in defiance of Stonewall Jackson, or made the heroic speech which Whittier, whose travels never took him south of Philadelphia, described. The exact accuracy of the facts behind the poem, almost a century later, are scarcely more important than whether or not Hamlet actually lived at Elsinore, or Juliet in Verona. Barbara Frietchie belongs in the same category of folk heroines with Betsy Ross, whose Philadelphia home is open to the public as a museum there, despite the fact that few serious historians accept the legend that she created the first American flag. —NELSON LANSDALE.

SATURDAY REVIEW
NEW YORK CITY
Circ. W. 165,049

APR 5 1958

LITERARY LANDMARKS, USA

NAULAKHA: Rudyard Kipling and his American-born wife

PETE'S TAVERN: "It was while living in Irving Place that Porter became the O. Henry of fact and legend," writes used by an active household. When I returned the Microbus one morning to the rental agency, I remarked affectionately that I hoped our good old bus had earned a decent rest, or at any rate an overhaul. Oh, no, the car man said; a family of American tourists was departing for Nice in it that very afternoon. I hope they had a chance to learn about that fuel knob first.

—Standard Oil Co. (N.J.).

Sightseers vis-à-vis.

is, of course, internationally known. But the best example of the state's cultural eminence is the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra. Founded in 1903, it has of late grown—under such conductors as Eugene Ormandy (1931-1936), Dimitri Mitropoulos (1936-1949), and currently Antal Dorati—into an institution of world renown. The recent State Department-sponsored tour to Greece, Yugoslavia, and the Middle East enhanced this world acclaim, while the support for the orchestra at home has never been more enthusiastic. In a stellar role at the centennial celebrations, the orchestra will open the festive season by furnishing the music for the Symphony Centennial Ball on April 26. Later in the season, at the Centennial Music Festival (see below), it will perform two symphonies commissioned especially for the occasion—one by Roger Sessions and one by the Norwegian composer Harald Saeverud—as well as a prize-winning composition by a Minnesota composer in a Centennial-sponsored contest.

The Statehood Centennial Commission has also commissioned an opera of Joseph Warren Beach, himself a distinguished man of letters, has enrolled such writer-teachers as Eric Bentley and Robert Penn Warren.

For the terpsichoreans there will be folk-dancing festivals in Duluth (May 30-June 1) and in St. Paul (August 23) and plans are afoot for presentations by the Minneapolis Academy of the Dance and the Andahazy Ballet Borealis of St. Paul. The latter is America's largest classical ballet school, with an extensive and loyal following.

The visual arts—latest to flower in Minnesota—also come in for their share of attention. Three thousand dollars will be divided among winners in various fine arts contests; traveling exhibits of local art have been set up, and other special shows.

WORLD AFFAIRS
1958 Cultural Holidays
Russia (Dr. W. Dymsza, U. of Md.) • Africa (George V. Denny, Jr., Town Hall) • Europe (Dr. Logan Osterndorf, V.P.I.) • Vikings (Dr. E. Guy Cutshall). 30 other tours available to satisfy all Cultural Interests.
Write for Brochures—Programs—Plans
CULTURAL TRAVEL COUNCIL
(Travel arrangements by Simmons Tours Inc.)
Dept. S, 441 Madison Ave. New York 22, N.Y.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-420

Throughout the world the name "Tanglewood" means one of the [illegible] summer music festival centers. On the beautiful estate, located in Lenox, in the heart of the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts, six weeks of symphony concerts are presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra in conjunction with the Berkshire Music Center School, where young musicians of promise receive advanced instruction in their chosen fields. The triangular shed, at the left, covers the orchestra and some of the thousands of listeners, the overflow relaxing on the spacious surrounding lawns

YANKEE COME HOME!

CONTINUED FROM PAGE 117

Springfield, an amazingly faithful recreation of an eigthteenth-century rural New England community built to actual scale. There are homes, shops, mills, barns, a general store, a meeting house, and a tavern erected around a village green dominated by the Mansion House.

The visitor can readily spend an entire vacation among the sights and scenes of eastern Massachusetts alone. Picturesque Plymouth and the Rock, with the much-publicized replica of the Mayflower lying at anchor offshore and the fascinating recreation of old Plimoth Plantation to view, will inevitably turn him toward Cape Cod. Two of the world's most enchanting thoroughfares—Chestnut Street, in Salem, with its McIntire houses, mansions of the shipmasters who sailed to the Orient; and High Street, in Newburyport, with its handsomely proportioned Colonial manses, including that of the fabulous Lord Timothy Dexter—will draw him to the North Shore of Massachusetts Bay. Then to Lexington and Concord, of course, and all the history-tinged villages along the way, such as Ipswich and Dedham, till the pilgrim wishes his days might be weeks.

But to know Massachusetts, the tourist would do well to save some time for the back country of Central Massachusetts pleasantly undulating around respectable factory towns. Here is an ever changing pattern of roads that curve and dip and climb among birch-bordered lakes and ponds and wandering roadside brooks. Here one passes apple orchards and boulder-strewn pastures and pine groves, and then tobacco farms and fields eventually rolling gently toward the foothills of the majestic Berkshires.

Historic Tour

Springfield offers the tourist another example of the Colonial village in Storrowton, on the grounds of the Eastern States Exposition, open to the public from June to October. After Springfield and Holyoke, the drive up the green and fertile Connecticut Valley is one of the most rewarding in Massachusetts. There are miles of tobacco and onion farms, and then Old Deerfield, now a sleepy village of infinite charm, once the scene of the terrifying Indian Massacre of 1704. Half of Deerfield's houses were burned, forty-nine of its inhabitants killed, and the rest carried off into captivity in the culmination of thirty years of savage fighting and bloodshed during King Philip's War and the French and Indian attacks. The old Colonial town has been restored with unsurpassed fidelity and provides a treasure house for antiquarians.

Farther north is a triangle of interesting college towns providing, in their proximity, coeducational advantages. Smith College for women, in Northampton, is but a few miles from Amherst and fast-developing University of Massachusetts, while "over the mountain" in South Hadley, another few miles distant, is situated another of America's great colleges for women, Mt. Holyoke. Northampton will always be associated with the Calvin Coolidges and Amherst with the strangely wonderful poet-recluse Emily Dickinson. Greenfield, beyond, as thoroughly attractive and thriving a town as any in Massachusetts, is the gateway to the exciting Mohawk Trail, a ribbon of scenically spectacular roadway rising west to the Berkshires and the Hoosac Range. From Greenfield, the highway climbs up and up between towering walls of green, with rushing streams and jagged rocks and shady groves on each side. Just as breathtakingly, the road finally drops, almost vertically, into the lap of the little mill town of North Adams. The whole experience is unforgettable, particularly the sweep and grandeur of the panorama which presents itself from the topmost point. Across the lush countryside your eye travels to Vermont, in the north—even to New Hampshire—and then swings southward to Pittsfield and the Taconic Range, which slopes into the valley of the Hudson River. Just ahead, like a hidden storybook canyon, the Berkshire Valley opens up before you. Here is a kind of beauty and repose that stirs you as some vast garden might. Lovely town follows lovely town: serenely dignified Williamstown, site of Williams College; exhilaratingly pleasant Lenox and Great Barrington and Stockbridge. Here, in this tranquil valley of undulating meadowland, you find the calm and restfulness that should come at journey's end.

So, come home, Yank, in 1958 . . . with our own people from all over America. There is something for everybody—the glory of yesterday—the challenge of today—in Massachusetts. Your home state always has the welcome mat out and is equally anxious to have you renew the ties with the past and to see the strides we have made toward the future. We are sure you will feel that Yankee enterprise is still as healthy a quality as in the days of yore.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
BULLETIN
Circ. D. 709,441 - S. 723,743

FEB 27 1958

Massachusetts Exhibits Highlight Landmarks, Etc.

Massachusetts, with its "vacations unlimited" exhibit, makes its debut at the Philadelphia Motor Boat and Sportsmen's Show under the sponsorship of the Massachusetts Department of Commerce.

Unusual, as well as modern in its concept, the display is informative to an exceptional degree, its ten-foot brightly-colored map depicting many of the interesting things for the tourist to see and do while traveling over the state's excellent highway system. Historic landmarks, choice recreation spots, state forest and park locations and the many seashore and inland vacation areas so well known for years are noted.

Wide Range of Vacations

Smaller printed copies of this map, with even more information on the reverse side, will be distributed to all show visitors.

Flanking the map on either side, backed by golden fiber glass panels, are large shadow-box color transparencies, each of which tells a story of vacation features in the Commonwealth.

The Bay state's 1,800-mile coastline offers the widest range of seashore vacations, with its hundreds of miles of beaches and temperate waters for swimming, boating and sport fishing.

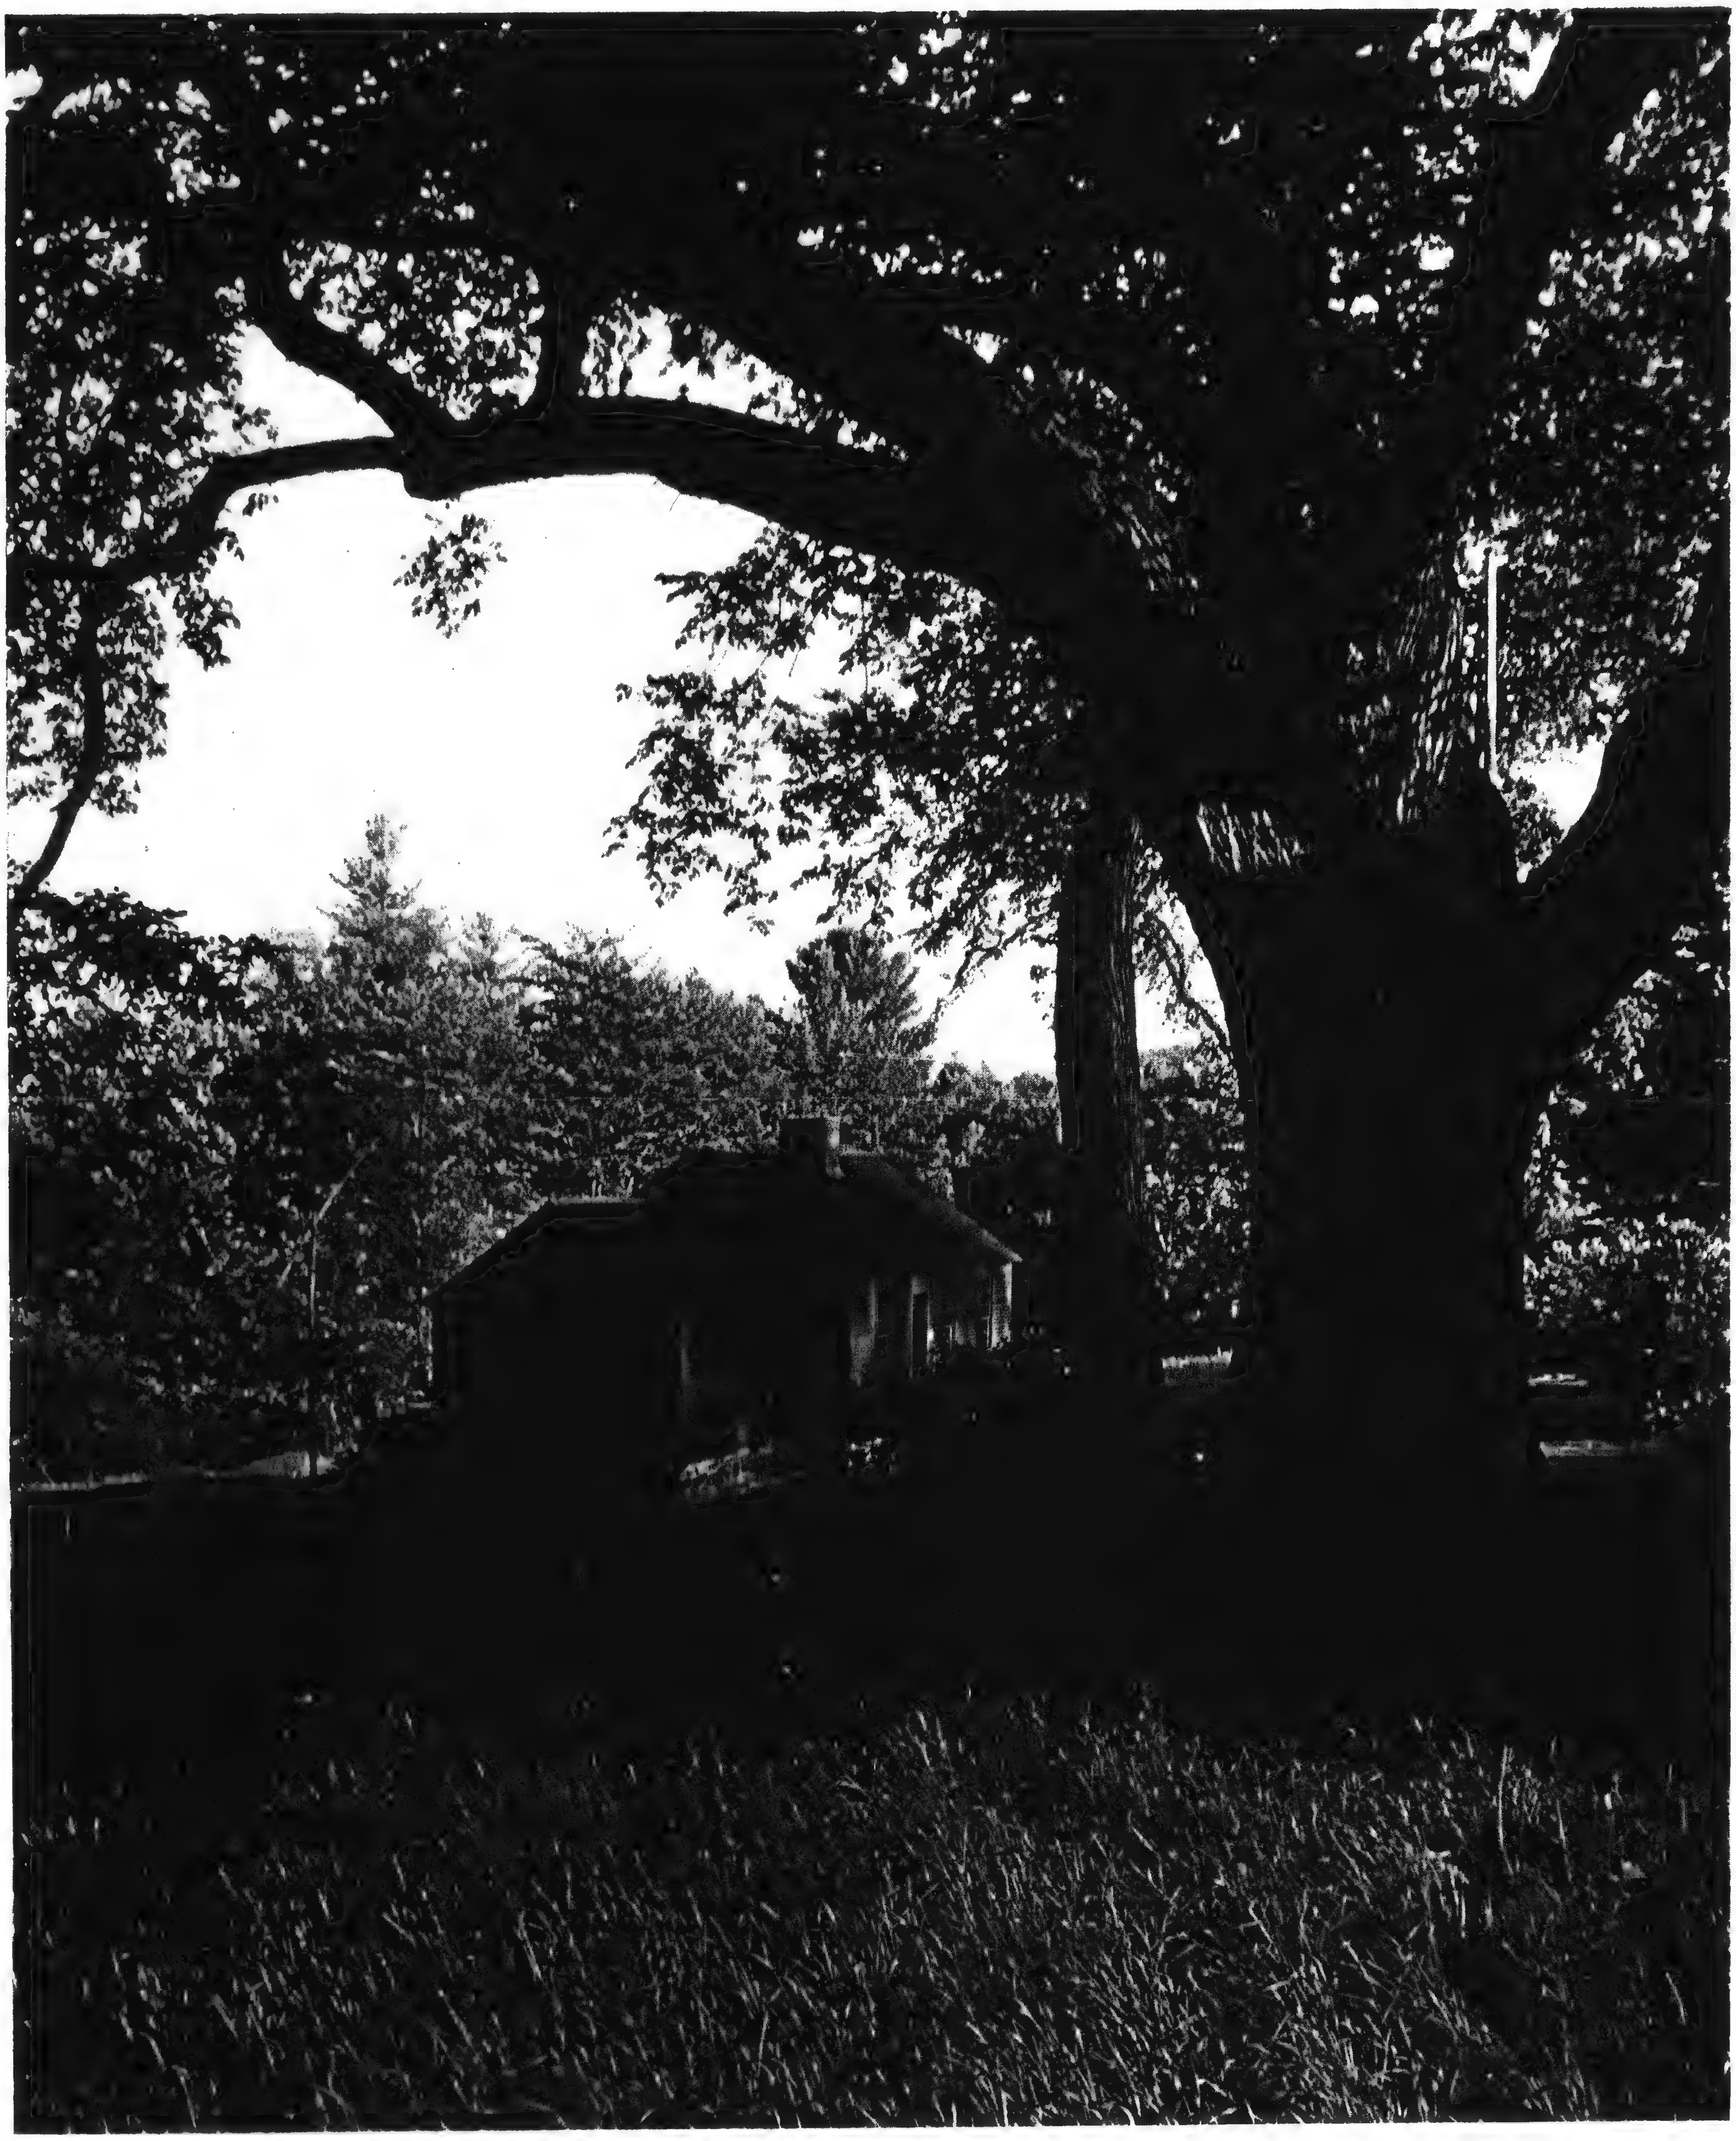
Historic Treasure House

Massachusetts' east coast is a veritable treasure house of history. Residents for generations have taken pride in the preservation and maintenance of those memorabilia that played such a vital role in this country's early days.

The unspoiled Berkshire Hills, now world famous for the six-weeks' summer series of concerts presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood in Lenox, offer inland vacations both varied and to meet every budget.

Trained attendants will be at the booth throughout the show to give every possible assistance to visitors in planning a visit or vacation to Massachusetts.

An Elegant Alley, a Shrine in the Country



A PROPER BOSTONIAN STREET, narrow and steep, with brick sidewalks and a cobbled center. Acorn Street lies in the heart of Beacon Hill. The houses were built a century ago for the coachmen serving the luminous Boston families who lived nearby. The coachmen have gone, but the street has hardly changed.

A QUIET COUNTRY BIRTHPLACE, this two-room frame farmhouse near Franklin, N.H. is now a memorial to Daniel Webster, who was born here Jan. 18, 1782. Towering over it is the great elm planted by Webster's father nearly 200 years ago. Behind the house is the old well with its enormous well sweep.

CONTINUED

LIFE May 25, 1958

An Elegant Alley, a Shrine in the Country

A PROPER BOSTONIAN STREET, narrow and steep, with brick sidewalks and a cobbled center, Acorn Street lies in the heart of Beacon Hill. The houses were built a century ago for the coachmen serving the luminous Boston families who lived nearby. The coachmen have gone, but the street has hardly changed.

A QUIET COUNTRY BIRTHPLACE, this two-room frame farmhouse near Franklin, N.H. is now a memorial to Daniel Webster, who was born here Jan. 18, 1782. Towering over it is the great elm planted by Webster's father nearly 200 years ago. Behind the house is the old well with its enormous well sweep.

CONTINUED

How to See the Area in 12 Days, 2,400 Miles

From New England's 93,000-mile highway system, LIFE has compiled a tour that covers 2,400 miles. Allowing 200 miles a day—the maximum for travelers who really want to see the area—the tour can be covered in about 12 days. The basic tour (wide red line) covers about 1,100 miles and takes five to six days. Of the alternate tours (thin red lines), which cover 1,300 miles, the excursion onto Cape Cod will be first choice for most visitors. The other side trips reach, for example, into the wilderness area of northern Maine, the Boston area, southern New Hampshire, the lovely Connecticut River valley. For anyone who wants to skip some parts of the trip, the main connecting routes, including most of the new high-speed turnpikes, are shown in blue.

On the map are 90 numbered points of interest, described on following pages. These points start by number at Litchfield in northwest Connecticut. The tour, of course, can begin wherever the tourist wants.

MAIN ROUTE
SIDE TRIPS AND ALTERNATE ROUTES
ACCESS AND CONNECTING ROUTES
① POINTS OF INTEREST
BAXTER STATE PARK
53
To Gaspé Peninsula
Millinocket
52 Mattawamkeag
To Quebec
Moosehead Lake
Rockwood
Jackman
54 Greenville
Skowhegan State Fair
51 Old Town
50 Bangor
ME.
Oquossoc
59 Rangeley
Rangeley Lakes
Lakewood 56
Skowhegan 55
Ellsworth
48
49
ACADIA NATIONAL PARK
Searsport
Castine
47 Belfast
Farmington
Bangor Races
Errol
Mt. Washington Cog Railway
Rumford
57
Paper Mill
Augusta
Camden 46
Rockland 45
Thomaston
Windjammer
58 Bethel
Stowe Village
Jeffersonville
To Montreal
71
Stowe
70
Burlington
72
73
Shelburne
74
Montpelier
69 Barre
68
St. Johnsbury
Twin Mountain
62
Gorham
60
Jackson
61 Glen
N. Conway 63
Storyland
67
N. Woodstock
66
Warren
W. Ossipee
World's Biggest Granite Quarry
Middlebury College
76
75
Lake Winnipesaukee
The Weirs 64
Damariscotta
Wiscasset
41 Bath
Brunswick
Freeport
39
38
40
Sebasco
42
Boothbay Harbor
43
Pemaquid Point 44
Port Clyde
Pemaquid Light
MONHEGAN IS.
37 Portland
MAINE TURNPIKE
36 Old Orchard Beach
35 Kennebunkport
Atlantic
Ocean
77
Brandon
Lebanon
Franklin
65
33
Shaker Village
Ogunquit
34
OGUNQUIT PLAYHOUSE
78
79 Rutland
80
N.H.
Weybridge Morgan Horse Farm
81
VT.
Concord
NEW HAMPSHIRE — TURNPIKE
Kittery
Portsmouth
Hampton
30
Fish House
Cathedral of the Pines
Manchester
N.Y.
82 Manchester
Nashua
31
Animal Farm
29
Ipswich
28
Rockport
Gloucester
Pilgrim Monument
N
32 Rindge
Brattleboro
84
83 Bennington
Williamstown Church
MASS.
Concord
27 Salem
26
Saugus
24
25
23 Boston
Faneuil Hall
Provincetown
N. Adams
87 Williamstown
Greenfield
Deerfield
85
86
S. Deerfield
Old Sturbridge Village
Minute Man
19
CAPE COD
Albany
Pittsfield
Northampton
Worcester
Plymouth Rock
1620
Plymouth
22
Eastham
18
Eastham Windmill
88 Lenox
MASSACHUSETTS TURNPIKE
Sturbridge 12
S. Carver
14
21
20
Wareham
17
Hyannis
90 Lee
89 Stockbridge
Westfield
Providence 13
New Bedford
15
16 Woods Hole
Tanglewood Music Shed
NEW YORK STATE THRUWAY CONN.
Gillette Castle
R.I.
Tiverton
Canaan
Jamestown
11
Newport
10 Narragansett
9
Galilee
MARTHA'S VINEYARD
NANTUCKET
2 Hartford
1 Litchfield
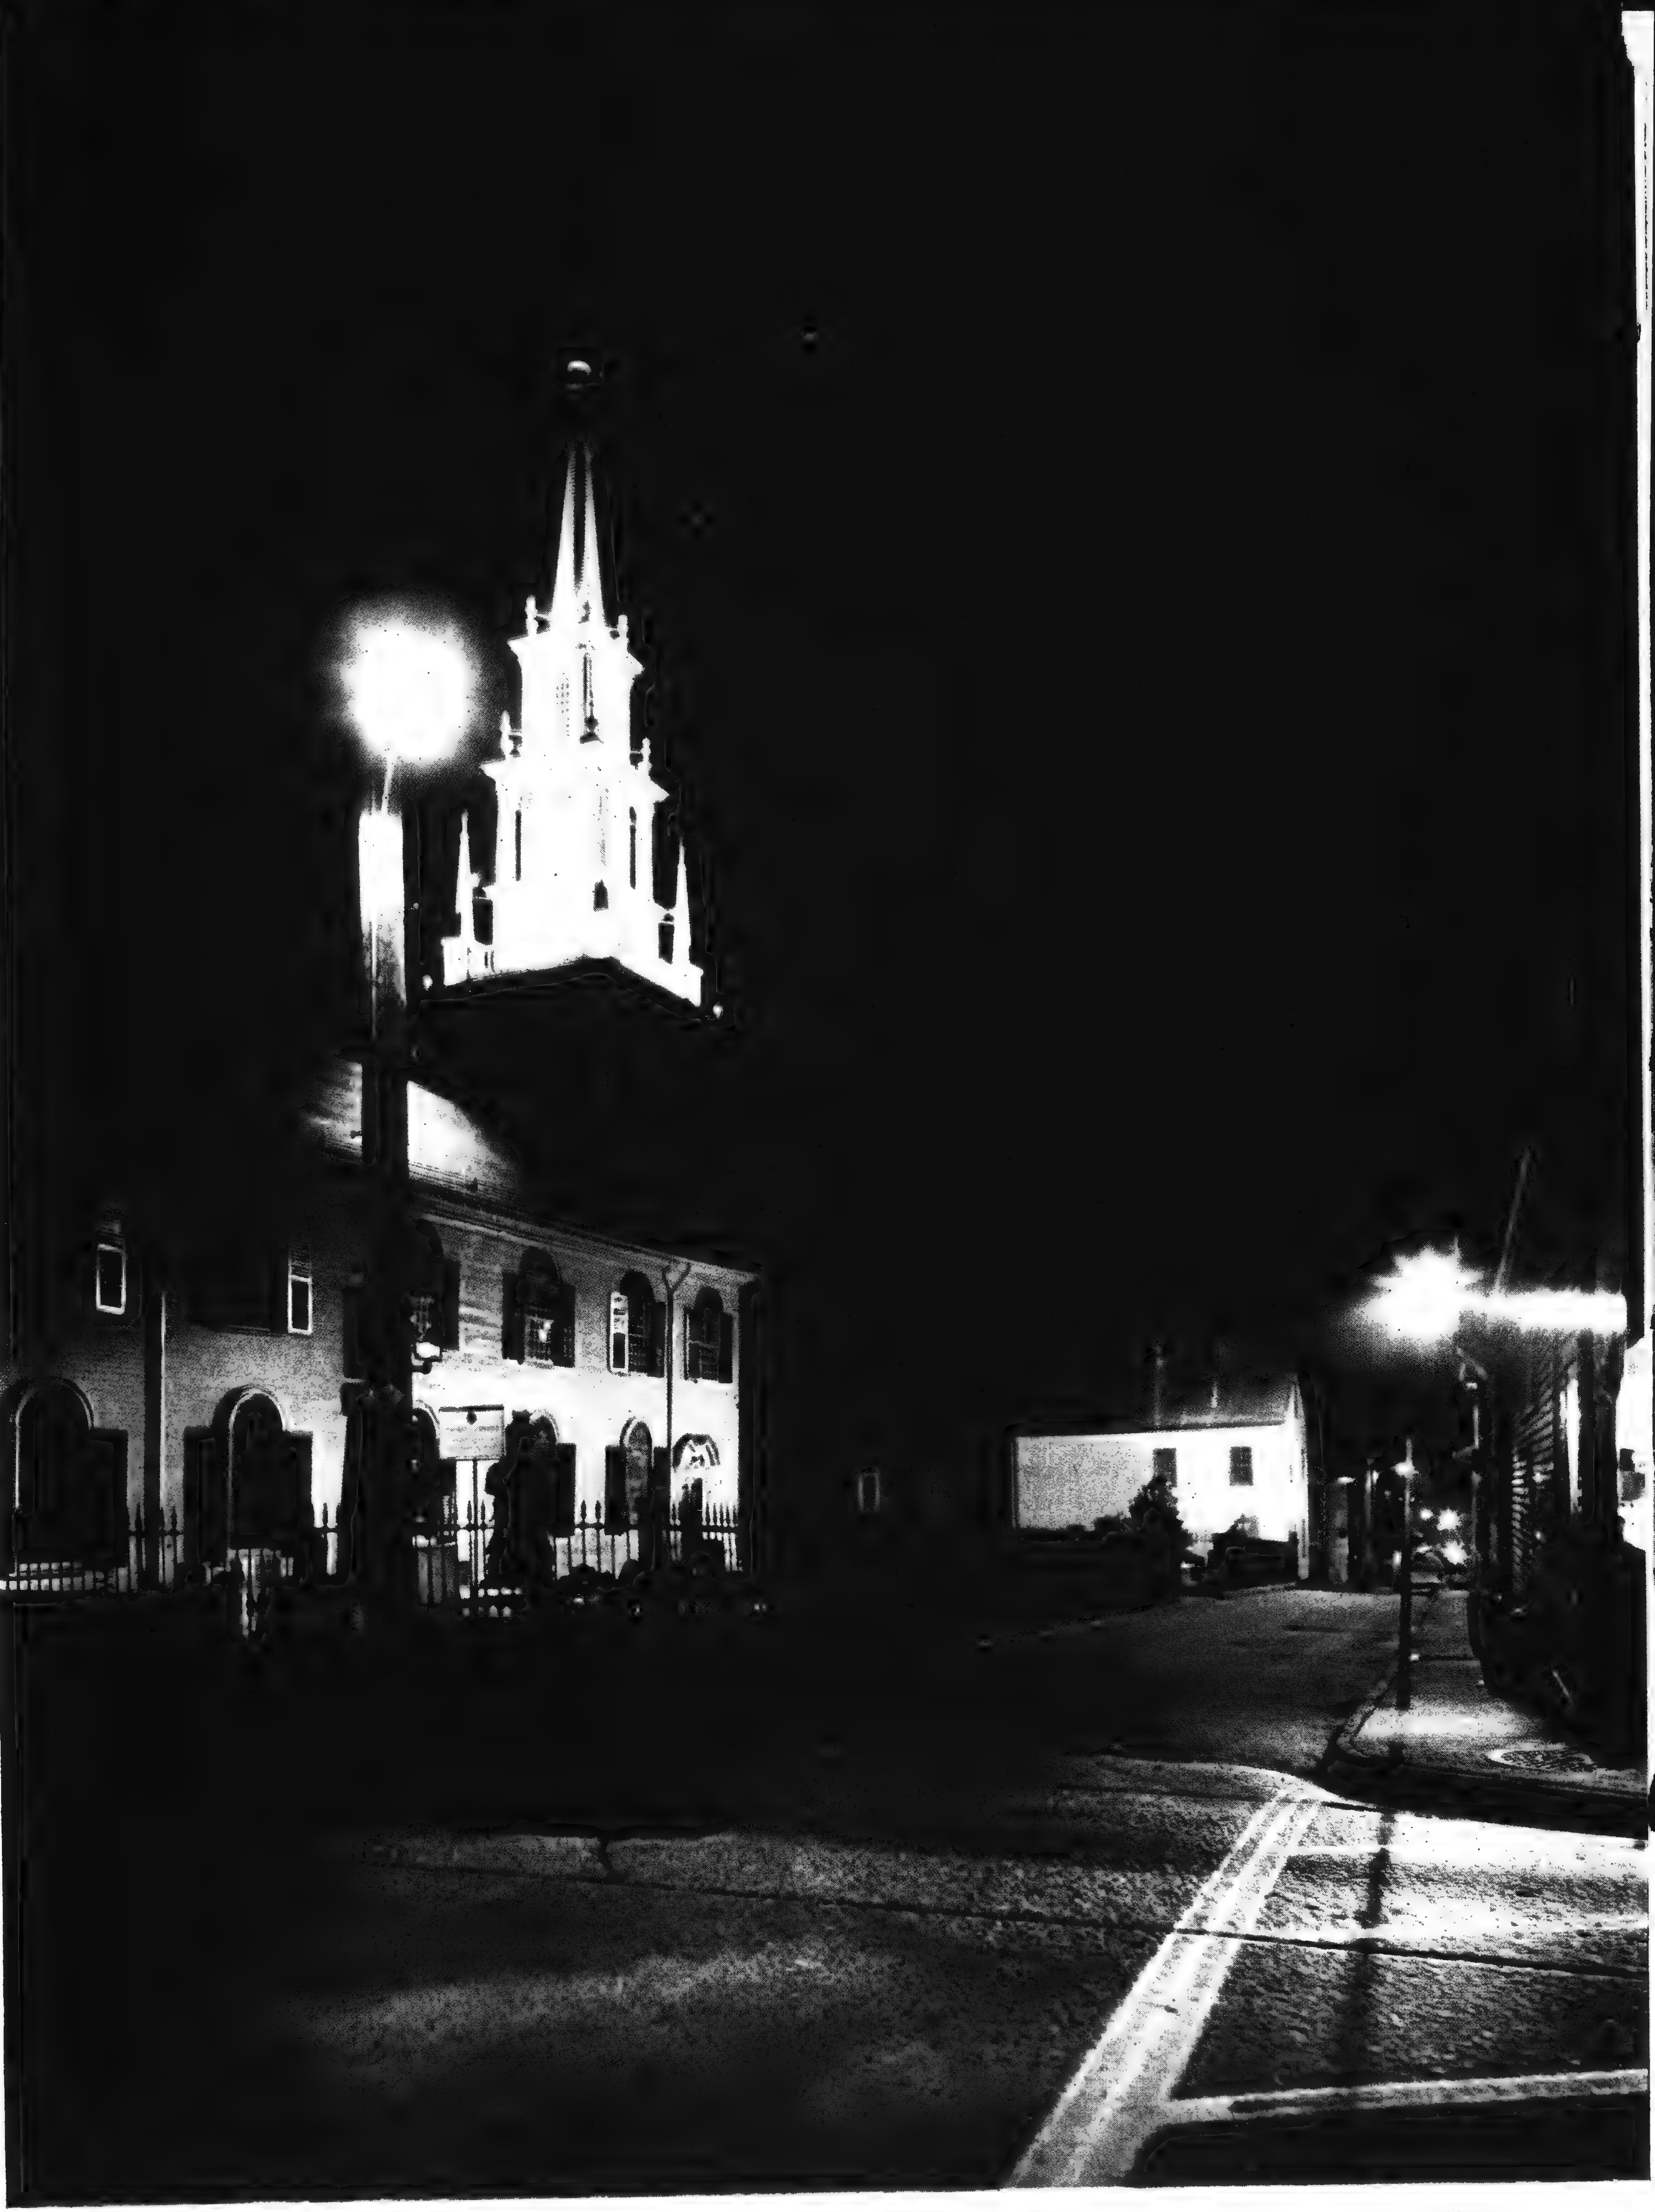
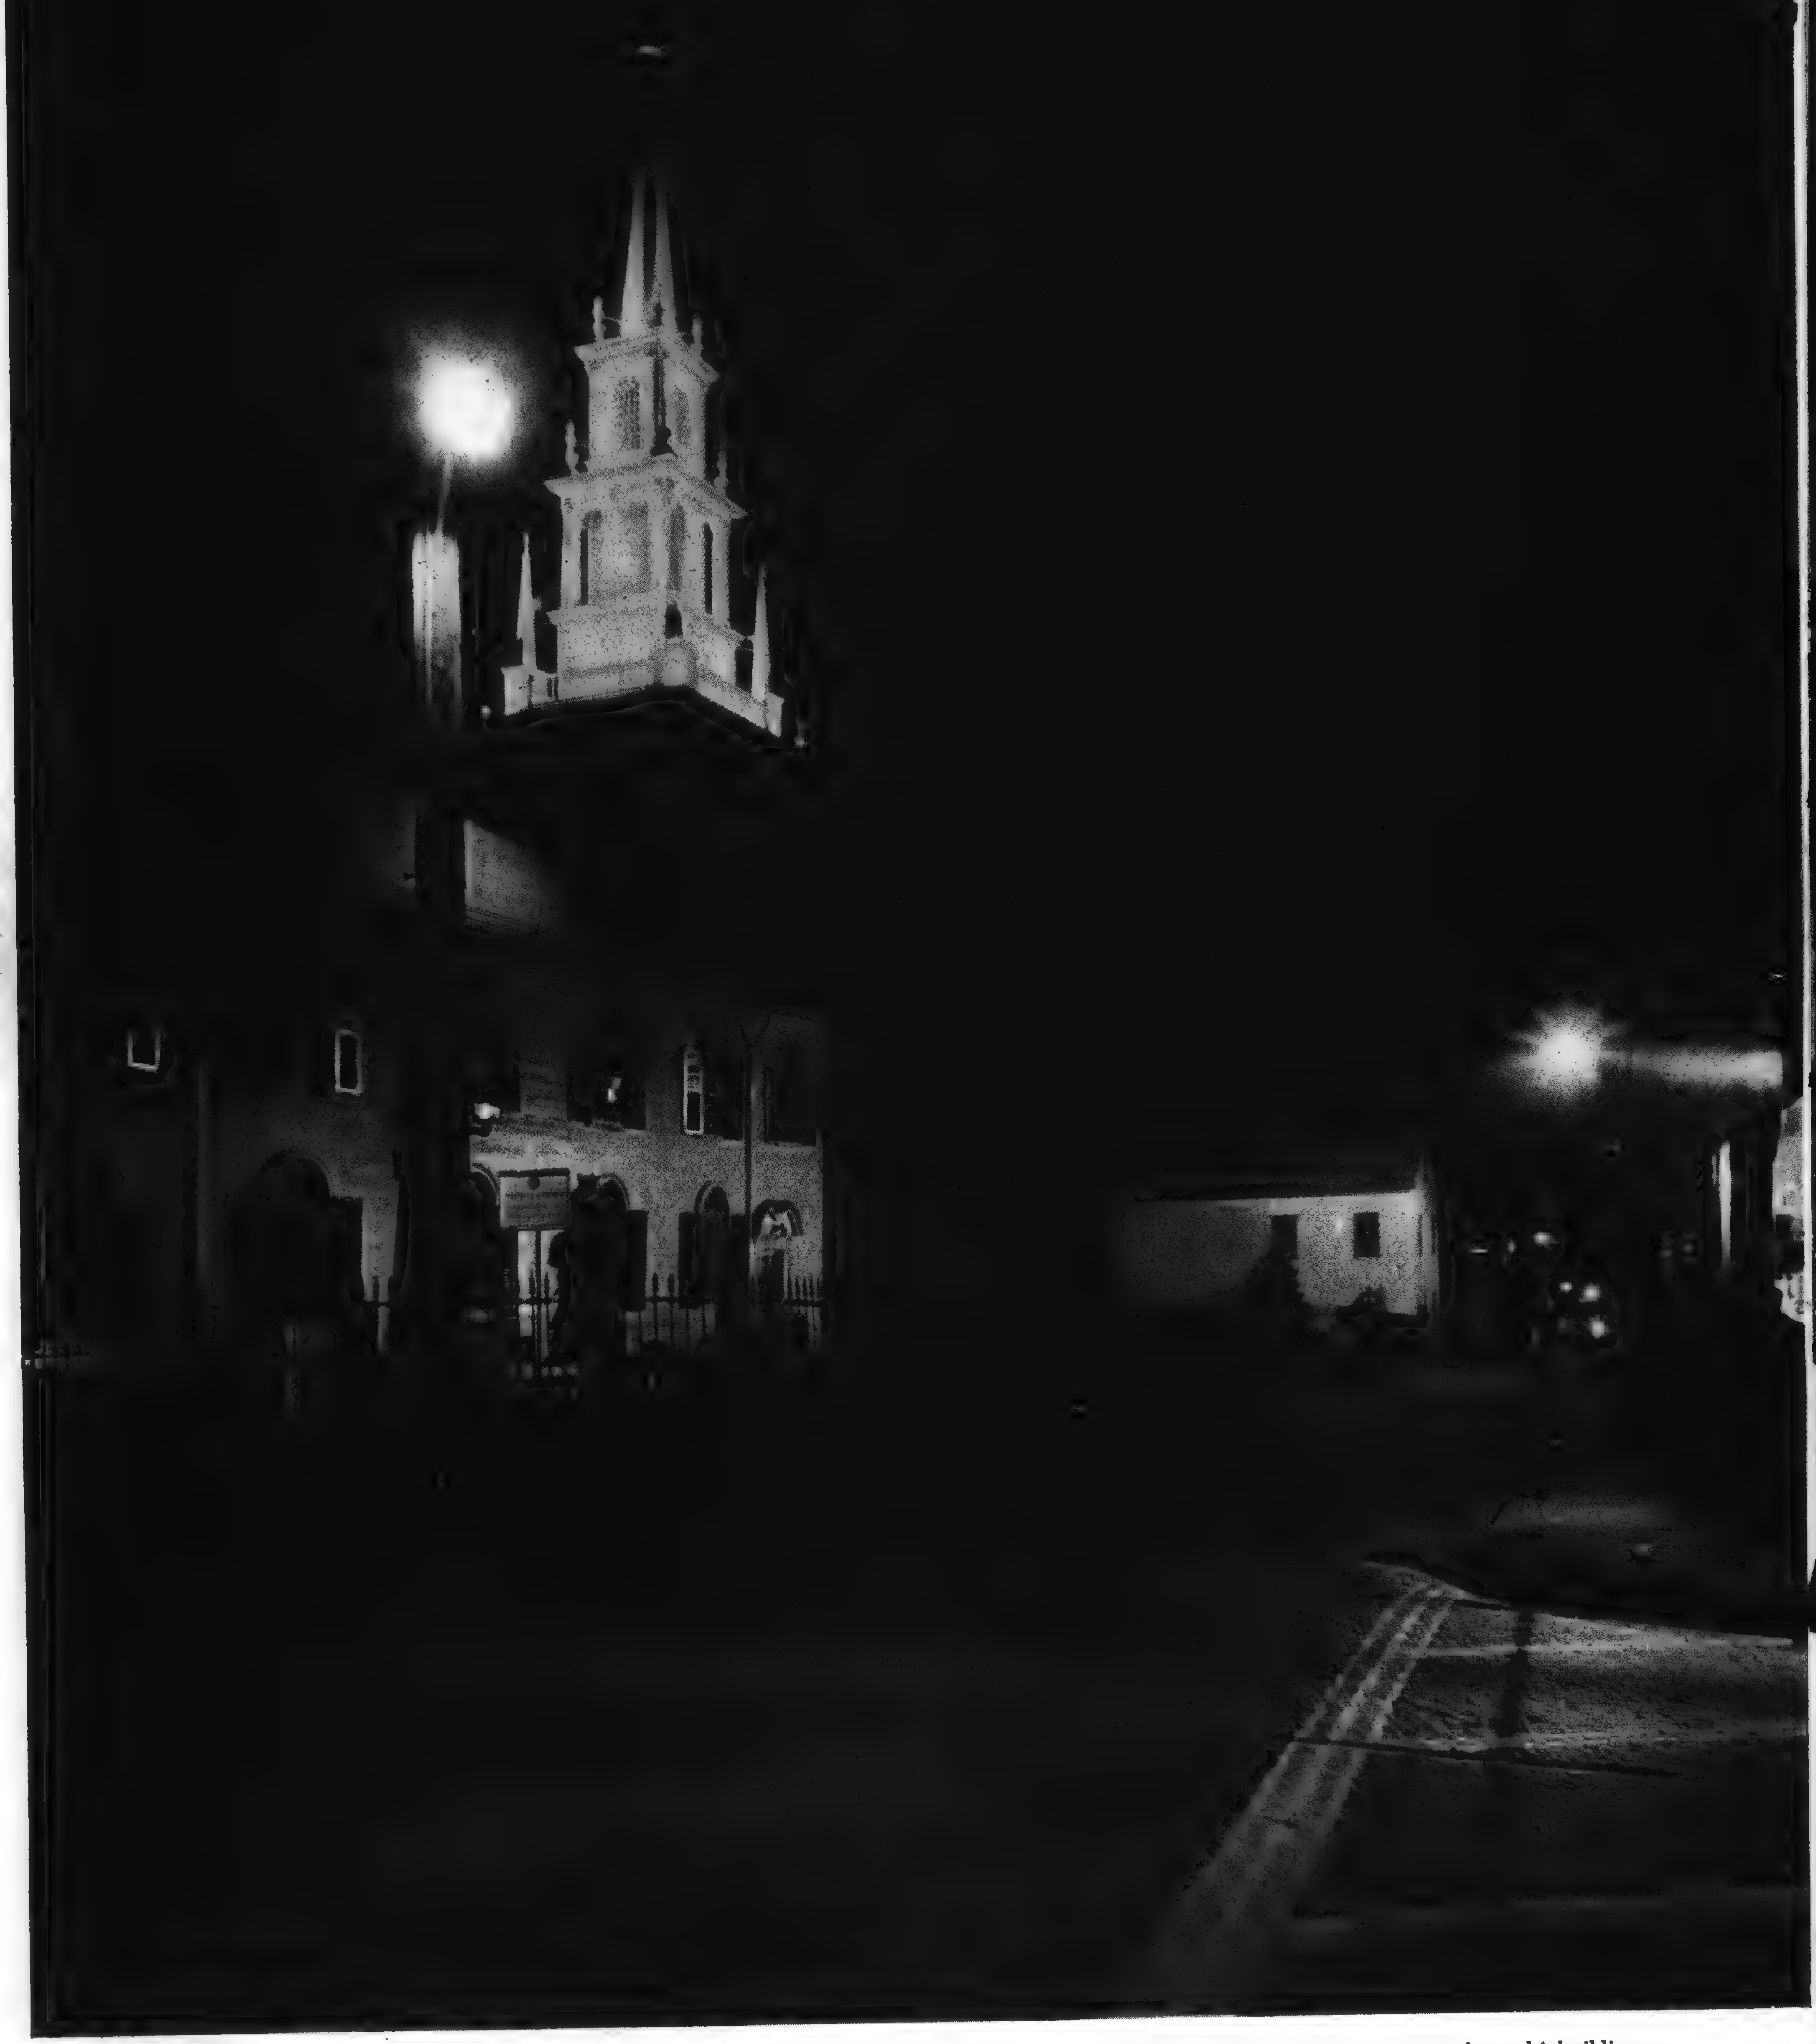
Litchfield Church
East Haddam
6
8
Mystic
3
5
7
4
New Haven
Hudson River
To New York City
Mystic Figurehead
The Breakers, Newport
ERDOES



A SPIRE BY FLOODLIGHT gleams ghostily above Old Trinity Church in Newport, R.I. This superb structure, styled after Sir Christopher Wren's great London churches, was built in 1726, when Newport was a busy shipbuilding center already nearly a century old. Atop spire is gilded bishop's-miter weather vane.



A SPIRE BY FLOODLIGHT gleams ghostily above Old Trinity Church in Newport, R.I. This superb structure, styled after Sir Christopher Wren's great London churches, was built in 1726, when Newport was a busy shipbuilding center already nearly a century old. Atop spire is gilded bishop's-miter weather vane.

Cruise to Monhegan Island, $3, $5.50 round trip, with three hours on island, sail at 10 daily except at 11 on Sunday.

㊸ PEMAQUID POINT, ME. Lighthouse, view of coast. Nearby are New Harbor fishing village, Ft. William Henry memorial, daily from mid-June.

㊹ PORT CLYDE, ME. Fishing village, summer resort. Passenger boat to Monhegan Island, fare $2.50, 75-minute ride each way.

㊺ ROCKLAND, ME. Fishing city with Lobster Festival, August 1–3. Birthplace of Poetess Edna St. Vincent Millay.

㊻ CAMDEN, ME. Summer Harp Colony. Windjammer cruises sail each Monday, return Saturday, mid-June to mid-September, $87 a week, reservations needed. Setting for movie Peyton Place.

㊼ SEARSPORT, ME. Penobscot Marine Museum, including full-rigged ship models, prints, sailing charts, open daily 9–5, Sundays, 1–5. Kobs Lobster Pound restaurant.

㊽ BAR HARBOR, ME. Local boat trips in Frenchman Bay to see summer estates of this posh resort. Ferry to Nova Scotia, 112 miles in 6 hours, daily sailings 8 a.m., one-way fares $2.75, $5.50, automobiles $16.

㊾ ACADIA NATIONAL PARK, on Mount Desert Island, New England's only national park. Road to summit of Cadillac Mountain for breathtaking view.

㊿ BANGOR, ME. Bangor Fair, July 28 through Aug. 4, harness sulky racing with parimutuel betting.

(51) OLD TOWN, ME. Canoe and small boat manufacturing, plant tours. Handicrafts store on Penobscot Indian Tribe reservation.

SIGILLUM REIPUBLICÆ MASSACHUSETTENSIS
SIGILLUM REIPUBLICÆ CONNECTICUTENSIS
SEAL OF THE STATE OF RHODE ISLAND AND PROVIDENCE PLANTATIONS HOPE
1636

(52) MILLINOCKET, ME. Guided tours (1 or 2 hours) of Great Northern Paper Co., largest U.S. newsprint producer, when arranged at mill manager's office (Park 3-5131). Public 9-hole golf course. Roads from Millinocket to Greenville are gravel. Accommodations on rustic side. Air charter service available to inaccessible areas.

(53) BAXTER STATE PARK, ME. Includes Mt. Katahdin (5,268 elev.), the state's highest point. Camping facilities in a real wilderness area. Write Superintendent. Park roads are narrow, winding, slow.

(54) GREENVILLE, ME. Gateway to popular fishing, summer resort region. Pontooned plane rides ($2) over Moosehead Lake area. Squaw Mountain Inn golf course, 9 holes.

(55) SKOWHEGAN, ME. Skowhegan State Fair, Aug. 11–16, featuring Maine's biggest cattle show, horse pulling contests, harness racing.

(56) LAKEWOOD, ME. Summer resort. Good public golf course, nine holes. Lakewood Summer Theater.

(57) RUMFORD, ME. Guided tours (two hours) of Oxford paper mill on Androscoggin River, Monday–Friday, starting between 2–3 p.m.

(58) BETHEL, ME. Bethel Inn golf course, nine holes. Inn dining room specializes in New England cooking.

(59) RANGELEY, ME. Wooded region famed for lakes and recreation in Blue Mountains, foothills of the White Mountains. Swimming, fishing, boating, riding. Wild animals (bear, deer) at large. Rangeley Lakes Country Club golf course, nine holes.

(60) GLEN ELLIS FALLS, N.H. Sixty-five-foot waterfall in Pinkham Notch. To the west are peaks of the Presidential Range.

(61) GLEN, N.H. Storyland village of re-created nursery tales, including Cinderella's castle.

(62) MT. WASHINGTON, N.H. Cog railway to summit, round trip $2.50, $4.75. Opens June 15, trips hourly 9–6 from July 2–Sept. 10. Round trip takes about three hours. Summit House has accommodations, meals.

(63) NORTH CONWAY, N.H. Skimobile tramway up half-mile track to summit of Cranmore Mountain, operates daily, fare 75¢, $1.50.

(64) THE WEIRS, N.H. Daily steamer excursions on M. V. Mt. Washington around Lake Winnipesaukee at 9 and 2, fare $1, $2.

(65) FRANKLIN, N.H. Daniel Webster homestead, daily 9–6, May to mid-October. Routes via Bristol and Warren are scenic byways.

(66) KINSMAN NOTCH, N.H. Lost River Reservation six miles west of North Woodstock has a scenic trail walking tour (60–90 minutes) through steep-walled glacial gorge and caverns to Paradise Falls. Open May 30 to Oct. 15. Coveralls for rent.

(67) FRANCONIA NOTCH AREA, N.H. Cannon Mountain Aerial Tramway gives ride to summit for spectacular view, daily 9–5, fare 75¢, $1.50. Flume Gorge, an 800-foot chasm has boardwalk access. Old Man of the Mountains can be seen from highway.

(68) BARRE, VT. Free tours daily, 8:30–5, of Rock of Ages, world's largest granite quarry.

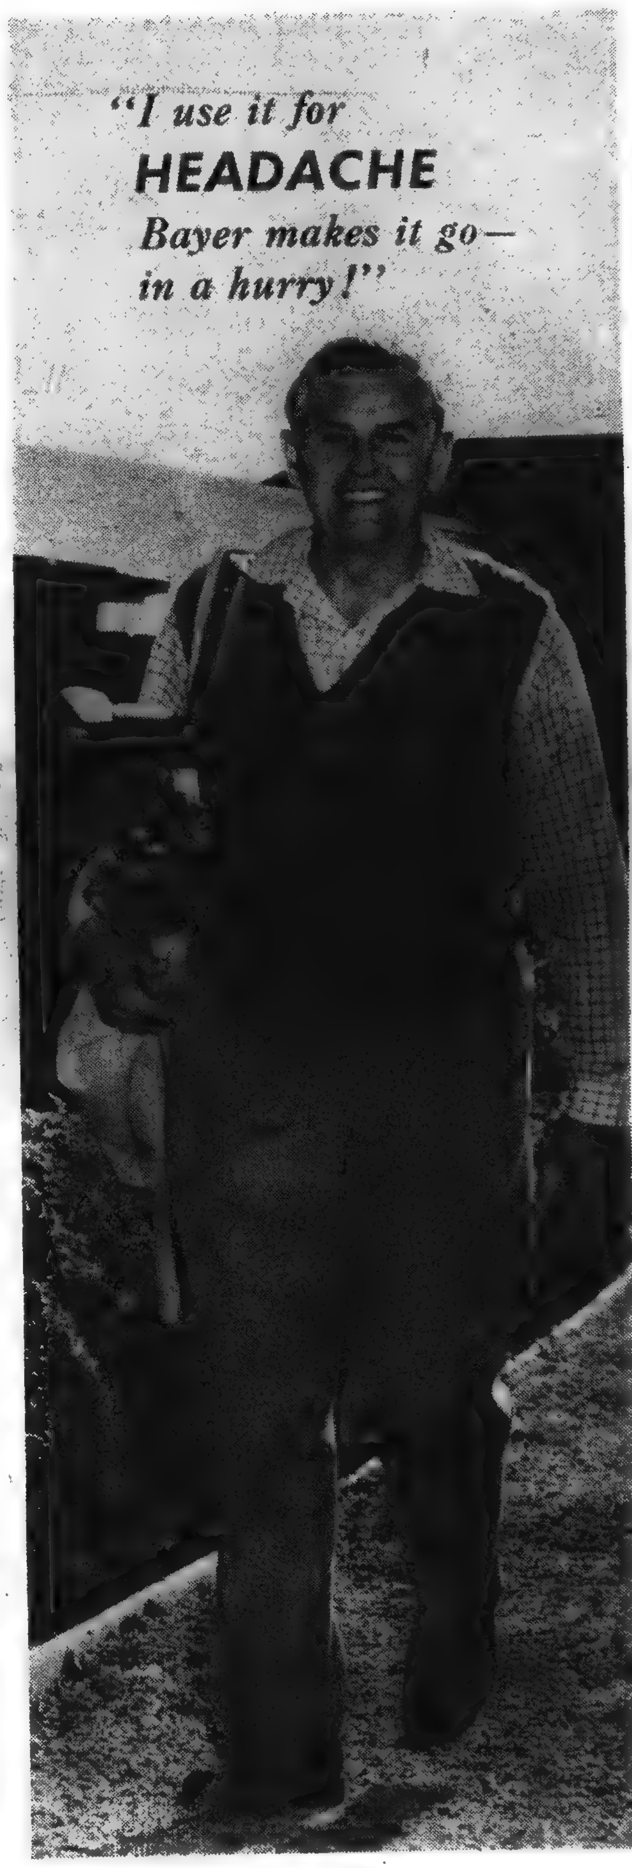
(69) MONTPELIER, VT. State capitol constructed of Barre granite, dome topped with statue of Ceres, goddess of agriculture.

CONTINUED

For most every kind of pain or ache,
BAYER is what millions take—because

BAYER
Brings Fastest Relief

... the fastest, most gentle to the stomach relief you can get!



"I use it for
HEADACHE
Bayer makes it go—in a hurry!"

"I use it for SORE THROAT
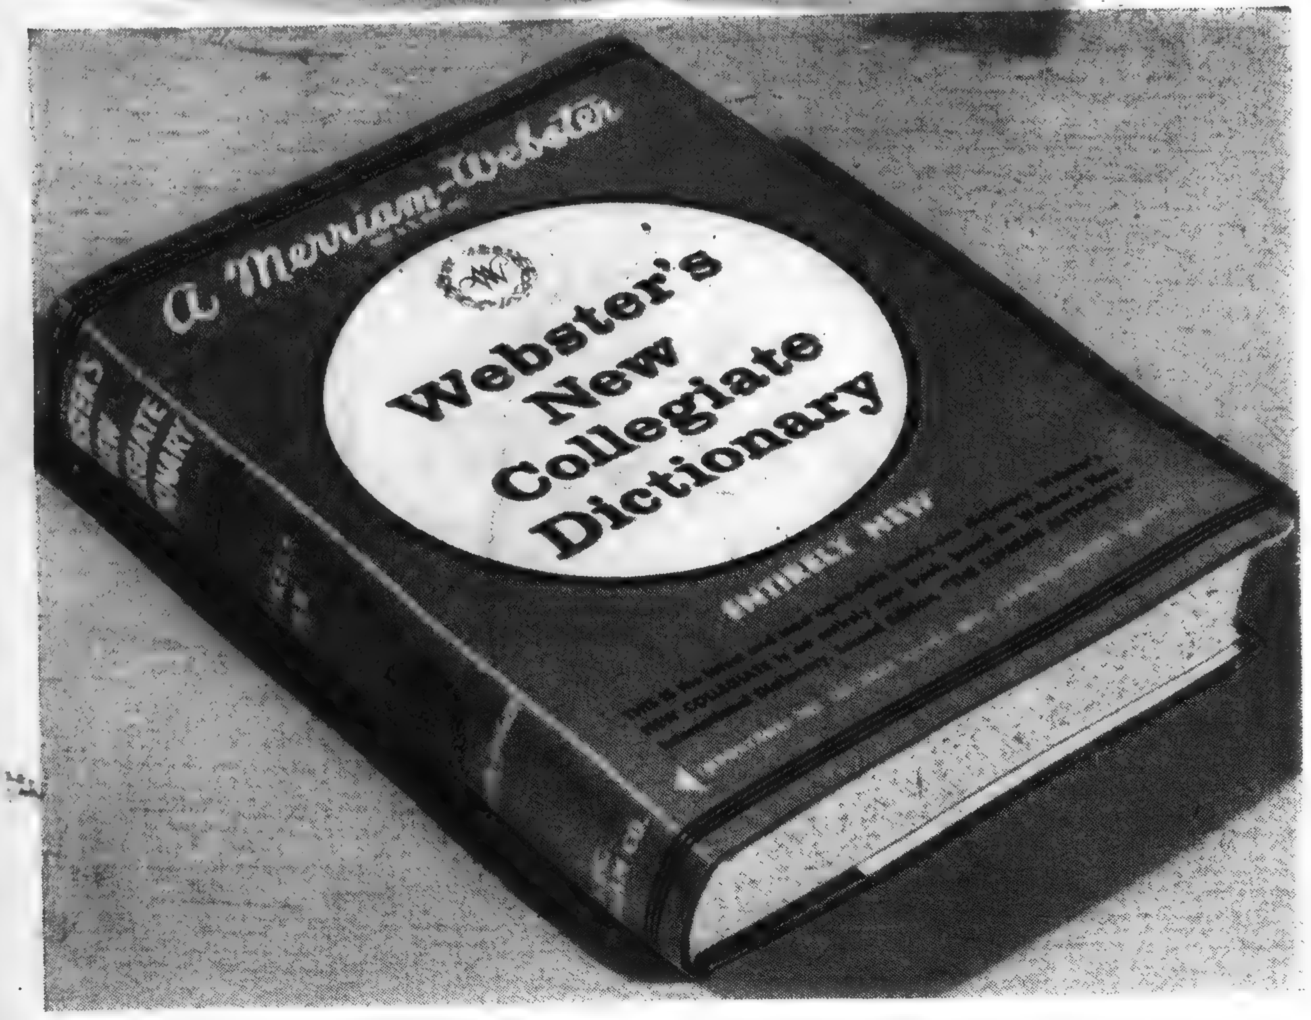
due to a cold!"

Men who KNOW medicine say: "Take Aspirin!".... Doctors and public health officials are men who know medicine—men who know what's best for pain relief. And for headache, backache, muscular pains and fever from a cold, these men who know medicine say the thing to take is aspirin. And the best aspirin the world has ever known is Bayer Aspirin!

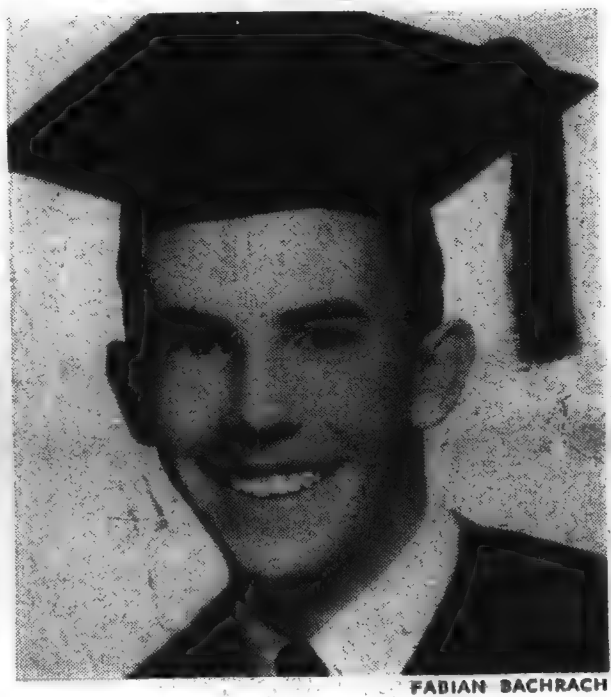
Why BAYER makes you feel better fast!.... Unlike pain-relieving tablets which delay relief because they enter your stomach whole, a Bayer tablet disintegrates into soft, tiny flakes on its way to your stomach. Therefore, it's ready to go to work instantly—without delay—to bring the fastest, most gentle to the stomach relief you can get!

FEEL BETTER FAST—with BAYER® ASPIRIN



The right gift –

BRADFORD BACHRACH



FABIAN BACHRACH

the bright gift

for every high-school graduate

Boy or girl . . . everyone today is concerned with better education. National surveys show the necessity of a good vocabulary in achieving better grades and success in business.

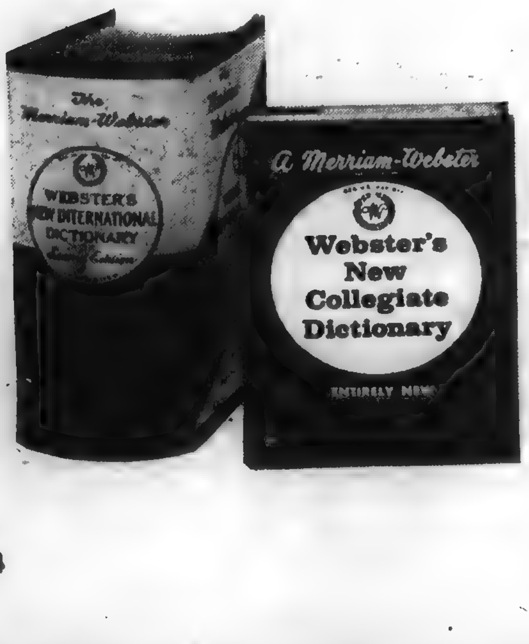
And so the right gift, the bright gift, for the high-school graduate going on to college or into that important first job is a handsome copy of Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary.

This Merriam-Webster is required or recommended by almost every school and college in the country. It is the one dictionary that helps young people build up the word power they need—with definitions so precise and accurate that correct understanding of every word is assured.

Select your copy at leading department, book, and stationery stores. $5 plain. $6 indexed. De luxe gift bindings to $15.

INSIST ON

MERRIAM-WEBSTER



The Merriam-Webster
WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY
A Merriam-Webster
Webster's New Collegiate Dictionary ENTIRELY NEW

Some dictionaries do not even include the binomial genus and species terms essential for high-school and college students. To be sure of the accuracy, up-to-dateness, and well-rounded balance a student must have in a dictionary, look for the word Merriam. The only company specializing in dictionaries — publishers of the famous unabridged Webster's New International Dictionary, Second Edition. G. & C. Merriam Company, Springfield 2, Mass. Advt. Copyright by G. & C. Merriam Co.

⑩ STOWE, VT. Winter ski center, quiet New England village by summer. Stowe Country Club golf course. Baggy Knees Playhouse opens June 27.

(71) MOUNT MANSFIELD, VT. State's highest mountain (elevation 4,393). Toll road 4½ miles to summit $2. Meals available at Summit House.

(72) BURLINGTON, VT. Fine views of Lake Champlain and the Adirondacks from Battery Park. Ferry across Lake Champlain to Port Kent, N.Y., fare 75¢ one way, $3 car and driver. Burlington Country Club golf course, 18 holes.

(73) SHELBURNE, VT. Shelburne Museum of early Americana, including side-wheel steamer, Ticonderoga (LIFE, March 7, 1955).

(74) CHARLOTTE, VT. Mount Philo (968 ft.) State Park has paved road to summit, picnic grounds, excellent views.

(75) MIDDLEBURY, VT. Middlebury College, whose summer language schools are internationally known. College Country Club golf course.

(76) WEYBRIDGE, VT. Morgan Horse Farm, where the Morgan breed originated and is still bred. Admission free.

(77) LAKE DUNMORE, VT. Branbury State Park, swimming, picnic facilities, fishing. Lumberjack Roundup Aug. 15, 16 on Lake Dunmore.

(78) PROCTOR, VT. World's largest marble exhibit, open daily, 9–5, May 29–Oct. 19, admission free.

(79) RUTLAND, VT. Country club golf course, 18 holes. The Wheeler Williams, colonial-style restaurant.

(80) PLYMOUTH, VT. The tiny village where Calvin Coolidge was born and is buried. Coolidge State Forest nearby for picnicking.

(81) POULTNEY, VT. Lake St. Catherine Country Club golf course, nine holes. Route 30, alternate to U.S. 7, runs through farmland.

(82) MT. EQUINOX Skyline Drive, five-mile toll road ($3) for superb scenic views from the highest peak in the Taconic range.

(83) BENNINGTON, VT. A 306-foot monument commemorates the Revolutionary War battle. Open daily, elevator to top. Four Chimneys Restaurant.

(84) HOGBACK MOUNTAIN, VT. Most scenic spot along the highly scenic Molly Stark Trail between Bennington and Brattleboro, especially in fall.

(85) DEERFIELD, MASS. One of America's most beautiful main streets, its mile-long length lined with restored pre-Revolutionary homes, some open to the public.

(86) SOUTH DEERFIELD, MASS. Mt. Sugarloaf State Reservation has road to summit for superb views of Connecticut River valley farmlands. Picnic facilities, open daily 9 to dark, free.

(87) WILLIAMSTOWN, MASS. Williams College and its handsome campus, which includes the Adams Memorial Theater, July 3–Aug. 30 season. Distinctive peak to southeast is Mt. Greylock.

(88) LENOX, MASS. The magnificent Tanglewood concerts featuring the Boston Symphony can be heard in music shed or from the spacious surrounding lawn, July 2–Aug. 10, matinees Sunday at 2, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8. Berkshire Music Barn, School of Jazz, both nearby, offer jazz, other musical events June 29–Aug. 31.

(89) STOCKBRIDGE, MASS. Berkshire Playhouse, summer theater open June 23–Aug. 30. Stockbridge Golf Course, 18 holes.

(90) LEE, MASS. The Jacobs Pillow Dance Festival, 55 performances from July 1 through Aug. 30. Greenock golf course, 18 holes.

AUCTIONEER IN ACTION, George A. Martin talks up a mahogany drum table to two visitors at a sale in Kennebunk, Me. Lady in plaid got it for $9.

MODERN BRIDE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

FALL 1958

MASSACHUSETTS is so full of historic places that you can drive along almost any road in this favorite state and be sure of finding one. A winning road with many motorists, and a comparatively new one, is the Massachusetts Turnpike from West Stockbridge on the western border of the state over to Weston, just a few miles from Boston. This road goes through the famous Pioneer Valley—long a favorite tomahawk-throwing ground for Indians—and follows along the lovely Connecticut River. The scenery is magnificent, with a treasure trove of antique shops, fine old homes, and famous colleges. Deerfield, whose main street has been called "the most beautiful in America," has many restored homes and buildings, and always excites interest as the site of the bloody Indian massacres of 1675 and 1704. About halfway to Boston, a little way off the Turnpike, is Sturbridge Village, a recreated Colonial town with a fine Inn that is well worth a visit. And, of course, you have heard of Boston. Almost everyone has an early ancestor from this cradle of history. You'll want to visit—just to name a few famous places—the Old State House; the Old North Church; Faneuil Hall; Paul Revere's house; the Old Granary Burial Ground, where Paul Revere, Samuel Adams, John Hancock are buried; King's Chapel; the Bunker Hill Monument; Beacon Hill; Mrs. Gardiner's famous Art Museum; the Public Garden. And you'll want to dine in some of its famous eating places: the Parker House, Locke-Ober's or the Ritz, or some of the unexcelled fish houses. Tanglewood, home of the Berkshire Music Center, attracts people from all over the United States for six weeks every summer to hear music by the very best performers. Provincetown is an art center,

---

MUSICAL COURIER
NEW YORK CITY

MASSACHUSETTS

Boston: BOSTON ARTS FESTIVAL June. Concert & opera. ESPLANADE CONCERTS July-Aug. Free concerts by Boston Symphony, Hatch Memorial Shell, Charles River Esplanade. Arthur Fiedler and guest conductors.

Coonamessett: SEPTEMBER FESTIVAL Opera, concerts, recitals.

Lee: JACOB'S PILLOW DANCE FESTIVAL July-Aug. Dance programs by visiting artists.

Lenox: BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL, TANGLEWOOD. July 2-Aug. 10. Charles Munch, dir.; Pierre Monteux, guest cond. Boston Symphony Orch., concertos, choral works, operas. SCHOOL OF JAZZ Aug. Music Inn. Classes and concerts.

Pittsfield: SOUTH MOUNTAIN CHAMBER SERIES. July-Aug. Recitals and chamber music.

Waltham: BRANDEIS UNIV. OF THE CREATIVE ARTS June. Opera, concerts.

[240]

Press (e)
BRISTOL, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,480

N. E. Landmarks Are Featured In 'Life' Town

047

Six-State Area Will Entertain Over 10,000,000 Visitors

NEW YORK, May 20 — A tour of New England — its historic landmarks and present-day attractions — will be featured in the issue of LIFE Magazine out this week, in a 19-page article including 13 pages of color photographs and a tourist map. The 2,400-mile circular route selected by LIFE's editors from New England's 33,000-mile highway system enables the tourist to see the area in 12 days — a basic tour of five to six days with a number of alternate side-trips. Places and events of interest to visitors, historic and scenic spots, summer theaters, festivals and recreation areas, are indicated on the map and described with dates and hours open, required fares or admission fees.

A folio of photographs by famous LIFE Photographer Dmitri Kessel illustrates the beauty of the six New England states pointing out the rich historical background of the region as well as its rewards and pleasures for the tourist this summer.

Tour Covers Six States

The "main route" of this New England tour proceeds counter-clockwise from western Connecticut, through Rhode Island, eastern Massachusetts, coastal New Hampshire, Maine, northern New Hampshire, Vermont and western Massachusetts. A vacationing motorist can get on to this basic route from any of three directions and continue on around the course in any direction he chooses. Indicated on the map are [illegible] turnpikes for super-fast travel [illegible] connecting routes for the basic tour [illegible] routes from north, west and south to tie into the tour. The basic tour covers about 1,100 miles, with optional side-trips of approximately 1,300 additional miles taking the visitor to such places as Old Sturbridge Village, Cape Cod, the Boston area, southern New Hampshire, Maine's lakes and wilderness area, Lake Winnipesaukee, Mt. Mansfield in Vermont and the upper Connecticut River valley.

For those motoring vacationists who have time to dawdle a bit, the article lists—in addition to historic and scenic spots—just a few of the many golf courses, good beaches, picnic areas and fishing boat facilities available along the tour. Some good typical eating places are also recommended.

Change of Pace for the Motorist

Tourists all over the country who may be planning to visit New England this year, will learn by reading this magazine article of the many ways they can find a change of pace, an important requisite for any vacation. For example: the family driving through New England can leave their car for a ride on an elephant at the Benson Animal Farm in Hudson, N.H., or transfer to a train for a ride through the world's biggest cranberry bog at South Carver, Mass., ending up with a visit to a railroad museum and a chicken and cranberry barbecue. For an even more complete change, the road-weary traveler can go to sea, for sightseeing or fishing, on oceanworthy craft that sail regularly from Portland or Boothbay Harbor, Me., or Woods Hole, Mass.

[illegible]

Events to See

Historical relics for visitors to prowl about, the article points out, include a wooden whaling ship at Mystic, Conn., a side-wheeler steamer (the Ticonderoga) at Shelburne, Vt., and a collection of old trolley cars near Biddeford, Me. For leisurely vacation enjoyment in the New England area, the LIFE article suggests such specific attractions as: the Elizabeth Park rose gardens (Hartford, Conn.); the artists' colony at Rockport, Mass.; a visit to The Breakers, famous Vanderbilt summer residence at Newport, R.I.; The Cathedral-of-the-Pines, place of outdoor worship (Rindge, N.H.); Penobscot Marine Museum with full-rigged ship models, sailing charts (Searsport, Me.); tours of paper mills at Millinocket and Rumford, Me.; scenic trails through the gorges and caverns of Lost River Reservation at Kinsman Notch, N.H.; a visit to the Morgan Horse Farm (Weybridge, Vt.); the magnificent Tanglewood concerts at Lenox, Mass., featuring the Boston Symphony from July 2-August 10 and the Jacobs Pillow Dance Festival (Lee, Mass.); from July 1 through August [illegible]

MODERN BRIDE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

FALL 1958

MASSACHUSETTS is so full of historic places that you can drive along almost any road in this favorite state and be sure of finding one. A winning road with many motorists, and a comparatively new one, is the Massachusetts Turnpike from West Stockbridge on the western border of the state over to Weston, just a few miles from Boston. This road goes through the famous Pioneer Valley—long a favorite tomahawk-throwing ground for Indians—and follows along the lovely Connecticut River. The scenery is magnificent, with a treasure trove of antique shops, fine old homes, and famous colleges. Deerfield, whose main street has been called "the most beautiful in America," has many restored homes and buildings, and always excites interest as the site of the bloody Indian massacres of 1675 and 1704. About halfway to Boston, a little way off the Turnpike, is Sturbridge Village, a recreated Colonial town with a fine Inn that is well worth a visit. And, of course, you have heard of Boston. Almost everyone has an early ancestor from this cradle of history. You'll want to visit—just to name a few famous places—the Old State House; the Old North Church; Faneuil Hall; Paul Revere's house; the Old Granary Burial Ground, where Paul Revere, Samuel Adams, John Hancock are buried; King's Chapel; [illegible] Monument; Beacon Hill; Mrs. [illegible] Museum; the Public Garden. [illegible] of its famous eati[illegible] Locke-Ober's or th[illegible] of the unexcelled fish houses. Ta[illegible] the Berkshire Music Center, attra[illegible] from all over the United States for six we[illegible] by the very best perform[illegible] Provincetown is an art center,

---

MUSICAL COURIER
NEW YORK CITY

MAY 1958

MASSACHUSETTS

Boston: BOSTON ARTS FESTIVAL. June. Concert & opera. ESPLANADE CONCERTS. July-Aug. Free concerts by Boston Symphony; Hatch Memorial Shell, Charles River Esplanade. Arthur Fiedler and guest conductors.

Coonamessett: SEPTEMBER FESTIVAL. Opera, concerts, recitals.

Lee: JACOB'S PILLOW DANCE FESTIVAL. July-Aug. Dance programs by visiting artists.

Lenox: BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL, TANGLEWOOD. July 2-Aug. 10. Charles Munch, dir.; Pierre Monteux, guest cond. Boston Symphony Orch.; concertos, choral works, operas. SCHOOL OF JAZZ. Aug. Music Inn. Classes and concerts.

Pittsfield: SOUTH MOUNTAIN CHAMBER SERIES. July - Aug. Recitals and chamber music.

Waltham: BRANDEIS UNIV. OF THE CREATIVE ARTS. June. Opera, concerts.

[240]

Press (e)
BRISTOL, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 13,480

N. E. Landmarks Are Featured In 'Life' Town

047

Six-State Area Will Entertain Over 10,000,000 Visitors

NEW YORK, May 20 — A tour of New England — its historic landmarks and present-day attractions — will be featured in the issue of LIFE Magazine out this week, in a 19-page article including 13 pages of color photographs and a tourist map. The 2,400-mile circular route selected by LIFE's editors from New England's 93,000-mile highway system enables the tourist to see the area in 12 days — a basic tour of five to six days with a number of alternate side-trips. Places and events of interest to visitors, historic and scenic spots, summer theaters, festivals and recreation areas, are indicated on the map and described with dates and hours open, required fares or admission fees.

A folio of photographs by famous LIFE Photographer Dmitri Kessel illustrates the beauty of the six New England states pointing out the rich historical background of the region as well as its rewards and pleasures for the tourist this summer.

Tour Covers Six States

The "main route" of this New England tour proceeds counter-clockwise from western Connecticut, through Rhode Island, eastern Massachusetts, coastal New Hampshire, Maine, northern New Hampshire, Vermont and western Massachusetts. A vacationing motorist can get on to this basic route from any of three directions and continue on around the course in any direction he chooses. Indicated on the map are 1) turnpikes for super-fast travel 2) connecting routes for the basic tour or side-trips, and 3) major access routes from north, west and south to tie into the tour. The basic tour covers about 1,100 miles, with optional side-trips of approximately 1,300 additional miles taking the visitor to such places as Old Sturbridge Village, Cape Cod, the Boston area, southern New Hampshire, Maine's lakes and wilderness area, Lake Winnipesaukee, Mt. Mansfield in Vermont and the upper Connecticut River valley.

For those motoring vacationists who have time to dawdle a bit, the article lists—in addition to historic and scenic spots—just a few of the many golf courses, good beaches, picnic areas and fishing boat facilities available along the tour. Some good typical eating places are also recommended.

Change of Pace for the Motorist

Tourists all over the country who may be planning to visit New England this year, will learn by reading this magazine article of the many ways they can find a change of pace, an important requisite for any vacation. For example: the family driving through New England can leave their car for a ride on an elephant at the Benson Animal Farm in Hudson, N.H., or transfer to a train for a ride through the world's biggest cranberry bog at South Carver, Mass., ending up with a visit to a railroad museum and a chicken and cranberry barbecue. For an even more complete change, the road-weary traveler can go to sea, for sightseeing or fishing, on oceangoing craft that sail regularly from Portland or Boothbay Harbor, Me., or Woods Hole, Mass.

Variety of Places and Events to See

Historical relics for visitors to prowl about, the article points out, include a wooden whaling ship at Mystic, Conn., a sidewheeler steamer (the Ticonderoga) at Shelburne, Vt., and a collection of old trolley cars near Biddeford, Me. For leisurely vacation enjoyment in the New England area, the LIFE article suggests such specific attractions as: the Elizabeth Park rose gardens (Hartford, Conn.); the artists' colony at Rockport, Mass.; a visit to The Breakers, famous Vanderbilt summer residence at Newport, R.I.; The Cathedral-of-the-Pines, place of outdoor worship (Rindge, N.H.); Penobscot Marine Museum with full-rigged ship models, sailing charts (Searsport, Me.); tours of paper mills at Millinocket and Rumford, Me.; scenic trails through the gorges and caverns of Lost River Reservation at Kinsman Notch, N.H.; a visit to the Morgan Horse Farm (Weybridge, Vt.); the magnificent Tanglewood concerts at Lenox, Mass., featuring the Boston Symphony from July 2-August 10 and the Jacobs Pillow Dance Festival (Lee, Mass.); from July 1 through August 30.

MODERN BRIDE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

FALL 1958

Dept. MB, Vineyard Haven for information about moon paradises.

VERMONT has scenery much like that in northern New just across its western border, with mountains, valleys, lakes. Two new scenic highways have recently been open McCullough Turnpike over the Appalachian Gap from Irasv Bristol, and Star Route 105A from East Richford to Troy and No Troy. You can swim, play tennis and golf almost anywhere; sail lovely Lake Champlain; picnic along quiet roadsides; buy sugar and wicker baskets. Many of this state's old houses to summer visitors: in Manchester on July 17; Londo Stannard on August 3; Craftsbury on Augu 12 and on August 17. Burlington has an Antiques Woodstock one from August 6-9. Newbu Bazaar July 30-August 10; there is a Lumbe Dum August 15-16

Floor polisher com

all usual attachments. Turbo Jet 99 with tools by

MUSICAL COURIER
NEW YORK CITY

MAY 1958

MASSACHUSETTS

Boston: BOSTON ARTS FESTIVAL. June. Concert & opera. ESPLANADE CONCERTS. July-Aug. Free concerts by Boston Symphony; Hatch Memorial Shell, Charles River Esplanade. Arthur Fiedler and guest conductors.

Coonamessett: SEPTEMBER FESTIVAL. Opera, concerts, recitals.

Lee: JACOB'S PILLOW DANCE FESTIVAL. July-Aug. Dance programs by visiting artists.

Lenox: BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL, TANGLEWOOD. July 2-Aug. 10. Charles Munch, dir.; Pierre Monteux, guest cond. Boston Symphony Orch.; concertos, choral works, operas. SCHOOL OF JAZZ. Aug. Music Inn. Classes and concerts.

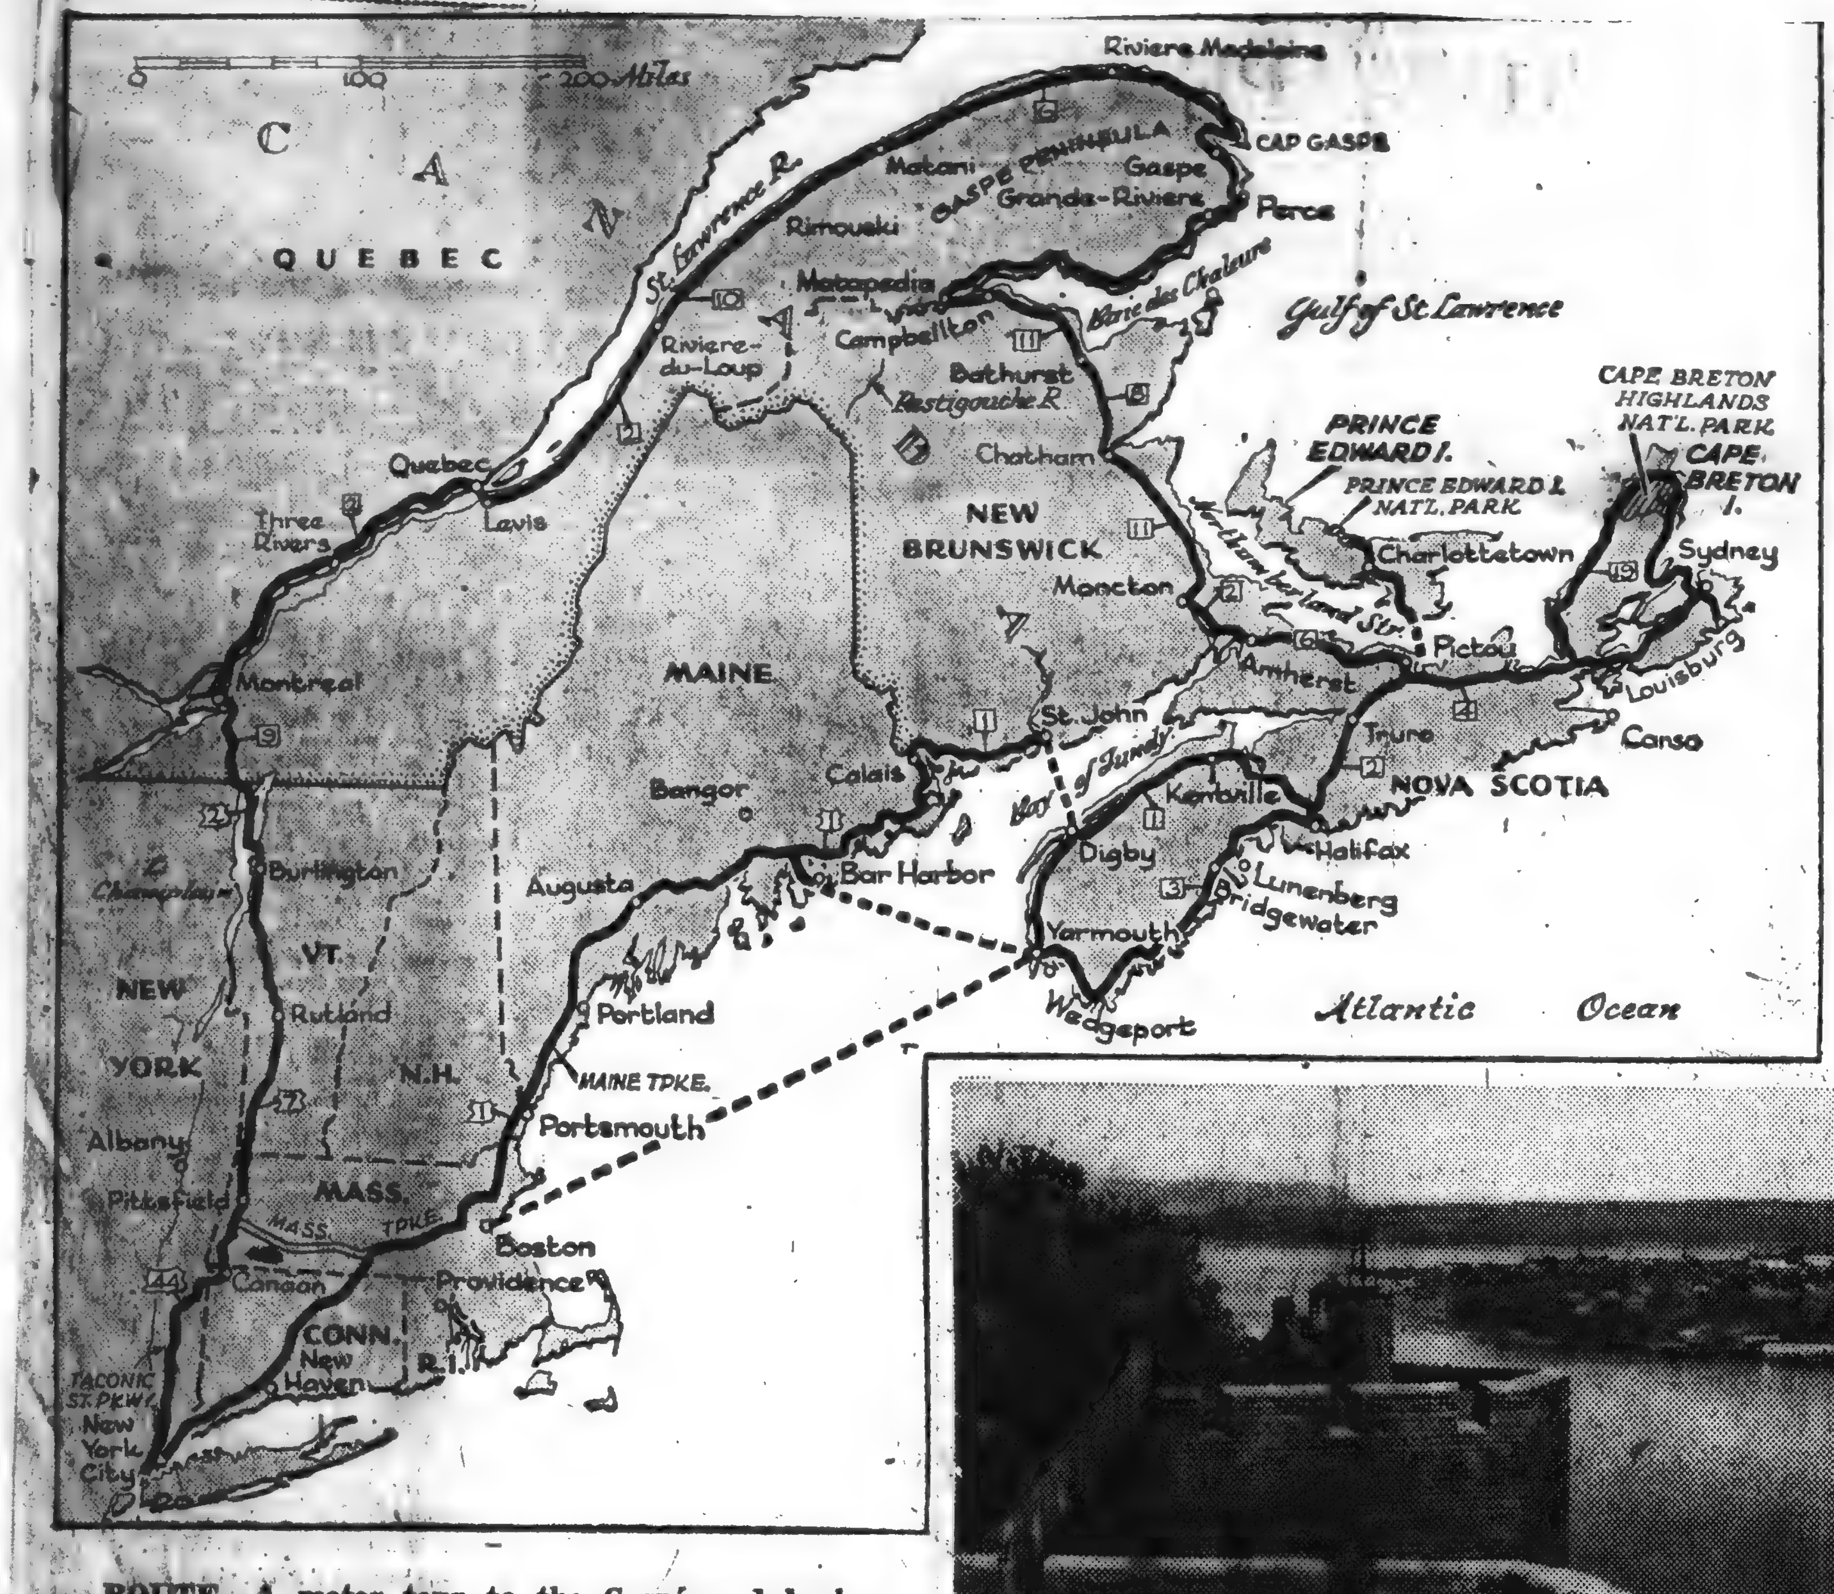
Pittsfield: SOUTH MOUNTAIN CHAMBER SERIES. July-Aug. Recitals and chamber music.

Waltham: BRANDEIS UNIV. OF THE CREATIVE ARTS. June. Opera, concerts.

Courant

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958



ROUTE—A motor tour to the Gaspé and back.

MOTOR TRIP NORTH

Circle Tour Takes in New England And the Maritime Provinces

By JACK WESTEYN

THE only walled city in North America; a place where cars coast "up-hill"; a waterfall that flows in reverse; and some of the most unspoiled scenery in the world—these are but a few of the reasons for the popularity of a motor tour of Canada's Maritime Provinces.

According to travel experts, an exceptional number of Americans will have three or more weeks of vacation this summer. For such fortunate families, there is the possibility of an extended tour of Eastern Canada, including close-ups of New England on the way up and back. This tour, ideal for the longer vacation periods, also may be divided into sections to fit individual requirements for those with less time off.

Manhattan to Quebec—On the assumption that a good start makes for a successful tour, the motorist can begin by following the Taconic State Parkway to U. S. 44, turning eastward there into the rolling Litchfield and Berkshire Hills.

Delightful at any time of year, the region around Pittsfield, Great Barrington and Lenox, Mass., is of special interest during July and August when the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood attracts thousands of music lovers to enjoy the best in classical and jazz music presented in an informal and rustic setting.

In Vermont

One may continue northward on U. S. 7 through Vermont's Green Mountains. There one may dine at any of the attractive country inns, shop for antiques, and visit the marble quarries near Rutland, Vt.

At Burlington, a delightful city in its own right, a turn-off on U. S. 2 launches an unusual drive across may islands in Lake Champlain before rejoining the mainland near the Canadian border.

The stop at the border for customs is practically painless, but be sure to carry acceptable proof of American citizenship, or, if an alien, the necessary visa and entry permit.

Montreal, largest of Canadian cities, is an ideal spot for a stop-over and sight-seeing. Cosmopolitan in many respects, it has an Old World charm which always appeals to visitors. There are fine shops, an excellent French cuisine and lively night club and such attractions as the Cathedral of Notre Dame, St. Joseph's Oratory and a stroll through Mount Royal Park for unexcelled views of the city.

If time permits, a drive of fifty miles leads to the resort section of the Laurentiens, where quaintly named towns such as Ste. Agathe des Monts, Ste. Jovite, and Ste. Adèle proclaim an obvious French influence. Fine hotels and attractive lakes make this playground a favored watering stop.

Old and New Quebec

A drive eastward along the St. Lawrence River leads to ancient and colorful Quebec City. Most French of all French-Canadian towns, it is also the only walled city in North America. Dominated by the battlements of the Chateau Frontenac Hotel, Quebec is really two cities in one—the "lower town" and the "new city." One should stroll the walks of Dufferin Terrace; visit the Plains of Abraham, where Wolfe and Montcalm faced each other; and take a side trip to Montmorency Falls, higher than Niagara. A short distance away is the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupré.

Touring the Gaspé — The second phase of the tour comes on crossing by ferry from Quebec to Levis, to begin a leisurely drive along the Gaspé Peninsula.

Although discovered by Cartier centuries ago, the Gaspé has remained almost unknown through the years. Until twenty-five years ago this section of the Province of Quebec could be reached only by boat. Today, however, a highway skirts the peninsula, making it readily accessible.

Despite this compromise with progress the natives of this colorful land have resisted many of the inroads of civilization, preferring to pursue their own culture and livelihood. They are primarily fishermen and lumbermen, and although very hospitable, are clannish to the point of appearing to ignore the outlanders who tour their countryside.

Quaint Villages

Almost every little village along the way is of interest. Every bend in the road, which is often carved from the sides of the sheer mountains that come down to the sea, affords new and exciting vistas. Quaint fishing villages, outdoor ovens with the tantalizing aroma of baking bread, the gift shops which feature native crafts—all are part of Gaspé's appeal.

At the tip of the peninsula, a place to stop overnight is at the village of Percé, named for the opening fifty feet high in a vast rock which lies offshore, a favorite subject with artists. The giant boulder can be reached on foot at low tide, while a boat ride carries visitors to near-by St. Bonaventure Island, a remarkable bird sanctuary.

A drive along the descending road of the south shore of the cape leads to Matapedia, famous for the fishing in its Restigouche River.

New Brunswick, the next province on the tour, is a fresh and inviting region of forests, streams and lakes. Fishing and hunting are justly famous, and the towns, while generally small, are of considerable interest.

Tourists must be sure to stop at Moncton, N. B., the site of two unique phenomena. "The Bore," a gorge in the river, should be viewed at exact high tide, when a wall of water caused by the extreme high tides of the Bay of Fundy surges upstream against the current, often reaching a height of five feet.

"Magnetic Hill," just outside of town, is an optical illusion, but still quite an experience. When cars are parked in neutral at a marker which appears to be at the foot of a hill, with the ignition turned off, they coast "uphill" without power.

New Scotland and the Highlands—The exact route to follow in touring Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island is relatively unimportant, for all roads have a habit of merging sooner or later. The matter of time is, however, something to consider.

Much to See

In a tour of three weeks there is hardly time to do more than sample the wonders of this region, and it would take a brave person, indeed, to advise what to see and what to miss. For the fortunate person who need not worry too much about an extra week, this scenic and hospitable peninsula is a treasure trove of pleasure.

Ideally, the tour should include not only a trip around the mainland of Nova Scotia, but journeys to Cape Breton Island and Prince Edward Island.

Prince Edward Island is easily reached by ferry from either Cape Tormentine or Caribou River. Reservations are required at the latter crossing point. On the island, Charlottetown is interesting, and there is a harness race meet as well as the excellent beach in the National Park.

The drive along the north shore of Nova Scotia to Cape Breton Island passes through such very Scottish towns as New Glasgow and Antigonish, where the annual Highland Games in mid-July are a gala event.

Overnight Cruise

Across the new Canso Causeway begins the tour around Cape Breton Island, where the highlight will be the seventy-mile trip along the upper reaches of Cape Breton Highlands National Park. This road, called the Cabot Trail, is one of the most scenic in eastern Canada. The combination of mountains, valleys and seacoast is ready-made for photography fans. There are lodgings for the night at a rustic lodge at Ingonish Beach.

Returning to the mainland, the tourist will want to stop at Halifax, steeped in its seafaring tradition; tour the scenic south shore with more than a passing glance at such deep-sea fishing headquarters as Lunenburg and Wedgeport; enjoy the beaches at almost any shore point, and possibly turn inland for a look at the still primitive forests and lakes.

For a change of pace there are fine resorts and golfing at several points, notably Digby, Yarmouth, Pictou and Kentville.

The village of Grand Pré may prove of interest to romanticists, this being the home of Longfellow's "Evangeline."

For the return trip, the motorist may choose from a number of possible combinations. An automobile-passenger ferry leaves Yarmouth daily for Bar Harbor, Me., fare $16 per car, and $5 per passenger. The trip takes about six hours.

Steamer to Boston

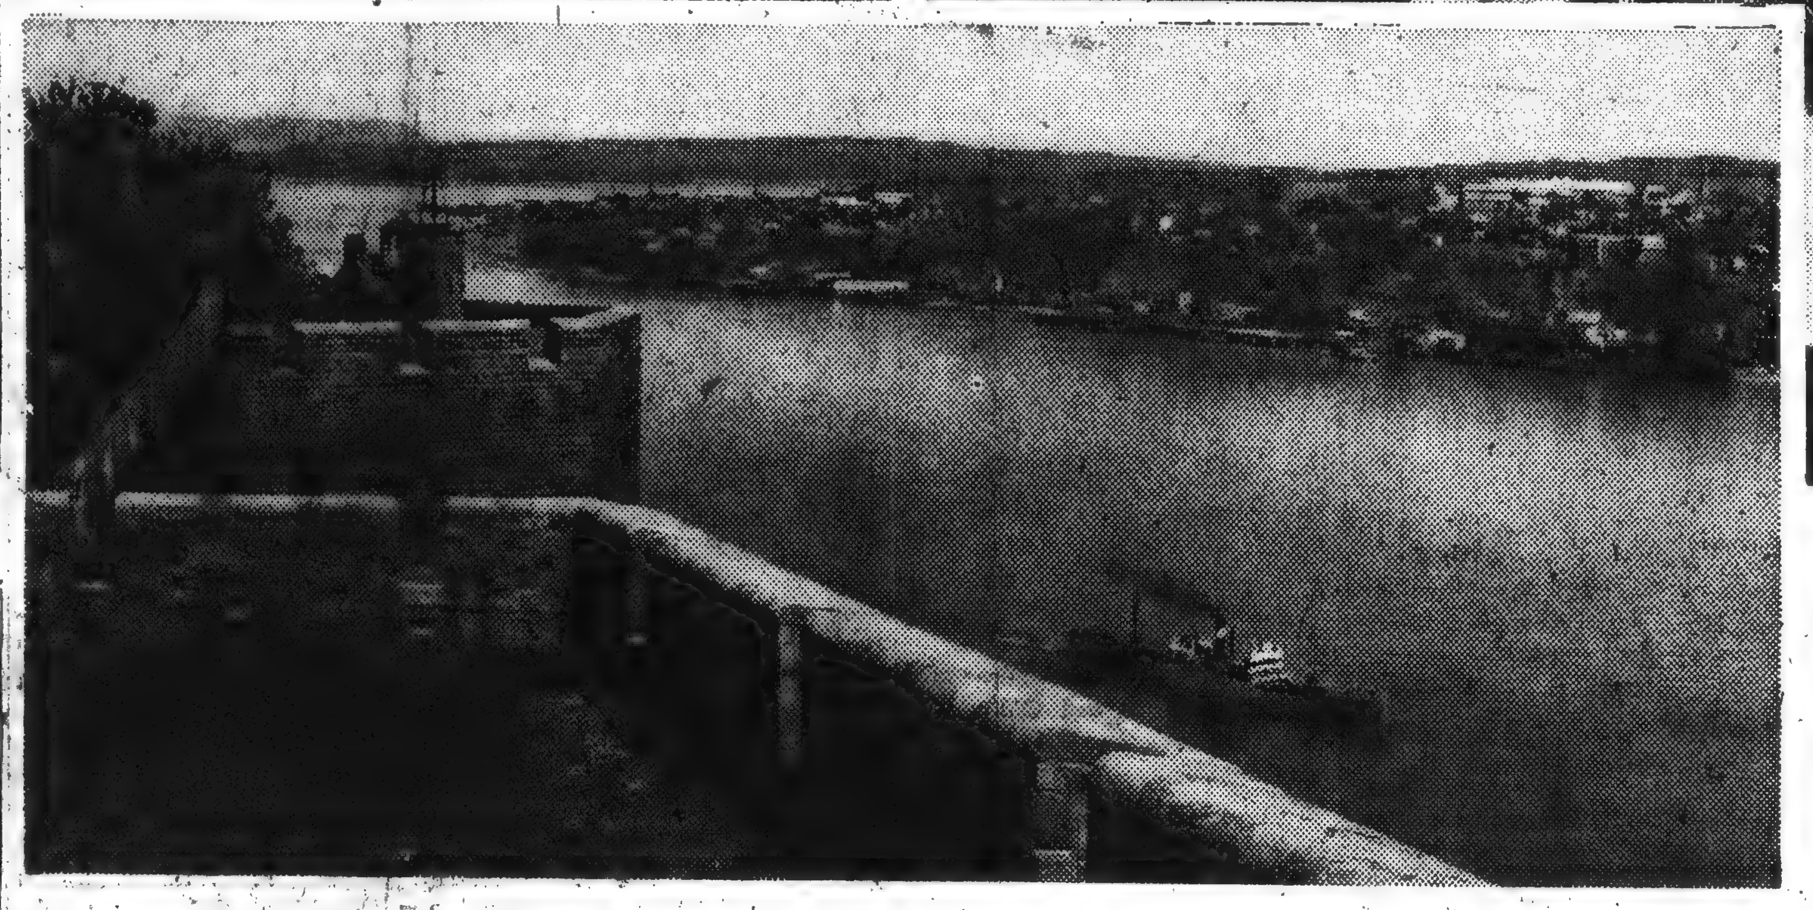
An overnight steamer service from Yarmouth to Boston carries cars, and departs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays. This is a pleasant overnight cruise, the tariff being $40 for the car, and $25 per person.

Another popular connection is by ferry from Digby to St. John, N. B. This daily service crosses in three hours and costs $12 for the car and $2.60 per passenger. Stateroom rates are additional.

The overland route from Nova Scotia is longer, but very pleasant if time permits. Along the way are the "Reversing Falls" at St. John, another of the tidal phenomena which, in this case, causes a waterfall to flow in reverse at high tide. Golfers will want to stop at St. Andrews, N. B., for a bit of golf on an exceptional course.

If the fastest way home is the best, there are excellent turnpikes and parkways all the way from Maine to Manhattan, and one overnight stop along the way should suffice.

If only Nova Scotia is visited, the above-mentioned ferries can be taken in both directions. They provide a fine short cut to the province.



Canadian Government Travel Bureau

PROSPECT—Looking down on the St. Lawrence from the heights at Quebec City.

This is the Second Part of
THE SUMMER VACATION SECTION
Because of its size, this feature is published in two parts. See First Part (Section 11) for additional resort and travel news, pictures and advertising.

Summer Vacations Part II

Maine Development Commission

BREAKERS—On the rockbound coast of Maine.

GOLFING IN MAINE

Many Tournaments Listed for Season, Most of Them Open to Tourists

By HAROLD L. CAIL

PORTLAND, Me.—Fifty-four golf tournaments, most of them open to tourists who want to include their clubs in the family baggage, have been scheduled at Maine country clubs and municipal golf courses between now and the end of September.

Leading tournaments are the Maine Amateur championship at the Augusta Country Club, July 8-11; the New England Women's Championships at the Portland Country Club, July 29-31, and the Women's State Championship Tourney, Purpoodock Club, Cape Elizabeth, Aug. 12-15.

Pro-amateur tourneys start tomorrow at Purpoodock; weekly women's tournaments start Tuesday at the Portland Country Club, and open amateur handicap matches begin Friday, also at Purpoodock.

This is an impressive amount of golf, but golf is by no means the only special attraction which Maine will have to offer its visitors this season. The town of Scarborough, slightly south of here, will observe its 300th anniversary with a celebration, starting July 4, that includes parades, dances, dinners and speeches. East of Portland the town of Harpswell will observe its 200th anniversary July 26 to Aug. 1.

Younger Town

Compared to Scarborough, the town of Old Orchard Beach, which is near by, is but a youngster—it observes its seventy-fifth anniversary Aug. 15-23.

Although Maine's best known foods are the potato and the lobster, the chicken or broiler, with its variety of uses, is fast coming to the fore. As an industry the broiler now ranks along with the potato, newsprint, fine grade papers, leather goods, canning and, of course, the tourist industry.

This accounts for the fact that while the Maine Seafood Festival at Rockland, Aug. 1-3, is a whooping event for lobster gourmets, chicken barbecues now outnumber lobster bakes by quite a bit. The first of the barbecues starts June 24 at Washburn, in eastern Maine. The state's senior barbecue, the seventh annual, will be held at the New Meadows Yacht Club, New Meadows River, Bath, July 5.

An event that should draw music lovers, as well as the curious, is the Fashion Fiesta to be held June 28 at the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson of New York and Long Island, at Falmouth Foreside. This is for the benefit of Portland's symphony orchestra and will be open to the public.

New Highways

For the motoring tourist who likes to keep on the go, Maine offers many miles of new highways and a minimum of construction to interfere with the driving this season.

The state's general bounty for visitors—lakes, woods, fishing, swimming, boating and mountain climbing — is well known.

In the way of spectator sports and other activities from now until the end of October there is an endless chain of harness racing, running races (both with pari-mutuel betting), flower shows, boat races, art festivals, visits to historical homes, fishing derbies, summer theatres, horse shows and shooting matches.

The International Flying Club at Houlton is sponsoring an International Air Show, July 27, which is new to this state's summer calendar of events. At Portland the Millionth Visitor celebration, Aug. 7-9, is evoking increasing interest as the event approaches.

MODERN BRIDE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

SUMMER 1958

MASSACHUSETTS

Church on the village green, at Syosset, Mass.

All roads in Massachusetts lead to the Berkshires, where you can enjoy the Tanglewood Music Festival in late July and early August. These lovely mountains take up the whole western end of the state, and abound in magnificent golf courses, weekly polo matches, mountain trails for hiking, streams for fishing, and charming inns. Among the latter are: Avaloch Inn, Lenox; The Northfield; Jug End Barn, Great Barrington, and Eastover, at Lenox.

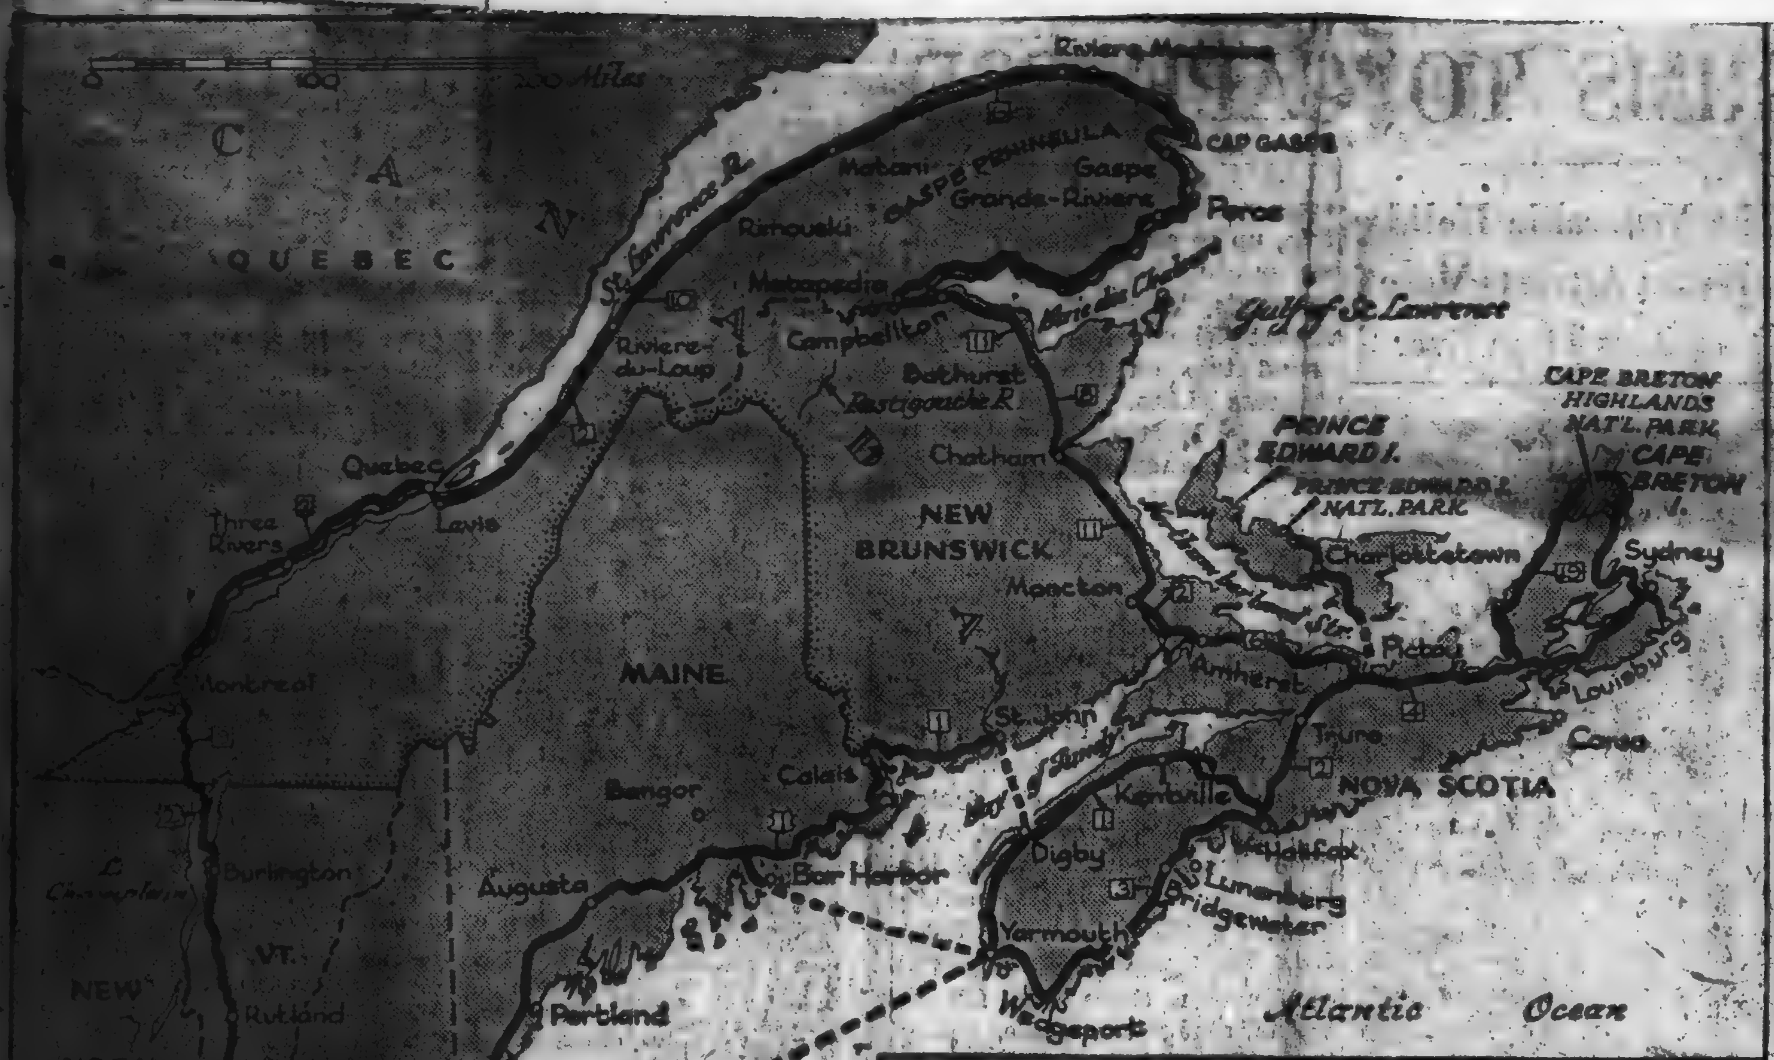
Cape Cod has its devotees, too; miles and miles of sandy beaches and dunes facing out to the great Atlantic; old sea captains waiting for listeners of their fascinating tales; good sailing waters; beautiful countryside for horseback riding and hiking—and fine weather lure people here from every state in the union. Provincetown is a famous artists' colony, with a good summer theatre. Villages such as Wellfleet, Truro, Eastham (a good place to stay here is Whispering Pines), Yarmouth, Hyannis, Sandwich—home of the famous glass, Buzzards Bay, Falmouth, Woods Hole and many others each have lovely historic houses, beautiful old trees, and a peaceful calm you will find nowhere else in the country. Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket are only a little way offshore by comfortable boats, which also will carry your car. Both have wonderful beaches surrounded by blue skies and blue water, and both are very historic and very independent. Nantucket, in fact, almost seceded at one time in its history. Take some woolens with you, as the nights can be chilly if the fog rolls in. Boston with all its famous buildings you will want to see, as well as Longfellow's Cambridge home, and the famous bridge at Concord, where "the embattled farmers stood."

[241]

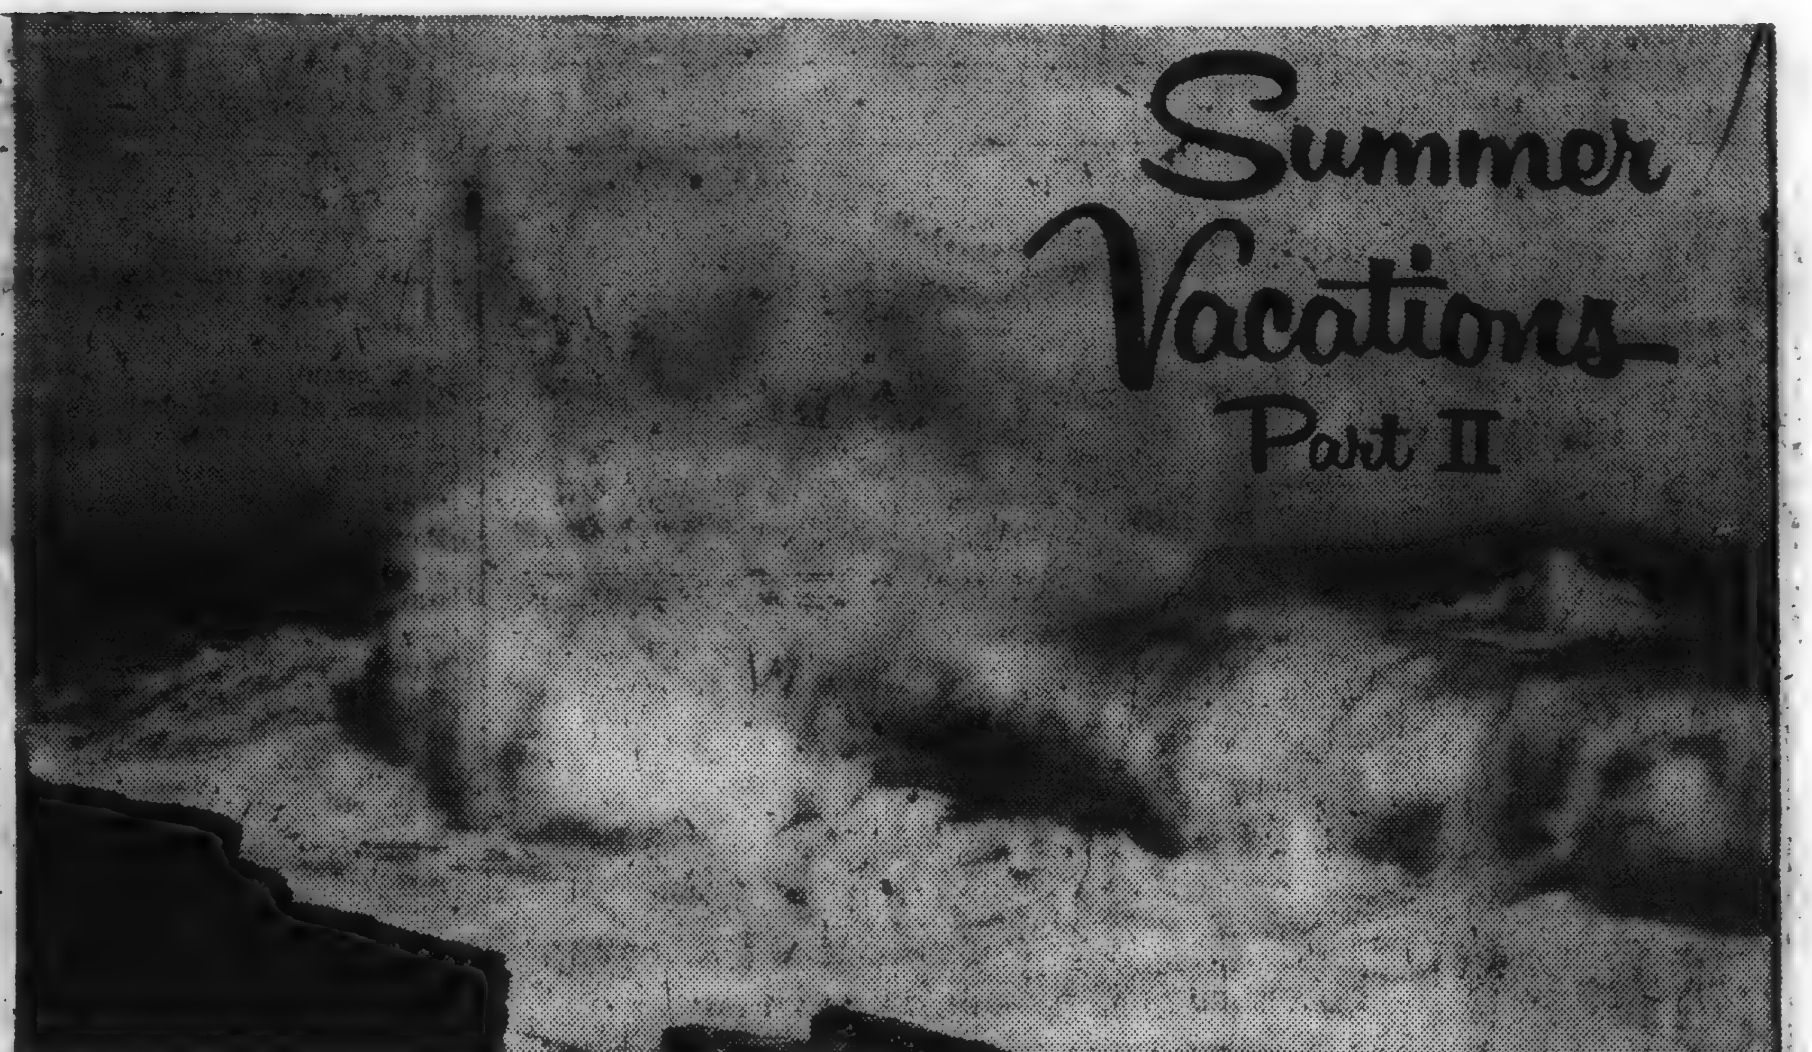
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958

Summer Vacations
Part II



ROUTE—A motor tour to the Gaspé and back.



Maine Development Commission

BREAKERS—On the rockbound coast of Maine.

Canadian Government Travel Bureau

PROSPECT—Looking down on the St. Lawrence from the heights at Quebec City.

MOTOR TRIP NORTH

Circle Tour Takes in New England And the Maritime Provinces

By JACK WESTEYN

THE only walled city in North America; a place where cars coast "uphill"; a waterfall that flows in reverse; and some of the most unspoiled scenery in the world—these are but a few of the reasons for the popularity of a motor tour of Canada's [illegible] Provinces.

[illegible]ing to travel experts, [illegible]tional number of Amer[illegible] [illegible] have three or more [illegible] vacation this summer. [illegible] fortunate families, [illegible] the possibility of an extended tour of Eastern Canada, including close-ups of New England on the way up and back. This tour, ideal for the longer vacation periods, also may be divided into sections to fit individual requirements for those with less time off.

Manhattan to Quebec—On the assumption that a good start makes for a successful tour, the motorist can begin by following the Taconic State Parkway to U. S. 44, turning eastward there into the rolling Litchfield and Berkshire Hills.

Delightful at any time of year, the region around Pittsfield, Great Barrington and Lenox, Mass., is of special interest during July and August when the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood attracts thousands of music lovers to enjoy the best in classical and jazz music presented in an informal and rustic setting.

In Vermont

One may continue northward on U. S. 7 through Vermont's Green Mountains. There one may dine at any of the attractive country inns, shop for antiques, and visit the marble quarries near Rutland, Vt.

At Burlington, a delightful city in its own right, a turn-off on U. S. 2 launches an unusual drive across may islands in Lake Champlain before rejoining the mainland near the Canadian border.

The stop at the border for customs is practically painless, but be sure to carry acceptable proof of American citizenship, or, if an alien, the necessary visa and entry permit.

Montreal, largest of Canadian cities, is an ideal spot for a stop-over and sight-seeing. Cosmopolitan in many respects, it has an Old World charm which always appeals to visitors. There are fine shops, an excellent French cuisine and lively night club and such attractions as the Cathedral of Notre Dame, St. Joseph's Oratory and a stroll through Mount Royal Park for unexcelled views of the city.

If time permits, a drive of fifty miles leads to the resort section of the Laurentians, where quaintly named towns such as Ste. Agathe des Monts, Ste. Jovite, and Ste. Adèle proclaim an obvious French influence. Fine hotels and attractive lakes make this playground a favored watering stop.

Old and New Quebec

A drive eastward along the St. Lawrence River leads to ancient and colorful Quebec City. Most French of all French-Canadian towns, it is also the only walled city in North America. Dominated by the battlements of the Chateau Frontenac Hotel, Quebec is really two cities in one—the "lower town" and the "new city." One should stroll the walks of Dufferin Terrace; visit the Plains of Abraham, where Wolfe and Montcalm faced each other; and take a side trip to Montmorency Falls, higher than Niagara. A short distance away is the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupré.

Touring the Gaspé — The second phase of the tour comes on crossing by ferry from Quebec to Levis, to begin a leisurely drive along the Gaspé Peninsula.

Although discovered by Cartier centuries ago, the Gaspé has remained almost unknown through the years. Until twenty-five years ago this section of the Province of Quebec could be reached only by boat. Today, however, a highway skirts the peninsula, making it readily accessible.

Despite this compromise with progress the natives of this colorful land have resisted many of the inroads of civilization, preferring to pursue their own culture and livelihood. They are primarily fishermen and lumbermen, and although very hospitable, are clannish to the point of appearing to ignore the outlanders who tour their countryside.

Quaint Villages

Almost every little village along the way is of interest. Every bend in the road, which is often carved from the sides of the sheer mountains that come down to the sea, affords new and exciting vistas. Quaint fishing villages, outdoor ovens with the tantalizing aroma of baking bread, the gift shops which feature native crafts—all are part of Gaspé's appeal.

At the tip of the peninsula, a place to stop overnight is at the village of Percé, named for the opening fifty feet high in a vast rock which lies offshore, a favorite subject with artists. The giant boulder can be reached on foot at low tide, while a boat ride carries visitors to near-by St. Bonaventure Island, a remarkable bird sanctuary.

A drive along the descending road of the south shore of the cape leads to Matapedia, famous for the fishing in its Restigouche River.

New Brunswick, the next province on the tour, is a fresh and inviting region of forests, streams and lakes. Fishing and hunting are justly famous, and the towns, while generally small, are of considerable interest.

Tourists must be sure to stop at Moncton, N. B., the site of two unique phenomena. "The Bore," a gorge in the river, should be viewed at exact high tide, when a wall of water caused by the extreme high tides of the Bay of Fundy surges upstream against the current, often reaching a height of five feet.

"Magnetic Hill," just outside of town, is an optical illusion, but still quite an experience. When cars are parked in neutral at a marker which appears to be at the foot of a hill, with the ignition turned off, they coast "uphill" without power.

New Scotland and the Highlands—The exact route to follow in touring Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island is relatively unimportant, for all roads have a habit of merging sooner or later. The matter of time is, however, something to consider.

Much to See

In a tour of three weeks there is hardly time to do more than sample the wonders of this region, and it would take a brave person, indeed, to advise what to see and what to miss. For the fortunate person who need not worry too much about an extra week, this scenic and hospitable peninsula is a treasure trove of pleasure.

Ideally, the tour should include not only a trip around the mainland of Nova Scotia, but journeys to Cape Breton Island and Prince Edward Island.

Prince Edward Island is easily reached by ferry from either Cape Tormentine or Caribou River. Reservations are required at the latter crossing point. On the island, Charlottetown is interesting, and there is a harness race meet as well as the excellent beach in the National Park.

The drive along the north shore of Nova Scotia to Cape Breton Island passes through such very Scottish towns as New Glasgow and Antigonish, where the annual Highland Games in mid-July are a gala event.

Overnight Cruise

Across the new Canso Causeway begins the tour around Cape Breton Island, where the highlight will be the seventy-mile trip along the upper reaches of Cape Breton Highlands National Park. This road, called the Cabot Trail, is one of the most scenic in eastern Canada. The combination of mountains, valleys and seacoast is ready-made for photography fans. There are lodgings for the night at a rustic lodge at Ingonish Beach.

Returning to the mainland, the tourist will want to stop at Halifax, steeped in its seafaring tradition; tour the scenic south shore with more than a passing glance at such deep-sea fishing headquarters as Lunenburg and Wedgeport; enjoy the beaches at almost any shore point, and possibly turn inland for a look at the still primitive forests and lakes.

For a change of pace there are fine resorts and golfing at several points, notably Digby, Yarmouth, Pictou and Kentville.

The village of Grand Pré may prove of interest to romanticists, this being the home of Longfellow's "Evangeline."

For the return trip, the motorist may choose from a number of possible combinations. An automobile-passenger ferry leaves Yarmouth daily for Bar Harbor, Me., fare $16 per car, and $5 per passenger. The trip takes about six hours.

Steamer to Boston

An overnight steamer service from Yarmouth to Boston carries cars, and departs Tuesdays, Thursdays and Sundays. This is a pleasant overnight cruise, the tariff being $40 for the car, and $25 per person.

Another popular connection is by ferry from Digby to St. John, N. B. This daily service crosses in three hours and costs $12 for the car and $2.60 per passenger. Stateroom rates are additional.

The overland route from Nova Scotia is longer, but very pleasant if time permits. Along the way are the "Reversing Falls" at St. John, another of the tidal phenomena which, in this case, causes a waterfall to flow in reverse at high tide. Golfers will want to stop at St. Andrews, N. B., for a bit of golf on an exceptional course.

If the fastest way home is the best, there are excellent turnpikes and parkways all the way from Maine to Manhattan, and one overnight stop along the way should suffice.

If only Nova Scotia is visited, the above-mentioned ferries can be taken in both directions. They provide a fine short cut to the province.

This is the Second Part of
THE SUMMER VACATION SECTION
Because of its size, this feature is published in two parts. See First Part (Section 11) for additional resort and travel news, pictures and advertising.

GOLFING IN MAINE

Many Tournaments Listed for Season, Most of Them Open to Tourists

By HAROLD L. CAIL

PORTLAND, Me.—Fifty-four golf tournaments, most of them open to tourists who want to include their clubs in the family baggage, have been scheduled at Maine country clubs and municipal golf courses between now and the end of September.

Leading tournaments are the Maine Amateur championship at the Augusta Country Club, July 8-11; the New England Women's Championships at the Portland Country Club, July 29-31, and the Women's State Championship Tourney, Purpoodock Club, Cape Elizabeth, Aug. 12-15.

Pro-amateur tourneys start tomorrow at Purpoodock; weekly women's tournaments start Tuesday at the Portland Country Club, and open amateur handicap matches begin Friday, also at Purpoodock.

This is an impressive amount of golf, but golf is by no means the only special attraction which Maine will have to offer its visitors this season. The town of Scarborough, slightly south of here, will observe its 300th anniversary with a celebration, starting July 4, that includes parades, dances, dinners and speeches. East of Portland the town of Harpswell will observe its 200th anniversary July 26 to Aug. 1.

Younger Town

Compared to Scarborough, the town of Old Orchard Beach, which is near by, is but a youngster—it observes its seventy-fifth anniversary Aug. 15-23.

Although Maine's best known foods are the potato and the lobster, the chicken or broiler, with its variety of uses, is fast coming to the fore. As an industry the broiler now ranks along with the potato, newsprint, fine grade papers, leather goods, canning and, of course, the tourist industry.

This accounts for the fact that while the Maine Seafoods Festival at Rockland, Aug. 1-3, is a whooping event for lobster gourmets, chicken barbecues now outnumber lobster bakes by quite a bit. The first of the barbecues starts June 24 at Washburn, in eastern Maine. The state's senior barbecue, the seventh annual, will be held at the New Meadows Yacht Club, New Meadows River, Bath, July 5.

An event that should draw music lovers, as well as the curious, is the Fashion Fiesta to be held June 28 at the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson of New York and Long Island, at Falmouth Foreside. This is for the benefit of Portland's symphony o[illegible] and will be open to th[illegible]

New Highways

For the motoring tou[illegible] likes to keep on the g[illegible] offers many miles of n[illegible]ways and a minimum [illegible]struction to interfere with the driving this season.

The state's general bounty for visitors—lakes, woods, fishing, swimming, boating and mountain climbing — is well known.

In the way of spectator sports and other activities from now until the end of October there is an endless chain of harness racing, running races (both with pari-mutuel betting), flower shows, boat races, art festivals, visits to historical homes, fishing derbies, summer theatres, horse shows and shooting matches.

The International Flying Club at Houlton is sponsoring an International Air Show, July 27, which is new to this state's summer calendar of events. At Portland the Millionth Visitor celebration, Aug. 7-9, is evoking increasing interest as the event approaches.

MODERN BRIDE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

SUMMER 1958

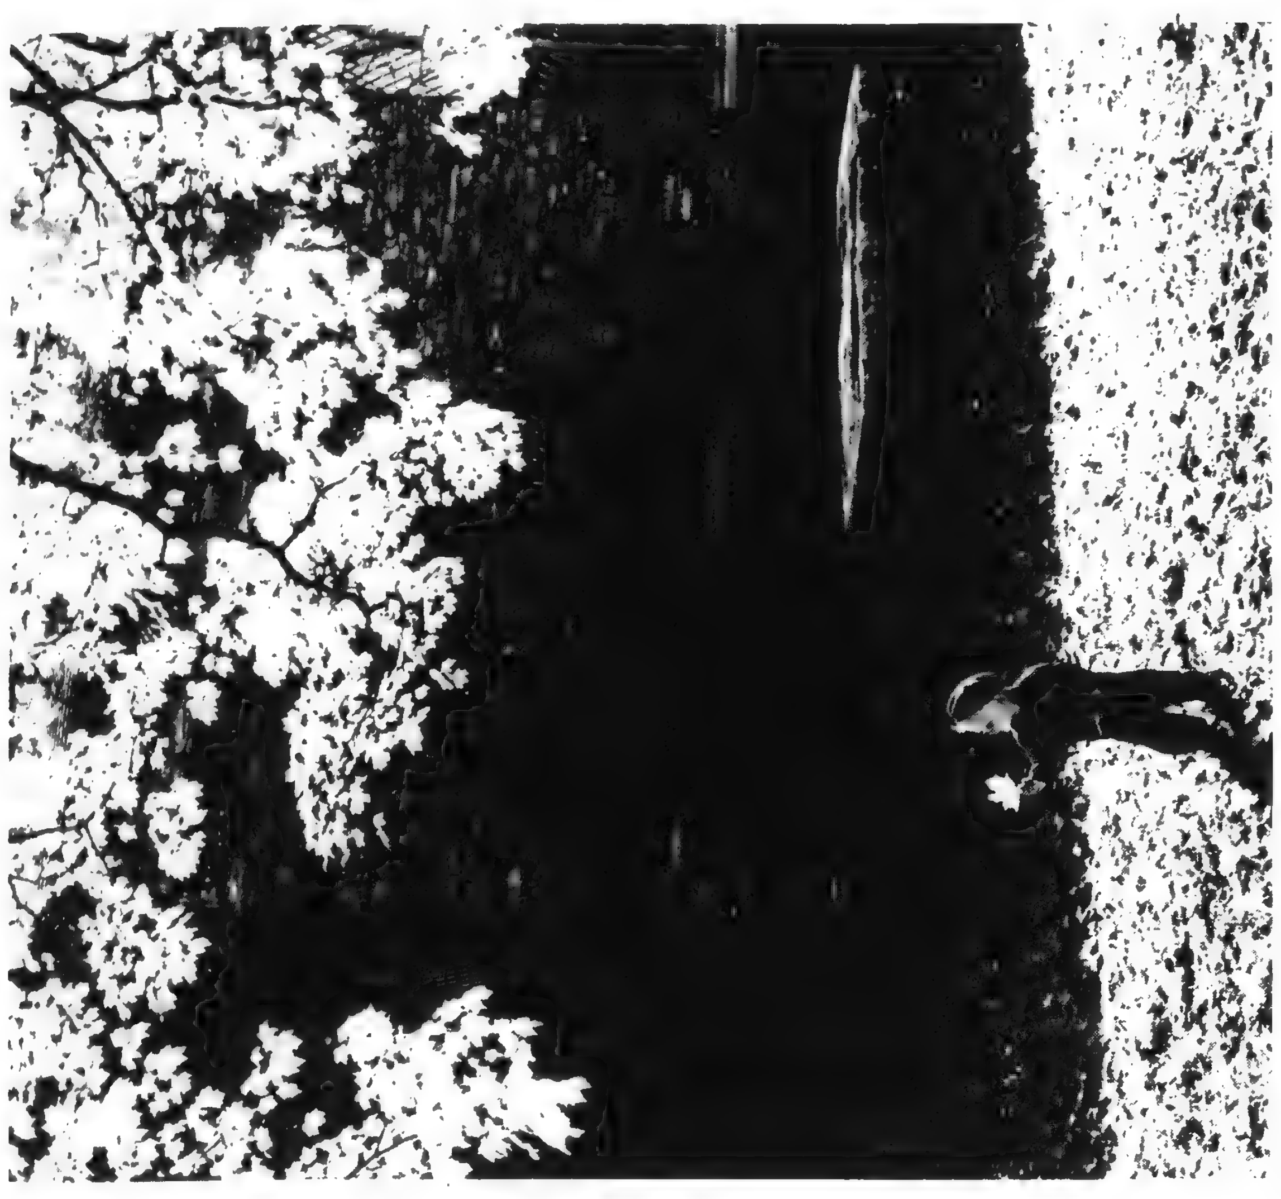
MASSACHUSETTS

Church on the village green, at Syosset, Mass.

All roads in Massachusetts lead to the Berkshires, where you can enjoy the Tanglewood Music Festival in late July and early August. These lovely mountains take up the whole western end of the state, and abound in magnificent golf courses, weekly polo matches, mountain trails for hiking, streams for fishing, and charming inns. Among the latter are: Avaloch Inn, Lenox; The Northfield; Jug End Barn, Great Barrington, and Eastover, at Lenox.

Cape Cod has its devotees, too; miles and miles of sandy beaches and dunes facing out to the great Atlantic; old sea captains waiting for listeners of their fascinating tales; good sailing waters; beautiful countryside for horseback riding and hiking—and fine weather lure people here from every state in the union. Provincetown is a famous artists' colony, with a good summer theatre. Villages such as Wellfleet, Truro, Eastham (a good place to stay here is Whispering Pines), Yarmouth, Hyannis, Sandwich—home of the famous glass, Buzzards Bay, Falmouth, Woods Hole and many others each have lovely historic houses, beautiful old trees, and a peaceful calm you will find nowhere else in the country. Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket are only a little way offshore by comfortable boats, which also will carry your car. Both have wonderful beaches surrounded by blue skies and blue water, and both are very historic and very independent. Nantucket, in fact, almost seceded at one time in its history. Take some woolens with you, as the nights can be chilly if the fog rolls in. Boston with all its famous buildings you will want to see, as well as Longfellow's Cambridge home, and the famous bridge at Concord, where "the embattled farmers stood."

The BERKSHIRES



This Berkshire lad holds the beauty of a golden maple leaf picked from the autumn carpeting under foot. Overhead the remaining leaves glow brilliantly in the early afternoon sunshine. The church walls, already deep in shadow, give an added quality to the scene. These are the reasons so many people make the fall foliage tour during the first two weeks of October.

PITTSFIELD — Bostonians, whose patronage and gifts keep alive their famed symphony orchestra, should insist on getting a better shake from the Berkshire Hills people, who import the orchestra for six weeks each summer but can not or will not export to their coast-bound cousins any of their glorious scenery. The Bostonians apparently see nothing wrong with this exceedingly one-sided arrangement, however, because each year great numbers of them join the multitudes who flock to this wooded hill region.

Nature and culture are the magnets. Nature's show, of course, goes on year-round, while most of the great cultural attractions are planned for the warm months. Piece de resistance for almost everyone but tone-deaf visitors to this westernmost Massachusetts county is the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, in Lenox. There the Boston Symphony, under the baton of Charles Munch and a few guest conductors of great talent, holds its annual summer concert, which opens the first week in July and continues on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons through the middle of August.

The concerts are held in a covered amphitheater, but many of the young and the young-at-heart prefer to hear the works of the masters while lounging outside on the estate's beautiful lawns or under the trees. Those who fail to order tickets well in advance must hear their music from the lawns, also.

The world reputation of the symphony is such that tickets would be scarce even if the roads were so bad that the journey had to be made atop a sure-footed donkey. Thanks to the new Massachusetts Turnpike, however, Tanglewood and other Berkshire attractions are only a two and one-half hour drive from metropolitan Boston. One of the two Berkshire exits from the turnpike is in South Lee, just a few minutes from Tanglewood. Any other point in Berkshire County can be reached from the turnpike in 30 minutes or less. Trains and buses serve the area, too.

The most beautiful spring show in the Berkshires comes in late May and early June on the outskirts of this central Berkshires city. In Pittsfield State Forest, surrounding a pond atop a 2,000-foot peak in the Taconic Range, are the largest natural azalea gardens in New England. An imaginative visitor might find himself half expecting to see Walt Disney's Snow White glide around a turn in a pink-petalled path.

The gardens are opened for swimming and picnicking after the blooms are gone, and other picnic areas dot the 80,000 acres of state forest preserves in the Berkshires and all main and secondary highways. (But people familiar with the Berkshires, though conceding that outdoor meals can be as soothing to the spirit as they are stimulating to the appetite, budget plenty of time for visiting their

---

Summer Music Rings Capital District

As delicate as a violin string, the music of summer must rest on public support that is unusually sturdy and lasting. The support has held up in the Berkshires and at Woodstock; in the lower Catskills it has collapsed.

The collapse has brought down the Empire State Music Festival at Ellenville, some 80 miles south of Albany. For three summers Empire State compared more than favorably with America's greatest music festival, the Berkshire Festival. Now it is virtually gone, reduced to a mere week, with the other weeks turned over to a musical tent theater.

Fortunately, the summer music closer to hand has fared better. The Berkshire Festival, at the scenic Tanglewood manor near Lenox, Mass., is as indomitable as it orchestra, the Boston Symphony. It is built upon a tradition of the old favorites, superbly performed.

The six weeks at Tanglewood will be devoted, respectively, to Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Debussy and Ravel, Wagner and Beethoven. The conductors: the regular Charles Munch and old-timer Pierre Monteux.

Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons the music will be played at Tanglewood. Occasionally there will be guest soloists: Young pianists such as Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario, Eugene Istomin; violinists such as Zino Francescatti and Berl Senofsky; the violist Joseph de Pasquale; singers such as Margaret Harshaw.

Foss

Wednesday nights chamber music groups will play: Budapest String Quartet, Beaux Arts Trio, New York Pro Musica Antiqua, Kroll Quartet. There will also be student concerts and finally, Tanglewood-on-Parade, with the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Near Lenox, in the hills west of Lee, is the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, which Ted Shawn founded 26 years ago. Its performances, which do for the dance what Tanglewood's do for concert music, will run for nine weeks.

The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company will be the event to catch the eye at Jacob's Pillow, and some other stoppers will be the Atlanta Civic Ballet and the U.S. debut of the Maria Dolores Garcia, a Brazilian dancer, and the Kandyan Dancers, from Ceylon.

Next door to the Tanglewood estate is the Berkshire Music Barn, from which flow those cool and hot sounds known as jazz. Concerts are Sunday nights (jazz), Saturday afternoons (folk music) and an occasional tidbit during the week.

In August the Music Barn will be host to the second season of the School of Jazz, which will have about 30 students and such professors as John Lewis (the dean), Bob Brookmeyer, Jimmy Giuffre, Milt Jackson and Oscar Peterson. The tempo is modern.

And closer to Lenox is the South Mountain Temple, where there is chamber music on Saturday afternoons. Chamber music also will be heard further up the road, at Bennington College and at the Southern Vermont Art Center at Manchester. (Strangely, Louis Armstrong will start things off at Manchester).

And it will be heard down at Woodstock, too, on Sunday afternoons at the Maverick Hall. Woodstock also boasts the Turnau Opera Players, a small group that performs charmingly in a small rustic theater.

The Dance

PAULINE KONER—Modern dances at Jacob's Pillow.

The nine weeks of the dance at the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, Mass.:

JULY 1-5. Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky, classic pas de deux; Pauline Koner and Dance Company, new modern dances; Shirmathi Gina, dances of India.

JULY 8-11. Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline, classic pas de deux; Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, "This Property Is Condemned," premier of "Winesburg, Ohio;" Lotte Koslar, European dancing mime.

JULY 15-19. Geoffrey Holder and Company, dances of Trinidad and the Carribbean; Ram Gopal, dancer from India; Sahomi Tachibana, classic dances of Japan.

JULY 22-26. Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company, dancers, guitarists, Flamenco singers, pianists.

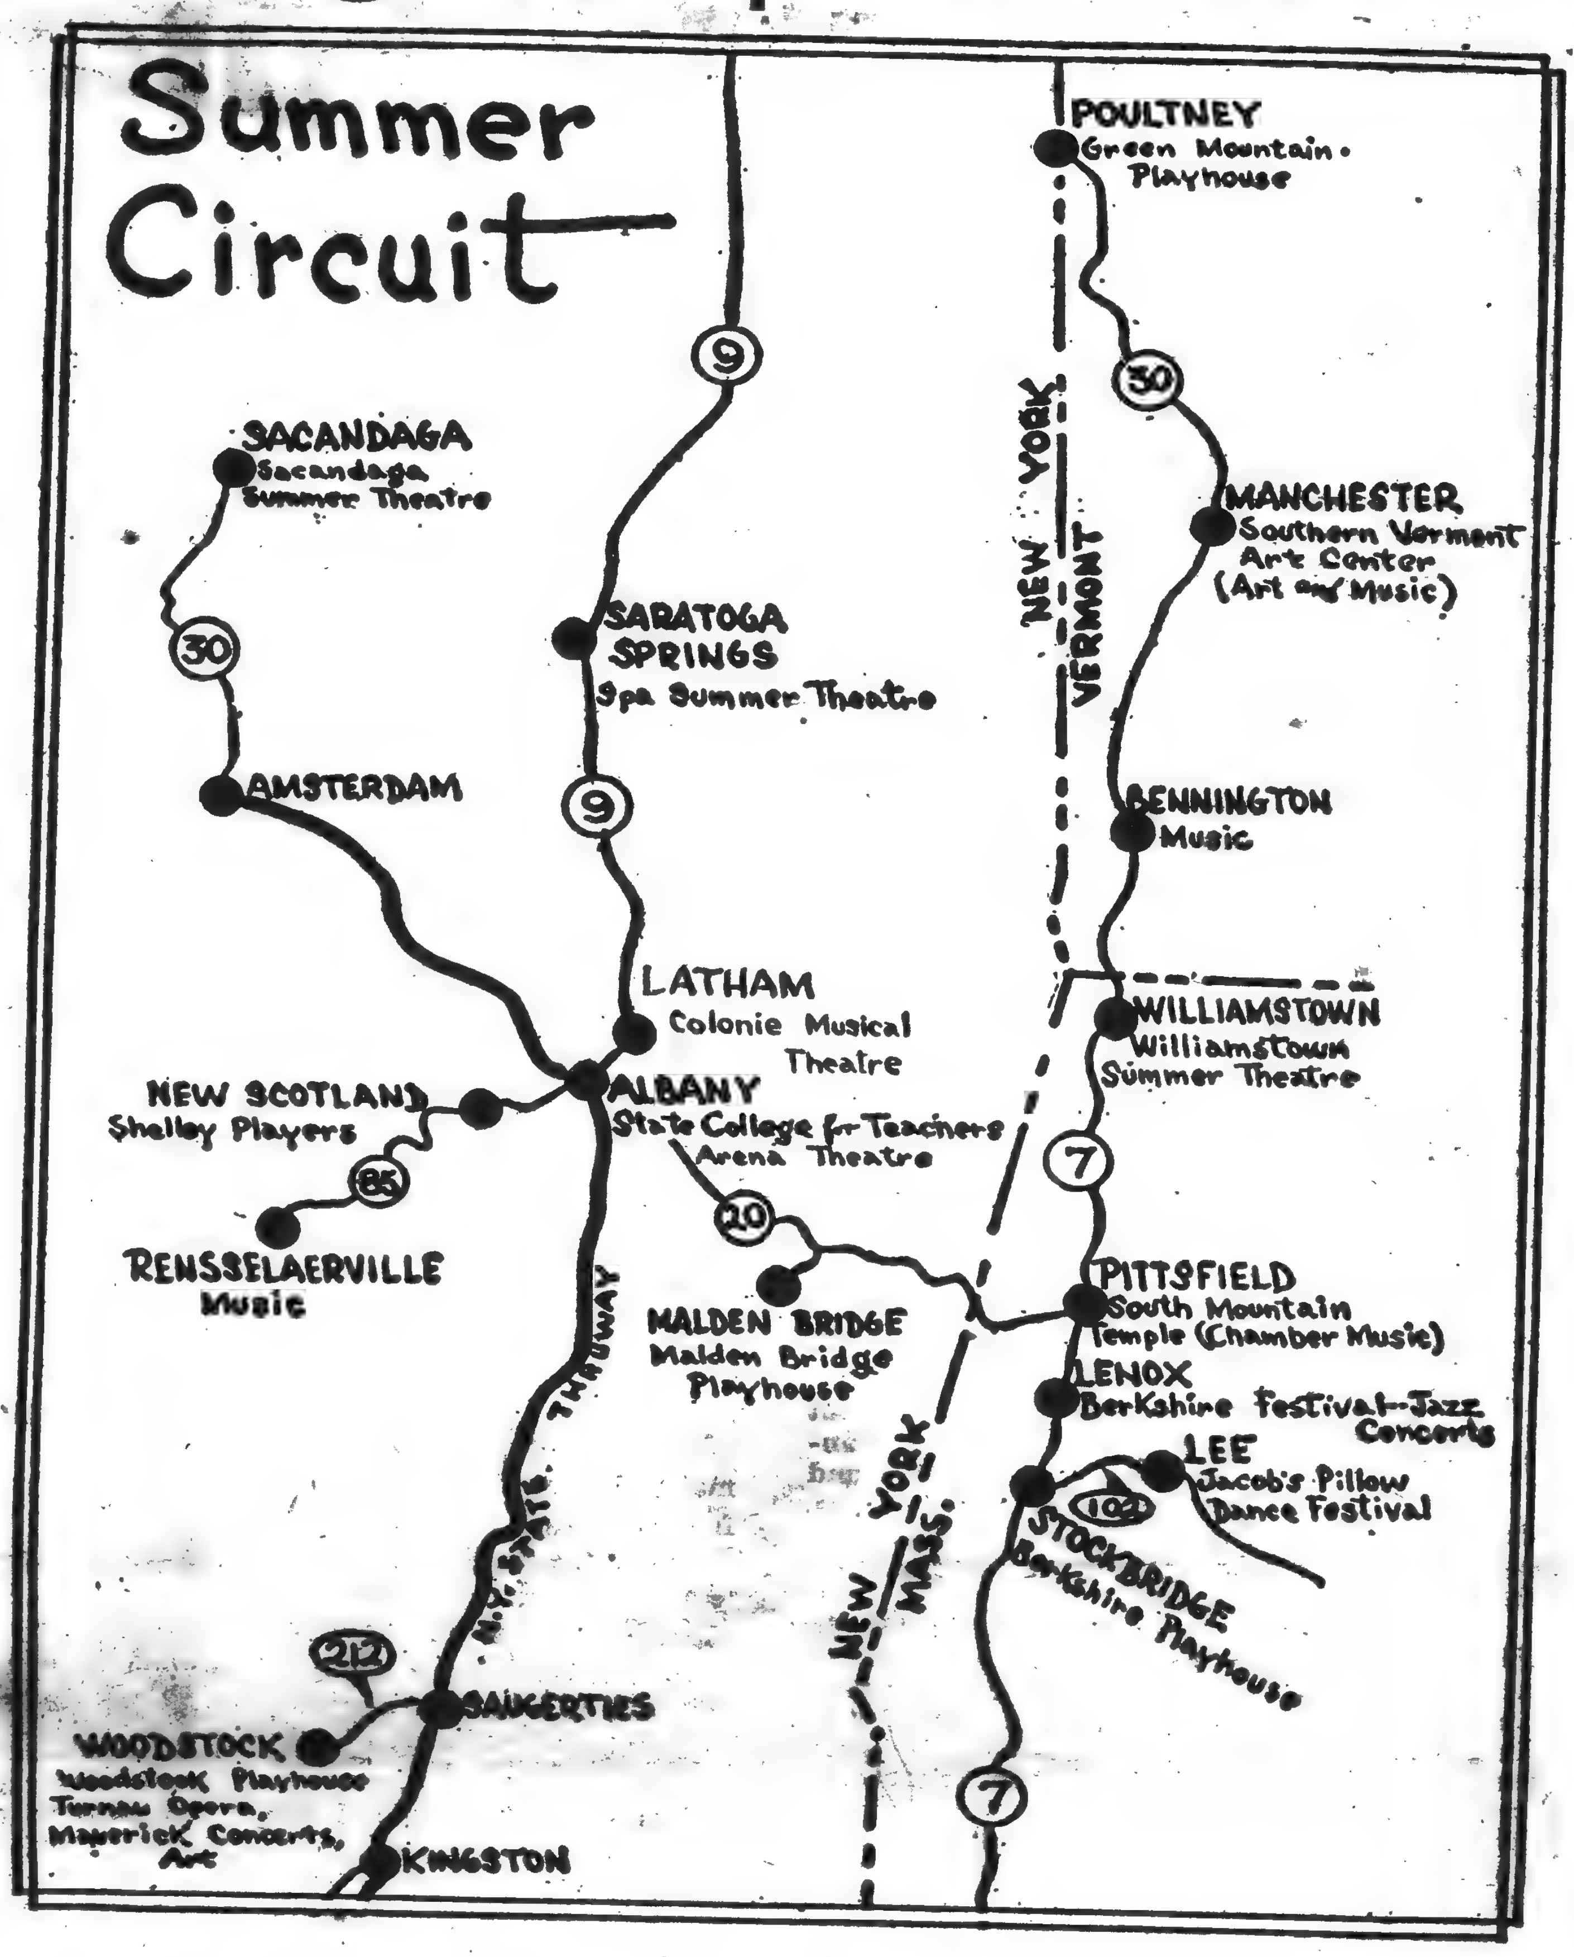
JULY 29-AUG. 2. Atlanta Civic Ballet, modern ballets "Green Altars" and "Manhattan Towers;" Mata and Hari, comic dancing mimes.

AUG. 5-9. Nina Novak and George Zorich, classic pas de deux; Irine Kovalska and Edmund Novak, character ballet; Myra Kinch and Company, modern dances.

AUG. 14-16. Irina Borowska and Alan Howard, classic pas de deux; Daniel Nagrin, modern dancer; Carola Goya and Matteo, ethnic cameos.

AUG. 22-23. Nora Kaye and Erik Bruhn, classic pas de deux; Jean Cebron, modern dancer; Maria Dolores Garcia, Spanish dancer from Brazil.

AUG. 29-30. Barbara Fallis and Royes Fernandez, classic pas de deux; Myra Kinch and Company with Ted Shawn, modern dance; Kandyan Dancers, from Ceylon.



Berkshire Festival Directory

The six weeks of music at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.:

JULY 2. Budapest String Quartet. Haydn's D-Major Quartet (Op. 64, No. 5); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A Minor (op. 7); Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E Minor (op. 59, No. 2).

JULY 4. Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, 4.

JULY 5. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Bach's D-Minor Piano Concerto (Lukas Foss, soloist) and "The Art of the Fugue."

JULY 6. BSO, conducted by G. Wallace Woodsworth. Bach's B-Minor Mass, with Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm, Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society.

JULY 9. Beaux Arts of New York. Beethoven's Trio in E-Flat (Op. 1, No. 1); Faure's Trio in D Minor (Op. 120); Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C Minor (Op. 66).

JULY 11. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Mozart's "Musical Joke" (K. 522), Sinfonia Concertante (Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale, soloists), "Linz" Symphony No. 36 in C Major.

JULY 12. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Two-Piano Concerto (K. 365) (Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss, soloists), Serenade No. 10 in B-Flat for Winds, Symphony No. 40 in G Minor.

JULY 13. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Mozart's Haffner Symphony, Piano Concerto in C Major (K. 467) (Seymour Lipkin, soloist), choral works (conducted by Hugh Ross.)

JULY 16. New York Pro Musica Antiqua. Music of Flanders and Spain by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others.

JULY 18. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Brahm's Serenade No. 2 in A (Op. 16), Symphony No. 4; Copland's Variations for Orchestra.

JULY 19. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Brahms' Requiem (Hilde Gueden, Donald Gramm, soloists).

JULY 20. BSO, conducted by Pierre Monteux. Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor (Leon Fleisher, soloist); Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

JULY 23. chamber music concert, to be announced.

JULY 25. BSO, conducted by M. Monteux. Glinka's "Russian and Ludmilla" Overture; Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4; Milhaud's "Les Eumenides" Overture; Debussy's "Three Nocturnes"; Ravel's "La Valse."

JULY 26. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Stravinsky's "Agon"; Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 (Byron Janis, soloist); Debussy's "La Mer."

JULY 27. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta; Ravel's second suite from "Daphnis and Chloe"; Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto (Zino Francescatti), soloist).

JULY 30. The Kroll Quaret. Mozart's Quartet in C Major (K. 465); Blackwood's Quartet No. 1; Brahms' Quartet No. 1 in C Minor (Op. 51, No. 1).

AUG. 1. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger, Prelude and Love from Siegfried Idyll, Death from "Tristan and Isolde," Immolation Scene (Margaret Harshaw, soloist); Piston's Viola Concerto (Joseph de Pasquale, soloist).

AUG. 2. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Wagner's Overture and Bacchanale from Tannhaueser, Siegfried's Rhine Journey; Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-Flat (Leonard Pennario, soloist); Vaughan Williams' Symphony No. 8.

AUG. 3. BSO, conducted by M. Monteux. Excerpts from Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman," "Lohengrin," "Die Walkuere," "Parsifal," "Tannhaueser," "Rienzi" (Margaret Harshaw, soloist.)

AUG. 6. Kroll Quartet. Haydn's Quartet in G Minor (Op. 74, No. 3); Bartok's Quartet No. 2 (Op. 17); Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A Minor (Op. 132).

AUG. 8. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Honegger's Prelude, Fuguse and Postlude; Beethoven's Symphony No. 7, "Emperor" Piano Concerto No. 5 (Eugene Istomin, soloist).

AUG. 9. BSO, conducted by M. Monteux. Beehoven's music from "Prometheus," Violin Concerto (Berl Senofsky, soloist), Lenore Overture No. 3; Hindemith's "Noblissima Visione."

AUG. 10. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Walton's Johannesburg Festival Overture; Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 (Festival Chorus and soloists).

(In addition to the regular Wednesday chamber music and weekend orchestra concerts, there will be open rehearsals by the BSO and concerts by student groups, to be announced. Tanglewood-on-Parade, with the BSO and the Boston Pops Orchestra, will be Aug. 7.

BEAUX ARTS TRIO—Their chamber music will be featured July 9 at the Berkshire Festival.

The BERKSHIRES

This Berkshire lad holds the beauty of a golden maple leaf picked from the autumn carpeting under foot. Overhead the remaining leaves glow brilliantly in the early afternoon sunshine. The church walls, already deep in shadow, give an added quality to the scene. These are the reasons so many people make the fall foliage tour during the first two weeks of October.

PITTSFIELD — Bostonians, whose patronage and gifts keep alive their famed symphony orchestra, should insist on getting a better shake from the Berkshire Hills people, who import the orchestra for six weeks each summer but can not or will not export to their coast-bound cousins any of their glorious scenery. The Bostonians apparently see nothing wrong with this exceedingly one-sided arrangement, however, because each year great numbers of them join the multitudes who flock to this wooded hill region.

Nature and culture are the magnets. Nature's show, of course, goes on year-round, while most of the great cultural attractions are planned for the warm months. Piece de resistance for almost everyone but tone-deaf visitors to this westernmost Massachusetts county is the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, in Lenox. There the Boston Symphony, under the baton of Charles Munch and a few guest conductors of great talent, holds its annual summer concert, which opens the first week in July and continues on Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons through the middle of August.

The concerts are held in a covered amphitheater, but many of the young and the young-at-heart prefer to hear the works of the masters while lounging outside on the estate's beautiful lawns or under the trees. Those who fail to order tickets well in advance must hear their music from the lawns, also.

The world reputation of the symphony is such that tickets would be scarce even if the roads were so bad that the journey had to be made atop a sure-footed donkey. Thanks to the new Massachusetts Turnpike, however, Tanglewood and other Berkshire attractions are only a two and one-half hour drive from metropolitan Boston. One of the two Berkshire exits from the turnpike is in South Lee, just a few minutes from Tanglewood. Any other point in Berkshire County can be reached from the turnpike in 30 minutes or less. Trains and buses serve the area, too.

The most beautiful spring show in the Berkshires comes in late May and early June on the outskirts of this central Berkshires city. In Pittsfield State Forest, surrounding a pond atop a 2,000-foot peak in the Taconic Range, are the largest natural azalea gardens in New England. An imaginative visitor might find himself half expecting to see Walt Disney's Snow White glide around a turn in a pink-petalled path.

The gardens are opened for swimming and picnicking after the blooms are gone, and other picnic areas dot the 80,000 acres of state forest preserves in the Berkshires and all main and secondary highways. (But people familiar with the Berkshires, though conceding that outdoor meals can be as soothing to the spirit as they are stimulating to the appetite, budget plenty of time for visiting their

---

Summer Music Rings Capital District

As delicate as a violin string, the music of summer must rest on public support that is unusually sturdy and lasting. The support has held up in the Berkshires and at Woodstock; in the lower Catskills it has collapsed.

The collapse has brought down the Empire State Music Festival at Ellenville, some 80 miles south of Albany. For three summers Empire State compared more than favorably with America's greatest music festival, the Berkshire Festival. Now it is virtually gone, reduced to a mere week, with the other weeks turned over to a musical tent theater.

Fortunately, the summer music closer to hand has fared better. The Berkshire Festival, at the scenic Tanglewood manor near Lenox, Mass., is as indomitable as it orchestra, the Boston Symphony. It is built upon a tradition of the old favorites, superbly performed.

The six weeks at Tanglewood will be devoted, respectively, to Bach, Mozart, Brahms, Debussy and Ravel, Wagner and Beethoven. The conductors: the regular Charles Munch and old-timer Pierre Monteux.

Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons the music will be played at Tanglewood. Occasionally there will be guest soloists: Young pianists such as Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario, Eugene Istomin; violinists such as Zino Francescatti and Berl Senofsky; the violist Joseph de Pasquale; singers such as Margaret Harshaw.

Foss

Wednesday nights chamber music groups will play: Budapest String Quartet, Beaux Arts Trio, New York Pro Musica Antiqua, Kroll Quartet. There will also be student concerts and finally, Tanglewood-on-Parade, with the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Near Lenox, in the hills west of Lee, is the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, which Ted Shawn founded 26 years ago. Its performances, which do for the dance what Tanglewood's do for concert music, will run for nine weeks.

The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company will be the event to catch the eye at Jacob's Pillow, and some other stoppers will be the Atlanta Civic Ballet and the U.S. debut of the Maria Dolores Garcia, a Brazilian dancer, and the Kandyan Dancers, from Ceylon.

Next door to the Tanglewood estate is the Berkshire Music Barn, from which flow those cool and hot sounds known as jazz. Concerts are Sunday nights (jazz), Saturday afternoons (folk music) and an occasional tidbit during the week.

In August the Music Barn will be host to the second season of the School of Jazz, which will have about 30 students and such professors as John Lewis (the dean), Bob Brookmeyer, Jimmy Giuffre, Milt Jackson and Oscar Peterson. The tempo is modern.

And closer to Lenox is the South Mountain Temple, where there is chamber music on Saturday afternoons. Chamber music also will be heard further up the road, at Bennington College and at the Southern Vermont Art Center at Manchester. (Strangely, Louis Armstrong will start things off at Manchester).

And it will be heard down at Woodstock, too, on Sunday afternoons at the Maverick Hall. Woodstock also boasts the Turnau Opera Players, a small group that performs charmingly in a small rustic theater.

The Dance

PAULINE KONER—Modern dances at Jacob's Pillow.

The nine weeks of the dance at the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, Mass.:

JULY 1-5, Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky, classic pas de deux; Pauline Koner and Dance Company, new modern dances; Shirmathi Gina, dances of India.

JULY 8-12, Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline, classic pas de deux; Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, "This Property Is Condemned," premier of "Winesburg, Ohio;" Lotte Goslar, European dancing mime.

JULY 15-19, Geoffrey Holder and Company, dances of Trinidad and the Carribbean; Ram Gopal, dancer from India; Sahomi Tachibana, classic dances of Japan.

JULY 22-26, Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company, dancers, guitarists, Flamenco singers, pianists.

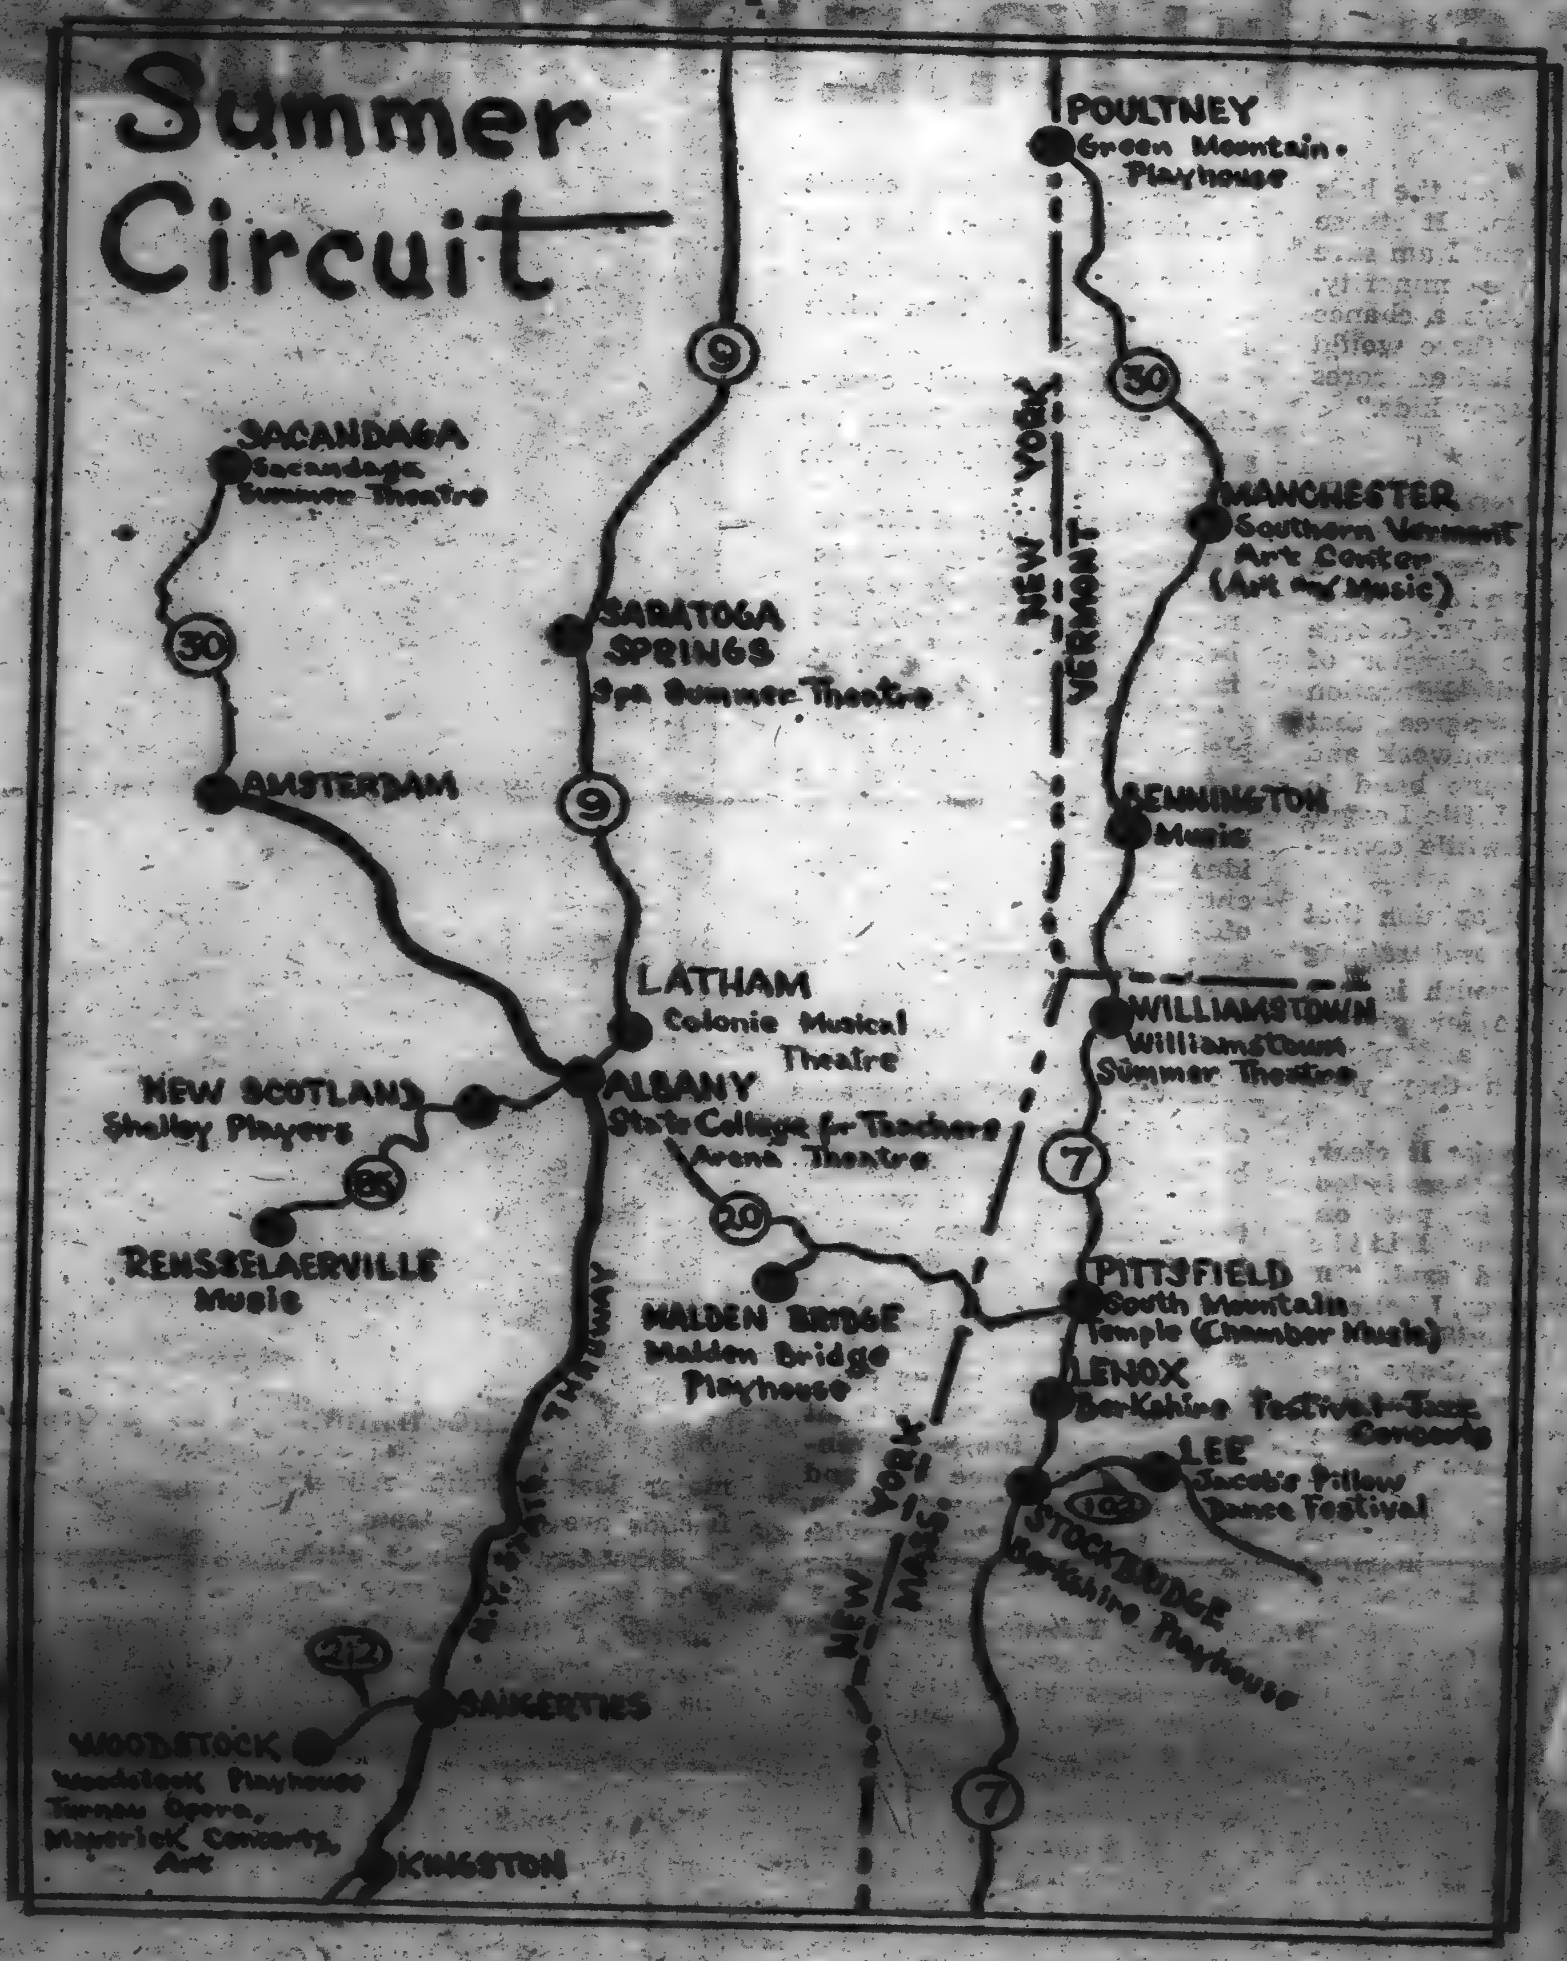
JULY 29-AUG. 2, Atlanta Civic Ballet, modern ballets "Green Altars" and "Manhattan Towers;" Mata and Hari, comic dancing mimes.

AUG. 5-9, Nina Novak and George Zorich, classic pas de deux; Irina Kovalska and Edmund Novak, character ballet; Myra Kinch and Company, modern dances.

AUG. 12-16, Irina Borowska and Alan Howard, classic pas de deux; Daniel Nagrin, modern dancer; Carola Goya and Matteo, ethnic dancers.

AUG. 19-23, Nora Kaye and Erik Bruhn, classic pas de deux; Joan [illegible], modern dancer; Maria Dolores Garcia, Spanish dancer from Brazil.

AUG. 26-30, Barbara Fallis and Royes Fernandez, classic pas de deux; Myra Kinch and Company with Ted Shawn, modern dance; Kandyan Dancers, from Ceylon.



Summer Circuit
POULTNEY Green Mountain Playhouse
SACANDAGA Sacandaga Summer Theatre
MANCHESTER Southern Vermont Art Center (Art and Music)
SARATOGA SPRINGS Spa Summer Theatre
AMSTERDAM
BENNINGTON Music
NEW YORK
VERMONT
LATHAM Colonie Musical Theatre
WILLIAMSTOWN Williamstown Summer Theatre
NEW SCOTLAND Shelley Players
ALBANY State College for Teachers Arena Theatre
RENSSELAERVILLE Music
PITTSFIELD South Mountain Temple (Chamber Music)
MALDEN BRIDGE Malden Bridge Playhouse
LENOX Berkshire Festival—Jazz Concerts
LEE Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival
STOCKBRIDGE Berkshire Playhouse
NEW YORK
MASS.
N.Y. STATE THRUWAY
SAUGERTIES
WOODSTOCK Woodstock Playhouse Turnau Opera, Maverick Concerts, Art
KINGSTON
9 30
85 20
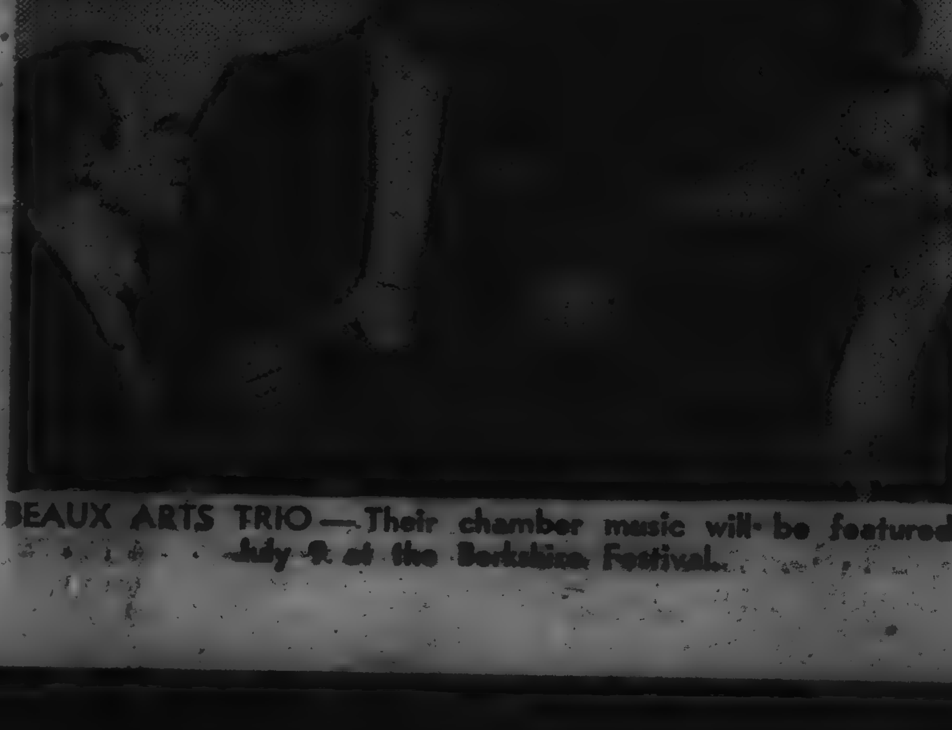
7
102
212



BEAUX ARTS TRIO—Their chamber music will be featured July 9 at the Berkshire Festival.

Berkshire Festival Directory

The six weeks of music at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.:

JULY 2, Budapest String Quartet, Haydn's D-Major Quartet (Op. 64, No. 5); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A Minor (op. 7); Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E Minor (op. 59, No. 2).

JULY 4, Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, 4.

JULY 5, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Bach's D-Minor Piano Concerto (Lukas Foss, soloist) and "The Art of the Fugue."

JULY 6, BSO, conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth. Bach's B-Minor Mass, with Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm, Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society.

JULY 9, Beaux Arts of New York. Beethoven's Trio in E-Flat (Op. 1, No. 1); Faure's Trio in D Minor (Op. 120); Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C Minor (Op. 66).

JULY 11, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Mozart's "Musical Joke" (K. 522), Sinfonia Concertante (Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale, soloists), "Linz" Symphony No. 36 in C Major.

JULY 12, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," Two-Piano Concerto (K. 365) (Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss, soloists), Serenade No. 10 in B-Flat for Winds, Symphony No. 40 in G Minor.

JULY 13, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Mozart's Haffner Symphony, Piano Concerto in C Major (K. 467) (Seymour Lipkin, soloist), choral works (conducted by Hugh Ross.)

JULY 16, New York Pro Musica Antiqua. Music of Flanders and Spain by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others.

JULY 18, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Brahms's Serenade No. 2 in A (Op. 16), Symphony No. 4; Copland's Variations for Orchestra.

JULY 19, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Brahms' Requiem (Hilde Gueden, Donald Gramm, soloists).

JULY 20, BSO, conducted by Pierre Monteux. Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor (Leon Fleisher, soloist); Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

JULY 23, chamber music concert, to be announced.

JULY 25, BSO, conducted by M. Monteux. Glinka's "Russian and Ludmilla" Overture; Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4; Milhaud's "Les Eumenides" Overture; Debussy's "Three Nocturnes"; Ravel's "La Valse."

JULY 26, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Stravinsky's "Agon"; Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 (Byron Janis, soloist); Debussy's "La Mer."

JULY 27, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta; Ravel's second suite from "Daphnis and Chloe"; Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto (Zino Francescatti), soloist).

JULY 30, The Kroll Quartet. Mozart's Quartet in C Major (K. 465); Blackwood's Quartet No. 1; Brahms' Quartet No. 1 in C Minor (Op. 51, No. 1).

AUG. 1, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger, Prelude and Love from Siegfried Idyll, Death from "Tristan und Isolde," Immolation Scene (Margaret Harshaw, soloist); Piston's Viola Concerto (Joseph de Pasquale, soloist).

AUG. 2, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Wagner's Overture and Bacchanale from Tannhaeuser," Siegfried's Rhine Journey; Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-Flat (Leonard Pennario, soloist); Vaughan Williams' Symphony No. 8.

AUG. 3, BSO, conducted by M. Monteux. Excerpts from Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman," "Lohengrin," "Die Walkuere," "Parsifal," "Tannhaeuser," "Rienzi" (Margaret Harshaw, soloist.)

AUG. 6, Kroll Quartet. Haydn's Quartet in G Minor (Op. 74, No. 3); Bartok's Quartet No. 2 (Op. 17); Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A Minor (Op. 132).

AUG. 8, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Honegger's Prelude, Fugue and Postlude; Beethoven's Symphony No. 7, "Emperor" Piano Concerto No. 5 (Eugene Istomin, soloist).

AUG. 9, BSO, conducted by M. Monteux. Beethoven's music from "Prometheus," Violin Concerto (Berl Senofsky, soloist), Lenore Overture No. 3; Hindemith's "Nobilissima Visione."

AUG. 10, BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Walton's Johannesburg Festival Overture; Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 (Festival Chorus and soloists).

(In addition to the regular Wednesday chamber music and weekend orchestra concerts, there will be open rehearsals by the BSO and concerts by student groups, to be announced. Tanglewood-on-Parade, with the BSO and the Boston Pops Orchestra, will be Aug. 6.)

a museum containing momentoes of his early boyhood; Gill, where visitors can see dinosaur footprints preserved in rock; Hampden, home of Thornton Burgess, noted author of the Peter Rabbit stories; Holyoke, where visitors may view more dinosaur tracks and the exhibits or art, wildlife, indian and pre-historic relics at Holyoke Museum.

Indian relics are on display at the Hubbard Memorial Library in Ludlow, Leyden has its Balancing Rock, Jacob's Well, Old Rock Chair and other famous rock formations, Northfield is noted for its two-mile long Main Street that is lined with stately old colonial homes and double rows of stately elms, the Bridge of Flowers is found at Shelburne, and Westfield is the site of three noted art and historical museums.

No traveler need pass hungry through the Pioneer Valley, for this is the area of the country inn where a hearty meal is a tradition, not a transaction. The cooking, generally excellent and offered at a wide range of prices, is New-England-style, though more and more restaurants serving European foods are being opened.

A traveler will have no difficulty working up an appetite either, because the Valley is a summer and winter playground. Lakes and streams dot the land everywhere (Ashfield, a noted Summer resort, is called "Little Switzerland") and golf courses, tennis courts, trails, camping sites and bridle paths are in, or near, every one of the 73 towns in the valley.

Season-long blooms and shrubs bedeck the old Trolley Bridge at Shelburne Falls, Mass.

Above, the Wilson Print Shop, built in 1816, is one of the historical houses in Old Deerfield Village. Below, Deerfield River, a favorite spot for anglers.

The utilitarian and picturesque stone wall has long been a part of the rural Massachusetts landscape. The same fieldstones so laboriously removed from the fields also were used as foundation stones for the farmer's house and barn. Here the stone wall in the foreground kept the cattle from wandering while going to and from pasture, while similar stones shore up this Berkshire Hills barn.

favorite restaurants and discovering new ones. Some of the finest cooking in all of Yankeeland is found in these parts.)

An attraction that draws the faithful and the curious from all over the nation is the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket. The Pillow's ballet and modern dance companies have a program scheduled throughout July and August for this, their twenty-sixth, season.

The Berkshires also are quite hep. The Music Barn in Lenox, near the Boston Symphony's summer diggings at Tanglewood, puts on a weekly series of jazz and folk music concerts by nationally-known artists. The Barn's season runs from late June to September.

Two summer theaters, a number of natural history museums and several art galleries are located in the Berkshires. The best of the latter is the four-year-old Clark Art Institute in old Williamstown. This year's exhibits include 17th and 19th century American and European paintings, a French impressionist group that includes 33 Renoirs, many pieces of good sculpture and an unrivaled collection of silver work.

Williamstown is an interesting community, particularly to those who studied at urban colleges and always wondered why, by George, those Ivy League schools fussed so over their grounds and buildings. Williams College has one of the most truly beautiful campuses in the nation, and Williamstown itself has a colonial charm and dignity that is seldom matched. Men who cannot afford to have their homes completely redecorated should not take their wives there, nor to Lee, Lenox, Sheffield and Stockbridge. The old Mission House in Stockbridge, for example, is furnished with exquisite and irreplacable antiques.

But, if the women of the house insist upon visiting antiquities, the men will find refuge and sport among the Berkshire's 90 woodland lakes and ponds, 274 trout streams, 14 golf courses and 16 ski developments.

At the Natural Bridge in North Adams, visitors can see century-old signatures carved in rocks which are millions of years old. A stream runs through the gorge 75 feet below the Natural Bridge.

Surrounded by unspoiled Berkshire Hills, Onota Lake near Pittsfield is one of the largest and most popular bodies of water in Western Massachusetts. Fishing is excellent from early spring through late fall.

PAULINE KONER—Modern dances at Jacob's Pillow.

The nine weeks of the dance at the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, Mass.:

JULY 1-5. Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky, classic pas de deux; Pauline Koner and Dance Company, new modern dances; Shirmathi Gina, dances of India.

JULY 8-11. Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline, classic pas de duex; Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, "This Property Is Condemned," premier of "Winesburg,a Ohio;" Lotte Koslar, European dancing mime.

JULY 15-19. Geoffrey Holder and Company, dances of Trinidad and the Carribbean; Ram Gopal, dancer from India; Sahomi Tachibana, classic dances of Japan.

JULY 22-26. Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company, dancers, guitarists, Flamenco singers, pianists.

JULY 29-AUG. 2. Atlanta Civic Ballet, modern ballets "Green Altars" and "Manhattan Towers;" Mata and Hari, comic dancing mimes.

AUG. 5-9. Nina Novak and George Zorich, classic pas de deux; Irine Kovalska and Edmund Novak, character ballet; Myra Kinch and Company, modern dances.

AUG. 14-16. Irina Borowska and Alan Howard, classic pas de deux; Daniel Nagrin, modern dancer; Carola Goya and Matteo, ethnic cameos.

AUG. 22-23. Nora Kaye and Erik Brunh, classic pas de deux; Jean Cebron, modern dancer; Maria Dolores Garcia, Spanish dancer from Brazil.

AUG. 29-30. Barbara Fallis and Royes Fernandez, classic pas de deux; Myra Kinch and Company with Ted Shawn, modern dance; Kandyan Dancers, from Ceylon.

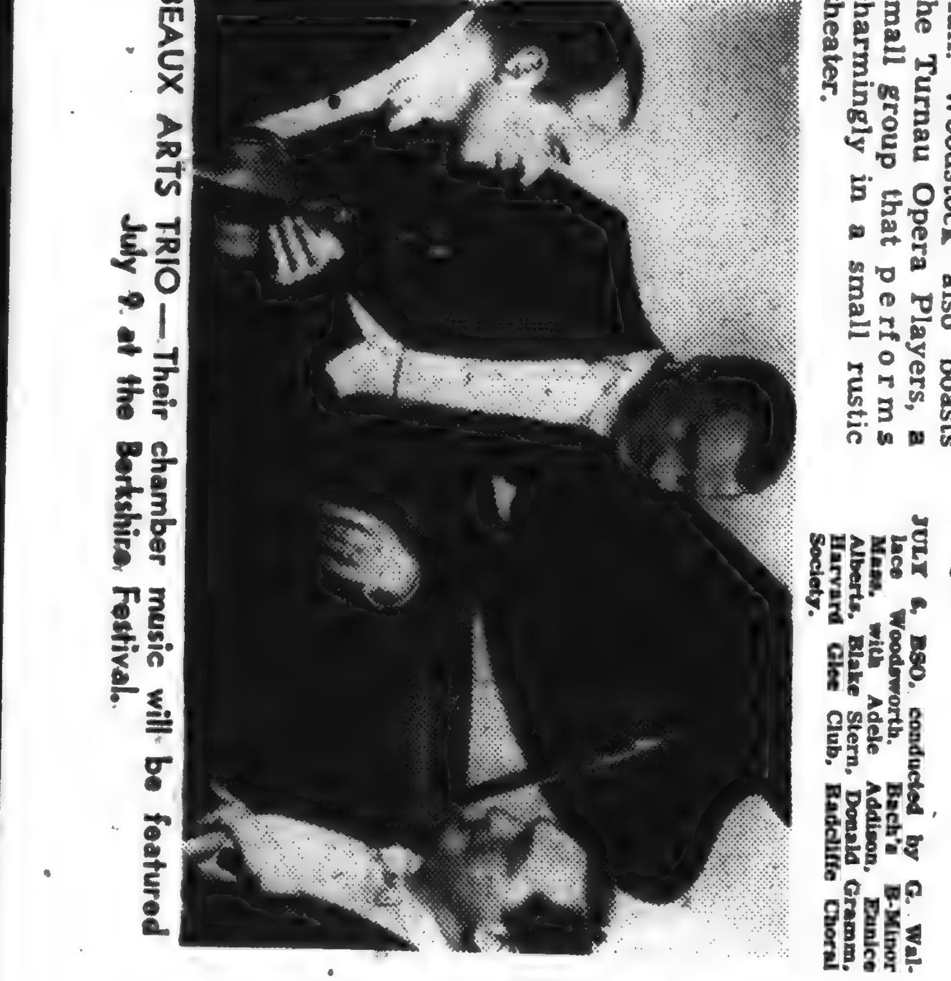
Ceylon.

Next door to the Tanglewood estate is the Berkshire Music Barn, from which flow those cool and hot sounds known as jazz. Concerts are Sunday nights (jazz), Saturday afternoons (folk music) and an occasional tidbit during the week.

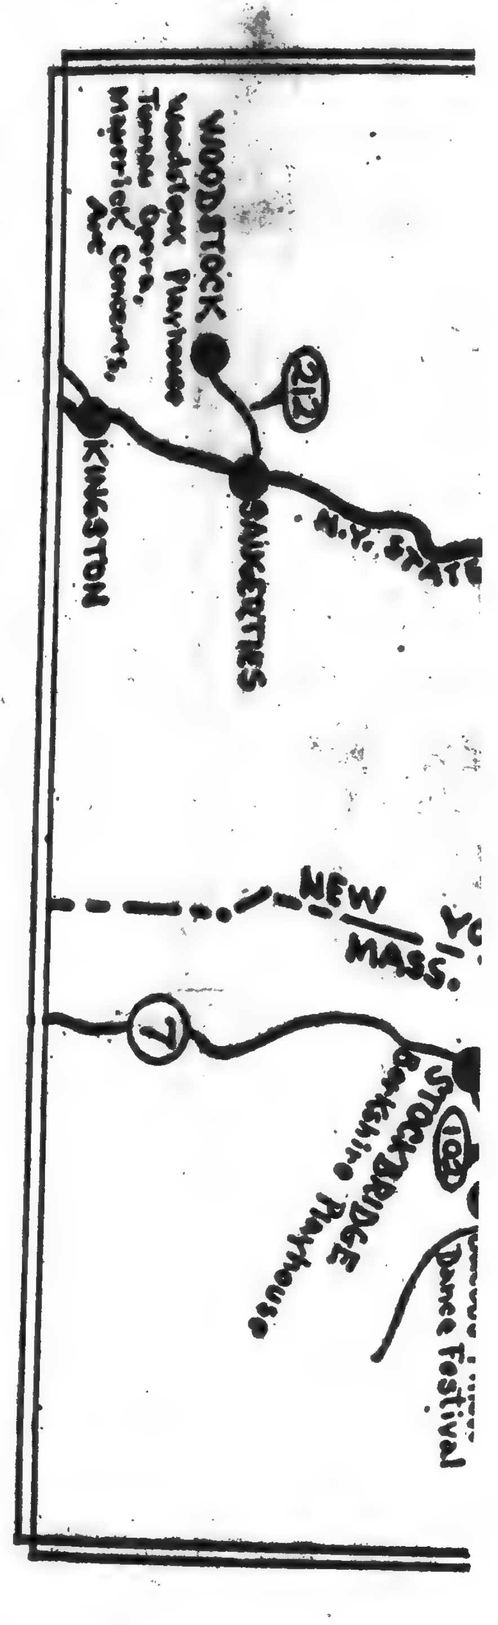
In August the Music Barn will be host to the second season of the School of Jazz, which will have about 30 students and such professors as John Lewis (the dean), Bob Brookmeyer, Jimmy Giuffre, Milt Jackson and Oscar Peterson. The tempo is modern.

And closer to Lenox is the South Mountain Temple, where there is chamber music on Saturday afternoons. Chamber music also will be heard further up the road, at Bennington College and at the Southern Vermont Art Center at Manchester. (Strangely, Louis Armstrong will start things off at Manchester).

And it will be heard down at Woodstock, too, on Sunday afternoons at the Maverick Hall. Woodstock also boasts the Turnau Opera Players, a small group that performs charmingly in a small rustic theater.



BEAUX ARTS TRIO—Their chamber music will be featured July 9 at the Berkshire Festival.



Berkshire Festival Directory

The six weeks of music at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.:

JULY 2. Budapest String Quartet. Haydn's D-Major Quartet (Op. 64, No. 5); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A Minor (op. 7); Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E Minor (op. 59, No. 2).

JULY 4. Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Munch. Bach's Suites 1, 2, 3, 4.

JULY 5. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Bach's D-Minor Piano Concerto (Lukas Foss, soloist) and "The Art of the Fugue."

JULY 6. BSO, conducted by G. Wallace Woodsworth. Bach's B-Minor Mass, with Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm, Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society.

JULY 9. Beaux Arts of New York. Beethoven's Trio in E-Flat (Op. 1, No. 1); Faure's Trio in D Minor (Op. 120); Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C Minor (Op. 66).

JULY 11. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Mozart's "Musical Joke" (K. 522), Sinfonia Concertante (Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale, soloists), "Linz" Symphony No. 36 in C Major.

JULY 12. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik, Two-Piano Concerto (K. 365) (Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss, soloists), Serenade No. 10 in B.Flat for Winds, Symphony No. 40 in G Minor.

JULY 13. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Mozart's Haffner Symphony, Piano Concerto in C Major (K. 467) (Seymour Lipkin, soloist), choral works (conducted by Hugh Ross.)

JULY 16. New York Pro Musica Antiqua. Music of Flanders and Spain by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others.

JULY 18. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Brahm's Serenade No. 2 in A (Op. 16), Symphony No. 4; Copland's Variations for Orchestra.

JULY 19. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Brahms' Requiem (Hilde Gueden, Donald Gramm,, soloists).

JULY 20. BSO, conducted by Pierre Monteux. Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1 in D Minor (Leon Fleisher, soloist); Stravinsky's "Petrouchka."

JULY 23. chamber music concert, to be announced.

JULY 25. BSO, conducted by M. Monteux. Glinka's "Russian and Ludmilla" Overture; Tchaikovsky's Symphony No. 4; Milhaud's "Les Eumenides" Overture; Debussy's "Three Nocturnes"; Ravel's "La Valse."

JULY 26. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Stravjnsky's "Agon"; Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 (Byron Janis, soloist); Debussy's "La Mer."

JULY 27. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta; Ravel's second suite from "Daphnis and Chloe"; Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto (Zino Francescatti), soloist).

JULY 30. The Kroll Quaret. Mozart's Quartet in C Major (K. 465); Blackwood's Quartet No. 1; Brahms' Quartet No. 1 in C Minor (Op. 51, No. 1).

AUG. 1. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meistersinger, Prelude and Love from Siegfried Idyll, Death from "Tristan und Isolde," Immolation Scene (Margaret Harshaw, soloist); Piston's Viola Concerto (Joseph de Pasquale, soloist).

AUG. 2. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Wagner's Overture and Bacchanale from Tannhaueser," Siegfried's Rhine Journey; Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-Flat (Leonard Pennario, soloist); Vaughan Williams' Symphony No. 8.

AUG. 3. BSO, conducted by M. Monteux. Excerpts from Wagner's "The Flying Dutchman," "Lohengrin," "Die Walkuere," "Parsifal," "Tannhaueser," "Rienzi" (Margaret Harshaw, soloist.)

AUG. 6. Kroll Quartet. Haydn's Quartet in G Minor (Op. 74, No. 3); Bartok's Quartet No. 2 (Op. 17); Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A Minor (Op. 132).

AUG. 8. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Honegger's Prelude, Fuguse and Postlude; Beethoven's Symphony No. 7, "Emperor" Piano Concerto No. 5 (Eugene Istomin, soloist).

AUG. 9. BSO, conducted by M. Monteux. Beehoven's music from "Prometheus," Violin Concerto (Berl Senofsky, soloist), Lenore Overture No. 3; Hindemith's "Noblissima Visione."

AUG. 10. BSO, conducted by Dr. Munch. Walton's Johannesburg Festival Overture; Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 (Festival Chorus and soloists).

(In addition to the regular Wednesday chamber music and weekend orchestra concerts, there will be open rehearsals by the BSO and concerts by student groups, to be announced. Tanglewood-on-Parade, with the BSO and the Boston Pops Orchestra, will be Aug. 7.

PAULINE KONER—Modern dances at Jacob's Pillow.

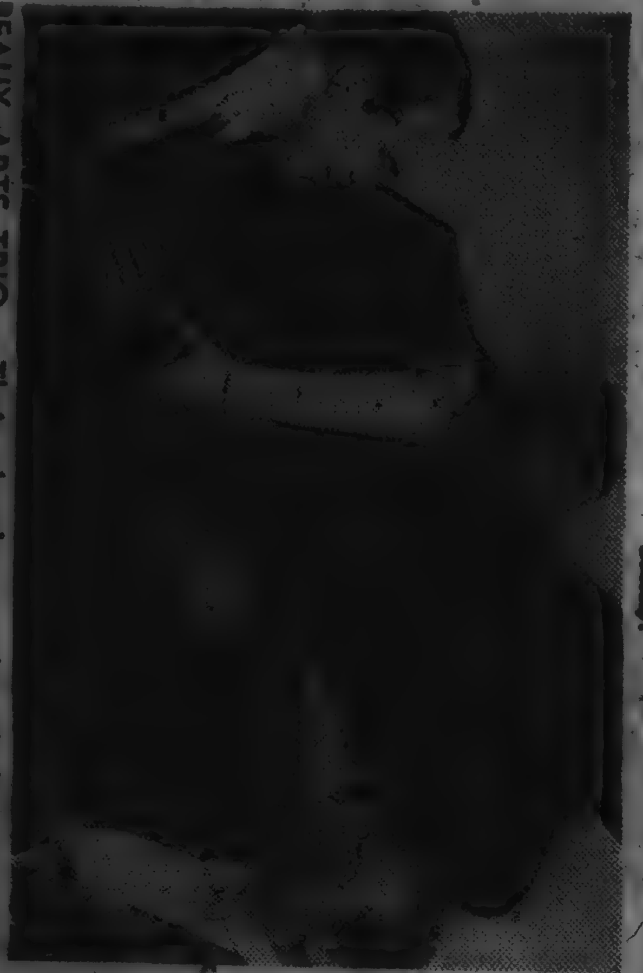
The nine weeks of the dance at the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, Mass.:

Next door to the Tanglewood estate is the Berkshire Music Barn, from which flow those cool and hot sounds known as jazz. Concerts are Sunday nights (jazz), Saturday afternoons (folk music) and an occasional tidbit during the week.

In August the Music Barn will be host to the second season of the School of Jazz, which will have about 30 students and such professors as John Lewis (the dean), Bob Brookmeyer, Jimmy Giuffre, Milt Jackson and Oscar Peterson. The tempo is modern.

And closer to Lenox is the South Mountain Temple, where there is chamber music on Saturday afternoons. Chamber music also will be heard further up the road, at Bennington College and at the Southern Vermont Art Center at Manchester. (Strangely, Louis Armstrong will start things off at Manchester.)

And it will be heard down at Woodstock, too, on Sunday afternoons at the Maverick Hall. Woodstock also boasts the Turnau Opera Players, a small group that performs charmingly in a small rustic theater.



BEAUX ARTS TRIO—Their chamber music will be featured July 9 at the Berkshire Festival.

WOODSTOCK
Woodstock Playhouse
Turnau Opera,
Maverick Concerts,
Art
212 SAUGERTIES
KINGSTON
N.Y. STATE
NEW
MASS.
7
STOCKBRIDGE
Berkshire Playhouse
102
Dance Festival

Berkshire Festival Directory

The six weeks of music at the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.:

---

a museum containing momentoes of his early boyhood; Gill, where visitors can see dinosaur footprints preserved in rock; Hampden, home of Thornton Burgess, noted author of the Peter Rabbit stories; Holyoke, where visitors may view more dinosaur tracks and the exhibits or art, wildlife, indian and pre-historic relics at Holyoke Museum.

Indian relics are on display at the Hubbard Memorial Library in Ludlow, Leyden has its Balancing Rock, Jacob's Well, Old Rock Chair and other famous rock formations, Northfield is noted for its two-mile long Main Street that is lined with stately old colonial homes and double rows of stately elms, the Bridge of Flowers is found at Shelburne, and Westfield is the site of three noted art and historical museums.

No traveler need pass hungry through the Pioneer Valley, for this is the area of the country inn where a hearty meal is a tradition, not a transaction. The cooking, generally excellent and offered at a wide range of prices, is New-England-style, though more and more restaurants serving European foods are being opened.

A traveler will have no difficulty working up an appetite either, because the Valley is a summer and winter playground. Lakes and streams dot the land everywhere (Ashfield, a noted Summer resort, is called "Little Switzerland") and golf courses, tennis courts, trails, camping sites and bridle paths are in, or near, every one of the 73 towns in the valley.

Season-long blooms and shrubs bedeck the old Trolley Bridge at Shelburne Falls, Mass.

Above, the Wilson Print Shop, built in 1816, is one of the historical houses in Old Deerfield Village. Below, Deerfield River, a favorite spot for anglers.

The utilitarian and picturesque stone wall has long been a part of the rural Massachusetts landscape. The same fieldstones so laboriously removed from the fields also were used as foundation stones for the farmer's house and barn. Here the stone wall in the foreground kept the cattle from wandering while going to and from pasture, while similar stones shore up this Berkshire Hills barn.

favorite restaurants and discovering new ones. Some of the finest cooking in all of Yankeeland is found in these parts.)

An attraction that draws the faithful and the curious from all over the nation is the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket. The Pillow's ballet and modern dance companies have a program scheduled throughout July and August for this, their twenty-sixth, season.

The Berkshires also are quite hep. The Music Barn in Lenox, near the Boston Symphony's summer diggings at Tanglewood, puts on a weekly series of jazz and folk music concerts by nationally-known artists. The Barn's season runs from late June to September.

Two summer theaters, a number of natural history museums and several art galleries are located in the Berkshires. The best of the latter is the four-year-old Clark Art Institute in old Williamstown. This year's exhibits include 17th and 19th century American and European paintings, a French impressionist group that includes 33 Renoirs, many pieces of good sculpture and an unrivaled collection of silver work.

Williamstown is an interesting community, particularly to those who studied at urban colleges and always wondered why, by George, those Ivy League schools fussed so over their grounds and buildings. Williams College has one of the most truly beautiful campuses in the nation, and Williamstown itself has a colonial charm and dignity that is seldom matched. Men who cannot afford to have their homes completely redecorated should not take their wives there, nor to Lee, Lenox, Sheffield and Stockbridge. The old Mission House in Stockbridge, for example, is furnished with exquisite and irreplacable antiques.

But, if the women of the house insist upon visiting antiquities, the men will find refuge and sport among the Berkshire's 90 woodland lakes and ponds, 274 trout streams, 14 golf courses and 16 ski developments.

At the Natural Bridge in North Adams, visitors can see century-old signatures carved in rocks which are millions of years old. A stream runs through the gorge 75 feet below the Natural Bridge.

Surrounded by unspoiled Berkshire Hills, Onota Lake near Pittsfield is one of the largest and most popular bodies of water in Western Massachusetts. Fishing is excellent from early spring through late fall.

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,644

[243]

APR 29 1958

Brussels Boner May Create Ill Will

By TONY DAVENPORT
Times Travel Editor

After having spent millions at Brussels to promote good will and display the American way of life the federal government is slitting its own throat over a minor matter.

Displaying a glaring case of short-sightedness the government has allowed concessionaires in the U. S. pavilion to set their own prices. As a result Europeans are being driven away from restaurants and snack bars, fertile fields in terms of neighborliness and understanding.

In a "typical" American ice cream parlor malted milks are going for 70 cents, a sundae for 58 cents and ice cream sodas for 46 cents.

Shocked Belgians are asking if these prices are representative of what's being paid in America—representative of life in the U. S. itself.

For the average Belgian, who earns a weekly wage of $30, our American restaurant charges staggering prices. A cup of coffee there is set at 24 cents; a hamburger plate with French fries costs $1.75. This, in a first-class Belgian restaurant, would run about $1.

Managers of these concessions explain that a 15 percent service charge has been added "in accordance with local custom."

It would seem more than expedient that our government, after having planned and built for the world's fair over such a period of time, and after having sunk such a staggering amount of money into the project would at least subsidize our concessions to a point where Europeans could savor typical American food without beggaring themselves.

* * *

FISHERMEN trickling back from the Berkshires of Massachusetts are reporting the catches big and easy to come by.

The trout season in Massachusetts opened up the middle of this month, and the more than 100 streams, lakes and ponds have seen a good deal of activity.

Non-residents may get a yearly license for $7.75 from any town or city clerk. For the 15-18-year-old set it's just $2.25. Special three-day license may be had for just $2.75.

And for the guy who wants a little creel insurance there's the Berkshire Trout Farm in Sheffield.

Fishing, though, is just the lead-in for the Summer season. Things are taking shape in other quarters of the Berkshires.

The Boston Symphony opens the Music Festival at Tanglewood July 2 and will give concerts every Friday and Saturday evenings as well as Sunday afternoons.

Ted Shawn opens Jacob's Pillow for the 26th year June 26. The Lenox Music Barn gets into session three days later for folk music on Saturday afternoon and jazz on Sunday. Among the musicians lined up this Summer are Duke Ellington, Dave Brubeck, Mahalia Jackson, Count Basie, Bobby Hackett and Richard Dyer-Bennett.

And then, of course, there are the Stockbridge and Williamstown Theaters which open June 23 and July 3 respectively.

* * *

A TRADITIONAL Rhode Island May Day breakfast will be served at the White Horse Tavern in Newport May 4 from 9:30 a. m. to noon. The breakfast is one of the items in the city's observance of Rhode Island Heritage Week.

Menu includes jonnycakes, sausage, scrambled eggs and apple pie. Tickets may be obtained from the management of the tavern.

NEWARK, N. J.
NEWS
Circ. D. 275,829 - S. 321,395

MAR 2 1958

Berkshire Schedule

PITTSFIELD, Mass. — Dates for six major summer attractions in the Berkshire Hills were announced today by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference. The area is popular with vacationists from New Jersey.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other summer theater, The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through Aug. 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings, July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two weekend concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierry Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6,000-seat Music Shed. Each weekend will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Ted Shawn Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June 26 at Jacob's Pillow in Becket. For the first weekend the Pillow schedule calls for matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and matinees Friday and Saturday. For the following six weeks there will be matinees Thursday, Fridays and Saturdays and evening performances Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The last two weeks of the season, Shawn will offer matinee and evening performances Fridays and Saturdays.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox will open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p.m. Special mid-week concerts will be held Wednesdays or Thursdays. Music Barn features national headliners in the fields of jazz and folk music.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South St., Pittsfield. Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night. The Conference will send, on request, informational brochures on Berkshire attractions, including a Circle-Tour Folder which outlines six half-day automobile tours of Berkshire County.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,788

APR 27 1958

ANGLERS FINDING BERKSHIRES TO THEIR LIKING

Fishing Is in Lead-Off Position for Long Summer Season

Pittsfield, April 26—Spring vacationers in the Berkshire Hills are finding the fishing to their liking. The season opened April 19 with the accent on trout, and many excellent catches have been reported. Thanks to a progressive program of stocking by the state, Berkshire waters are among the most friutful inland fishing areas within easy reach of eastern metropolitan regions.

Many Areas

There are more than 100 streams and two dozen lakes and ponds in this corner of Western Massachusetts and all are open to the visitors at reasonable license fees. Non-residents may obtain year-long fishing licenses from any city or town clerk.

The daily creel limit for trout is 12, except on ponds and the Deerfield River, where it is six. Additional stocking of trout will be done throughout the spring and summer.

Berkshire ponds and lakes also are noted for pan fish such as perch, bullhead and bluegills, as well as for pickerel and bass. This year, for the first time, the bass season also opened April 19. In past years the bass season has not opened until July 1. A list of Berkshire ponds and lakes, along with information on what fish may be caught in each location, is available on request from the Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South St., Pittsfield.

The Berkshires also has fishing facilities for those eager anglers who want to take no chance about coming home empty-handed. The Berkshire Trout Farm on Route 41 in the south Berkshire town of Sheffield is one of the largest privately-owned hatcheries in the nation, stocked with more than a half-million fish. For a reasonable fee the fisherman can catch rainbow, brown and speckled trout without the hiking that is sometimes necessary on public waters.

Major Attractions

Fishing is only the lead-off attraction in the Berkshires' spring-summer vacation-travel field. Major cultural attraction of course, is the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Boston Symphony Orchestra will open its annual summer season at Tanglewood July 2 and will give major concerts every Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons.

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June 26 at Jacob's Pillow in Becket.

Only one-half mile from Tanglewood, music of a different culture will be featured at the Music Barn. The Music Barn season will run from June 29 through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 p. m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8.30 p. m. Among the headliners scheduled to appear at Music Barn this season are Duke Ellington, Dave Brubeck, Mahalia Jackson, Count Basie, Bobby Hackett and Richard Dyer-Bennet.

The Berkshires also have two summer theaters. The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge will run from June 23 to Aug. 30 with performances evenings, except Sundays, and matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays. The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown will open July 3 and close Aug. 30, with evening performances Tuesdays through Saturdays and Saturday matinees.

Times (e)
HARTFORD, Conn.
Independent Democrat
Circ. 118,644

JUN 10 1958

Berkshire Attractions Open Late in Month

Pittsfield, Mass.—Although the Summer schedule of Berkshire events doesn't open up until late this month, visitors to these hills between now and then will find ample reward in their natural attractions.

A "must" stop for all June visitors here are the natural azalea gardens in Pittsfield State Forest on the outskirts of this city. The azalea gardens are the largest of their kind in New England, with the pink flowering trees covering 100 acres of land surrounding Berry Pond. This 11-acre pond, highest natural body of water in Massachusetts, is atop Berry Mountain, a 2,000-foot peak in the Taconic Range. This area can be reached by car over a good road.

Another popular attraction is the Pleasant Valley Wildlife Sanctuary on Route 20 in Lenox. A trailside museum and a real beaver pond are included in this mile-square preserve.

For a one-day family outing, there are excellent picnic facilities at the many roadside facilities provided by the state or at the many state parks.

* * *

IF INLAND fishing is your sport, the trout are at their hungriest this month in the more than 100 streams and dozen ponds and lakes. A heavy schedule of Spring stocking by the state is giving the Berkshires its most productive trout season in many years. And even the youngest or most inexperienced of anglers can catch scrappy bluegills withous cease at such places as Hoosac Lake in the town of Cheshire.

A short trip to the Berkshires this month also will provide time for a look at some of the cultural spots which soon will be teeming with lovers of arts. In Lenox the Tanglewood grounds are at their Spring peak of beauty. It is here that the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open the annual six-week Berkshire Music Festival July 2.

The Berkshires have two Summer theaters which are rated among the top in the straw hat circuit. The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge will run from June 23 to Aug. 30, and the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown will run from July 3 to Aug. 30. Mildred Dunnock in "The Madwoman of Chaillot" will be presented at the opening week in the air-conditioned Williamstown Theater.

July 1 is the opening date at Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket. Ted Shawn will offer Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Dance Company, and Shrimathi Gina of India for his opening week at the Pillow.

* * *

THE BERKSHIRE Music Barn in Lenox will open its season June 29. The Music Barn will operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts every Saturday at 4 p. m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p. m.

And, you never have to worry about what to do in the Berkshires if it rains. The entire family will find something of interest in one of the many museums in the area. Right in Pittsfield is the Berkshire Museum, one of the finest small museums of art and natural history in the country.

In the southern Berkshire town of Stockbridge is an historic museum called the Mission House. It was built in 1739 by the Rev. John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians. The Mission House is furnished with priceless American antiques, none of them dating later than 1740.

Newest addition to the Berkshire museum family is the Clark Art Institute in Williamstown. It was first opened in 1955 and already is one of the best of its kind in the nation. Its paintings include 33 Renoirs and the displays cover matchless silver and sculpture.

World Rev
Travel, N
Circ.

MAR 2

THE NORTHE

By
LEAVITT MORRIS
New England writer for Review

Boston Symphony
shire Festival at Lenox will run fro
Aug. 30. Chamber will be given
Wednesday evenin
23, 30, and Aug.
Jacob's Pillow Da
open its 26th se
Becket. The Berk
in Lenox will ope
29 and operate with folk music
days at 4 P.M.
Sundays at 8:30
shire Hills Conf
Street, Pittsfield,
dle room reserva
more than one

Spring learn-to-are being offere lodge in the Pic
Vermont. Full fi and lessons with at the Green M
cost only $67.50.

The New Eng
named Richard T of the Treadway of its Vacation
General committ

Vance McDon
for the Kenmore to convention
the Hotel Kenm
ing his place wi who comes from tel in Washingto

Speaking of once again be headquarters,
stopping here
games. A packa fered again thi

Charles Just manager of the
been elected se
chairman of th
agers Ass'n of

Berkshire
PITTSFIE
Indep
Circ. 2
AUG

In Brie

Perhaps last weekend
the fact th complaints Trail area which th
been placi despite a wear down flects a c
to menti
The selec
ly be blam
the argum locations ritory to were elimi
flood contr

It's nice as Berksh
Sunday i flocks of were see winters, dozing in apparently abrupt dr
the day a perennial
Berkshire
sort of bl until summary
Berkshire
Ahern's l puts each a county
way we s

World Review of Hotels & Travel, New York, N. Y.
Circ. W. 6,744

MAR 29 1958

THE NORTHEAST CORNER

By
LEAVITT MORRIS
New England travel writer for World-Review.

Preservation of Massachusetts' Mohawk Trail as the "Scenic Gateway to New England" appears to be assured as the result of a proposed 20-year program for doubling the 52,000 acreage of public forests, parks, and reservations along its 63 miles. Gov. Furcolo already has requested of the legislature a $5,000,000 appropriation which would start the $100,000,000 program to protect a third of the scenic trail from being commercialized.

Patrick P. Donovan

The Canadian Pacific Railway has announced the appointment of Patrick P. Donovan as press relations officer at Saint John, N. B. Mr. Donovan, who joined the Canadian Pacific's press bureau at Montreal in 1942, has been in the Vancouver office since 1945 as assistant public relations officer and more recently as press representative.

* * *

Summer can't be far away in Massachusetts' Berkshires. At this early date the Berkshire Hills Conference, Inc., has announced the dates for six of the major summer attractions in the area. The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge will open June 23 and run through Aug. 30. The Williamstown Theatre in Williamstown will open July 3 and also continue through Aug. 30. The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through Aug. 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6. Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June 26 in Becket. The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox will open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 P.M. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 P.M. The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South Street, Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night.

* * *

Spring learn-to-ski package plans are being offered by Long Trail lodge in the Pico Peak region of Vermont. Full five days of skiing and lessons with three meals a day at the Green Mountain Clubhouse cost only $67.50.

* * *

The New England Council has named Richard Treadway, president of the Treadway inns, as chairman of its Vacation Travel Development General committee.

* * *

Vance McDonough, sales manager for the Kenmore, has been promoted to convention and tour manager of the Hotel Kenmore in Boston. Taking his place will be Daniel Mitchell, who comes from the Mayflower hotel in Washington, D. C.

* * *

Speaking of the Kenmore, it will once again be Boston's baseball headquarters, with the Red Sox stopping here during their home games. A package deal will be offered again this season to guests.

* * *

Charles Justice, assistant sales manager of the Statler Hilton, has been elected secretary and publicity chairman of the Hotel Sales Managers Ass'n of the Boston area.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - S. 271,019

MAR 6 1958

Berkshires Offer Theater, Music, Dance

Pittsfield, Mass.—Dates for major summer attractions in the Berkshire Hills were announced by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge, where the summer stock season will run from June 23 to Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other summer theater, the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and close Aug. 30, with evening performances Tuesday through Saturday and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 to Aug. 30.

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June 26 at Jacob's Pillow in Becket.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox will open June 29 and close Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturday at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

PLAYBOY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Circ. Mo. 687,593

MAY 1958

PLAYBOY'S INTERNATIONAL DATEBOOK

BY PATRICK CHASE

ON THE SOUTHERN SLOPES of the Pyrenees, the Running of the Bulls will be held in Pamplona July 7-13. Everyone and his third cousin is free to hop into the ring with the big bad bulls, just like Errol Flynn did in The Sun Also Rises. Or, if that isn't your cup of tea, you can tote your fino to your hotel balcony when the six A.M. rocket signals the loosing of the huge black Miuras, and watch them rage through the narrow streets, hot on the heels of the local daredevils. Later, with sash, Basque beret, wineskin and your own version of Lady Brett, you can mingle with the crowds and participate in the dancing, jousting, clowning and what have you.

Much of the same sort of circus takes place in Portugal at the Fair of the Red Waistcoat at Vila Franca de Xira, July 14. A restaurant in the old palace there even provides a private bull ring in which you can square off with a young, quarter-weight (300-pound) bull with padded horns, an encounter guaranteed to help you work up an appetite for the house's hefty $1.25 dinner.

If place names like Tignabruaich in the Kyles of Bute set bagpipes skirling in your soul, hie thee to Scotland's tight little western isles, the Hebrides, where the crafty crofters loom the dandiest woolens and tweeds your eyes ever did see. There's no trick, either, in buying a couple of bolts at staggeringly low prices, sending them home for your own tailor to whip into shape. For a scant $2.50, you can board a mail boat at Oban and be your own Boswell during a one-day sail to the wee sea towns of Iona, Staffa and Tobermory.

Another seaport a little nearer at hand is Newport, Rhode Island, which gets July going with its big four-day Jazz Festival, a bash that is now as firmly entrenched as Lincoln's Birthday. Jazz bigwigs from all points of the U.S. (plus several from Europe) huff and puff almost round the clock, and when they're not making stimulating sounds they're discussing what it's all about. Massachusetts makes almost as merry at the Berkshire Music Festival at Lenox, primarily for the long of hair, from which it's only a short jazz-lover's leap down a winding country road to the Berkshire Music Barn, which echoes alternately with contemporary jazz and folk balladry.

Westward, one of the charms of California's Laguna Beach is its Pageant of the Masters from July 20 to August 18, which offers local boys and girls in living tableaus of such works as Blue Boy, the Night Watch and Venus de Milo. The miss from Milo, as you might expect, is as charmingly undraped as she was in the original. Quite incidentally, the local art colony exhibits its own masterpieces during this period, not the least of which are the excellent meals at the Old Brussels there.

For further information, write to Janet Pilgrim, Playboy Reader Service, 232 E. Ohio St., Chicago 11, Illinois.

---

of how big ist spots is even any e Mohawk uency with ders have ompetition, enough to uglers, recorps, not work . . .
n can hard-im view of l billboard n their ter-
e ones that lams by the egrets back
two sighted ry from the undred that
ack. Severa much bull-ding grounds
apparently explain the demise . . . That abrupt drop-off in out-of-state traffic on the day after Tanglewood closes is a perennial reminder of how much the Berkshire tourist industry needs some sort of big attraction to keep 'em coming until Labor Day . . . For a masterful summary of the built-in restraints upon Berkshire civic progress, see Philip C. Ahern's letter on this page. It not only puts each community's local problems in a county perspective, but indicates the way we should be taking . . .

FADED TEXT

Press
THOMSONVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,800

AUG 7 1958

One Day Vacations Within Easy Ride

047

Timewise, moneywise or otherwise . . . short-haul vacation jaunts seem most appropriate this summer and may actually be a blessing in disguise.

Most of us think of vacations in terms of long distances (far-off pastures seem greener) while right on our doorstep are holiday attractions that bring vacationers from other parts of the country.

For "just jumpin' in the car andgoin'" this area is blessed to be at the hub of a multitude of holiday spots in any chosen direction. Most of these spots are so close that one-day trips can be worked out very niecely and probably are more convenient, less tiring and economical.

A series of such trips can be educational as well as fun, especially for families with children.

For a short afternoon trip, followed perhaps by a picnic supper, the Old Newgate Prison in East Granby can be covered in a short afternoon.

The Prison, dating back to the late 1700's, is a crumbling stone edifice built over a copper mine which the prisoners worked. Informative bulletins areposted which tell the story of the Prison, and it is noted that one section was reserved for women prisoners.

The bulletins are enlivened by grimly humorous notes which make fascinating reading. Visitors can wander thru the old cells, decend into the copper mine or climb up the watch tower for a good view of the surrounding countryside.

Sturbridge Village to the east in Massachusetts is an attraction for all ages, being a reproduction of a complete colonial village where one can see shoes, cloth, bread etc. being made in the old way.

Beaches and state parks abound and they are also within a day's trip, for swimming, hiking, boating, fishing and picnicking.

To the northwest, the Berkshires offer so many attractions that a series of trips could stretch over a good many weekends. The Mass. Pike enables one to get into the heart of the Berkshides in about an hour. Howere, if speed is not the object, the Mohawk Trail or the old Rt. 20 is far more satisfying. The The breathtaking scenery of "Horseshoe Bend" on the Trail is a sight to behold.

For those who want to show the children something more concrete, the Natural Bridge in North Adams off Rt. 8 is spectacular. The only natural marble bridge in North America, the formation is estimated to be 500 million years old. It bridges a roaring stream which runs thru a deep chasm and there is also a waterfall. Picnic grounds are nearby.

Over Great Barrington [illegible] the natural rock formation [illegible] Monument Mountain was immortalized by William Cullen Bryant, American poet, in the "Great Stone Face."

Sightseeing of a different sort is offered by the many arts facilities . . music, dancing theater and museums as well as the many interesting gift shops.

For children again, the Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield has a children's theater every Friday at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. presenting such plays as "Sleeping Beauty", "The Emperor's New Clothes" and others.

Tanglewood, of course, is world-renowned for its afternoon and evening concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The public is admitted to the morning rehearsals.

A neighbor on an adjoining former estate, the Music Barn, is fast becoming a summer center for jazz. Here during August the School of Jazz, staffed by famous jazzmen offers studies in this medium to aspiring young cats.

Ted Shawn, ballet star of yesterday, holds forth at Jacob's Pillow near Becket, Mass., with his school of dance and the Dance Festival which is a summer-long program of ballet and exotic dancing of other kinds. Several times a week matinee performances are offered.

Matinee performances too [illegible] by some of the many summer theaters in the Berkshires. It is to these summer theaters that aspiring and capable young actors scramble for the chance at this experience, and one can enjoy their enthusiastic, if not always top-rate, performance.

Museums too are plentiful, the most noteworthy being the beautiful Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield and the Clark Museum in Williamstown.

The Berkshire Museum exhibits are beautifully displayed and the ntural history exhibits are 3-dimensional on a miniature scale. The Clark Museum has a very fine collection of paintings, sculptures, antique furniture and silver and ceramics.

To suit all tastes, there are galleries and art exhibitions in almost every town, where one can view the works of local and regional artists.

And then there's Chesterwood in Stockbridge, the studio of Daniel Chester French, sculptor of the Lincoln Memorial.

These are but a very few of the short afternoon tours available at small cost in time and money to area residents, but too few of us take full advantage of them as we head off for far "greener pastures." It would be just as easy to travel south or east and compile as interesting a list of short holiday attractions.

[244]

World Review of Hotels &
Travel, New York, N. Y.
Circ. W. 6,744

MAR 29 1958

THE NORTHEAST CORNER

By VITT MORRIS
England travel
iter for World-
Review.

Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through Aug. 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30, and Aug. 6. Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June 26 in Becket. The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox will open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 P.M. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 P.M. The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South Street, Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night.

* * *

Spring learn-to-ski package plans are being offered by Long Trail lodge in the Pico Peak region of Vermont. Full five days of skiing and lessons with three meals a day at the Green Mountain Clubhouse cost only $67.50.

* * *

The New England Council has named Richard Treadway, president of the Treadway inns, as chairman of its Vacation Travel Development General committee.

* * *

Vance McDonough, sales manager for the Kenmore, has been promoted to convention and tour manager of the Hotel Kenmore in Boston. Taking his place will be Daniel Mitchell, who comes from the Mayflower hotel in Washington, D. C.

* * *

Speaking of the Kenmore, it will once again be Boston's baseball headquarters, with the Red Sox stopping here during their home games. A package deal will be offered again this season to guests.

* * *

Charles Justice, assistant sales manager of the Statler Hilton, has been elected secretary and publicity chairman of the Hotel Sales Managers Ass'n of the Boston area.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - S. 271,019

MAR 6 1958

Berkshires Offer Theater, Music, Dance

Pittsfield, Mass.—Dates for major summer attractions in the Berkshire Hills were announced by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge, where the summer stock season will run from June 23 to Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other summer theater, the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and close Aug. 30, with evening performances Tuesday through Saturday and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 to Aug. 30.

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June 26 at Jacob's Pillow in Becket.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox will open June 29 and close Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturday at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

PLAYBOY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Circ. Mo. 687,593

MAY 1958

PLAYBOY'S INTERNATIONAL DATEBOOK

BY PATRICK CHASE

ON THE SOUTHERN SLOPES of the Pyrenees, the Running of the Bulls will be held in Pamplona July 7-13. Everyone and his third cousin is free to hop into the ring with the big bad bulls, just like Errol Flynn did in The Sun Also Rises. Or, if that isn't your cup of tea, you can tote your fino to your hotel balcony when the six A.M. rocket signals the loosing of the huge black Miuras, [illegible] them rage through the [illegible] ets, [illegible] on the heels of [illegible] vils. Later, with sash, [illegible] ineskin and your own [illegible] Brett, you can mingle [illegible] crowds and participate in [illegible], jousting, clowning and what have [illegible].

Much of the same sort of circus takes place in Portugal at the Fair of the Red Waistcoat at Vila Franca de Xira, July 14. A restaurant in the old palace there even provides a private bull ring in which you can square off with a young, quarter-weight (300-pound) bull with padded horns, an encounter guaranteed to help you work up an appetite for the house's hefty $1.25 dinner.

If place names like Tignabruaich in the Kyles of Bute set bagpipes skirling in your soul, hie thee to Scotland's tight little western isles, the Hebrides, where the crafty crofters loom the dandiest woolens and tweeds your eyes ever did see. There's no trick, either, in buying a couple of bolts at staggeringly low prices, sending them home for your own tailor to whip into shape. For a scant $2.50, you can board a mail boat at Oban and be your own Boswell during a one-day sail to the wee sea towns of Iona, Staffa and Tobermory.

Another seaport a little nearer at hand is Newport, Rhode Island, which gets July going with its big four-day Jazz Festival, a bash that is now as firmly entrenched as Lincoln's Birthday. Jazz bigwigs from all points of the U.S. (plus several from Europe) huff and puff almost round the clock, and when they're not making stimulating sounds they're discussing what it's all about. Massachusetts makes almost as merry at the Berkshire Music Festival at Lenox, primarily for the long of hair, from which it's only a short jazz-lover's leap down a winding country road to the Berkshire Music Barn, which echoes alternately with contemporary jazz and folk balladry.

Westward, one of the charms of California's Laguna Beach is its Pageant of the Masters from July 20 to August 18, which offers local boys and girls in living tableaus of such works as Blue Boy, the Night Watch and Venus de Milo. The miss from Milo, as you might expect, is as charmingly undraped as she was in the original. Quite incidentally, the local art colony exhibits its own masterpieces during this period, not the least of which are the excellent meals at the Old Brussels there.

For further information, write to Janet Pilgrim, Playboy Reader Service, 232 E. Ohio St., Chicago 11, Illinois.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

AUG 12 1958

In Brief . . .

Perhaps the best measure of how big last weekend was for the tourist spots is the fact that there weren't even any complaints from places in the Mohawk Trail area . . . The frequency with which the Berkshire Marauders have been placing in drum corps competition, despite a schedule grueling enough to wear down the hardiest of buglers, reflects a commendable esprit de corps, not to mention a lot of plain hard work . . . The selectmen of Williamstown can hardly be blamed for taking a dim view of the argument that additional billboard locations should be allowed in their territory to compensate for the ones that were eliminated in North Adams by the flood control project . . .

It's nice to have the white egrets back as Berkshire visitors, but the two sighted Sunday in Lenox are a far cry from the flocks of more than one hundred that were seen here some years back. Severe winters, hurricanes and too much bulldozing in their Florida breeding grounds apparently explain the decline . . . That abrupt drop-off in out-of-state traffic on the day after Tanglewood closes is a perennial reminder of how much the Berkshire tourist industry needs some sort of big attraction to keep 'em coming until Labor Day . . . For a masterful summary of the built-in restraints upon Berkshire civic progress, see Philip C. Ahern's letter on this page. It not only puts each community's local problems in a county perspective, but indicates the way we should be taking . . .

Press
THOMSONVILLE, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,800

AUG 7 1958

One Day Vacations Within Easy Ride

047

Timewise, moeywise or otherwise . . . short-haul vacation jaunts seem most appropriate this summer and may actually be a blessing in disguise.

Most of us think of vacations in terms of long distances (far-off pastures seem greener) while right on our doorstep are holiday attractions that bring vacationers from other parts of the country.

For "just jumpin' in the car andgoin'" this area is blessed to be at the hub of a multitude of holiday spots in any chosen direction. Most of these spots are so close that one-day trips can be worked out very niecely and probably are more convenient, less tiring and economical.

A series of such trips can be educational as well as fun, especially for families with children.

For a short afternoon trip, followed perhaps by a picnic supper, the Old Newgate Prison in East Granby can be covered in a short afternoon.

The Prison, dating back to the late 1700's, is a crumbling stone edifice built over a copper mine which the prisoners worked. Informative bulletins areposted which tell the story of the Prison, and it is noted that one section was reserved for women prisoners.

The bulletins are enlivened by grimly humorous notes which make fascinating reading. Visitors can wander thru the old cells, decend into the copper mine or climb up the watch tower for a good view of the surrounding countryside.

Sturbridge Village to the east in Massachusetts is an attraction for all ages, being a reproduction of a complete colonial village where one can see shoes, cloth bread etc. being made in the old way.

Beaches and state parks abound and they are also within a day's trip, for swimming, hiking, boating, fishing and picnicking.

To the northwest, the Berkshires offer so many attractions that a series of trips could stretch over a good many weekends. The Mass. Pike enables one to get into the heart of the Berkshides in about an hour. Howere, if speed is not the object, the Mohawk Trail or the old Rt. 20 is far more satisfying. The The breathtaking scenery of "Horseshoe Bend" on the Trail is a sight to behold.

For those who want to show the children something more concrete, the Natural Bridge in North Adams [illegible] spectacular. The only [illegible] marble bridge in North America, the formation is estimated to be 500 million years old. It bridges a roaring stream which runs thru a deep chasm and there is also a waterfall. [illegible] grounds are nearby.

Over Great Barrington way, the natural rock formation on Monument Mountain was immortalized by William Cullen Bryant, American poet, in the "Great Stone Face."

Sightseeing of a different sort is offered by the many arts facilities, music, dancing, theater and museums as well as the many interesting gift shops.

For children again the Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield has a children's theater every Friday at 10:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. presenting such plays as "Sleeping Beauty", "The Emperor's New Clothes" and others.

Tanglewood, of course, is world-renowned for its afternoon and evening concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The public is admitted to the morning rehearsals.

A neighbor on an adjoining former estate, the Music Barn, is fast becoming a summer center for jazz. Here during August the School of Jazz, staffed by famous jazzmen offers studies in this medium to aspiring young cats.

Ted Shawn, dance star of [illegible], heads forth at Jacob's Pillow near Becket, Mass. with his school of dance and the Dance Festival which is a summer-long program of ballet and exotic dancing of other lands. Several times a week matinee performances are offered.

Matinee performances too are offered by some of the many summer theaters in the Berkshires. It is to these summer theaters that aspiring and capable young actors scramble for the chance at this experience, and one can enjoy their enthusiastic, if not always top-rate, performance.

FADED TEXT

Museums too are plentiful, the most noteworthy being the beautiful Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield and the Clark Museum in Williamstown.

The Berkshire Museum exhibits are beautifully displayed and the ntural history exhibits are 3-dimensional on a miniature scale. The Clark Museum has a very fine collection of paintings, sculptures, antique furniture and silver and ceramics.

To suit all tastes, there are galleries and art exhibitions in almost every town, where one can view the works of local and regional artists.

And then there's Chesterwood in Stockbridge, the studio of Daniel Chester French, sculptor of the Lincoln Memorial.

These are but a very few of the short afternoon tours available at small cost in time and money to area residents. Yet too few of us take full advantage of them as we head off to far "greener pastures". It would be just as easy to head south or east and compile as interesting a list of short holiday attractions.

World Review of Hotels & Travel, New York, N. Y.

E NORTHEAST CORNER

By [illegible] MORRIS [illegible] Travel [illegible] World-[illegible]

Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through Aug. 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. Ted Shawn's [illegible] Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June 26 in Becket. The Berkshire Music Barn [illegible] Lenox will open its season June [illegible] and operate through Aug. 31 [illegible] folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 P.M. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 P.M. The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South Street, Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night.

Spring learn-to-ski package plans [illegible] being offered by Long Trail Lodge in the Pico Peak region of Vermont. Full five days of skiing [illegible] lessons with three meals a day [illegible] Green Mountain Clubhouse [illegible] only $67.50.

[illegible] New England Council has [illegible] Richard Treadway, president [illegible] Treadway inns, as chairman [illegible] Vacation Travel Development [illegible] committee.

Vance McDonough, sales manager [illegible] Kenmore, has been promoted [illegible] convention and tour manager of Hotel Kenmore in Boston. Taking [illegible] place will be Daniel Mitchell, [illegible] comes from the Mayflower ho[illegible] Washington, D. C.

Speaking of the Kenmore, it will [illegible] again be Boston's baseball headquarters, with the Red Sox [illegible] here during their home [illegible] A package deal will be offered again this season to guests.

Charles Justice, assistant sales [illegible] of the Statler Hilton, has [illegible] elected secretary and publicity [illegible] of the Hotel Sales Man[illegible] Ass'n of the Boston area.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - S. 271,019

Berkshires Offer Theater, Music, Dance

Pittsfield, Mass.—Dates for major summer attractions in the Berkshire Hills were announced by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge, where the summer stock season will run from June 23 to Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other summer theater, the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and close Aug. 30, with evening performances Tuesday through Saturday and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesdays and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 to Aug. 30.

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June 26 at Jacob's Pillow in Becket.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox will open June 29 and close Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturday at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

PLAYBOY
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Circ. Mo. 687,593

MAY

PLAYBOY'S INTERNATIONAL DATEBOOK

BY PA[illegible] CHASE

ON THE SOUTHERN SLOPES of the Pyrenees, the Running of the Bulls will be held in Pamplona July 7-13. Everyone and his third cousin is free to hop into the ring with the big bad bulls, just like Errol Flynn did in The Sun Also Rises. Or, if that isn't your cup of tea, you can [illegible] your fino to your hotel balcony [illegible] six A.M. rocket signals the [illegible] age black [illegible] through [illegible] on the heels of [illegible] with [illegible] and your [illegible] you can min[illegible] and, participate in [illegible] jesting, clowning and what [illegible]

[illegible] of the same sort of circus takes place in Portugal at the Fair of the Red Waistcoat at Vila Franca de Xira, July 14. A restaurant in the old palace there even provides a private bull ring in which you can square off with a young, quarter-weight (300-pound) bull with padded horns, an encounter guaranteed to help you work up an appetite for the house's hefty $1.25 dinner.

If place names like Tignabruaich in the Kyles of Bute set bagpipes skirling in your soul, hie thee to Scotland's tight little western isles, the Hebrides, where the crafty crofters loom the dandiest woolens and tweeds your eyes ever did see. There's no trick, either, in buying a couple of bolts at staggeringly low prices, sending them home for your own tailor to whip into shape. For a scant $2.50, you can board a mail boat at Oban and be your own Boswell during a one-day sail to the wee sea towns of Iona, Staffa and Tobermory.

Another seaport a little nearer at hand is Newport, Rhode Island, which gets [illegible] going with its big four-day Jazz Festival, a bash that is now as firmly entrenched as Lincoln's Birthday. Jazz bigwigs from all points of the U.S. (plus several from Europe) huff and puff almost round the clock, and when they're not making stimulating sounds they're discussing what it's all about. Massachusetts makes almost as merry at the Berkshire Music Festival at Lenox, primarily for the long of hair, from which it's only a short jazz-lover's leap down a winding country road to the Berkshire Music Barn, which echoes alternately with contemporary jazz and folk balladry.

Westward, one of the charms of California's Laguna Beach is its Pageant of the Masters from July 20 to August 18, which offers local boys and girls in living tableaux of such works as Blue Boy, the Night Watch and Venus de Milo. The miss from Milo, as you might expect, is as charmingly undraped as she was in the original. Quite incidentally, the local art colony exhibits its own masterpieces during this period, not the least of which are the excellent meals at the Old Brussels there.

For further information, write to Janet Pilgrim, Playboy Reader Service, 232 E. Ohio St., Chicago 11, Illinois.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354
AUG 12 1958

In Brief . . .

[illegible] best measure of how big [illegible] as for the tourist spots is [illegible] there weren't even any [illegible] from places in the Mohawk [illegible] The frequency with [illegible] Berkshire Marauders have [illegible] in drum corps competition, [illegible] schedule grueling enough to [illegible] the hardiest of buglers, re[illegible] commendable esprit de corps, not [illegible] a lot of plain hard work . . . [illegible] of Williamstown can hard[illegible] for taking a dim view of [illegible] that additional billboard [illegible] should be allowed in their ter[illegible] compensate for the ones that [illegible] ted in North Adams by the [illegible] project . . . [illegible] to have the white egrets back [illegible] visitors, but the two sighted [illegible] Lenox are a far cry from the [illegible] more than one hundred that [illegible] were some years back. Severe hurricanes and too much bull[illegible] their Florida breeding grounds [illegible] explain the decline . . . That [illegible] drop-off in out-of-state traffic on [illegible] after Tanglewood closes is a [illegible] reminder of how much the [illegible] tourist industry needs some [illegible] attraction to keep 'em coming [illegible] Labor Day . . . For a masterful [illegible] of the built-in restraints upon [illegible] civic progress, see Philip C. [illegible] letter on this page. It not only [illegible] community's local problems in [illegible] perspective, but indicates the [illegible] should be taking . . .

FADED TEXT

[245]

Enterprise (e)
MARLBORO, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 5,575

JUN 24 1958

Music Reigns Supreme In New England During Long Summer Period

047

By JOHN A. HAHN
United Press International

Boston UPI — Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893-seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singing Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo-pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bem enoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R. I. jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson Dave Burbeck and Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three-day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season time out for World War II the Berkshire Music Center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5,893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer week end jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South Mountain, Pittsfield.

Chronicle (e)
WILLIMANTIC, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 6,225

JUN 26 1958

Music - All Kinds - In New England

047

By JOHN A. HAHN
United Press International

BOSTON (UPI)— Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893 - seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singing Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo - pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R. I., jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck and Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three - day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season (time out for World War II) the Berkshire Music Center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5,893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed. General admission to the center grounds is $2 per person. Seats within the shed cost up to $6.50 each per concert.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer weekend jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South Mountain, Pittsfield.

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUL 3 - 1958

The Berkshire Music Season Begins

The sharp old Yankee remark that "summer's half over by the Fourth of July" always nettles us, but the nettling always does some good, too. It serves as a reminder to start doing the things we had planned for the summer, and start now. Our own experience proves that of these fine weather plans, what doesn't get done before the Fourth will get about half covered by Labor Day. After all, real summer's supposed to be hot and lazy.

It will probably bring some summer dreamers up short to discover that the Berkshire Festival started this week at Tanglewood. The season has gradually been extended so that it now covers six weeks. With something going on almost every day, that's a lot of concerts. Still, if you have vaguely planned a trip to Tanglewood this summer, keep in mind that it will all be over after August 10th.

The first big concert will be the Bach B Minor Mass this Sunday, winding up a Bach series. Next week is Mozart week, the following concentrates on Brahms, Russian composers the week after that, then Wagner, then Beethoven, with works by many other composers scattered through the programs. There are also chamber music concerts on Wednesday nights, student orchestra concerts on Thursday nights, and opera on Mondays. The big Tanglewood on Parade fiesta with the Boston Pops is set for August 7th.

You can even find concerts in the mornings — Boston Symphony rehearsals on Saturdays and student chamber music on Sundays.

It seems that this year there is more attention being paid to choral music than usual. The Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society sing this Sunday, and the Festival Chorus will appear on a number of programs, including the last when Beethoven's Ninth Symphony will be presented, and several prominent soloists are to appear. The Tanglewood Choir will give two Tuesday night concerts, and Adele Addison will give a song recital.

The Turnpike brings Tanglewood very near now. It is an easy and beautiful trip up in the daylight, and the old night fog-and-truck combination of the old route is now just an unpleasant memory. You can always get tickets of admission to the grounds, which makes it possible to hear the music from the delightful lawns. You can bring your own picnic or buy one there. Music was never presented in more comfortable or attractive surroundings.

The Festival has started. The major symphonic concerts start July 18, but the chamber music and Mozart concerts that precede them are almost displacing them in popularity. If you want tickets the time to call the box office is now, and even if you don't, this is the time to think about when to go, before the hammock gets you.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Tri-Town Weekly
RANDOLPH, MASS.
Weekly

JUl 2

Teen Age Chatter

BY

Joyce A. Kroll

Endless unspoiled beauty forms an ever-changing backdrop for the many recreational facilities afforded in the Berkshire Hills of Massachusetts. Fine hotels, inns, camps, ranches, guest homes and motels meeting every requirement complement outdoor activities.

One may be active or lazy, as whim dicates. Throughout the region there is swimming, sailing, fishing, riding, golfing, tennis, hiking, picnicking in the beautiful state forests, and many other participative sports, as well as those of the spectator variety.

Outstanding among the cultural advantages is the Berkshire Symphonic Festival, Stockbridge, Lenox, Massachusetts, under the direction of Charles Munch, July 6 through August 14. Mr. Munch and guest conductors will present a series of concerts of the great masters each weekend. Throughout each week there are the activities of the Music Center with many lesser instrumental, choral and operatic performances presented daily.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

Firemen's Muster, Parade High Light in Pittsfield

Pittsfield, June 14—The Pittsfield Permanent Firemen's Association will hold its 12th annual firemen's muster at Wahconah Park in this Berkshire Hills city July 4. The July 4 event is the largest of its kind in New England. Thirty volunteer fire companies from throughout New England and New York, 15 drum corps and five bands will participate in the Fourth of July affair this year.

Gigantic Parade

The program is the final day of a four-day celebration which includes a lawn party with carnival rides and games at Wahconah Park in the downtown section of Pittsfield.

High light of the four-day affair is a gigantic, three-hour parade the morning of July 4. Each of the colorfully-uniformed volunteer fire companies will have vintage and modern fire fighting equipment in the parade.

During the afternoon of July 4 the volunteer fire companies will compete in old-fashioned hose cart and pumping races and there will be a tug of war and a ladder race. There also will be competitions for the bands and drum corps.

Visitors to the Berkshires during the early part of July also will find many other things of interest on the menu. July 1 is the opening date for the 26th season at Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket. Ted Shawn will offer Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Dance Co., and Shrimathi Gina of India for his opening week at the Pillow. At Tanglewood in the town of Lenox the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open its annual six-week Berkshire Music Festival July 2.

And, at Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox the regular schedule of Saturday folk music concerts and Sunday jazz concerts will be under way. Berkshires' two summer theaters, the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge and the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, also ill be open in July.

Information on what to do and where to stay in the Berkshires may be secured from the Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South St., Pittsfield. The conference also will provide free a circle tour map which outlines and gives detailed directions for six tours of the various spots of natural beauty and historic interest in the Berkshires.

HAVE-YOU-VISITED-US?
PIEL CRAFTSMEN'S shipmodel shop is one of the most unique places to visit on Cape Ann. There you will find Ship Models, Ships in Bottles, Half-models, Things nautical and most unusual. Plan to visit us.
PIEL CRAFTSMEN
Bearskin Neck
TUNA WHARF
Rockport, Mass.

BUCKMINSTER'S DIRECTORY
of
MAINE ANTIQUE SHOPS
Listing over 225 Shops
Price $1.00, ppd.
WILLIAM J. BUCKMINSTER
Owls Head Antique Shop
Owls Head, Maine

The Sea Surrounds Us
May 29 to October 1
STRAITSMOUTH INN
Rockport, Mass.
Unexcelled shore vacation spot. Ocean on three sides, private rocky point. Quiet comfort. Fine New England Food. $55-$125 weekly including all meals.
Mrs. E. Wilkinson
5 Gap Head Road
Tel. Kingswood 6-3471

WESTMINSTER, MASS.
The Old Mill
Open Every Day of the Year
(except Christmas Day)
We serve continuously from
7:30 a.m. to 10:00 p.m.
Rt. 2A, Westminster, Mass.
Famous for New England Cooking and Hospitality

Stagecoach Hill
"An Inn With A Heritage"
"Cuisine With a Continental Flair"
9 Mi. South of Gt. Barrington
Route 41 — Sheffield, Mass. — 9-2012

The NORTHFIELD
Like Swimming—Golf Sports—Excellent Meals?
Vacation at this delightful Inn in lovely Pioneer Valley. Swimming Pool with sun deck and snack bar, golf, all sports—informal social events. — Rates $11-$16 day incl. delicious meals.
Open All Year.
Color folder, write
A. Gordon Moody, Mgr.
EAST NORTHFIELD 30, MASS.

AMERICA'S MOST FABULOUS FAMILY ENTERTAINMENT
An occasion the whole family will remember happily ever after.
FEATURING DODGE CITY
U. S. 1, SCOTLAND ROAD EXIT
NEWBURYPORT, MASS.
ADVENTURE LAND ☆

SUMMER ATTRACTIONS

Berkshire Hills Theater Music and Dance Dates

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—Dates for six of the major Summer attractions in the Berkshire Hill have been announced by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the Summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other Summer theater, The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesday and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through August 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two week-end concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Each week-end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June [illegible] at Jacob's Pillow in Becket. For the first week-end the Pillow schedule calls for matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and matinees Friday and Saturday. For the following six weeks there will be matinees Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and evening performances Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The last two weeks of the season Mr. Shawn will offer matinee and evening performances Fridays and Saturdays.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox wil open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p.m. Special mid-week concerts will be held Wednesdays or Thursdays, Music Barn features national headliners in the fields of jazz and folk music.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South st., Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night. The Conference will send, on request, informational brochures on Berkshire attractions, including a Circle-Tour Folder which outlines six half-day automobile tours of Berkshire County.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169
JUN 29 1958

MUSIC

Starlight Chamber Series To Begin Tuesday Night

By GORDON E. ARMSTRONG

New Haven's only summer series of concerts, the Starlight Festival of Chamber Music, will commence its fourth season on Tuesday evening at 8:30 in the courtyard of the Yale Art Gallery. There are to be the usual four concerts in this latest series, with programs scheduled for alternate Tuesday evenings through August 12. Julius Scheir, young and talented violinist of the New Haven Symphony who founded these delightful open-air concerts four years ago, will again have the dual role of performer and director of the series.

The Starlight Festival has grown, both in interest and artistic stature, with each succeeding season. Begun in somewhat tentative and experimental fashion, the concerts have won a permanent place in our annual music calendar and proved to be appealing and attractive to the most discriminating listener. Recognition of their musical value and cultural importance to the community has won the festival the support of the New Haven Foundation and the William Inglis Morse Trust for Music, both of which have again made grants to this summer's series.

Works in the string quartet category are to predominate in this fourth series although guest artists in three of the concerts will bring some program diversification and variety through the inclusion of other vocal and instrumental works. The guest artists are all favorites of audiences here; they include Blanche Porto, mezzo-soprano, Donald Currier, pianist, and Keith Wilson, clarinetist.

Tuesday the first concert will be given by the festival's new permanent group of players, all of whom have participated in previous programs. In fact, this group is the same one which appeared in the final concert of last summer's series when an all-string program was presented. With Scheir as first violinist, the players are as follows: Ann Barak, second violin; Meyer Katz, viola; Nathan Stutch, cello. The program for the opening concert lists three favorite quartets: Boccherini's Quartettino; Debussy's Quartet, Op. 10; and the Quartet in C minor, Op. 59, No. 1, by Brahms.

A word about the individual players in the festival's regular group is in order. Little need be said about director Scheir, whose background and capabilities are generally known to patrons of the concerts. He was a member of the Baltimore Symphony at the tender age of 14 and his many years of studies since then culminated with receiving a Master's degree from the Yale Music School several years ago. A "frogman" in the Navy during the last war, Scheir also studied at the Eastman School of Music and at the Berkshire Music Center during the reign of Serge Koussevitzky. He held a Carnegie Foundation Scholarship at one time.

The other three regular players also have impressive backgrounds. Miss Barak, a graduate of Juilliard, has performed with many professional groups and recently completed a series of recordings. Violist Katz formerly performed with the St. Louis Symphonette and the Longine Symphonette. He has also served as assistant concertmaster with the celebrated ensemble known as Mantovani and his orchestra. Stutch is a regular cellist with the New York Philharmonic and is just shortly back after touring with the orchestra in South America. His other professional activities include memberships in the Philharmonic's Cello Quartet and the Chamber Art Ensemble in New York.

Tickets for the concerts are on sale at local music stores. In the event of rain, programs will be given on the first clear evening following.

Noted Pianist To Be In Norfolk

The eminent pianist, James Friskin, will give a piano recital on Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 in the Music Shed at Norfolk as the second event of the current Norfolk Music School series. Friskin, who is replacing Bruce Simonds as a member of the school's piano faculty this summer, will present a program of works by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, and Chopin.

Long recognized as one of the most gifted pianists and teachers, Friskin was born in Scotland and received most of his training in London. He won early recognition, both as performer and pedagogue, and since he came to this country, he has attained a ranking position as artist, technician, writer, lecturer, and teacher. A faculty member of the Juilliard School of Music, for many years, Friskin has exerted a far-reaching influence on the hundreds of students who have been privileged to come under his tutelage.

Festival At Tanglewood To Start

Another music festival which annually draws many listeners from this area also gets under way this week. This is, of course, the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood where the Boston Symphony plays each summer amidst the scenic grandeurs of this idyllic setting in the Berkshires. Activities at Tanglewood will actually commence this afternoon with the opening exercises of the Berkshire Music Center, the school which has been an integral part of this world famous festival for many years. Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston Orchestra and director of the Center, will welcome students from all over the United States and from many European countries to this 16th session of the school.

The opening concerts of the festival will be presented by a chamber orchestra of Boston musicians on Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 and next Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Mr. Munch will conduct the first two concerts which will be devoted to the music of Bach. Friday's program will consist of the composer's four suites (Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4), with Doriot Anthony Dwyer, first flutist of the orchestra as the soloist in the second suite. On Saturday evening, Bach's Art of the Fugue as arranged for strings, and his D minor Piano Concerto, with Lukas Foss as soloist, will make up the program. Foss, incidentally, is a member of the composition faculty at the Berkshire Center this summer.

G. Wallace Woodworth, retiring conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, will mark his final concert with the two groups in Sunday afternoon's presentation of Bach's B minor Mass at the festival. The Harvard conductor is making this appearance at the special invitation of Mr. Munch since the Harvard Glee Club is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year. The soloists in Sunday's concert are to be Adele Addison, soprano, Eunice Alberts, contralto, Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass.

The first program in the Wednesday evening chamber music series is also scheduled for this week and the concert will mark the first Tanglewood appearance of the Budapest Quartet. The celebrated string ensemble will offer the following program which is to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 on Wednesday evening: Haydn's Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2

Conductor Charles Munch, who arrived back in this country or few days ago after filling some podium assignments in his native Strasbourg, will conduct the great majority of the festival's concerts. Pierre Monteux, the great French conductor who has played a guest role at Tanglewood for some years, will conduct four of this summer's programs.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center may attend free of charge any of the many student concerts scheduled for this season. Membership in this group is open to any individual who makes a donation for the work of the school.

Keith Wilson, A Busy Clarinetist

It would seem that Keith Wilson, Yale Band leader and first clarinetist of the New Haven Symphony, has a busy summer ahead. Not only is he serving as the director of Yale's Norfolk Music School this season but his performing schedule is a demanding one. Wilson is, of course, performing in some of the Norfolk programs and as stated above, he will be a guest artist in the Starlight Festival here.

Word just received concerning the Berkshire String Quartet's series at Music Mountain, Fall's Village, this summer has further news of Wilson's activities. He is to be the guest artist in the group's opening concert this afternoon at 4, when he will be heard with the string players in Mozart's Clarinet Quintet. The balance of the program will consist of Haydn's C major Quartet, Op. 54, and the Quartet in D major, by Mendelssohn.

Bershire Quartet At Music Mountain

The Berkshire Quartet, which has been in residence at Music Mountain each summer for a number of years, has just returned from a tour of Lebanon and the Middle East. The group will present concerts every Sunday afternoon, as usual, with a number of guest artists assisting during this season. The guest list includes such notables as Benny Goodman, Richard Dyer-Bennett, and Frank Glazer.

The Berkshires have truly become a "music mountain" in recent years and the locale for every type of music from symphony to jazz. In the latter category, there is the series of concerts sponsored by the School of Jazz, located in Lenox, not far from the Berkshire Festival grounds. This series will commence its fourth season this evening at 8:30 with a Barbershop Quartet Festival in the Berkshire Music Barn. The celebrated Dave Brubeck Quartet will appear there in the second event of the series on Friday evening and Duke Ellington's Orchestra will be heard next Sunday evening.

Highlights of this summer's series will include a performance of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble In Tahiti," which the After Dinner Opera Company will give at the Barn on Saturday afternoon, July 19, at 3:30. Another featured event is to be an unusual program on Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, when jazz drummer Max Roach will be the soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony. Roach is a member of the faculty of the School of Jazz.

HAVE-YOU-VISITED-US?
PIEL CRAFTSMEN'S shipmodel shop is one of the most unique places to visit on Cape Ann. There you will find Ship Models, Ships in Bottles, Half-models, Things nautical and most unusual. Plan to visit us.
PIEL CRAFTSMEN
Bearskin Neck
TUNA WHARF
Rockport, Mass.

BUCKMINSTER'S DIRECTORY
of
MAINE ANTIQUE SHOPS
Listing over 225 Shops
Price $1.00, ppd.
WILLIAM J. BUCKMINSTER
Owls Head Antique Shop
Owls Head, Maine

The Sea Surrounds Us
May 29 to October!
STRAITSMOUTH INN
Rockport, Mass.
Unexcelled shore vacation spot. Ocean on three sides, private rocky point. Quiet comfort. Fine New England Food. $55-$125 weekly including all meals.
Mrs. E. Wilkinson
5 Gap Head Road
Tel. Kingswood 6-3471

WESTMINSTER, MASS.
The Old Mill
Open Every Day of the Year
(except Christmas Day)
We serve continuously from
7:30 a.m. to 10:00 p.m.
Rt. 2A, Westminster, Mass.
Famous for New England Cooking and Hospitality

Stagecoach Hill
"An Inn With A Heritage"
"Cuisine With a Continental Flair"
9 Mi. South of Gt. Barrington
Route 41 — Sheffield, Mass. — 9-2012

The NORTHFIELD
Like Swimming—Golf Sports—Excellent Meals?
Vacation at this delightful Inn in lovely Pioneer Valley. Swimming Pool with sun deck and snack bar, golf, all sports—informal social events. — Rates $11-$16 day incl. delicious meals.
Open All Year.
Color folder, write
A. Gordon Moody, Mgr.
EAST NORTHFIELD 30, MASS.

AMERICA'S MOST FABULOUS FAMILY ENTERTAINMENT
An occasion the whole family will remember happily ever after.
FEATURING DODGE CITY
U. S. 1, SCOTLAND ROAD EXIT
NEWBURYPORT, MASS.
ADVENTURE LAND ☆

---

[246]

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUN 29 1958

MUSIC

The first program in the Wednesday evening chamber music series is also scheduled for this week and the concert will mark the first Tanglewood appearance of the Budapest Quartet. The celebrated string ensemble will offer the following program which is to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 on Wednesday evening: Haydn's Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2

Conductor Charles Munch, who arrived back in this country or few days ago after filling some podium assignments in his native Strasbourg, will conduct the great majority of the festival's concerts. Pierre Monteux, the great French conductor who has played a guest role at Tanglewood for some years, will conduct four of this summer's programs.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center may attend free of charge any of the many student concerts scheduled for this season. Membership in this group is open to any individual who makes a donation for the work of the school.

Keith Wilson, A Busy Clarinetist

It would seem that Keith Wilson, Yale Band leader and first clarinetist of the New Haven Symphony, has a busy summer ahead. Not only is he serving as the director of Yale's Norfolk Music School this season but his performing schedule is a demanding one. Wilson is, of course, performing in some of the Norfolk programs and as stated above, he will be a guest artist in the Starlight Festival here.

Word just received concerning the Berkshire String Quartet's series at Music Mountain, Fall's Village, this summer has further news of Wilson's activities. He is to be the guest artist in the group's opening concert this afternoon at 4, when he will be heard with the string players in Mozart's Clarinet Quintet. The balance of the program will consist of Haydn's C major Quartet, Op. 54, and the Quartet in D major, by Mendelssohn.

Bershire Quartet At Music Mountain

The Berkshire Quartet, which has been in residence at Music Mountain each summer for a number of years, has just returned from a tour of Lebanon and the Middle East. The group will present concerts every Sunday afternoon, as usual, with a number of guest artists assisting during this season. The guest list includes such notables as Benny Goodman, Richard Dyer-Bennett, and Frank Glazer.

The Berkshires have truly become a "music mountain" in recent years and the locale for every type of music from symphony to jazz. In the latter category, there is the series of concerts sponsored by the School of Jazz, located in Lenox, not far from the Berkshire Festival grounds. This series will commence its fourth season this evening at 8:30 with a Barbershop Quartet Festival in the Berkshire Music Barn. The celebrated Dave Brubeck Quartet will appear there in the second event of the series on Friday evening and Duke Ellington's Orchestra will be heard next Sunday evening.

Highlights of this summer's series will include a performance of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble In Tahiti," which the After Dinner Opera Company will give at the Barn on Saturday afternoon, July 19, at 3:30. Another featured event is to be an unusual program on Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, when jazz drummer Max Roach will be the soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony. Roach is a member of the faculty of the School of Jazz.

SERIES: $7.50, $5.00—Box (8 seats)—$75.00
SINGLE: $3.00, $2.00—GENERAL ADMISSION $1.00
TICKETS AT: LOOMIS, MA 4-9833 . D. D. SMITH, UN 5-1101

SUMMER ATTRACTIONS

Berkshire Hills Theater Music and Dance Dates

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—Dates for six of the major Summer attractions in the Berkshire Hill have been announced by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the Summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other Summer theater, The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesday and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through August 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two week-end concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Each week-end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June [illegible] at Jacob's Pillow in Becket. [illegible] the first week-end the Pillow schedule calls for matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and matinees Friday and Saturday. For the following six weeks there will be matinees Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and evening performances Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The last two weeks of the season Mr. Shawn will offer matinee and evening performances Fridays and Saturdays.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox wil open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p.m. Special mid-week concerts will be held Wednesdays or Thursdays. Music Barn features national headliners in the fields of jazz and folk music.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South st., Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night. The Conference will send, on request, informational brochures on Berkshire attractions, including a Circle-Tour Folder which outlines six half-day automobile tours of Berkshire County.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958

BERKSHIRE BOAST

A Partisan of a Famous Massachusetts Resort County Finds it Unexcelled

By MARGERY DOUGLAS

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—If all of the pleasantest features of inland New England could be wrapped in one conveniently sized package, the result would strongly resemble Massachusett's Berkshire County.

This statement may cause a mass rising of blood presure in some other well-favored areas and may even move some natives to take down great-grandfather's Civil War musket from over the fireplace. But the county's ninety woodland lakes, 274 trout streams and more than 80,000 acres of state forest preserves provide strong backing for such a claim.

Those who prefer the sea are welcome to drive on to any of the five New England state seacoasts. And those who point to the pine forests of Maine, the White Mountains of New Hampshire and the Green Mountains of Vermont have strong arguments. But it does not alter the fact that the Berkshires represent a fair sample package of all of the inland virtues of the region.

Provided winter snows are abundant, the Berkshires furnish a year-round vacationland. For just as the ski slopes are getting bare, the trout streams are in full rush. And when the shadows grow longer toward the end of August, brilliant fall foliage draws thousands of motorists until frost settles in again.

Comparative Molehill

Skiing, of course, means hills and the Berkshires have these in abundance. Mount Greylock, the highest peak, is 3,491 feet. This would not be much more than a molehill among the Rockies. But it is outstanding in the terrain of this area.

From Bartholomew's Cobble, a jagged limestone outcropping overlooking the Housatonic River to the south, to the picturesque college town of Williamstown to the north, the Berkshires are dotted with the wide, elm-vaulted streets of its villages and sweeping vistas of surrounding countryside.

Williams College is the principal center of academic culture in the region. But summer brings the Berkshire Music Festival to Tanglewood in Lenox, where the Boston Symphony Orchestra spends the season, and Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival to Becket.

Tanglewood programs this summer will include Bach on July 4, 5 and 6; Mozart, July 11-13; Brahms, July 18-20; Debussy and Ravel, July 25-27; Wagner, Aug. 1-3, and Beethoven, Aug. 8-10. Among the numerous attractions at near-by Music Barn will be Dave Brubeck, July 4; Duke Ellington, July 6; Mahalia Jackson, July 27; the Modern Jazz Quartet, Aug. 3; George Shearing, Aug. 10; and a School of Jazz benefit concert on Aug. 30.

Additional accommodations are available for 150 guests this year with the acquisition by Music Inn of Wheatleigh, a majestic old house that was formerly a private home.

Not too far away is Williamstown, site of the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute, representing five decades of collecting paintings, sculpture, rare silver, furniture and china.

The Adams Memorial Theatre, on the college campus and air-conditioned, is opening its fourth season of summer productions. They include two dramas and six comedies directed by Nikos Psacharopoulos of the Yale School of Drama, presented by the Williamstown Theatre Foundation, Inc.

Another summer theatre, the Berkshire Playhouse, will be opening its twenty-seventh season at Stockbridge, with William Miles, director. For foreign and American movies, the Little Cinema at Pittsfield has nightly performances through the summer.

Six Motor Tours

The Berkshire Hills Conference, with headquarters at 50 South Street, Pittsfield, can furnish detailed information about the region. It distributes a road map outlining six motor tours of the county.

State Route 23, crossing the southern quadrant, covers part of the trail used by Maj. Gen. Henry Knox and his troops during the American Revolution. In the winter of 1775-76, they hauled cannon captured from the British at Fort Ticonderoga to the support of colonial troops in Boston.

The largest state forest in the Commonwealth is October Mountain. It is situated in the central Berkshires. Many hiking and bridle trails are found in its 14,000 acres. There is a new camping area available at the west side of the forest, three miles from Lenox. The best approaches are along U. S. 20 from either Lenox or East Lee.

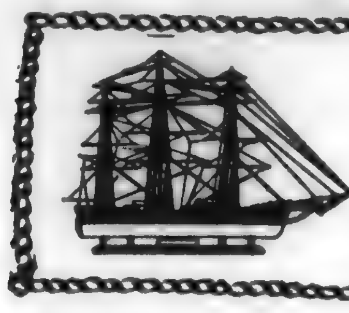
June vacationists may see New England's largest azalea fields in the Pittsfield state forest. They are reachable by hard-surfaced road on Berry Mountain in the Taconic area.

New Express Link

Motor highways to the area include the New York Thruway, the Taconic Parkway or U. S. 7. The Massachusetts Turnpike to eastern New England begins at West Stockbridge. An express link with the New York Thruway is under construction.

Lodgings range all the way from modest guest homes to hotels and motels. The rates begin around $50 a week. Many places furnish baby-sitting service for those who want to visit theatres in the evening or pursue other activities.

[246]



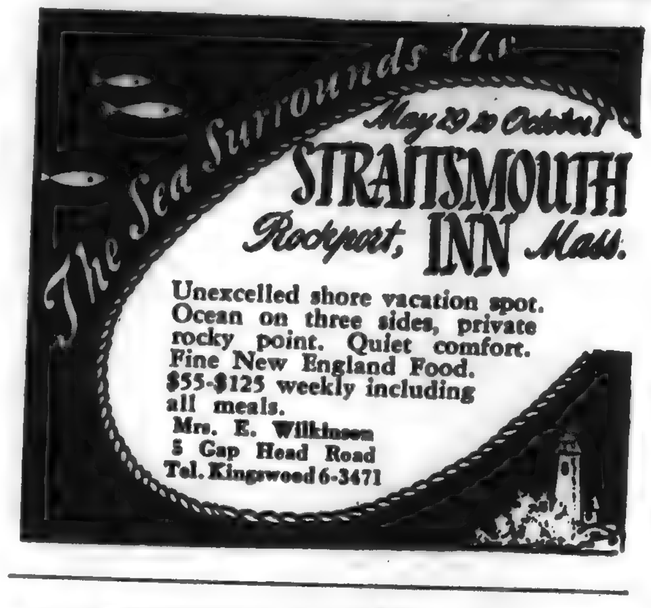
HAVE-YOU-VISITED-US?

PIEL CRAFTSMEN'S shipmodel shop is one of the most unique places to visit on Cape Ann. There you will find Ship Models, Ships in Bottles, Half-models, Things nautical and most unusual. Plan to visit us.

PIEL CRAFTSMEN
Bearskin Neck

TUNA WHARF
Rockport, Mass.

BUCKMINSTER'S DIRECTORY
of
MAINE ANTIQUE SHOPS
Listing over 225 Shops
Price $1.00, ppd.
WILLIAM J. BUCKMINSTER
Owls Head Antique Shop
Owls Head, Maine



The Sea Surrounds Us
May 29 to October!
STRAITSMOUTH INN
Rockport, Mass.

Unexcelled shore vacation spot. Ocean on three sides, private rocky point. Quiet comfort. Fine New England Food. $55-$125 weekly including all meals.
Mrs. E. Wilkinson
5 Gap Head Road
Tel. Kingswood 6-3471

WESTMINSTER, MASS.

The Old Mill
Open Every Day of the Year
(except Christmas Day)
We serve continuously from
7:30 a.m. to 10:00 p.m.
Rt. 2A, Westminster, Mass.
Famous for New England Cooking and Hospitality

Stagecoach Hill

"An Inn With A Heritage"
"Cuisine With a Continental Flair"
9 Mi. South of Gt. Barrington
Route 41 — Sheffield, Mass. — 9-2012

The NORTHFIELD

Like Swimming—Golf Sports—Excellent Meals?
Vacation at this delightful Inn in lovely Pioneer Valley. Swimming Pool with sun deck and snack bar, golf, all sports—informal social events. — Rates $11-$16 day incl. delicious meals.
Open All Year.
Color folder, write
A. Gordon Moody, Mgr.
EAST NORTHFIELD 30, MASS.

AMERICA'S MOST FABULOUS FAMILY ENTERTAINMENT
An occasion the whole family will remember happily ever after.

FEATURING DODGE CITY
U. S. 1, SCOTLAND ROAD EXIT
NEWBURYPORT, MASS.

ADVENTURE LAND ☆

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUN 29 1958

MUSIC

The first program in the Wednesday evening chamber music series is also scheduled for this week and the concert will mark the first Tanglewood appearance of the Budapest Quartet. The celebrated string ensemble will offer the following program which is to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 on Wednesday evening: Haydn's Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2

Conductor Charles Munch, who arrived back in this country a few days ago after filling some podium assignments in his native Strasbourg, will conduct the great majority of the festival's concerts. Pierre Monteux, the great French conductor who has played a guest role at Tanglewood for some years, will conduct four of this summer's programs.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center may attend free of charge any of the many student concerts scheduled for this season. Membership in this group is open to any individual who makes a donation for the work of the school.

Keith Wilson, A Busy Clarinetist

It would seem that Keith Wilson, Yale Band leader and first clarinetist of the New Haven Symphony, has a busy summer ahead. Not only is he serving as the director of Yale's Norfolk Music School this season but his performing schedule is a demanding one. Wilson is, of course, performing in some of the Norfolk programs and as stated above, he will be a guest artist in the Starlight Festival here.

Word just received concerning the Berkshire String Quartet's series at Music Mountain, Fall's Village, this summer has further news of Wilson's activities. He is to be the guest artist in the group's opening concert this afternoon at 4, when he will be heard with the string players in Mozart's Clarinet Quintet. The balance of the program will consist of Haydn's C major Quartet, Op. 54, and the Quartet in D major, by Mendelssohn.

Bershire Quartet At Music Mountain

The Berkshire Quartet, which has been in residence at Music Mountain each summer for a number of years, has just returned from a tour of Lebanon and the Middle East. The group will present concerts every Sunday afternoon, as usual, with a number of guest artists assisting during this season. The guest list includes such notables as Benny Goodman, Richard Dyer-Bennett, and Frank Glazer.

The Berkshires have truly become a "music mountain" in recent years and the locale for every type of music from symphony to jazz. In the latter category, there is the series of concerts sponsored by the School of Jazz, located in Lenox, not far from the Berkshire Festival grounds. This series will commence its fourth season this evening at 8:30 with a Barbershop Quartet Festival in the Berkshire Music Barn. The celebrated Dave Brubeck Quartet will appear there in the second event of the series on Friday evening and Duke Ellington's Orchestra will be heard next Sunday evening.

Highlights of this summer's series will include a performance of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble In Tahiti," which the After Dinner Opera Company will give at the Barn on Saturday afternoon, July 19, at 3:30. Another featured event is to be an unusual program on Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, when jazz drummer Max Roach will be the soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony. Roach is a member of the faculty of the School of Jazz.

SERIES: $7.50, $5.00—Box (8 seats)—$75.00
SINGLE: $3.00, $2.00—GENERAL ADMISSION $1.00
TICKETS AT: LOOMIS, MA 4-9833 . D. D. SMITH, UN 5-1101

SUMMER ATTRACTIONS

Berkshire Hills Theater Music and Dance Dates

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—Dates for six of the major Summer attractions in the Berkshire Hill have been announced by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the Summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other Summer theater, The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesday and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through August 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two week-end concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Each week-end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June [illegible] at Jacob's Pillow in Becket. [illegible] the first week-end the Pillow schedule calls for matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and matinees Friday and Saturday. For the following six weeks there will be matinees Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and evening performances Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The last two weeks of the season Mr. Shawn will offer matinee and evening performances Fridays and Saturdays.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox wil open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at [illegible] p.m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p.m. Special mid-week concerts will be held Wednesdays or Thursdays. Music Barn features national headliners in the fields of jazz and folk music.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South st., Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night. The Conference will send, on request, informational brochures on Berkshire attractions, including a Circle-Tour Folder which outlines six half-day automobile tours of Berkshire County.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958

BERKSHIRE BOAST

A Partisan of a Famous Massachusetts Resort County Finds it Unexcelled

By MARGERY DOUGLAS

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—If all of the pleasantest features of inland New England could be wrapped in one conveniently sized package, the result would strongly resemble Massachusett's Berkshire County.

This statement may cause a mass rising of blood presure in some other well-favored areas and may even move some natives to take down great-grandfather's Civil War musket from over the fireplace. But the county's ninety woodland lakes, 274 trout streams and more than 80,000 acres of state forest preserves provide strong backing for such a claim.

Those who prefer the sea are welcome to drive on to any of the five New England state seacoasts. And those who point to the pine forests of Maine, the White Mountains of New Hampshire and the Green Mountains of Vermont have strong arguments. But it does not alter the fact that the Berkshires represent a fair sample package of all of the inland virtues of the region.

Provided winter snows are abundant, the Berkshires furnish a year-round vacationland. For just as the ski slopes are getting bare, the trout streams are in full rush. And when the shadows grow longer toward the end of August, brilliant fall foliage draws thousands of motorists until frost settles in again.

Comparative Molehill

Skiing, of course, means hills and the Berkshires have these in abundance. Mount Greylock, the highest peak, is 3,491 feet. This would not be much more than a molehill among the Rockies. But it is outstanding in the terrain of this area.

From Bartholomew's Cobble, a jagged limestone outcropping overlooking the Housatonic River to the south, to the picturesque college town of Williamstown to the north, the Berkshires are dotted with the wide, elm-vaulted streets of its villages and sweeping vistas of surrounding countryside.

Williams College is the principal center of academic culture in the region. But summer brings the Berkshire Music Festival to Tanglewood in Lenox, where the Boston Symphony Orchestra spends the season, and Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival to Becket.

Tanglewood programs this summer will include Bach on July 4, 5 and 6; Mozart, July 11-13; Brahms, July 18-20; Debussy and Ravel, July 25-27; Wagner, Aug. 1-3, and Beethoven, Aug. 8-10. Among the numerous attractions at near-by Music Barn will be Dave Brubeck, July 4; Duke Ellington, July 6; Mahalia Jackson, July 27; the Modern Jazz Quartet,

10; and a School of Jazz benefit concert on Aug. 30.

Additional accommodations are available for 150 guests this year with the acquisition by Music Inn of Wheatleigh, a majestic old house that was formerly a private home.

Not too far away is Williamstown, site of the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute, representing five decades of collecting paintings, sculpture, rare silver, furniture and china.

The Adams Memorial Theatre, on the college campus and air-conditioned, is opening its fourth season of summer productions. They include two dramas and six comedies directed by Nikos Psacharopoulos of the Yale School of Drama, presented by the Williamstown Theatre Foundation, Inc.

Another summer theatre, the Berkshire Playhouse, will be opening its twenty-seventh season at Stockbridge, with William Miles, director. For foreign and American movies, the Little Cinema at Pittsfield has nightly performances through the summer.

Six Motor Tours

The Berkshire Hills Conference, with headquarters at 50 South Street, Pittsfield, can furnish detailed information about the region. It distributes a road map outlining six motor tours of the county.

State Route 23, crossing the southern quadrant, covers part of the trail used by Maj. Gen. Henry Knox and his troops during the American Revolution. In the winter of 1775-76, they hauled cannon captured from the British at Fort Ticonderoga to the support of colonial troops in Boston.

The largest state forest in the Commonwealth is October Mountain. It is situated in the central Berkshires. Many hiking and bridle trails are found in its 14,000 acres. There is a new camping area available at the west side of the forest, three miles from Lenox. The best approaches are along U. S. 20 from either Lenox or East Lee.

June vacationists may see New England's largest azalea fields in the Pittsfield state forest. They are reachable by hard-surfaced road on Berry Mountain in the Taconic area.

New Express Link

Motor highways to the area include the New York Thruway, the Taconic Parkway or U. S. 7. The Massachusetts Turnpike to eastern New England begins at West Stockbridge. An express link with the New York Thruway is under construction.

Lodgings range all the way from modest guest homes to hotels and motels. The rates begin around $50 a week. Many places furnish baby-sitting service for those who want to visit theatres in the evening or pur-

[246]

TRAVEL and Resorts

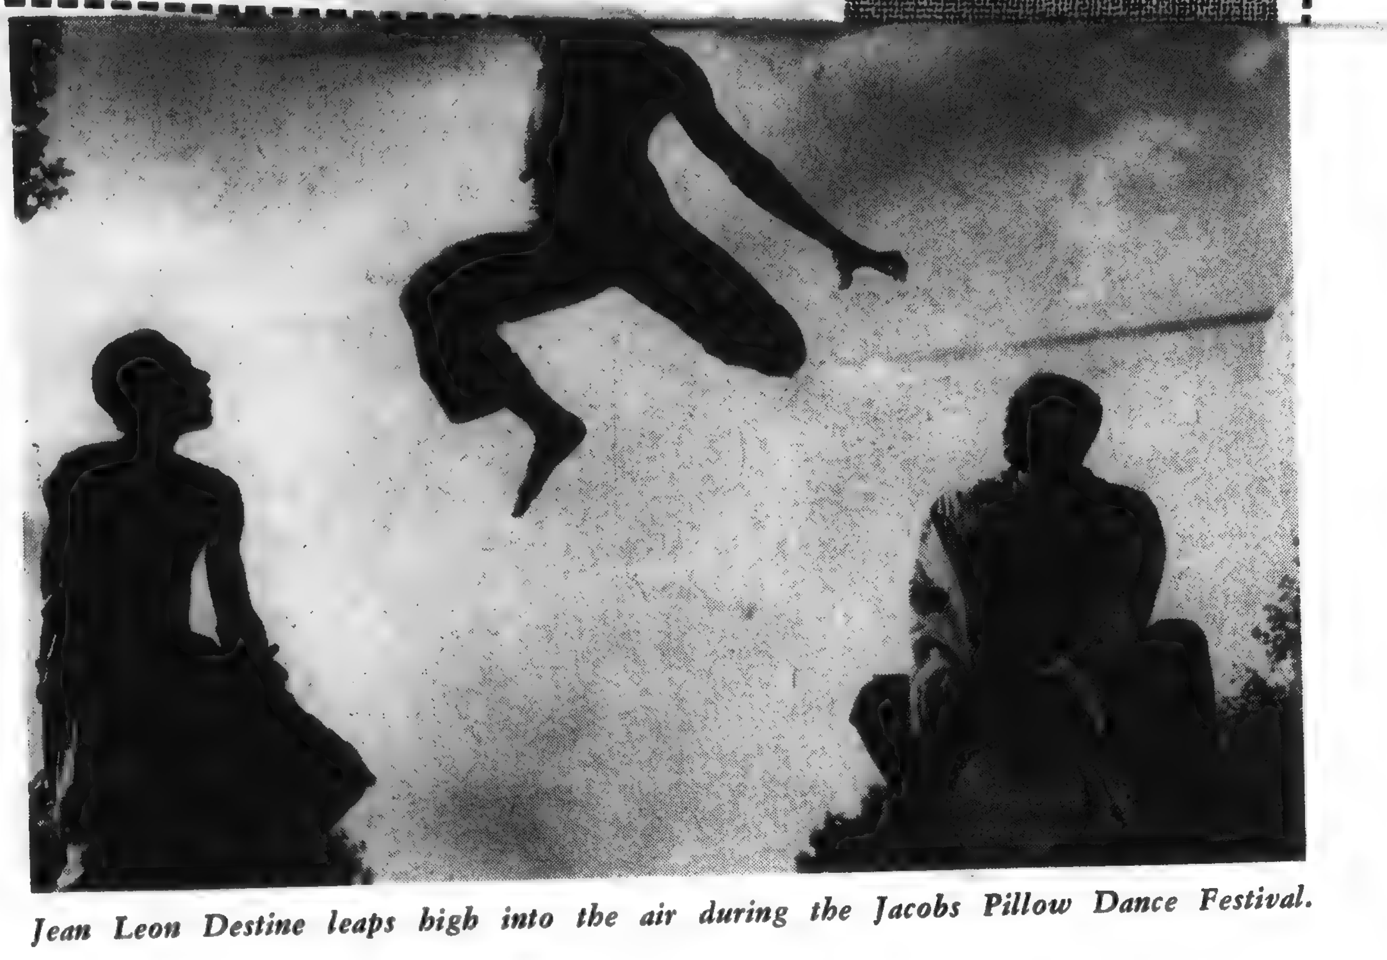
Tips for July

by MARJORY HALL

THE SUMMER MONTHS STIR UP ALL sorts of activity in the Berkshires, making it a mecca for lovers of music and of the dance particularly. At Tanglewood, in Lenox, The Boston Symphony Orchestra will follow the successful pattern of last season, with each weekend finding the works of a great composer featured. This year Bach is scheduled for July 4th, 5th, 6th; Mozart, July 11th, 12th, 13th; Brahms, July 18th, 19th, 20th; Debussy and Ravel, July 25th, 26th, 27th; Wagner, August 1st, 2nd, 3rd; and Beethoven

tween tours has become the site of a major event in New England summers, as well as of the accompanying school where varied dance techniques are taught. The school has brought on a colony of log cabins and dormitories, with a new (fifteen-year-old) theatre in which to stage the performances that are now given nightly, in season, instead of the modest once-a-week schedule that existed at the start.

Mr. Shawn, himself possessed of indomitable spirit and apparently inexhaus-



Jean Leon Destine leaps high into the air during the Jacobs Pillow Dance Festival.

The world's greatest dancers have performed in the barn at Jacobs Pillow in Lee, Mass.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the Summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other Summer theater, The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesday and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through August 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two week-end concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Each week-end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June [illegible] at Jacob's Pillow in Becket. [illegible] the first week-end the Pillow schedule calls for matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and matinees Friday and Saturday. For the following six weeks there will be matinees Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and evening performances Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The last two weeks of the season Mr. Shawn will offer matinee and evening performances Fridays and Saturdays.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox wil open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p.m. Special mid-week concerts will be held Wednesdays or Thursdays. Music Barn features national headliners in the fields of jazz and folk music.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South st., Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night. The Conference will send, on request, informational brochures on Berkshire attractions, including a Circle-Tour which outlines six half-day mobile tours of Berkshire C

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUN 29 1958

MUSIC

The first program in the Wednesday evening chamber music series is also scheduled for this week and the concert will mark the first Tanglewood appearance of the Budapest Quartet. The celebrated string ensemble will offer the following program which is to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 on Wednesday evening: Haydn's Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2

Conductor Charles Munch, who arrived back in this country or few days ago after filling some podium assignments in his native Strasbourg, will conduct the great majority of the festival's concerts. Pierre Monteux, the great French conductor who has played a guest role at Tanglewood for some years, will conduct four of this summer's programs.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center may attend free of charge any of the many student concerts scheduled for this season. Membership in this group is open to any individual who makes a donation for the work of the school.

Keith Wilson, A Busy Clarinetist

It would seem that Keith Wilson, Yale Band leader and first clarinetist of the New Haven Symphony, has a busy summer ahead. Not only is he serving as the director of Yale's Norfolk Music School this season but his performing schedule is a demanding one. Wilson is, of course, performing in some of the Norfolk programs and as stated above, he will be a guest artist in the Starlight Festival here.

Word just received concerning the Berkshire String Quartet's series at Music Mountain, Fall's Village, this summer has further news of Wilson's activities. He is to be the guest artist in the group's opening concert this afternoon at 4, when he will be heard with the string players in Mozart's Clarinet Quintet. The balance of the program will consist of Haydn's C major Quartet, Op. 54, and the Quartet in D major, by Mendelssohn.

Bershire Quartet At Music Mountain

The Berkshire Quartet, which has been in residence at Music Mountain each summer for a number of years, has just returned from a tour of Lebanon and the Middle East. The group will present concerts every Sunday afternoon, as usual, with a number of guest artists assisting during this season. The guest list includes such notables as Benny Goodman, Richard Dyer-Bennett, and Frank Glazer.

The Berkshires have truly become a "music mountain" in recent years and the locale for every type of music from symphony to jazz. In the latter category, there is the series of concerts sponsored by the School of Jazz, located in Lenox, not far from the Berkshire Festival grounds. This series will commence its fourth season this evening at 8:30 with a Barbershop Quartet Festival in the Berkshire Music Barn. The celebrated Dave Brubeck Quartet will appear there in the second event of the series on Friday evening and Duke Ellington's Orchestra will be heard next Sunday evening.

Highlights of this summer's series will include a performance of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble In Tahiti," which the After Dinner Opera Company will give at the Barn on Saturday afternoon, July 19, at 3:30. Another featured event is to be an unusual program on Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, when jazz drummer Max Roach will be the soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony. Roach is a member of the faculty of the School of Jazz.

SERIES: $7.50, $5.00—Box (8 seats)—$75.00
SINGLE: $3.00, $2.00—GENERAL ADMISSION $1.00
TICKETS AT: LOOMIS, MA 4-9833 . D. D. SMITH, UN 5-1101

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958

BERKSHIRE BOAST

A Partisan of a Famous Massachusetts Resort County Finds it Unexcelled

By MARGERY DOUGLAS

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—If all of the pleasantest features of inland New England could be wrapped in one conveniently sized package, the result would strongly resemble Massachusett's Berkshire County.

This statement may cause a mass rising of blood presure in some other well-favored areas and may even move some natives to take down great-grandfather's Civil War musket from over the fireplace. But the county's ninety woodland lakes, 274 trout streams and more than 80,000 acres of state forest preserves provide strong backing for such a claim.

Those who prefer the sea are welcome to drive on to any of the five New England state seacoasts. And those who point to the pine forests of Maine, the White Mountains of New Hampshire and the Green Mountains of Vermont have strong arguments. But it does not alter the fact that the Berkshires represent a fair sample package of all of the inland virtues of the region.

Provided winter snows are abundant, the Berkshires furnish a year-round vacationland. For just as the ski slopes are getting bare, the trout streams are in full rush. And when the shadows grow longer toward the end of August, brilliant fall foliage draws thousands of motorists until frost settles in again.

Comparative Molehill

Skiing, of course, means hills and the Berkshires have these in abundance. Mount Greylock, the highest peak, is 3,491 feet. This would not be much more than a molehill among the Rockies. But it is outstanding in the terrain of this area.

From Bartholomew's Cobble, a jagged limestone outcropping overlooking the Housatonic River to the south, to the picturesque college town of Williamstown to the north, the Berkshires are dotted with the wide, elm-vaulted streets of its villages and sweeping vistas of surrounding countryside.

Williams College is the principal center of academic culture in the region. But summer brings the Berkshire Music Festival to Tanglewood in Lenox, where the Boston Symphony Orchestra spends the season, and Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival to Becket.

Tanglewood programs this summer will include Bach on July 4, 5 and 6; Mozart, July 11-13; Brahms, July 18-20; Debussy and Ravel, July 25-27; Wagner, Aug. 1-3, and Beethoven, Aug. 8-10. Among the numerous attractions at near-by Music Barn will be Dave Brubeck, July 4; Duke Ellington, July 6; Mahalia Jackson, July 27; the Modern Jazz Quartet, Aug. 3; George Shearing, Aug. 10; and a School of Jazz benefit concert on Aug. 30.

Additional accommodations are available for 150 guests this year with the acquisition by Music Inn of Wheatleigh, a majestic old house that was formerly a private home.

Not too far away is Williamstown, site of the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute, representing five decades of collecting paintings, sculpture, rare silver, furniture and china.

The Adams Memorial Theatre, on the college campus and air-conditioned, is opening its fourth season of summer productions. They include two dramas and six comedies directed by Nikos Psacharopoules of the Yale School of Drama, presented by the Williamstown Theatre Foundation, Inc.

Another summer theatre, the Berkshire Playhouse, will be opening its twenty-seventh season at Stockbridge, with William Miles, director. For foreign and American movies, the Little Cinema at Pittsfield has nightly performances through the summer.

Six Motor Tours

The Berkshire Hills Conference, with headquarters at 50 South Street, Pittsfield, can furnish detailed information about the region. It distributes a road map outlining six motor tours of the county.

State Route 23, crossing the southern quadrant, covers part of the trail used by Maj. Gen. Henry Knox and his troops during the American Revolution. In the winter of 1775-76, they hauled cannon captured from the British at Fort Ticonderoga to the support of colonial troops in Boston.

The largest state forest in the Commonwealth is October Mountain. It is situated in the central Berkshires. Many hiking and bridle trails are found in its 14,000 acres. There is a new camping area available at the west side of the forest, three miles from Lenox. The best approaches are along U. S. 20 from either Lenox or East Lee.

June vacationists may see New England's largest azalea fields in the Pittsfield state forest. They are reachable by hard-surfaced road on Berry Mountain in the Taconic area.

New Express Link

Motor highways to the area include the New York Thruway, the Taconic Parkway or U. S. 7. The Massachusetts Turnpike to eastern New England begins at West Stockbridge. An express link with the New York Thruway is under construction.

Lodgings range all the way from modest guest homes to hotels and motels. The rates begin around $50 a week. Many places furnish baby-sitting service for those who want to visit theatres in the evening or pursue other activities.

[246]

TRAVEL and Resorts

Tips for July

by MARJORY HALL

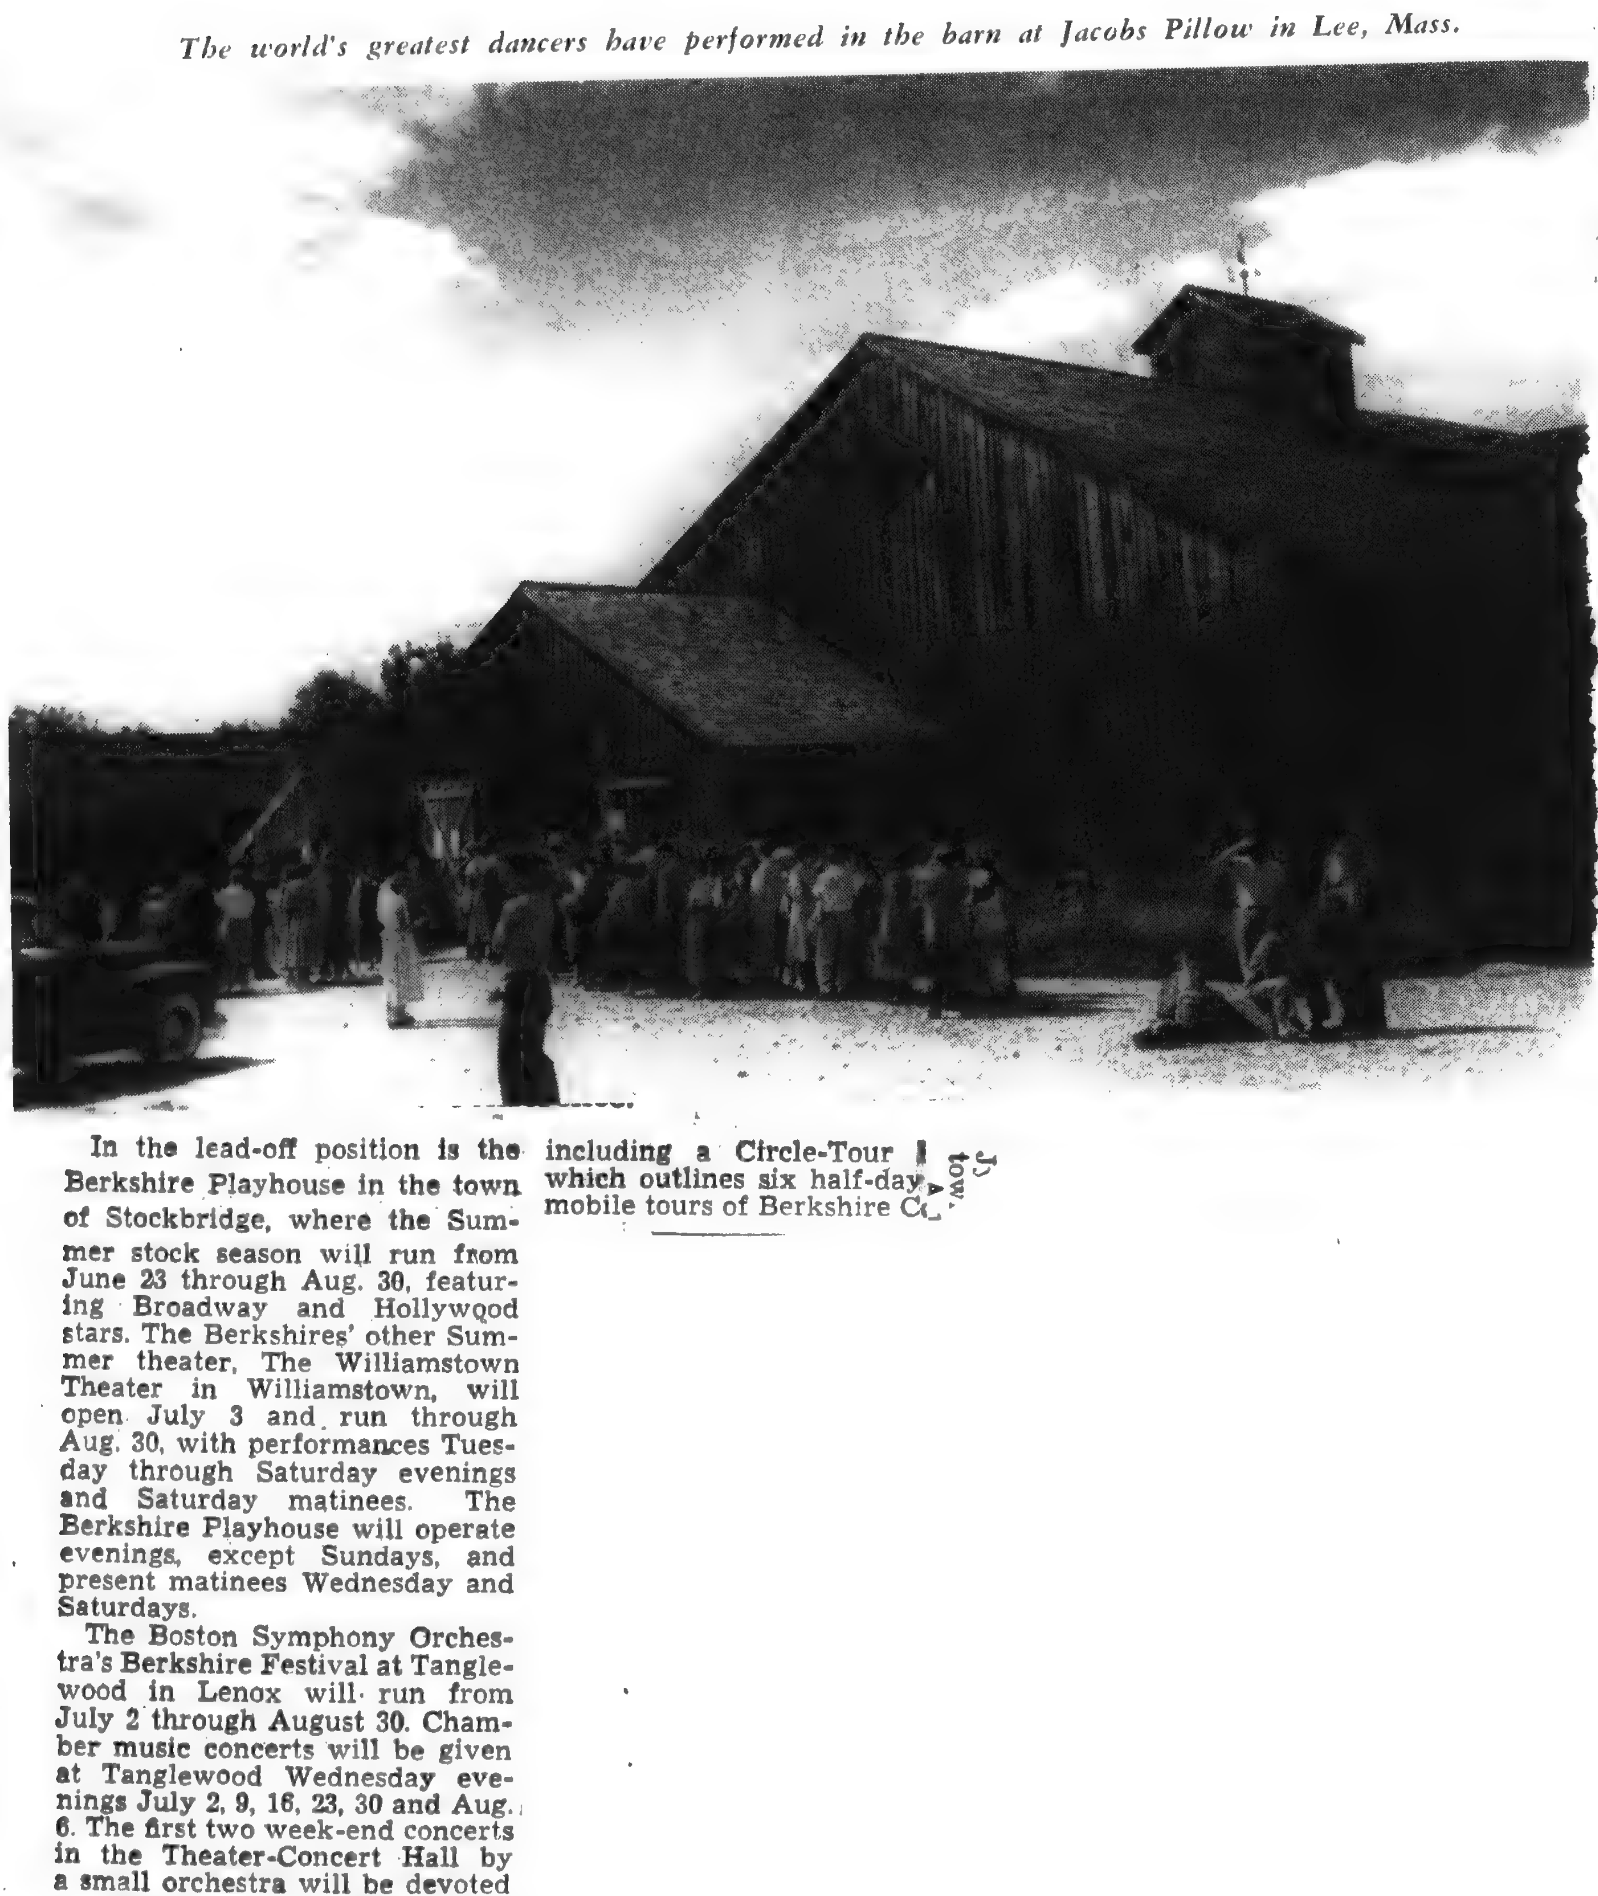
THE SUMMER MONTHS STIR UP ALL sorts of activity in the Berkshires, making it a mecca for lovers of music and of the dance particularly. At Tanglewood, in Lenox, The Boston Symphony Orchestra will follow the successful pattern of last season, with each weekend finding the works of a great composer featured. This year Bach is scheduled for July 4th, 5th, 6th; Mozart, July 11th, 12th, 13th; Brahms, July 18th, 19th, 20th; Debussy and Ravel, July 25th, 26th, 27th; Wag-

tween tours has become the site of a major event in New England summers, as well as of the accompanying school where varied dance techniques are taught. The school has brought on a colony of log cabins and dormitories, with a new (fifteen-year-old) theatre in which to stage the performances that are now given nightly, in season, instead of the modest once-a-week schedule that existed at the start.

Mr. Shawn himself possessed of in-

Jean Leon Destine leaps high into the air during the Jacobs Pillow Dance Festival.

The world's greatest dancers have performed in the barn at Jacobs Pillow in Lee, Mass.



In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the Summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other Summer theater, The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesday and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through August 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two week-end concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Each week-end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June [illegible] at Jacob's Pillow in Becket. [illegible] the first week-end the Pillow schedule calls for matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and matinees Friday and Saturday. For the following six weeks there will be matinees Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and evening performances Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The last two weeks of the season Mr. Shawn will offer matinee and evening performances Fridays and Saturdays.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox wil open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p.m. Special mid-week concerts will be held Wednesdays or Thursdays. Music Barn features national headliners in the fields of jazz and folk music.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South st., Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night. The Conference will send, on request, informational brochures on Berkshire attractions, including a Circle-Tour which outlines six half-day mobile tours of Berkshire C

---

de field
. 50 South conference
e a circle tlines and ns for six ools of nat-
ric interest

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUN 29 1958

MUSIC

The first program in the Wednesday evening chamber music series is also scheduled for this week and the concert will mark the first Tanglewood appearance of the Budapest Quartet. The celebrated string ensemble will offer the following program which is to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 on Wednesday evening: Haydn's Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2

Conductor Charles Munch, who arrived back in this country or few days ago after filling some podium assignments in his native Strasbourg, will conduct the great majority of the festival's concerts. Pierre Monteux, the great French conductor who has played a guest role at Tanglewood for some years, will conduct four of this summer's programs.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center may attend free of charge any of the many student concerts scheduled for this season. Membership in this group is open to any individual who makes a donation for the work of the school.

Keith Wilson, A Busy Clarinetist

It would seem that Keith Wilson, Yale Band leader and first clarinetist of the New Haven Symphony, has a busy summer ahead. Not only is he serving as the director of Yale's Norfolk Music School this season but his performing schedule is a demanding one. Wilson is, of course, performing in some of the Norfolk programs and as stated above, he will be a guest artist in the Starlight Festival here.

Word just received concerning the Berkshire String Quartet's series at Music Mountain, Fall's Village, this summer has further news of Wilson's activities. He is to be the guest artist in the group's opening concert this afternoon at 4, when he will be heard with the string players in Mozart's Clarinet Quintet. The balance of the program will consist of Haydn's C major Quartet, Op. 54, and the Quartet in D major, by Mendelssohn.

Bershire Quartet At Music Mountain

The Berkshire Quartet, which has been in residence at Music Mountain each summer for a number of years, has just returned from a tour of Lebanon and the Middle East. The group will present concerts every Sunday afternoon, as usual, with a number of guest artists assisting during this season. The guest list includes such notables as Benny Goodman, Richard Dyer-Bennett, and Frank Glazer.

The Berkshires have truly become a "music mountain" in recent years and the locale for every type of music from symphony to jazz. In the latter category, there is the series of concerts sponsored by the School of Jazz, located in Lenox, not far from the Berkshire Festival grounds. This series will commence its fourth season this evening at 8:30 with a Barbershop Quartet Festival in the Berkshire Music Barn. The celebrated Dave Brubeck Quartet will appear there in the second event of the series on Friday evening and Duke Ellington's Orchestra will be heard next Sunday evening.

Highlights of this summer's series will include a performance of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble In Tahiti," which the After Dinner Opera Company will give at the Barn on Saturday afternoon, July 19, at 3:30. Another featured event is to be an unusual program on Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, when jazz drummer Max Roach will be the soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony. Roach is a member of the faculty of the School of Jazz.

SERIES: $7.50, $5.00—Box (8 seats)—$75.00
SINGLE: $3.00, $2.00—GENERAL ADMISSION $1.00
TICKETS AT: LOOMIS, MA 4-9833 . D. D. SMITH, UN 5-1101

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958

BERKSHIRE BOAST

A Partisan of a Famous Massachusetts Resort County Finds it Unexcelled

By MARGERY DOUGLAS

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—If all of the pleasantest features of inland New England could be wrapped in one conveniently sized package, the result would strongly resemble Massachusett's Berkshire County.

This statement may cause a mass rising of blood presure in some other well-favored areas and may even move some natives to take down great-grandfather's Civil War musket from over the fireplace. But the county's ninety woodland lakes, 274 trout streams and more than 80,000 acres of state forest preserves provide strong backing for such a claim.

Those who prefer the sea are welcome to drive on to any of the five New England state seacoasts. And those who point to the pine forests of Maine, the White Mountains of New Hampshire and the Green Mountains of Vermont have strong arguments. But it does not alter the fact that the Berkshires represent a fair sample package of all of the inland virtues of the region.

Provided winter snows are abundant, the Berkshires furnish a year-round vacationland. For just as the ski slopes are getting bare, the trout streams are in full rush. And when the shadows grow longer toward the end of August, brilliant fall foliage draws thousands of motorists until frost settles in again.

Comparative Molehill

Skiing, of course, means hills and the Berkshires have these in abundance. Mount Greylock, the highest peak, is 3,491 feet. This would not be much more than a molehill among the Rockies. But it is outstanding in the terrain of this area.

From Bartholomew's Cobble, a jagged limestone outcropping overlooking the Housatonic River to the south, to the picturesque college town of Williamstown to the north, the Berkshires are dotted with the wide, elm-vaulted streets of its villages and sweeping vistas of surrounding countryside.

Williams College is the principal center of academic culture in the region. But summer brings the Berkshire Music Festival to Tanglewood in Lenox, where the Boston Symphony Orchestra spends the season, and Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival to Becket.

Tanglewood programs this summer will include Bach on July 4, 5 and 6; Mozart, July 11-13; Brahms, July 18-20; Debussy and Ravel, July 25-27; Wagner, Aug. 1-3, and Beethoven, Aug. 8-10. Among the numerous attractions at near-by Music Barn will be Dave Brubeck, July 4; Duke Ellington, July 6; Mahalia Jackson, July 27; the Modern Jazz Quartet, Aug. 3; George Shearing, Aug. 10; and a School of Jazz benefit concert on Aug. 30.

Additional accommodations are available for 150 guests this year with the acquisition by Music Inn of Wheatleigh, a majestic old house that was formerly a private home.

Not too far away is Williamstown, site of the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute, representing five decades of collecting paintings, sculpture, rare silver, furniture and china.

The Adams Memorial Theatre, on the college campus and air-conditioned, is opening its fourth season of summer productions. They include two dramas and six comedies directed by Nikos Psacharopoulos of the Yale School of Drama, presented by the Williamstown Theatre Foundation, Inc.

Another summer theatre, the Berkshire Playhouse, will be opening its twenty-seventh season at Stockbridge, with William Miles, director. For foreign and American movies, the Little Cinema at Pittsfield has nightly performances through the summer.

Six Motor Tours

The Berkshire Hills Conference, with headquarters at 50 South Street, Pittsfield, can furnish detailed information about the region. It distributes a road map outlining six motor tours of the county.

State Route 23, crossing the southern quadrant, covers part of the trail used by Maj. Gen. Henry Knox and his troops during the American Revolution. In the winter of 1775-76, they hauled cannon captured from the British at Fort Ticonderoga to the support of colonial troops in Boston.

The largest state forest in the Commonwealth is October Mountain. It is situated in the central Berkshires. Many hiking and bridle trails are found in its 14,000 acres. There is a new camping area available at the west side of the forest, three miles from Lenox. The best approaches are along U. S. 20 from either Lenox or East Lee.

June vacationists may see New England's largest azalea fields in the Pittsfield state forest. They are reachable by hard-surfaced road on Berry Mountain in the Taconic area.

New Express Link

Motor highways to the area include the New York Thruway, the Taconic Parkway or U. S. 7. The Massachusetts Turnpike to eastern New England begins at West Stockbridge. An express link with the New York Thruway is under construction.

Lodgings range all the way from modest guest homes to hotels and motels. The rates begin around $50 a week. Many places furnish baby-sitting service for those who want to visit theatres in the evening or pursue other activities.

B

Jean Leon Destine leaps high into the air during the Jacobs Pillow Dance Festival.

The world's greatest dancers have performed in the barn at Jacobs Pillow in Lee, Mass.

TRAVEL and Resorts

Tips for July

by MARJORY HALL

THE SUMMER MONTHS STIR UP ALL sorts of activity in the Berkshires, making it a mecca for lovers of music and of the dance particularly. At Tanglewood, in Lenox, The Boston Symphony Orchestra will follow the successful pattern of last season, with each weekend finding the works of a great composer featured. This year Bach is scheduled for July 4th, 5th, 6th; Mozart, July 11th, 12th, 13th; Brahms, July 18th, 19th, 20th; Debussy and Ravel, July 25th, 26th, 27th; Wagner, August 1st, 2nd, 3rd; and Beethoven August 8th, 9th, 10th. In addition to this sketchy outline for the six weekends of concerts, there will be performances of significant contemporary works and choral works, as well as six Chamber Music Concerts to be given on Wednesday evenings during the Festival season. As usual, important soloists and conductors will be on hand. For ticket information, write the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

As famous as Tanglewood and important in its own field, is the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in nearby Lee. Begun in a barn twenty-six years ago, the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival has become the largest, longest, and most comprehensive dance festival in the world. Jacob's Pillow took its name from a huge boulder on the estate where the project came into being, just off the road know as Jacob's Ladder. It was due entirely to the genius, energy and diligence of one man, Ted Shawn, that a spot bought by him for resting between tours has become the site of a major event in New England summers, as well as of the accompanying school where varied dance techniques are taught. The school has brought on a colony of log cabins and dormitories, with a new (fifteen-year-old) theatre in which to stage the performances that are now given nightly, in season, instead of the modest once-a-week schedule that existed at the start.

Mr. Shawn, himself possessed of indomitable spirit and apparently inexhaustible energy, traveled to Europe to select dancers and dance companies to perform at his Festival on the occasions of its silver jubilee last year, and the Festival enjoys, along with Mr. Shawn himself, an international reputation. This year the school, the University of the Dance, opens on June 30th and runs through August 30th, its faculty distinguished, its 'menu' rich and varied. The Festival, opening July 1st, features seven performances a week for six weeks, then in what is called a 'post-Tanglewood' three-week period, concentrates on only four performances, matinee and evening on Fridays and Saturdays. The program is divided between ballet, modern dance and ethnic dance, with now and then a big company taking up the entire week's program.

This season's Festival is filled with excitement and studded with famous names. In the first week the performances feature Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Dance Company, and

---

June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other Summer theater, The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesday and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through August 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two week-end concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Each week-end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June [illegible] at Jacob's Pillow in Becket. [illegible] the first week-end the Pillow schedule calls for matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and matinees Friday and Saturday. For the following six weeks there will be matinees Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and evening performances Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The last two weeks of the season Mr. Shawn will offer matinee and evening performances Fridays and Saturdays.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox wil open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p.m. Special mid-week concerts will be held Wednesdays or Thursdays. Music Barn features national headliners in the fields of jazz and folk music.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South st., Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night. The Conference will send, on request, informational brochures on Berkshire attractions.

---

[246]

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUN 29 1958

MUSIC

The first program in the Wednesday evening chamber music series is also scheduled for this week and the concert will mark the first Tanglewood appearance of the Budapest Quartet. The celebrated string ensemble will offer the following program which is to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 on Wednesday evening: Haydn's Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2

Conductor Charles Munch, who arrived back in this country or few days ago after filling some podium assignments in his native Strasbourg, will conduct the great majority of the festival's concerts. Pierre Monteux, the great French conductor who has played a guest role at Tanglewood for some years, will conduct four of this summer's programs.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center may attend free of charge any of the many student concerts scheduled for this season. Membership in this group is open to any individual who makes a donation for the work of the school.

Keith Wilson, A Busy Clarinetist

It would seem that Keith Wilson, Yale Band leader and first clarinetist of the New Haven Symphony, has a busy summer ahead. Not only is he serving as the director of Yale's Norfolk Music School this season but his performing schedule is a demanding one. Wilson is, of course, performing in some of the Norfolk programs and as stated above, he will be a guest artist in the Starlight Festival here.

Word just received concerning the Berkshire String Quartet's series at Music Mountain, Fall's Village, this summer has further news of Wilson's activities. He is to be the guest artist in the group's opening concert this afternoon at 4, when he will be heard with the string players in Mozart's Clarinet Quintet. The balance of the program will consist of Haydn's C major Quartet, Op. 54, and the Quartet in D major, by Mendelssohn.

Bershire Quartet At Music Mountain

The Berkshire Quartet, which has been in residence at Music Mountain each summer for a number of years, has just returned from a tour of Lebanon and the Middle East. The group will present concerts every Sunday afternoon, as usual, with a number of guest artists assisting during this season. The guest list includes such notables as Benny Goodman, Richard Dyer-Bennett, and Frank Glazer.

The Berkshires have truly become a "music mountain" in recent years and the locale for every type of music from symphony to jazz. In the latter category, there is the series of concerts sponsored by the School of Jazz, located in Lenox, not far from the Berkshire Festival grounds. This series will commence its fourth season this evening at 8:30 with a Barbershop Quartet Festival in the Berkshire Music Barn. The celebrated Dave Brubeck Quartet will appear there in the second event of the series on Friday evening and Duke Ellington's Orchestra will be heard next Sunday evening.

Highlights of this summer's series will include a performance of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble In Tahiti," which the After Dinner Opera Company will give at the Barn on Saturday afternoon, July 19, at 3:30. Another featured event is to be an unusual program on Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, when jazz drummer Max Roach will be the soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony. Roach is a member of the faculty of the School of Jazz.

SERIES: $7.50, $5.00—Box (8 seats)—$75.00
SINGLE: $3.00, $2.00—GENERAL ADMISSION $1.00
TICKETS AT: LOOMIS, MA 4-9833 · D. D. SMITH, UN 5-1101

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958

BERKSHIRE BOAST

A Partisan of a Famous Massachusetts Resort County Finds it Unexcelled

By MARGERY DOUGLAS

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—If all of the pleasantest features of inland New England could be wrapped in one conveniently sized package, the result would strongly resemble Massachusett's Berkshire County.

This statement may cause a mass rising of blood presure in some other well-favored areas and may even move some natives to take down great-grandfather's Civil War musket from over the fireplace. But the county's ninety woodland lakes, 274 trout streams and more than 80,000 acres of state forest preserves provide strong backing for such a claim.

Those who prefer the sea are welcome to drive on to any of the five New England state seacoasts. And those who point to the pine forests of Maine, the White Mountains of New Hampshire and the Green Mountains of Vermont have strong arguments. But it does not alter the fact that the Berkshires represent a fair sample package of all of the inland virtues of the region.

Provided winter snows are abundant, the Berkshires furnish a year-round vacationland. For just as the ski slopes are getting bare, the trout streams are in full rush. And when the shadows grow longer toward the end of August, brilliant fall foliage draws thousands of motorists until frost settles in again.

Comparative Molehill

Skiing, of course, means hills and the Berkshires have these in abundance. Mount Greylock, the highest peak, is 3,491 feet. This would not be much more than a molehill among the Rockies. But it is outstanding in the terrain of this area.

From Bartholomew's Cobble, a jagged limestone outcropping overlooking the Housatonic River to the south, to the picturesque college town of Williamstown to the north, the Berkshires are dotted with the wide, elm-vaulted streets of its villages and sweeping vistas of surrounding countryside.

Williams College is the principal center of academic culture in the region. But summer brings the Berkshire Music Festival to Tanglewood in Lenox, where the Boston Symphony Orchestra spends the season, and Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival to Becket.

Tanglewood programs this summer will include Bach on July 4, 5 and 6; Mozart, July 11-13; Brahms, July 18-20; Debussy and Ravel, July 25-27; Wagner, Aug. 1-3, and Beethoven, Aug. 8-10. Among the numerous attractions at near-by Music Barn will be Dave Brubeck, July 4; Duke Ellington, July 6; Mahalia Jackson, July 27; the Modern Jazz Quartet, Aug. 3; George Shearing, Aug. 10; and a School of Jazz benefit concert on Aug. 30.

Additional accommodations are available for 150 guests this year with the acquisition by Music Inn of Wheatleigh, a majestic old house that was formerly a private home.

Not too far away is Williamstown, site of the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute, representing five decades of collecting paintings, sculpture, rare silver, furniture and china.

The Adams Memorial Theatre, on the college campus and air-conditioned, is opening its fourth season of summer productions. They include two dramas and six comedies directed by Nikos Psacharopoulos of the Yale School of Drama, presented by the Williamstown Theatre Foundation, Inc.

Another summer theatre, the Berkshire Playhouse, will be opening its twenty-seventh season at Stockbridge, with William Miles, director. For foreign and American movies, the Little Cinema at Pittsfield has nightly performances through the summer.

Six Motor Tours

The Berkshire Hills Conference, with headquarters at 50 South Street, Pittsfield, can furnish detailed information about the region. It distributes a road map outlining six motor tours of the county.

State Route 23, crossing the southern quadrant, covers part of the trail used by Maj. Gen. Henry Knox and his troops during the American Revolution. In the winter of 1775-76, they hauled cannon captured from the British at Fort Ticonderoga to the support of colonial troops in Boston.

The largest state forest in the Commonwealth is October Mountain. It is situated in the central Berkshires. Many hiking and bridle trails are found in its 14,000 acres. There is a new camping area available at the west side of the forest, three miles from Lenox. The best approaches are along U. S. 20 from either Lenox or East Lee.

June vacationists may see New England's largest azalea fields in the Pittsfield state forest. They are reachable by hard-surfaced road on Berry Mountain in the Taconic area.

New Express Link

Motor highways to the area include the New York Thruway, the Taconic Parkway or U. S. 7. The Massachusetts Turnpike to eastern New England begins at West Stockbridge. An express link with the New York Thruway is under construction.

Lodgings range all the way from modest guest homes to hotels and motels. The rates begin around $50 a week. Many places furnish baby-sitting service for those who want to visit theatres in the evening or pursue other activities.

[246]

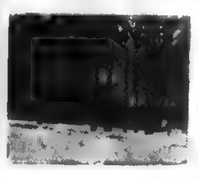
SEVEN SOUTH STREET
The Inn
"Rockport on Cape Ann"
Massachusetts

A gracious old New England Inn—with secluded gardens—accommodating approximately 28 guests. Serving Breakfast and Dinner in a quiet friendly atmosphere. Near beach and village.

Open for our Twenty-first Season

MRS. HAROLD H. SARGENT
TEL. KINGSWOOD 6-6708

HISTORIC OLD DICKINSON-BAGGS TAVERN, 1772



Now a private residence, has a few rooms for tourists. Reservations desirable.

Telephone: Alpine 3-2225

MRS. JOHN C. BROWN
6 South East Street Amherst, Mass.

Shrimathi Gina. July 8th finds Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline moving on stage, as well as Donald Sadler and Company, and Lotte Goslar. The week of July 15th Geoffrey Holder's Company performs Dances of Trinidad and the Caribbean, Ram Gopal represents India, Sahomi Tachibana Japan. The fourth week is taken over by the Ximinez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company; the fifth by the Atlantic Civic Ballet, and Mata and Hari will be on hand too. (August events we'll list in the next issue.) Performances: Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday at 9:00 p.m., Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 4:00 p.m.

Over the strenuous and successful years, Mr. Shawn can point with pride to many a sharp contrast. The man who was paralyzed, as a result of diphtheria, when he was eighteen has become the foremost male artist of the dance in this country. He once ate fifteen-cent lunches and slept, on tour, in roadside cabins—and two years later was entertained at the Jubilee of King George V while he and his touring com-

Enjoy Transcendental Atmosphere Where RUSSELL BLAKE HOWE
Recreates Music of Beethoven, Chopin and Liszt

Participate in the Finest of Foods for Lunch or Dinner in the very Lofts Where Sails Were Made for World Girdling Ships and have a Sea Gull's View of Historic Boston Harbor at the tip of Colorful Old T Wharf — Oldest Boston at Its Best. Refreshing sea breezes and glorious sunsets.

Foot of State Street—Atlantic Subway Station
OPEN EVERY DAY, INCLUDING SUNDAYS, FROM 12 to 8 P. M
FOR RESERVATIONS TEL. LA 3-8719—AMPLE PARKING

Blue Ship Tea Room

Seawood Cottages and Ocean Court Apartments On The Ocean Front Located on Nantucket Sound, Private Beach
Equipped for housekeeping. Special pre and post season rates. Also guest rooms. Boats furnished.
Bass River, Cape Cod, Mass.

LITTLE GEM
Guest cottage, near beach and town. Double rooms, $40.00 per week. Fine restaurants nearby.
MRS. VIRGINIA GREENLEAF
57 Mill Road Falmouth, Mass.

Sunday Register
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 104,169

JUN 29 1958

MUSIC

The first program in the Wednesday evening chamber music series is also scheduled for this week and the concert will mark the first Tanglewood appearance of the Budapest Quartet. The celebrated string ensemble will offer the following program which is to be given in the Theater-Concert Hall at 8:30 on Wednesday evening: Haydn's Quartet in D major ("The Lark"); Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7; Beethoven's Quartet in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2

Conductor Charles Munch, who arrived back in this country a few days ago after filling some podium assignments in his native Strasbourg, will conduct the great majority of the festival's concerts. Pierre Monteux, the great French conductor who has played a guest role at Tanglewood for some years, will conduct four of this summer's programs.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center may attend free of charge any of the many student concerts scheduled for this season. Membership in this group is open to any individual who makes a donation for the work of the school.

Keith Wilson, A Busy Clarinetist

It would seem that Keith Wilson, Yale Band leader and first clarinetist of the New Haven Symphony, has a busy summer ahead. Not only is he serving as the director of Yale's Norfolk Music School this season but his performing schedule is a demanding one. Wilson is, of course, performing in some of the Norfolk programs and as stated above, he will be a guest artist in the Starlight Festival here.

Word just received concerning the Berkshire String Quartet's series at Music Mountain, Fall's Village, this summer has further news of Wilson's activities. He is to be the guest artist in the group's opening concert this afternoon at 4, when he will be heard with the string players in Mozart's Clarinet Quintet. The balance of the program will consist of Haydn's C major Quartet, Op. 54, and the Quartet in D major, by Mendelssohn.

Bershire Quartet At Music Mountain

The Berkshire Quartet, which has been in residence at Music Mountain each summer for a number of years, has just returned from a tour of Lebanon and the Middle East. The group will present concerts every Sunday afternoon, as usual, with a number of guest artists assisting during this season. The guest list includes such notables as Benny Goodman, Richard Dyer-Bennett, and Frank Glazer.

The Berkshires have truly become a "music mountain" in recent years and the locale for every type of music from symphony to jazz. In the latter category, there is the series of concerts sponsored by the School of Jazz, located in Lenox, not far from the Berkshire Festival grounds. This series will commence its fourth season this evening at 8:30 with a Barbershop Quartet Festival in the Berkshire Music Barn. The celebrated Dave Brubeck Quartet will appear there in the second event of the series on Friday evening and Duke Ellington's Orchestra will be heard next Sunday evening.

Highlights of this summer's series will include a performance of Leonard Bernstein's "Trouble In Tahiti," which the After Dinner Opera Company will give at the Barn on Saturday afternoon, July 19, at 3:30. Another featured event is to be an unusual program on Tuesday evening, Aug. 5, when jazz drummer Max Roach will be the soloist with the percussion section of the Boston Symphony. Roach is a member of the faculty of the School of Jazz.

TICKETS AT: LOOMIS, MA 4-9833 . D. D. SMITH, UN 5-1101
SINGLE: $3.00, $2.00—GENERAL ADMISSION $1.00
SERIES: $7.50, $5.00—Box (8 seats)—$75.00

SUMMER ATTRACTIONS

Berkshire Hills Theater Music and Dance Dates

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—Dates for six of the major Summer attractions in the Berkshire Hill have been announced by John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference.

In the lead-off position is the Berkshire Playhouse in the town of Stockbridge, where the Summer stock season will run from June 23 through Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other Summer theater, The Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open July 3 and run through Aug. 30, with performances Tuesday through Saturday evenings and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will operate evenings, except Sundays, and present matinees Wednesday and Saturdays.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox will run from July 2 through August 30. Chamber music concerts will be given at Tanglewood Wednesday evenings July 2, 9, 16, 23, 30 and Aug. 6. The first two week-end concerts in the Theater-Concert Hall by a small orchestra will be devoted to the music of Bach and Mozart and will be conducted by the Boston Symphony director, Charles Munch.

Guest conductor Pierre Monteux will share the concerts with Dr. Munch, conducting one concert weekly during the last four weeks of the season. During the last four weeks the concerts will be by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000-seat Music Shed. Each week-end will feature the works of the great composers, including Brahms (July 18-20), Debussy and Ravel (July 25-27), Wagner (Aug. 1-3), and Beethoven (Aug. 8-10).

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will open its 26th season June [illegible] at Jacob's Pillow in Becket. [illegible] the first week-end the Pillow schedule calls for matinees Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and matinees Friday and Saturday. For the following six weeks there will be matinees Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays and evening performances Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays. The last two weeks of the season Mr. Shawn will offer matinee and evening performances Fridays and Saturdays.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox wil open its season June 29 and operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturdays at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sundays at 8:30 p.m. Special mid-week concerts will be held Wednesdays or Thursdays. Music Barn features national headliners in the fields of jazz and folk music.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South st., Pittsfield, Mass., will handle room reservations for stays of more than one night. The Conference will send, on request, informational brochures on Berkshire attractions, including a Circle-Tour which outlines six half-day mobile tours of Berkshire C

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958

BERKSHIRE BOAST

A Partisan of a Famous Massachusetts Resort County Finds it Unexcelled

By MARGERY DOUGLAS

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—If all of the pleasantest features of inland New England could be wrapped in one conveniently sized package, the result would strongly resemble Massachusett's Berkshire County.

This statement may cause a mass rising of blood presure in some other well-favored areas and may even move some natives to take down great-grandfather's Civil War musket from over the fireplace. But the county's ninety woodland lakes, 274 trout streams and more than 80,000 acres of state forest preserves provide strong backing for such a claim.

Those who prefer the sea are welcome to drive on to any of the five New England state seacoasts. And those who point to the pine forests of Maine, the White Mountains of New Hampshire and the Green Mountains of Vermont have strong arguments. But it does not alter the fact that the Berkshires represent a fair sample package of all of the inland virtues of the region.

Provided winter snows are abundant, the Berkshires furnish a year-round vacationland. For just as the ski slopes are getting bare, the trout streams are in full rush. And when the shadows grow longer toward the end of August, brilliant fall foliage draws thousands of motorists until frost settles in again.

Comparative Molehill

Skiing, of course, means hills and the Berkshires have these in abundance. Mount Greylock, the highest peak, is 3,491 feet. This would not be much more than a molehill among the Rockies. But it is outstanding in the terrain of this area.

From Bartholomew's Cobble, a jagged limestone outcropping overlooking the Housatonic River to the south, to the picturesque college town of Williamstown to the north, the Berkshires are dotted with the wide, elm-vaulted streets of its villages and sweeping vistas of surrounding countryside.

Williams College is the principal center of academic culture in the region. But summer brings the Berkshire Music Festival to Tanglewood in Lenox, where the Boston Symphony Orchestra spends the season, and Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival to Becket.

Tanglewood programs this summer will include Bach on July 4, 5 and 6; Mozart, July 11-13; Brahms, July 18-20; Debussy and Ravel, July 25-27; Wagner, Aug. 1-3, and Beethoven, Aug. 8-10. Among the numerous attractions at near-by Music Barn will be Dave Brubeck, July 4; Duke Ellington, July 6; Mahalia Jackson, July 27; the Modern Jazz Quartet, Aug. 3; George Shearing, Aug. 10; and a School of Jazz benefit concert on Aug. 30.

Additional accommodations are available for 150 guests this year with the acquisition by Music Inn of Wheatleigh, a majestic old house that was formerly a private home.

Not too far away is Williamstown, site of the Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute, representing five decades of collecting paintings, sculpture, rare silver, furniture and china.

The Adams Memorial Theatre, on the college campus and air-conditioned, is opening its fourth season of summer productions. They include two dramas and six comedies directed by Nikos Psacharopoulos of the Yale School of Drama, presented by the Williamstown Theatre Foundation, Inc.

Another summer theatre, the Berkshire Playhouse, will be opening its twenty-seventh season at Stockbridge, with William Miles, director. For foreign and American movies, the Little Cinema at Pittsfield has nightly performances through the summer.

Six Motor Tours

The Berkshire Hills Conference, with headquarters at 50 South Street, Pittsfield, can furnish detailed information about the region. It distributes a road map outlining six motor tours of the county.

State Route 23, crossing the southern quadrant, covers part of the trail used by Maj. Gen. Henry Knox and his troops during the American Revolution. In the winter of 1775-76, they hauled cannon captured from the British at Fort Ticonderoga to the support of colonial troops in Boston.

The largest state forest in the Commonwealth is October Mountain. It is situated in the central Berkshires. Many hiking and bridle trails are found in its 14,000 acres. There is a new camping area available at the west side of the forest, three miles from Lenox. The best approaches are along U. S. 20 from either Lenox or East Lee.

June vacationists may see New England's largest azalea fields in the Pittsfield state forest. They are reachable by hard-surfaced road on Berry Mountain in the Taconic area.

New Express Link

Motor highways to the area include the New York Thruway, the Taconic Parkway or U. S. 7. The Massachusetts Turnpike to eastern New England begins at West Stockbridge. An express link with the New York Thruway is under construction.

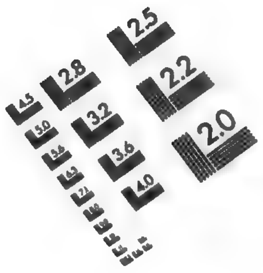
Lodgings range all the way from modest guest homes to hotels and motels. The rates begin around $50 a week. Many places furnish baby-sitting service for those who want to visit theatres in the evening or pursue other activities.

REDUCTION
RATIO
18x

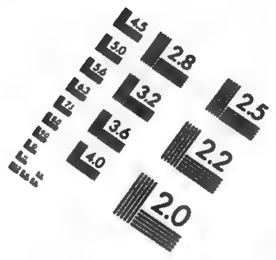
2.5 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

2.0 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.5 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

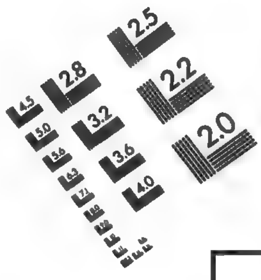


2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

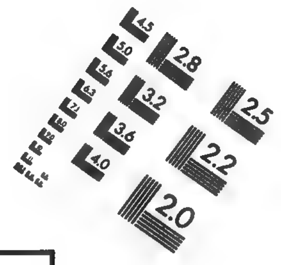


2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

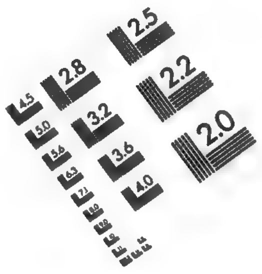
PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC



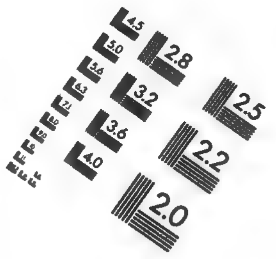
2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0



2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0



2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

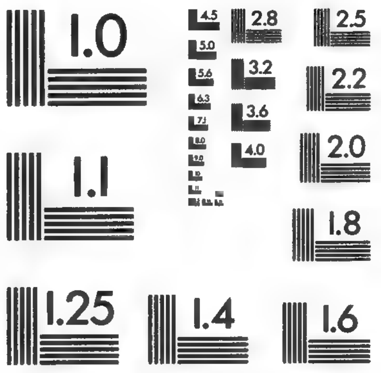


2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

200 mm

150 mm

100 mm



1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0
5.6
6.3
7.1

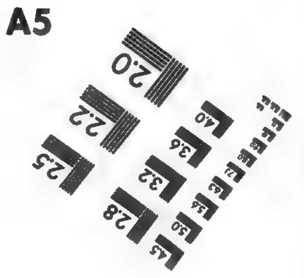
1.0 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.5 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

2.0 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

2.5 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

A5

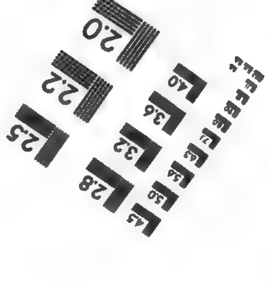


2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

A4

A3

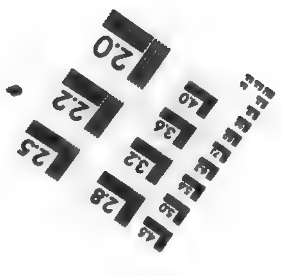


2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century
A&P
1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119



2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

4.5 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

3.5 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

3.0 mm ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

[247]

B. Eagle - June 28 '58

Berkshire Summer Calendar

Music, From Classic to Jazz, Summer Theaters and the Dance

HOW TO GET THERE: TANGLEWOOD, on Route 183 between Stockbridge (via Routes 102 and 183) and Lenox (via Route 183 from center of town); SOUTH MOUNTAIN, on Route 7 just south of Pittsfield; MUSIC MOUNTAIN, off Route 7 in Falls Village, Conn; BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, off Route 7 on Route 102 near center of Stockbridge; MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, on Route 66 between Chatham and Pittsfield-Albany Road (Route 20); WILLIAMSTOWN SUMMER THEATER, on Main Street in Williamstown; BERKSHIRE MUSIC BARN, southeast of Tanglewood between Routes 7 and 183; SHARON PLAYHOUSE, just off Main Street in Sharon, Conn., on Route 4 toward Amenia; COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, near Latham Circle, N.Y., off Route 9 on road to Cohoes.

Sunday

Monday

Tuesday

Wednesday

June 29

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Barbershop Quartets: the Buffalo Bills, the Tangle Aires, the Valley Four, the Clip Chords

Malden Bridge Playhouse

7:00—"Visit to a Small Planet"

Jacob's Pillow

4:00—Dance Appreciation Course: John Lindquist and Ted Shawn, "Pictorial History of Jacob's Pillow"

8:30—Dance Appreciation Course: Ann Hutchinson, "How Dance Is Written," with demonstration

Colonie Musical Theater

8:00—"Damn Yankees" (Final Performance)

Music Mountain

4:00—Berkshire String Quartet

Soloist: Keith Wilson, clarinet

Quartet in C major, Op. 54, No. 2 — Haydn

Quintet for Clarinet and Strings in A major, K. 581 — Mozart

Quartet in D. major, Op. 44, No. 1 — Mendelssohn

Cummington School of the Arts

4:00—Benefit concert for Village Congregational Church, with Prescott Barrows, pianist; Roberta Cowell, soprano; Nathan Gottschalk, violin

June 30

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"Separate Tables," with Eleanor Wilson, Beatrice Maude, Paula Bauersmith, and Barbara Brady

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"The Thieves' Carnival"

July 1

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"Monique"

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky in Classic Ballet pas de deux. Pauline Koner and Dance Company. Shrimathi Gina.

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"Silk Stockings"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Separate Tables"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival"

July 2

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Budapest String Quartet. Chamber Music Concert

Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5 — Haydn

Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 — Bartok

Quartet No. 8 in E minor — Beethoven

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45, "Separate Tables"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Silk Stockings"

July 6

Tanglewood

10:00—Chamber Music Hall. BMC Chamber Music Groups (Friends)

2:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Conductor: G. Wallace Woodworth

B minor Mass — Bach

Soloists: Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Duke Ellington and his Orchestra

Jacob's Pillow

8:30—A Dance Appreciation Course: Shrimathi Gina, "Dances of India," with demonstration

Cummington School of the Arts

3:30—Song recital of works by Schumann, Duke and Ravel, with Dorothy Stahl, Louise Rood, Harold Stroul. John Duke, Vincent Kulak

Music Mountain

4:00—Berkshire String Quartet

Quartet in C minor, Op. 18, No. 4 — Beethoven

Quartet in E flat major, Op. 74 — Beethoven

Quartet in C major, Op. 59, No. 3 — Beethoven

CONTINUING

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 7:00: "Monique" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:00: "Silk Stockings" (Final Performance)

July 7

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"The Matchmaker," with William Swan, Theodore Tenley, Leonore Landau, and Sorrell Booke

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"The Happy Time"

CONTINUING

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

July 8

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"King of Hearts"

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline in Classic Ballet pas de deux. Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova. Lotte Goslar.

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"Happy Hunting"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

July 9

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Chamber Music Concert, Beaux Arts Trio of New York

Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1 — Beethoven

Trio in D minor, Op. 120 — Fauré

Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66 — Mendelssohn

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova. Lotte Goslar

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Happy Hunting"

July 13

Tanglewood

10:00—Chamber Music Hall. BMC Chamber Music Groups (Friends)

2:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Haffner Symphony — Mozart

Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467 — Mozart

Soloist: Seymour Lipkin

Kyrie, K. 341; Graduale, K. 273; Mass, K. 317 — Mozart

Conductor: Hugh Ross

8:30—Chamber Music Hall. Composer's Forum (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Lionel Hampton and Orchestra

Jacob's Pillow

8:30—A Dance Appreciation Course: Sahomi Tachibana, "Dances of Japan," with demonstration

Cummington School of the Arts

3:30—Chamber music concert

CONTINUING

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 7:00: "King of Hearts" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:00: "Happy Hunting" (Final Performance)

July 14

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. A concert of Contemporary Chamber Music under the Auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation (Friends)

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"The Cocktail Party," with Deirdre Owens

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"Visit to a Small Planet"

July 15

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Tanglewood Choir (Friends)

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"Bullfight"

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"Inherit the Wind"

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana.

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"Kiss Me Kate"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

July 16

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Chamber Music Concert. New York Pro Musica Antiqua

Music of Flanders and Spain

Works of Isaac, Des Pres, Morales, and others

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Bullfight"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 20

Tanglewood

10:00—Chamber Music Hall. BMC Chamber Music Groups (Friends)

2:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Pierre Monteux

Academic Festival Overture — Brahms

Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor — Brahms

Soloist: Leon Fleisher

Petrouchka — Stravinski

8:30—Chamber Music Hall. Composer's Forum (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Wilbur de Paris and his New Orleans Jazz Band

Jacob's Pillow

8:30—A Dance Appreciation Course: Carola Goya and Matteo, "Dances of Spain," with demonstration

Cummington School of the Arts

3:30—Chamber music concert

CONTINUING

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 7:00: "Inherit the Wind"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:00: "Kiss Me Kate" (Final Performance)

July 21

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Opera (Friends)

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"The Mousetrap"

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"Bus Stop"

July 22

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"Time Remembered"

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"Inherit the Wind" (Held from previous week)

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"The King and I"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

July 23

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Chamber Music Concert. Adele Addison, Soprano.

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Time Remembered"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

July 27

Tanglewood

10:00—Chamber Music Hall. BMC Chamber Music Groups (Friends)

2:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Music for Strings, Percussion, and Celesta — Bartok

"Daphnis and Chloe" 2nd Suite — Ravel

Violin Concerto — Tchaikovsky

Soloist: Zino Francescatti

8:30—Chamber Music Hall. Composer's Forum (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Bobby Hackett and his Quartet

Jacob's Pillow

8:30—A Dance Appreciation Course: Anatole Chujoy, "Regional Ballet After Two Years"

Cummington School of the Arts

3:30—Chamber music concert

CONTINUING

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 7:00: "Inherit the Wind" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:00: "The King and I"

July 28

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Opera. (Friends)

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"Noah"

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"Misalliance"

July 29

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Tanglewood Choir

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Dakota Staton

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"No Time for Sergeants"

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"A Hole in the Head"

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"The King and I" (Held from previous week)

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Noah"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

July 30

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. The Kroll Quartet. Chamber Music Concert

Quartet in C major, K. 465 — Mozart

Quartet No. 1 — Blackwood

Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1 — Brahms

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "Noah"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

Thursday

Friday

Saturday

July 3

anglewood

:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

illiamstown Theater

:40—"The Madwoman of Chaillot," with Mildred Dunnock

CONTINUING

ERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Separate Tables"

ALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

ACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina

HARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival"

OLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Silk Stockings"

July 4

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 — Bach

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—The Dave Brubeck Quartet

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Separate Tables"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:45: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Silk Stockings"

July 5

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Piano Concerto in D minor — Bach

Soloist: Lukas Foss

The Art of the Fugue

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—Odetta and Her Guitar

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "Separate Tables" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina. (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "Silk Stockings"

July 10

Tanglewood

:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

:30—West Indian Night

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, Lotte Goslar

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Happy Hunting"

July 11

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Musical Joke K. 522 — Mozart

Sinfonia Concertante — Mozart

Soloists: Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale

"Linz" symphony, No. 36, in C major — Mozart

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Rumpelstiltskin," Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WLLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, Lotte Goslar

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40; "Happy Hunting"

July 12

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Eine Kleine Nachtmusik (Two-piano Concerto, K. 365) — Mozart

Soloists: Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss

Serenade No. 10 in B flat for Winds — Mozart

Symphony No. 40 in G minor — Mozart

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—Afternoon of Jazz with Poetry, featuring: The Tony Scott Quintet and Poet Langston Hughes

Sharon Playhouse

2:30—For Children, "Space Adventureland," with Joan Lemmo and Lee Howard

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Matchmaker" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot" (Final Performances)

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, Lotte Goslar (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "Happy Hunting"

July 17

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Bullfight"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana.

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 18

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16 — Brahms

Variations for Orchestra — Copland

Symphony No. 4 — Brahms

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Rumpelstiltskin," Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

South Mountain

3:00—The New York Harp Trio

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Bullfight"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana.

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 19

Tanglewood

10:00—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Open rehearsal

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Koussevitzky Memorial Concert

Requiem — Brahms

Hilde Gueden, Soprano

Donald Gramm, Baritone

Festival Chorus

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—"Trouble in Tahiti" by Leonard Bernstein. The After Dinner Opera Company

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Cocktail Party" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "Bullfight" (Final Performances)

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana. (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 24

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Anita O'Day and Trio

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Time Remembered"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

July 25

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Pierre Monteux

"Russlan and Ludmilla" Ov. — Glinka

Symphony No. 4 — Tchaikovsky

Three Nocturnes — Debussy

La Valse — Ravel

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Pinocchio," Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Time Remembered"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

July 26

Tanglewood

10:00—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Open rehearsal

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Agon — Stravinsky

Piano Concerto No. 3 — Rachmaninoff

La Mer — Debussy

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—Marais and Miranda, folksingers

Sharon Playhouse

2:30—For Children, "The Beggar Boy in Baghdad"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Mousetrap" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "Time Remembered" (Final Performances)

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "The King and I"

July 31

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Stan Rubin and the Tiger Town Five

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Noah"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

August 1

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" — Wagner

Siegfried Idyll; Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" — Wagner

Viola Concerto — Piston

Immolation Scene — Wagner

Margaret Harshaw: Soprano

Joseph de Pasquale: Viola

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Pinocchio," Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Noah"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

August 2

Tanglewood

10:00—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Open rehearsal

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

"Tannhauser" Overture and Bacchanale — Wagner

Piano Concerto No. 1 in E flat — Liszt

Soloist: Leonard Pennario

Symphony No. 8 — Vaughan Williams

Siegfried's Rhine Journey — Wagner

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—Tom Lehrer

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "Noah" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants" (Final Performances)

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

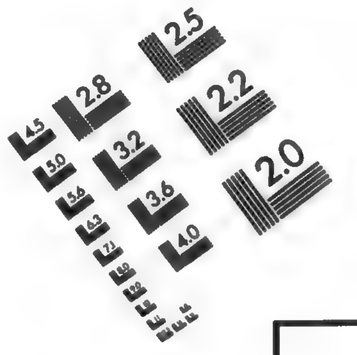
JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari. (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance" (Final Performance)

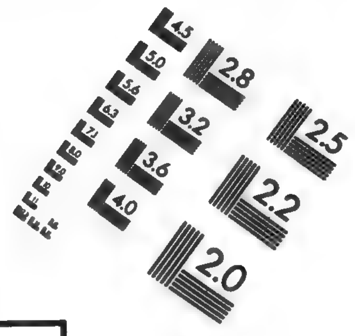
COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "The King and I"

REDUCTION
RATIO
14x

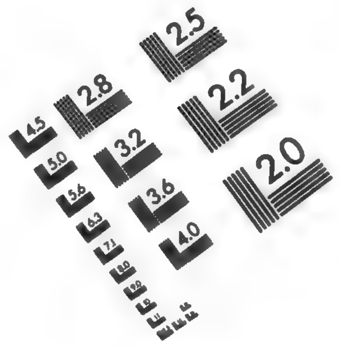
PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC



2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0
5.6



2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0



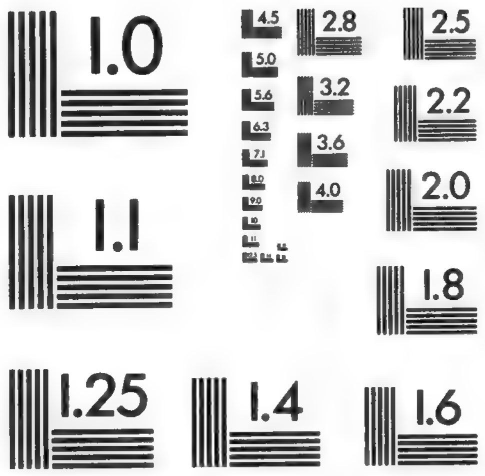
2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0
5.6

2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0
5.6

200 mm

150 mm

100 mm



1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0
5.6
6.3
7.1
8.0

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

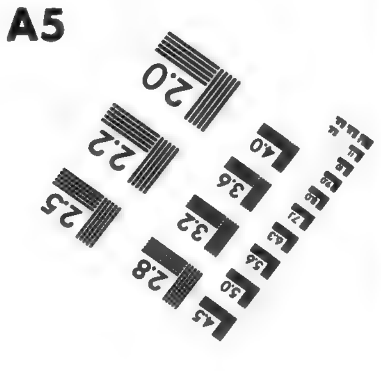
1.0 mm

1.5 mm

2.0 mm

2.5 mm

A5

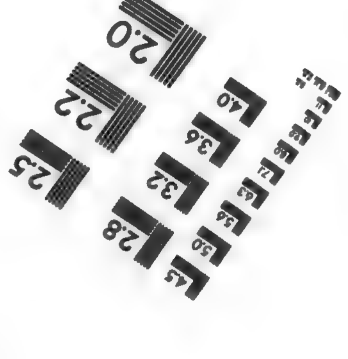


2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

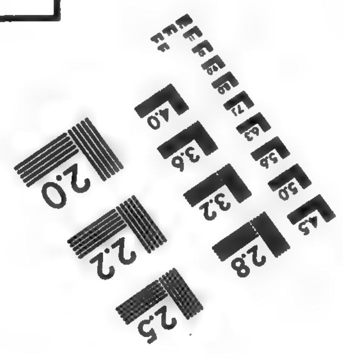
2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

A4

A3



2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0



2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
4.0
4.5
5.0

PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century
A&P
1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119

[247]

B. Eagle – June 28 '58

Berkshire Summer Calendar

Music, From Classic to Jazz, Summer Theaters and the Dance

HOW TO GET THERE: TANGLEWOOD, on Route 183 betw center of town); SOUTH MOUNTAIN, on Route 7 just south BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, off Route 7 on Route 102 near ce
tween Chatham and Pittsfield-Albany Road (Route 20); W
BERKSHIRE MUSIC BARN, southeast of Tanglewood betwe
Sharon, Conn., on Route 4 toward Amenia; COLONIE MUSI

Sunday — Monday — Tuesday — Wednesday — Thursday — Friday

June 29

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Barbershop Quartets: the Buffalo Bills, the Tangle Aires, the Valley Four, the Clip Chords

Malden Bridge Playhouse

7:00—"Visit to a Small Planet"

Jacob's Pillow

4:00—Dance Appreciation Course: John Lindquist and Ted Shawn, "Pictorial History of Jacob's Pillow"

8:30—Dance Appreciation Course: Ann Hutchinson, "How Dance Is Written," with demonstration

Colonie Musical Theater

8:00—"Damn Yankees" (Final Performance)

Music Mountain

4:00—Berkshire String Quartet

Soloist: Keith Wilson, clarinet

Quartet in C major, Op. 54, No. 2 — Haydn

Quintet for Clarinet and Strings in A major, K. 581 — Mozart

Quartet in D. major, Op. 44, No. 1 — Mendelssohn

Cummington School of the Arts

4:00—Benefit concert for Village Congregational Church, with Prescott Barrows, pianist; Roberta Cowell, soprano; Nathan Gottschalk, violin

June 30

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"Separate Tables," with Eleanor Wilson, Beatrice Maude, Paula Bauersmith, and Barbara Brady

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"The Thieves' Carnival"

July 1

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"Monique"

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky in Classic Ballet pas de deux. Pauline Koner and Dance Company. Shrimathi Gina.

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"Silk Stockings"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Separate Tables"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival"

July 2

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Budapest String Quartet. Chamber Music Concert

Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5 — Haydn

Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 — Bartok

Quartet No. 8 in E minor — Beethoven

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45, "Separate Tables"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Silk Stockings"

July 3

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"The Madwoman of Chaillot," with Mildred Dunnock

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Separate Tables"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Silk Stockings"

July 4

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Co
Music (Friends)

8:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestr
tor: Charles Munch
Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—The Dave Brubeck Quartet

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Separa

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:45: "The
of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Mia
André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Shrimathi Gina

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Silk

July 6

Tanglewood

10:00—Chamber Music Hall. BMC Chamber Music Groups (Friends)

2:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. Conductor: G. Wallace Woodworth

B minor Mass — Bach

Soloists: Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, Donald Gramm

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Duke Ellington and his Orchestra

Jacob's Pillow

8:30—A Dance Appreciation Course: Shrimathi Gina, "Dances of India," with demonstration

Cummington School of the Arts

3:30—Song recital of works by Schumann, Duke and Ravel, with Dorothy Stahl, Louise Rood, Harold Stroul, John Duke, Vincent Kulak

Music Mountain

4:00—Berkshire String Quartet

Quartet in C minor, Op. 18, No. 4 — Beethoven

Quartet in E flat major, Op. 74 — Beethoven

Quartet in C major, Op. 59, No. 3 — Beethoven

CONTINUING

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 7:00: "Monique" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:00: "Silk Stockings" (Final Performance)

July 7

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"The Matchmaker," with William Swan, Theodore Tenley, Leonore Landau, and Sorrell Booke

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"The Happy Time"

CONTINUING

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

July 8

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"King of Hearts"

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline in Classic Ballet pas de deux. Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova. Lotte Goslar.

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"Happy Hunting"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

July 9

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Chamber Music Concert, Beaux Arts Trio of New York

Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1 — Beethoven

Trio in D minor, Op. 120 — Fauré

Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66 — Mendelssohn

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova. Lotte Goslar

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Happy Hunting"

July 10

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—West Indian Night

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, Lotte Goslar

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Happy Hunting"

July 11

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Co
Music (Friends)

8:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestr
tor: Charles Munch
Musical Joke K. 522
Sinfonia Concertante
Soloists: Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pas
"Linz" symphony, No. 36, in C major

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Rump
Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Ma

WLLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The
of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45:
Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Tania K
Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company
Karnilova, Lotte Goslar

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40; "H ing"

July 13

Tanglewood

10:00—Chamber Music Hall. BMC Chamber Music Groups (Friends)

2:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Haffner Symphony — Mozart

Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467 — Mozart

Soloist: Seymour Lipkin

Kyrie, K. 341; Graduale, K. 273; Mass, K. 317 — Mozart

Conductor: Hugh Ross

8:30—Chamber Music Hall. Composer's Forum (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Lionel Hampton and Orchestra

Jacob's Pillow

8:30—A Dance Appreciation Course: Sahomi Tachibana, "Dances of Japan," with demonstration

Cummington School of the Arts

3:30—Chamber music concert

CONTINUING

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 7:00: "King of Hearts" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:00: "Happy Hunting" (Final Performance)

July 14

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. A concert of Contemporary Chamber Music under the Auspices of the Fromm Music Foundation (Friends)

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"The Cocktail Party," with Deirdre Owens

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"Visit to a Small Planet"

July 15

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Tanglewood Choir (Friends)

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"Bullfight"

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"Inherit the Wind"

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana.

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"Kiss Me Kate"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

July 16

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Chamber Music Concert. New York Pro Musica Antiqua

Music of Flanders and Spain

Works of Isaac, Des Pres, Morales, and others

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Bullfight"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 17

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Bullfight"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana.

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 18

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Con
Music (Friends)

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. C
Charles Munch
Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16
Variations for Orchestra
Symphony No. 4

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Rumpel
Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

South Mountain

3:00—The New York Harp Trio

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Party"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Bullfig

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "I
Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Geoffre
and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachib

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to Planet"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Kiss

July 20

Tanglewood

10:00—Chamber Music Hall. BMC Chamber Music Groups (Friends)

2:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Pierre Monteux

Academic Festival Overture — Brahms

Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor — Brahms

Soloist: Leon Fleisher

Petrouchka — Stravinski

8:30—Chamber Music Hall. Composer's Forum (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Wilbur de Paris and his New Orleans Jazz Band

Jacob's Pillow

8:30—A Dance Appreciation Course: Carola Goya and Matteo, "Dances of Spain," with demonstration

Cummington School of the Arts

3:30—Chamber music concert

CONTINUING

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 7:00: "Inherit the Wind"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:00: "Kiss Me Kate" (Final Performance)

July 21

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Opera (Friends)

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"The Mousetrap"

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"Bus Stop"

July 22

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"Time Remembered"

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"Inherit the Wind" (Held from previous week)

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"The King and I"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

July 23

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Chamber Music Concert. Adele Addison, Soprano.

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Time Remembered"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

July 24

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Anita O'Day and Trio

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Time Remembered"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

July 25

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Cont
Music (Friends)

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. C
Pierre Monteux
"Russlan and Ludmilla" Ov.
Symphony No. 4 — Tc
Three Nocturnes
La Valse

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Pinocchio,"
Museum, Pittsfield

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Mou

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Time
bered"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "In Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "
and I"

July 27

Tanglewood

10:00—Chamber Music Hall. BMC Chamber Music Groups (Friends)

2:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Music for Strings, Percussion, and Celesta — Bartok

"Daphnis and Chloe" 2nd Suite — Ravel

Violin Concerto — Tchaikovsky

Soloist: Zino Francescatti

8:30—Chamber Music Hall. Composer's Forum (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Bobby Hackett and his Quartet

Jacob's Pillow

8:30—A Dance Appreciation Course: Anatole Chujoy, "Regional Ballet After Two Years"

Cummington School of the Arts

3:30—Chamber music concert

CONTINUING

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 7:00: "Inherit the Wind" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:00: "The King and I"

July 28

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Opera. (Friends)

Berkshire Playhouse

8:45—"Noah"

Sharon Playhouse

8:40—"Misalliance"

July 29

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Tanglewood Choir

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Dakota Staton

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"No Time for Sergeants"

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"A Hole in the Head"

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"The King and I" (Held from previous week)

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Noah"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

July 30

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. The Kroll Quartet. Chamber Music Concert

Quartet in C major, K. 465 — Mozart

Quartet No. 1 — Blackwood

Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1 — Brahms

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "Noah"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

July 31

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Stan Rubin and the Tiger Town Five

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Noah"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

August 1

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Cont
Music (Friends)

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. C
Charles Munch
Prelude to "Die Meistersinger"
Siegfried Idyll; Prelude and Love Death
"Tristan and Isolde"
Viola Concerto
Immolation Scene
Margaret Harshaw: Soprano
Joseph de Pasquale: Viola

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Pinocchio,"
Museum, Pittsfield

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Noah"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "No
Sergeants"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A
the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Atla
Ballet. Mata and Hari

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "
and I"

B. Eagle - June 28 '58

mmer Calendar

Summer Theaters and the Dance

HOW TO GET THERE: TANGLEWOOD, on Route 183 between Stockbridge (via Routes 102 and 183) and Lenox (via Route 183 from center of town); SOUTH MOUNTAIN, on Route 7 just south of Pittsfield; MUSIC MOUNTAIN, off Route 7 in Falls Village, Conn; BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, off Route 7 on Route 102 near center of Stockbridge; MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, on Route 66 between Chatham and Pittsfield-Albany Road (Route 20); WILLIAMSTOWN SUMMER THEATER, on Main Street in Williamstown; BERKSHIRE MUSIC BARN, southeast of Tanglewood between Routes 7 and 183; SHARON PLAYHOUSE, just off Main Street in Sharon, Conn., on Route 4 toward Amenia; COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, near Latham Circle, N.Y., off Route 9 on road to Cohoes.

Tuesday

July 1

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"Monique"

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky in Classic Ballet pas de deux. Pauline Koner and Dance Company. Shrimathi Gina.

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"Silk Stockings"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Separate Tables"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival"

July 8

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"King of Hearts"

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline in Classic Ballet pas de deux. Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova. Lotte Goslar.

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"Happy Hunting"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

July 15

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Tanglewood Choir (Friends)

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"Bullfight"

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"Inherit the Wind"

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana.

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"Kiss Me Kate"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

July 22

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"Time Remembered"

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"Inherit the Wind" (Held from previous week)

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"The King and I"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

July 29

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Tanglewood Choir

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Dakota Staton

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"No Time for Sergeants"

Malden Bridge Playhouse

8:45—"A Hole in the Head"

Sharon Playhouse

4:00—Music Lecture by Charles Demarest

Jacob's Pillow

9:00—The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

Colonie Musical Theater

8:40—"The King and I" (Held from previous week)

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Noah"

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

Wednesday

July 2

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Budapest String Quartet. Chamber Music Concert

Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5 Haydn

Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7 Bartok

Quartet No. 8 in E minor Beethoven

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45, "Separate Tables"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Silk Stockings"

July 9

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Chamber Music Concert, Beaux Arts Trio of New York

Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1 Beethoven

Trio in D minor, Op. 120 Fauré

Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66 Mendelssohn

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova. Lotte Goslar

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Happy Hunting"

July 16

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Chamber Music Concert. New York Pro Musica Antiqua

Music of Flanders and Spain

Works of Isaac, Des Pres, Morales, and others

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Bullfight"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 23

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Chamber Music Concert. Adele Addison, Soprano.

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Time Remembered"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

July 30

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. The Kroll Quartet. Chamber Music Concert

Quartet in C major, K. 465 Mozart

Quartet No. 1 Blackwood

Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1 Brahms

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "Noah"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 9:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

Thursday

July 3

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Williamstown Theater

8:40—"The Madwoman of Chaillot," with Mildred Dunnock

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Separate Tables"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Silk Stockings"

July 10

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—West Indian Night

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, Lotte Goslar

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Happy Hunting"

July 17

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Bullfight"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana.

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 24

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Anita O'Day and Trio

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Time Remembered"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

July 31

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Berkshire Music Center Orchestra (Friends)

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—Stan Rubin and the Tiger Town Five

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Noah"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

Friday

July 4

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Suites Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 Bach

Berkshire Music Barn

8:30—The Dave Brubeck Quartet

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Separate Tables"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:45: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Silk Stockings"

July 11

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Musical Joke K. 522 Mozart

Sinfonia Concertante Mozart

Soloists: Ruth Posselt, Joseph de Pasquale

"Linz" symphony, No. 36, in C major Mozart

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Rumpelstiltskin," Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Matchmaker"

WLLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, Lotte Goslar

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40; "Happy Hunting"

July 18

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Serenade No. 2 in A, Op. 16 Brahms

Variations for Orchestra Copland

Symphony No. 4 Brahms

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Rumpelstiltskin," Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

South Mountain

3:00—The New York Harp Trio

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Cocktail Party"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Bullfight"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana.

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 25

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Pierre Monteux

"Russlan and Ludmilla" Ov. Glinka

Symphony No. 4 Tchaikovsky

Three Nocturnes Debussy

La Valse Ravel

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Pinocchio," Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "The Mousetrap"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "Time Remembered"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

August 1

Tanglewood

3:15—Chamber Music Hall. Seminar in Contemporary Music (Friends)

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" Wagner

Siegfried Idyll; Prelude and Love Death from "Tristan and Isolde" Wagner

Viola Concerto Piston

Immolation Scene Wagner

Margaret Harshaw: Soprano

Joseph de Pasquale: Viola

Pilgrim Productions

10:30 and 2:30—For Children, "Pinocchio," Berkshire Museum, Pittsfield

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Noah"

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance"

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 8:40: "The King and I"

Saturday

July 5

Tanglewood

8:30—Theater. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Piano Concerto in D minor Bach

Soloist: Lukas Foss

The Art of the Fugue

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—Odetta and Her Guitar

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "Separate Tables" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot"

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Monique"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Mia Slavenska, André Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Company, Shrimathi Gina. (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Thieves' Carnival" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "Silk Stockings"

July 12

Tanglewood

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Eine Kleine Nachtmusik (Two-piano Concerto, K. 365) Mozart

Soloists: Seymour Lipkin, Lukas Foss

Serenade No. 10 in B flat for Winds Mozart

Symphony No. 40 in G minor Mozart

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—Afternoon of Jazz with Poetry, featuring: The Tony Scott Quintet and Poet Langston Hughes

Sharon Playhouse

2:30—For Children, "Space Adventureland," with Joan Lemmo and Lee Howard

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Matchmaker" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "The Madwoman of Chaillot" (Final Performances)

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "King of Hearts"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Tania Karina, Oleg Sabline, Donald Sadler and Company with Maria Karnilova, Lotte Goslar (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "The Happy Time" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "Happy Hunting"

July 19

Tanglewood

10:00—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Open rehearsal

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Koussevitzky Memorial Concert

Requiem Brahms

Hilde Gueden, Soprano

Donald Gramm, Baritone

Festival Chorus

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—"Trouble in Tahiti" by Leonard Bernstein. The After Dinner Opera Company

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Cocktail Party" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "Bullfight" (Final Performances)

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: Geoffrey Holder and Company. Ram Gopal. Sahomi Tachibana. (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Visit to a Small Planet" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "Kiss Me Kate"

July 26

Tanglewood

10:00—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Open rehearsal

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

Agon Stravinsky

Piano Concerto No. 3 Rachmaninoff

La Mer Debussy

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—Marais and Miranda, folksingers

Sharon Playhouse

2:30—For Children, "The Beggar Boy in Baghdad"

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "The Mousetrap" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "Time Remembered" (Final Performances)

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "Inherit the Wind"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet Company (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Bus Stop" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "The King and I"

August 2

Tanglewood

10:00—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Open rehearsal

8:30—Shed. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Conductor: Charles Munch

"Tannhauser" Overture and Bacchanale Wagner

Piano Concerto No. 1 in E flat Liszt

Soloist: Leonard Pennario

Symphony No. 8 Vaughan Williams

Siegfried's Rhine Journey Wagner

Berkshire Music Barn

3:30—Tom Lehrer

CONTINUING

BERKSHIRE PLAYHOUSE, 2:30 and 8:45: "Noah" (Final Performances)

WILLIAMSTOWN THEATER, 2:40 and 8:40: "No Time for Sergeants" (Final Performances)

MALDEN BRIDGE PLAYHOUSE, 8:45: "A Hole in the Head"

JACOB'S PILLOW, 4:00 and 9:00: The Atlanta Civic Ballet. Mata and Hari. (Final Performances)

SHARON PLAYHOUSE, 8:40: "Misalliance" (Final Performance)

COLONIE MUSICAL THEATER, 6:00 and 9:30: "The King and I"

[248]

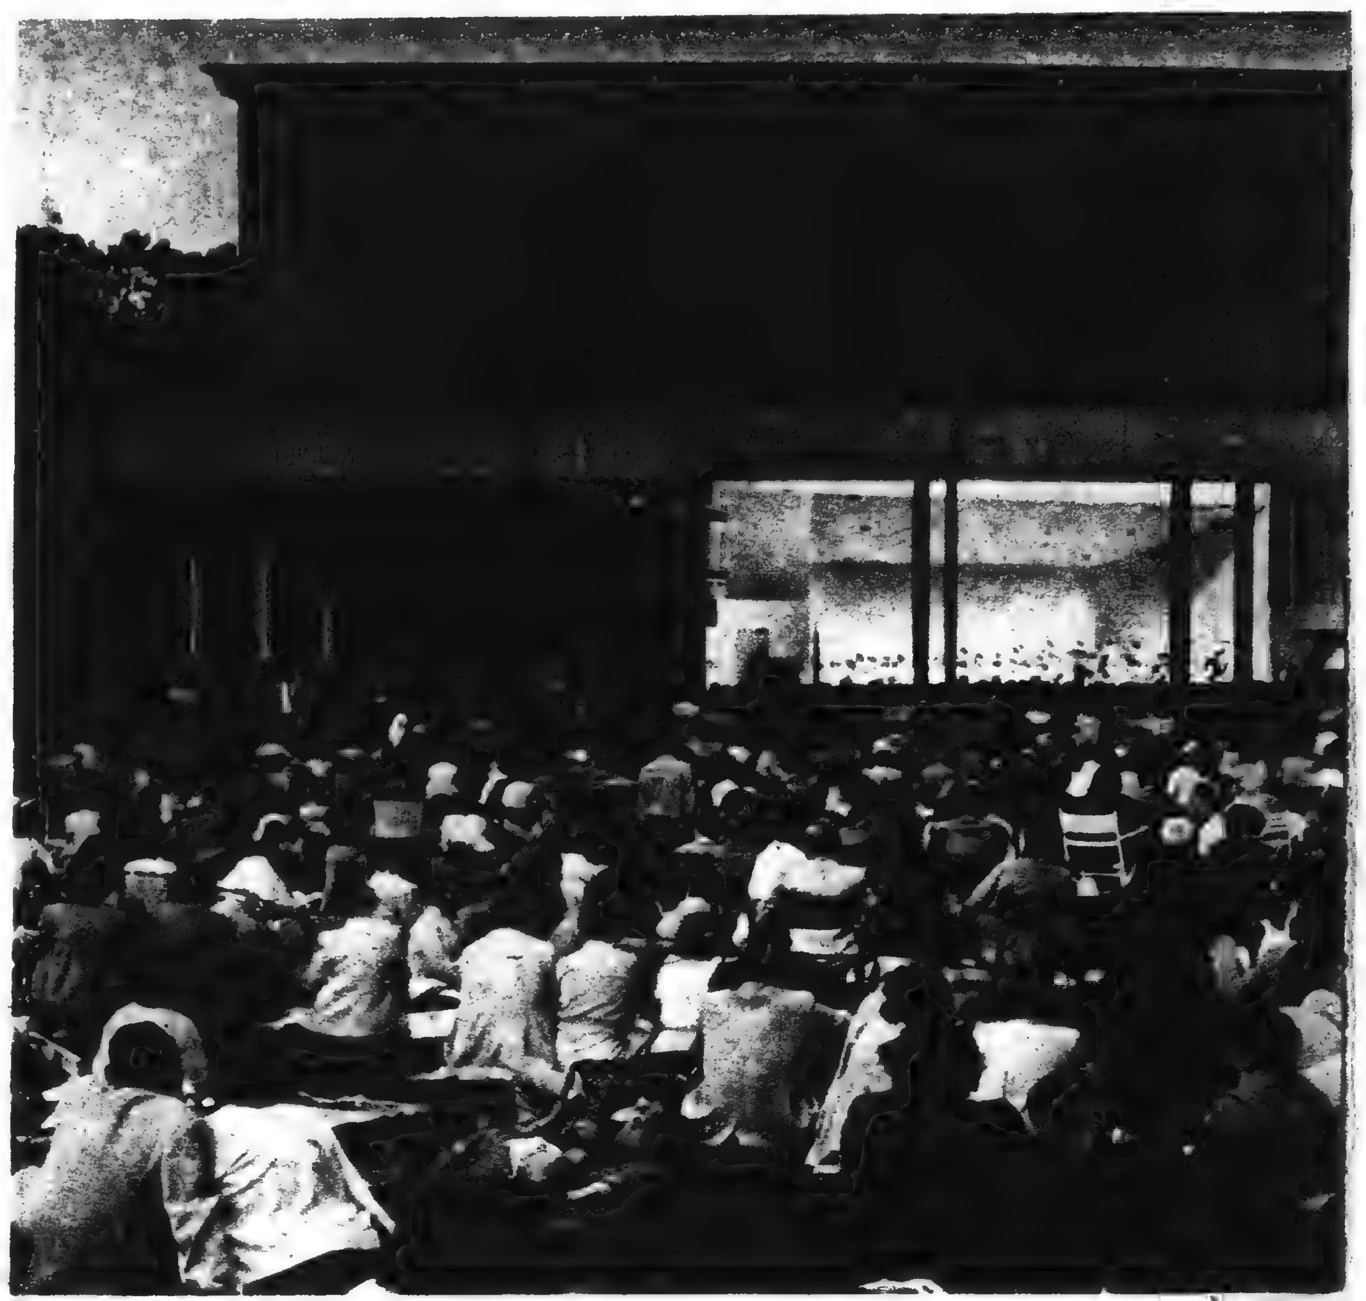
NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

AUG 10 1958

Summer Nights Filled With Festivals

ON A CAMPUS—Colleges, like Marlboro in Vermont, frequently provide the setting for summer music festivals. Young people preparing for careers as musicians study and perform with prominent artists like Rudolf Serkin in this converted barn on Marlboro's grounds.

ON A BARGE—Anchored on the Ohio River at Pittsburgh, this boat is the home of the American Wind Symphony. The symphony has commissioned works by such composers as Heitor Villa-Lobos, Robert Russell Bennett, Elie Siegmeister and George Kleinsinger.



IN A "SHED"—The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Massachusetts, is indisputably the "big daddy" of the summer music world in America. Here the Boston Symphony, led by Charles

ON A HILLTOP—Erected forty years ago by the late Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, a dedicated patroness of the arts, the Temple of Music offers chamber concerts for young people as well as adults on South Mountain in Pittsfield, Mass. Here grownups attend a recital.

CINCINNATI, OHIO
ENQUIRER
D. 205,461 S. 278,485

AUG 8 1958

Ballet A Trend?

It Replaces A Week Of Opera For Second Year In Row

By Arthur Darack
Enquirer Music Critic

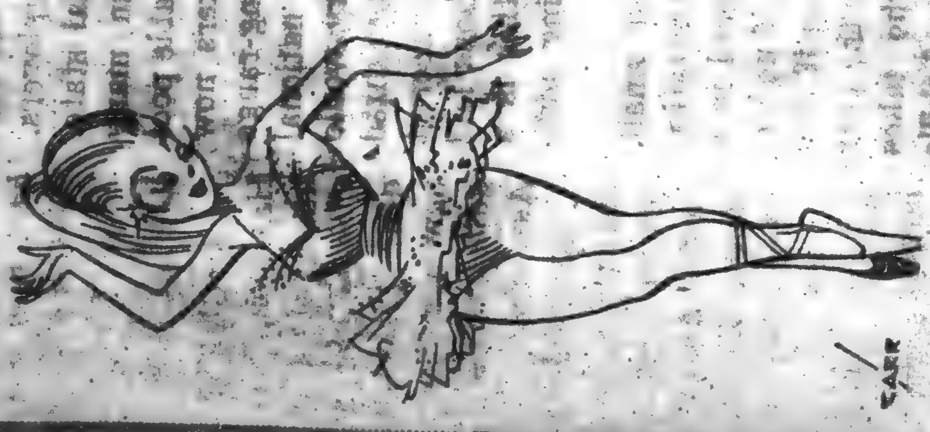
Just as Tanglewood is the summer operation of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Ravinia employs the Chicago Orchestra in a similar capacity, so the Zoo Opera is the summer occupation of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

In some ways, our operation is the most unusual of the three. It presents grand opera, the most expensive of entertainments, whereas Ravina and Tanglewood present concerts. Tanglewood has an opera school of renown, but it is an experimental theater, and it does not employ famous grand opera singers.

Now, in the forthcoming week, Summer Opera exchanges the ballerina for the prima donna—just as in the fifth week last season. Is this a trend?

BALLET costs less than opera and presents the possibility of lessening the deficit on the season. But Cincinnatians will not accept something merely because it is inexpensive. Perhaps somthing is in the wind.

The ideal, always distant but shining, has been to extend and improve the opera situation and gradually to increase the scope of the summer activity so as to present a diversified program in the manner of Ravinia, always retaining and making the opera the center of the plan. Ballet is a step in this direction.



Hamilton County and surrounding areas are populous enough so that an expanded summer music program is feasible. To be sure, we do not have the climate to attract tourists in pursuit of summer musical culture. We cannot pretend that we have idyllic beaches and cool temperatures. But tourists are not necessarily the solution. There are people enough within driving distance who will take advantage of first class artistic attractions other than opera.

Opera does not appeal to everyone interested in serious musical art. An expanded program of ballet, symphonic programs or unusual recitals, would attract the opera hater. Certainly it could count on the winter symphony patrons, especially if the programs brought interesting guest conductors or soloists.

THIS program is all a dream at the moment and it might turn out to be a failure, were it to be tried prematurely. It must be undertaken with great care and only if it does not interfere with the opera. But the ballet programs that have been substituted for the fifth week of opera are a step in this direction, even if they do subtract the usual extra two or three operas. What is needed is a plan to initiate a diversified program when it becomes apparent that such a program has the chance to succeed. In this way, Cincinnati will be able to say that it does have a summer music program of a magnitude and character appropriate to its reputation as a music center.

Meanwhile the ballet is at hand. Is it a sign of things to come?

[24P]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

AUG 10 1958

Summer Nights Filled With Festivals

ON A CAMPUS—Colleges, like Marlboro in Vermont, frequently provide the setting for summer music festivals. Young people preparing for careers as musicians study and perform with prominent artists like Rudolf Serkin in this converted barn on Marlboro's grounds.

IN A "SHED"—The Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Massachusetts, is indisputably the "big daddy" of the summer music world in America. Here the Boston Symphony, led by Charles

ON A BARGE—Anchored on the Ohio River at Pittsburgh, this boat is the home of the American Wind Symphony. The symphony has commissioned works by such composers as Heitor Villa-Lobos, Robert Russell Bennett, Elie Siegmeister and George Kleinsinger.

ON A HILLTOP—Erected forty years ago by the late Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, a dedicated patroness of the arts, the Temple of Music offers chamber concerts for young people as well as adults on South Mountain in Pittsfield, Mass. Here grownups attend a recital.

CINCINNATI, OHIO
ENQUIRER
D. 205.461 S. 278.485

AUG [illegible] 1958

Ballet A Trend?

It Replaces A Week Of Opera For Second Year In Row

By Arthur Darack
Enquirer Music Critic

Just as Tanglewood is the summer operation of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Ravinia employs the Chicago Orchestra in a similar capacity, so the Zoo Opera is the summer occupation of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

In some ways, our operation is the most unusual of the three. It presents grand opera, the most expensive of entertainments, whereas Ravina and Tanglewood present concerts. Tanglewood has an opera school of renown, but it is an experimental theater, and it does not employ famous grand opera singers.

Now, in the forthcoming week, Summer Opera exchanges the ballerina for the prima donna—just as in the fifth week last season. Is this a trend?

BALLET costs less than opera and presents the possibility of lessening the deficit on the season. But Cincinnatians will not accept something merely because it is inexpensive. Perhaps somthing is in the wind.

The ideal, always distant but shining, has been to extend and improve the opera situation and gradually to increase the scope of the summer activity so as to present a diversified program in the manner of Ravinia, always retaining and making the opera the center of the plan. Ballet is a step in this direction.

Hamilton County and surrounding areas are populous enough so that an expanded summer music program is feasible. To be sure, we do not have the climate to attract tourists in pursuit of summer musical culture. We cannot pretend that we have idyllic beaches and cool temperatures. But tourists are not necessarily the solution. There are people enough within driving distance who will take advantage of first class artistic attractions other than opera.

Opera does not appeal to everyone interested in serious musical art. An expanded program of ballet, symphonic programs or unusual recitals would attract the opera hater. Certainly it could count on the winter symphony patrons, especially if the programs brought interesting guest conductors or soloists.

THIS program is all a dream at the moment and it might turn out to be a failure, were it to be tried prematurely. It must be undertaken with great care and only if it does not interfere with the opera. But the ballet programs that have been substituted for the fifth week of opera are a step in this direction, even if they do subtract the usual extra two or three operas. What is needed is a plan to initiate a diversified program when it becomes apparent that such a program has the chance to succeed. In this way, Cincinnati will be able to say that it does have a summer music program of a magnitude and character appropriate to its reputation as a music center.

Meanwhile the ballet is at hand. Is it a sign of things to come?

[248]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

AUG 10 1958

FROM Anchorage, Alaska, to Miami Beach, Fla., America fills its summer [illegible] with music. The concerts, operas and dance recitals that once belonged wholly to winter and the indoors turn up in ever greater numbers now—on green hillsides, at river banks, in old barns, under tents and under the stars. The aspirations and achievements are high; few concessions are made to the heat. Santa Fe, N. M., saw last month the world premiere of Carlisle Floyd's opera, "Wuthering Heights," and Ellenville, N. Y., will witness on Aug. 21 the American debut of Ildebrando Pizzetti's opera, "Murder in the Cathedral," from T. S. Eliot's poetic drama. Here are some of the summer's festivals.—SEYMOUR PECK.

Munch, plays for 6,000 people in the shed, as well as many more thousands on the lawn outside. Tanglewood's Music Center also gives training to 400 rising new talents.

IN A TENT—In an old mining town high in the Colorado Rockies. the Aspen Music Festival attracts thousands of visitors from all over the U. S. This is the festival's ninth summer.

BALLET IN MASSACHUSETTS—The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet rehearses on an outdoor stage for its appearances at the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Lee, Mass. For two decades the festival, directed by Ted Shawn, has presented dancers of many lands.

DANCE IN CONNECTICUT—The renowned dancer-choreographer, José Limon, center, Betty Jones and Chester Wolenski prepare "Serenata," new composition by Limon to be seen at the American Dance Festival this week at Connecticut College in New London.

CINCINNATI, OHIO
ENQUIRER
D. 205,461 S. 278,485

AUG 9 1958

Ballet A Trend?

It Replaces A Week Of Opera For Second Year In Row

By Arthur Darack
Enquirer Music Critic

Just as Tanglewood is the summer operation of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Ravinia employs the Chicago Orchestra in a similar capacity, so the Zoo Opera is the summer occupation of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

In some ways, our operation is the most unusual of the three. It presents grand opera, the most expensive of entertainments, whereas Ravina and Tanglewood present concerts. Tanglewood has an opera school of renown, but it is an experimental theater, and it does not employ famous grand opera singers.

Now, in the forthcoming week, Summer Opera exchanges the ballerina for the prima donna—just as in the fifth week last season. Is this a trend?

BALLET costs less than opera and presents the possibility of lessening the deficit on the season. But Cincinnatians will not accept something merely because it is inexpensive. Perhaps somthing is in the wind.

The ideal, always distant but shining, has been to extend and improve the opera situation and gradually to increase the scope of the summer activity so as to present a diversified program in the manner of Ravinia, always retaining and making the opera the center of the plan. Ballet is a step in this direction.

Hamilton County and surrounding areas are populous enough so that an expanded summer music program is feasible. To be sure, we do not have the climate to attract tourists in pursuit of summer musical culture. We cannot pretend that we have idyllic beaches and cool temperatures. But tourists are not necessarily the solution. There are people enough within driving distance who will take advantage of first class artistic attractions other than opera.

Opera does not appeal to everyone interested in serious musical art. An expanded program of ballet, symphonic programs or unusual recitals, would attract the opera hater. Certainly it could count on the winter symphony patrons, especially if the programs brought interesting guest conductors or soloists.

THIS program is all a dream at the moment and it might turn out to be a failure, were it to be tried prematurely. It must be undertaken with great care and only if it does not interfere with the opera. But the ballet programs that have been substituted for the fifth week of opera are a step in this direction, even if they do subtract the usual extra two or three operas. What is needed is a plan to initiate a diversified program when it becomes apparent that such a program has the chance to succeed. In this way, Cincinnati will be able to say that it does have a summer music program of a magnitude and character appropriate to its reputation as a music center.

Meanwhile the ballet is at hand. Is it a sign of things to come?

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

AUG 10 1958

FROM Anchorage, Alaska, to Miami Beach, Fla., America fills its summer [illegible] with music. The concerts, operas and dance recitals that once belonged wholly to winter and the indoors turn up in ever greater numbers now—on green hillsides, at river banks, in old barns, under tents and under the stars. The aspirations and achievements are high; few concessions are made to the heat. Santa Fe, N. M., saw last month the world premiere of Carlisle Floyd's opera, "Wuthering Heights," and Ellenville, N. Y., will witness on Aug. 21 the American debut of Ildebrando Pizzetti's opera, "Murder in the Cathedral," from T. S. Eliot's poetic drama. Here are some of the summer festivals.—SEYMOUR PECK.

Munch, plays for 6,000 people in the shed, as well as many more thousands on the lawn outside. Tanglewood's Music Center also gives training to 400 rising new talents.

IN A TENT—In an old mining town high in the Colorado Rockies, the Aspen Music Festival attracts thousands of visitors from all over the U. S. This is the festival's ninth summer.

BALLET IN MASSACHUSETTS—The Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet rehearses on an outdoor stage for its appearances at the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Lee, Mass. For two decades the festival, directed by Ted Shawn, has presented dancers of many lands.

DANCE IN CONNECTICUT—The renowned dancer-choreographer, José Limon, center, Betty Jones and Chester Wolenski prepare "Serenata," new composition by Limon to be seen at the American Dance Festival this week at Connecticut College in New London.

CINCINNATI, OHIO
ENQUIRER
D. 205,461 S. 278,485

AUG 8 1958

Ballet A Trend?

It Replaces A Week Of Opera For Second Year In Row

By Arthur Darack
Enquirer Music Critic

Just as Tanglewood is the summer operation of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and Ravinia employs the Chicago Orchestra in a similar capacity, so the Zoo Opera is the summer occupation of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra.

In some ways, our operation is the most unusual of the three. It presents grand opera, the most expensive of entertainments, whereas Ravina and Tanglewood present concerts. Tanglewood has an opera school of renown, but it is an experimental theater, and it does not employ famous grand opera singers.

Now, in the forthcoming week, Summer Opera exchanges the ballerina for the prima donna—just as in the fifth week last season. Is this a trend?

BALLET costs less than opera and presents the possibility of lessening the deficit on the season. But Cincinnatians will not accept something merely because it is inexpensive. Perhaps somthing is in the wind.

The ideal, always distant but shining, has been to extend and improve the opera situation and gradually to increase the scope of the summer activity so as to present a diversified program in the manner of Ravinia, always retaining and making the opera the center of the plan. Ballet is a step in this direction.

Hamilton County and surrounding areas are populous enough so that an expanded summer music program is feasible. To be sure, we do not have the climate to attract tourists in pursuit of summer musical culture. We cannot pretend that we have idyllic beaches and cool temperatures. But tourists are not necessarily the solution. There are people enough within driving distance who will take advantage of first class artistic attractions other than opera.

Opera does not appeal to everyone interested in serious musical art. An expanded program of ballet, symphonic programs or unusual recitals, would attract the opera hater. Certainly it could count on the winter symphony patrons, especially if the programs brought interesting guest conductors or soloists.

THIS program is all a dream at the moment and it might turn out to be a failure, were it to be tried prematurely. It must be undertaken with great care and only if it does not interfere with the opera. But the ballet programs that have been substituted for the fifth week of opera are a step in this direction, even if they do subtract the usual extra two or three operas. What is needed is a plan to initiate a diversified program when it becomes apparent that such a program has the chance to succeed. In this way, Cincinnati will be able to say that it does have a summer music program of a magnitude and character appropriate to its reputation as a music center.

Meanwhile the ballet is at hand. Is it a sign of things to come?

[249]

HOUSTON, TEX.
CHRONICLE
Circ. D. 202,888 - S. 226,297

JUL 20 1958

THE SPOTLIGHT

Houston's Entertainment Apathy Is Curious in City of Enterprise

BY ANN HOLMES
Fine Arts Editor

ALL THE world is reveling in the arts this summer, except us.

We don't like art in the summer. We just turn on the TV and let it go at that.

Cowboys have overwhelmed our culture. Rock 'n' roll is what you hear on your car radio, and anybody who's lucky is away attending an arts festival in some other place where people do like the arts.

Oh, there's not much wrong with our symphony, opera and art activity once the fodder's in the shock and the winter season's on.

But why must we have to go to Colorado's Central City to see "La Perichole," or "Pag and Cav," in the summer? Or to Red Rocks, outside Denver, to see a striking outdoor staging of Wagner's "Die Walkuere"?

Why should we have to go to Dallas, St. Louis, Kansas City to see those big outdoor entertainments?

The combined capacity audiences of the St. Louis Muny Opera and the Kansas City Starlight Opera would equal around 20,000—more than ordinarily attend Broadway shows in a whole week in summer, according to the outdoor impresarios.

* * *

ALL OVER America, people are coming together under informal circumstances to hear music, see shows, attend ballet performances, even to hear chamber music and contemporary scores. They don't seem to be running from culture like scared rabbits the moment the final curtain sweeps down on the season just past.

On the very edge of the desert at Santa Fe, N.M., they're staging an uproariously successful season of outdoor opera and concerts, the yucca influence being hardly noticeable.

At Grant Park in Chicago, they're staging the 24th season of free concerts in an outdoor auditorium with Joseph Rosenstock and Morton Gould as conductors and a whole bevy of bright young artists.

At the Berkshire Festival in Tanglewood, Mass., you can hear everything from Bach to Stravinsky played by ensembles of all sizes from chamber groups to the whole Boston Symphony Orchestra under its celebrated Charles Munch.

In Aspen, Colo., devotees of music listen at nights to jazz or more serious work—sometimes modern music written by young composers at work there. Shakespeare festivals hold forth at Ashland, Ore., and at San Diego, Cal., and the East Coast sprouts summer music tents, all playing musicals and other attractive summer entertainment.

* * *

EUROPE'S interest in festivals is not new, either, in this late year. But to the usual festivals like those at Edinburgh, Salzburg, Bayreuth, Florence and Bregenz, the cultural trotters could add a new festival this year—at Spoleto, outside Rome.

The Spoleto Festival is the brainchild of Gian-Carlo Menotti, American opera conductor whose interest in serving this new gala as entrepreneur, was surprising and refreshing.

Some of these towns and cities all have their own natural attractions to lure tourists in the first place. But others are making the most of their own particular faces and features and adding a festival to stir up attention—and business.

HOUSTON, of course, does not.

I'm a little tired of listening with envy to friends tell of the shows they're seeing in Dallas, of the wind band concerts played on barges in the river at Pittsburgh, fireboats standing by shooting their hoses, as the ensemble plays "The Water Music," of exciting opera on the desert in Santa Fe.

What's the matter with Houston? Have we no ideas, no money, no interest? It has come to be a pretty dull burg.

ST. LOUIS, MO.
POST-DISPATCH
Circ. D. 388,094 - S. 467,021
JUN 15 1958

American Festivals

Nationwide Summer Events

THE PASTORAL PHASE of America's musical life will soon be revived in the summer festivals scattered between the desert land of the Southwest and the green hills of New England. Properly speaking, these do not include the summer runs of orchestras in their home cities, but the term still encompasses a wide variety of musical offerings. Four of the most outstanding festivals differ almost as markedly in their programs as they do in their locales.

The Aspen Music Festival, which is set in the Roaring Fork Valley of the Colorado Rockies, will include an appearance this year by the eminent French composer, Darius Milhaud. He will conduct the festival orchestra in the premier concert performance of his "Sabbath Service for Baritone, Chorus and Orchestra." Other special events will derive from the emphasis that will be given the music of Schubert and Hindemith. The American premiere of the latter's "Ite, Angeli Veloces," his song cycle "Das Marienleben," with Phyllis Curtin as soprano, and the three principal Schubert song cycles will be presented. One of them, "Die Schoene Muellerin," will be sung by Leslie Chabay, artist-in-residence at Washington University.

Other Aspen artists with whose performances St. Louisans are familiar are Jennie Tourel, mezzo-soprano; Victor Babin, pianist, and Szymon Goldberg, violinist; William Primrose, violist, and Nikolai Graudan, cellist. Izler Solomon has planned and will direct the festival. It will run from June 25 through Aug. 31.

WITHIN VIEW of the Jemez and Sangre de Cristo mountains in New Mexico is located the redwood amphitheater of the Santa Fe Opera Company. Its program for its first season last summer attracted much favorable attention, and its plans for this year seem equally promising.

Especially commissioned for the 1958 festival was "Wuthering Heights" by Carlisle Floyd, whose "Susannah" was presented here by the Washington University Opera Workshop. Another enterprise will be the production of Richard Strauss's last opera "Cappriccio," which has never had a professional performance in America. The remaining programs, drawn from the more familiar operatic repertory, will be Puccini's "La Boheme," Mozart's "Cosi Fan Tutte," Verdi's "Falstaff" and Rossini's "Cinderella."

Singers in the festival will come from the NBC Opera Company, the Metropolitan Opera, the New York City Opera, the Chicago Lyric Opera and the New Orleans Opera. John Crosby, former assistant director of the Columbia University opera workshop, is the music director. The season will extend from June 25 through Aug. 19.

THE VENERABLE BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL will have its sixteenth season this summer in a setting of clipped lawns and topiary gardens at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Symphonic programs will be presented by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, festival music director, and Pierre Monteux, guest conductor. Chamber music ensembles will include the New York Pro Musica Antiqua and the Budapest String Quartet, and among the soloists will be Zino Francescatti and Berl Senofsky, violinists; Eugene Istomin, Lukas Foss and Leonard Pennario, pianists, and Hilde Gueden and Margaret Harshaw, sopranos.

A special event will be the presentation of Bach's B Minor Mass in honor of the Harvard Glee Club's 100th anniversary. That chorus and the Radcliffe Choral Society will sing the mass with G. Wallace Woodworth conducting. The festival will run from July 2 through Aug. 10.

IN FISH CREEK, Wis., this August the Peninsula Music Festival will continue its efforts to expand and explore the musical repertory. Selections will range from four works especially commissioned for the 1958 programs by Dr. Thor Johnson, festival director, to a Vivaldi concerto for strings and wind instruments that has not previously been heard in the United States.

Composers of the four new works are John La Montaine, Harold Rusch, Howard Hanson and Cecil Effinger, all Americans. Two notable first performances in this country will be those given Sibelius's "Six Humoresques for Violin and Orchestra" and the songs "Of Love and Death" by Jon Thorarinsson, contemporary Icelandic composer.

Participants will include Sidney Harth of the Louisville Orchestra as concertmaster and soloist. Other soloists will be Aurelio Estanislao, Philippine baritone; Ilona Kombrink, soprano, former St. Louisan now living in Toronto, and Grant Johannesen, American pianist. A member of the festival orchestra since its inception is Edward Ormond, violist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

ANNISTON, ALA.
STAR
JUL 8 1958

Summer Music Abounds

The day has just about passed when apologies had to be made for the scant opportunities to listen to good music in this country, as contrasted to regular concerts that were being held in virtually every European community of any size.

Devotees of symphony, chamber music, opera, vocal, and even jazz, can pick and choose among outstanding offerings on this side of the Atlantic this Summer.

The Hollywood Bowl, opening its thirty-seventh annual "Symphonies under the Stars" tonight, gets no inferiority complex from New York City's Lewisohn Stadium.

Summer vacationists also will be trooping tonight into the first 1958 Pop Concert by the University of Miami symphony orchestra, performing at Miami Beach.

The Aspen music festival in Colorado rivals the Boston Symphony's twenty-third Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass.

In certain big cities the music lover can take his musical vacation right at home. In addition to the Lewisohn Stadium and the Hollywood Bowl, there are, among others, Ravinia and Grant Park in Chicago, Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, the Cincinnati Zoo (opera), Summer concert sites in Cleveland and Pittsburgh, plus the music barge moored on the Potomac at Washington.

Just as the fast expanding Summer theaters have ended lean days for many an actor and actress, the hundred or so Summer music festivals in the United States and Canada now give a much needed economic boost to many a musician.

A Winter symphony orchestra may now provide him less than 30 weeks of work at less than $3000. Summer festivals, by providing supplemental pay, may enable him to retain musi cas his vocation ,instead of its being relegated to the status of an avocation.

This is a welcome turn of events, particularly in view of the popularity of hi-fi record players, which make it possible to listen to concerts and other musical renditions that are replayed with tonal quality scarcely distinguishable from that of original performances.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.
Democrat & Chronicle
Circ. D. 120,548 - S. 176,504
JUL 8 1958

We Got Rhythm

From coast to coast, there is summertime music in the air—even if the humidity would make a person B flat rather than C sharp.

The music lover with a vacation problem has it easier each year . . . he can stay home and make meanderings into melody marts in his area, or he can travel afar to soak up symphonies.

Take the Rochester area: Tally-Ho, the music camp south of Lima, is starting its 11th season (public invited to concerts), Linwood Music School also is welcoming the public to performances on the York-Pavilion Road, Rochester's own "Opera Under the Stars" season begins Wednesday at the Highland Park Bowl, Kilbourn Hall has a summer schedule of "diversified chamber music," a summer concert series is programmed at Geneseo State Teachers College, and so it goes . . . and apologies here if we missed some phase of the growing mid-year musical trend.

Elsewhere in the nation, a music fan can just about take his choice of whether to sit on the sward and listen to opera, jazz, symphony, concert or what have you.

The Hollywood Bowl has just opened for its 37th season of "Symphonies Under the Stars." The University of Miami Symphony is playing for Miami Beach vacationers; the Aspen (Colo.) music festival plays no second fiddle (H-m-m-m) to the Boston Symphony's 23d Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass. Speaking of Massachusetts, Rochester's Dr. Frederick Fennell again this year will be a guest conductor for one of the Boston Symphony's Esplanade Concerts on the banks of the Charles River.

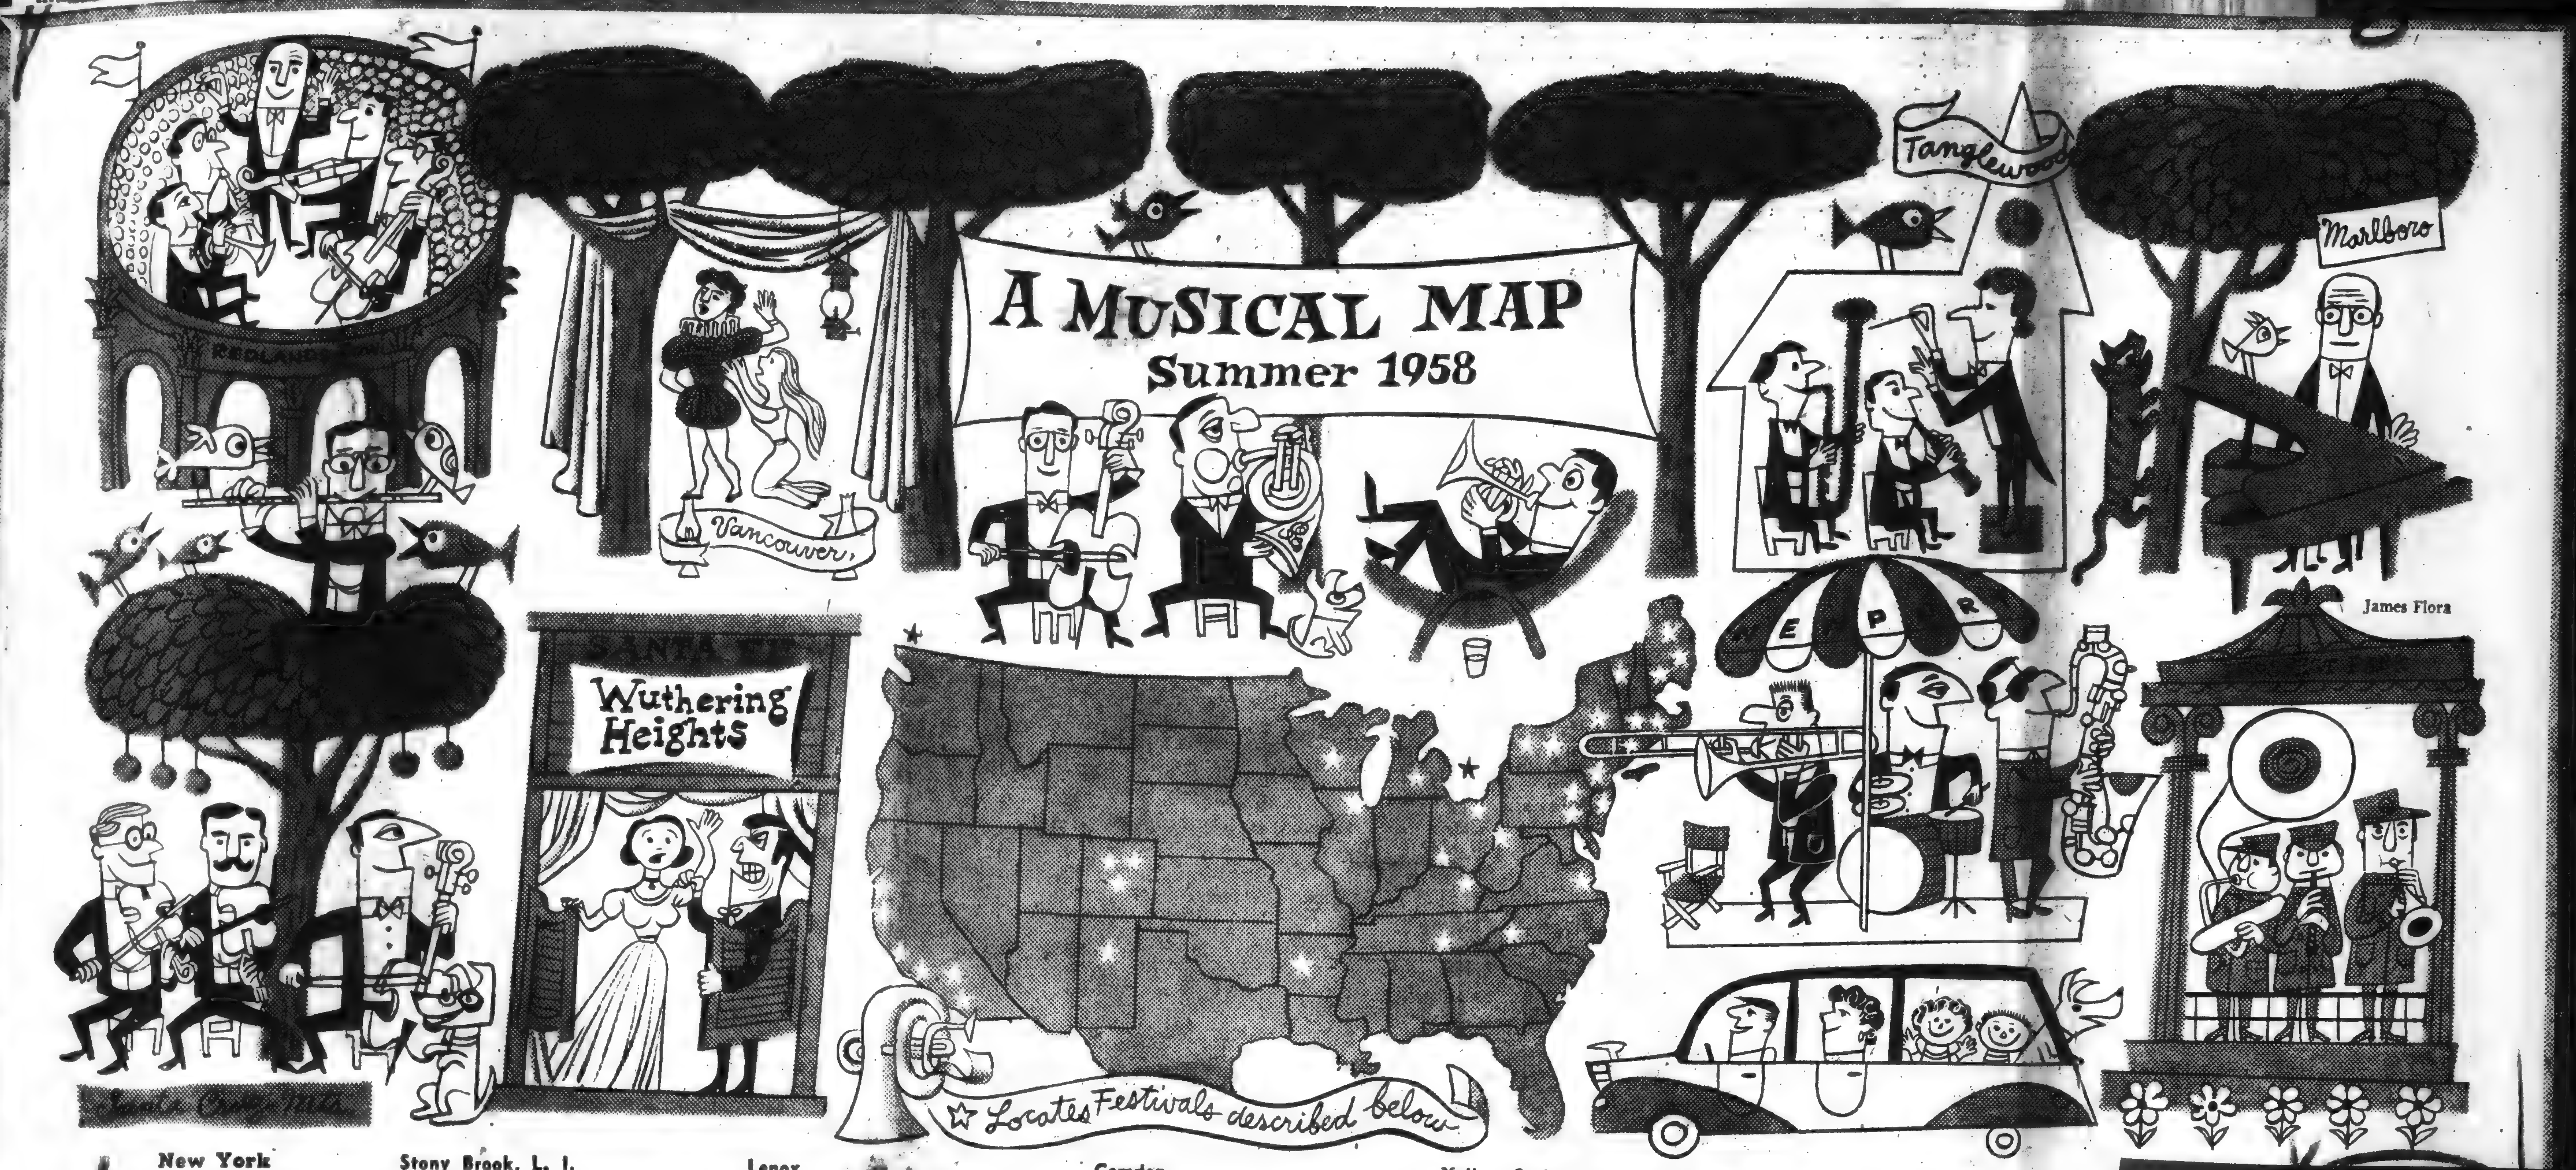
There are musical projects in Lewisohn Stadium in New York, Ravinia and Grant Park in Chicago, Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, the Cincinnati Zoo (opera), summer concert sites in Cleveland and Pittsburgh, and a music barge moored on the Potomac in Washington.

It is a delightful trend, an especially comforting one in a society where living becomes annually more restless and high-strung. And, if it is true that music hath charms to soothe the savage breast, maybe all we have to do to calm down the entire world is just to export the trend to all corners of the earth.

[250]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

MAY 18 1958



New York

New York City

June 18-Aug. 15—Guggenheim Memorial Concerts by Goldman Band at Central and Prospect Parks.

June 23-Aug. 2—Lewisohn Stadium concerts.

July 1-Aug. 5 — "Evenings-by-the-River" presented by Lower Eastside Neighborhoods Association.

June 27-July 19—Opera presented by Alfred Salmaggi at Triborough Stadium.

Chautauqua

June 29-Aug. 24—Operas and symphonic concerts.

Ellenville

Aug. 14-17—Empire State Music Festival.

Islip, L. I.

July 26 and 27-Aug. 1, 2 and 3—Great South Bay Jazz Festival.

Katonah

June 14, 21, 28, July 5—Early music, choral music and opera at Caramoor.

Northport, L. I.

July 14, 28, Aug. 11, 25—Piano, violin and vocal recitals at Red Barn Theatre.

Phoenicia

Aug. 16 and 17—Camp Woodland folk festival of the Catskills.

Skaneateles

July 22-27—"Carmen" in new English translation at Finger Lakes Lyric Circus.

Stony Brook, L. I.

July 5-Aug. 11—Concerts of jazz and light classics.

Woodstock

June 29-Sept. 7—Performances by Turnau Opera Company; chamber music.

New Jersey

Morristown

May 31, June 2, 6 and 7—A festival sponsored by the Masterwork Chorus, including Bach's St. John Passion.

Ventnor

Aug. 5-26—Ventnor Music Festival. Recitals at Ventnor Pier.

Connecticut

Falls Village

June 29-Aug. 31—Sunday chamber music concerts at Music Mountain by Berskshire String Quartet.

Norfolk

June 19-July 30—Chamber music at Norfolk Music School of Yale University.

Weston

July 5 and 6—Bach Festival.

Massachusetts

Andover

July 27-Aug. 17 — Concerts and organ recitals at Organ Institute.

Boston

June 6-22—Arts Festival at the Public Garden.

Ipswich

June 27-Aug. 16—Castle Hill Concerts. Symphonic, jazz, chamber music and dance programs.

Lenox

July 2-Aug. 10—Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Boston Symphony Orchestra.

June 29-Sept. 1—Jazz and folk song concerts at the Berkshire Music Barn.

New Marlboro

July 12-Aug. 30—Seven concerts of chamber and solo music in the Red Fox Music Barn.

Pittsfield

Aug. 17-Oct. 5—Chamber music at South Mountain.

Rhode Island

Newport

July 3-6—Newport Jazz Festival.

Vermont

Bennington

July 27-Aug. 10—Chamber orchestra concerts at Bennington College.

Burlington

July 8-29—Ballet, opera; chamber music at the University of Vermont.

Manchester

July 6—Aug. 31—Festival of the Arts. Week-end performances of music, opera, ballet and jazz.

Marlboro

June 29-Aug. 24—Chamber music at Marlboro College.

Maine

Blue Hill

July 20-Aug. 24—Chamber music concerts at Kneisel Hall.

Camden

Aug. 3-24—Concerts at the Summer Harp Colony.

Hancock

Aug. 3-24—Orchestral concerts of The Master's Class of Pierre Monteux.

Kennebunkport

July 2-Sept. 10—Opera and operetta in English and dance at Arundel Opera Theatre.

North Bridgton

July 21-Aug. 11—Chamber music concerts at Berkley Summer Music School.

Pennsylvania

Philadelphia

June 16-July 31—Robin Hood Dell Concerts. Cleveland and Philadelphia Orchestras.

Pittsburgh

June 15-July 24—American Wind Symphony at Point State Park. Theatre-barge will tour Ohio River stopping for concerts at cities between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati between July 25 and Aug. 3.

Tamiment-in-the-Poconos

June 19-22—Five chamber music concerts by Curtis String Quartet.

Ohio

Cincinnati

July 5-Aug. 2—Cincinnati Summer Opera at the Zoo.

Cleveland

July 9-Aug. 30—Summer Pops Concerts by the Cleveland Summer Orchestra.

Yellow Springs

Aug. 2, 9, 16, 23, 30—Music-Under-The-Stars at Antioch College.

Indiana

French Lick

Aug. 8-31—Symphonic, choral, jazz and country music programs.

Illinois

Chicago

July 1-Aug. 10—Symphonic, jazz, ballad and chamber music concerts and interpretative dancing at Ravinia Park.

June 25-Aug. 17—Orchestral concerts and opera in concert form at Grant Park.

Michigan

Interlochen

June 22-Aug. 17—National Music Camp. Concerts, recitals, opera.

Wisconsin

Fish Creek

Aug. 9-24—Peninsula Music Festival. Symphonic concerts conducted by Thor Johnson. Five world premières.

Milwaukee

June 23-31—Chamber music at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Kentucky

Ashland

June 8—American Folk Song Festival by Jean Thomas, The Traipsin' Woman.

North Carolina

Asheville

Aug. 7-9—Bascom Lamar Lunsford's folk festival with string bands, ballad singers and square dance teams.

Brevard

Aug. 8-24—Symphonic concerts at Transylvania Music Camp.

Florida

Miami Beach

July 8-Aug. 10—Pop concerts. University of Miami Summer Symphony.

THE WORLD OF MUSIC

Map of Summer Activities in America Reflects Growth in Festival Scene

By ROSS PARMENTER

THIS summer's music map has twenty-three more attendant names than last year's. This rightly reflects that summer musical activities are continuing to spread. It should be noted, though, that not all the festival names new to the listing are new to the country. In some cases the listing this year is due to better advance organization. Last year many of the festivals cited did not have their plans crystallized early enough to be included. This was true, for instance, of the festival at French Lick and of the one led by Robert Shaw in Anchorage, Alaska.

The biggest of this year's newcomers is undoubtedly the first international festival to be held in Vancouver. It has lined up conductors of the caliber of Bruno Walter and William Steinberg to lead its symphonic concerts. It has gained the rights for the North American première of Vaughan Williams' Ninth Symphony. It is importing Gunther Rennert to stage "Don Giovanni," its major operatic effort. It will introduce "Judith," a cantata by Paul McIntyre, which won its $1,000 contest for a Canadian composition, and it is bringing over the National Dancers of Ceylon.

Another place, also on the West Coast, that is looming larger this summer is Saratoga in California. Not only will it have the fourth annual Montalvo Music Festival (eight concerts by the Paganini Quartet), but it also will have a new series, "Music at the Vineyards."

In contrast to the picture of expansion, one must also note some signs of contraction. The sharpest one is the curtailment of the Empire State Music Festival at Ellenville, N. Y. This year, the event, which used to run for a month, is being reduced to four concerts. The tent will be used during the rest of the summer for musical comedies. The New Jersey Summer Music Festival at Millburn is bowing out entirely in favor of Broadway musicals.

Others Missing

Other lapses this year may only be temporary. Brandeis University at Waltham, Mass., for example, which is not holding a festival this year, intends to give music in other years. And the Moravian Music Festival is definitely slated for revival next year at Winston-Salem, N. C. The American Shakespeare Festival Theatre in Stratford, Conn., is another place that will be without music this year. And after last year's big splash, Jamestown, Va., will not include music in this summer's events.

ENTRY FREE

One of the expenses involved in starting a concert career is paying the initiation fee of the American Guild of Musical Artists. To lighten this burden, the union has voted to admit 300 young professionals to the guild this year without entry charges.

It is allotting one free entry to the guild to each of 300 music schools, with the responsibiilty of picking the musician being left either to the school faculties or their student bodies. The fee ranges from $25 to $150, depending on earnings.

HEMIDEMISEMIQUAVERS: Elliot Forbes is leaving his post as conductor of the Princeton University Glee Club to succeed G. Wallace Woodworth as leader of the Harvard Glee Club. . . . The late Robert Kurka's Fifth String Quartet will be played for the first time on May 27 at the final concert of the season of the American University Chamber Music Society in Washington. . . . Ivan Langstroth's Toccata in A major won the $200 Gray prize in the 1958 contest of the American Guild of Organists. . . . Richard Neumann has written a new Sabbath Eve Musical Service based on the liturgy of the Union Prayer Book, which will be performed for the first time on Friday at Temple Israel, 210 West Ninety-first Street.

REPRISE

The Nonagon re-united Aaron Copland and Roger Sessions to celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Copland-Sessions concerts that gave first hearings to many American composers. . . . Newell Jenkins led the Dessoff Choirs in Cherubini's D Minor Missa Solemnis, a work "full of imaginative and unexpected touches." . . . Three young pianists were impetuous but decidedly gifted: Philip Evans, Julia Rajauskas and Ruth Koefod. . . . Grete Sultan gave a "distinguished" performance of Bach's "Goldberg" Variations. . . . Paul Robeson's most musical vocalism was in his reading from Shakespeare's "Othello." . . . Nelly Golette provided "a pleasant evening" playing and singing her own compositions.

---

ive listing of

nontravelers who wish they were, it was my idea one of these days to publish a detailed forecast of upcoming music festivals.

Impossible!

The number of them, abroad and in this hemisphere, continues to grow year by year. I would need a book, not a music page, to describe them all.

What is happening? Is good music becoming so very popular?

Well, to a great degree it is. And certainly people who like music are the kind who like to travel.

For Tourists

But other reasons besides the love of music itself are causing the increase in festival projects. Festivals are a boon, or even a vital necessity, to the world tourist trade. They give a person a particular reason to go to a particular place.

For many European countries, at least, the tourist trade is one of the largest industries in the national economy as a whole.

Furthermore, many countries — for reasons of cultural pride or outright politics—are trying to show the rest of the world a friendly face. To do so, they "say it with music."

To make the festivals still more attractive, performers —including huge opera companies and orchestras—cross national borders as freely as the tourists themselves.

Festival List

Under the circumstances, I can do no more than draw up a terse list of festivals, assembled from publicity releases and other sources. Dates and other data are still subject to change.

If you want to know more about any festival I list, I suggest you call up a travel agent or local tourist information office. Or phone my office, any afternoon from Tuesday through Friday,

It's first of [illegible] to note that no travel at all is involved in one of the earliest festivals on the list. This will be the May T. Morrison Music Festival, of many sorts of professional and student performances of new and old music, from April 15 to May 23. It will dedicate the music department's new May T. Morrison Hall and Alfred Hertz Memorial Auditorium on the Berkeley campus of UC.

[illegible] Osaka First

Meantime, you just have time to hop to Japan for an Osaka international music and ballet festival, April 10 to May 10.

And in this hemisphere, note:

Casals Festival concerts in San Juan, Puerto Rico, April 22 to May 8.

Ojai Valley Festival concerts, May 23-25.

Santa Fe operas, in New Mexico, June 25 to Aug. 19.

Central City (Colo.) operas—June [illegible] to July 26.

Carmel Bach Festival, July 14-20.

Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony, in Tanglewood, Mass., July 2 to Aug. 10.

Stratford (Canada) Shakespeare plays and other drama, concerts, films; June 23 to Sept. 13.

Chautauqua (N.Y.) operas, July 11 to Aug. 18.

Vancouver (Canada) International Festival of opera, concerts, drama, dance, jazz, films; July 19 to Aug. 16.

* * *

IN EUROPE, the Brussels World's Fair will go wild on music, among other attractions, from April 17 to Oct. 19. Elsewhere there'll be:

Festival of Wales (England) May 3 through summer.

Bordeaux (France) music and dance, May 10-25.

Wiesbaden (Germany) international opera, concerts, ballets; May 8 to June 1.

Bonn (Germany) Beethoven festival, May 15-25.

Royal Danish Ballet and Music, in Copenhagen, Denmark, May 17-31.

Maggio Musicale Fiorentino opera, concerts, ballet, in Florence, Italy, May 21 to July 6.

Glyndebourne (England) operas, May 27 to July 31.

Bergen (Norway) music, drama and folklore, May 30 to June 15.

Vienna Festival opera and concerts, May 31 to June 22.

Stockholm (Sweden) opera, ballet, music, drama, June 1-14.

"Festival of Two Worlds," opera, ballet, drama, concerts, in Spoleto, Italy, June 5-29.

Sibelius Festival in Helsinki, Finland, June 7-17.

International Society for Contemporary Music, Strasbourg, France, June 9-15.

Benjamin Britten's Alderburgh Festival (England), June 13-24.

Holland Festival, June 15 to July 15.

Strasbourg (France), Bach concerts, June 16-24.

Granada (Spain), June 20 to July 4.

Lyons (France), music, drama; June 20 to July 12.

Dubrovnik (Yugoslavia), July 1-31.

Casals Festival in Prades, France; July 3-21.

British contemporary music, Cheltenham (England), July 7-18.

Llangollen (Wales), Eisteddfodd, July 1-13.

Aix-en-Provence (France), opera, concerts, July 10-31.

Ancient instruments festival in Haslemere, England, July 10-19.

Verona (Italy), open air operas; July 15 to Aug. 15.

Choral Union festival in Vienna, July 17-20.

Bregenz (Austria), opera, concerts, ballet, light opera, drama, July 18 to Aug. 17.

Bayreuth (Germany), Wagner festival, July 23 to Aug. 25.

Santander (Spain), July 25 to Aug. 31.

Salzburg (Austria), opera, operetta drama,

Athen to Sept.

Munic Aug. 10

Luce Aug. 13

Edinb certs, b 24 to Se

Besan 4-14.

Montr Sept. 5-2

Venice 11-28.

Berlin val, Sept.

Perugi music, Se

FROM things, t Know (if an old vaudeville joke), some one will be announcing a "1,000 Island Festival," with one festival on each island.

"CAN CA
when the

BAYREUTH
SALZBURG
VENICE

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

MAY 18 1958

[250]

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
EXAMINER
Circ. D. 241,108 - S. 510,325

APR 6 1958

Music Festivals
In Rehearsal F
Osaka to Dubr

By Alexander F

FOR THE SAKE of summer travelers, and also for nontravelers who wish they were, it was my idea one of these days to publish a detailed forecast of upcoming music festivals.

Impossible!

The number of them, abroad and in this hemisphere, continues to grow year by year. I would need a book, not a music page, to describe them all.

What is happening? Is good music becoming so very popular?

Well, to a great degree it is. And certainly people who like music are the kind who like to travel.

For Tourists

But other reasons besides the love of music itself are causing the increase in festival projects. Festivals are a boon, or even a vital necessity, to the world tourist trade. They give a person a particular reason to go to a particular place.

For many European countries, at least, the tourist trade is one of the largest industries in the national economy as a whole.

Furthermore, many countries — for reasons of cultural pride or outright politics—are trying to show the rest of the world a friendly face. To do so, they "say it with music."

To make the festivals still more attractive, performers—including huge opera companies and orchestras—cross national borders as freely as the tourists themselves.

Festival List

Under the circumstances, I can do no more than draw up a terse list of festivals, assembled from publicity releases and other sources. Dates and other data are still subject to change.

If you want to know more about any festival I list, I suggest you call up a travel agent or local tourist information office. Or phone my office, any afternoon from Tuesday through Friday, and [illegible] mati[illegible]

It'[illegible] first of all, to note that no travel at all is involved in one of the earliest festivals on the list. This will be the May T. Morrison Music Festival, of many sorts of professional and student performances of new and old music, from April 15 to May 23. It will dedicate the music department's new May T. Morrison Hall and Alfred Hertz Memorial Auditorium on the Berkeley [illegible] of UC.

Osaka First

Meantime, you just have time to hop to Japan for an Osaka international music and ballet festival, April 10 to May 10.

And in this hemisphere, note:

Casals Festival concerts in San Juan, Puerto Rico, April 22 to May 8.

Ojai Valley Festival concerts, May 23-25.

Santa Fe operas, in New Mexico, June 25 to Aug. 19.

Central City (Colo.) operas—June [illegible] to July 26.

Carmel Bach Festival, July 14-20.

Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony, in Tanglewood, Mass., July 2 to Aug. 10.

Stratford (Canada) Shakespeare plays and other drama, concerts, films, June 23 to Sept. 13.

Chautauqua (N.Y.) operas, July 11 to Aug. 18.

Vancouver (Canada) International Festival of opera, concerts, drama, dance, jazz, films, July 19 to Aug. 16.

* * *

IN EUROPE, the Brussels World's Fair will go wild on music, among other attractions, from April 17 to Oct. 19. Elsewhere there'll be:

Festival of Wales (England) May 3 through summer.

Bordeaux (France) music and dance, May 10-25.

Wiesbaden (Germany) international opera, concerts, ballets; May 8 to June 1.

Bonn (Germany) Beethoven festival, May 15-25.

Royal Danish Ballet and Music, in Copenhagen, Denmark, May 17-31.

Maggio Musicale Fiorentino opera, concerts, ballet, in Florence, Italy, May 21 to July 6.

Glyndebourne (England) operas, May 27 to July 31.

Bergen (Norway) music, drama and folklore, May 30 to June 15.

Vienna Festival opera and concerts, May 31 to June 22.

Stockholm (Sweden) opera, ballet, music, drama, June 1-14.

"Festival of Two Worlds," opera, ballet, drama, concerts, in Spoleto, Italy, June 5-29.

Sibelius Festival in Helsinki, Finland, June 7-17.

International Society for Contemporary Music, Strasbourg, France, June 9-15.

Benjamin Britten's Alderburgh Festival (England), June 13-24.

Holland Festival, June 15 to July 15.

Strasbourg (France), Bach concerts, June 16-24.

Granada (Spain), June 20 to July 4.

Lyons (France), music, drama; June 20 to July 12.

Dubrovnik (Yugoslavia), July 1-31.

Casals Festival in Prades, France; July 3-21.

British contemporary music, Cheltenham (England), July 7-18.

Llangollen (Wales), Eisteddfodd, July 1-13.

Aix-en-Provence (France), opera, concerts, July 10-31.

Ancient instruments festival in Haslemere, England, July 10-19.

Verona (Italy), open air operas, July 15 to Aug. 15.

Choral Union festival in Vienna, July 17-20.

Bregenz (Austria), opera, concerts, ballet, light opera, drama, July 18 to Aug. 17.

Bayreuth (Germany), Wagner festival, July 23 to Aug. 25.

Santander (Spain), July 25 to Aug. 31.

Salzburg (Austria), opera, operettas, concerts, ballet, drama, July 26 to Aug. 31.

Athens (Greece), Aug. 1 to Sept. 15.

Munich (Germany), opera, Aug. 10 to Sept. 9.

Lucerne (Switzerland), Aug. 13 to Sept. 10.

Edinburgh opera, concerts, ballet, drama, Aug. 24 to Sept. 13.

Besancon (France), Sept. 4-14.

Montreux (Switzerland), Sept. 5-25.

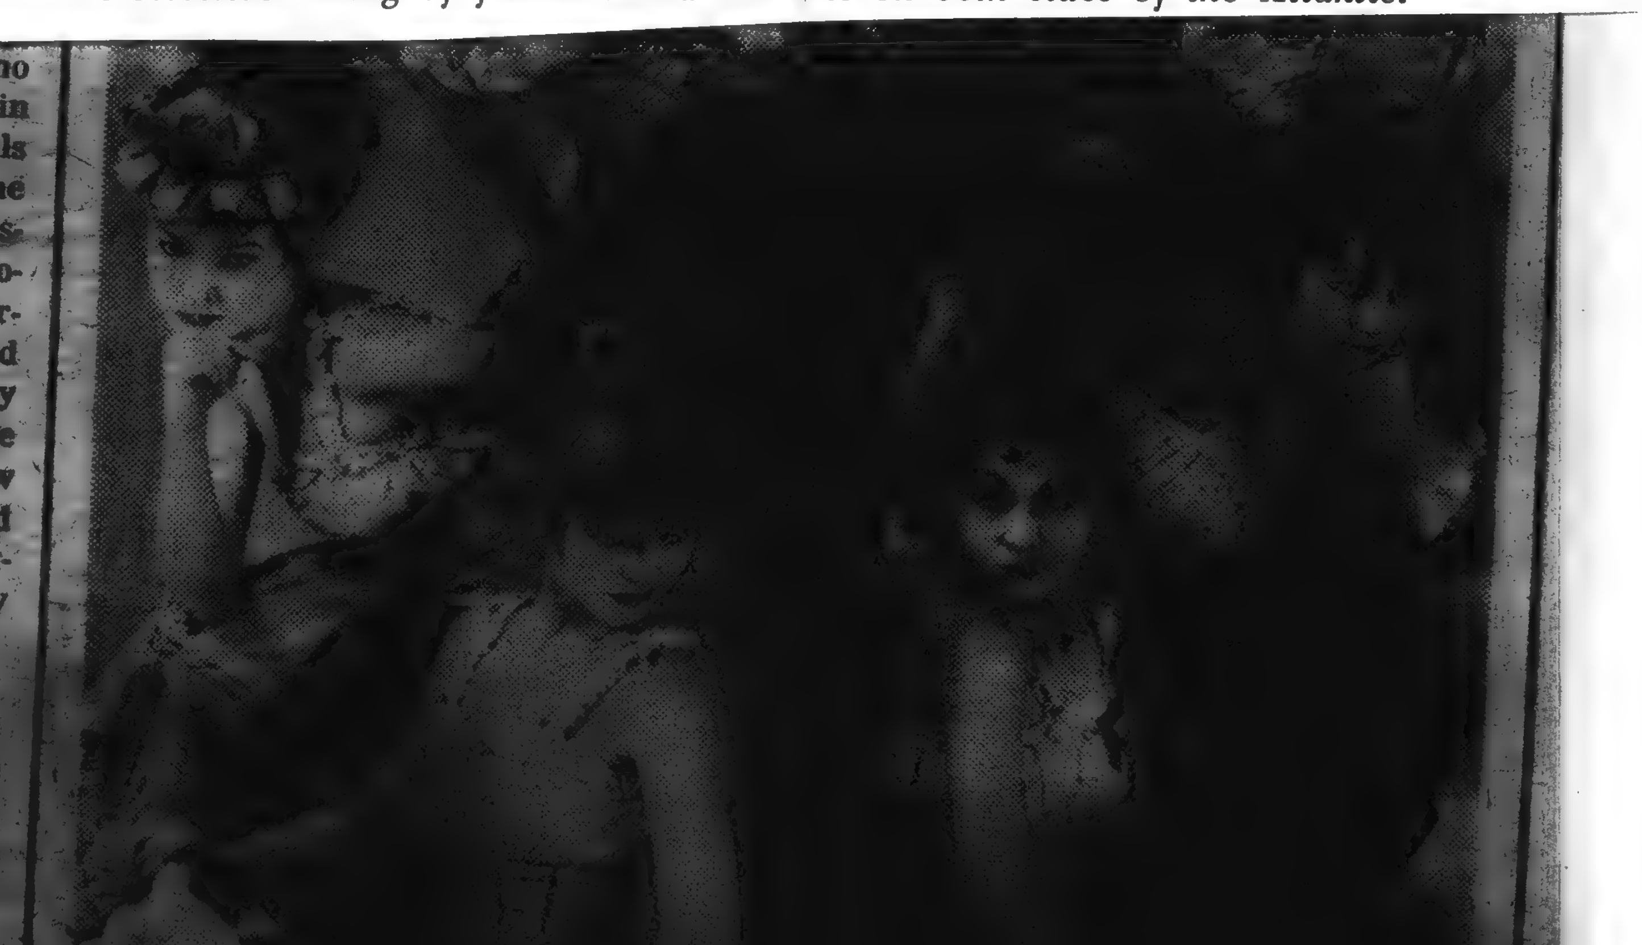
Venice Biennale, Sept. 11-28.

Berlin International Festival, Sept. 21 to Oct. 7.

Perugia (Italy), sacred music, Sept. 20 to Oct. 5.

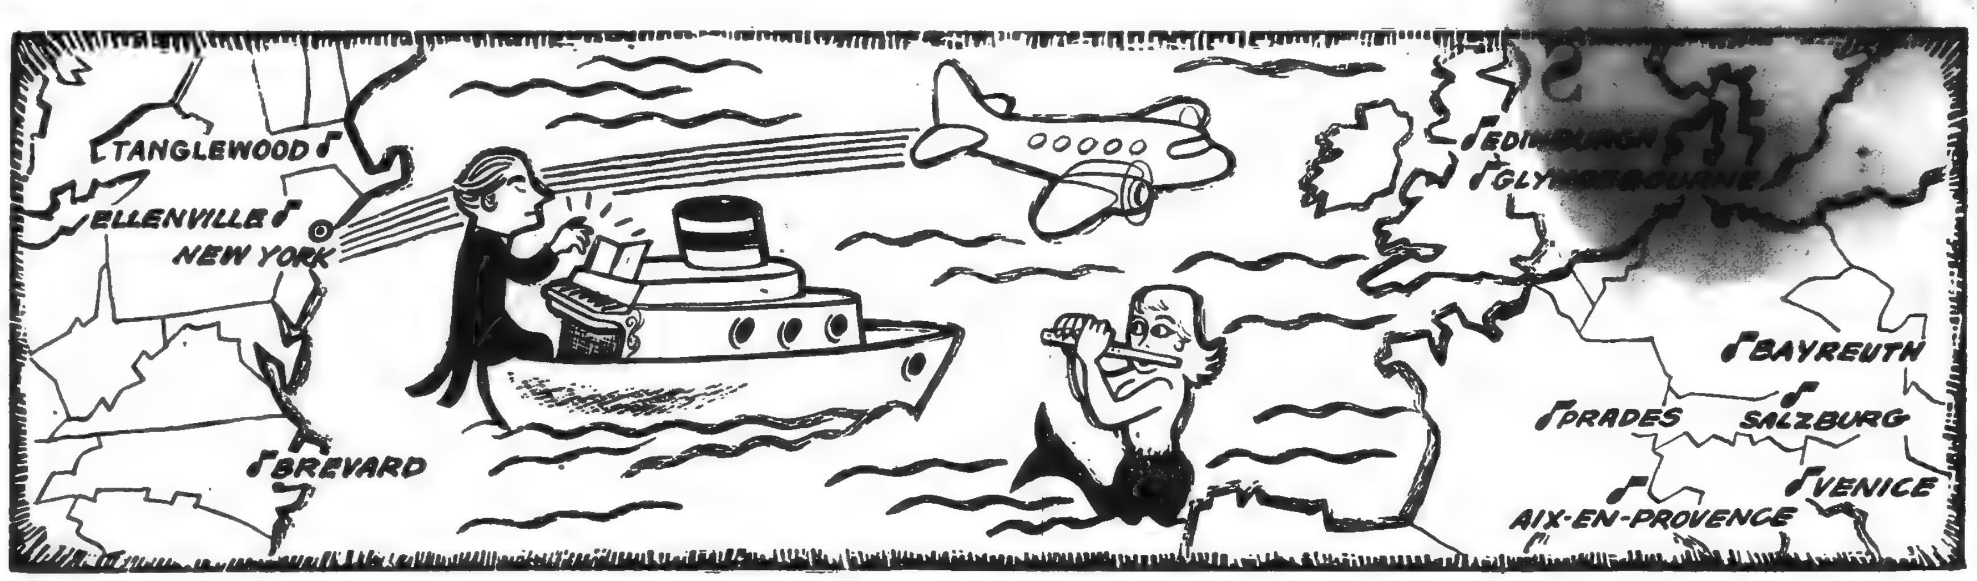
* * *

FROM THE above look of things, the first thing you know (if I may paraphrase an old vaudeville joke), some one will be announcing a "1,000 Island Festival," with one festival on each island.



"CAN CAN" DANCERS will kick up a sparkling heel in "Offenbach in the Underworld," when the National Ballet of Canada visits the Opera House on Friday and Saturday evenings.

MUSICAL COURIER May 1958



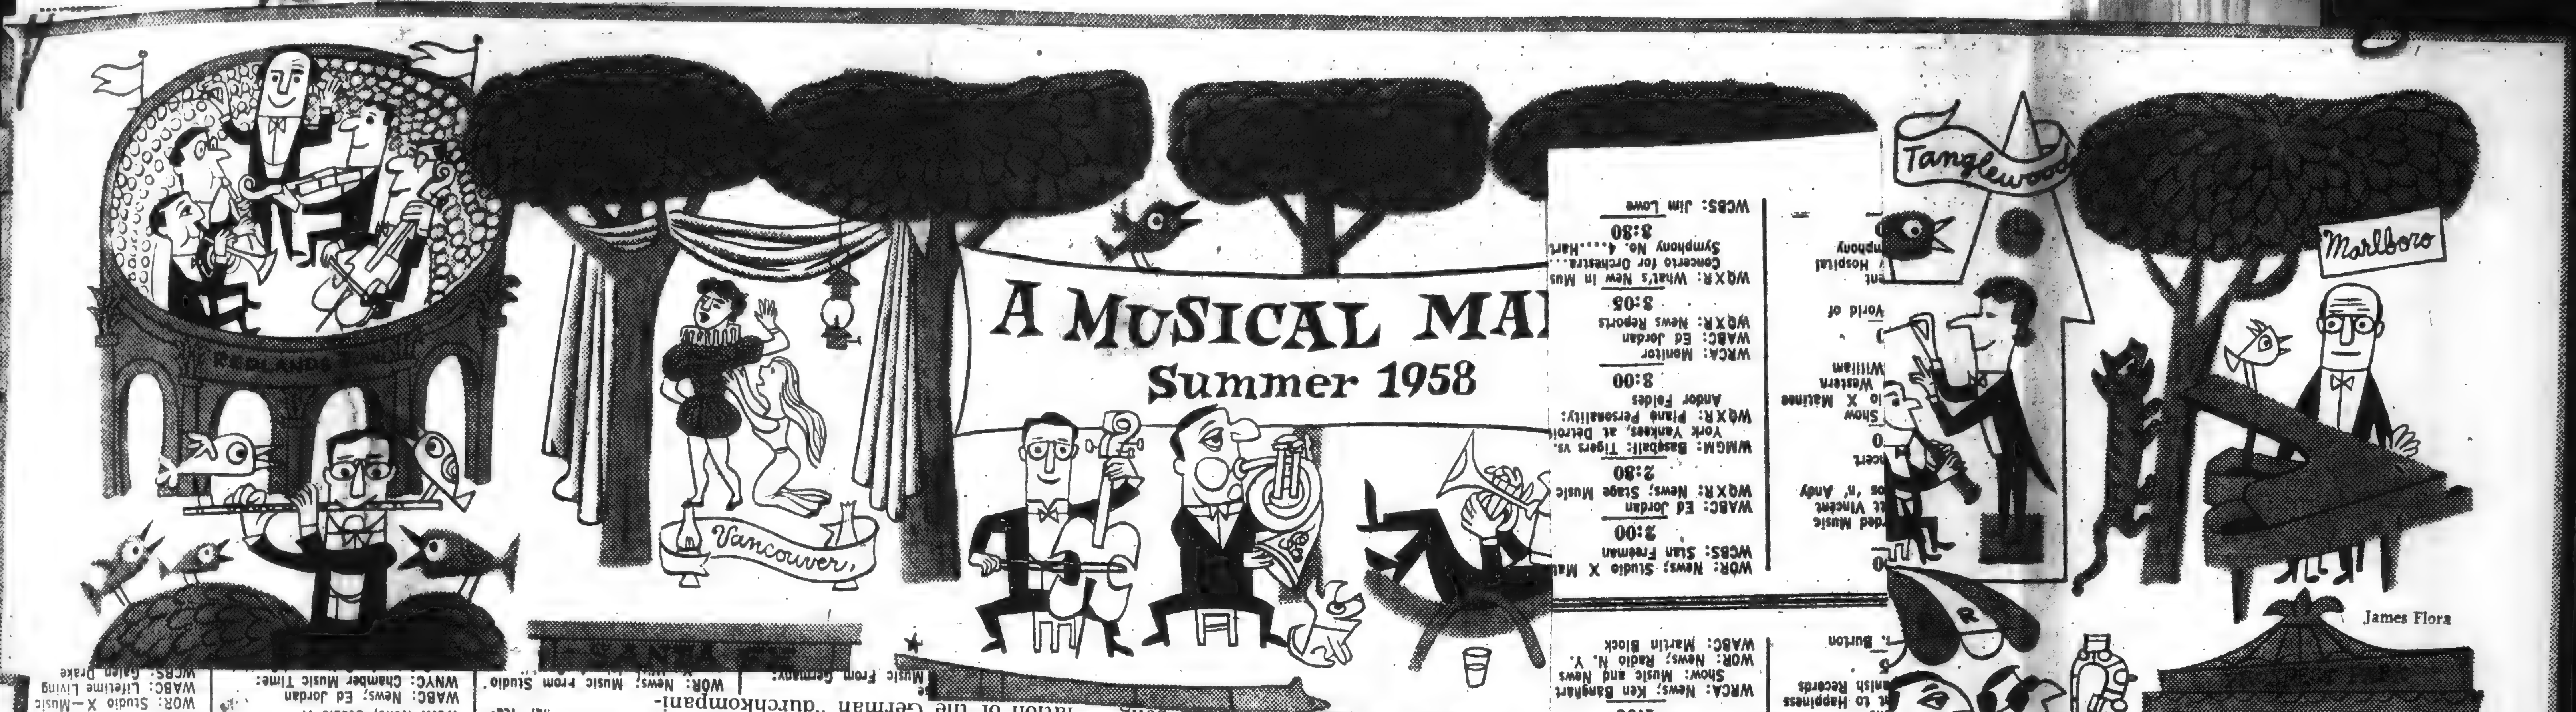
FESTIVALS HERE AND ABROAD

A selective listing of festivals and concerts on both sides of the Atlantic.

[250]

NEW YORK, N.Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

MAY 18 1958



SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
EXAMINER
Circ. D. 241,108 - S. 510,325

APR 6 1958

Music Festivals Are In Rehearsal From Osaka to Dubrovnik

By Alexander Fried

FOR THE SAKE of summer travelers, and also for nontravelers who wish they were, it was my idea one of these days to publish a detailed forecast of upcoming music festivals.

Impossible!

The number of them, abroad and in this hemisphere, continues to grow year by year. I would need a book, not a music page, to describe them all.

What is happening? Is good music becoming so very popular?

Well, to a great degree it is. And certainly people who like music are the kind who like to travel.

For Tourists

But other reasons besides the love of music itself are causing the increase in festival projects. Festivals are a boon, or even a vital necessity, to the world tourist trade. They give a person a particular reason to go to a particular place.

For many European countries, at least, the tourist trade is one of the largest industries in the national economy as a whole.

Furthermore, many countries — for reasons of cultural pride or outright politics—are trying to show the rest of the world a friendly face. To do so, they "say it with music."

To make the festivals still more attractive, performers—including huge opera companies and orchestras—cross national borders as freely as the tourists themselves.

Festival List

Under the circumstances, I can do no more than draw up a terse list of festivals, assembled from publicity releases and other sources. Dates and other data are still subject to change.

If you want to know more about any festival I list, I suggest you call up a travel agent or local tourist information office. Or phone my office, any afternoon from Tuesday through Friday, and I'll supply all the information I have on file.

It's my paradoxical duty, first of all, to note that no travel at all is involved in one of the earliest festivals on the list. This will be the May T. Morrison Music Festival, of many sorts of professional and student performances of new and old music, from April 15 to May 23. It will dedicate the music department's new May T. Morrison Hall and Alfred Hertz Memorial Auditorium on the Berkeley campus of UC.

Osaka First

Meantime, you just have time to hop to Japan for an Osaka international music and ballet festival, April 10 to May 10.

And in this hemisphere, note:

Casals Festival concerts in San Juan, Puerto Rico, April 22 to May 8.

Ojai Valley Festival concerts, May 23-25.

Santa Fe operas, in New Mexico, June 25 to Aug. 19.

Central City (Colo.) operas—June [illegible] to July 26.

Carmel Bach Festival, July 14-20.

Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony, in Tanglewood, Mass., July 2 to Aug. 10.

Stratford (Canada) Shakespeare plays and other drama, concerts, films, June 23 to Sept. 13.

Chautauqua (N.Y.) operas, July 11 to Aug. 18.

Vancouver (Canada) International Festival of opera, concerts, drama, dance, jazz, films; July 19 to Aug. 16.

* * *

IN EUROPE, the Brussels World's Fair will go wild on music, among other attractions, from April 17 to Oct. 19. Elsewhere there'll be:

Festival of Wales (England) May 3 through summer.

Bordeaux (France) music and dance, May 10-25.

Wiesbaden (Germany) international opera, concerts, ballets; May 8 to June 1.

Bonn (Germany) Beethoven festival, May 15-25.

Royal Danish Ballet and Music, in Copenhagen, Denmark, May 17-31.

Maggio Musicale Fiorentino opera, concerts, ballet, in Florence, Italy, May 21 to July 6.

Glyndebourne (England) operas, May 27 to July 31.

Bergen (Norway) music, drama and folklore, May 30 to June 15.

Vienna Festival opera and concerts, May 31 to June 22.

Stockholm (Sweden) opera, ballet, music, drama, June 1-14.

"Festival of Two Worlds," opera, ballet, drama, concerts, in Spoleto, Italy, June 5-29.

Sibelius Festival in Helsinki, Finland, June 7-17.

International Society for Contemporary Music, Strasbourg, France, June 9-15.

Benjamin Britten's Alderburgh Festival (England), June 13-24.

Holland Festival, June 15 to July 15.

Strasbourg (France), Bach concerts, June 16-24.

Granada (Spain), June 20 to July 4.

Lyons (France), music, drama; June 20 to July 12.

Dubrovnik (Yugoslavia), July 1-31.

Casals Festival in Prades, France; July 3-21.

British contemporary music, Cheltenham (England), July 7-18.

Llangollen (Wales), Eisteddfodd, July 1-13.

Aix-en-Provence (France), opera, concerts, July 10-31.

Ancient instruments festival in Haslemere, England, July 10-19.

Verona (Italy), open air operas; July 15 to Aug. 15.

Choral Union festival in Vienna, July 17-20.

Bregenz (Austria), opera, concerts, ballet, light opera, drama, July 18 to Aug. 17.

Bayreuth (Germany), Wagner festival, July 23 to Aug. 25.

Santander (Spain), July 25 to Aug. 31.

Salzburg (Austria), opera, operettas, concerts, ballet, drama, July 26 to Aug. 31.

Athens (Greece), Aug. 1 to Sept. 15.

Munich (Germany), opera, Aug. 10 to Sept. 9.

Lucerne (Switzerland), Aug. 13 to Sept. 10.

Edinburgh opera, concerts, ballet, drama, Aug. 24 to Sept. 13.

Besancon (France), Sept. 4-14.

Montreux (Switzerland), Sept. 5-25.

Venice Biennale, Sept. 11-28.

Berlin International Festival, Sept. 21 to Oct. 7.

Perugia (Italy), sacred music, Sept. 20 to Oct. 5.

* * *

FROM THE above look of things, the first thing you know (if I may paraphrase an old vaudeville joke), some one will be announcing a "1,000 Island Festival," with one festival on each island.

"CAN CAN" DANCERS will kick up a sparkling heel in "Offenbach in the Underworld," when the National Ballet of Canada visits the Opera House on Friday and Saturday evenings.

[251]

AUSTIN, TEX.
AMERICAN
Circ. D. 34,163

JUN 11 1958

Music in Air

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjin) Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N. J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in East Coast resort areas. (The NY Times makes it 25.) It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this seems a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.
NEWS-PRESS

JUN 10 1958

Summer Music

We now add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. This is the tenth summer for the tents. Most of them open their season in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjil) Terrell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop continues to operate at the same old stand, Lambertville, New Jersey. It begins this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety magazine reports that 22 tent shows will operate this summer. Most of them are in the East Coast resort area. It is estimated that the tent shows will play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Massachussetts opens July 2. The adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

And added to the summer music treats are Kansas City's Starlight Theater and St. Louis' municipal opera at Forest Park. Here at home we have our own municipal band concerts in the beautiful Krug Park Bowl. And these are free too.

EAU CLAIRE WIS.
DAILY TELEGRAM

JUN 10 1958

The Musical Tent on American Scene

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N.J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in the East Coast resort areas. It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1928 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

Reformer &
Vermont Phoenix (e)
BRATTLEBORO, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 7,268

JUN 11 1958

"HEARKEN, HEARKEN, MUSIC FILLS THE AIR—"

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjin) Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N. J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in East Coast resort areas. (The N. Y. Times makes it 25). It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old ~~Tanglewood Festival~~ at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29, and the Marlboro Music Festival opens June 29.

AMARILLO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 41,916

JUN 17 1958

Musical Tent Tenth Season Opens

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjin) Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N.J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

VARIETY reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in East Coast resort areas. (The NEW YORK TIMES makes it 25.) It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

EAU CLAIRE, WIS.,
LEADER

JUN 11 1958

The Musical Tent on American Scene

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N.J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in the East Coast resort areas. It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1928 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

SALEM, N. J.
Standard & Jerseyman
Circ. W. 3,474

JUN 12 1958

Washington, Pa.
The Reporter
June 11, 1958

"Hearken, Hearken, Music Fills The Air—"

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their season in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjin) Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N. J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in East Coast resort areas. (The N. Y. Times makes it 25.) It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

HUDSON, N. Y.
REGISTER-STAR
D.

JUL 29 1958

In Fifth Week Of Concert Series At Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra is in the fifth week of its six-week summer concert series at Tanglewood. The Tanglewood grounds are located among the winding roads and wooded areas in the Berkshire Hills, a couple of miles west of Lenox, Mass.

The concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra are held in the Tanglewood Music Shed, a fan shaped structure, built in 1938, that remotely resembles the style of construction used in baseball stadii. The Shed shelters the 5,893 reserved seats but the surrounding lawns are traditionally covered with people lying resting on blankets listening to the concerts.

Also located on the Tanglewood lawns are a music store, a snack bar, the administrative offices of the Berkshire Music Center, a theater concert hall, a replica of the home of Nathaniel Hawthorne, a chamber music hall, an art gallery, and a rehearsal stage.

The most picturesque view at Tanglewood is found at the Hemlock Gardens, a series of terraces and hedges that overlook Lake Mahkeenac.

The musical calender at Tanglewood is operated on a weekly routine during the six week festival. Symphony concerts are performed Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon in the Shed. Chamber music is played Wednesday night, Friday afternoon, and Sunday morning. Opera is played Monday evenings and the Tanglewood choir occasionally presents concerts on Tuesday. The Berkshire Music Center Orchestra performs concerts on Thursday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 31 1958

Perry Relates History of BSO And Tanglewood

LEE—The Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood gives students the opportunity of rehearsing every day and playing in a concert once a week, an experience not available to students in a conservatory, Thomas D. Perry, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, told the Rotary Club here Tuesday.

Mr. Perry reviewed the history of the BSO and Tanglewood. The orchestra was founded in 1881 by Henry Higginson, a banker who had studied music in Vienna. He supported the orchestra almost entirely alone until 1918, when he turned the organization over to a board of trustees, Mr. Perry said.

In regard to the history of the Berkshire Music Festival, Mr. Perry related that Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Glendale spearheaded its establishment. In 1934, a concert was held at the old Hanna Farm, now Stockbridge School, by an orchestra made up largely of members of the New York Philharmonic. In 1937, concerts by the BSO were given on the estate which is now Foxhollow School. The following year, the concerts were given at Tanglewood, where the Shed was built in 1938 and the school started in 1940.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 399,044

MAY 11 1958

"The Shed" at Tanglewood where music fills the Summer air.

Music Is Everywhere At Famed Tanglewood

In recent years the Berkshire Hills have been dubbed the "Belt of Culture," because of the many and varied programs it offers to visitors.

Undoubtedly the biggest force in this rural transformation is Tanglewood in Lenox, home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival. ~~First held in 1934~~ at the Dan Hanna estate at Stockbridge, it attracted a total attendance of about 5000—most of them people of social distinction.

Since then it has become the outstanding Summer music festival of the United States—for all people—drawing a huge and heterogenous public from all over.

Last year's total attendance at festival concerts was 162,936.

The Boston Symphony did not fully enter the Berkshire Music Festival scene until 1936 when it gave three concerts at Holmwood in Stockbridge, the estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson.

That Winter the estate of Tanglewood in Lenox was presented to the orchestra, and full-scale concerts got under way the following Summer, Serge Koussevitzky conducting.

By 1938, a permanent auditorium, designed by Finnish architect Eliel Saarinen and known as "The Shed," was erected on the 210-acre estate and attendance reached 38,000.

In addition to its concerts, Tanglewood boasts the Berkshire Music Center, established by Dr. Koussevitzky in 1940.

This is a school for the training of performers through performance, and annually draws musicians from all over the world for a Summer of unique musical experience, both stimulating and practical.

The center has been called the United Nations of music.

Music is everywhere, it comes from the Shed, from every window of the Main House, the Chamber Music Hall, the Theater Concert Hall, the Red Cottage, the Barn.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, is director of the center, and Aaron Copland is chairman of the faculty, which now numbers almost 40.

This year's Music Festival starts July 2, continuing through Aug. 10.

For the 1958 Festival, Dr. Munch will emphasize the music of one of the great composers each weekend and will include important works on the programs of the last four weeks.

During the last four weeks he will be joined by Pierre Monteux, who will be making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood as guest conductor.

Outstanding young American pianists, who will appear as soloists, include Eugene Istomin, Lukas Foss, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario, Seymour Lipkin and Leon Fleisher.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

New Englander
BOSTON, Mass.
Monthly
Circ. 12,558

AUG 1958

"SUMMER center of classical music in the United States." That's what they're calling Tanglewood these days after completion of another noteworthy Berkshire Festival season—its 25th—in a series that has charmed music lovers from all over the country, as well as some foreign nations.

When the festival was first held in 1934 (on the Dan Hanna estate in Stockbridge, Mass.) total attendance was 5,000. Now it draws much more than that to a single performance and plays host to more than 150,000 in its four weekends of major concerts. (Last year the figure was 162,936.)

Since 1936 it's been the summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. That famed group played in a tent in its early concerts at the huge Tanglewood estate, Lenox, Mass., but a severe thunderstorm in the midst of one of its performances provided the impetus for the building of a permanent concert hall, designed by the noted Finnish architect, Eliel Sarrinen.

This hall, known as "The Shed," seats 6,000. The pie-shaped building is enclosed only in the rear portion housing the stage. The rest of the pie opens onto Tanglewood's beautifully landscaped lawns where thousands of enthusiasts drink in the soft strains of music and the superb Berkshire scenery simultaneously.

Next year Tanglewood will be the focal point of a major Hollywood production—"A Tanglewood Story"—to be filmed during the festival season.

9

[252]

[251]

AUSTIN, TEX.
AMERICAN
Circ. D. 34,163

JUN 11 1958

Music in Air

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjin) Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N. J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in East Coast resort areas. (The NY Times makes it 25.) It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this seems a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.
NEWS-PRESS

JUN 10 1958

Summer Music

We now add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. This is the tenth summer for the tents. Most of them open their season in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjil) Terrell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop continues to operate at the same old stand, Lambertville, New Jersey. It begins this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety magazine reports that 22 tent shows will operate this summer. Most of them are in the East Coast resort area. It is estimated that the tent shows will play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Massachussetts opens July 2. The adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

And added to the summer music treats are Kansas City's Starlight Theater and St. Louis' municipal opera at Forest Park. Here at home we have our own municipal band concerts in the beautiful Krug Park Bowl. And these are free too.

EAU CLAIRE WIS.
DAILY TELEGRAM

JUN 10 1958

The Musical Tent on American Scene

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N.J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in the East Coast resort areas. It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1928 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

Reformer &
Vermont Phoenix (e)
BRATTLEBORO, Vt.
Independent
Circ. 7,268

JUN 11 1958

"HEARKEN, HEARKEN, MUSIC FILLS THE AIR—"

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjin) Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N. J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in East Coast resort areas. (The N. Y. Times makes it 25). It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old ~~Tanglewood Festival~~ at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29, and the Marlboro Music Festival opens June 29.

AMARILLO, TEX.
NEWS
Circ. D. 41,916

JUN 17 1958

Musical Tent Tenth Season Opens

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjin) Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N.J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

VARIETY reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in East Coast resort areas. (The NEW YORK TIMES makes it 25.) It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

EAU CLAIRE, WIS.
LEADER

JUN 11 1958

The Musical Tent on American Scene

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their seasons in mid-June.

It was St. John Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N.J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in the East Coast resort areas. It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1928 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

SALEM, N. J.
Standard & Jerseyman
Circ. W. 3,474

JUN 12 1958

Washington, Pa.
The Reporter
June 11, 1958

"Hearken, Hearken, Music Fills The Air—"

Add to the growing roster of American entertainment institutions the musical tent. The tents go into their tenth summer this year, most of them opening their season in mid-June.

It was St. John (Sinjin) Terell who originated the musical tent business back in 1949. His canvastop is still operating at the old stand, Lambertville, N. J., beginning this year's run with the Terell version of the hit Broadway musical, "The Most Happy Fella."

Variety reports that 22 of the tent shows will operate this summer, most but not all of them in East Coast resort areas. (The N. Y. Times makes it 25.) It's estimated they'll play to 3½ million persons. At an average ticket price of $2 this means a gross of $7 million for the 1958 season.

The tents are still a relatively small feature of the vacation music scene. Close to a hundred music festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. The 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass., opens July 2; the adjacent Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners, opens June 29.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.

HUDSON, N. Y.
REGISTER-STAR
D.

JUL 29 1958

In Fifth Week Of Concert Series At Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra is in the fifth week of its six-week summer concert series at Tanglewood. The Tanglewood grounds are located among the winding roads and wooded areas in the Berkshire Hills, a couple of miles west of Lenox, Mass.

The concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra are held in the Tanglewood Music Shed, a fan shaped structure, built in 1938, that remotely resembles the style of construction used in baseball stadii.

The Shed shelters the 5,893 reserved seats but the surrounding lawns are traditionally covered with people lying, resting on blankets listening to the concerts.

Also located on the Tanglewood lawns are a music store, a snack bar, the administrative offices of the Berkshire Music Center, a theater concert hall, a replica of the home of Nathaniel Hawthorne, a chamber music hall, an art gallery, and a rehearsal stage.

The most picturesque view at Tanglewood is found at the Hemlock Gardens, a series of terraces and hedges that overlook Lake Mahkeenac.

The musical calender at Tanglewood is operated on a weekly routine during the six week festival. Symphony concerts are performed Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon in the Shed. Chamber music is played Wednesday night, Friday afternoon, and Sunday morning. Opera is played Monday evenings and the Tanglewood choir occasionally presents concerts on Tuesday. The Berkshire Music Center Orchestra performs concerts on Thursday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 31 1958

Perry Relates History of BSO And Tanglewood

LEE—The Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood gives students the opportunity of rehearsing every day and playing in a concert once a week, an experience not available to students in a conservatory, Thomas D. Perry, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, told the Rotary Club here Tuesday.

Mr. Perry reviewed the history of the BSO and Tanglewood. The orchestra was founded in 1881 by Henry Higginson, a banker who had studied music in Vienna. He supported the orchestra almost entirely alone until 1918, when he turned the organization over to a board of trustees, Mr. Perry said.

In regard to the history of the Berkshire Music Festival, Mr. Perry related that Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Glendale spearheaded its establishment. In 1934, a concert was held at the old Hanna Farm, now Stockbridge School, by an orchestra made up largely of members of the New York Philharmonic. In 1937, concerts by the BSO were given on the estate which is now Foxhollow School. The following year, the concerts were given at Tanglewood, where the Shed was built in 1938 and the school started in 1940.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 399,044

MAY 11 1958

"The Shed" at Tanglewood where music fills the Summer air.

Music Is Everywhere At Famed Tanglewood

In recent years the Berkshire Hills have been dubbed the "Belt of Culture," because of the many and varied programs it offers to visitors.

Undoubtedly the biggest force in this rural transformation is Tanglewood in Lenox, home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival. ~~First held in 1934 on~~ the Dan Hanna estate at Stockbridge, it attracted a total attendance of about 5000—most of them people of social distinction.

Since then it has become the outstanding Summer music festival of the United States—for all people—drawing a huge and heterogenous public from all over.

Last year's total attendance at festival concerts was 162,936.

The Boston Symphony did not fully enter the Berkshire Music Festival scene until 1936 when it gave three concerts at Holmwood in Stockbridge, the estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson.

That Winter the estate of Tanglewood in Lenox was presented to the orchestra, and full-scale concerts got under way the following Summer, Serge Koussevitzky conducting.

By 1938, a permanent auditorium, designed by Finnish architect Eliel Saarinen and known as "The Shed," was erected on the 210-acre estate and attendance reached 38,000.

In addition to its concerts, Tanglewood boasts the Berkshire Music Center, established by Dr. Koussevitzky in 1940.

This is a school for the training of performers through performance, and annually draws musicians from all over the world for a Summer of unique musical experience, both stimulating and practical.

The center has been called the United Nations of music.

Music is everywhere, it comes from the Shed, from every window of the Main House, the Chamber Music Hall, the Theater Concert Hall, the Red Cottage, the Barn.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, is director of the center, and Aaron Copland is chairman of the faculty, which now numbers almost 40.

This year's Music Festival starts July 2, continuing through Aug. 10.

For the 1958 Festival, Dr. Munch will emphasize the music of one of the great composers each weekend and will include important works on the programs of the last four weeks.

During the last four weeks he will be joined by Pierre Monteux, who will be making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood as guest conductor.

Outstanding young American pianists, who will appear as soloists, include Eugene Istomin, Lukas Foss, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario, Seymour Lipkin and Leon Fleisher.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

New Englander
BOSTON, Mass.
Monthly
Circ. 12,558

AUG 1958

"SUMMER center of classical music in the United States." That's what they're calling Tanglewood these days after completion of another noteworthy Berkshire Festival season—its 25th—in a series that has charmed music lovers from all over the country, as well as some foreign nations.

When the festival was first held in 1934 (on the Dan Hanna estate in Stockbridge, Mass.) total attendance was 5,000. Now it draws much more than that to a single performance and plays host to more than 150,000 in its four weekends of major concerts. (Last year the figure was 162,936.)

Since 1936 it's been the summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. That famed group played in a tent in its early concerts at the huge Tanglewood estate, Lenox, Mass., but a severe thunderstorm in the midst of one of its performances provided the impetus for the building of a permanent concert hall, designed by the noted Finnish architect, Eliel Sarrinen.

This hall, known as "The Shed," seats 6,000. The pie-shaped building is enclosed only in the rear portion housing the stage. The rest of the pie opens onto Tanglewood's beautifully landscaped lawns where thousands of enthusiasts drink in the soft strains of music and the superb Berkshire scenery simultaneously.

Next year Tanglewood will be the focal point of a major Hollywood production—"A Tanglewood Story"—to be filmed during the festival season.

9

[252]

HUDSON, N. Y.
REGISTER-STAR
D.

[illegible] 29 1958

In Fifth Week Of Concert Series At Tanglewood

The Boston Symphony Orchestra is in the fifth week of its six-week summer concert series at Tanglewood. The Tanglewood grounds are located among the winding roads and wooded areas in the Berkshire Hills, a couple of miles west of Lenox, Mass.

The concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra are held in the Tanglewood Music Shed, a fan shaped structure, built in 1938, that vaguely resembles the style of construction used in baseball stadii. The Shed shelters the 5,893 reserved seats but the surrounding lawns are traditionally covered with people lying resting on blankets listening to the concerts.

Also located on the Tanglewood lawns are a music store, a snack bar, the administrative offices of the Berkshire Music Center, a theater concert hall, a replica of the home of Nathaniel Hawthorne, a chamber music hall, an art gallery, and a rehearsal stage.

The most picturesque view at Tanglewood is found at the Hemlock Gardens, a series of terraces and hedges that overlook Lake Mahkeenac.

The musical calender at Tanglewood is operated on a weekly routine during the six week festival. Symphony concerts are performed Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoon in the Shed. Chamber music is played Wednesday night, Friday afternoon, and Sunday morning. Opera is played Monday evenings and the Tanglewood choir occasionally presents concerts on Tuesday. The Berkshire Music Center Orchestra performs concerts on Thursday evening.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4300

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUL 31 1958

Perry Relates History of BSO And Tanglewood

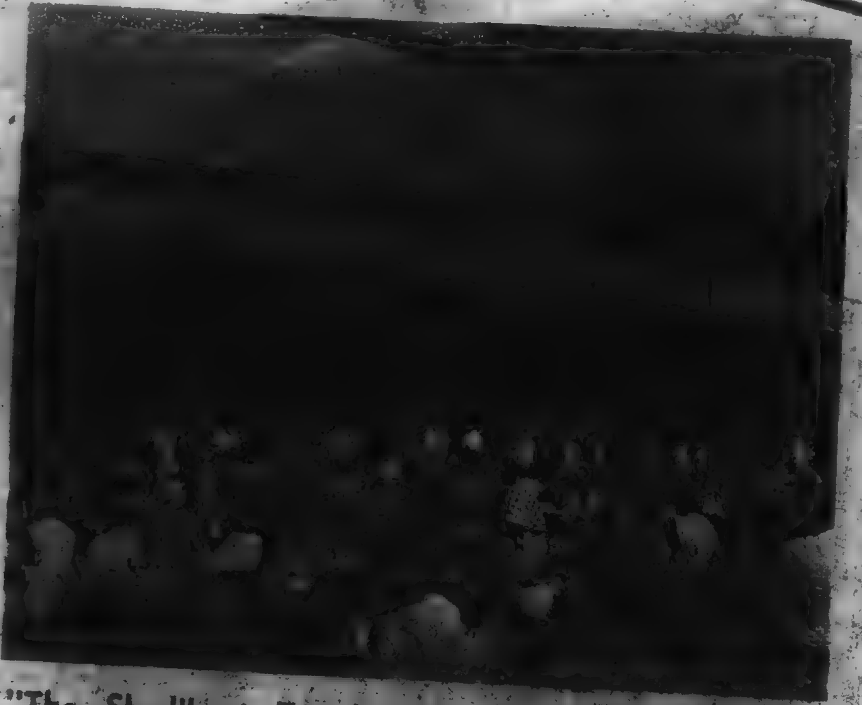
LEE—The Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood gives students the opportunity of rehearsing every day and playing in a concert once a week, an experience not available to students in a conservatory, Thomas D. Perry, manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, told the Rotary Club here Tuesday.

Mr. Perry reviewed the history of the BSO and Tanglewood. The orchestra was founded in 1881 by Henry Higginson, a banker who had studied music in Vienna. He supported the orchestra almost entirely alone until 1918, when he turned the organization over to a board of trustees, Mr. Perry said.

In regard to the history of the Berkshire Music Festival, Mr. Perry related that Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith of Glendale spearheaded its establishment. In 1934, a concert was held at the old Hanna Farm, now Stockbridge School, by an orchestra made up largely of members of the New York Philharmonic. In 1937, concerts by the BSO were given on the estate which is now Foxhollow School. The following year, the concerts were given at Tanglewood, where the Shed was built in 1938 and the school started in 1940.

Sunday Globe
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 399,044

MAY 11 1958



"The Shed" at Tanglewood where music fills the Summer air.

Music Is Everywhere At Famed Tanglewood

In recent years the Berkshire Hills have been dubbed the "Belt of Culture," because of the many and varied programs it offers to visitors.

Undoubtedly the biggest force in this rural transformation is Tanglewood in Lenox, home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Music Festival.

~~First held in 1934~~ on the Dan Henna estate at Stockbridge, it attracted a total attendance of about 5000—most of them people of social distinction.

Since then it has become the outstanding Summer music festival of the United States—for all people—drawing a huge and heterogenous public from all over.

Last year's total attendance at festival concerts was 162,936.

The Boston Symphony did not fully enter the Berkshire Music Festival scene until 1936 when it gave three concerts at Holmwood in Stockbridge, the estate of Mrs. Margaret Emerson.

That Winter the estate of Tanglewood in Lenox was presented to the orchestra, and full-scale concerts got under way the following Summer, Serge Koussevitzky conducting.

By 1938, a permanent auditorium, designed by Finnish architect Eliel Saarinen and known as "The Shed," was erected on the 210-acre estate and attendance reached 38,000.

In addition to its concerts, Tanglewood boasts the Berkshire Music Center, established by Dr. Koussevitzky in 1940.

This is a school for the training of performers through performance, and annually draws musicians from all over the world for a Summer of unique musical experience, both stimulating and practical.

The center has been called the United Nations of music.

Music is everywhere, it comes from the Shed, from every window of the Main House, the Chamber Music Hall, the Theater Concert Hall, the Red Cottage, the Barn.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony, is director of the center, and Aaron Copland is chairman of the faculty, which now numbers almost 40.

This year's Music Festival starts July 2, continuing through Aug. 10.

For the 1958 Festival, Dr. Munch will emphasize the music of one of the great composers each weekend and will include important works on the programs of the last four weeks.

During the last four weeks he will be joined by Pierre Monteux, who will be making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood as guest conductor.

Outstanding young American pianists, who will appear as soloists, include Eugene Istomin, Lukas Foss, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario, Seymour Lipkin and Leon Fleisher.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4300

New Englander
BOSTON, Mass.
Monthly
Circ. 12,558

AUG 1958

"SUMMER center of classical music in the United States." That's what they're calling Tanglewood these days after completion of another noteworthy Berkshire Festival season—its 25th—in a series that has charmed music lovers from all over the country, as well as some foreign nations.

When the festival was first held in 1934 (on the Dan Hanna estate in Stockbridge, Mass.) total attendance was 5,000. Now it draws much more than that to a single performance and plays host to more than 150,000 in its four weekends of major concerts. (Last year the figure was 162,936.)

Since 1936 it's been the summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. That famed group played in a tent in its early concerts at the huge Tanglewood estate, Lenox, Mass., but a severe thunderstorm in the midst of one of its performances provided the impetus for the building of a permanent concert hall, designed by the noted Finnish architect, Eliel Sarrinen.

This hall, known as "The Shed," seats 6,000. The pie-shaped building is enclosed only in the rear portion housing the stage. The rest of the pie opens onto Tanglewood's beautifully landscaped lawns where thousands of enthusiasts drink in the soft strains of music and the superb Berkshire scenery simultaneously.

Next year Tanglewood will be the focal point of a major Hollywood production—"A Tanglewood Story"—to be filmed during the festival season.

INCORRECT PAGINATION

[254]

WFMT
ARTS

A MONTHLY MAGAZINE DEVOTED TO CHICAGO CULTURAL ACTIVITIES, ART FEATURES, AND THE PROGRAMMING OF RADIO STATION WFMT

AUGUST 1958 Volume 7, No. 8

FEATURES

1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood 5
Chicago Artist Etcher: James Swann 7
Highlights of the Month 8

FINE ARTS CALENDAR 9

Concerts 9
Theatre 11
Dance 13
Jazz and Folk Music 13
Special Events 14
Tours 14
Zoos and Conservatories 14
Libraries 16
For the Children 17
Museums 18
Art Galleries 20

WFMT PROGRAM GUIDE 23

©1958, Radio Station WFMT, Gale Broadcasting Co., Inc.
All rights reserved under International and Pan-American Copyright Conventions.
Reproduction in whole or part without written permission is strictly prohibited.

WFMT Fine Arts Guide is published monthly by Radio Station WFMT, the Gale Broadcasting Co., Inc., 221 N. LaSalle St., Chicago 1, Ill.

Subscription rate: $4.00 per year.

If you move, 30 days change-of-address notice in writing is necessary to assure prompt arrival of your Guide. Handling will be facilitated if you send us both your new and old address together with the code number from your old address label.

PARAMUS, N. J.
CLARION

MAY 15 1958

MUSIC

By DELOS SMITH

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (UP) — The Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony, which probably is the best established of the many summer musical enterprises, will be solidly based upon the old masters this year. The so-called "modern" composers are to get in as after-thoughts, so to speak.

No criticism is intended. The schedule only reflects how the big musical public, which supports summer festivals as it does everything else musical, feels about the composers. The old masters draw, the new masters don't. And you have to have a lot of "draw" to induce even musical crowds to travel to some small town to listen to music in a rural setting.

Lenox, Mass., is the small town where the Boston holds forth summer week ends. The festival starts this year on July 4 and ends Aug. 8.

The first week end it will be Bach, the second Mozart, the third Brahms. With the fouth begins the mixing of the old-butless old masters—Debussy, Ravel, Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, with a bare touch of the modern, Stravinsky, Milhaud, Bartok.

A big feature of the season will be a July 6 concert celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club — with the club plus the Radcliffe Choral Society providing the vocal muscle for a performance of Bach's B minor mass. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will do most of the conducting, but he will be spelled in a few concerts by Pierre Monteux.

The Aspen (Colo.) Festival, which has come up in the last few years to be a formidable rival of the Berkshire was faced with the mase problem of audience preference of composers and compromised.

NEW YORK POST, TUESDAY, JUNE 10.

Chamber Music Concerts Listed for Tanglewood

The first of the six Wednesday night chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be given July 2 by the Budapest String Quartet, in quartets by Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven. The others follow:

July 9, The Beaux Arts Trio of N. Y., in works by Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn; July 16, the Pro Music Antiqua, presenting a program of music of Flanders and Spain; July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a program of German and English songs; July 30 and Aug. 6, the Kroll Quartet, in works by Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, Brahms and Bartok.

For further information, contact the festival office at Lenox.

Recorder-Gazette (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,393

JUN 2 1958

Around The Clock

Something For Everyone Tanglewood's Formula

By WAYNE A. SMITH

Tanglewood promises to retain its popularity as it moves this year into its third decade. There will be something for everyone and just about everyone will be there for it.

Attendance since World War II has soared to heights undreamed. And with few exceptions they have continued to surpass the year before. Upward of 10,000 is no novelty for one single concert. Sometimes there have been even more.

Such support must be deserved. There are few occasions like it in this country, few, in fact anywhere in the world. Other festivals court wider interests and therefore get greater patronage. But Tanglewood is strictly music on a very high plane. Its basic character is orchestral with an occasional bow to a chorus and sometimes opera.

Munch Guiding Spirit

The man currently behind and in front of the scenes is Dr. Charles Munch, who succeeded Director Serge Koussevitsky several years ago as conductor of Boston Symphony Orchestra. Upon him rests much of the responsibility for success or failure at Tanglewood.

Dr. Munch is a dynamic personality with a touch of Gallic to add spice and zest. His programs reflect this bit of tang.

For the forthcoming season, which will consist of six week-ends, the festival will include six outstanding young American pianists. Dr. Munch and Pierre Monteux, familiarly known as "Papa", again will share the podium.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D Major, Op. 64, No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A Minor, Op. 7; and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E Minor, Op. 59 No. 2. The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, on July 16. On July 23 Adele Addison, soprano, will present a program of songs and on July 30 and Aug. 6 the Kroll Quartet will play.

During the Bach and Mozart week-ends in the theater-concert hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D-Minor on Saturday evening, July 5, and Seymour Lipkin will perform the Piano Concerto in D Minor, K. 466 by Mozart on Sunday afternoon, July 13.

All-Star Lineup

At the concert of Saturday evening, July 12, which will be in the Music Shed, Foss and Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's two-piano Concerto in E-flat. During the four following week-ends in the Music Shed pianists will be Leon Fleisher on Sunday afternoon, July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D-minor; Byron Janis, performing Bachmininoff's Piano Concerto No. 3, on Saturday evening, July 26; Leonard Pennario on Saturday evening, Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat, and, during the closing week-end devoted to music of Beethoven, this composer's Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor", will be performed by Eugene Istomin on Friday evening, Aug. 8.

The noted violinist, Zino Francescatti, will appear at the concert of Sunday afternoon, July 27, as soloist in the Tschaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will be heard in the "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde", and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung" at the concert of Friday evening, Aug. 1.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B-Minor Mass on Sunday afternoon, July 6, in the Music Shed.

G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for the past 25 years, will conduct the concert which will be performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Harvard Glee Club which this year is noting its 100th anniversary, and the Radcliffe Choral Society, and soloists Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor; and Donald Gramm, bass.

Gramm also will be soloist in the performance on Saturday, July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera and the festival chorus will be prepared by Hugh Ross.

Final Concert Aug. 10

The chorus will also perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Dr. Munch's direction at the final concert of the season, Sunday afternoon, Aug. 10, and will be heard in a choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross at the concert on Sunday afternoon, July 13, in the theater-concert hall.

The music of a great composer will be featured on each of the six week-ends and special works to be heard, in addition to those with soloists, include: Bach, suites 1, 2, 3, 4; the Art of Fugue; by Mozart, "Eine Kleine Nachtmusic", "Linz" Symphony, Symphony No. 40 in G minor; by Brahms, Symphony No. 4, by Debussy, La Mer; by Ravel, "Daphnis and Chloe", Suite No. 2; by Wagner, Prelude to "Meistersinger", Siegfried Idyll, Siegfried's Rhine Journey; by Beethoven, Symphony No. 4.

During this past winter Charles Munch fulfilled a long-standing promise to conduct concerts of the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra. During his stay in Israel he directed five concerts in the newly built Frederic R. Mann Auditorium in Tel Aviv, one in Haifa and one in Jerusalem. On his return he spoke at Symphony Hall, Boston, on some of his impressions of the trip.

Recently he completed a series of guest conducting appearances in Strasbourg, the town of his birth, before returning to this country this week to take up his duties at Tanglewood where he will conduct 13 of the festival concerts. A special performance of Bach's D Minor Mass, July 6, will be directed by G. Wallace Woodworth. Hugh Ross will share the concert of July 13 with Dr. Munch. Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor on July 20, 25 and Aug. 3 and 9.

The opening of Berkshire music fes
wood is marked by the new music shed.
mated at 6,000 atte
tory concert and cer

•

At the gigantic
Festival, held in Tal
20,000 people take pa attracting daily audi listeners. There a choruses, 52 men's women's choruses, a and bands. Estonia
1,000,000 population, festival is truly re
national culture.

•

The State Opera i
the world premier Strauss's opera "Der
July 24. It is hailec piece" by leading c cians.

•

Bach, composer of "Passacaglia" and other musical classics, began as a Lutheran church organist.

•

In celebration of versary of the birth ner, the State Library in Berlin is holding an exhibition of Wagneriana that includes priceless manuscripts, letters, photographs and other material. Tantalizing is an unpublished ago

bert Spalding, and Massimo

eben" in which Hanslick once
th tears in his were caused by not by malice.

wl launches its performance of iere" under the Hageman, who ne bowl. Maria uennhilde, Paul
, and Friedrich

l Maggio Musi-e short operas active evening.
sola disabitata";
Le vergini savie
and Vecchi's

Henry Wood, n's Promenade
marks the open-
of these events.

The second festival held at Silvermine, Connecticut, attracts 40,000 music lovers. Concerts are given both during the day and evenings.

INCORRECT PAGINATION

[254]

WFMT FINE ARTS GUIDE

A MONTHLY MAGAZINE DEVOTED TO CHICAGO CULTURAL ACTIVITIES, ART FEATURES, AND THE PROGRAMMING OF RADIO STATION WFMT

CONTENTS
AUGUST 1958 Volume 7, No. 8

FEATURES

1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood 5
Chicago Artist Etcher: James Swann 7
Highlights of the Month 8

FINE ARTS CALENDAR 9

Concerts 9
Theatre 11
Dance 13
Jazz and Folk Music 13
Special Events 14
Tours 14
Zoos and Conservatories 14
Libraries 16
For the Children 17
Museums 18
Art Galleries 20

WFMT PROGRAM GUIDE 23

©1958, Radio Station WFMT, Gale Broadcasting Co., Inc. All rights reserved under International and Pan-American Copyright Conventions. Reproduction in whole or part without written permission is strictly prohibited.

WFMT Fine Arts Guide is published monthly by Radio Station WFMT, the Gale Broadcasting Co., Inc., 221 N. LaSalle St., Chicago 1, Ill.

Subscription rate: $4.00 per year.

If you move, 30 days change-of-address notice in writing is necessary to assure prompt arrival of your Guide. Handling will be facilitated if you send us both your new and old address together with the code number from your old address label.

Recorder-Gazette (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,393

JUN 20 1958

Around The Clock

Somethin Tanglewo

By WAYNE A. SMITH

Tanglewood promises t tain its popularity this year into its third de There will be something everyone and just about eve will be there for it.

Attendance since Wor War II has soared to heig undreamed. And with few ex ceptions they have conti to surpass the year be Upward of 10,000 is no ra ty for one single conc Sometimes there have b even more.

Such support must be earned. There are few like it in this country, fe fact anywhere in the world er festivals court wider and therefore get greater age. But Tanglewood is str music on a very high esday for boys whose fathers re unable to attend last night.

CHT CLUB BURNS

VINTHROP, Mass. (AP) — A eral alarm fire destroyed the in building at the Pleasant cht Club yesterday. Fire Chief niel Cash estimated damage at ,000.

he blaze, out of control for half hour, was fought by firefighters m Boston, Chelsea, Revere and nthrop.

E. JOBS AT LEVEL

ITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — neral Electric Co. announced terday that its employment el will remain about the same the next three months, with ossible upturn in the last quar of the year. The company said employment level rose this ek for the second straight week first upturn since January, 7.

W DRAINAGE BIDDERS

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — gers, Bennett & Meade Inc. of ymour, Conn., were apparent v bidders with $4,250 for addi ns and alterations to a drainage stem at the Westport, Conn., mily housing area of the Bridge t defense area, the Springfield ice of the Army Engineers re rted yesterday.

E. A. Berman Co. of Boston was only bidder, with $6,973 for erations and additions to an air nditioning system in the opera ns building at the North Con rd, Vt., Air Force Station.

were placed on probation for the washroom beating of a fellow student, Patricia A. White, 13.

Judge Charles R. Alberti adjudged the two girls delinquents for assault and battery, but suspended sentences to custody of the Youth Service Board on probation for four years.

AUCTION ARTICLES SOUGHT

Anyone with articles to be picked up for the Robbins Memorial Church Council auction, July 1, have been asked to notify Mrs. Kenneth Sweet or Mrs. John Anderson who will arrange for collection this afternoon and on Monday afternoon and evening.

member of
He leave
Lucia Russ
Potter; a len; a gra
and a gra
Allen, all
Private
be conduc Cemetery
R. Henley
tional Chu under dire
al Home,

CAR KILL
BILLER
Karen L. daughter
Clegg, wa
bile in he

PICTURE FRAMING
BARRETT & BAKER
310 MAIN ST.

A Davis Laid Floor
Is The Best Laid Floor
Davis Linoleum Shop
9 Mohawk Trail PR 8-7268

Chamber Music Concerts Listed for Tanglewood

NEW YORK POST, TUESDAY, JUN. 10.

The first of the six Wednesday night chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be given July 2 by the Budapest String Quartet, in quartets by Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven. The others follow:

July 9, The Beaux Arts Trio of N. Y., in works by Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn; July 16, the Pro Music Antiqua, presenting a program of music of Flanders and Spain; July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a program of German and English songs; July 30 and Aug. 6, the Kroll Quartet, in works by Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, Brahms and Bartok.

For further information, contact the festival office at Lenox.

PARAMUS, N. J.
CLARION

MAY 15 1958

MUSIC

By DELOS SMITH

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (UP) — The Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony, which probably is the best established of the many summer musical enterprises, will be solidly based upon the old masters this year. The so-called "modern" composers are to get in as after-thoughts, so to speak.

No criticism is intended. The schedule only reflects how the big musical public, which supports summer festivals as it does everything else musical, feels about the composers. The old masters draw, the new masters don't. And you have to have a lot of "draw" to induce even musical crowds to travel to some small town to listen to music in a rural setting.

Lenox, Mass., is the small town where the Boston holds forth summer week ends. The festival starts this year on July 4 and ends Aug. 8.

The first week end it will be Bach, the second Mozart, the third Brahms. With the fouth begins the mixing of the old-but-less old masters—Debussy, Ravel, Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, with a bare touch of the modern, Stravinsky, Milhaud, Bartok.

A big feature of the season will be a July 6 concert celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club — with the club plus the Radcliffe Choral Society providing the vocal muscle for a performance of Bach's B minor mass. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will do most of the conducting, but he will be spelled in a few concerts by Pierre Monteux.

The Aspen (Colo.) Festival, which has come up in the last few years to be a formidable rival of the Berkshire was faced with the mase problem of audience preference of composers and compromised.

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 1958

In the news 20 years ago

At a Lewisohn Stadium in New York are (left to right) Albert Spalding, Jose Iturbi with his granddaughter, Maria Teresa Hero, and Massimo Freccia

The opening of the fifth annual Berkshire music festival at Tanglewood is marked by the dedication of the new music shed. An audience estimated at 6,000 attended the dedicatory concert and ceremonies.

•

At the gigantic Estonia Music Festival, held in Tallinn, more than 20,000 people take part as performers, attracting daily audiences of 60,000 listeners. There are 472 mixed choruses, 52 men's choruses, 27 women's choruses, and 85 orchestras and bands. Estonia has a little over 1,000,000 population, so that this folk festival is truly representative of national culture.

•

The State Opera in Munich gives the world premiere of Richard Strauss's opera "Der Friedenstag" on July 24. It is hailed as a "masterpiece" by leading critics and musicians.

•

In celebration of the 125th anniversary of the birth of Richard Wagner, the State Library in Berlin is holding an exhibition of Wagneriana that includes priceless manuscripts, letters, photographs and other material. Tantalizing is an unpublished excerpt from "Mein Leben" in which Wagner asserts that Hanslick once confessed to him, with tears in his eyes, that his attacks were caused by incomprehension and not by malice.

•

The Hollywood Bowl launches its 17th season with a performance of Wagner's "Die Walkuere" under the baton of Richard Hageman, who makes his debut at the bowl. Maria Jeritza is heard as Bruennhilde, Paul Althouse as Siegmund, and Friedrich Schorr as Wotan.

•

At the fourth annual Maggio Musicale in Florence, three short operas provide the most attractive evening. They are Haydn's "L'Isola disabitata"; a medieval mystery, "Le vergini savie e le vergini folli"; and Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnasso".

•

A tribute to Sir Henry Wood, conductor of London's Promenade Concerts since 1895, marks the opening of the 46th season of these events.

•

The second festival held at Silvermine, Connecticut, attracts 40,000 music lovers. Concerts are given both during the day and evenings.

RADIO STATION
WFMT

station manager	Bernard Jacobs
assistant station manager	Ray Nordstrand commercial manager	James E. Anderson
co-ordinator	Rita Jacobs
program director	Norman Pellegrini
news and continuity director	Robert Lefley
traffic manager	Robert Conrad administrative assistant	Harold Bush
chief announcer	Omar Shapli
staff announcer	Miller Peters circulation manager	Philip W. Ward
office manager	Claire Rooz
art director	Vi Fogle Uretz
publication assistant	Jane Pugh
broadcasting	at 98.7 on the FM dial 6:30 am to 1 am office	221 N. LaSalle Street Chicago 1 STate 2-5668

ABBREVIATIONS

b	bass	fh	french horn	Phil	Philharmonic
bn	bassoon	g	guitar	p-t	playing time
br	baritone	h	harp	s	soprano
c	contralto	hc	harpsichord	sx	saxophone
ce	cembalo	l	lute	Sym	Symphony
cho	chorus, choir, chorale	ms	mezzo-soprano	T	tape recording cl	clarinet	n	narrator	t	tenor
cond	conductor	o	organ	tb	trombone
db	double bass	ob	oboe	tr	trumpet
dir	director	Orch	Orchestra	ty	tympani
eh	english horn	p	piano	v	violin
f	flute	per	percussion	vc	violoncello
		ph	posthorn	vi	viola

Capital letters indicate major keys; small letters, minor keys.

CHARLES MUNCH CONDUCTING THE BOSTON SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA AT TANGLEWOOD

1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood

On August 20th at 8 pm WFMT will present the first in a series of 12 weekly broadcasts of concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra given at the 1958 Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox, Massachusetts. Conductors for the series will be the Orchestra's Music Director, Charles Munch, and Pierre Monteux. Choral performances of Bach and Mozart will be conducted by G. Wallace Woodworth and Hugh Ross.

Some of the concert highlights are the Bach Mass in B Minor, the Brahms "Ein Deutsches Requiem," and the Beethoven Choral Symphony.

The Berkshire Festival grew from a local Berkshire county project for outdoor concerts in Lenox, Massachusetts, undertaken in 1934. The first two seasons, an orchestra from the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Society was engaged under the direction of Henry Hadley. In 1936, the Festival Committee invited the Boston Symphony Orchestra and its conductor, Serge Koussevitzky. Three concerts were given with an attendance of almost 15,000.

In the winter of 1936, the 210-acre estate of "Tanglewood" was presented to the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and in 1937 the Festival was moved there and increased from one to two weeks with six concerts being presented.

Rainy weather during the second week spurred a subscription effort on the part of the Committee to make possible a permanent auditorium. Eighty thousand dollars was raised and the present Music Shed was erected and in readiness for the Festival

CHARLES MUNCH

PIERRE MONTEUX

---

Recorder-Gazette (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,393

JUN 2[illegible] 1958

Around The Clock

Somethin[illegible] Tanglewo[illegible]

By WAYNE A. SMITH

Tanglewood promises [illegible] tain its popularity [illegible] this year into its third de[illegible] There will be something [illegible] everyone and just about eve[illegible] will be there for it.

Attendance since [illegible] War II has soared [illegible] [illegible] Sometimes there have [illegible] even more.

Such support [illegible] [illegible] like it in this country [illegible] and therefore [illegible] age. But Tanglewood is [illegible]

Chamber Music Concerts Listed for Tanglewood

The first of the six Wednesday night chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be given July 2 by the Budapest String Quartet, in quartets by Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven. The others follow:

July 9, The Beaux Arts Trio of N. Y., in works by Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn; July 16, the Pro Music Antiqua, presenting a program of music of Flanders and Spain; July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a program of German and English songs; July 30 and Aug. 6, the Kroll Quartet, in works by Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, Brahms and Bartok.

For further information, contact the festival office at Lenox.

NEW YORK POST, TUESDAY, JUNE 10.

PARAMUS, N. J.
CLARION

MAY 15 1958

MUSIC

By DELOS SMITH

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (UP) — The Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony, which probably is the best established of the many summer musical enterprises, will be solidly based upon the old masters this year. The so-called "modern" composers are to get in as after-thoughts, so to speak.

No criticism is intended. The schedule only reflects how the big musical public, which supports summer festivals as it does everything else musical, feels about the composers. The old masters draw, the new masters don't. And you have to have a lot of "draw" to induce even musical crowds to travel to some small town to listen to music in a rural setting.

Lenox, Mass., is the small town where the Boston holds forth summer week ends. The festival starts this year on July 4 and ends Aug. 8.

The first week end it will be Bach, the second Mozart, the third Brahms. With the foath begins the mixing of the old-but-less old masters—Debussy, Ravel, Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, with a bare touch of the modern, Stravinsky, Milhaud, Bartok.

A big feature of the season will be a July 6 concert celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club — with the club plus the Radcliffe Choral Society providing the vocal muscle for a performance of Bach's B minor mass. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will do most of the conducting, but he will be spelled in a few concerts by Pierre Monteux.

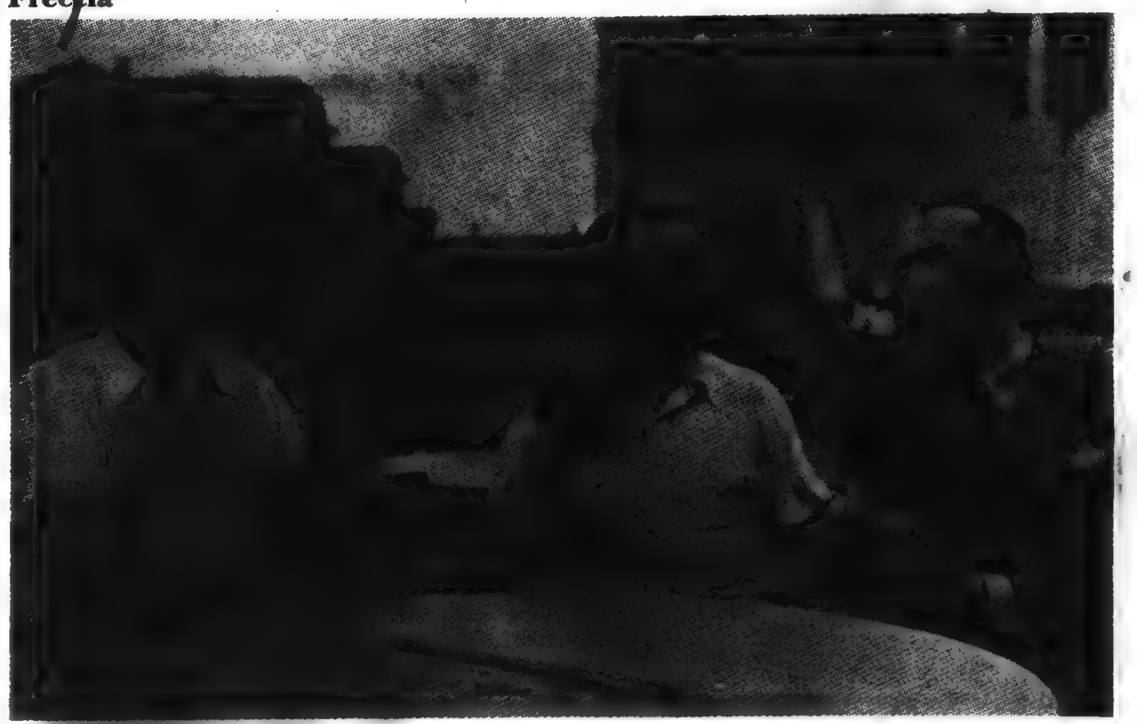
The Aspen (Colo.) Festival which has come up in the last few years to be a formidable rival of the Berkshire was faced with the mase problem of audience preference of composer and compromised.

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 1958

In the news 20 years ago

At a Lewisohn Stadium in New York are (left to right) Albert Spalding, Jose Iturbi with his granddaughter, Maria Teresa Hero, and Massimo Freccia



The opening of the fifth annual Berkshire music festival at Tanglewood is marked by the dedication of the new music shed. An audience estimated at 6,000 attended the dedicatory concert and ceremonies.

At the gigantic Estonia Music Festival, held in Tallinn, more than 20,000 people take part as performers, attracting daily audiences of 60,000 listeners. There are 472 mixed choruses, 52 men's choruses, 27 women's choruses, and 85 orchestras and bands. Estonia has a little over 1,000,000 population, so that this folk festival is truly representative of national culture.

●

The State Opera in Munich gives the world premiere of Richard Strauss's opera "Der Friedenstag" on July 24. It is hailed as a "masterpiece" by leading critics and musicians.

●

In celebration of the 125th anniversary of the birth of Richard Wagner, the State Library in Berlin is holding an exhibition of Wagneriana that includes priceless manuscripts, letters, photographs and other material. Tantalizing is an unpublished excerpt from "Mein Leben" in which Wagner asserts that Hanslick once confessed to him, with tears in his eyes, that his attacks were caused by incomprehension and not by malice.

●

The Hollywood Bowl launches its 17th season with a performance of Wagner's "Die Walkuere" under the baton of Richard Hageman, who makes his debut at the bowl. Maria Jeritza is heard as Bruennhilde, Paul Althouse as Siegmund, and Friedrich Schorr as Wotan.

●

At the fourth annual Maggio Musicale in Florence, three short operas provide the most attractive evening. They are Haydn's "L'Isola disabitata"; a medieval mystery, "Le vergini savie e le vergini folli"; and Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnasso".

●

A tribute to Sir Henry Wood, conductor of London's Promenade Concerts since 1895, marks the opening of the 46th season of these events.

●

The second festival held at Silvermine, Connecticut, attracts 40,000 music lovers. Concerts are given both during the day and evenings.

of 1938.

The famous Finnish architect Eliel Saarinen drew up the original plans for the Shed, and Prof. Richard D. Fay of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology devised the acoustics--with remarkable results. The capacity of the Shed is 6,037.

In 1940, the Boston Symphony, in fulfillment of a plan that had occupied Koussevitzky's mind for many years, established the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood. Primarily a school of music, the Center also was to be a gathering place for all of the arts. Koussevitzky was appointed director.

By 1942 when the Festival was temporarily abandoned because of the war, nine concerts were being presented in a three week season with an attendance of about 95,000.

The Berkshire Music Festival Committee in 1945 presented the Music Shed and full control of future festivals at Tanglewood to the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The next year the Festival and the Music Center resumed activities on a full pre-war scale with the addition of chamber orchestra and chamber music concerts.

THE MUSIC SHED AT TANGLEWOOD

Charles Munch became conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra following Koussevitzky's retirement in 1949, and was appointed Director of the Berkshire Music Center in 1951 after the sudden death of Koussevitzky who had continued his activities at Tanglewood.

Today the Berkshire Festival and Music Center operates for six weeks from July through early August offering orchestral, choral, or chamber music concerts almost daily. Some of these are performed in the Theatre-Concert Hall and the Chamber Music Hall, both of which are smaller than the Music Shed. Attendance at Festival concerts now numbers approximately 163,000.

Recorder-Gazette (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,393

JUN 2[illegible] 1958

Around The Clock

Somethin Tanglewo

By WAYNE A. SMITH

Tanglewood promises [illegible] tain its popularity [illegible] this year into its third de[illegible] There will be something everyone and just about eve[illegible] will be there for it.

Attendance since Wo[illegible] War II has soared to [illegible] undreamed. And with few [illegible] ceptions they have contin[illegible] to surpass the year be[illegible] Upward of 10,000 is no [illegible] ty for one single conc[illegible] Sometimes there have b[illegible] even more.

Such support must be [illegible] served. There are few occa[illegible] like it in this country [illegible] fact anywhere in the world [illegible] er festivals court wider inter[illegible] and therefore get greater [illegible] age. But Tanglewood is str[illegible] music on a very high [illegible] esday for boys whose fathers re unable to attend last night.

---

CHT CLUB BURNS

VINTHROP, Mass. (AP) — A eral alarm fire destroyed the in building at the Pleasant cht Club yesterday. Fire Chief niel Cash estimated damage at ,000.

The blaze, out of control for half hour, was fought by firefighters m Boston, Chelsea, Revere and nthrop.

E. JOBS AT LEVEL

ITTSFIELD, Mass. (AP) — neral Electric Co. announced terday that its employment el will remain about the same the next three months, with ossible upturn in the last quar- of the year. The company said employment level rose this ek for the second straight week, first upturn since January, 7.

W DRAINAGE BIDDERS

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — gers, Bennett & Meade Inc. of ymour, Conn., were apparent v bidders with $4,250 for addins and alterations to a drainage stem at the Westport, Conn., nily housing area of the Bridgert defense area, the Springfield ice of the Army Engineers rerted yesterday.

E. A. Berman Co. of Boston was only bidder, with $6,973 for erations and additions to an air nditioning system in the operans building at the North Conrd; Vt., Air Force Station.

PICTURE FRAMING
BARRETT & BAKER
310 MAIN ST.

A Davis Laid Floor
Is The Best Laid Floor
Davis Linoleum Shop
9 Mohawk Trail PR 3-7268

were placed on probation for the washroom beating of a fellow student, Patricia A. White, 13.

Judge Charles R. Alberti adjudged the two girls delinquents for assault and battery, but suspended sentences to custody of the Youth Service Board on probation for four years.

AUCTION ARTICLES SOUGHT

Anyone with articles to be picked up for the Robbins Memorial Church Council auction, July 1, have been asked to notify Mrs. Kenneth Sweet or Mrs. John Anderson who will arrange for collection this afternoon and on Monday afternoon and evening.

member o

He leave Lucia Russ Potter; a len; a gra and a gra Allen, all

Private be conduc Cemetery R. Henley tional Chu under dire al Home,

CAR KILL

BILLER Karen L. daughter Clegg, wa bile in he

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 1958

In the news 20 years ago

At a Lewisohn Stadium in New York are (left to right) Albert Spalding, Jose Iturbi with his granddaughter, Maria Teresa Hero, and Massimo Freccia

The opening of the fifth annual Berkshire music festival at Tanglewood is marked by the dedication of the new music shed. An audience estimated at 6,000 attended the dedicatory concert and ceremonies.

•

At the gigantic Estonia Music Festival, held in Tallinn, more than 20,000 people take part as performers, attracting daily audiences of 60,000 listeners. There are 472 mixed choruses, 52 men's choruses, 27 women's choruses, and 85 orchestras and bands. Estonia has a little over 1,000,000 population, so that this folk festival is truly representative of national culture.

•

The State Opera in Munich gives the world premiere of Richard Strauss's opera "Der Friedenstag" on July 24. It is hailed as a "masterpiece" by leading critics and musicians.

•

In celebration of the 125th anniversary of the birth of Richard Wagner, the State Library in Berlin is holding an exhibition of Wagneriana that includes priceless manuscripts, letters, photographs and other material. Tantalizing is an unpublished excerpt from "Mein Leben" in which Wagner asserts that Hanslick once confessed to him, with tears in his eyes, that his attacks were caused by incomprehension and not by malice.

•

The Hollywood Bowl launches its 17th season with a performance of Wagner's "Die Walkuere" under the baton of Richard Hageman, who makes his debut at the bowl. Maria Jeritza is heard as Bruennhilde, Paul Althouse as Siegmund, and Friedrich Schorr as Wotan.

•

At the fourth annual Maggio Musicale in Florence, three short operas provide the most attractive evening. They are Haydn's "L'Isola disabitata"; a medieval mystery, "Le vergini savie e le vergini folli"; and Vecchi's "L'Amfiparnasso".

•

A tribute to Sir Henry Wood, conductor of London's Promenade Concerts since 1895, marks the opening of the 46th season of these events.

•

The second festival held at Silvermine, Connecticut, attracts 40,000 music lovers. Concerts are given both during the day and evenings.

NEW YORK POST, TUESDAY, JUNE 10,

Chamber Music Concerts Listed for Tanglewood

The first of the six Wednesday night chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be given July 2 by the Budapest String Quartet, in quartets by Haydn, Bartok and Beethoven. The others follow:

July 9, The Beaux Arts Trio of N. Y., in works by Beethoven, Faure and Mendelssohn; July 16, the Pro Music Antiqua, presenting a program of music of Flanders and Spain; July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a program of German and English songs; July 30 and Aug. 6, the Kroll Quartet, in works by Mozart, Haydn, Beethoven, Brahms and Bartok.

For further information, contact the festival office at Lenox.

PARAMUS, N. J.
CLARION

MAY 15 1958

MUSIC

By DELOS SMITH

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (UP) — The Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony, which probably is the best established of the many summer musical enterprises, will be solidly based upon the old masters this year. The so-called "modern" composers are to get in as after-thoughts, so to speak.

No criticism is intended. The schedule only reflects how the big musical public, which supports summer festivals as it does everything else musical, feels about the composers. The old masters draw, the new masters don't. And you have to have a lot of "draw" to induce even musical crowds to travel to some small town to listen to music in a rural setting.

Lenox, Mass., is the small town where the Boston holds forth summer week ends. The festival starts this year on July 4 and ends Aug. 8.

The first week end it will be Bach, the second Mozart, the third Brahms. With the fouth begins the mixing of the old-but-less old masters—Debussy, Ravel, Tchaikovsky, Rachmaninoff, with a bare touch of the modern, Stravinsky, Milhaud, Bartok.

A big feature of the season will be a July 6 concert celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club — with the club plus the Radcliffe Choral Society providing the vocal muscle for a performance of Bach's B minor mass. Charles Munch, the orchestra's music director, will do most of the conducting, but he will be spelled in a few concerts by Pierre Monteux.

The Aspen (Colo.) Festival which has come up in the last few years to be a formidable rival of the Berkshire was faced with the mass problem of audience preference of composers and compromised.

Highlights of Berkshire Fete at Tanglewood

B. Herald-June 8

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to August 10.

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts. Pierre Monteux will bd guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff.

Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Beri Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahm's "Requiem."

The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theatre-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed.

The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahm; July 25-26-27 music of Deubssy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; August 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and August 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of Chamber Music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital.

SPACIOUS LAWNS

Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Masachusetts.

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall or in he Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns.

Many events of the Boston Symphony's summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performance of Orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera.

Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attraction to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike, the New York Thruway and Route 7 from New York City. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Storrs, Conn.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1958

Connecticut Daily Campus

A Vacation Report

Tanglewood Festival As Hawthorne Sees It

(Editor's Note: Although the Daily CAMPUS stops publishing during a vacation, its coverage of topics of interest to the Storrs community need not halt. From time to time, therefore, The CAMPUS will offer articles on events or activities which will occur, or have occurred, during a vacation.

The first of these articles is on the Tanglewood Music Festival, held every summer near Lenox, Mass. The writer graduated from Uconn last June, was Managing Editor of the Daily CAMPUS, Editor of the Corkscrew, and Executive Director of the International Centrifugal Bumple-Puppy League. He is currently serving as an Air Force radar officer, and has been assigned to Morocco. He is a descendant of Nathaniel Hawthorne, whose haunt the Tanglewood area once was.)

* * *

by MARK HAWTHORNE

You just lie there on the grass, listening to music which you never thought you'd enjoy so much, and pretty soon you notice a sound which you doubt Tchaikovsky included in the original score, and you open your eyes and they are met by the intense gaze of a seven-year-old with emotionally disturbed hair, a "Camp Ted Mack" T-shirt, and green shorts, enthusiastically worrying a generous portion of Beeman's Pepsin with his jaws—saying nothing—just kind of staring at you.

So you say hello very nicely (for all you know he is a "spitter"), and, sensing that he is one of the seven-year-olds who require three minutes to manage even the simplest of vocal responses, you close your eyes. The chewing sound has ceased, but Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony continue. At the end of three minutes you open your eyes, Camp Ted Mack mumbles "hi" through his accumulated reserves of Beeman's Pepsin, resumes chewing, and churns happily off over the Tanglewood lawns, his aim in life fulfilled. Tchaikovsky, Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony continue.

There's no doubt that this is the Tanglewood Music Festival.

Although classical music is the keynote of the annual Tanglewood Festival, it is presented in such a nonchalant setting that you'll enjoy it even if you never thought you liked "long-hair" music before.

Like Newports' Jazz Festival, informality is the pass-word, and the result is a memorable weekend, well worth a trip up the Massachusetts Turnpike at least once during the summer series.

The Festival features six weekend concerts and rehearsal programs. There are concerts on Friday and Saturday evenings, and on Sunday afternoon. In addition, there is a renearsal Saturday morning. Admission prices are reasonable, although tickets must be purchased for each concert.

The Boston Symphony with its conductor Charles Munch summers in the Tanglewood area, and forms the backbone for the concerts—with frequent guest performances by visiting conductors and soloists.

(For a complete advance schedule of Tanglewood's 1959 series keep your eye on the Daily Campus later this year.)

Just outside Lenox, Mass., Tanglewood was once the stamping ground of Nathaniel Hawthorne. As legend and the press releases have it, he roamed the area while preparing his Tanglewood Tales, The Wonder Book, and The House of Seven Gables.

The area was eventually turned into a combination music school, concert spot and lounging site. Smack in the middle of the Berkshire Summer-Camp Belt, the concerts draw as many as 13,000 persons. Attendance for the summer often tops 150,000.

There is no problem on deciding what to wear. Bermuda shorts, chemise dresses, bathing suits or formal evening outfits are all an accepted part of the scene. Since the concerts are conducted in an "open-sided" music-shed, they are easily heard on the lawns surrounding the shed. As one solemn father explained to his son Saturday morning—pointing to the then-deserted lawns: "And they sprawl all over here while the music is playing."

Therefore, aside from a program (free), and possibly a beer-can opener, a blanket is the most essential item for potential "sprawlers." (Don't worry about having a date—if you have the above three items you'll have a date soon enough.)

Dont' worry too much about rain — no one minds it very much — but it's a good idea to take shelter under one of the larger trees when it starts clouding up. If it's just a shower you'll be all set. If it's a heavy storm everyone will be wet anyway, so you won't notice too much. You can retreat to the shelter of the shed, but this is considered somewhat not-In.

The Tanglewood area overlooks Lake Mahkeenac, if you want to dazzle your neighbors with this knowledge when you get there. The name stems from the Indian word "Mahkeenac." The English translation of this word, incidentally, is "Mahkeenac," in case anyone asks you.

A place to sleep—like at Newport—is difficult to find, but does not present much of a problem since no one worries about it. For the tent-types and Outing Club members, October Mountain State Park has excellent camping facilities for one dollar per night. For the rest of us, it's scrabbling for a motel or hotel slot, or sacking out in the old vehicle for a couple of nights.

If you're really conscientious about it you can make reservations ahead of time, but this seems ridiculously sensible to us.

* * *

Look in tomorrow's Daily Campus for Tips and Sights at Tanglwood by Mark Hawthorne.

By CORBIN PATRICK

ston Prize

and Mrs. Easley R. Blackwood, 5656 Crestview Avenue, also has been appointed to the faculty of the University of Chicago Music School, effective Oct. 1, to teach composition.

THE DELIGHT of friends in his success would be complete, but for one discouraging feature. It does not seem likely they will get to hear Blackwood's highly regarded work in the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra's concerts at the Murat next season. It requires 109 musicians. Our noble band has only 80-odd.

We are told the young composer was asked recently by Izler Solomon why he wrote the symphony for such a large orchestra. He replied that he didn't have any idea at the time that anybody would want to play it. Now he knows.

THE BOSTON Symphony Orchestra award has been presented most years since 1947—no award is made when the judges do not regard works under consideration deserving. Previous winners have included Aaron Copland, Walter Piston, Leonard Bernstein, Lucas Foss, Leo Smit and Andrew Imbrie.

Judges who gave the 1958 award to Blackwood's symphony were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston orchestra; Prof. John Ward, head of the Harvard University music school, and Henry B. Cabot, president of the Boston Orchestra's board of trustees.

Blackwood's symphony also was one of two selected from a field of 55 for commercial recordings under the Recording Guarantee Project of the American International Music Fund Inc., of which Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky is president. This may be our chance to hear it.

In

by MARK HA

To at least par
the student who attending a weeke
the Tanglewood M
next summer, he based on previou
of things he may in the course of

One young ma rusack, with a healthy look.

Two young g
blankets, raincoat cases.

Several mother with baby push-car

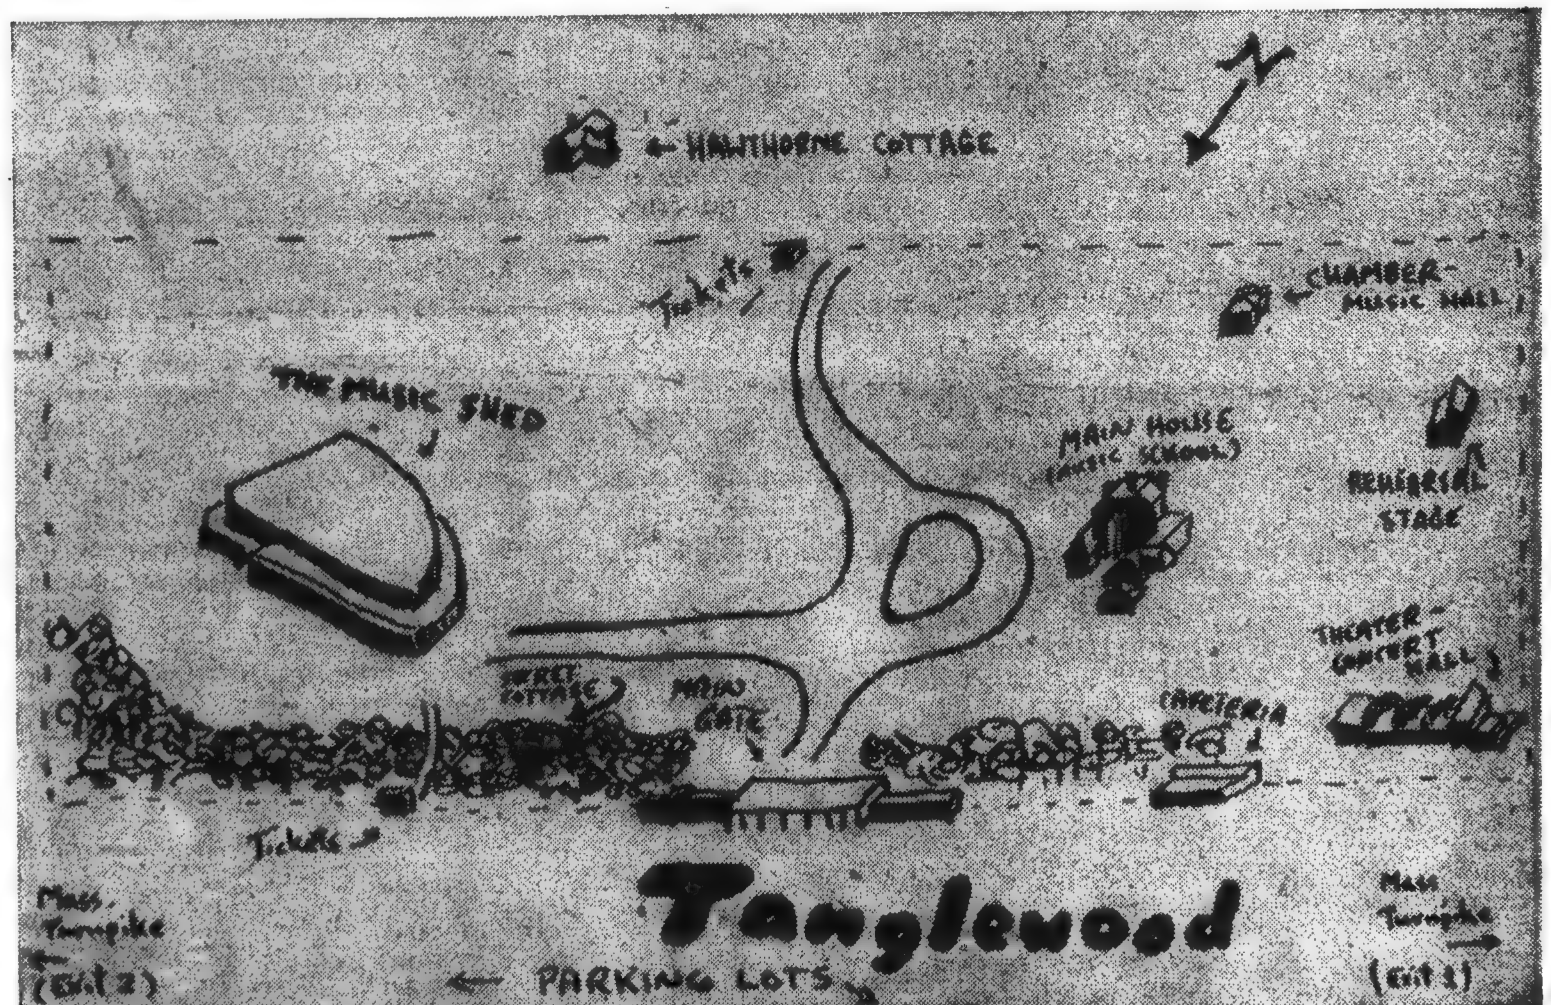
Three collegians neck sweaters tied around their necks in what they consider is In fashion.

Innumerable Bermuda shorts.

Two girls wearing bathing suits.

One boy wearing a bathing suit.

48,097 tons of children.



have music, too!"

One elderly woman, seated on a camp-chair on the lawn, who will whisper loudly at six-minute intervals: "I just know it's going to rain."

Two Uconn students lying on a blanket with a bright-red sign proclaiming (complete phony Manager, works in during the summer concert series.

Within perfect hearing distance of every concert, Mr. Perry is almost completely isolated from the other festival listeners.

See, now you are on the Inside of something.

Shhhhh.

[254]

Storrs, Conn.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1958

A Vacation Report

Connecticut Daily Campus

Tanglewood Festival

Concert Scores Trium
As Annual Series Ope

...ten who are forced to live in ...raternity houses, the forty-...member ruling, and the desira-...ility of fraternity men living ...ogether in their own house."

THIS MOTION was also com-...ented on by IFC President ...obert Schwartz and the Exec-...tive and Administrative Vice ...residents Howard Sorensen ...d Tony Phillips, respectively.

Schwartz said, "I can seen no ...arm in setting up a committee ...o investigate the possibility of ...oving off campus. It has ...een quite sometime since fra-...ernities were required to move ...to University living facilities ...nd since times have changed, ...believe it is in order for a ...eappraisal between the admini-...tration and fraternities con-...erning these living units."

Howard Sorensen, executive ...ice-president of the IFC stated, ...this is a fine idea that has ...een discussed on and off for ...any years. However, I do not ...elieve that now is the proper ...me to present it to the Ad-...inistration. Why? First: the ...own of Mansfield is a "dry" ...own and it will probably give ...iff opposition to the acquisi-...on of any land belonging to ...e town or the townspeople. ...am not referring to the sale ...f liquor only, by using the ...ord "dry". Why haven't the ...usiness-minded people of Henry J. O'Brien said today that "news of the election of Cardinal Roncalli as successor to Pope Pius XII is truly an announcement of great joy to all of us in the Archdiocese of Hartford."

The Archbishop said the "new Pontiff is a man of warm and genial personality . . . he

Travel By Jet

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(UPI) —The director general of the International Air Transport Association says rapid conversion of airlines to jets promises progressive fare reductions. Sir William Hildred said the lower fares will result from lower operating costs. Hildred spoke at the takeoff of the first American commercial jet flight for Paris.

Nuclear Reactor

Washington, Oct. 28—(UPI)— The Atomic Energy Commission says it plans to give Allis-Chalmers Company a license to build an experimental nuclear reactor at Greendale, Wisconsin. Allis-Chalmers intends to use the facility for experiments in connection with a power reactor to be built for Northern States Power Company.

Governor Ribicoff also issued a statement on the election of the new pope. He said, "The people of Connecticut join with me in the prayer that God will grant Pope John XXIII the strength to continue for many years the devoted work of Pope Pius XII in the cause of worldwide peace and understanding."

New Invention

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(UPI) — Sylvania Electric Products Incorporated has announced the development of a new type of emergency rescue radio beacon for aircraft. Sylvania's engineering laboratory developed the new semi-automatic equipment under a prime contract for the air material command.

Recession Over

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—(UPI) — Fortune magazine says it thinks the business recovery from the recent recession is going right into a boom. It listed a group of economic indicators which it says add up to a recovery- that's beginning to develop the steam of a real boom. The magazine said the gross national product probably is reaching the 1957 prosperity peak in the present quarter and probably will set new highs next year.

Highlights of Berkshire Fete at Tanglewood

B. Herald-Jnl

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to August 10.

Charles Munch, Music Director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts. Pierre Monteux will bd guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6 with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt, and Rachmaninoff.

Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky; and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. Mr. de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him.

Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahm's "Requiem."

The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on August 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theatre-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theatre-Concert Hall) and the final four week ends by the full Boston Symphony Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed.

The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahm; July 25-26-27 music of Deubssy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; August 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and August 8, 9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of Chamber Music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital.

SPACIOUS LAWNS

Single tickets for all concerts are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Masachusetts.

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theatre-Concert Hall or in he Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns.

Many events of the Boston Symphony's summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performance of Orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera.

Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attraction to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike, the New York Thruway and Route 7 from New York City. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.
STAR
Circ. D. 208,258 - S. 320,603

JUN 17 1958

CONCERT HALL

By CORBIN PATRICK

Blackwood Wins Boston Prize

EASLEY BLACKWOOD JR., 25-year-old Indianapolis composer whose star has been rising fast this year, yesterday received the Boston Symphony Orchestra's merit award of $1,000.

The handsome prize was given for his Symphony No. 1, which the Boston Orchestra played for the first time in April.

Blackwood, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Easley R. Blackwood, 5656 Crestview Avenue, also has been appointed to the faculty of the University of Chicago Music School, effective Oct. 1, to teach composition.

THE DELIGHT of friends in his success would be complete, but for one discouraging feature. It does not seem likely they will get to hear Blackwood's highly regarded work in the Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra's concerts at the Murat next season. It requires 109 musicians. Our noble band has only 80-odd.

We are told the young composer was asked recently by Izler Solomon why he wrote the symphony for such a large orchestra. He replied that he didn't have any idea at the time that anybody would want to play it. Now he knows.

THE BOSTON Symphony Orchestra award has been presented most years since 1947—no award is made when the judges do not regard works under consideration deserving. Previous winners have included Aaron Copland, Walter Piston, Leonard Bernstein, Lucas Foss, Leo Smit and Andrew Imbrie.

Judges who gave the 1958 award to Blackwood's symphony were Charles Munch, conductor of the Boston orchestra; Prof. John Ward, head of the Harvard University music school, and Henry B. Cabot, president of the Boston Orchestra's board of trustees.

Blackwood's symphony also was one of two selected from a field of 55 for commercial recordings under the Recording Guarantee Project of the American International Music Fund Inc., of which Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky is president. This may be our chance to hear it.

Inside Tanglewood

by MARK HAWTHORNE

To at least partially prepare the student who is considering attending a weekend concert of the Tanglewood Music Festival next summer, here is a list, based on previous experience, of things he may expect to see in the course of the weekend:

One young man wearing a rusack, with a disgustingly healthy look.

Two young girls holding blankets, raincoats and suitcases.

Several mothers, complete with baby push-carts and babies.

Three collegians with crewneck sweaters tied around their necks in what they consider is in fashion.

Innumerable Bermuda shorts.

Two girls wearing bathing suits.

One boy wearing a bathing suit.

48,097 tons of children.

Sixteen Camp Ted Mack delegates (with chewing gum).

No sign of Ted Mack.

Four Princeton students mixing gin and tonics under an oak tree.

One panic-stricken man shh-shhing people, who is in charge of the many ushers and usherettes (a job Uconn's Willard Sistare used to hold incidentally).

One collegian with his arm around a girl, seated on a blanket outside the shed, who — when the first notes of the evening's concert sound — will exclaim delightedly: "Hey, they have music, too!"

One elderly woman, seated on a camp-chair on the lawn, who will whisper loudly at six-minute intervals: "I just know it's going to rain."

Two Uconn students lying on a blanket with a bright-red sign proclaiming (complete with arrow): "Newport Jazz Festival."

Keep this quiet, but if you want to see something really neat while you're at Tanglewood, take a sharp left when you come through the main ticket entrance (face away from the concession stand) and you'll see a path almost hidden by the pines.

Go down this path a few feet, and nestled in the trees, not 100 yards from the music shed, you will find — no, silly, not a gingerbread house — you will find a cottage which Thomas D. Perry Jr., the Boston Symphony Manager, works in during the summer concert series.

Within perfect hearing distance of every concert, Mr. Perry is almost completely isolated from the other festival listeners.

See, now you are on the inside of something.

Shhhhh.

[254]

New England Newsclip Agency, In
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-42
Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354
AUG 2 1958

People and things back stage seem to possess a flavor of urgency, a taste of tension, which come from a ceaseless quest of perfect performance. Reflecting this mood is Spanish dancer Angel Mancheno, making up before performing at Jacob's Pillow.

Dancer Maria Gloria during rehearsal at Jacob's Pillow.

ON THE COVER is Miss Ingrid Meighan of Old Chatham, N.Y., an apprentice at the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge. Drill in hand, she's helping build the set for production of "Noah." Photo by William H. Tague.

Charles Munch and soloist Zino Francescatti at Tanglewood.

Back Stage

Photographed by Constantine Manos

Jose Lopez, Spanish ballet dancer, and three shadows, Jacob's Pillow.

Brooding pianos back stage in the theater concert hall, Tanglewood.

[256]

NEW HAVEN, CONN.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 95,656 - S. 101,553

JUN 22 1958

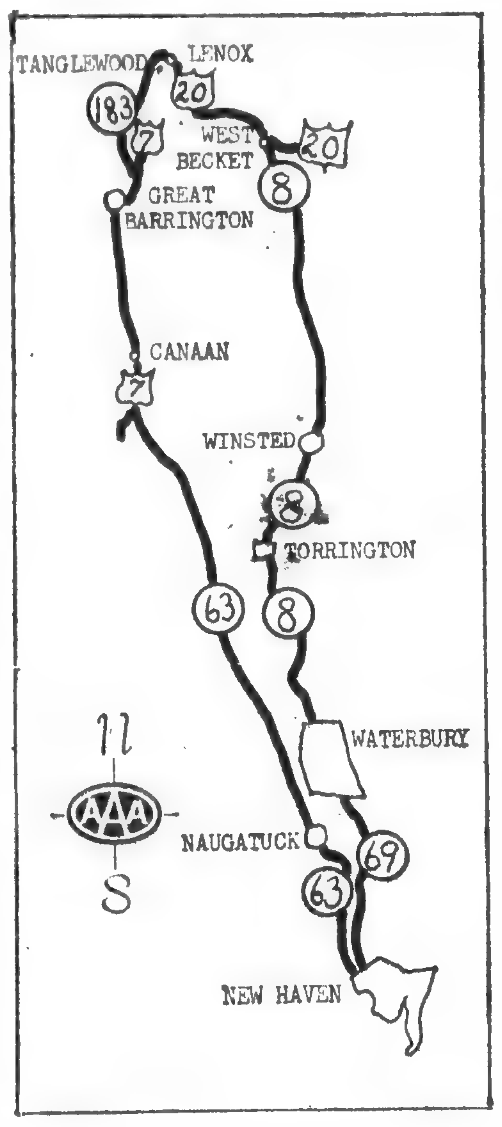
AAA WEEKEND TOURIST

Visit To Tanglewood

This AAA suggestion involves a pleasant trip to a spot with literary and musical overtones, Tanglewood in the Berkshires. Here the Boston Symphony appears every summer in a series of concerts.

A round trip of 185 miles is involved for New Haven residents who take Route 63 through Naugatuck to Canaan and then U.S. Route 7 north to Great Barrington, Mass. This is both a summer and a winter resort center and, just before entering town, the party passes the fair grounds where the annual fair in September is one of the state's biggest.

A few miles beyond town Route 183 angles off to the left. After a few more miles it crosses Route 102 curves around a beautiful lake known as the Stockbridge Bowl, about three miles out of Lenox. Now the group approaches the Dixey Estate, site of the Berkshire Music Festival and the location of the little red house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote his famous book, "The House of the Seven Gables," and collected material for his "Tanglewood Tales."



On this estate is the music shed where the concerts are given. Two types of accomodations are available. Some prefer to be in the music shed itself, closer to the music and seated, but many like the beautiful grounds outside where they may loll at ease or even walk around if it pleases them.

A visit offers an entertaining spectacle, even in addition to the music. Those who prefer to be outside the shed present an amazing contrast in costumes covering almost the entire field of attire. The first-time visitor is apt to get the impression that this is a giant "come as you are" party where everyone arrives garbed as they were when the invitation was received.

SPECTACULAR VIEW

The view from the grounds is close to spectacular, and the visitor might be advised to attend the concert, picnic on the grounds after it, and then take a short tour. The formal garden is a must on the list.

Leaving, the party drives into Lenox and then south on U.S. Route 20 for a dozen miles to West Becket where U.S. 20 cuts east, but the party heads south on Route 8. About 13 miles from here near New Boston is a view of Hanging Mountain, a perpendicular cliff about 300 feet high. Jutting out above the base are masses of rock that appear ready to plunge into the Farmington River. Fragments loosened by the rain and frost do sometimes come crashing down with tremendous force.

Route 8 continues south, passing through Winsted and Torrington and into Waterbury where the party picks up Route 69 and follows it in a southerly direction back to New Haven.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 1078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Citizen (e)
WINSTED, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 3,653

AUG 14 1958

Weekend Traveler

(Prepared by the Conn. Motor Club, AAA)

Tanglewood

This AAA suggestion involves a pleasant trip to a spot with literary and musical overtones, Tanglewood in the Berkshires. Here the Boston Symphony appears every summer in a series of concerts.

A round trip of 85 miles is involved for Winsted residents who take U. S. Route 44 westerly to Canaan and then U. S. Route 7 north to Great Barrington, Mass. This is both a summer and winter resort center and, just before entering town, the party passes the fair grounds where the annual fair in September is one of the state's biggest.

A few miles beyond town Route 183 angles off to the left. After a few more miles it crosses Route 102 and curves around a beautiful lake known as the Stockbridge Bowl, about three miles out of Lenox. Now the group approaches the Dixey Estate, site of the Berkshire Music Festival and the location of the little red house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote his famous book, "The House of the Seven Gables," and collected material for his "Tanglewood Tales."

On this estate is the music shed where the concerts are given. Two types of accommodations are available. Some prefer to be in the music shed itself, closer to the music and seated, but many like the beautiful grounds outside where they may loll at ease or even walk around if it pleases them.

A visit offers an entertaining spectacle, even in addition to the music. Those who prefer to be outside the shed present an amazing contrast in costumes covering almost the entire field of attire. The first-time visitor is apt to get the impression this is a giant "come as you are party" where everyone arrives garbed as they were when the invitation was received.

The view from the grounds is close to spectacular, and the visitor might be advised to attend the concert, picnic on the grounds after it, and then take a short tour. The formal garden is a must on the list.

Leaving, the party drives into Lenox and then south on U. S. Route 20 for a dozen miles to West Becket where U. S. 20 cuts east, but the party heads south on Route 8. About 13 miles from here near New Boston is a view of Hanging Mountain, a perpendicular cliff about 300 feet high. Jutting out above the base are masses of rock that appear ready to plunge into the Farmington River. Fragments loosened by the rain and frost do come crashing down with tremendous force.

Route 8 continues south, leading back to Winsted.

Register (e)
TORRINGTON, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 10,814

JUL 3 1958

TANGLEWOOD

This AAA suggestion involves a pleasant trip to a spot with literary and musical overtones, Tanglewood in the Berkshires. Here the Boston Symphony appears every summer in a series of concerts.

A round trip of 100 miles is involved for Torrington residents who take Route 4 west to Goshen and then northerly on Route 63 to the junction with U. S. Route 7 south of Canaan. Then north on U. S. 7 to Great Barrington, Mass. This is both a summer and winter resort center and just before entering town, the party passes the fair grounds where the annual fair in September is one of the state's biggest.

A few miles beyond town Route 183 angles off to the left. After a few more miles it crosses Route 102 and curves around a beautiful lake known as the Stockbridge Bowl, about three miles out of Lenox. Now the group approaches the Dixey Estate, site of the Berkshire Music Festival and the location of the little red house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote his famous book, "The House of the Seven Gables," and collected material for his "Tanglewood Tales."

On this estate is the music shed where the concerts are given. Two types of accommodations are available. Some prefer to be in the music shed itself, closer to the music and seated, but many like the beautiful grounds outside where they may loll at ease or even walk around if it pleases them.

A visit offers an entertaining spectacle, even in addition to the music. Those who prefer to be outside the shed present an amazing contrast in costumes covering almost the entire field of attire. The first - time visitor is apt to get the impression this is a giant "come as you are" party where everyone arrives garbed as they were when the invitation was received.

The view from the grounds is close to spectacular, and the visitor might be advised to attend the concert, picnic on the grounds after it, and then take a short tour. The formal garden is a must on the list.

Leaving, the party drives into Lenox and then south on U. S. Route 20 for a dozen miles to West Becket where U. S. 20 cuts east, but the party heads south on Route 8. About 13 miles from here near New Boston is a view of Hanging Mountain, a perpendicular cliff about 300 feet high. Jutting out above the base are masses of rock that appear ready to plunge into the Farmington River. Fragments loosened by the rain and frost do come crashing down with tremendous force.

Route 8 continues south, passing through Winsted and leading back to Torrington.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
World-Telegram & Sun
Circ. D. 569,290 - Sat. 232,097

JUN 10 1958

Travel Notes

"Money Saving World Travel Trips" is the title of a little booklet put out by Railway Express Agency which you can have for the asking. Write them at 219 W. 42nd St. . . . Craftsman's Fair on the Southern Highlands takes place July 14 at the Asheville (N. C.), Auditorium. . . . A new Holiday on Wings catalog, listing 97 vacation packages to almost every resort area in the U.S. plus popular foreign vacation areas, has been issued by American Airlines.

* * *

Swedish American Line's cruise program for the fall and winter season features eight West Indies cruises varying from seven to 10 days. . . "The Drama of the Alamo," Mission San Jose Outdoor Theater, San Antonio, Tex., starts June 21. . . . Greyhound Lines is offering literally hundreds of preplanned tours ranging from a weekend in large cities to two-month-long vacations. . . . The Poconos—known as the vacation land of Pennsylvania, and a honeymoon haven—have become the No. One contender for another crown—Golf Mecca of the East.

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will be run from July 2 to Aug. 10. . . . Scandinavian Airlines System reports that "Calling All Tourists"—an English language innovation of Radio Sweden—will be heard again this year. . . . For the first time in the history of Asbury Park, N. J., all the beaches are now being operated directly by the municipality. . . .

With the introduction this month of a daily service between London and Dinard, the Viscount jet-prop fleet of British European Airways is now serving 58 of the major cities throughout Europe and Africa.

* * *

Pan American World Airways now offers New York-bound Puerto Ricans and vice versa a giant "thrift lift" accommodating from 430 to 650 travelers a day. . . . Americans who want to combine a summertime visit to Canada with a cruise up the St. Lawrence River should consult Canada Steamship Lines, c/o Wendell P. Colton, 750 Third Ave. (Oxford 7-2250.)

DAVID VESTAL

1

Starting here, CHARM'S monthly reportage on entertainment and ideas, new faces and places

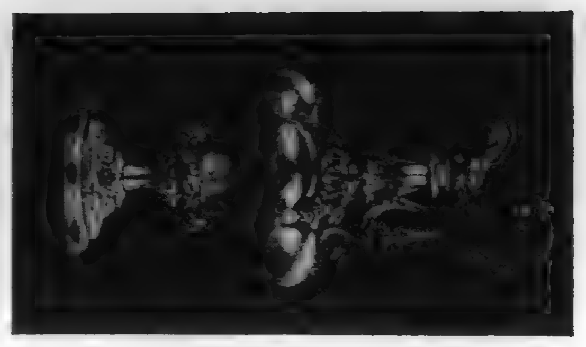
DO YOU KNOW...?

. . . that it's half past summer, but the summer's fun isn't half over? There's still time to try skin-diving (well, once anyway), buy a Fiberglas sailboat, join a bird-watching society. Some of the 8,000 Americans who have, at work (1). And it's not too late to think of adding the most fetching thing since pony carts to the family garage—the Lambretta motor scooter, equipped with a basket big enough to hold two small children.

. . . that picnics are still in season, and that for a new kind of clambake you could try mussels? They were introduced this year by the Saltwater Farm of Damariscotta, Maine, who will send them to you packed up in rockweed and ice at $4.75 a peck, enough for six hungry gourmets.

. . . that summer festivals are still happening? It's not too late to make Tanglewood, where, this month, Beethoven lovers will be sitting under the trees listening to Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux make beautiful night-music. The neighbors are busy too: Canada's Stratford Festival is making much ado about Molière (with a bright young cast of French Canadians), and the Vancouver International Festival is putting on a fine show of music, Marcel Marceau, and movies.

2



TRANSFILM, INC.

. . . that America will be facing one of its biggest sporting challenges in years next month? (Every sailing man knows, and so does his woman.) It's the yacht race for America's Cup (2), a gaudy Victorian trophy that hasn't been contended for since 1937, when we won it from England for the 17th straight time. It's nailed to its table and the table to the floor in a room of the New York Yacht Club, a testament to the U.S. view of our chances this time around.

. . . that chair design follows the fashion as the night the day, producing right now a "chemise chair," to solve the problem of the skidding-up hemline?

of the property.

lakes and ponds and friendly crests which reach their peak in

---

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729

JUN 13 1958

Tourist

Written for The Christian Science

When you come to Mas setts for a vacation you m it advantageous to start Hub. Trails in history, a entific achievement, and splendor stem from Bost

The only trouble is, on get in you find it difficult out. Not because of streets—you get to like t or of baffling thoroughfar because Boston so grips th agination that it leaves time to get beyond its bo

Let's put it this way, commonalty, not the Brah will tell you: "It has a wa it."

Boston revolves aroun Common. Like any other eyeful in the center of the Common strikes newc as a pleasant area for p pigeons, and squirrels. It is than that. It is a historic mark. Once a cow pastu recently had a happy rem of its primitive beginning men started boring unde foundations of once-stately sions and found cow tu under Park Street, leading Common. It figured in the lution and its mellow paths been trod by men whose ings have spread over the seas.

All around Boston Com you will find traces of 18 an century houses, in which who helped to lay the fou tions of America. With wives and daughters they en ained friends at parties talked in subdues tones of ing transactions. Entertai came easier then.

Dollar Stretched

The dollar had the stretc qualities of a rubber band. late as 1854 you could ge meal at a good hotel in do town Boston for less than cents. Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, which has completed more than a century in business, reports that you could get lodging at a first-rate hotel for 25 cents and a breakfast of buckwheat cakes, butter, toast, and beverage for six cents.

Most of the old buildings have disappeared. But enough are left to make a journey on foot both intersting and rewarding. Within a few hours you can see Paul Revere House, a 17th-century dwelling and the first milestone of romance; the Old North Church, where signal lanterns were hung in the Revolutionary War; Faneuil Hall and the Old South Meeting House, which resounded to the call "No taxation without representation"; Bunker Hill Monument; "Old Ironsides," the frigate Constitution, proud masts of which cast

---

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
JOURNAL AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

JUL 6 1958

CARRIAGE TRADE . . . Everybody can qualify for the carriage trade title in the Gaspe Peninsula of Quebec Province, for this picturesque old-world region of Canada dotes on the horse and carriage. Visitors from the United States find this area picturesque and decidedly rural.

Montreal to Bermuda Air Route Planned

By JOHN WHITELEY

EAGLE Airways (Bermuda) Ltd., which began its seven-flight weekly service May 1, New York to Bermuda, plans to establish a Montreal-Bermuda route by early Fall.

The designated flag-carrier for the British Island colony, Eagle is the only airline flying the new Vickers 805 between New York and Bermuda.

Air Commodore G. J. Powell, special adviser to the airline, reports that flights have been up to schedule with arrivals and departures "on time or early" 90 per cent of the time.

Eagle's advance bookings indicate a banner season for the airline and tourist traffic to Bermuda. According to the Bermuda Trade Development Board figures, the island has been enjoying a steadily increasing number of visitors over the past 10 years. In 1956, 109,131 persons visited the resort, and last year the count rose to 120,989.

Air Commodore Powell says that the aim of Eagle is to "make the passenger feel he is in Bermuda as soon as he boards the plane at Idlewild." During the less than three-hour flight the airline serves a specially prepared afternoon tea which in parts of Britain would be described as a "high tea."

• • •

Starting July 13, and continuing for five successive Sundays, the New Haven Railroad will run special excursions to the "Tanglewood" concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Lenox, Mass.

For a single price, the railroad sells a round-trip ticket, general admission to the music shed, and round-trip bus ticket between the railroad and the scene of concerts. Trains will leave Grand Central Station at 8:20 a. m. and return at 10:12 p. m.

• • •

Flight crews of Eastern Air Lines planes operating over the Northern Division connecting New York and intermediate points with Montreal and Ottawa, Canada, have been furnished with maps and background information about the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Passengers are briefed via the public address system as the vast diggings and concrete structures unfold below them.

• • •

Ralph Herbert, a veteran Chicago automobile distributor, has been elected president of the $4,000,000 Cadillac Hotel, 40th st. and the Ocean, Miami Beach, Fla.

For the past 10 years Herbert has been associated with the automobile leasing and renting business at leading Miami Beach hotels. He has announced a complete new social program for guests of the Cadillac during the Summer season.

• • •

Ben Kaplan, executive secretary of the Sullivan County Hotel Association announces that Philip Schweid (The Pines), Charles Brown (Brown's) and Ben Posner (The Brickman) will serve as co-chairman of the second annual Sullivan County Tag Day for the United Jewish Appeal which will be held on Aug. 2.

More than 100 hotels participated in the one-day drive last year and the chairmen hope to double that number this year.

Ship to Make Shakedown Run

THE new Hamburg-Atlantic Line's S.S. Hanseatic will leave her Hamburg shipyard July 15 for a short "shakedown" run preparatory to her initial sailing July 21 from Cuxhaven, on Hamburg-Atlantic's service to New York. This is announced by Home Lines Agency, Inc., representative in North America for Hamburg-Atlantic.

[252]

. . . Do you know the nice new phrase for the words-words-words school of writing? "Verbal glut" comes out of Edmund Fuller's literate book of minority opinion, Man and Modern Fiction.

Tempting nonglut reading for summer days still to come: The Hard Blue Sky, by Shirley Ann Grau (3), a brilliant evocation of a Louisiana island world; Alex Karmel's brief, luminous Mary Ann; and a certain smash, coming in September, Rona Jaffe's first novel, The Best of Everything, a fizzy mix of sex and sentiment that could be described as the working girl's Decameron.

3

ELLIOT HEWITT

. . . Do you know that jazz-cum-poetry-reading has practically become a national pastime? (Latest spot for it: Dallas.) Lots of honest cats resent the voice of the poet drowning out the tenor sax, but are likely to cheer Langston Hughes backed by Red Allen's trumpet. Hear them on M-G-M's new album, "Weary Blues."

4

DAVID VESTAL

. . . Do you know that two writers can marry each other and live happily ever after? Robert Paul and Eleanor Goulding Smith, who run to such titles as How to Do Nothing All Alone by Yourself (his newest), and The Absolutely Complete Book of Perfect Housekeeping (hers—a new one is to come), combine writing and matrimony with absolutely perfect success. With their two sons and a frenetic Labrador retriever, they inhabit an unfashionably middle-aged and comfortable white house in Scarsdale, N.Y., and studiously avoid such suburban pleasures as gardening and barbecues.

Mrs. Smith, a pretty brunette who quietly admits to mismanaging most things connected with a house, works in the study. Mr. Smith does his writing in the attic, and may be the only man in Scarsdale who has a telephone that rings in his garden.

The Smiths (4) are photographed during one of the rare moments when every member of the family happens to be on the same part of the property.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729

JUN 13 1958

Tourist

Written for The Christian Science

Bo

When you come to Mas setts for a vacation you m it advantageous to start Hub. Trails in history, a entific achievement, and splendor stem from Bost
The only trouble is, on get in you find it difficult out. Not because of n streets—you get to like t or of baffling thoroughfar because Boston so grips th agination that it leaves
time to get beyond its bo
Let's put it this way, commonalty, not the Brah will tell you: "It has a way it."
Boston revolves aroun
Common. Like any other eyeful in the center of a the Common strikes newc
as a pleasant area for p pigeons, and squirrels. It is than that. It is a historic mark. Once a cow pastu recently had a happy rem of its primitive beginning men started boring unde foundations of once-stately sions and found cow tu under Park Street, leading Common. It figured in the R lution and its mellow paths been trod by men whose ings have spread over the s seas.
All around Boston Com
you will find traces of 18 an century houses, in which who helped to lay the fou tions of America. With wives and daughters they en ained friends at parties talked in subdues tones of ing transactions. Entertai came easier then.

Dollar Stretched

The dollar had the stretc qualities of a rubber band.
late as 1854 you could ge meal at a good hotel in do town Boston for less than cents. Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, which has completed more than a century in business, reports that you could get lodging at a first-rate hotel for 25 cents and a breakfast of buckwheat cakes, butter, toast, and beverage for six cents.

Most of the old buildings have disappeared. But enough are left to make a journey on foot both intersting and rewarding. Within a few hours you can see Paul Revere House, a 17th-century dwelling and the first milestone of romance; the Old North Church, where signal lanterns were hung in the Revolutionary War; Faneuil Hall and the Old South Meeting House, which resounded to the call "No taxation without representation"; Bunker Hill Monument; "Old Ironsides," the frigate Constitution, proud masts of which cast their inventive genius.

Right in the Berkshires themselves lies Tanglewood, widely known for its music festival and summer concerts, while all around is a land studded with lakes and ponds and friendly crests which reach their peak in

---

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
JOURNAL AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

JUL 6 1958

CARRIAGE TRADE . . . Everybody can qualify for the carriage trade title in the Gaspe Peninsula of Quebec Province, for this picturesque old-world region of Canada dotes on the horse and carriage. Visitors from the United States find this area picturesque and decidedly rural.

Montreal to Bermuda Air Route Planned

By JOHN WHITELEY

EAGLE Airways (Bermuda) Ltd., which began its seven-flight weekly service May 1, New York to Bermuda, plans to establish a Montreal-Bermuda route by early Fall.

The designated flag-carrier for the British Island colony, Eagle is the only airline flying the new Vickers 805 between New York and Bermuda.

Air Commodore G. J. Powell, special adviser to the airline, reports that flights have been up to schedule with arrivals and departures "on time or early" 90 per cent of the time.

Eagle's advance bookings indicate a banner season for the airline and tourist traffic to Bermuda. According to the Bermuda Trade Development Board figures, the island has been enjoying a steadily increasing number of visitors over the past 10 years. In 1956, 109,131 persons visited the resort, and last year the count rose to 120,382.

Air Commodore Powell says that the aim of Eagle is to "make the passenger feel he is in Bermuda as soon as he boards the plane at Idlewild." During the less than three-hour flight the airline serves a specially prepared afternoon tea which in parts of Britain would be described as a "high tea."

* * *

Starting July 13, and continuing for five successive Sundays, the New Haven Railroad will run special excursions to the "Tanglewood" concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Lenox, Mass.

For a single price, the railroad sells a round-trip ticket, general admission to the music shed, and round-trip bus ticket between the railroad and the scene of concerts. Trains will leave Grand Central Station at 8:20 a. m. and return at 10:12 p. m.

* * *

Flight crews of Eastern Air Lines planes operating over the Northern Division connecting New York and intermediate points with Montreal and Ottawa, Canada, have been furnished with maps and background information about the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Passengers are briefed via the public address system as the vast diggings and concrete structures unfold below them.

* * *

Ralph Herbert, a veteran Chicago automobile distributor, has been elected president of the $4,000,000 Cadillac Hotel, [illegible] and the Ocean, Miami Beach, Fla.

For the past 10 years Herbert has been associated with the automobile leasing and renting business at leading Miami Beach hotels. He has announced a complete new social program for guests of the Cadillac during the Summer season.

* * *

Ben Kaplan, executive secretary of the Sullivan County Hotel Association announces that Philip Schweid (The Pines), Charles Brown (Brown's) and Ben Posner (The Brickman) will serve as co-chairman of the second annual Sullivan County Tag Day for the United Jewish Appeal which will be held on Aug. 2.

More than 100 hotels participated in the one-day drive last year and the chairmen hope to double that number this year.

Ship to Make Shakedown Run

THE new Hamburg-Atlantic Line's S.S. Hanseatic will leave her Hamburg shipyard July 15 for a short "shakedown" run preparatory to her initial sailing July 21 from Cuxhaven, on Hamburg-Atlantic's service to New York. This is announced by Home Lines Agency, Inc., representative in North America for Hamburg-Atlantic.

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.
JOURNAL AMERICAN
Circ. D. 703,449 - S. 882,925

JUL 6 1958

CARRIAGE TRADE . . . Everybody can qualify for the carriage trade title in the Gaspe Peninsula of Quebec Province, for this picturesque old-world region of Canada dotes on the horse and carriage. Visitors from the United States find this area picturesque and decidedly rural.

Montreal to Bermuda Air Route Planned

By JOHN WHITELEY

EAGLE Airways (Bermuda) Ltd., which began its seven-flight weekly service May 1, New York to Bermuda, plans to establish a Montreal-Bermuda route by early Fall.

The designated flag-carrier for the British Island colony, Eagle is the only airline flying the new Vickers 805 between New York and Bermuda.

Air Commodore G. J. Powell, special adviser to the airline, reports that flights have been up to schedule with arrivals and departures "on time or early" 90 per cent of the time.

Eagle's advance bookings indicate a banner season for the airline and tourist traffic to Bermuda. According to the Bermuda Trade Development Board figures, the island has been enjoying a steadily increasing number of visitors over the past 10 years. In 1956, 109,131 persons visited the resort, and last year the count rose to 120,989.

Air Commodore Powell says that the aim of Eagle is to "make the passenger feel he is in Bermuda as soon as he boards the plane at Idlewild." During the less than three-hour flight the airline serves a specially prepared afternoon tea which in parts of Britain would be described as a "high tea."

* * *

Starting July 13, and continuing for five successive Sundays, the New Haven Railroad will run special excursions to the "Tanglewood" concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Lenox, Mass.

For a single price, the railroad sells a round-trip ticket, general admission to the music shed, and round-trip bus ticket between the railroad and the scene of concerts. Trains will leave Grand Central Station at 8:20 a. m. and return at 10:12 p. m.

* * *

Flight crews of Eastern Air Lines planes operating over the Northern Division connecting New York and intermediate points with Montreal and Ottawa, Canada, have been furnished with maps and background information about the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Passengers are briefed via the public address system as the vast diggings and concrete structures unfold below them.

* * *

Ralph Herbert, a veteran Chicago automobile distributor, has been elected president of the $4,000,000 Cadillac Hotel, 40th st. and the Ocean, Miami Beach, Fla.

For the past 10 years Herbert has been associated with the automobile leasing and renting business at leading Miami Beach hotels. He has announced a complete new social program for guests of the Cadillac during the Summer season.

* * *

Ben Kaplan, executive secretary of the Sullivan County Hotel Association announces that Philip Schweid (The Pines), Charles Brown (Brown's) and Ben Posner (The Brickman) will serve as co-chairman of the second annual Sullivan County Tag Day for the United Jewish Appeal which will be held on Aug. 2.

More than 100 hotels participated in the one-day drive last year and the chairmen hope to double that number this year.

Ship to Make Shakedown Run

THE new Hamburg-Atlantic Line's S.S. Hanseatic will leave her Hamburg shipyard July 15 for a short "shakedown" run preparatory to her initial sailing July 21 from Cuxhaven, on Hamburg-Atlantic's service to New York. This is announced by Home Lines Agency, Inc., representative in North America for Hamburg-Atlantic.

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 158,729

JUN 13 1958

Tourist Trails Radiate From Boston

Written for The Christian Science Monitor

Boston

When you come to Massachusetts for a vacation you may find it advantageous to start at the Hub. Trails in history, art, scientific achievement, and scenic splendor stem from Boston.

The only trouble is, once you get in you find it difficult to get out. Not because of narrow streets—you get to like them—or of baffling thoroughfares, but because Boston so grips the imagination that it leaves little time to get beyond its borders.

Let's put it this way, as the commonalty, not the Brahmins, will tell you: "It has a way with it."

Boston revolves around the Common. Like any other green eyeful in the center of a city, the Common strikes newcomers as a pleasant area for people, pigeons, and squirrels. It is more than that. It is a historic landmark. Once a cow pasture, it recently had a happy reminder of its primitive beginning when men started boring under the foundations of once-stately mansions and found cow tunnels under Park Street, leading to the Common. It figured in the Revolution and its mellow paths have been trod by men whose writings have spread over the seven seas.

All around Boston Common you will find traces of 18 and 19-century houses, in which men who helped to lay the foundations of America. With their wives and daughters they entertained friends at parties and talked in subdues tones of daring transactions. Entertaining came easier then.

Dollar Stretched

The dollar had the stretching qualities of a rubber band. As late as 1854 you could get a meal at a good hotel in downtown Boston for less than 15 cents. Boston Five Cents Savings Bank, which has completed more than a century in business, reports that you could get lodging at a first-rate hotel for 25 cents and a breakfast of buckwheat cakes, butter, toast, and beverage for six cents.

Most of the old buildings have disappeared. But enough are left to make a journey on foot both intersting and rewarding. Within a few hours you can see Paul Revere House, a 17th-century dwelling and the first milestone of romance; the Old North Church, where signal lanterns were hung in the Revolutionary War; Faneuil Hall and the Old South Meeting House, which resounded to the call "No taxation without representation"; Bunker Hill Monument; "Old Ironsides," the frigate Constitution, proud masts of which cast a shadow across the fleet of sleek destroyers and gunboats berthed at the Charlestown Navy Yard; Louisburg Square, where Jenny Lind was married to her accompanist; and the Boston Athenaeum, which has Washington's private library among its collections.

Research Buildings Abound

A city of patriotic landmarks, Boston is noted equally as the residence or resort of natural scientists. Along the River Charles is the "billion-dollar mile" of buildings devoted to modern research, and at a curve in the river, beautifully landscaped Science Park, equipped with a planetarium and buildings in various stages of completion that indicate a musuem of growing national dimensions.

Within a comparatively short radius of Boston the visitor will find a cluster of towns that has attracted millions of sight-seers, among the most notable being Lexington, with its famous village green once a battleground; Concord, with its historic past and associated with Thoreau, Emerson, and Hawthorne; and Quincy, the home of the second and sixth Presidents of the United States, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, his son.

Sturbridge Village

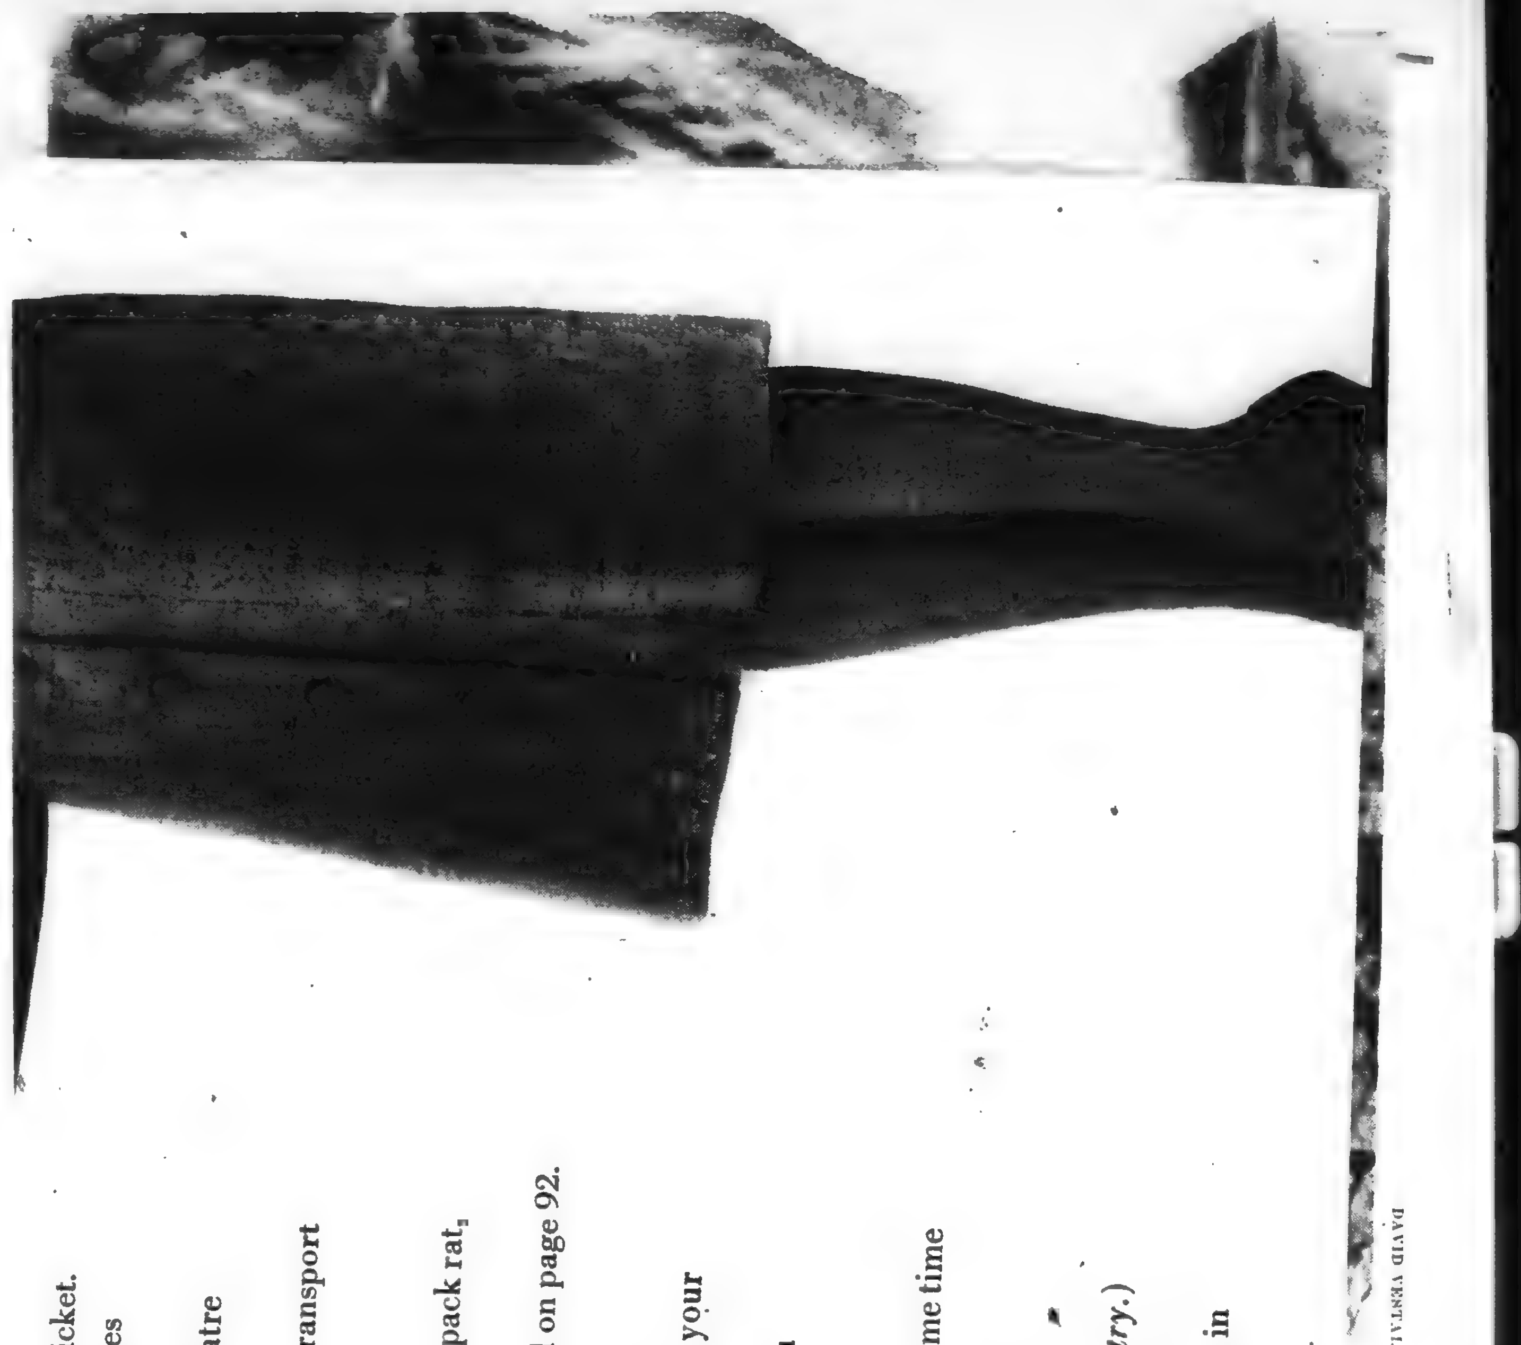
Still farther out, in the direction of the Berkshires, is a village that should not be left out of any itinerary. It is known as Old Sturbridge Village and has shops and mills operating much as they did about the year 1800. It has faithful facsimiles of a blacksmith's shop, crafts center, grist mill, and country store. It is fun to wander through these post-Revolutionary buildings and gain firsthand knowledge of how people lived when the manual arts excited their inventive genius.

Right in the Berkshires themselves lies Tanglewood, widely known for its music festival and summer concerts, while all around is a land studded with lakes and ponds and friendly crests which reach their peak in Mt. Greylock, highest mountain in the state, reached by Notch Road a mile west of North Adams.

Harvard's Popularity Gains

Nearer Boston, a town that is gaining more and more interest for visitors is Harvard, situated in the midst of widespread apple orchards. This is where Bronson Alcott attracted 19th-century notables with his project for a new social order and where, in the midst of hills and woods, you find Fruitlands, appropriately named, with its Shaker House containing documents, furniture, and costumes of the first colony of the sect in America.

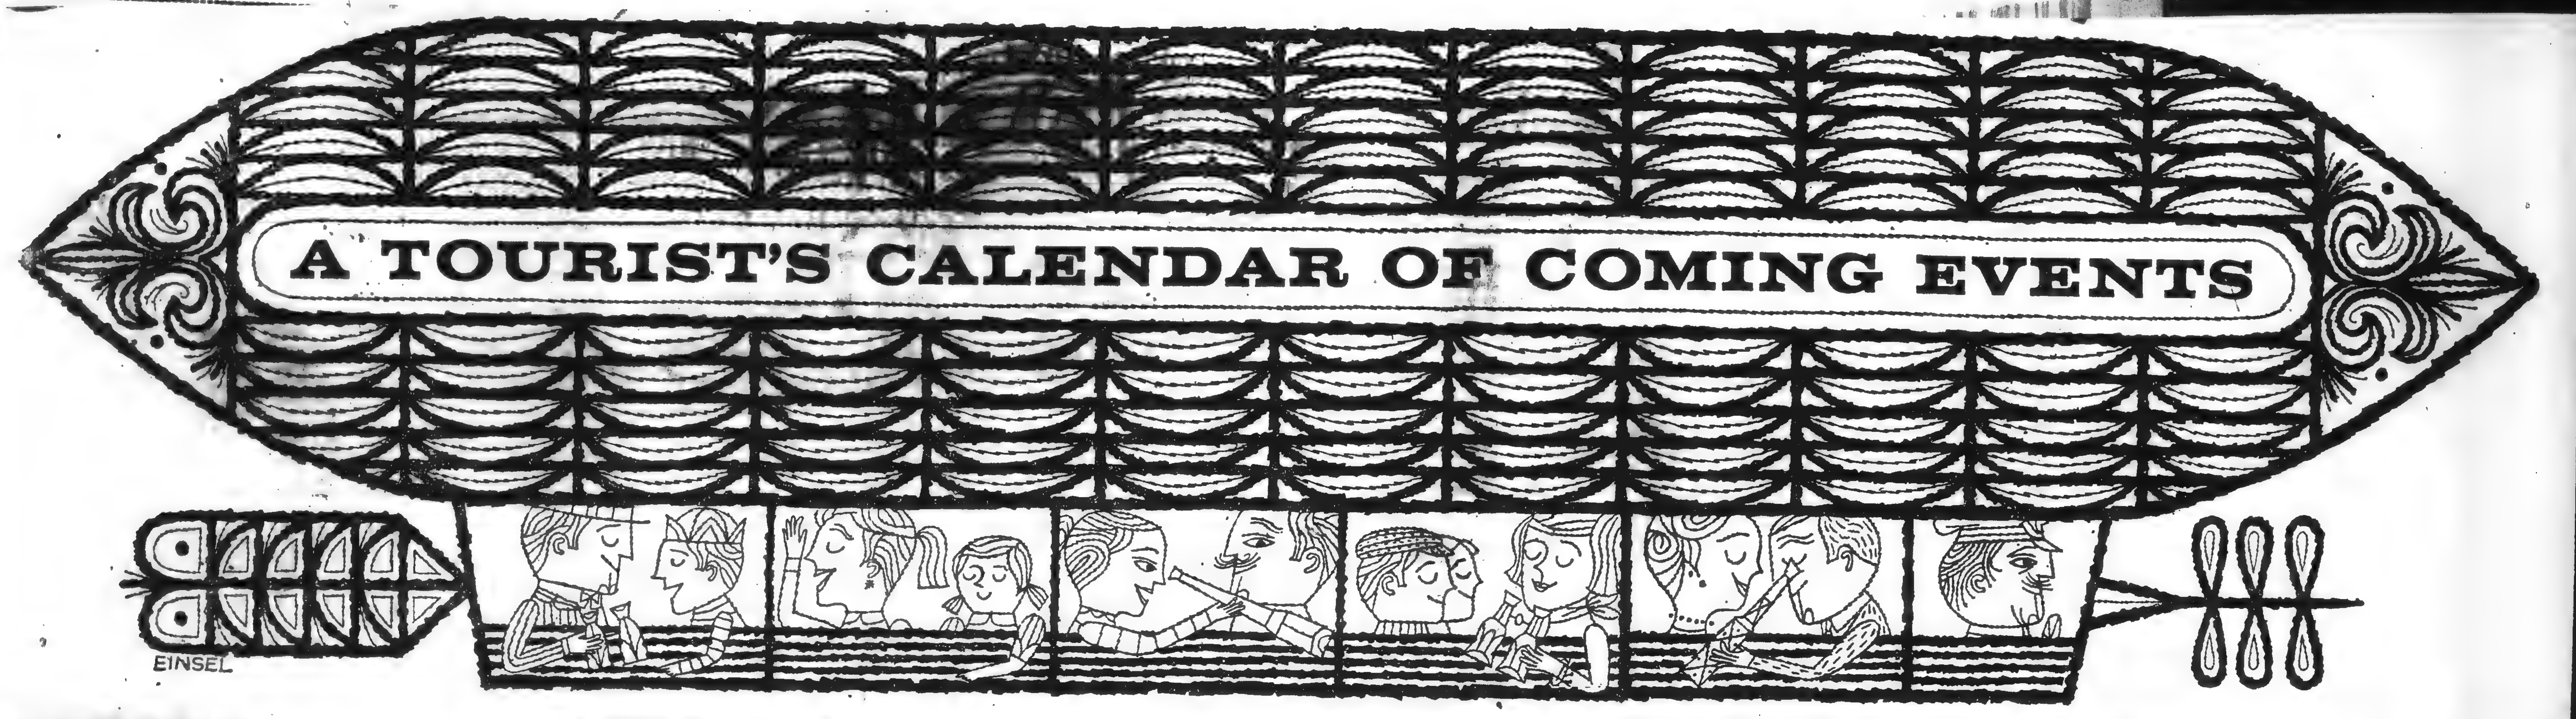
Because of its wide appeal as a playground and a center of regional culture, Massachusetts is making a strong bid for tourist trade. Besides its hills, its woods, its lakes, and its opportunities for cultural pursuits, it lays claim to some of the best beaches in the country, from the white sands of Ipswich, where thousands every year like to frolic in the sun, to the scrub pine and sand hills of Cape Cod, upon which holidaymakers never cease to shower unequivocal praise.



[2597]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293
MAY 11 1958

A TOURIST'S CALENDAR OF COMING EVENTS



THE NORTHEAST

CONNECTICUT

Garden Tours: Stamford, May 13. Cos Cob, May 13-15. Branford, May 16. Woodbury, May 17. Ridgefield, May 21. Southport, May 21. New Britain, May 22. Danbury, May 23.

Horse Shows: Farmington, May 16-18. Stamford, June 3-8. Greenwich, June 7-8. Darien, June 13-15. Westport, June 19-22. Litchfield, Aug. 9. New Canaan, Aug. 16-17. Bethlehem, Aug. 17. Westport, Aug. 22-24. Easton, Sept. 7.

Antiques Fair, Ridgefield, June 10-14.

Regatta, New London, June 14. Yale-Harvard race on Thames River.

Festival of Art, New Haven, June 17-21.

American Shakespeare Festival, Stratford, June 19-Sept. 1. "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Hamlet," "Winter's Tale."

Festival of Arts, New Haven, June 24-28.

Barnum Festival, Bridgeport, June 27-July 6. Ballyhoo show, beauty pageant, parade, regatta, sports events.

Open House, Litchfield, July 12.

Golf, Greenwich, Aug. 11-15. Girls' U. S. G. A. Championship.

American Dance Festival, New London, Aug. 14-17. The eleventh annual.

Women's Softball Championship, Bridgeport, Aug. 30-Sept. 5.

Danbury Fair, Danbury, Sept. 27-Oct. 5.

MAINE

Strawberry Festival, Wisasset, June 28.

Tercentenary, Scarboro, July 4.

Broiler Festival, Belfast, July 11-12. Industry Day, July 11; public barbecue, July 12.

Flower Show, Boothbay Harbor, July 24-25.

Seafood Festival, Rockland, Aug. 1-3. Lobster a specialty.

Fishing Derby, Old Orchard Beach, Aug. 15-17. All-Governors' contest.

MASSACHUSETTS

Boat Show, Falmouth Harbor, May 30-31. Some fifty boats to be on exhibition.

Boston Arts Festival, Boston, June 6-22. Art exhibitions, concerts, opera, plays.

Dairy Festival, Boston, June 7-14. On the Common.

Blessing the Fleet, Gloucester, June 15. Portuguese celebration.

Tuna Derby, Ipswich Bay, June 15-Oct. 1.

St. Peter's Fiesta, Gloucester, June 26-29. A favorite with Italians.

Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, June 29-Sept. 1. Concerts Saturdays, 3:30 P. M.; Sundays, 8:30 P. M.

Jacob's Pillow Festival, Lee, July 1-Aug. 30. Ted Shawn's long-established dance theatre.

Berkshire Music Festival, Lenox, July 2-Aug. 10. Bach, Brahms, Mozart works to be played.

Festival of Arts, Cape Ann, July 27-Aug. 3.

New England Folk Festival, Medford, Aug. 11-13.

Home Show, Monmouth, Sept. 11-14.

Eastern States Exposition, Springfield, Sept. 13-21.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

New England Sports Car Gymkhana, North Conway, May 11.

Antiques Show, Exeter, June 5-7.

Festival of Seven Arts, Pike, July 3-17. Discussions about books, plays, music held on lawn near lake.

Jubilee Days, Jaffrey, July 4-6. Parades, water sports, tours of old homes, barbecue.

Melodrama, Swanzey, July 11-13. Famous "The Old Homestead" to be staged for seventeenth year.

Craftsmen's Fair, Gilford, Aug. 5-9.

Cracker Barrel Americana, Pike, Aug. 11-25. Forums, discussions.

Art Show, Franconia Notch, Aug. 20-26.

Arts, Crafts Festival, Greenfield, Aug. 23.

NEW JERSEY

Regattas: Brigantine, May 29. Lambertville, May 30. Mays Landing, July 4. Beach Haven Crest, Aug. 24. Millville, Sept. 1. Toms River, Sept. 6-7.

Bike Race, Somerville, May 30. Annual Memorial Day tour of Somerville.

State Trapshooting Match, Clementon, June 5-7.

Rose Day, Glen Ridge, June 8.

Tennis, Hackensack, June 21-29. Men's Eastern Clay Court Championships.

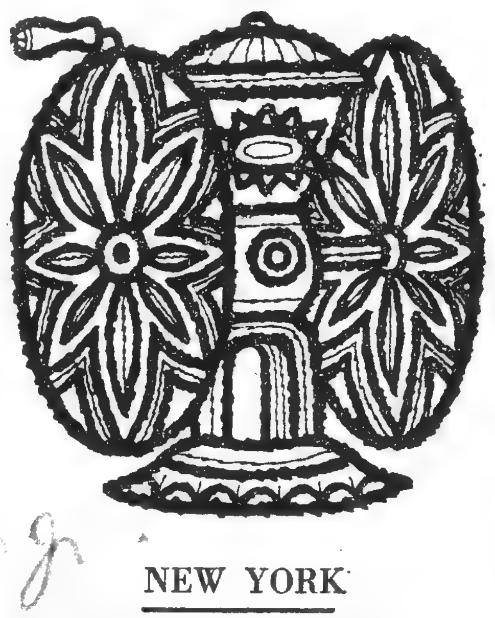
Hydrangea Festival, Atlantic City, July 1-31. Tours of garden-studded neighborhoods, coronation.

Water Ski, Red Bank, July 5-6. State championship.

Old House Tours, Cape May, July 11.

Miss America Pageant, Atlantic City, Sept. 2-6.

Antiques Fair, Upper Montclair, Sept. 22-26.



NEW YORK

Stake Races: Belmont Park, L. I.: $25,000 The Withers, May 12. $20,000 Distaff Handicap, May 14. $25,000 Toboggan Handicap, May 17. $30,000 The Acorn, May 24 $50,000 Carter Handicap, May 30. $25,000 Peter Pan Handicap, May 31. $25,000 Top Flight Handicap, June 4. $100,000 The Belmont, June 7. $25,000 Bowling Green Handicap, June 11. $50,000 Metropolitan Handicap, June 14. $60,000 Coaching Club American Oaks, June 21.

Lilac Festival, Rochester, May 15-25.

Horse Shows: Buffalo, May 15-18. Rhinebeck, May 17. Fayetteville, May 25. Avon, June 1, Millbrook, June 7. Port Washington, June 7-8. Port Jervis, June 8. Woodstock, June 15. Soyosset, June 28. Troy, July 4-6. Manlius, July 13. Cortland, July 19-20. Southampton, Aug. 9. Orangeburg, Aug. 16-17. Syracuse, Aug. 28-Sept. 1. Stony Brook, Sept. 4-6. Mount Kisco, Sept. 7. Middletown, Sept. 20.

Tulip Festival, Albany, May 16-19.

Race Meeting, Purchase, May 24. At the Blind Brook Club Course.

Ethan Allen Day Festival, Ticonderoga, May 25. Re-enact the capture of Fort Ticonderoga from the British in 1775.

Sports Car Hill Climb, Bridgehampton, May 31-June 1.

Marathon Boat Racing: Albany, June 1. Poughkeepsie, June 15. Buffalo, July 13. Grand Island, July 27.

Fishing Derby, Rochester, June 1-Oct. 1. Prizes to total more than $5,000.

Tennis: Eastern Men's Intercollegiate Championship, Hamilton, June 9-14. Men's State Championship, Bayside, June 28-July 6. Men's Invitational, Southampton, July 29-Aug. 3. U. S. L. T. A. National Men's, Women's Championships, Forest Hills, L. I., Aug. 29-Sept. 7.

Rose Festival, Newark, June 15-July 4. Coronation of queen, Sterling Bowl Tournament highlights.

Intercollegiate Rowing Championship, Syracuse, June 21. The fifty-sixth annual.

Montcalm Celebration, Fort Ticonderoga, July 12-13. Mark 200th anniversary of Battle of Carillon.

Religious Drama, Palmyra, Aug. 7-9. "America's Witness for Christ" to be staged at near-by Mormon headquarters.

"Aqua Nite," Schroon Lake, Aug. 8-10. Historical pageant presented on lake.

Craft Fair, Ithaca, Aug. 21-23. State-wide show.

Boat Race, Buffalo, Sept. 6-7.

Maid of the Mist Festival, Niagara Falls, Sept. 14-21. Authentic Indian village ceremonies, parade, pageant.

PENNSYLVANIA

Dogwood Festival, Phoenixville, May 15.

Bach Festival, Bethlehem, May 16-17. "Passion of Our Lord According to St. John" to be featured.

Memorial Day, Gettysburg, May 30.

Laurel Festival, Wellsboro, June 13-15. Annual state festival.

Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, Kutztown, July 2-6. Pageant of farm life, regional foods, songs, dances, sports, crafts.

Hill Climb, Wilkes-Barre, July 18-19. Giants' Despair contest.

Craftsmen's Show, East Stroudsburg, July 25-27. State exhibit.

Gladiola Show, Monroeville, July 26-27.

Dutch Days, Hershey, Aug. 21-24. National plowing contest, Aug. 21-22, the main attraction.

Potato Festival, Carry, Sept. 3-6.

Flax Scutching Festival, Stahlstown, Sept. 13.

Dairy Show, Harrisburg, Sept. 18. In the big Farm Show Building.

RHODE ISLAND

Regattas: Barrington, June 28. Newport, July 12-13. Tiverton, July 19. Bristol, July 26. Cranston, Aug. 9-10. East Greenwich, Aug. 17. Barrington, Aug. 23-24.

Jazz Festival, Newport, July 4-6.

Barbecue, Little Compton, July 12. Annual state chicken feast.

Tennis, Newport, Aug. 8-11. All-Navy tournament.

Old Home Tour, Washington, Aug. 13-17.

Tuna Tournament, Galilee, Aug. 15. United States Atlantic Tuna Tournament.

Feast of Our Lady of Fatima, Wickford, Sept. 14. Candle procession in the evening.

VERMONT

Beauty Contest, Burlington, June 7. Select Miss Vermont.

House Tours: Warren, July 4. Middleburg, July 9. Manchester, July 17. Londonderry, Aug. 3. Stannard, Aug. 3 Craftsbury, Common, Aug. 12. Brownington, Aug. 17.

Antiques Shows: Burlington, July 22-27. Woodstock, Aug. 6-9.

Cracker Barrel Bazaar, Newbury, July 30-Aug. 10. Art exhibit featured.

Golf, Burlington, Aug. 4-6. State women's tournament.

Lumberjack Roundup, Lake Dunmore, Aug. 15-16.

Fair, Rutland, Sept. 1.

---

were hung in the Revolutionary War; Faneuil Hall and the Old
South Meeting House, which resounded to the call "No taxation without representation".

TRAVEL MAGAZINE
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Circ. Mo. 147,005

JUN 1958

CALENDAR JOTTINGS OF WORLDWIDE INTEREST IN JULY

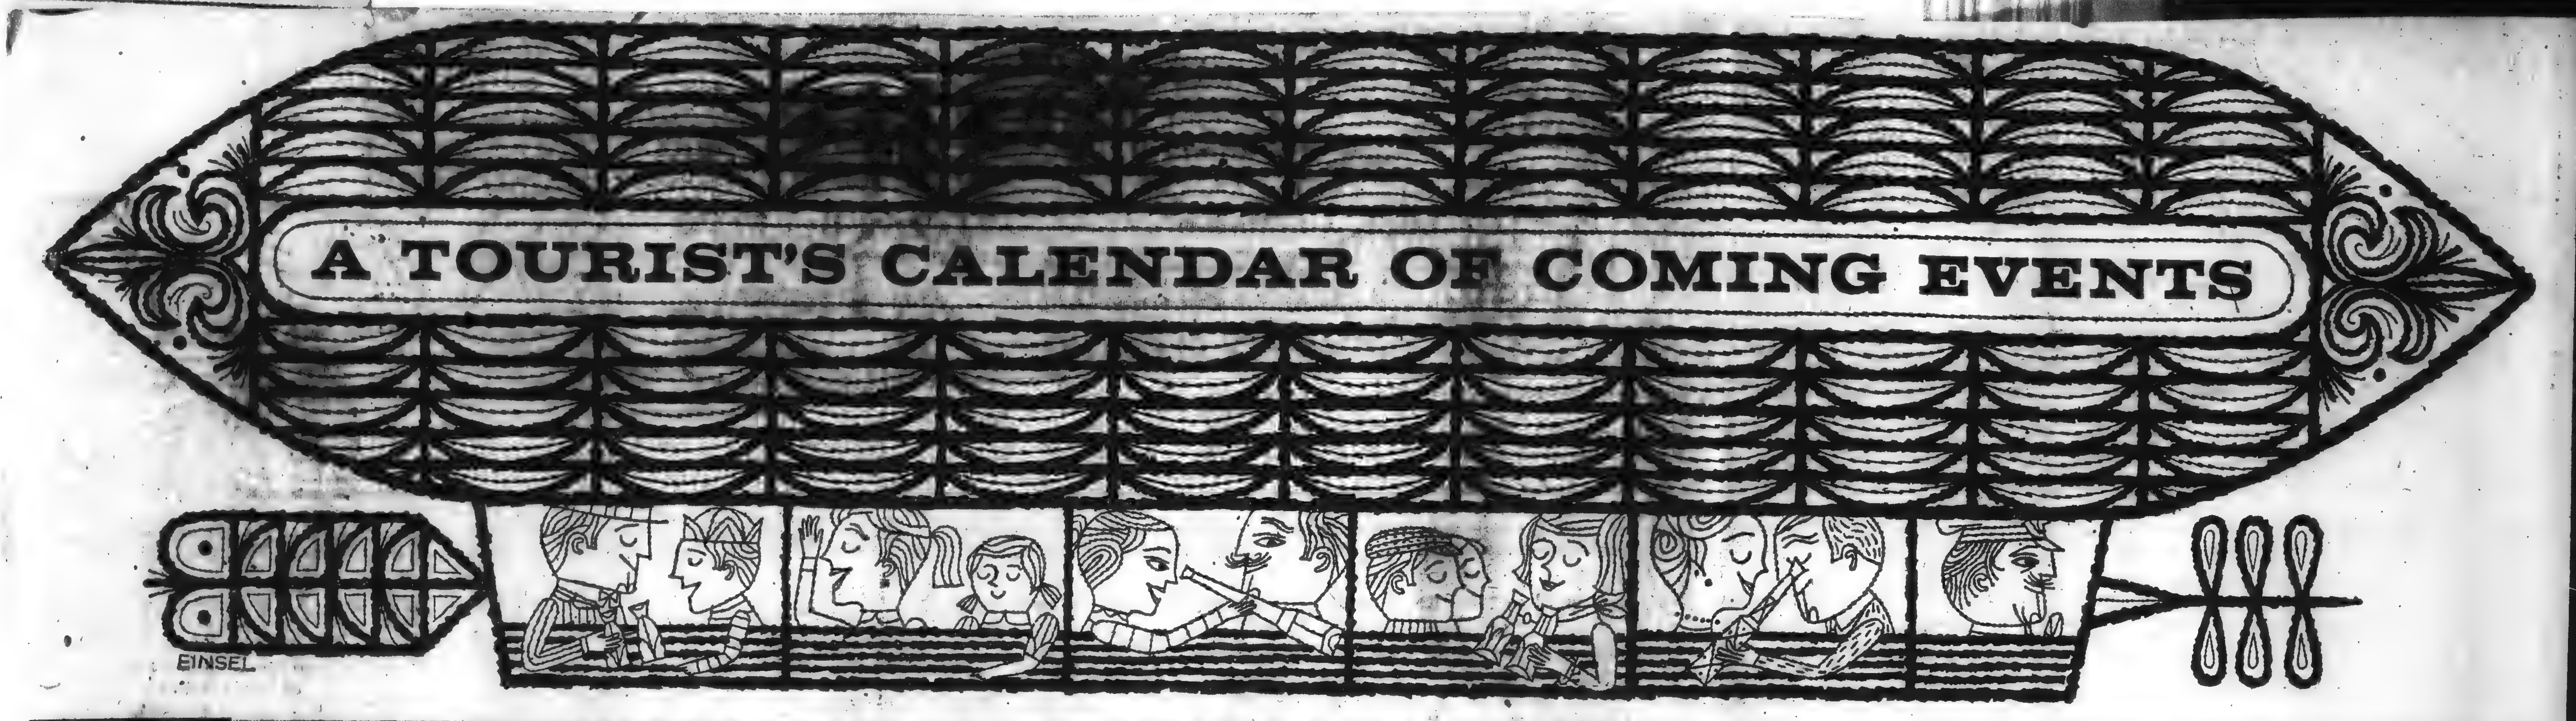
```
1-6. Barnum Festival................Bridgeport, Conn.
1-Aug. 10. Palace Courtyard Opera..Copenhagen, Denmark
1-Aug. 20. Summer Festival...........Split, Yugoslavia
2-5. Henley Regatta.........Henley-on-Thames, England
2-Aug. 10. Berkshire Music Festival.......Lenox, Mass.
3-5. Bit & Spur Rodeo.......................Tooele, Utah
3-5. Water Wonderland Festival.......Menominee, Mich.
4. Le Losange d'Or Boat Competition
                                  Monte Carlo, Monaco
4-5. Mountain State Festival.........Glenville, W. Va.
4,24. Ute Indian Sun Dances...........Roosevelt, Utah
6. Midsummer Giant Slalom Race.....Tahoe City, Calif.
6-17. St. Firmin Festival.............Pamplona, Spain
7-11. Organists' Competition.........Haarlem, Holland
7-12. Stampede...................Calgary, B.C., Canada
8-13. Intl. Musical Eisteddfod......Llangollen, Wales
9-11. Cherry Festival..................Manistee, Mich.
10-12. Hell's Canyon Rodeo...............Weiser, Idaho
10-13. Pawnee Indian Powwow...............Pawnee, Okla.
11-27. Ballet Festival...................Nervi, Italy
11-31. San Ignacio de Loyola Celeb....Guanajuato, Mex.
12-13. Lightning Champ. Regatta
                            Lake Winnipesaukee, N.H.
12-13. Medieval Tilting Tournaments.Sondeborg, Denmark
12-16. Song of Songs Pageant............Haifa, Israel
12-19. Trials for Sloop Cup Race.........Newport, R.I.
13. Highland Games & Clan Gatherings....Linville, N.C.
13-15. Wild Horse Festival...........Haramachi, Japan
13-19. Red River Valley Fair............Fargo, N. Dak.
14-18. Craftsmen's Fair of So. Highlands
                                       Asheville, N.C.
14-20. Show Boat.......................Chesaning, Mich.
16-Aug. 12. Petrus de Dacia Miracle Play.Visby, Sweden
17-19. Dinosaur Roundup.......................Vernal, Utah
17-20. Schubert Festival...............Vienna, Austria
17-Sept. 15. Swiss Women's Exposition...Zurich, Switz.
18-20. Koshare Indian Festival.........La Junta, Colo.
18-21. Indian Days.................Banff, Alta., Canada
19-Aug. 17. 800th Anniv. Celeb.........Munich, Germany
20. Water Skiing Show.................Lewiston, Mich.
20. Outboard Marathon.................Cheboygan, Mich.
20. Intl. Folklore Festival...St. Jean-de-Luz, France
20-21. Boat Race Regatta...........Guntersville, Ala.
21-26. Frontier Days Celebration........Cheyenne, Wyo.
22. Ranchero Days......................Torrance, Calif.
23-30. Lotus Festival..............Virginia Beach, Va.
23-Aug. 25. Richard Wagner Opera Festival
                                   Bayreuth, Germany
24-26. La Semana Santiaguera....................All Cuba
24-Sept. 21. Design Cavalcade....Hameenlinna, Finland
25. Children's Folk Dance Festival.....Waikiki, Hawaii
25-27. Intl. Roundup Cavalcade.........Pawhuska, Okla.
25-Aug. 31. Performing Arts Festival..Santander, Spain
26. Yacht Club Regatta........................Bristol, R.I.
26-28. Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo.....Dauphin Island, Ala.
26-Aug. 31. Music & Art Festival.....Salzburg, Germany
27. Zulu Dance Festival................Natal, S. Africa
27. Pilgrimage....................Croagh Patrick, Ireland
27-Aug. 3. Open-Air Theatre Festival.Wiltz, Luxembourg
27-Aug. 3. Sandhamn Regatta & Cup Races
                                   Stockholm, Sweden
27-Aug. 3. Yachting Regatta Week....St. Moritz, Switz.
27-Aug. 3. Gymnastics Festival.........Munich, Germany
28-31. North Dakota State Fair..........Minot, N. Dak.
30. Pony Penning & Roundup....Chincoteague Island, Va.
31-Aug. 3. Mother Lode Fair & Rodeo..Yuba City, Calif.
```

TRAVEL, JUNE, 1958

[258]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 567,244 - S. 1,189,293
MAY 11 1958

A TOURIST'S CALENDAR OF COMING EVENTS



THE NORTHEAST

CONNECTICUT

Garden Tours: Stamford, May 13. Cos Cob, May 13-15. Branford, May 16. Woodbury, May 17. Ridgefield, May 21. Southport, May 21. New Britain, May 22. Danbury, May 23.

Horse Shows: Farmington, May 16-18. Stamford, June 7-8. Greenwich, June 7-8. Darien, June 13-15. Westport, June 19-22. Litchfield, Aug. 9. New Canaan, Aug. 16-17. Bethlehem, Aug. 17. Westport, Aug. 22-24. Easton, Sept. 7.

Antiques Fair, Ridgefield, June 10-14.

Regatta, New London, June 14. Yale-Harvard race on Thames River.

Festival of Art, New Haven, June 17-21.

American Shakespeare Festival, Stratford, June 19-Sept. 1. "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Hamlet," "Winter's Tale."

Festival of Arts, New Haven, June 24-28.

Barnum Festival, Bridgeport, June 27-July 6. Ballyhoo show, beauty pageant, parade, regatta, sports events.

Open House, Litchfield, July 12.

Golf, Greenwich, Aug. 11-15. Girls' U. S. G. A. Championship.

American Dance Festival, New London, Aug. 14-17. The eleventh annual.

Women's Softball Championship, Bridgeport, Aug. 30-Sept. 5.

Danbury Fair, Danbury, Sept. 27-Oct. 5.

MAINE

Strawberry Festival, Wiscasset, June 28.

Tercentenary, Scarboro, July 4.

Broiler Festival, Belfast, July 11-12. Industry Day, July 11; public barbecue, July 12.

Flower Show, Boothbay Harbor, July 24-25.

Seafood Festival, Rockland, Aug. 1-3. Lobster a specialty.

Fishing Derby, Old Orchard Beach, Aug. 15-17. All-Governors' contest.

MASSACHUSETTS

Boat Show, Falmouth Harbor, May 30-31. Some fifty boats to be on exhibition.

Boston Arts Festival, Boston, June 6-22. Art exhibitions, concerts, opera, plays.

Dairy Festival, Boston, June 7-14. On the Common.

Blessing the Fleet, Gloucester, June 15. Portuguese celebration.

Tuna Derby, Ipswich Bay, June 15-Oct. 1.

St. Peter's Fiesta, Gloucester, June 26-29. A favorite with Italians.

Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, June 29-Sept. 1. Concerts Saturdays, 3:30 P. M.; Sundays, 8:30 P. M.

Jacob's Pillow Festival, Lee, July 1-Aug. 30. Ted Shawn's long-established dance theatre.

Berkshire Music Festival, Lenox, ~~July 2-Aug. 10. Bach, Brahms,~~ Mozart works to be played.

Festival of Arts, Cape Ann, July 27-Aug. 3.

New England Folk Festival, Medford, Aug. 11-13.

Home Show, Monmouth, Sept. 11-14.

Eastern States Exposition, Springfield, Sept. 13-21.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

New England Sports Car Gymkhana, North Conway, May 11.

Antiques Show, Exeter, June 5-7.

Festival of Seven Arts, Pike, July 3-17. Discussions about books, plays, music held on lawn near lake.

Jubilee Days, Jaffrey, July 4-6. Parades, water sports, tours of old homes, barbecue.

Melodrama, Swanzey, July 11-13. Famous "The Old Homestead" to be staged for seventeenth year.

Craftsmen's Fair, Gilford, Aug. 5-9.

Cracker Barrel Americana, Pike, Aug. 11-25. Forums, discussions.

Art Show, Franconia Notch, Aug. 20-26.

Arts, Crafts Festival, Greenfield, Aug. 23.

L Meyer Jr

NEW JERSEY

Regattas: Brigantine, May 29. Lambertville, May 30. Mays Landing, July 4. Beach Haven Crest, Aug. 24. Millville, Sept. 1. Toms River, Sept. 6-7.

Bike Race, Somerville, May 30. Annual Memorial Day tour of Somerville.

State Trapshooting Match, Clementon, June 5-7.

Rose Day, Glen Ridge, June 8.

Tennis, Hackensack, June 21-29. Men's Eastern Clay Court Championships.

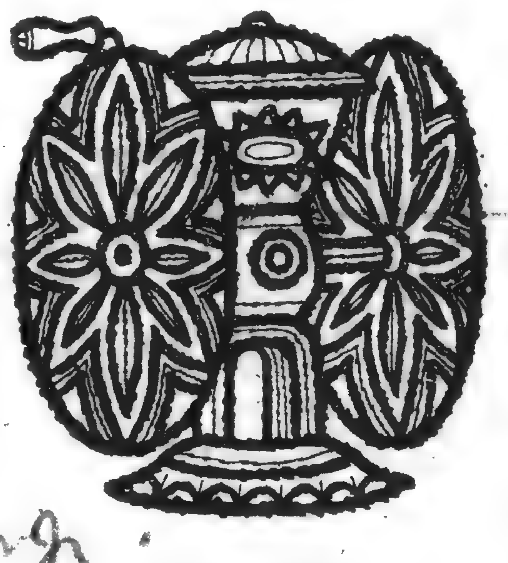
Hydrangea Festival, Atlantic City, July 1-31. Tours of garden-studded neighborhoods, coronation.

Water Ski, Red Bank, July 5-6. State championship.

Old House Tours, Cape May, July 11.

Miss America Pageant, Atlantic City, Sept. 2-6.

Antiques Fair, Upper Montclair, Sept. 22-26.



NEW YORK

Stake Races: Belmont Park, L. I.: $25,000 The Withers, May 12. $20,000 Distaff Handicap, May 14. $25,000 Toboggan Handicap, May 17. $30,000 The Acorn, May 24 $50,000 Carter Handicap, May 30. $25,000 Peter Pan Handicap, May 31. $25,000 Top Flight Handicap, June 4. $100,000 The Belmont, June 7. $25,000 Bowling Green Handicap, June 11. $50,000 Metropolitan Handicap, June 14. $60,000 Coaching Club American Oaks, June 21.

Lilac Festival, Rochester, May 15-25.

Horse Shows: Buffalo, May 15-18. Rhinebeck, May 17. Fayetteville, May 25. Avon, June 1. Millbrook, June 7. Port Washington, June 7-8. Port Jervis, June 8. Woodstock, June 15. Soyosset, June 28. Troy, July 4-6. Manlius, July 13. Cortland, July 19-20. Southampton, Aug. 9. Orangeburg, Aug. 16-17. Syracuse, Aug. 28-Sept. 1. Stony Brook, Sept. 4-6. Mount Kisco, Sept. 7. Middletown, Sept. 20.

Tulip Festival, Albany, May 16-19.

Race Meeting, Purchase, May 24. At the Blind Brook Club Course.

Ethan Allen Day Festival, Ticonderoga, May 25. Re-enact the capture of Fort Ticonderoga from the British in 1775.

Sports Car Hill Climb, Bridgehampton, May 31-June 1.

Marathon Boat Racing: Albany, June 1. Poughkeepsie, June 15. Buffalo, July 13. Grand Island, July 27.

Fishing Derby, Rochester, June 1-Oct. 1. Prizes to total more than $5,000.

Tennis: Eastern Men's Intercollegiate Championship, Hamilton, June 9-14. Men's State Championship, Bayside, June 28-July 6. Men's Invitational, Southampton, July 29-Aug. 3. U. S. L. T. A. National Men's, Women's Championships, Forest Hills, L. I., Aug. 29-Sept. 7.

Rose Festival, Newark, June 15-July 4. Coronation of queen, Sterling Bowl Tournament highlights.

Intercollegiate Rowing Championship, Syracuse, June 21. The fifty-sixth annual.

Montcalm Celebration, Fort Ticonderoga, July 12-13. Mark 200th anniversary of Battle of Carillon.

Religious Drama, Palmyra, Aug. 7-9. "America's Witness for Christ" to be staged at near-by Mormon headquarters.

"Aqua Nite," Schroon Lake, Aug. 8-10. Historical pageant presented on lake.

Craft Fair, Ithaca, Aug. 21-23. State-wide show.

Boat Race, Buffalo, Sept. 6-7.

Maid of the Mist Festival, Niagara Falls, Sept. 14-21. Authentic Indian village ceremonies, parade, pageant.

PENNSYLVANIA

Dogwood Festival, Phoenixville, May 15.

Bach Festival, Bethlehem, May 16-17. "Passion of Our Lord According to St. John" to be featured.

Memorial Day, Gettysburg, May 30.

Laurel Festival, Wellsboro, June 13-15. Annual state festival.

Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, Kutztown, July 2-6. Pageant of farm life, regional foods, songs, dances, sports, crafts.

Hill Climb, Wilkes-Barre, July 18-19. Giants' Despair contest.

Craftsmen's Show, East Stroudsburg, July 25-27. State exhibit.

Gladiola Show, Monroeville, July 26-27.

Dutch Days, Hershey, Aug. 21-24. National plowing contest, Aug. 21-22, the main attraction.

Potato Festival, Carry, Sept. 3-6.

Flax Scutching Festival, Stahlstown, Sept. 13.

Dairy Show, Harrisburg, Sept. 18. In the big Farm Show Building.

RHODE ISLAND

Regattas: Barrington, June 28. Newport, July 12-13. Tiverton, July 19. Bristol, July 26. Cranston, Aug. 9-10. East Greenwich, Aug. 17. Barrington, Aug. 23-24.

Jazz Festival, Newport, July 4-6.

Barbecue, Little Compton, July 12. Annual state chicken feast.

Tennis, Newport, Aug. 8-11. All-Navy tournament.

Old Home Tour, Washington, Aug. 13-17.

Tuna Tournament, Galilee, Aug. 15. United States Atlantic Tuna Tournament.

Feast of Our Lady of Fatima, Wickford, Sept. 14. Candle procession in the evening.

VERMONT

Beauty Contest, Burlington, June 7. Select Miss Vermont.

House Tours: Warren, July 4. Middleburg, July 9. Manchester, July 17. Londonderry, Aug. 3. Stannard, Aug. 3 Craftsbury, Common, Aug. 12. Brownington, Aug. 17.

Antiques Shows: Burlington, July 22-27. Woodstock, Aug. 6-9.

Cracker Barrel Bazaar, Newbury, July 30-Aug. 10. Art exhibit featured.

Golf, Burlington, Aug. 4-6. State women's tournament.

Lumberjack Roundup, Lake Dunmore, Aug. 15-16.

Fair, Rutland, Sept. 1.

War; Faneuil Hall and the Old
South Meeting House, which resounded to the call "No taxa-

TRAVEL MAGAZINE
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Circ. Mo. 147,005
JUN 1958

CALENDAR JOTTINGS OF WORLDWIDE INTEREST IN JULY

1-6. Barnum Festival..................Bridgeport, Conn.
1-Aug. 10. Palace Courtyard Opera..Copenhagen, Denmark
1-Aug. 20. Summer Festival...........Split, Yugoslavia
2-5. Henley Regatta..........Henley-on-Thames, England
2-Aug. 10. Berkshire Music Festival.......Lenox, Mass.
3-5. Bit & Spur Rodeo.......................Tooele, Utah
3-5. Water Wonderland Festival........Menominee, Mich.
4. Le Losange d'Or Boat Competition
Monte Carlo, Monaco
4-5. Mountain State Festival.........Glenville, W. Va.
4,24. Ute Indian Sun Dances............Roosevelt, Utah
6. Midsummer Giant Slalom Race......Tahoe City, Calif.
6-17. St. Firmin Festival..............Pamplona, Spain
7-11. Organists' Competition..........Haarlem, Holland
7-12. Stampede...................Calgary, B.C., Canada
8-13. Intl. Musical Eisteddfod.......Llangollen, Wales
9-11. Cherry Festival..................Manistee, Mich.
10-12. Hell's Canyon Rodeo...............Weiser, Idaho
10-13. Pawnee Indian Powwow..............Pawnee, Okla.
11-27. Ballet Festival....................Nervi, Italy
11-31. San Ignacio de Loyola Celeb....Guanajuato, Mex.
12-13. Lightning Champ. Regatta
Lake Winnipesaukee, N.H.
12-13. Medieval Tilting Tournaments.Sondeborg, Denmark
12-16. Song of Songs Pageant.............Haifa, Israel
12-19. Trials for Sloop Cup Race.........Newport, R.I.
13. Highland Games & Clan Gatherings....Linville, N.C.
13-15. Wild Horse Festival............Haramachi, Japan
13-19. Red River Valley Fair............Fargo, N. Dak.
14-18. Craftsmen's Fair of So. Highlands
Asheville, N.C.
14-20. Show Boat.......................Chesaning, Mich.
16-Aug. 12. Petrus de Dacia Miracle Play.Visby, Sweden
17-19. Dinosaur Roundup....................Vernal, Utah
17-20. Schubert Festival................Vienna, Austria
17-Sept. 15. Swiss Women's Exposition...Zurich, Switz.
18-20. Koshare Indian Festival.........La Junta, Colo.
18-21. Indian Days...............Banff, Alta., Canada
19-Aug. 17. 800th Anniv. Celeb.........Munich, Germany
20. Water Skiing Show..................Lewiston, Mich.
20. Outboard Marathon.................Cheboygan, Mich.
20. Intl. Folklore Festival....St. Jean-de-Luz, France
20-21. Boat Race Regatta.............Guntersville, Ala.
21-26. Frontier Days Celebration........Cheyenne, Wyo.
22. Ranchero Days.....................Torrance, Calif.
23-30. Lotus Festival...............Virginia Beach, Va.
23-Aug. 25. Richard Wagner Opera Festival
Bayreuth, Germany
24-26. La Semana Santiaguera...................All Cuba
24-Sept. 21. Design Cavalcade.....Hameenlinna, Finland
25. Children's Folk Dance Festival.....Waikiki, Hawaii
25-27. Intl. Roundup Cavalcade.........Pawhuska, Okla.
25-Aug. 31. Performing Arts Festival..Santander, Spain
26. Yacht Club Regatta.....................Bristol, R.I.
26-28. Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo.....Dauphin Island, Ala.
26-Aug. 31. Music & Art Festival.....Salzburg, Germany
27. Zulu Dance Festival.................Natal, S. Africa
27. Pilgrimage...................Croagh Patrick, Ireland
27-Aug. 3. Open-Air Theatre Festival.Wiltz, Luxembourg
27-Aug. 3. Sandhamn Regatta & Cup Races
Stockholm, Sweden
27-Aug. 3. Yachting Regatta Week....St. Moritz, Switz.
27-Aug. 3. Gymnastics Festival.........Munich, Germany
28-31. North Dakota State Fair..........Minot, N. Dak.
30. Pony Penning & Roundup....Chincoteague Island, Va.
31-Aug. 3. Mother Lode Fair & Rodeo..Yuba City, Calif.

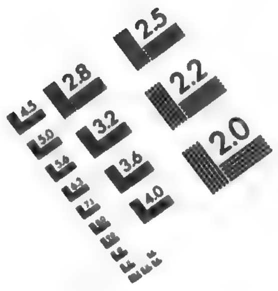
TRAVEL, JUNE, 1958

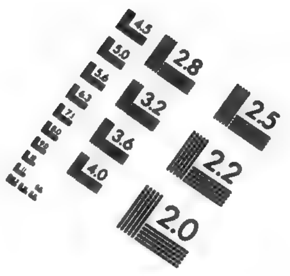
REDUCTION
RATIO
17x

2.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

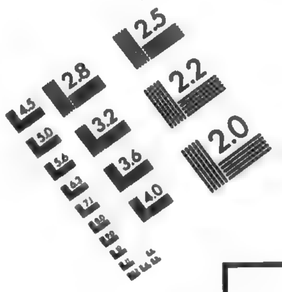
2.0 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

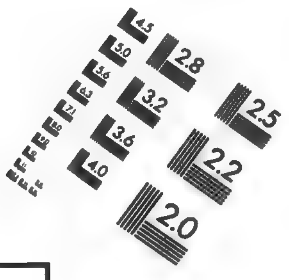
1.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

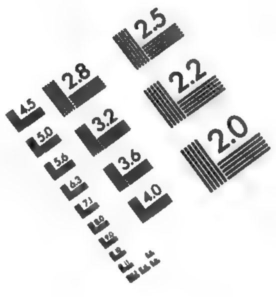


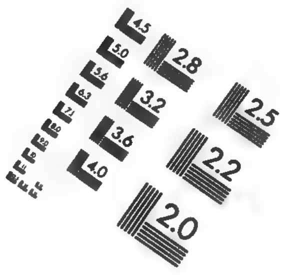


PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC





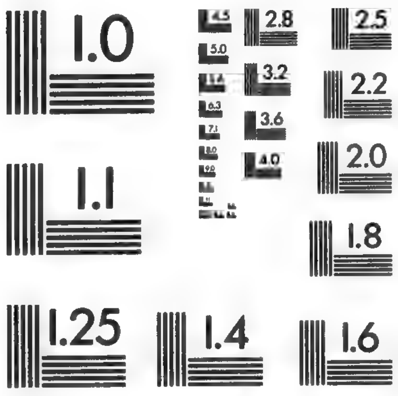




200 mm

150 mm

100 mm



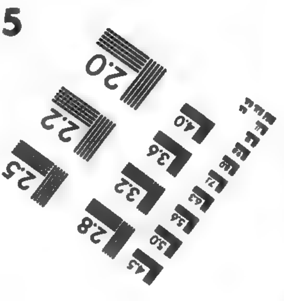
1.0 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

2.0 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

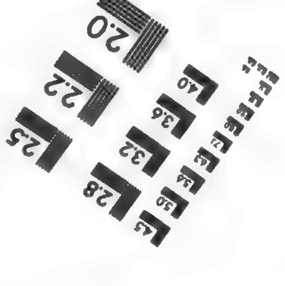
2.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

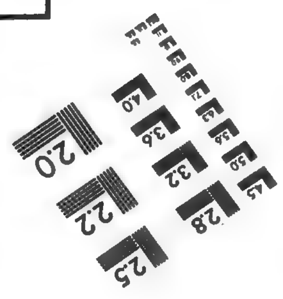
A5



A4

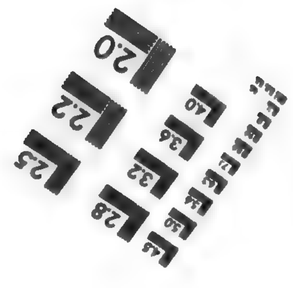
A3





PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century
A&P
1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119



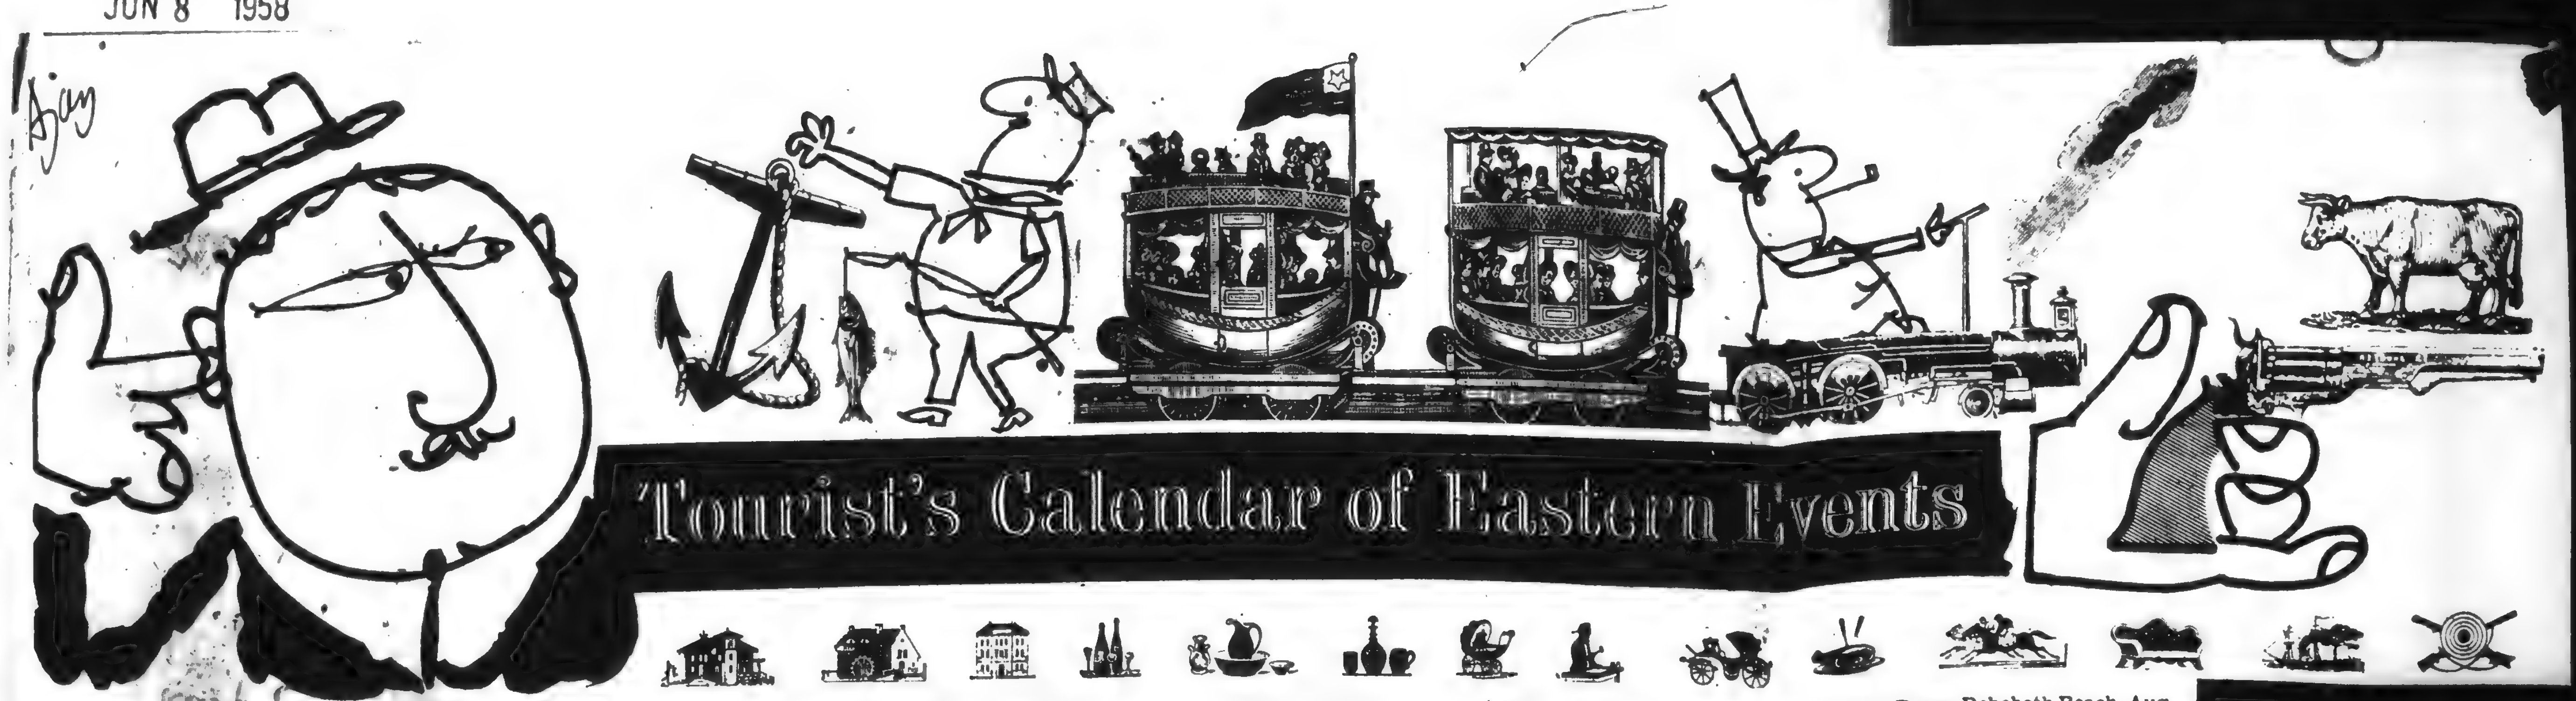
4.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

3.5 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

3.0 mm
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958



Tourist's Calendar of Eastern Events

MAINE

Strawberry Festival, Wiscasset, June 28. Hobby and Craft Show.

Birthday Celebration, Scarborough, July 4-10. The 300th anniversary of the community.

Broiler Festival, Belfast, July 11-12. Chicken barbecue a highlight.

Boat Races, Augusta, July 12-13. Kennebec River marathon.

Bazaar, Boothbay Harbor, July 21. At the Opera House.

Flower Show, Boothbay Harbor, July 24-25.

Seafood Festival, Rockland, Aug. 1-3. Lobster a specialty.

Millionth Visitor Celebration, Portland, Aug. 7-9.

Fishing Derby, Old Orchard Beach, Aug. 15-17.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Antiques Show, Exeter, June 5-7.

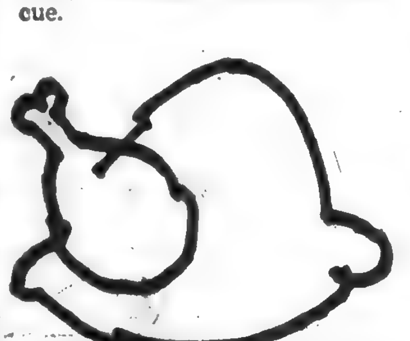
Mountain Laurel Tour, Peterborough, June 15-30. Routes posted.

Motorcycle Race, Lanconia, June 22. One hundred mile National Dirt Track Championship.

Jubilee Week, Portsmouth, June 29-July 6.

Festival of Seven Arts, Pike, July 3-15. Cultural leaders hold lakeshore discussions.

Wing-Ding, Greenfield, July 4. Parade, clambake, chicken barbecue.



Jubilee Days, Jaffrey, July 4-6. Water sports, old house tours.

"Old Homestead," Swanzey, July 11-13. Old melodrama presented in the Potash Bowl.

Trapshooting Tournament, Dover, July 18-20. State Championships.

Founders' Day, Hancock, July 19. Homes to be open for visitors.

Craftsmen's Fair, Gilford, Aug. 5-9.

Cracker Barrel Americana, Pike, Aug. 11-25.

Bi-Centennial Festival, Temple, Aug. 15-17.

Art Show, Franconia Notch, Aug. 20-26. Admission free.

Arts, Crafts Festival, Greenfield, Aug. 23.

VERMONT

Model Airplane Contest, Burlington, June 14-15. Held at airport.

Antiques Shows: Weathersford Center, June 26-28; Burlington, July 22-27; Woodstock, Aug. 6-9.

Strawberry Festivals: Londonderry, June 30; Grafton, July 5.

House Tours: Warren, July 4. Middleburg, July 9. Manchester, July 17. Londonderry, Aug. 3. Stannard, Aug. 3. South Londonderry, Aug. 9-10. Craftsbury Common, Aug. 12. Brownington, Aug. 17. Warren, Aug. 31.

Horse Shows: Warren, July 4. Montpelier, July 19-20. Stowe, July 27. South Woodstock, Aug. 1-3. Arlington, Aug. 10. Windsor, Aug. 23-24. South Woodstock, Sept. 6.

Daniel Webster Day, Staratton, July 6.

Flower Show, Brownsville, July 8.

Sugar on Snow Party, Morgan, July 9.

Soap Box Derby, Burlington, July 13

Tennis, Burlington, July 14-19. State Jr. Championships.

Baseball, Brattleboro, July 19. State Tournament opens.

Sidewalk Art Exhibit, Barre, July 25-26.

Town Festival, Wallingford, July 25-26. General celebration.

Water Show, Burlington, July 25-27. Northeast Waterama.

Trail Rides: Woodstock, July 25-27; South Woodstock, Aug. 27-30.

Coolidge Pilgrimage, Plymouth, July 27.

"Vermontiana," Manchester, July 26.

Cracker Barrel Bazaar, Newbury, July 30-Aug. 10. Art Exhibit a feature.

Golf, Burlington, Aug. 4-6. State Women's Tournament.

Colonial Day, Castleton, Aug. 6.

Fair, Bradford, Aug. 8-10. Conn. Valley Exposition.

Lumberjack Roundup, Lake Dunmore, Aug. 15-16.

Gladiolus Show, Barre, Aug. 17.

SVA Exhibition, Manchester, Aug. 23-Sept. 1. Twenty-ninth annual.

Champlain Valley Exposition, Essex Junction, Aug. 25-30.

Field Day, Peacham, Sept. 1.

Fair, Rutland, Sept. 1.

MASSACHUSETTS

Dairy Festival, Boston, June 8-14. Held at Boston Common.

Boston Arts Festival, Boston, June 8-22. Drama, dance, concerts scheduled.

Striped Bass Derby, Cape Ann, June 8-Oct. 31. Weekly prizes awarded.

Charity Ball, Osterville, June 13. Tenth annual.

Marathon Boat Races: Lowell, June 14. Weymouth, Aug. 3.

Blessing of the Fleet, Gloucester, June 15. Annual Portuguese ceremony.

Fishing Derby, Ipswich Bay, June 15-Oct. 1. Tuna tournament.

Golf, Williamstown, June 22-28. National Collegiate championships.

Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, June 29-Sept. 1. Concerts Saturday, Sunday.

Fishermen Memorial, Provincetown, June 29. Blessing of the fleet.

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, July 1-Aug. 30.

Berkshire Music Festival, Lenox, July 2-Aug. 10. Bach, Mozart, Brahms to be played at week-end concerts.

Baseball, Haverhill, July 15. Start of the state championships.

Horse Shows: Northampton, July 25-27. Brockton, Sept. 12-14. Springfield, Sept. 19-21. Medfield, Sept. 28.

Golf, West Newton, Aug. 8-9. Curtis Cup match.

New England Folk Festival, Medford, Aug. 11-13.

Tennis, Manchester, Aug. 11-17. Invitational tournament.

Tuna Tournament, Barnstable, Sept. 7-10.

Flower Show, Monmouth, Sept. 11-15.

Fair, Springfield, Sept. 13-21. Eastern States Exposition.

RHODE ISLAND

Iris Show, Greenville, June 1-20. Tours of iris gardens.

Strawberry Festival, North Scituate, June 14. Held at Community House.

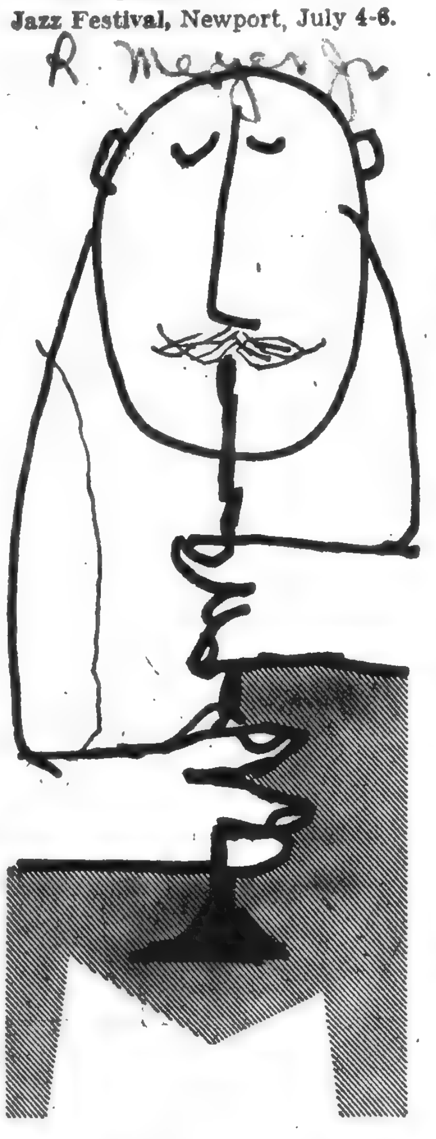
Yachting, Newport: Bermuda Race, June 14. Preliminary Trials American Cup Race, July 12-19. Astor Cup and Queens Cup Race, Aug. 1-9. America's Cup Races, Sept. 20.

Auto Festival, Newport, June 20-22. Antique, Custom-built and sports cars on display.

Boat Races: Barrington, June 28. Newport, July 12-13. Liverton, July 19. Touisset, July 20. Bristol, July 26. Cranston, Aug. 9-10. East Greenwich, Aug. 17. Barrington, Aug. 23-24.

Parade, Chepachet, July 4. Children's parade.

Jazz Festival, Newport, July 4-6.



Barbecue, Little Compton, July 12. Annual chicken feast.

All-Navy Tennis Tournament, Newport, Aug. 8-11.

Powwow, Charlestown, Aug. 9-10. Narragansett Indian celebration.

House, Garden Tour, Washington, Aug. 13-17.

Tuna Tournament, Galilee, Aug. 15. U. S. Atlantic Championship.

Clambake, Warren, Aug. 31.

Religious Feast, Wickford, Sept. 14. Candlelight procession in the evening.

Fishermen's Ball, Sakonnet Point, Sept. 20. Admission, one fish.

Pilgrimage, South Kingstown, Sept. 21. Indians trek to Great Swamp Memorial.

CONNECTICUT

Painting Exhibition, New Canaan, June 8-July 10. Ninth annual Silvermine artists show.

Fair, Ridgefield, June 10-14. Antiques show, sale.

House, Garden Tours: Stonington, June 12. Westport, June 13. Cornwall, July 5. Litchfield, July 12.

Horse Shows: Darien, June 13-15. Westport, June 19-22. Litchfield, Aug. 9. New Canaan, Aug. 16-17. Bethlehem, Aug. 17. Westport, Aug. 22-24. Easton, Sept. 7.

Yale-Harvard Regatta, New London, June 14. Race on Thames River.

Festival of Art, New Haven, June 17-21.

Shakespeare Festival, Stratford, June 19-Sept. 1. American company to present "Hamlet," "Midsummer Nights' Dream," "Winter's Tale."

Pistol Tournament, Rocky Hill, July 11-13. North Atlantic championships.

Girls' Junior Golf Championships, Greenwich, Aug. 11-15.

American Dance Festival, New London, Aug. 14-17. At Conn. College.

Women's Amateur U. S. G. A. Golf Championship, Darien, Aug. 18-23.

Women's Softball Championship, Bridgeport, Aug. 30-Sept. 5.

NEW YORK

Horse Shows: Port Washington, June 8. Port Jervis, June 8. Woodstock, June 15. Syosset, June 28. Troy, July 4-6. Manlius, July 13. Cortland, July 19-20. Southampton, Aug. 9. Orangeburg, Aug. 16-17. Syracuse, Aug. 28-Sept. 1. Stony Brook, Sept. 4-6. Mount Kisco, Sept. 7. Middletown, Sept. 20.

Tennis: Eastern Men's Intercollegiate Championship, Hamilton, June 9-14. State Men's Championship, Bayside, June 28-July 6. Men's Invitational Tournament, Southampton, July 29-Aug. 3. U. S. L. T. A. National Men's and Women's Championships, Aug. 29-Sept. 7.

Marathon Boat Racing: Poughkeepsie, June 15. Buffalo, July 13. Grand Island, July 27.

Caramoor Festival, Katonah, June 14-July 5. Soloists and orchestra.

Rose Festival, Newark, June 15-29. National arrangement competition, June 25.

Intercollegiate Rowing Championship Regatta, Syracuse, June 21.

Sports Car Race, Watkins Glen, June 28. Grand Prix classic.

House Tour, Hurley, July 12. Old Stone House Day.

Art Show, Saranac Lake, July 14-Aug. 2. Fifth Adirondack exhibition.

Sesquicentennial, Castile, July 18-20. Old-timers parade, pageant.

Ceremonial, Niagara Falls, July 19. Six Nations Indian Border Crossing.

Antiques Show and Sale, Saranac Lake, N. Y., July 29-31.

Baseball, Cooperstown, Aug. 4. Hall of Fame game.

Religious Pageant, Palmyra, Aug. 7-9. Performed by members of the Mormon Church.

Woodmen's Field Day, Tupper Lake, Aug. 7-9. Lumberjack contests featured.

Aqua Nite, Schroon Lake, Aug. 8-10. Historical pageant.

Indian Pageant, Ticonderoga, Aug. 15. To be performed at the fort.

Craft Fair, Ithaca, Aug. 21-23. State exhibit.

Boat Race, Buffalo, Sept. 6-7.

Archery Tournament, Connecticut Hill, Sept. 6-7. State championships.

Muzzle-Loading Shoot, Ticonderoga, Sept. 12-14.

Maid of the Mist Festival, Niagara Falls, Sept. 14-21. Authentic Indian Village, ceremonials, parades, pageants.

NEW JERSEY

Rose Day, Glen Ridge, June 8.

Eastern Clay Court Tennis Championships, Hackensack, June 21-29.

Horse Shows: Little Falls, June 20-22. Far Hills, June 21. Summit, June 28-29. Hanover, July 25-27. Branchville, Aug. 4-9. New Brunswick, Aug. 15-17. Oceanport, Aug. 22-24. Chester, Sept. 1. Moorestown, Sept. 6. New Vernon, Sept. 6. Summit, Sept. 28.

Hydrangea Festival, Atlantic City, July 1-31.

Regattas: Mays Landing, July 4. Beach Haven, Aug. 24.

Water Ski Championships, Red Bank, July 5-6. State tournament.

Old House Tours, Cape May, July 11.

Miss America Pageant, Atlantic City, Sept. 2-6.

Antiques Fair, Upper Montclair, Sept. 22-26.

PENNSYLVANIA

Horse Shows: Sewickley, June 13-14. Malvern, June 21. New Cumberland, June 22. Lewis Run, June 27-29. Bedford, July 4-6. Washington, July 30-Aug. 2. Williamsport, Aug. 1-3. Clarks Summit, Aug. 16-17. Hershey, Aug. 21-23. Quentin, Aug. 30-Sept. 1. Corner, Sept. 1. Media, Sept. 6. Newton Square, Sept. 12-14. Devon, Sept. 28.

State Laurel Festival, Wellsboro, June 13-15.

Public Fountain Display, Kennett Square, June 18; July 2, 16, 30; Aug. 13, 27.

Garden Fete, Hazleton, June 19.

Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, Kutztown, July 2-6.

Giants Despair Hill Climb, Wilkes-Barre, July 18-19. Auto race.

State Craftsmen Show, East Stroudsburg, July 25-27.

Gladiolas Show, Monroeville, July 26-27.

National Plowing Contest, Hershey, Aug. 21-22, Part of Dutch Days celebration.

Potato Festival, Corry, Sept. 3-6.

Kipona Day, Harrisburg, Sept. 8.

Flax Scutching Festival, Stahlstown, Sept. 13.

Junior Dairy Show, Harrisburg, Sept. 18.

Garden Show, Monroeville, Sept. 20.

Bicentennial, Ligonier, Sept. 21-22.

Autumn Leaf Festival, Clarion, Oct. 4.

DELAWARE

Regattas, Hallendale: June 1, July 4, Aug. 3, Sept. 14.

Stake Races, Delaware Park: $10,000 Tom Roby Handicap, June 9. $10,000 Georgetown Handicap, June 13. $10,000 Christiana Stakes, June 14. $20,000 Diamond Stake Handicap, June 21. $10,000 Indian River Handicap, June 27. $35,000 Vanity Handicap, June 28. $25,000 Sussex Turf Handicap, July 5. $35,000 Delaware Oaks, July 12. $25,000 The New Castle, July 19. $110,000 Delaware Handicap, July 26.

Tennis: Parks Tournament, New Castle, June 14-28. Mixed Doubles tournament, Wilmington, June 20-22. Junior tournament, New Castle, June 21-26. Middle States Clay Court championships, Wilmington, June 23-28. State Junior championships, Wilmington, June 25-30. State championships, Wilmington, July 3-12. Girls' Grass Courts championships, Wilmington, Aug. 5-10. Junior Tennis tournament, Newark, Aug. 18-23. City championships, Wilmington, Sept. 6-14.

Flower Arrangement, Rehoboth Beach, July 9. Lecture and demonstration.

Flower Show, Rehoboth Beach, July 14-17.

Kent-Sussex Fair, Harrington, July 21-26. Exhibits, harness racing are major attractions.

Picnic, Wilmington, July 30. Oldtimers celebration.

Cottage Art Tour, Rehoboth Beach, Aug. 6-7.

Ocean Races, Rehoboth Beach, Aug. 22-23. South Atlantic A. A. U. Swimming Championships.

Antiques Show, Newark, Sept. 23-26.

MARYLAND

Horse Show, Bel Air, June 13-15. Rising Sun, June 26-29. Timonium, July 11-13. Frederick, Aug. 8-9. Easton, July 23. Timonium, Sept. 8-13. Marlboro, Sept. 20-21.

Delmarva Chicken Festival, Denton, June 26-28.

Anniversary, Baltimore, Sept. 12. Reenactment of the bombardment of Fort Henry.

Observance, Antietam, Sept. 17. Commemoration of a major Civil War battle.

Livestock Show, Princess Anne, Oct. 3-4.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Sports Car Race, June 7-8.

Boat Race, Sept. 20-21. President's Cup Regatta

Vt., July 14-19. U. S. L. T. A. Clay Courts Championships, Chicago, July 14-20. Tournament, Kalamazoo, Mich., July 28-Aug. 2.

Muskie Days, Nevis, Minn., July 8-9.

National Cherry Festival, Traverse City, Mich., July 9-11. Pie-eating contest a feature.

Men's Softball Series, Phoenix, Ariz., July 11-12.

ing, sculpture, crafts, photography, folk dancing and concerts.

Antiques Show, Saranac Lake, N. Y., July 29-31.

Pony Penning, Chincoteague Island, Va., July 30-31. Pony round-up.

Cracker Barrel Bazaar, Newbury, Vt., July 30-Aug. 10. Art exhibit a highlight.

—Compiled by ROBERT MEYER Jr.

---

to executive office . . . Same goes for the William Murphy family, all of whom have maintained active interest in VFW affairs . . . Gail Cunningham was Miss VFW of 1957. Her mother, Ruth, once held executive office in the VFW . . . State Service Officer Lewis Piccirillo entered this work because of an injury received in a mission of war, as an Air Force Bomber . . . Tom Morison, Henry Pinchera and Angelo De Mio are all so interested in it . . . And many, many others you can see around the Statler-Hilton lobby these days.

The Royal Diner Had A Grand opening. All refurbished. Ready to go!

De Nino's, Right Off Main St., is sporting record stars for floor shows. The Johnny Mastrio Quartet plays for happy patrons.

Tanglewood Is Now Running In high through Aug. 10 . . . What concerts! The classics! . . . Worth the trip to Lenox, Mass., any time.

Have You Stopped In At Cowboy Valley in Killingworth? Just like the gay early frontier days in the west when shootin' em cowboy was an order instead of an expression . . . 16 pioneer buildings. A sight to see.

Saw A Crowd Coming Out Of the Hartford Skating Palace the other night. Chartered buses taking them home after a night of fun . . . Tony Pastor was due for a visit in town yesterday. Tony has plenty of relatives to visit.

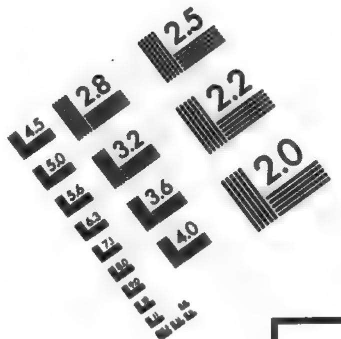
Bob Maule Has A Young Beagle and he says he never knew a dog

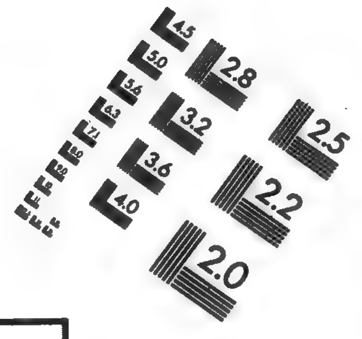
REDUCTION

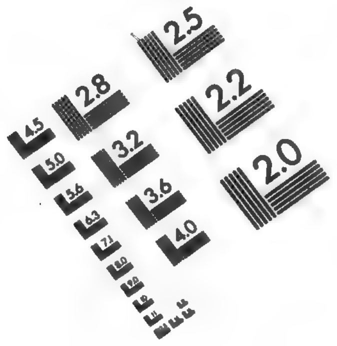
RATIO

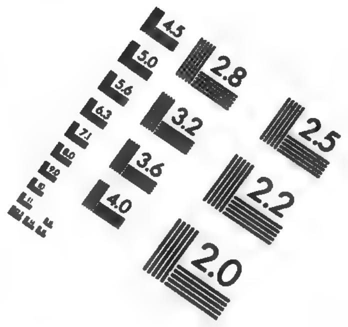
14x

PM-MGP 13″x18″
METRIC GENERAL PURPOSE TARGET
PHOTOGRAPHIC





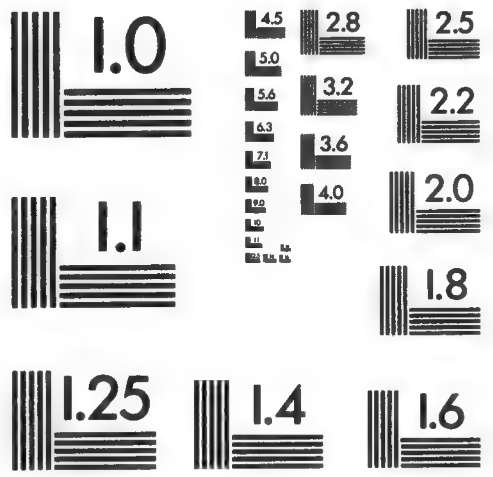




200 mm

150 mm

100 mm



ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.0 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz1234567890

1.5 mm

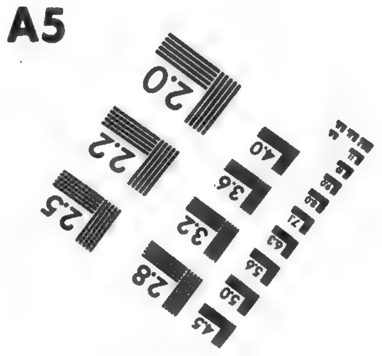
ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

2.0 mm

ABCDEFGHIJKLMNOPQRSTUVWXYZ
abcdefghijklmnopqrstuvwxyz
1234567890

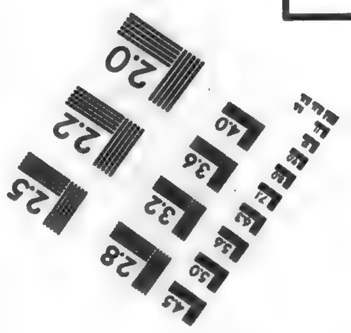
2.5 mm

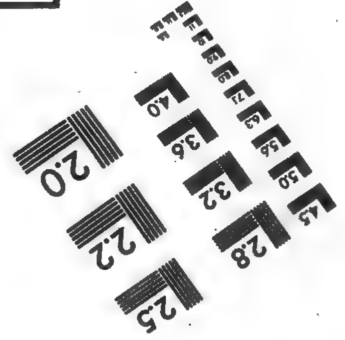
A5



A4

A3





PRECISION℠ RESOLUTION TARGETS

Century

A&P

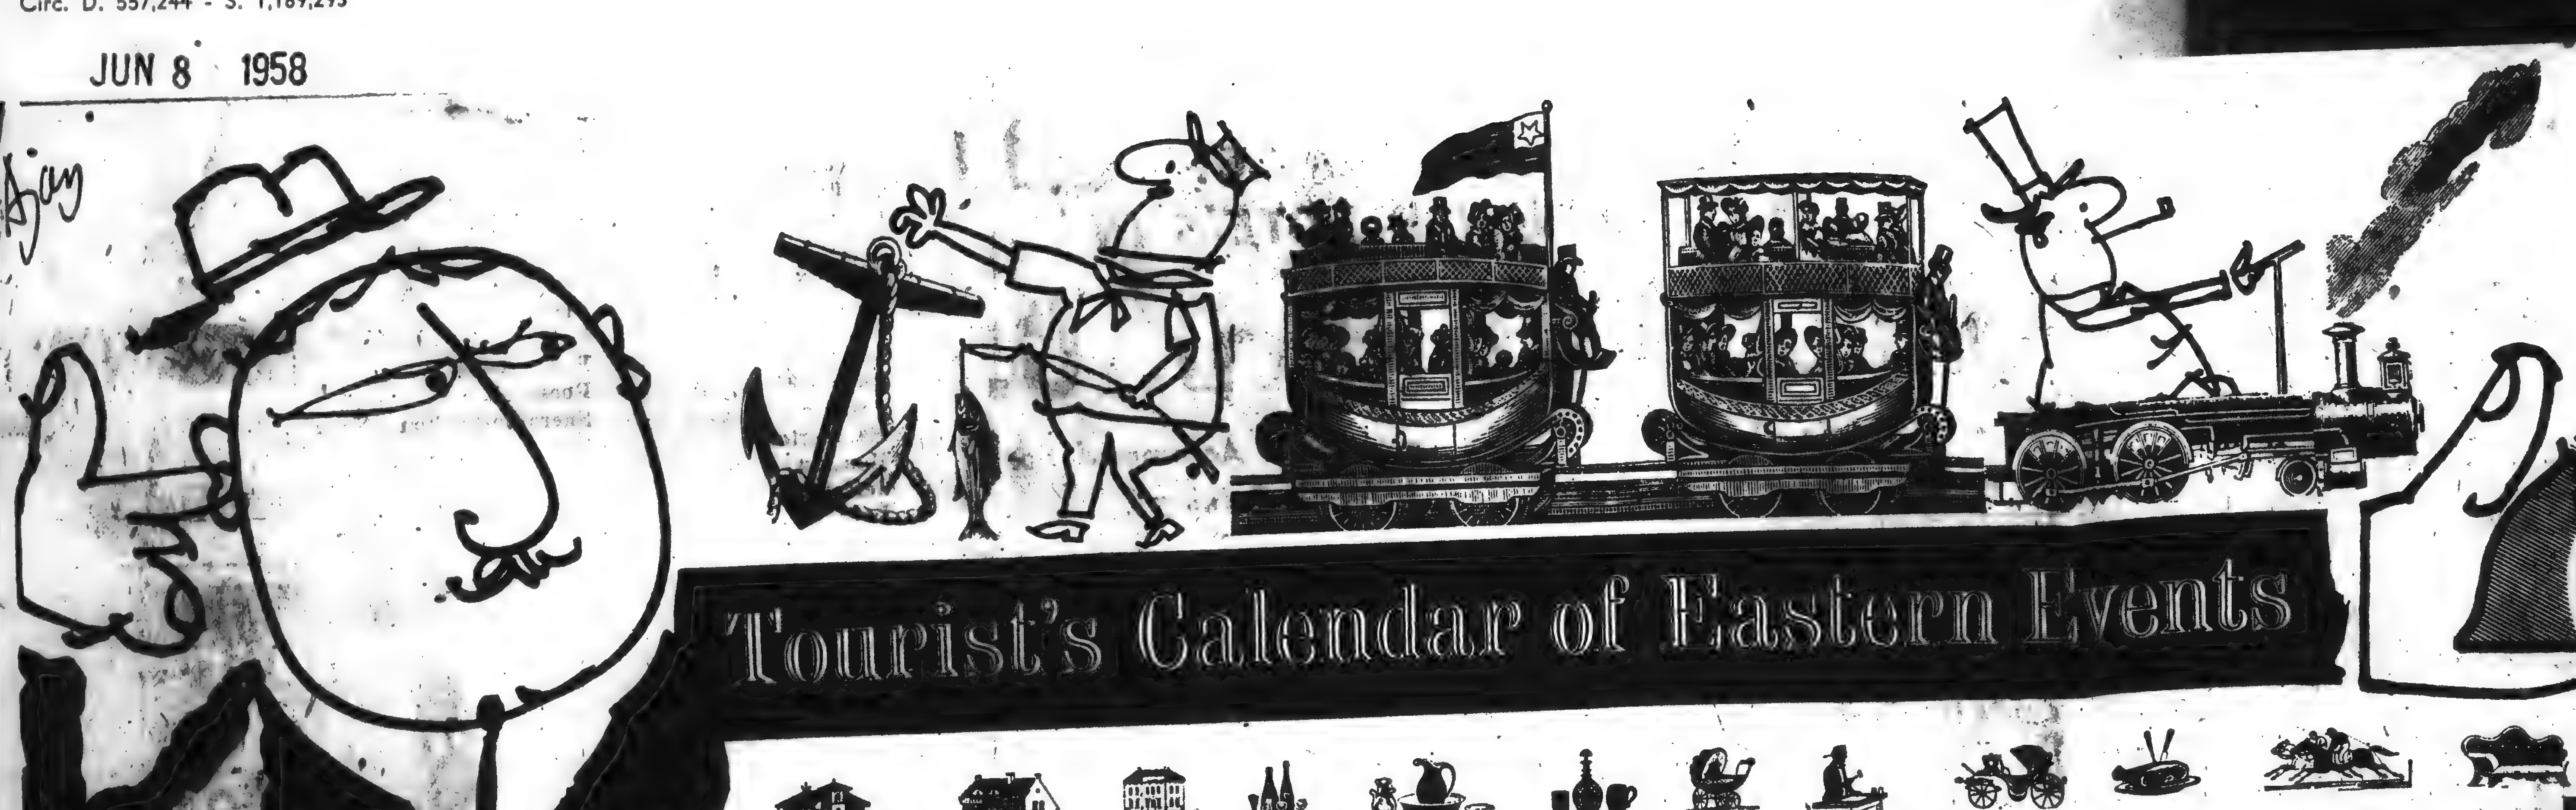
1303 Geneva Avenue
St. Paul, MN 55119

[259]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 8 1958

Ajay



Tourist's Calendar of Eastern Events

1 Sist Symphony

MAINE

Strawberry Festival, Wisasset, June 28. Hobby and Craft Show.

Birthday Celebration, Scarborough, July 4-10. The 300th anniversary of the community.

Broiler Festival, Belfast, July 11-12. Chicken barbecue a highlight.

Boat Race, Augusta, July 12-13. Kennebec River marathon.

Bazaar, Boothbay Harbor, July 21. At the Opera House.

Flower Show, Boothbay Harbor, July 24-25.

Seafood Festival, Rockland, Aug. 1-3. Lobster a specialty.

Millionth Visitor Celebration, Portland, Aug. 7-9.

Fishing Derby, Old Orchard Beach, Aug. 15-17.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Antiques Show, Exeter, June 5-7.

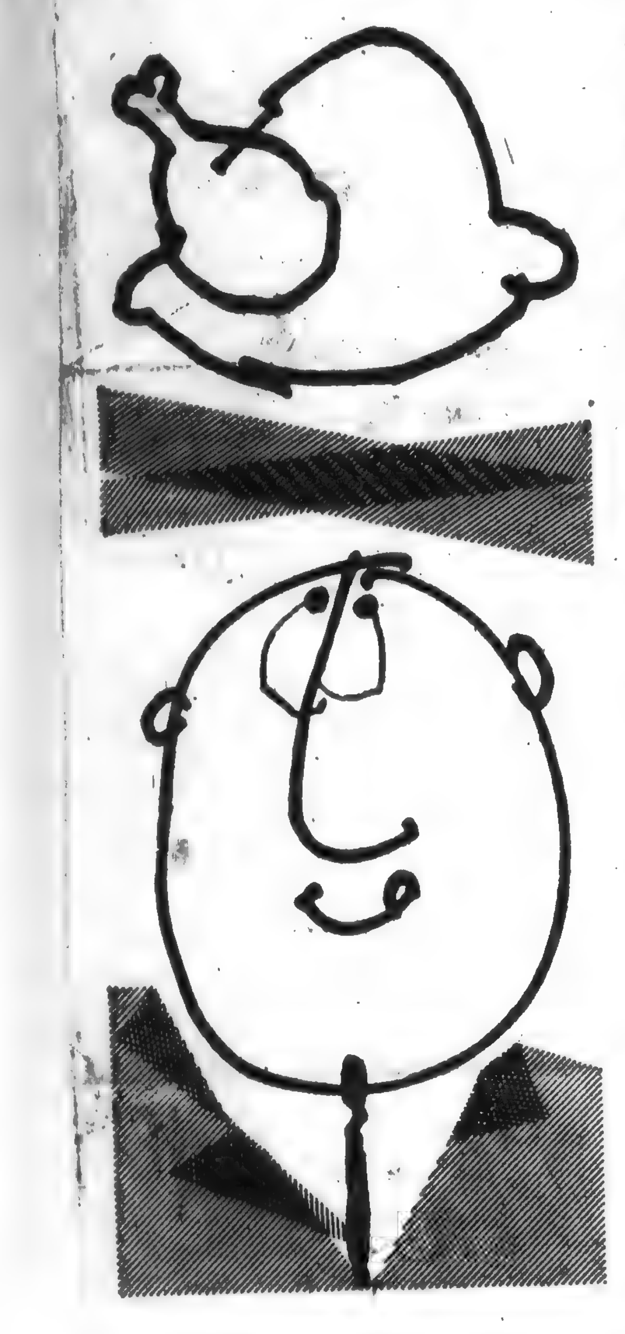
Mountain Laurel Tour, Peterborough, June 15-30. Routes posted.

Motorcycle Race, Lanconia, June 22. One hundred mile National Dirt Track Championship.

Jubilee Week, Portsmouth, June 29-July 6.

Festival of Seven Arts, Pike, July 8-15. Cultural leaders hold lakeshore discussions.

Wing-Ding, Greenfield, July 4. Parade, clambake, chicken barbecue.



Jubilee Days, Jaffrey, July 4-6. Water sports, old house tours.

"Old Homestead," Swanzey, July 11-13. Old melodrama presented in the Potash Bowl.

Trapshooting Tournament, Dover, July 18-20. State Championships.

Founders' Day, Hancock, July 19. Homes to be open for visitors.

Craftsmen's Fair, Gilford, Aug. 5-9.

Cracker Barrel Americana, Pike, Aug. 11-25.

Bi-Centennial Festival, Temple, Aug. 15-17.

Art Show, Franconia Notch, Aug. 20-26. Admission free.

Arts, Crafts Festival, Greenfield, Aug. 23.

VERMONT

Model Airplane Contest, Burlington, June 14-15. Held at airport.

Antiques Shows: Weathersford Center, June 20-28; Burlington,

Common, Aug. 12. Brownington, Aug. 17. Warren, Aug. 31.

Horse Shows: Warren, July 4. Montpelier, July 19-20. Stowe, July 27. South Woodstock, Aug. 1-3. Arlington, Aug. 10. Windsor, Aug. 23-24. South Woodstock, Sept. 6.

Daniel Webster Day, Staratton, July 6.

Flower Show, Brownsville, July 8.

Sugar on Snow Party, Morgan, July 9.

Soap Box Derby, Burlington, July 13

Tennis, Burlington, July 14-19. State Jr. Championships.

Baseball, Brattleboro, July 19. State Tournament opens.

Sidewalk Art Exhibit, Barre, July 25-26.

Town Festival, Wallingford, July 25-26. General celebration.

Water Show, Burlington, July 25-27. Northeast Waterama.

Trail Rides: Woodstock, July 25-27; South Woodstock, Aug. 27-30.

Coolidge Pilgrimage, Plymouth, July 27.

"Vermontiana," Manchester, July 26.

Cracker Barrel Bazaar, Newbury, July 30-Aug. 10. Art Exhibit a feature.

Golf, Burlington, Aug. 4-6. State Women's Tournament.

Colonial Day, Castleton, Aug. 6.

Fair, Bradford, Aug. 8-10. Conn. Valley Exposition.

Lumberjack Roundup, Lake Dunmore, Aug. 15-16.

Gladiolus Show, Barre, Aug. 17.

SVA Exhibition, Marchester, Aug. 23-Sept. 1. Twenty-ninth annual.

Champlain Valley Exposition, Essex Junction, Aug. 25-30.

Field Day, Peacham, Sept. 1.

Fair, Rutland, Sept. 1.

MASSACHUSETTS

Dairy Festival, Boston, June 8-14. Held at Boston Common.

Boston Arts Festival, Boston, June 8-22. Drama, dance, concerts scheduled.

Striped Bass Derby, Cape Ann, June 8-Oct. 31. Weekly prizes awarded.

Charity Ball, Osterville, June 13. Tenth annual.

Marathon Boat Races: Lowell, June 14. Weymouth, Aug. 3.

Blessing of the Fleet, Gloucester, June 15. Annual Portuguese ceremony.

Fishing Derby, Ipswich Bay, June 15-Oct. 1. Tuna tournament.

Golf, Williamstown, June 22-28. National Collegiate championships.

Berkshire Music Barn, Lenox, June 29-Sept. 1. Concerts Saturday, Sunday.

Fishermen Memorial, Provincetown, June 29. Blessing of the fleet.

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, July 1-Aug. 30.

Berkshire Music Festival, Lenox, July 2-Aug. 10. Bach, Mozart, Brahms to be played at week-end concerts.

Baseball, Haverhill, July 15. Start of the state championships.

Horse Shows: Northampton, July 25-27. Brockton, Sept. 12-14. Springfield, Sept. 19-21. Medfield, Sept. 28.

Golf, West Newton, Aug. 8-9. Curtis Cup match.

New England Folk Festival, Medford, Aug. 11-13.

Tennis, Manchester, Aug. 11-17. Invitational tournament.

Tuna Tournament, Barnstable, Sept. 7-10.

Flower Show, Monmouth, Sept. 11-15.

Fair, Springfield, Sept. 13-21. Eastern States Exposition.

RHODE ISLAND

Iris Show, Greenville, June 1-20.

Aug. 1-9. America's Cup Races, Sept. 20.

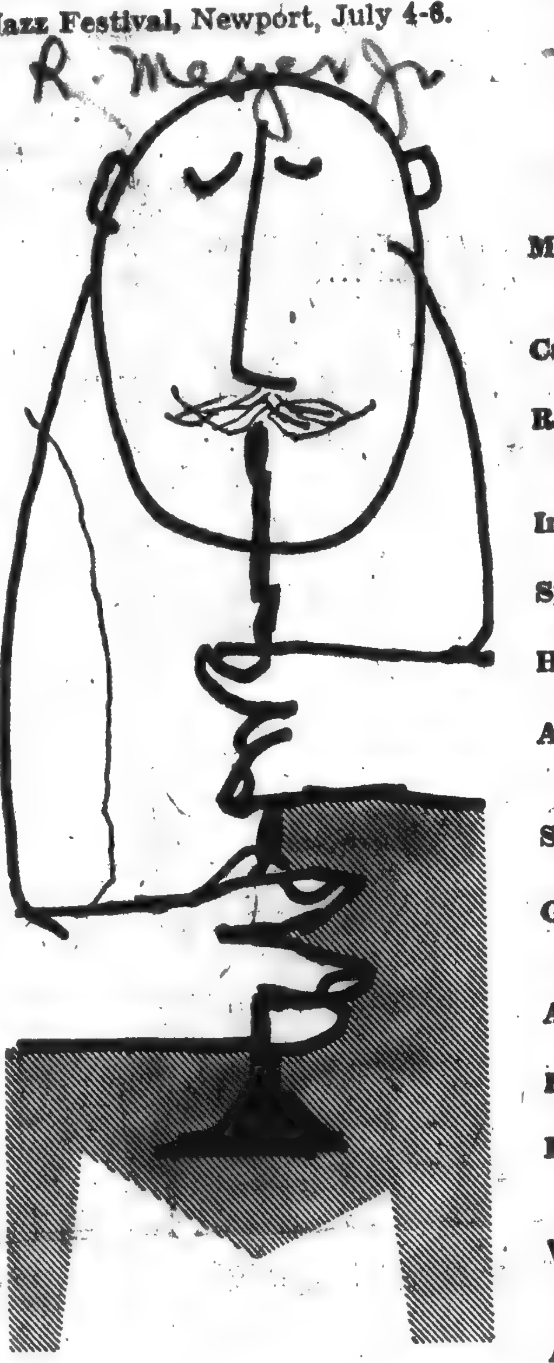
Auto Festival, Newport, June 20-22. Antique, Custom-built and sports cars on display.

Boat Races: Barrington, June 28. Newport, July 12-13. Liverton, July 19. Touisset, July 20. Bristol, July 26. Cranston, Aug. 9-10. East Greenwich, Aug. 17. Barrington, Aug. 23-24.

Parade, Chepachet, July 4. Children's parade.

Jazz Festival, Newport, July 4-6.

R. Meyer Jr



Barbecue, Little Compton, July 12. Annual chicken feast.

All-Navy Tennis Tournament, Newport, Aug. 8-11.

Powwow, Charlestown, Aug. 9-10. Narragansett Indian celebration.

House, Garden Tour, Washington, Aug. 13-17.

Tuna Tournament, Galilee, Aug. 15. U. S. Atlantic Championship.

Clambake, Warren, Aug. 31.

Religious Feast, Wickford, Sept. 14. Candlelight procession in the evening.

Fishermen's Ball, Sakonnet Point, Sept. 20. Admission, one fish.

Pilgrimage, South Kingstown, Sept. 21. Indians trek to Great Swamp Memorial.

CONNECTICUT

Painting Exhibition, New Canaan, June 8-July 10. Ninth annual Silvermine artists show.

Fair, Ridgefield, June 10-14. Antiques show, sale.

House, Garden Tours: Stonington, June 12. Westport, June 13. Cornwall, July 5. Litchfield, July 12.

Horse Shows: Darien, June 13-15. Westport, June 19-22. Litchfield, Aug. 9. New Canaan, Aug. 16-17. Bethlehem, Aug. 17. Westport, Aug. 22-24. Easton, Sept. 7.

Yale-Harvard Regatta, New London, June 14. Race on Thames River.

Festival of Art, New Haven, June 17-21.

Shakespeare Festival, Stratford, June 19-Sept. 1. American company to present "Hamlet," "Midsummer Nights' Dream," "Winter's Tale."

Pistol Tournament, Rocky Hill, July 11-13. North Atlantic championships.

Girls' Junior Golf Championships, Greenwich, Aug. 11-15.

NEW YORK

Horse Shows: Port Washington, June 8. Port Jervis, June 8. Woodstock, June 15. Syosset, June 28. Troy, July 4-6. Manlius, July 13. Cortland, July 19-20. Southampton, Aug. 9. Orangeburg, Aug. 16-17. Syracuse, Aug. 28-Sept. 1. Stony Brook, Sept. 4-6. Mount Kisco, Sept. 7. Middletown, Sept. 20.

Tennis: Eastern Men's Intercollegiate Championship, Hamilton, June 9-14. State Men's Championship, Bayside, June 28-July 6. Men's Invitational Tournament, Southampton, July 29-Aug. 3. U. S. L. T. A. National Men's and Women's Championships, Aug. 29-Sept. 7.

Marathon Boat Racing: Poughkeepsie, June 15. Buffalo, July 13. Grand Island, July 27.

Caramoor Festival, Katonah, June 14-July 5. Soloists and orchestra.

Rose Festival, Newark, June 15-29. National arrangement competition, June 25.

Intercollegiate Rowing Championship Regatta, Syracuse, June 21.

Sports Car Race, Watkins Glen, June 28. Grand Prix classic.

House Tour, Hurley, July 12. Old Stone House Day.

Art Show, Saranac Lake, July 14-Aug. 2. Fifth Adirondack exhibition.

Sesquicentennial, Castile, July 18-20. Old-timers parade, pageant.

Ceremonial, Niagara Falls, July 19. Six Nations Indian Border Crossing.

Antiques Show and Sale, Saranac Lake, N. Y., July 29-31.

Baseball, Cooperstown, Aug. 4. Hall of Fame game.

Religious Pageant, Palmyra, Aug. 7-9. Performed by members of the Mormon Church.

Woodmen's Field Day, Tupper Lake, Aug. 7-9. Lumberjack contests featured.

Aqua Nite, Schroon Lake, Aug. 8-10. Historical pageant.

Indian Pageant, Ticonderoga, Aug. 15. To be performed at the fort.

Craft Fair, Ithaca, Aug. 21-23. State exhibit.

Boat Race, Buffalo, Sept. 6-7.

Archery Tournament, Connecticut Hill, Sept. 6-7. State championships.

Muzzle-Loading Shoot, Ticonderoga, Sept. 12-14.

Maid of the Mist Festival, Niagara Falls, Sept. 14-21. Authentic Indian Village, ceremonials, parades, pageants.

NEW JERSEY

Rose Day, Glen Ridge, June 8.

Eastern Clay Court Tennis Championships, Hackensack, June 21-29.

Horse Shows: Little Falls, June 20-22. Far Hills, June 21. Summit, June 28-29. Hanover, July 25-27. Branchville, Aug. 4-9. New Brunswick, Aug. 15-17. Oceanport, Aug. 22-24. Chester, Sept. 1. Moorestown, Sept. 6. New Vernon, Sept. 6. Summit, Sept. 28.

Hydrangea Festival, Atlantic City, July 1-31.

Regattas: Mays Landing, July 4. Beach Haven, Aug. 24.

Water Ski Championships, Red Bank, July 5-6. State tournament.

Old House Tours, Cape May, July 11.

Miss America Pageant, Atlantic City, Sept. 2-6.

Antiques Fair, Upper Montclair, Sept. 22-26.

PENNSYLVANIA

Horse Shows: Sewickley, June 13-14. Malvern, June 21. New Cumberland, June 22. Lewis Run, June 27-29. Bedford, July 4-6. Washington, July 30-Aug. 2. Williamsport, Aug. 1-3. Clarks

Public Fountain Display, Kennett Square, June 18; July 2, 16, 30; Aug. 13, 27.

Garden Fete, Hazleton, June 19.

Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, Kutztown, July 2-6.

Giants Despair Hill Climb, Wilkes-Barre, July 18-19. Auto race.

State Craftsmen Show, East Stroudsburg, July 25-27.

Gladiolas Show, Monroeville, July 26-27.

National Plowing Contest, Hershey, Aug. 21-22. Part of Dutch Days celebration.

Potato Festival, Corry, Sept. 3-6.

Kipona Day, Harrisburg, Sept. 8.

Flax Scutching Festival, Stahlstown, Sept. 13.

Junior Dairy Show, Harrisburg, Sept. 18.

Garden Show, Monroeville, Sept. 20.

Bicentennial, Ligonier, Sept. 21-22.

Autumn Leaf Festival, Clarion, Oct. 4.

DELAWARE

Regattas, Hallendale: June 1, July 4, Aug. 3, Sept. 14.

Stake Races, Delaware Park: $10,000 Tom Roby Handicap, June 9. $10,000 Georgetown Handicap, June 13. $10,000 Christiana Stakes, June 14. $20,000 Diamond Stake Handicap, June 21. $10,000 Indian River Handicap, June 27. $35,000 Vanity Handicap, June 28. $25,000 Sussex Turf Handicap, July 5. $35,000 Delaware Oaks, July 12. $25,000 The New Castle, July 19. $110,000 Delaware Handicap, July 26.

Tennis: Parks Tournament, New Castle, June 14-28. Mixed Doubles tournament, Wilmington, June 20-22. Junior tournament, New Castle, June 21-26. Middle States Clay Court championships, Wilmington, June 23-28. State Junior championships, Wilmington, June 25-30. State championships, Wilmington, July 3-12. Girls' Grass Courts championships, Wilmington, Aug. 5-10. Junior Tennis tournament, Newark, Aug. 18-23. City championships, Wilmington, Sept. 6-14.

Flower Arrangement, Rehoboth Beach, July 9. Lecture and demonstration.

Flower Show, Rehoboth Beach, July 14-1".

Ocean Races, Rehoboth Beach, Aug. 22-23. South Atlantic A. A. U. Swimming Championships.

Antiques Show, Newark, Sept. 23-26.

MARYLAND

Horse Show, Bel Air, June 13-15. Rising Sun, June 26-29. Timonium, July 11-13. Frederick, Aug. 8-9. Easton, July 23. Timonium, Sept. 8-13. Marlboro, Sept. 20-21.

Delmarva Chicken Festival, Denton, June 26-28.

Anniversary, Baltimore, Sept. 12. Reenactment of the bombardment of Fort Henry.

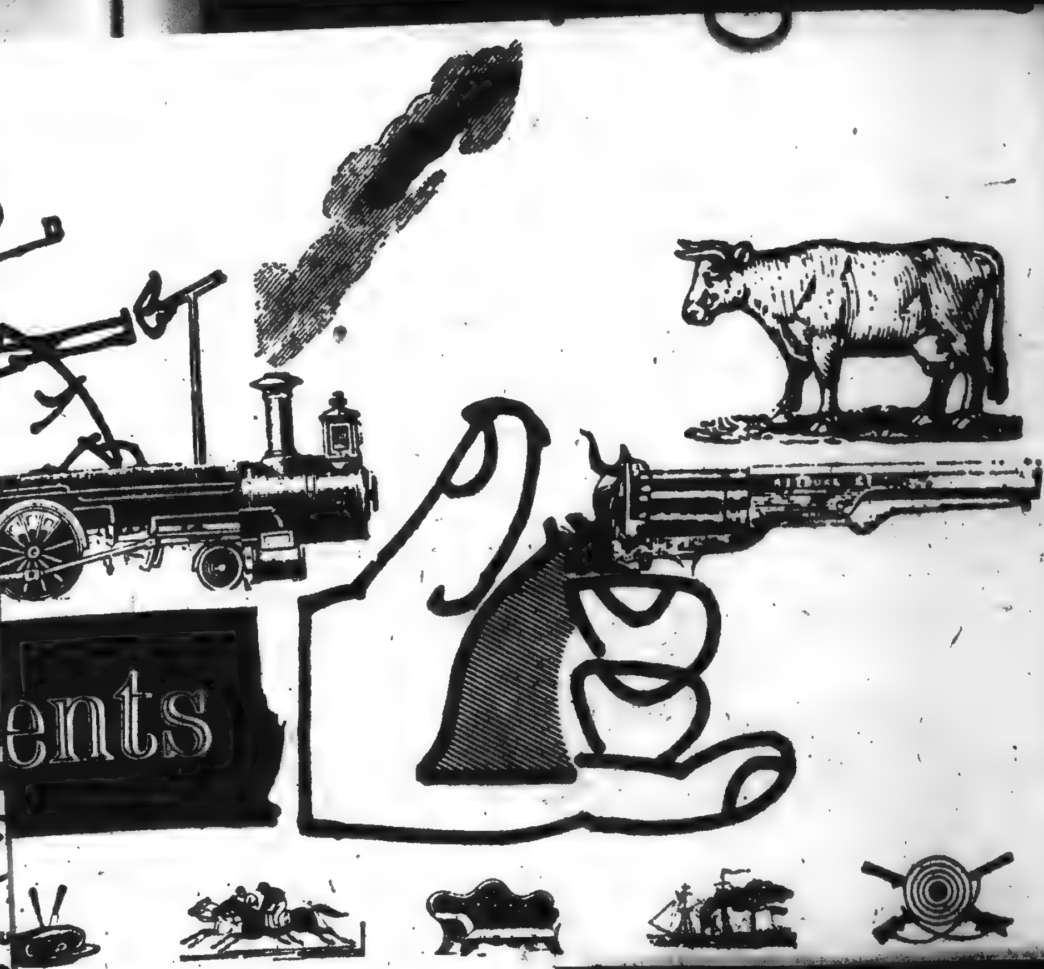
Observance, Antietam, Sept. 17. Commemoration of a major Civil War battle.

Livestock Show, Princess Anne, Oct. 3-4.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Sports Car Race, June 7-8.

Boat Race, Sept. 20-21. President's Cup Regatta.



Ocea- Races, Rehoboth Beach, Aug. 22-23. South Atlantic A. A. U. Swimming Championships.

Antiques Show, Newark, Sept. 23-26.

MARYLAND

Horse Show, Bel Air, June 13-15. Rising Sun, June 26-29. Timonium, July 11-13. Frederick, Aug. 8-9. Easton, July 23. Timonium, Sept. 8-13. Marlboro, Sept. 20-21.

Delmarva Chicken Festival, Denton, June 26-28.

Anniversary, Baltimore, Sept. 12. Reenactment of the bombardment of Fort Henry.

Observance, Antietam, Sept. 17. Commemoration of a major Civil War battle.

Livestock Show, Princess Anne, Oct. 3-4.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Sports Car Race, June 7-8.

Boat Race, Sept. 20-21. President's Cup Regatta

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
Circ. D. 97,224 - S. 143,181

JUL 12 1958

Informing You

By M. OAKLEY STAFFORD

Note To Roy Livingstone: I saw your story on the Staglags and I'm sure others read it too. Your banquet at Paul De Leo's Club next Thursday should draw a crowd.

The Central Theater Is To bring back "Around the World in 80 Days" next Wednesday. Those who missed it first time around now have their second chance.

Joan Blondell, Due At Oakdale in "New Girl in Town," will probably have with her that beloved puppy dog we read of. A hotel didn't want to house the puppy, so out walked Joan! Me, too. I'd do the same thing.

At Loew's Poli, The Murder mystery of a man missing in the South African diamond fields has Kevin McCarthy as the star investigator. How he finds the solution is something to see. You couldn't guess it.

The 40th anniversary of Tarzan films is being celebrated in the pitcure now at Loew's Poli, "Tarzan's Fight For Life." (Against the witch doctor. The fellow the song says yells 'Ooom-ba-zoom-ba-oom-pa') . . . New close ones for Tarzan, who always wins.

Plenty Of Interesting People In that Gold Star Mother Convention crowd. There's Jeanne Watton, who once was a Rockette. Both she and her husband, Bob, are active in VWF affairs . . . And did you know that the Rev. Leonard Goode is a nephew of news commentator Mike Goode? He is. . . . At the big dinner today, Governor Ribicoff will be there, of course . . . So will Bill (Senator) Purtell, whose wife was an would own him. Only people who don't have dogs think people own them. Definitely the dog is boss. It's love that gives them power over the owner.

"The Key" Is Running Strong at E.M. Loew's. Everyone is talking about Sophia Loren's acting as the girl who walks in a fog until the man she loves breaks the spell.

Comments Upon The Maurice Landerman Trio in the Terrace Room at the Statler-Hilton would delight brother Paul's ears. Localites love their own!

Dave Macaky, At The Heublein, has a very individual style of pianoing. . . . What's "Red" Richman's real first name? Even the phone book lists it as "Red."

M. Oakley Stafford's popular column appears daily and Sunday in The Courant.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

JULY TOURIST EVENTS

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-Aug. 10. Symphony, jazz, chamber music concerts.

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Music Barn, Lenox, Mass., July 1-Sept. 1. Concerts Saturday, 3:30; Sunday, 8:30.

Outdoor Dramas: "Man's Reach," Ambridge, Pa., July 1-Aug. 30. Theodore Roosevelt Centennial Pageant, Dickinson, N. D., July 4-6. "The Story of Paul," Lawton, Okla., July 5. "The Stephen Foster Story," Bardstown, Ky., July 4-Sept. 1. "The Founders," Williamsburg, Va., July 8-Aug. 31. "Old Homestead," Swanzey, N. H., July 11-13. No performances on Monday.

Timber Carnival, Albany, Ore., July 2-4.

Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, Kutztown, Pa., July 2-[illegible].

Music Festival, Lenox, Mass., July 2-Aug. 10. Bach, Mozart, Brahms to be played weekends at Berkshire Music Festival.

Homecoming, Maryville, Tenn., July 3-5. Hillbilly celebration.

All Indian Pow-wow, Flagstaff, Ariz., July 3-6.

Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, Gulfport, Miss., July 3-6.

Roaring Stoney Days, Ely, Minn., July 3-6.

Festival of Seven Arts, Pike, N. H., July 3-17. Leaders in cultural fields conduct discussions on lakeshore.

Water Carnival, Batesville, Ark., July 4-5. Catfish fry a feature.

Folk Festival, Glenville, W. Va., July 4-5.

Jazz Festival, Newport, R. I., July 4-6. Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck, Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman to perform.

Water Ski Championship, Red Bank, N. J., July 5-6. State tournament.

Boat Race, Clayton, N. Y., July 6. International Canadian and American outboard races.

Golf: Amateur Public Links Tournament, Orland Park, Ill., July 7-12. Caddies competition for Melville Ezra In-

Broiler Festival, Belfast, Me., July 11-12.

North Atlantic Pistol Championship, Rocky Hill, Conn., July 11-13.

Women's Softball Series, Clearmont, Fla., July 11-13.

Open House, Litchfield, Conn., July 12.

Marathon Outboard Racing, Miami, July 12-13. One hundred and thirty-mile race.

Montcalm Celebration, Fort Ticonderoga, N. Y., July 12-13. The 200th anniversary of the Battle of Ticonderoga.

Theatre Festival, Steamboat Springs, Colo., July 12-Aug. [illegible].

Highland Games, Linville, N. C., July 13. Contest at gathering of Scottish-Americans.

Flower Show, Rehoboth Beach, Del., July 16-17.

Open House, Camden, Me., July 17.

Giants Despair Hill Climb, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 18-19. Auto race.

Peach Festival, Clarksville, Ark., July 18-19. Johnson County annual celebration.

Kosharo Indian Festival, Le Junta, Colo., July 18-20. Boy Scouts perform traditional dances and ceremonials.

Aquatennial, Minneapolis, July 18-27. Aqua Follies July 16-27, torchlight parade July 23.

Shakespearean Festivals: San Diego, Calif., July 18-31. Ashland, Ore., July 28-Sept. 4.

Indian Ceremonials, Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 19. Six nations Indian border crossing.

Soap Box Derby, Trenton, Mo., July 20.

Kent-Sussex Fair, Harrington, Del., July 21-26. Exhibits, harness racing.

Pageant of the Masters, Laguna Beach, Calif., July 19-Aug 17. Townsfolk re-create famous paintings.

Lotus Festival, Virginia Beach Va. Visits to gardens a major attraction.

Fiesta, Hart, Mich., July 25-26 Mexican festival.

Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, Mobile, Ala., July 25-27, $10,000 in prizes.

Cavalcade, Pawhuska, Okla., July 25-27. International

HARTFORD, CONN.
COURANT
Circ. D. 97,224 - S. 143,181

JUL 12 1958

Informing You

By M. OAKLEY STAFFORD

Note To Roy Livingstone: I saw your story on the Staglags and I'm sure others read it too. Your banquet at Paul De Leo's Club next Thursday should draw a crowd.

The Central Theater Is To bring back "Around the World in 80 Days" next Wednesday. Those who missed it first time around now have their second chance.

Joan Blondell, Due At Oakdale in "New Girl in Town," will probably have with her that beloved puppy dog we read of. A hotel didn't want to house the puppy, so out walked Joan! Me, too. I'd do the same thing.

At Loew's Poli, The Murder mystery of a man missing in the South African diamond fields has Kevin McCarthy as the star investigator. How he finds the solution is something to see. You couldn't guess it.

The 40th anniversary of Tarzan films is being celebrated in the pitcure now at Loew's Poli, "Tarzan's Fight For Life." (Against the witch doctor. The fellow the song says yells 'Ooom-ba-zoom-ba-oom-pa') . . . New close ones for Tarzan, who always wins.

Plenty Of Interesting People In that Gold Star Mother Convention crowd. There's Jeanne Watton, who once was a Rockette. Both she and her husband, Bob, are active in VWF affairs . . . And did you know that the Rev. Leonard Goode is a nephew of news commentator Mike Goode? He is. . . . At the big dinner today, Governor Ribicoff will be there, of course . . . So will Bill (Senator) Purtell, whose wife was an Army nurse . . . John Mahan Jr., slated for high office, served twice as Attorney General of Montana . . . Cooper Holt, now in business, was a Navy Commander when only 32 years old.

Arlene Zakalaski Is Following her Mom's footsteps in aspiring to executive office . . . Same goes for the William Murphy family, all of whom have maintained active interest in VFW affairs . . . Gail Cunningham was Miss VFW of 1957. Her mother, Ruth, once held executive office in the VFW . . . State Service Officer Lewis Piccirillo entered this work because of an injury received in a mission of war, as an Air Force Bomber . . . Tom Morison, Henry Pinchera and Angelo De Mio are all so interested in it . . . And many, many others you can see around the Statler-Hilton lobby these days.

The Royal Diner Had A Grand opening. All refurbished. Ready to go!

De Nino's, Right Off Main St., is sporting record stars for floor shows The Johnny Mastrio Quartet plays for happy patrons.

Tanglewood Is Now Running In high through Aug. 10 . . . What concerts! The classics! . . . Worth the trip to Lenox, Mass., any time!

Have You Stopped In At Cowboy Valley in Killingworth? Just like the gay early frontier days in the west when shoot' em cowboy was an order instead of an expression! . . . 16 frontier buildings. A sight to see.

Saw A Crowd Coming Our Of the Hartford Skating Palace the other night. Chartered buses taking them home after a night of fun . . . Tony Pastor was due for a visit in town yesterday. Tony has plenty of relatives to visit.

Bob Maule Has A Young Beagle and he says he never knew a dog would own him. Only people who don't have dogs think people own them. Definitely the dog is boss. It's love that gives them power over the owner.

"The Key" Is Running Strong at E.M. Loew's. Everyone is talking about Sophia Loren's acting as the girl who walks in a fog until the man she loves breaks the spell.

Comments Upon The Maurice Landerman Trio in the Terrace Room at the Statler-Hilton would delight brother Paul's ears. Localites love their own!

Dave Macaky, At The Heublein, has a very individual style of pianoing . . . What's "Red" Richman's real first name? Even the phone book lists it as "Red."

M. Oakley Stafford's popular column appears daily and Sunday in The Courant.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUN 29 1958

JULY TOURIST EVENTS

Ravinia Music Festival, Chicago, July 1-Aug. 10. Symphony, jazz, chamber music concerts.

Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Lee, Mass., July 1-Aug. 30.

Music Barn, Lenox, Mass., July 1-Sept. 1. Concerts Saturday, 3:30; Sunday, 8:30.

Outdoor Dramas: "Man's Reach," Ambridge, Pa., July 1-Aug. 30. Theodore Roosevelt Centennial Pageant, Dickinson, N. D., July 4-6. "The Story of Paul," Lawton, Okla., July 5. "The Stephen Foster Story," Bardstown, Ky., July 4-Sept. 1. "The Founders," Williamsburg, Va., July 8-Aug. 31. "Old Homestead," Swansey, N. H., July 11-13. No performances on Monday.

Timber Carnival, Albany, Ore., July 2-4.

Pennsylvania Dutch Folk Festival, Kutztown, Pa., July [illegible].

Music Festival, Lenox, Mass., July 2-Aug. 10. Bach, Mozart, Brahms to be played weekends at Berkshire Music Festival.

Homecoming, Maryville, Tenn., July 3-5. Hillbilly celebration.

All Indian Pow-wow, Flagstaff, Ariz., July 3-6.

Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, Gulfport, Miss., July 3-6.

Roaring Stoney Days, Ely, Minn., July 3-6.

Festival of Seven Arts, Pike, N. H., July [illegible]-17. Leaders in cultural fields conduct discussions on lakeshore.

Water Carnival, Batesville, Ark., July 4-5. Catfish fry a feature.

Folk Festival, Glenville, W. Va., July 4-5.

Jazz Festival, Newport, R. I., July 4-6. Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck, Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman to perform.

Water Ski Championship, Red Bank, N. J., July 5-6. State tournament.

Boat Race, Clayton, N. Y., July 6. International Canadian and American outboard races.

Golf: Amateur Public Links Tournament, Orland Park, Ill., July 7-12. Caddies competition for Melville Ezra Ingalls Trophy, Hot Springs, Va., July 28-Aug. 3. Northwest Amateur Tournament, Spencer, Iowa, July 31-Aug. 4.

Tennis: U. S. L. T. A. Senior Clay Court Championship, St. Louis, July 7-13. State Junior Championships, Burlington, Vt., July 14-19. U. S. L. T. A. Clay Courts Championships, Chicago, July 14-20. Tournament, Kalamazoo, Mich., July 28-Aug. 2.

Muskie Days, Nevis, Minn., July 8-9.

National Cherry Festival, Traverse City, Mich., July 9-11. Pie-eating contest a feature.

Men's Softball Series, Phoenix, Ariz., July 11-12.

Broiler Festival, Belfast, Me., July 11-12.

North Atlantic Pistol Championship, Rocky Hill, Conn., July 11-13.

Women's Softball Series, Clearmont, Fla., July 11-13.

Open House, Litchfield, Conn., July 12.

Marathon Outboard Racing, Miami, July 12-13. One hundred and thirty-mile race.

Montcalm Celebration, Fort Ticonderoga, N. Y., July 12-13. The 200th anniversary of the Battle of Ticonderoga.

Theatre Festival, Steamboat Springs, Colo., July 12-Aug. [illegible].

Highland Games, Linville, N. C., July 13. Contest at gathering of Scottish-Americans.

Flower Show, Rehoboth Beach, Del., July 16-17.

Open House, Camden, Me., July [illegible].

Giants Despair Hill Climb, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 18-19. Auto race.

Peach Festival, Clarksville, Ark., July 18-19. Johnson County annual celebration.

Koshare Indian Festival, Le Junta, Colo., July 18-20. Boy Scouts perform traditional dances and ceremonials.

Aquatennial, Minneapolis, July 18-27. Aqua Follies July 16-27, torchlight parade July 23.

Shakespearean Festivals: San Diego, Calif., July 18-31. Ashland, Ore., July 28-Sept. 4.

Indian Ceremonials, Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 19. Six nations, Indian border crossing.

Soap Box Derby, Trenton, Mo., July 20.

Kent-Sussex Fair, Harrington, Del., July 21-26. Exhibits, harness racing.

Pageant of the Masters, Laguna Beach, Calif., July 19-Aug 17. Townsfolk re-create famous paintings.

Lotus Festival, Virginia Beach, Va. Visits to gardens a major attraction.

Fiesta, Hart, Mich., July 25-26. Mexican festival.

Deep Sea Fishing Rodeo, Mobile, Ala., July 25-27, $10,000 in prizes.

Cavalcade, Pawhuska, Okla., July 25-27. International amateur Western show.

Gold Discovery Days, Custer, S. D., July 25-27.

Anniversary, Harpswell, Me., July 26-Aug. 1. Two-hundredth birthday celebration.

Festival of Arts, Gloucester, Mass., July 27-Aug. 10. Painting, sculpture, crafts, photography, folk dancing and concerts.

Antiques Show, Saranac Lake, N. Y., July 29-31.

Pony Penning, Chincoteague Island, Va., July 30-31. Pony round-up.

Cracker Barrel Bazaar, Newbury, Vt., July 30-Aug. 10. Art exhibit a highlight.

—Compiled by ROBERT MEYER Jr.

LOOK MA! ONE-FINGER TUNING! Because kids have trouble tuning...this set has (1) an exclusive Automatic Fine Tuning bar that pops in perfect picture and sound automatically.

New! A set with 7 special features for families with little kids!

YIPPEE! For good viewing a nose away from the set...(2) a special picture-sharpener built right into the tube itself! And, to protect young eyes, (3) a shatter-resistant, glare-resistant safety glass.

The pictures on this page prove what every parent knows: Kids have their own peculiar way of watching TV...and the set sometimes comes off second best. So in their '59 line, Westinghouse has designed a special set (with the 7 features described here) to protect kids and the family TV from each other! You can own one of these sets now for as little as $239.95. See your Westinghouse dealer. There's a special WESTINGHOUSE TV...for that special family of yours.

WESTINGHOUSE TV

HIGH NOON... SPECIAL BRIGHTNESS! For daytime hours, when kids watch most, (4) a stepped-up brightness control for clearer viewing. And, (5) dials recessed where kids can't twist them off!

JAM SESSION... JELLY-PROOF FINISH! Another special feature, (6) a special finish that resists jam, jelly and other familiar trade marks. And (7) the famous Westinghouse Trouble-Free TV chassis that means longer life... with fewer service calls!

YOU CAN BE SURE...IF IT'S Westinghouse

They Came Home from Tanglewood with Pictures

TANGLEWOOD, the Boston Symphony's lovely summer theater of operations in the Berkshires, was invaded last month by a group of graphic artists. They spent a weekend sketching and painting and, naturally, listening to music. Today, some of the results of the invasion go on exhibition at the Providence Art Club.

The Tanglewood expedition was the idea of J. Spencer Crooks, Cranston commercial artist. Mr. Crooks is a tenor who spent the seasons of 1947 and '48 at the opera school at Tanglewood, his second summer under an RCA scholarship. In 1948, he designed the sets for a production of La Boheme at Tanglewood and his scenery later was used when the opera was presented at New York's Civic Center.

"My love for Tanglewood started me thinking about all this," Mr. Crooks says, "and I wrote to the symphony management suggesting the sketching expedition. They welcomed the idea and up we went."

The Providence Art Club show, which will run through Saturday, includes about 20 paintings and several black-and-whites. The pictures reproduced here are representative of the show.

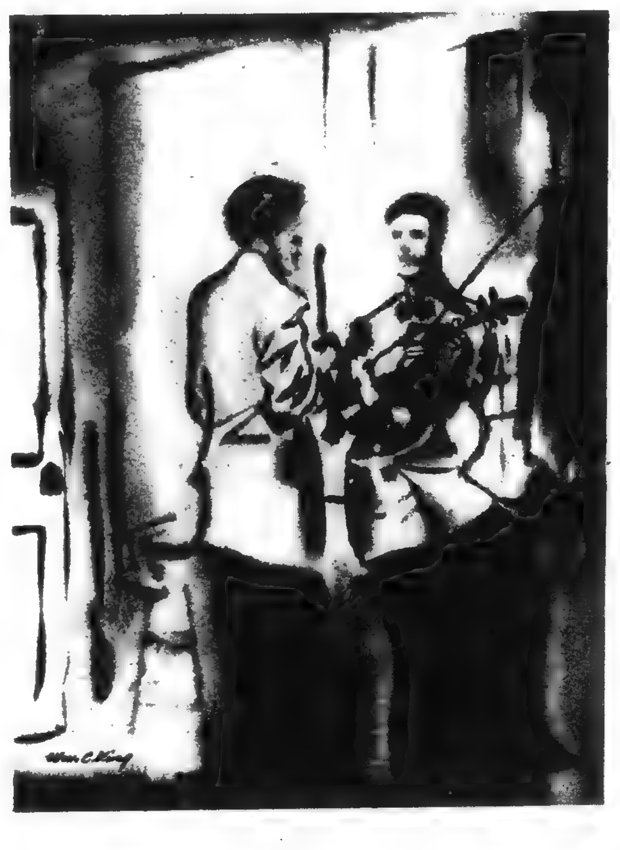
Mr. Crooks is confident that later in the season an even larger exhibition of the Tanglewood pictures will be displayed in the Symphony Hall gallery in Boston. The artists, he says, propose to donate one-third of the purchase price of each painting sold at the Boston show to the Tanglewood revolving scholarship fund. There is a possibility that the exhibit will go out as a traveling show after the Boston display.

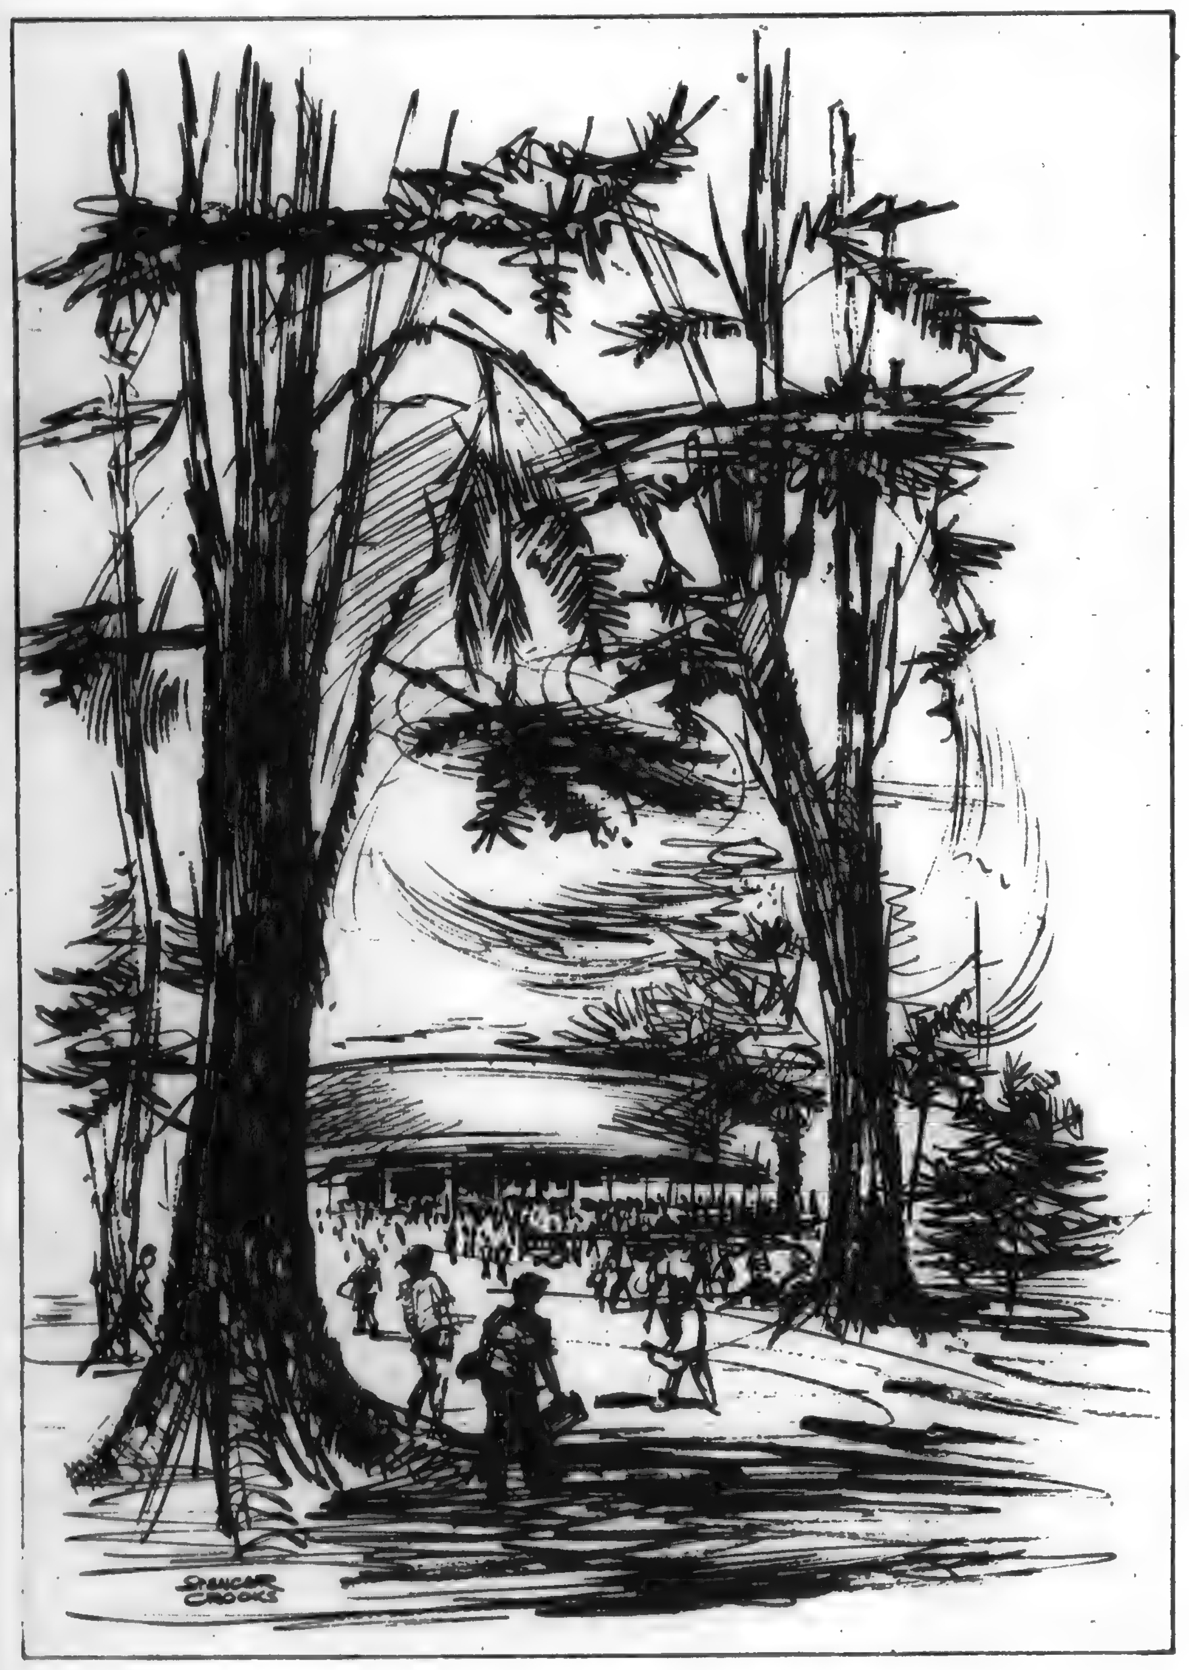
Looking ahead, Mr. Crooks hopes that when 20th Century-Fox begins shooting on location for "Tales of Tanglewood," a film scheduled for 1960 release, he and his companions can return to the music center in the Berkshires and do sketches of the movie-making.

The following accompanied Mr. Crooks on the Tanglewood invasion: Evald J. Albrektson of West Warwick, an advertising art director; William C. King of Jamestown, commercial artist; Maxwell Mays of Coventry, a manufacturer; Robert J. Pailthorpe of Cranston, a commercial artist; Harve Stein of Noank, Conn., an illustrator and member of the RISD faculty; and James T. Wainwright of Pawtucket, an industrial designer and engineer.

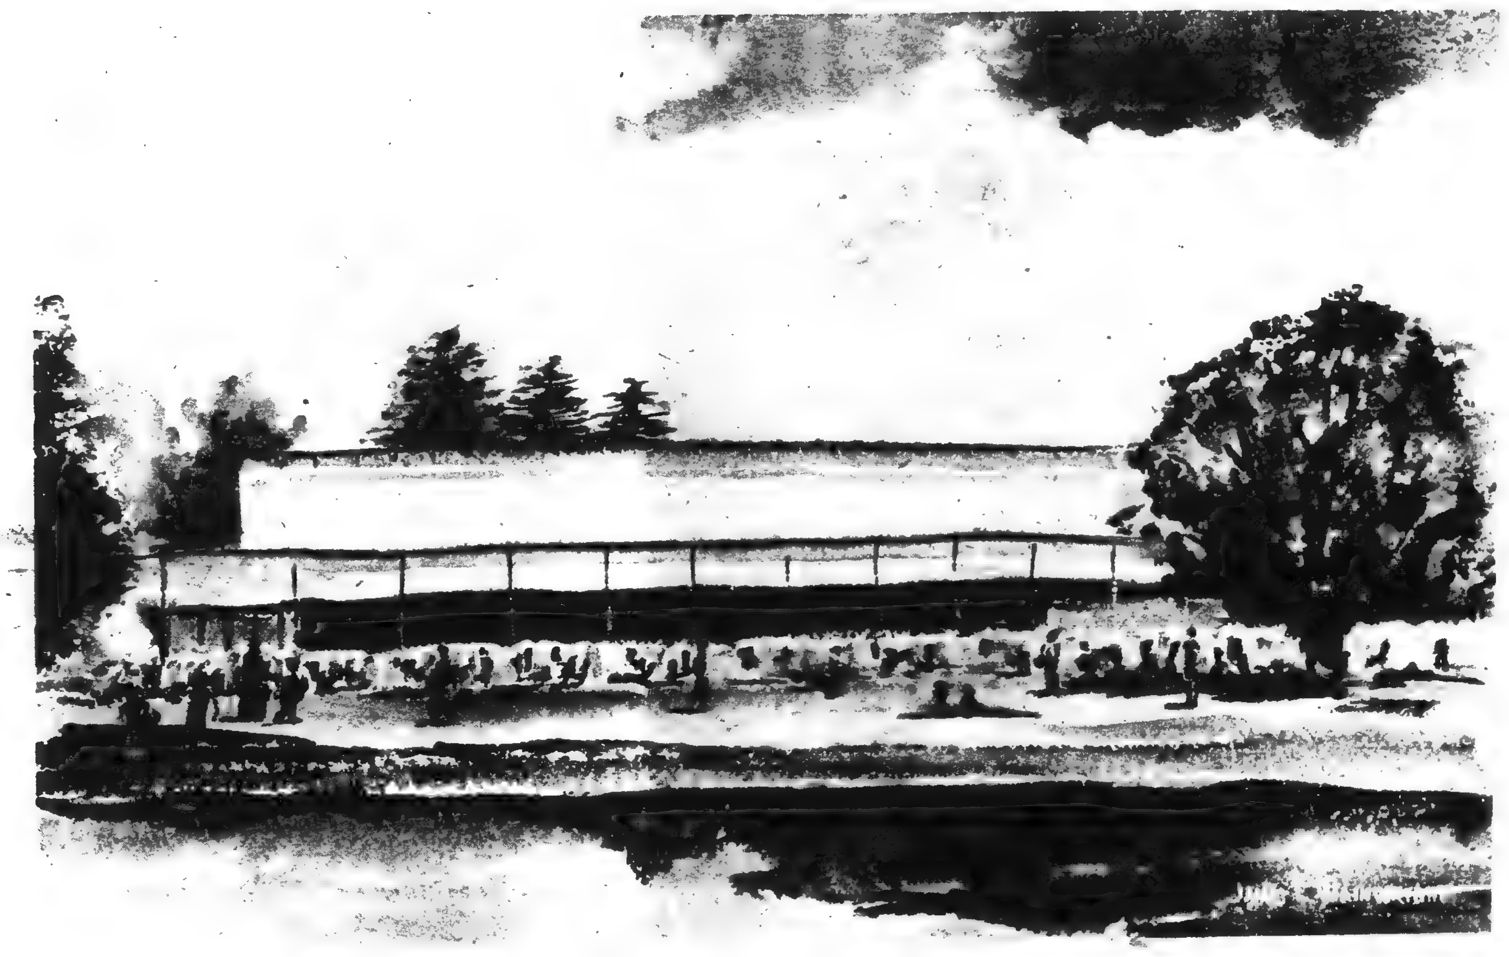
The results of a sketching weekend in the Berkshires make a show opening here today

INTERMISSION back stage in the Shed (right), water color by Mr. King.

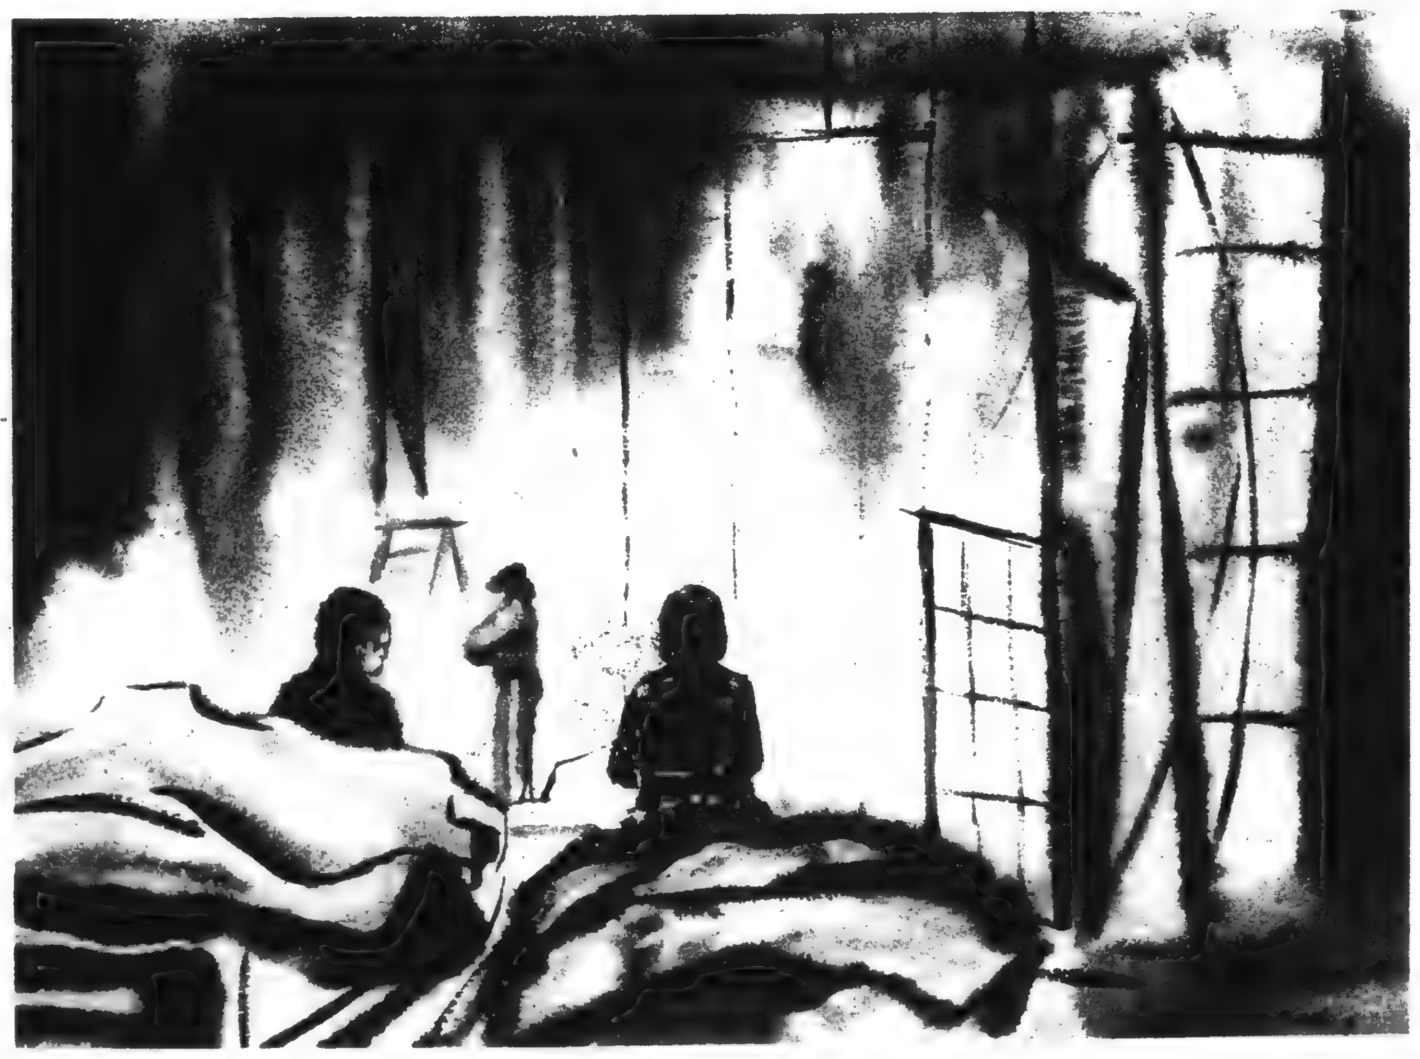




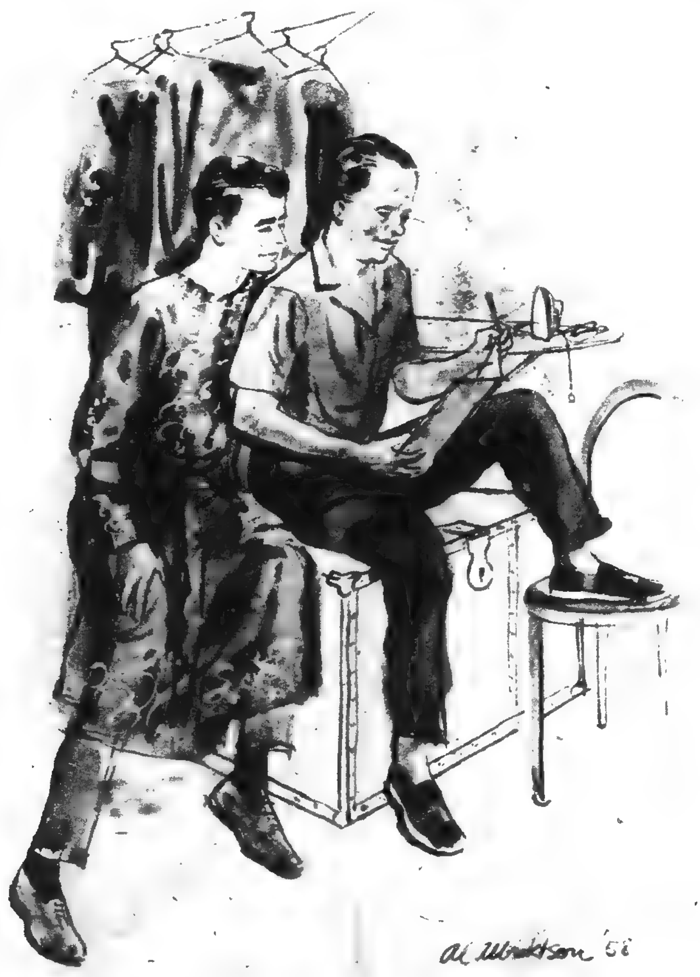
DISTANT VIEW of the Music Shed (above) by Mr. Crooks, done as a black-and-white.



SUNLIGHT suffuses this Shed view (right), water color by Mr. Wainwright.



BACK STAGE in the opera shed during rehearsal (right), water color by Mr. King.



IN COSTUME SHED, tenor John McCollum and opera director Boris Goldovsky. Sketch by Mr. Albrektson.

INSIDE THE MAIN GATE at Tang

Tanglewood with Pictures

m-di-

un v-re

an ill n.
he w re
l-

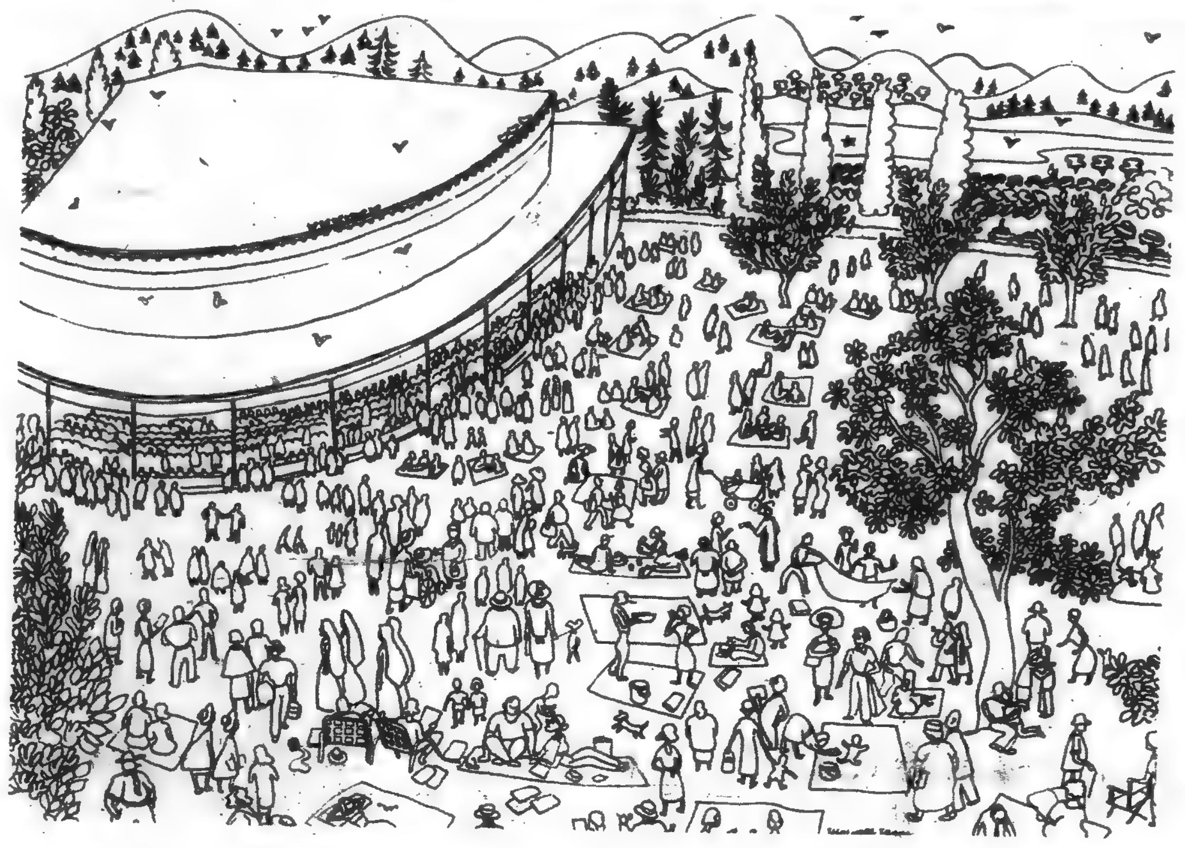
Looking ahead, Mr. Crooks hopes that when 20th Century-Fox begins shooting on location for "Tales of Tanglewood," a film scheduled for 1960 release, he and his companions can return to the music center in the Berkshires and do sketches of the movie-making.

The following accompanied Mr. Crooks on the Tanglewood invasion: Evald J. Albrektson of West Warwick, an advertising art director; William C. King of Jamestown, commercial artist; Maxwell Mays of Coventry, a manufacturer; Robert J. Pailthorpe of Cranston, a commercial artist; Harve Stein of Noank, Conn., an illustrator and member of the RISD faculty; and James T. Wainwright of Pawtucket, an industrial designer and engineer.

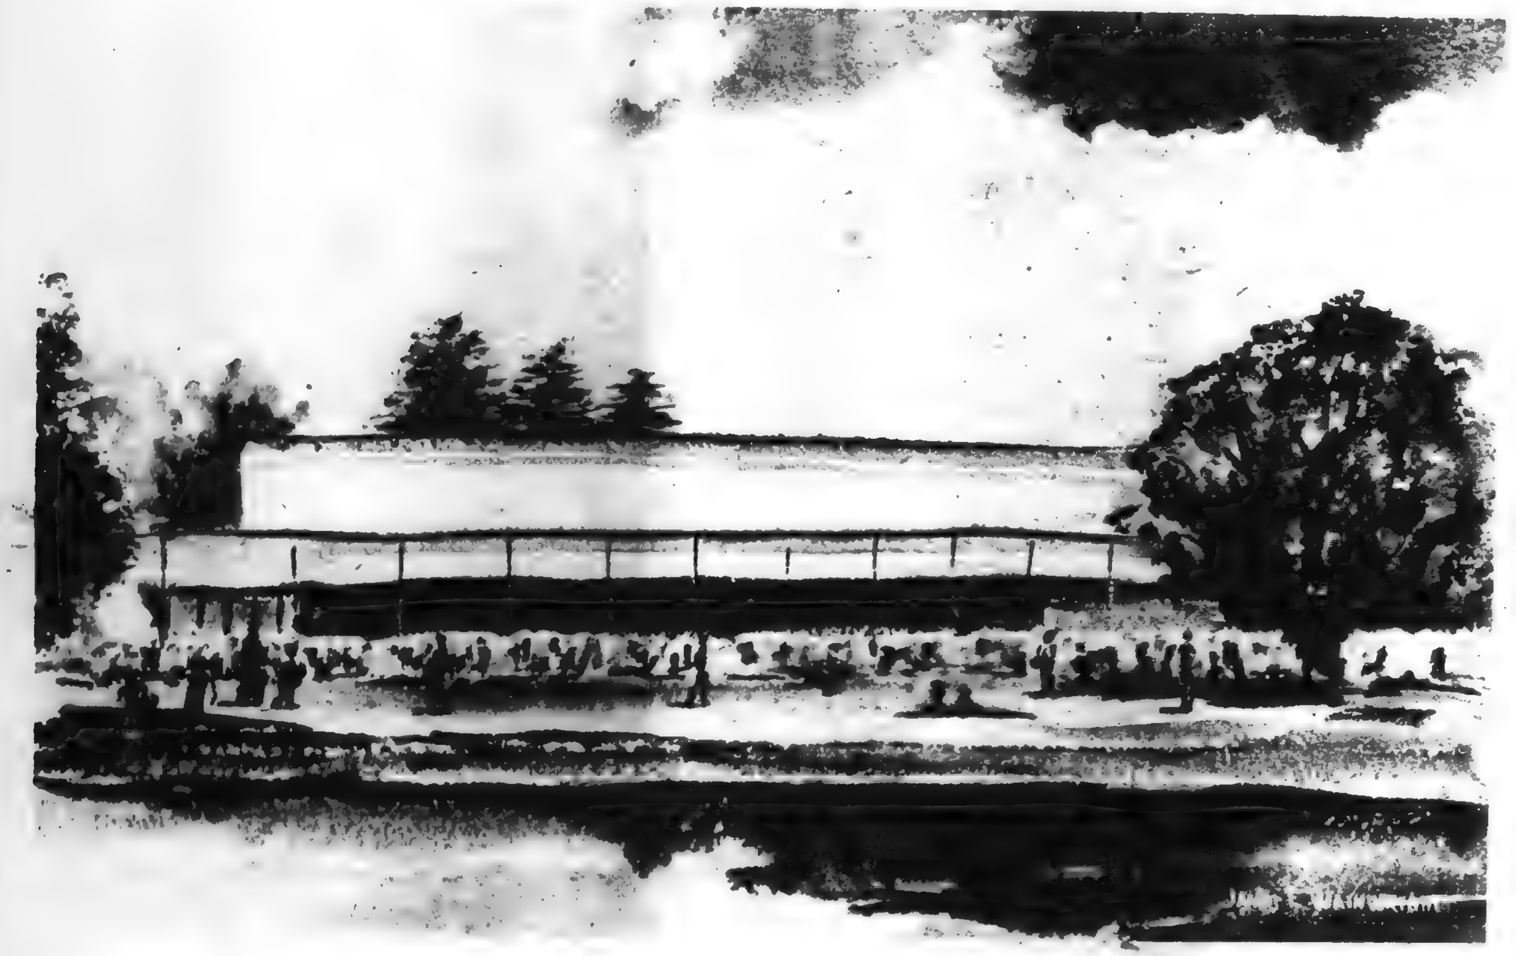
The results of a sketching weekend in the Berkshires make a show opening here today

—Photo by Whitestone

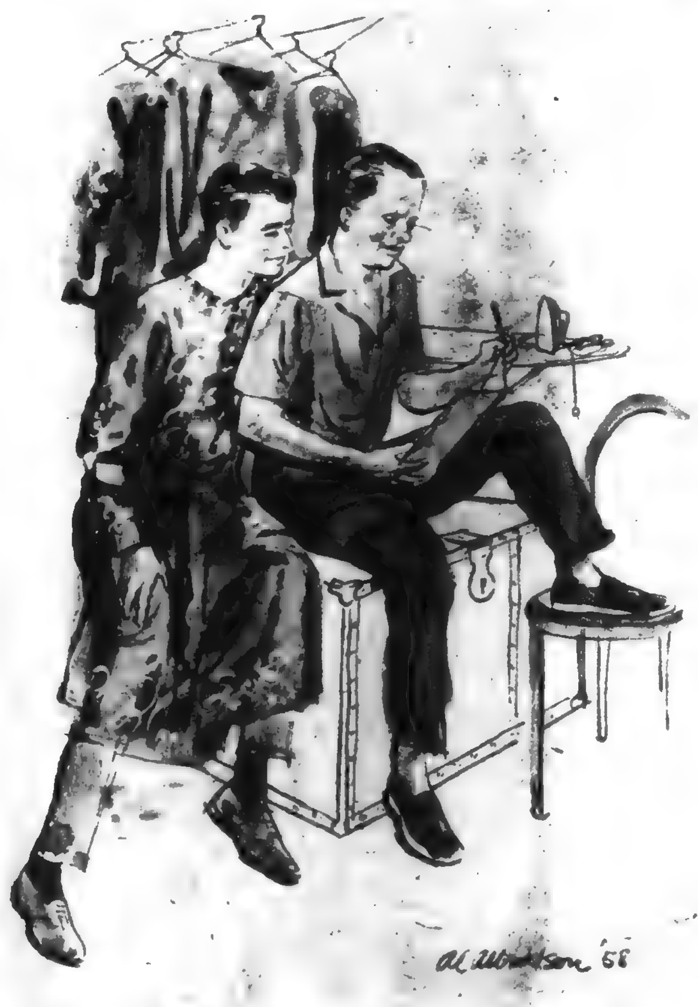
MEN AT WORK. Sketching near the Shed are (l-r): Messrs. Crooks, King, an artist not a member of the party, Mays, Albrektson and Wainwright.



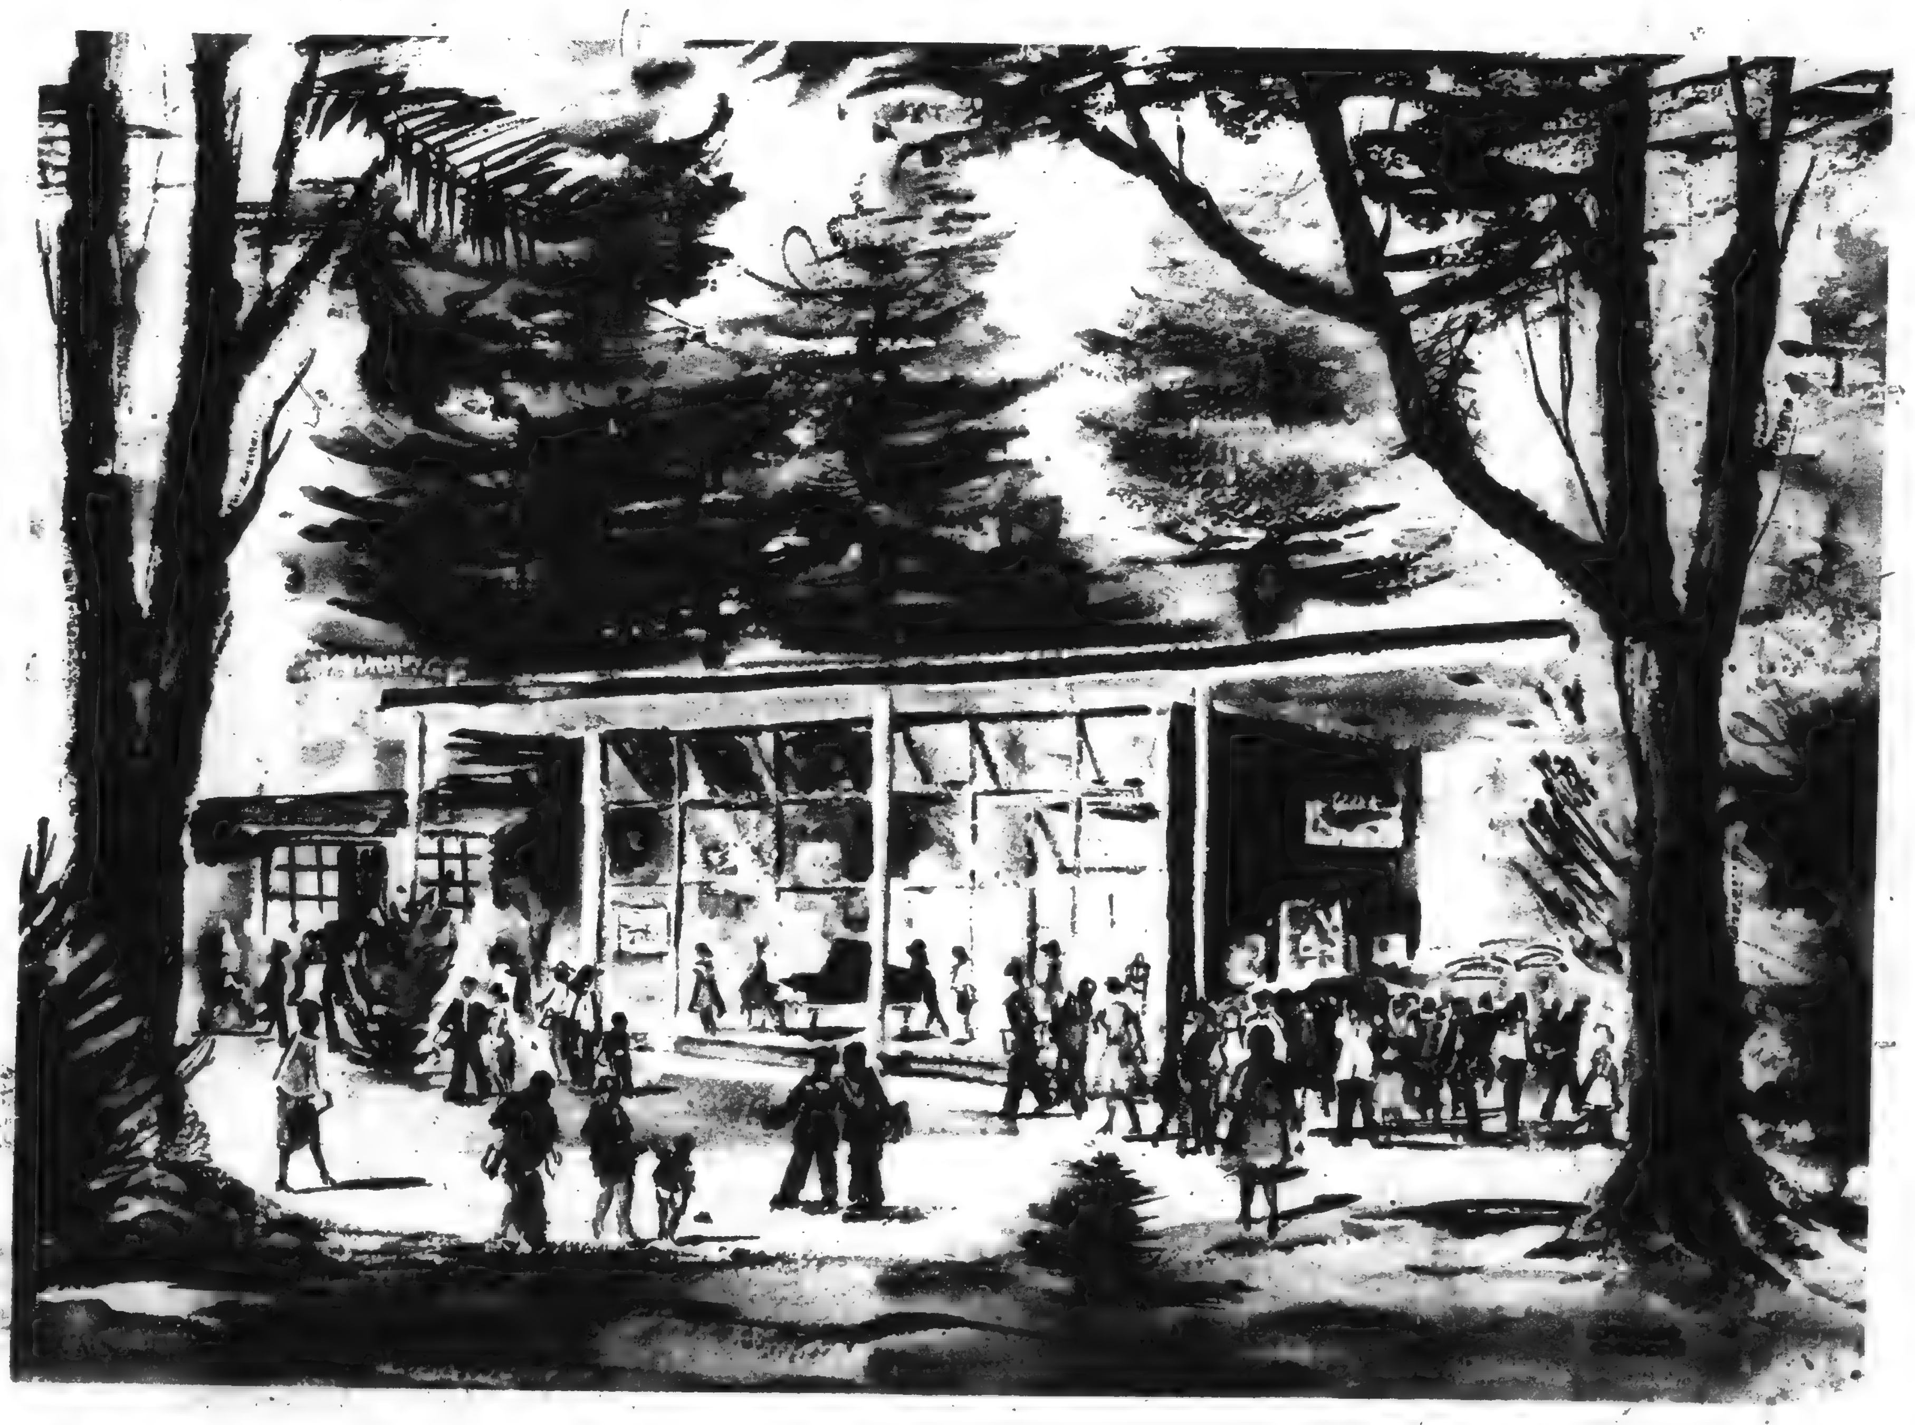
INFINITE VARIETY of a matinee audience is captured amusingly by Maxwell Mays in a line drawing (left).



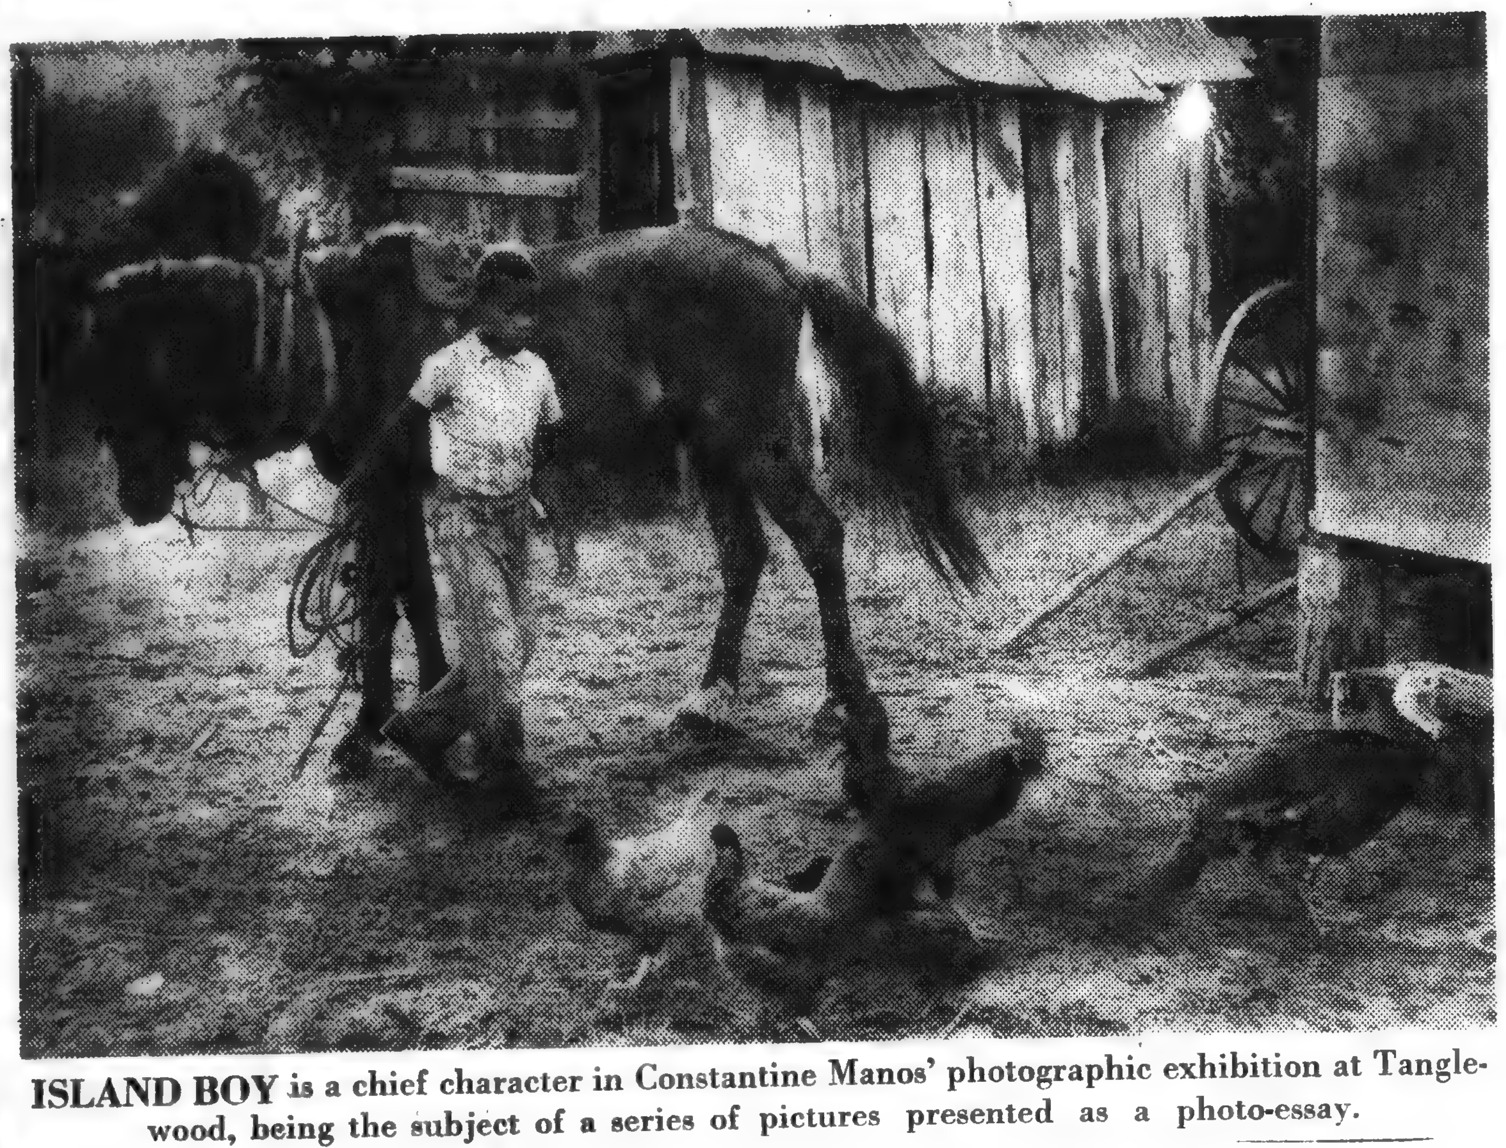
this Shed view
y Mr. Wainwright.



IN COSTUME SHED, tenor John McCollum and opera director Boris Goldovsky. Sketch by Mr. Albrektson.



INSIDE THE MAIN GATE at Tanglewood, a water color by Mr. Crooks.



ISLAND BOY is a chief character in Constantine Manos' photographic exhibition at Tanglewood, being the subject of a series of pictures presented as a photo-essay.

Manos Photos On Exhibit

A one-man show of photographs by Constantine Manos, who has been on the summer staffs of The Eagle and Tanglewood, is concluding its run at Tanglewood and is moving to Red Fox Music Barn in New Marlboro.

The exhibition has 37 pictures. They include ones taken in Georgia, in Europe and in the Berkshires. One whole sequence is a story on a small boy living on a Georgia island. Other pictures were taken during recent weeks at Jacob's Pillow and at Tanglewood. Among the latter are action shots of Conductors Munch and Monteux.

For Manos this has been a third summer of work at Tanglewood. Now 23, he is a native of Columbia, S.C., and has been a professional photographer since he was 14. After working during the summers of 1954 and 1955 in the publicity department at Tanglewood, he served in the Army as a photographer. Returning to the Berkshires in June, he divided this summer between The Eagle and Tanglewood.

His exhibition will be on view through tomorrow in the glass reception room at Tanglewood, then will move to Red Fox Music Barn to run through Aug. 17.

Chronicle (e)
WILLIMANTIC, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 6,225

JUL 29 1958

—Music festivals such as the one held at Tanglewood, Leonox, Mass. were described by Willard K. Sistare at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club this afteroon in The Nathan Hale Hotel. Sistare, who was introduced by President Robert B. Abbe and is program chairman of the club, also showed a motion picture produced by the State Dept. depicting the activities at Tanglewood. Sistare is manager of the auditorium at The University of Connecticut and at one time was identified with the Community Concert Assn. through whose offices concerts were staged here for a number of years.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

AUG 7 - 1958

Where Are the Locals?

To the Editor of THE EAGLE:—

Where are the cultured people of Pittsfield when the Boston Symphony Orchestra comes to Tanglewood? Are they all on vacation or too busy with guests or watching TV?

In any case, they are outnumbered by citizens of other towns and states, and it is sad indeed to see empty seats. The musicians are working their fingers off to give us programs arranged to please all tastes. Should we not reward them with better audiences?

Mrs. WILLIAM B. JACKSON,
Pittsfield.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 23,603

JUN 24 1958

Music In the Outdoors

Music under the stars or in the outdoor atmosphere of a pleasant Summer afternoon may be Lynn's latest cultural and entertainment venture.

The proposal comes from Rolland Tapley, conductor of the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra. At the organization's recent annual meeting, he suggested outdoor concerts by the Philharmonic at Lynn's natural amphitheatre at the Pennybrook Road entrance to Lynn Woods.

Recalling the outstanding success of a musicale presented several years ago under the auspices of The Item Quota Club and the American Legion's Forty and Eight for the benefit of the Essex County Polio Committee's Camp Sea Haven, one can see tangible as well as aesthetic merit in Mr. Tapley's proposal.

Lynn is singularly blessed in having so naturally beautiful an amphitheatre as the one at the entrance to Lynn Woods. Expenses could be financed by a free-will offering. There is ample land for the development of an adequate parking area. The success of the Hatch Memorial Shell concerts in Boston and that of the programs given annually at Tanglewood in the Berkshires shows that there is hunger for outdoor music. The Tapley proposal should be given careful consideration.

CINCINNATI, OHIO
ENQUIRER
D. 205.461 S. 278.485

AUG 1 1958

To Tanglewood

As they have for many years, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wyman will attend the Tanglewood Music Festival, in Lenox, Mass., this summer. They are to leave on August 7 to spend two weeks in Lenox.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306

AUG 15 1958

Cultural

I had the opportunity to visit Lenox and its environs recently. The Boston Symphony Orchestra was in fine fettle. At Jacob's Pillow Ted Shawn held forth with an American ballet from Atlanta, Georgia. That Mata and Hari were on the same program did the show no harm. From every corner painting and sculpture abounded. It was a moving scene that I would want to share with the whole world. The world must be made to realize that we are not just applied scientists, but rather appreciate culture.

Malden. VOX POPULIS

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

AUG 12 1958

Stockbridge

Tel. Eagle Office Lee 683-W or Stockbridge 673-J

Parade, Dancing, Fireworks To Be Featured at Regatta

STOCKBRIDGE — Dr. Robert J. Grand-Lienard, chairman of the annual regatta to be sponsored by the Stockbridge Bowl Assn. Saturday, will also be master of ceremonies for the several events to be held.

Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has contributed on behalf of the orchestra a box at Tanglewood for any performance next year. The box will be given as a prize for the best flotilla in the boat-decoration contest.

All those planning to enter decorated boats or flotillas should call at the town beach Saturday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. to receive a registration number. Only boats which bear numbers will be judged.

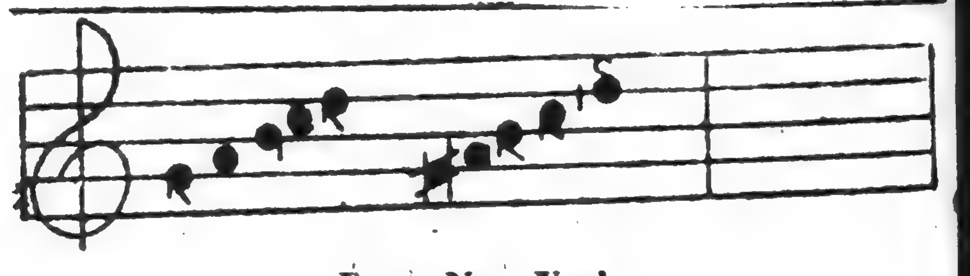
The parade of decorated boats and the judging of them will begin at 5 p.m. off the town beach. A box lunch will follow. Everyone is invited to bring a lunch and participate.

A five-piece band directed by Normal Soule of Stockbridge will play during the lunch and for square dancing to follow on the beach. The program will end with a fireworks display at nightfall.

William Bottieri of the North Adams Fireworks Co. of Schenectady will be in charge of the display. Contributions for the fireworks have been made by the Bowl Assn., Mahkeenac Boating Club, Camp Mahkeenac, the Stockbridge School Summer Workshop and other communities in the bowl area, including Mahkeenac Heights, Mahkeenac Terrace and Beechwood.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
Progress (Sunset Ed.)
W.

JUL 23 1958



From New York
By ROGER HARRIS

New York has changed little. The buildings are even higher, the traffic busier with even less effectual rush hour facilities, and it is as fascinating as ever. Musically things are quiet in New York since the temperature in midsummer hardly tempts one to go to a concert in the city. The festivals such as Tanglewood are the substitute, drawing upon the best talent not only in the East but from elsewhere. These festivals moreover allow the young composer and performer who is ready for his debut a chance to show what he has. Just as the summer stock companies all over the vacation areas around here give many an actor his first chance to appear with experienced players and producers, so the local music festivals help the young musician. Of course the bigger the festival the more established the tyro must be. Yet even Tanglewood still continues in modified form the tradition of encouraging the young that Koussevitsky established when he was at Boston.

Orchestral Possibilities

Looking to the coming season, the New York Philharmonic carries the brunt of the orchestral burden since the loss of the NBC Orchestra. Under Mitropoulos the orchestra improved considerably and now that it is THE New York Orchestra again its popular support has increased. As well, there are visits from other orchestras planned which will be hard to get tickets for. Local orchestras giving occasional performances may be heard in some of the boroughs. Instrumental concerts are on a very large scale.

The biggest change will be the tearing down of Carnegie Hall, the old, dingy red-bricked landmark on 7th Ave. This was the center of New York's concert life for many years, and the debut at Carnegie Hall was the high point of many an artist's career.

This will be a great loss sentimentally, but realistically it is a good thing. Associations with the past are not enough to make up for poor acoustics and uncomfortable seating. It is to be hoped that the new concert facilities will be far more conductive to comfortable listening to better sound.

Sentimental Attachment

Perhaps this change represents the rational approach to our sentimental attachment to a place with tradition: when it is beautiful or useful, it should be retained; when it is historic but neither good to look at nor possible to use, it should either become a museum, or with regrets abandoned.

The rest of the picture in New York is the Ballet, now a world famous company, the Opera, and the visiting firemen. The Ballet company is coming of age and is in every way comparable to other great ballet companies of the world. The accent now is on American music, choreographers and dancers.

No longer does Mary Lou Smith have to be called Olga Kruschevovich. The Opera, on the other hand, has become a little bit weary, according to my friends. "Spectacular but stylized" and "the prescription as before" are some of the comments I heard about last season. Certainly the San Francisco Company, despite a shorter season, seems to have been more ambitious and less traditional last year. The feeling in New York is that the greatest singers well rehearsed and accompanied are not enough unless the choice of works is varied and production interests. The next season is hoped to be a change. As the gateway from Europe, most visiting firemen come through New York, and this is enough said.

Ten million people in one area with Boston and Philadelphia near by and many smaller cities even nearer can support an awful lot of music. My comments of last week I thought to have been perhaps a little provincial, but now I feel better about them. The West is doing fine, and is developing perhaps faster in music.

ISLAND BOY is a chief character in Constantine Manos' photographic exhibition at Tanglewood, being the subject of a series of pictures presented as a photo-essay.

Manos Photos On Exhibit

A one-man show of photographs by Constantine Manos, who has been on the summer staffs of The Eagle and Tanglewood, is concluding its run at Tanglewood and is moving to Red Fox Music Barn in New Marlboro.

The exhibition has 37 pictures. They include ones taken in Georgia, in Europe and in the Berkshires. One whole sequence is a story on a small boy living on a Georgia island. Other pictures were taken during recent weeks at Jacob's Pillow and at Tanglewood. Among the latter are action shots of Conductors Munch and Monteux.

For Manos this has been a third summer of work at Tanglewood. Now 23, he is a native of Columbia, S.C., and has been a professional photographer since he was 14. After working during the summers of 1954 and 1955 in the publicity department at Tanglewood, he served in the Army as a photographer. Returning to the Berkshires in June, he divided this summer between The Eagle and Tanglewood.

His exhibition will be on view through tomorrow in the glass reception room at Tanglewood, then will move to Red Fox Music Barn to run through Aug. 17.

Chronicle (e)
WILLIMANTIC, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 6,225

JUL 29 1958

—Music festivals such as the one held at Tanglewood, Leonox, Mass. were described by Willard K. Sistare at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary Club this afteroon in The Nathan Hale Hotel. Sistare, who was introduced by President Robert B. Abbe and is program chairman of the club, also showed a motion picture produced by the State Dept. depicting the activities at Tanglewood. Sistare is manager of the auditorium at The University of Connecticut and at one time was identified with the Community Concert Assn. through whose offices concerts were staged here for a number of years.

CINCINNATI, OHIO
ENQUIRER
D. 205,461 S. 278,485

AUG 1 1958

To Tanglewood

As they have for many years, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wyman will attend the Tanglewood Music Festival, in Lenox, Mass., this summer. They are to leave on August 7 to spend two weeks in Lenox.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306

AUG 15 1958

Cultural

I had the opportunity to visit Lenox and its environs recently. The Boston Symphony Orchestra was in fine fettle. At Jacob's Pillow Ted Shawn held forth with an American ballet from Atlanta, Georgia. That Mata and Hari were on the same program did the show no harm. From every corner painting and sculpture abounded. It was a moving scene that I would want to share with the whole world. The world must be made to realize that we are not just applied scientists, but rather appreciate culture.

Malden. VOX POPULIS

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

AUG 7 - 1958

Where Are the Locals?

To the Editor of THE EAGLE:—

Where are the cultured people of Pittsfield when the Boston Symphony Orchestra comes to Tanglewood? Are they all on vacation or too busy with guests or watching TV?

In any case, they are outnumbered by citizens of other towns and states, and it is sad indeed to see empty seats. The musicians are working their fingers off to give us programs arranged to please all tastes. Should we not reward them with better audiences?

Mrs. WILLIAM B. JACKSON,
Pittsfield.

Item (e)
LYNN, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 23,603

JUN 24 1958

Music In the Outdoors

Music under the stars or in the outdoor atmosphere of a pleasant Summer afternoon may be Lynn's latest cultural and entertainment venture.

The proposal comes from Rolland Tapley, conductor of the North Shore Philharmonic Orchestra. At the organization's recent annual meeting, he suggested outdoor concerts by the Philharmonic at Lynn's natural amphitheatre at the Pennybrook Road entrance to Lynn Woods.

Recalling the outstanding success of a musicale presented several years ago under the auspices of The Item Quota Club and the American Legion's Forty and Eight for the benefit of the Essex County Polio Committee's Camp Sea Haven, one can see tangible as well as aesthetic merit in Mr. Tapley's proposal.

Lynn is singularly blessed in having so naturally beautiful an amphitheatre as the one at the entrance to Lynn Woods. Expenses could be financed by a free-will offering. There is ample land for the development of an adequate parking area. The success of the Hatch Memorial Shell concerts in Boston and that of the programs given annually at Tanglewood in the Berkshires shows that there is hunger for outdoor music. The Tapley proposal should be given careful consideration.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

AUG 12 1958

Stockbridge

Tel. Eagle Office Lee 683-W or Stockbridge 673-J

Parade, Dancing, Fireworks To Be Featured at Regatta

STOCKBRIDGE — Dr. Robert J. Grand-Lienard, chairman of the annual regatta to be sponsored by the Stockbridge Bowl Assn. Saturday, will also be master of ceremonies for the several events to be held.

Thomas D. Perry Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has contributed on behalf of the orchestra a box at Tanglewood for any performance next year. The box will be given as a prize for the best flotilla in the boat decoration contest.

All those planning to enter decorated boats or flotillas should call at the town beach Saturday between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m. to receive a registration number. Only boats which bear numbers will be judged.

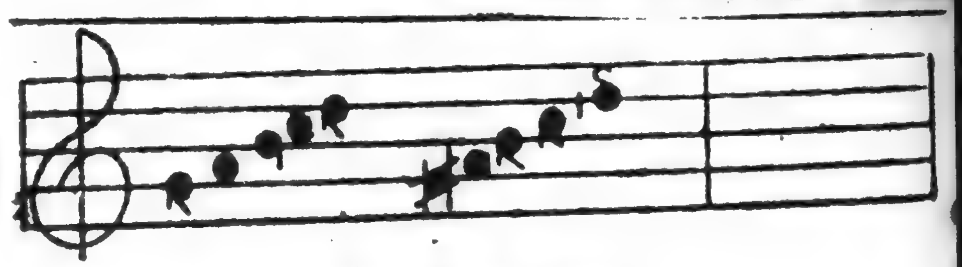
The parade of decorated boats and the judging of them will begin at 5 p.m. off the town beach. A box lunch will follow. Everyone is invited to bring a lunch and participate.

A five-piece band directed by Normal Soule of Stockbridge will play during the lunch and for square dancing to follow on the beach. The program will end with a fireworks display at nightfall.

William Bottieri of the North Adams Fireworks Co. of Schenectady will be in charge of the display. Contributions for the fireworks have been made by the Bowl Assn., Mahkeenac Boating Club, Camp Mahkeenac, the Stockbridge School Summer Workshop and other communities in the bowl area, including Mahkeenac Heights, Mahkeenac Terrace and Beechwood.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.
Progress (Sunset Ed.)
W.

JUL 23 1958



From New York
By ROGER HARRIS

New York has changed little. The buildings are even higher, the traffic busier with even less effectual rush hour facilities, and it is as fascinating as ever. Musically things are quiet in New York since the temperature in midsummer hardly tempts one to go to a concert in the city. The festivals such as Tanglewood are the substitute, drawing upon the best talent not only in the East but from elsewhere. These festivals moreover allow the young composer and performer who is ready for his debut a chance to show what he has. Just as the summer stock companies all over the vacation areas around here give many an actor his first chance to appear with experienced players and producers, so the local music festivals help the young musician. Of course the bigger the festival the more established the tyro must be. Yet even Tanglewood still continues in modified form the tradition of encouraging the young that Koussevitsky established when he was at Boston.

Orchestral Possibilities

Looking to the coming season, the New York Philharmonic carries the brunt of the orchestral burden since the loss of the NBC Orchestra. Under Mitropoulos the orchestra improved considerably and now that it is THE New York Orchestra again its popular support has increased. As well, there are visits from other orchestras planned which will be hard to get tickets for. Local orchestras giving occasional performances may be heard in some of the boroughs. Instrumental concerts are on a very large scale.

The biggest change will be the tearing down of Carnegie Hall, the old, dingy red-bricked landmark on 7th Ave. This was the center of New York's concert life for many years, and the debut at Carnegie Hall was the high point of many an artist's career.

This will be a great loss sentimentally, but realistically it is a good thing. Associations with the past are not enough to make up for poor acoustics and uncomfortable seating. It is to be hoped that the new concert facilities will be far more conductive to comfortable listening to better sound.

Sentimental Attachment

Perhaps this change represents the rational approach to our sentimental attachment to a place with tradition: when it is beautiful or useful, it should be retained; when it is historic but neither good to look at nor possible to use, it should either become a museum, or with regrets abandoned.

The rest of the picture in New York is the Ballet, now a world famous company, the Opera, and the visiting firemen. The Ballet company is coming of age and is in every way comparable to other great ballet companies of the world. The accent now is on American music, choreographers and dancers.

No longer does Mary Lou Smith have to be called Olga Kruschevovich. The Opera, on the other hand, has become a little bit weary, according to my friends. "Spectacular but stylized" and "the prescription as before" are some of the comments I heard about last season. Certainly the San Francisco Company, despite a shorter season, seems to have been more ambitious and less traditional last year. The feeling in New York is that the greatest singers well rehearsed and accompanied are not enough unless the choice of works is varied and production interests. The next season is hoped to be a change. As the gateway from Europe, most visiting firemen come through New York, and this is enough said.

Ten million people in one area with Boston and Philadelphia near by and many smaller cities even nearer can support an awful lot of music. My comments of last week I thought to have been perhaps a little provincial, but now I feel better about them. The West is doing fine, and is developing perhaps faster in music.

[262]

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

AUG 9 - 1958

The Referee's Sporting Chat

By JOHN M. FLYNN

Article on Festival in 1938

While Red Smith of the New York Herald Tribune is on vacation, his newspaper is publishing again some columns that he has written through the years. The best of Groucho is being shown for the second or more times on television, and there are many other repeat performances on videoshows. Thus, since I planned to be away this week, I decided to reprint a story, which I wrote 20 years ago about the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood. When I prepared the article in 1938, I intended to use it in the Referee's Sporting Chat, but city editor Ted Giddings, after looking it over, suggested that the piece be given first-page prominence, and naturally I consented readily. Thus, my account of a night at Tanglewood was carried on Page 1, with a three-column head and the concluding part was run on Page 4. I hope that some people will get pleasure from the fact that I went back into the files of two decades ago to fill this space today. Surely nobody can be blamed for seeking an easy way to get a column at a time when the vacation fever is so contagious.

The following is the article, captioned "Sports Editor, Who Used To Pump an Organ, Reviews Festival From 'Harvard Section.' "

By JOHN M. FLYNN
Sports Editor of The Eagle

Having formerly pumped an organ, I became musically bent last night and placed myself in the Harvard section of the shed of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival at Tanglewood, situated as neatly between the towns of Lenox and Stockbridge as chicken between two pieces of bread in a cafeteria sandwich. Perhaps it should be explained that I call the left field, where I sat, the Harvard section, because it is the unreserved part to which admittance can be gained with a crimson ticket. The blue or Yale seats are more expensive and closer to the stage, where the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted and abetted by Serge Koussevitsky, gave their fourth program in a series of six before an audience of about 6,000.

Without fear or trembling, I have jotted down a few of my observations because after years of experience in keeping air in an organ so that a budding soprano or tenor would have an excuse to get some vocal and pulmonary exercises, I feel I am about as well equipped to pass on Festival doings as 70 per cent of the cash customers. Unless one has allowed the air to go out of an organ in the middle of a solo and felt the scorn of the songbird, one has missed something vital to chalk down on a musical experience sheet.

Truly I can say I enjoyed the program as there was enough activity to keep me awake and not much of that soft music, that would have gone over my head and landed in that section, where the man in the moon was smiling down on the chauffeurs. My conduct was almost perfect as I remained in my seat until near the close, although I would have appreciated a cushion or two as the night went on. Having been reading more about sports than about the details of the Festival, I am not fully aware what it is desired to do with the $57,000 that is needed. I hope, however, that either some of it will be spent for more comfortable seats in the Harvard section or George W. Edman will give me another social blood test and decide that I belong with the t[illegible] blues or the Yales.

P[illegible]s for Field Glasses

There was no trouble hearing from where I was parked. The acoustics were so perfect that one could hear everything like a neighborhood gossip newly wired for sound. Trying to get a glance of the stage I could realize how the fellows in the bleachers at Yankee Stadium feel when they are trying to watch a bout going on in a ring situated near second base. Field glasses would have helped a lot.

Speaking of acoustics and a ring, I recall the story about the late Tex Richard after he had opened the Garden. Tex always was open to suggestions and was not as smart in some respects as many persons believed. A friend told him he did not like the acoustics. Tex asked him to call around the next day and go out shopping with him for some new ones.

My two years spent studying German at Searles High finally cashed in for me in a big way last night when I came to discuss Richard Wagner, whose music was on the program. I pronounced the "W" like "V" in Veronica and the way Veronica would have done. It was necessary to dispel Hans Wagner from my mind for the great baseball player got along very nicely with the "W" pronounced "double you."

Left Before Embrace

Figuring the end was not far away and realizing that I would have to catch the last bus, I left before the final bow was taken. E. M. Preble, mindful of the approaching football season told me they were playing the last quarter. When, however, it came time for Siegfried and Brunnhilde to embrace, I was discussing the Hambletonian with Officer Thomas V. Broderick of Pittsfield, who was outside the city limits but in a police uniform and justly so as he used to live in Lenox, and the Berkshire Music Festival is a county affair anyhow. (Note to operator: Be sure to get in that marking for the umlaut in Brunnhilde so that my former German teachers will not think I forgot everything they taught me.)

Serge and Babe Compared

It is not necessary for me to say that Koussevitsky is both an artist and a showman. I am just dumb enough to think that possibly the members of his orchestra are so skilled that they would do a mighty good job if any member of their group were doing the leading. To me they shape up as the Yankees of the orchestral world. The Yankees might go along winning pennants if Manager Joe McCarthy went to Europe. Serge, however, puts in a terrific night's work even if he plays no instrument. His case is somewhat different from that of Babe Ruth. Serge points in a certain direction and somebody else does the playing. Ruth in the 1932 World Series at Chicago pointed to the right field bleachers, then proceeded to drive a home run in that sector. Babe's part to me seems harder as he had both to give the order and make the delivery.

Ruth was in this city last night waiting for a train to take him to Boston. The hour was so late when I returned from Lenox that I felt it would be impossible to interview him. If I asked Ruth if he knew who Koussevitsky was, he probably would have replied that he was a Fordham football player.

Material Helps Greatly

Speaking of Serge's conducting, I wonder what he would have done if he had a bunch of musicians such as used to play once a week at the band stands around Berkshire. He probably would understand the feelings of Connie Mack, who has had some of the greatest baseball teams in the history of the game and some of the worst, depending entirely on the material.

Mr. Edman advised the readers of The Eagle to arrive early and wear rubbers. It was easy enough to get under way shortly after the evening meal but finding rubbers in August is a large order. By bus seemed to be the poroper way for one to travel who sits in the Harvard section, but it turned out to be very satisfactory as the Berkshire Street Railway boys delivered us beyond the muddy approaches. There was no special line of conversation among the patrons of the erstwhile trolley company on the way to Lenox, but on the return trip they were talking about persons they saw in the Shed instead of discussing the music from a critical standpoint. Still many of the customers get the most of their music like they do their vegetables, canned.

Of course the word shed is proper, but when a structure costs around $80,000, it should be called something nicer than a shed. My idea of a shed is something tagged onto a house so there will be a place to chop wood.

Festival Sidelights

A sports writer would consider a story incomplete without having sidelights. It would be just like having a $1.50 dinner without dessert. Here are a few which can be read or skipped.

Owen Johnson, who would not mind being elected to Congress, stood up so long before Serge came out onto the platform that I thought he was an usher. I felt like crying out in old Great Barrington Fair style, "Congressman Treadway is wanted at the judges' stand."

My friend, Joe Peacock, must be slipping. He has not suggested that the Festival shed should be used this winter for a skating rink.

One fellow was so busy reading about Wagner to his lady friend in the garden I did not think he would be through in time to hear the music.

Jay Rosenfeld will carry a play-by-play account in another column. I know my limitations, as the fellow said when he put his hand in the path of a buzz saw.

Felt rather somber in dark suit but the cool night made us think the palm beach would be out of place. Without spats we seemed almost naked.

On the way to the Festival, the bus back-fired like three mad dogs in unison, if three mad dogs ever could act in unison.

Signing off for the series. The Country Club golf tournament commands our attention, and the final note of the 1958 Festival will be sounded before the last putt in the tourney is missed.

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 66,613

AUG 10 1958

Rock 'n' Roll Is Rhythmic But Classics Rate, Too

By BEVERLY WETTENSTEIN
Andrew Warde High, Fairfield

To read some of the newspapers, one might get the impression that today's female teenager is a wild thing in blue jeans, and the male is a loud lout in white bucks, and that their worthlessness is expressed in their music, this horrible thing called rock 'n' roll, a form of music supposedly beneath contempt.

Rock 'n' roll is not particularly worthy, but why do we teenagers love it so? Maybe because of its untrammeled craziness, or maybe because of the strong "boom-boom" of its rhythm, a rhythm that invites dancing. So you get "Blue Suede Shoes," where the vocalist will let you do anything but step on his shoes; and "Tuttie Fruttie," in which the singer shouts frantically, as if calling all souls to salvation, except that nobody can figure out just what his message is.

The same goes for "The Witchdoctor" and "Purple People Eater," especially "Have You Got a Match?"! And "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands," a song written by a thirteen-year-old and sounding like it. To older ears rock 'n roll is nothing but hysterical shouting. People in the music business have been saying it will soon wear out its welcome. So have famous rock 'n roll artists like Pat Boone. They have been saying this for four years, but yet there is no sign of a termination.

Good Music Rates, Too

But rock 'n roll is only a part of today's popular music. Taste is never uniform. The evidence is clear that more teenagers today like good music than in the previous generation.

This evidence can be found in record sales of college shops and stores near high schools: in the number of young people seen at Tanglewood, where the Boston symphony plays; in the teenagers playing in the high school bands. The American Music conference reports that 9,000,000 youngsters are now studying a musical instrument. And even a greater number is singing in organized choral groups.

Within the confines of pop music itself there is a lot of room for different tastes. Most of our parents will remember such songs as "Yes, We Have No Bananas," and "Barney Google," or "I's a Muggin." The surest indication of what is popular music comes from the juke box operators. Classical and semi-classical records are just as popular. Classical numbers would be "Blue Danube" and semi-classical would include "The Student Prince." Rhythm and blues songs have also increased in popularity.

The movies which appeal to many grownups as well as teenagers employ themes which have immediately risen to popularity. We can go back to 1955 and observe that neither "Unchained Melody," that year's top song, nor Mitch Miller's "Yellow Rose of Texas" was a rock 'n roll melody. "Standing On The Corner" originated from "The Most Happy Fella." "The Wayward Wind" was a ballad with a Western atmosphere. Folk-like songs still please. Let us not forget either that the wonderful songs from "Oklahoma" and "Carosel" keep rolling along.

A song, then, does not have to be bad to make a hit with the high school crowd.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.
BULLETIN
Circ. D. 709,441 - S. 723,743

AUG 24 1958

In Letters to The Bulletin Readers Say:

Contrasts the Dell and Berkshire Festival

I recently attended a Berkshire Festival concert at Tanglewood, Mass., and walked out in disgust. For a $2.50 unreserved ticket I was given the privilege of sitting in the grass among the spooners and the chattering [illegible] from nearby camps, [illegible] indifferent to the orchestral performance. How the sponsors of [illegible] well-known musical [illegible] can put up with such disgraceful audiences I cannot understand.

This is all the more reason why I appreciate the outstanding success of the Robin Hood Dell concerts this summer. It was an inspiring sight to see audiences of 20,000 to 25,000 appreciative listeners at the concerts. The only sounds came from the platform and the performers.

Hats off to the Dell-goers, and to the remarkable achievements of Fredric Mann.

Jacob [illegible]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUL 6 1958

"We may be sure of one thing: America is on a sort of cultural bender."—Above, the Empire State Music Festival in Ellenville.

Proof That We Are Not Barbarians

Our culture has been dismissed by foreigners as nonexistent. The fact is, it is flourishing as never before, so much so that it is exported around the world.

Berkshire Fest

By RUSSELL LYNES

"CULTURE" in America is a fighting word. At the mention of the state of American culture people choose up sides, for it is unlikely that there has ever been a nation as concerned about its cultural facade as ours.

Listen, for instance, to what the returning traveler says about our pavilion at the Brussels Fair: It makes a mockery of what we are pleased to call the American Way of Life or it inspires confidence in our concept of the pursuit of happiness. To one traveler it is imaginative and inspired, to another it is frivolous and misleading. It is the same with every attempt to define our culture. We argue and we complain; we pat ourselves on the back and we heap ashes on our heads. But no one could say we are indifferent, and we are very likely to be partisan. The fact is that for a long time we have been trying to make our culture fit a pattern. We are now beginning to discover that we must find a pattern to fit it.

Take an example. Not long ago, I sat next to an attractive woman at dinner who could have been the prototype for what Jacques Barzun has called "the professional European." "I don't understand you Americans," she said, though she is married to an American and by now is presumably one herself. "You give money to rebuild European opera houses destroyed in the war, and yet you have no national opera company of your own."

I SUGGESTED that in America we believe that cultural institutions are the responsibility of the community, not of the Federal Government, and that the strength of our culture is the diversity of its support. "Ah," she said, "but Americans have no culture."

Americans should be used to hearing such statements from Europeans; they have been saying that we have no culture since they first started coming here as tourists nearly a century and a half ago. In the vocabulary of European clichés used to describe America, there are all sorts of words and phrases for our industry and adventurousness, for our ingenuity, classlessness and casual manners. But the European is reluctant to admit that we have any culture or any cultural institutions worth his attention.

It has long been fashionable in certain intellectual circles in America to look at our culture through European eyes and to measure what goes on here in terms of what used to go on there. Each generation, for a century and more, has had its share of expatriates who went to Europe to absorb the older culture and who came home in hopes of making European standards our standards. It is only quite recently that the study of American culture as a phenomenon distinct from European culture has become intellectually respectable.

THIS respectability takes two principal forms of expression. There are those who deplore our culture as "mass culture," geared to the lowest common denominator of taste and education; they believe that everything that is precious and "serious" is sacrificed to the commercial maw of the communications media. This attitude is popular in university and college circles at the faculty level—especially in the language, English and art departments. You will also find it in some highbrow coteries, though by no means in all.

There is, in fact, an increasingly sharp distinction between those who deplore American mass culture, its size, shape, (Continued on Page 21)

RUSSELL LYNES, managing editor of Harper's Magazine, has written such books as "Snobs," "Guests," and "A Surfeit of Honey."

Add to these figures the explosion that has taken place in college and university populations since World War II (I grant you it's like adding do they really have anything to do with quality, and culture is a qualitative and not a quantitative word.

The real culture of America commercialization of culture, the argument goes, is to lull the public into a kind of cultural coma and to cheapen and prostitute

it is a culture,
kind,
is, per-

(Continued on Following Page)

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 567,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUL 6 1958

Proof That We Are Not Barbarians

(Continued from Page 5)

texture and quality, and those whom John Kouwenhoven has defined as the "neo-Pollyanna" school of cultural observers. This is a group of intellectuals who are determined to find something good or something interesting in all things American. The two groups might be called the "Oh-the-pain-of-it" and the "Oh - the - joy - of - it" schools of thought.

THE Pain and Joy groups leave most Americans somewhere in between. Many of them merely shrug their shoulders and say that good old America is all right with them. But there are many others who are fascinated by the seeming contradictions in our culture. They deplore some of it and delight in some of it. But whatever the quality, of one thing we may be sure: America is on a sort of cultural bender.

In his preface to "The Meaning of Culture," John Cowper Powys quoted this definition: "Culture is what is left over after you have forgotten all you have definitely set out to learn." By this definition, it is the residue and not the effort that matters, whereas the only way that we have of measuring American culture at this moment is in the amount of effort that we, as a nation, are putting into it. It will take several [illegible] know whether the residue was worth the effort.

Culture does not lend itself to statistical analysis, but cultural effort does. We know how many new books are published each year in America (about 10,000) and how this compares with publishing twenty-five years ago (about 7,000). We know that some 350,000,000 books (of which 275,000,000 are paperbacks) are bought by Americans each year. This is about three books to each person. We are told that 17 per cent of Americans now read books today compared with 22 per cent before television.

ON the other hand, a quarter of a century ago there were some 600 museums serving the public; now there are 2,500. We now have thirty major symphony orchestras and 650 professional and semi-professional orchestras, not including those in colleges. There are 2,300 community and civic theatres in America and some 100,000 theatrical groups in social clubs and industrial organizations, in addition to some 25,000 high schools that produce plays.

Looked at in these terms, it seems a wonder that we have any time left over from culture to get any work done. Add to these figures the explosion that has taken place in college and university populations since World War II (I grant you it's like adding apples and oranges), and more Americans seem to be involved in cultural activities than there are Americans. Such is the way of statistics.

But statistics aside, one need look only at his own community to see the cultural pot seething with activity. Those who ride the New York subways cannot but be struck with the number of people reading books ranging from Mickey Spillane to difficult philosophical treatises. A trip to the Metropolitan Museum of Art on a Sunday afternoon finds you there with as many as 30,000 people who also thought it a good idea to expose themselves to art. Look at the number of off-Broadway theatres experimenting with unconventional plays, and look, too, at their account books; if they are not rich, they are at least not broke.

YOU will find the same kinds of things wherever you travel in America. You will find a successful opera company in Santa Fé and a distinguished experimental theatre in Dallas. You will find suburban groups organizing art exhibitions. You will find music festivals in Aspen, Colo., and Newport, R. I., and Lenox, Mass. and a dozen other places. And everywhere people are taking cultural courses.

There is no question that our cultural statistics are impressive, but then so are those of other nations. The English publish twice as many books a year as we do and the Russians claim to publish three times as many. It is always easier to be impressed with one's own statistics than with somebody else's and comparisons can be misleading. We, for example, read a great many more magazines than the British who publish a great many more "dime novels" (to use a pre-inflationary phrase) than we do. But the danger with statistics of this sort is that they are likely to make us complacent (if they happen to be on our side) or competitive (if they happen to favor our rivals). In neither case do they really have anything to do with quality, and culture is a qualitative and not a quantitative word.

The real culture of America must be measured by its feel and not by its weight, by its texture and not by its size. And in the long run (to change the metaphor), it is the echo, not the shout, that matters.

Fortunately, the state of our culture is subjected to constant criticism from within. It doesn't (or at least it shouldn't) make much difference to us what the professional Europeans say about our culture; they certainly aren't interested in what we say about theirs. But the attacks that are leveled at American culture from those who are part of it and are most concerned with its directions keep our culture lively.

JUST as in our body politic the conflicting interests of our minorities assure a kind of vital, if sometimes aggravatingly slow, progress, so the minorities in our body cultural assure intellectual vitality which is not likely to stagnate or become smug. Nor does it allow any one group of self-styled arbiters of culture to take over and tell the rest of us what we ought to like.

Let's look at some of these conflicting opinions, at what the pain-of-it-all and the joy-of-it-all groups find dismaying and encouraging about the state of our cultural health.

The Pain group, as I have already suggested, is primarily concerned with the debilitating effects of "mass culture." Mass culture, the argument runs, is the result of the commercial hunger of mass communications. It is culture controlled by "ratings" and popularity polls. It shuns the experimental in the arts (especially where television and the movies are the media involved) because the investment of money is too great to risk on anything but tested formulas. The result is that we have a sort of mail - order - catalogue culture in which every style for every taste is pre-tested in the market place to assure acceptance by the largest possible number of people.

MASS culture is culture that will offend no one, surprise no one, raise no one's sights and stir no one's emotions, whatever it may do to his sentiments. Such are the demands for entertainment of this sort that even what is proved to be foolproof (or, to put it another way, proved to be sure-fire with fools) soon wears itself out. But the media cannot be stopped and to assure a continuous flow of the innocuous to the public, the media seduce the potentially "serious" writer from his proper work and, with blandishments of cash, make him turn to producing "tripe."

The result of this commercialization of culture, the argument goes, is to lull the public into a kind of cultural coma and to cheapen and prostitute

(Continued on Following Page)

[263]

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 567,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUL 6 1958

(Continued from Preceding Page)

the creative artist. The middleman in this "pandering to popular taste" is the editor of the mass magazine, the agency that handles the account of the big television sponsor and the network and movie moguls who, out of greed, encourage such cheapening of standards.

THE Joy group looks at mass culture from a quite different point of view. In the past, they say, most Americans had no opportunity whatever to enjoy the talents of our most able performers, dramatic artists and musicians. Not only do the mass media bring to millions of Americans first-rate talent and exposure to the arts (as, for example, in mass magazines that publish our ablest writers and all sort of paintings, including the most avant-garde), but they also provide a certain amount of exposure to the experimental and the exotic through such television shows as "Omnibus," "Sunrise Semester" and an increasing number of unsponsored educational programs and stations.

The fact that such shows do not have the ratings of Ed Sullivan and Steve Allen is not a reflection on American taste. The fine arts have never commanded the same audiences as the popular arts and the wonder of it is that there are so many millions of Americans who enjoy the good things set before them.

Somewhere in every discussion about American culture today the word "conformity" is bandied about. The Pain group views with alarm the conformity which it sees everywhere—in dress, in the kinds of houses people live in, in the kinds of food they buy from supermarkets, in their cars and in their consciences. The Joy group construes the same manifestations of our culture in a diametrically opposite manner. There is a difference, they say, between conformity and individualism. Conformity of a sort is essential to making the wheels of our civilization turn; people must conform somewhat or they wouldn't be able to work together in harmony.

INDIVIDUALISM, on the other hand, is in evidence everywhere. Look, they say, at what is happening in the mass-produced suburbs; everyone is making changes in his house to defeat the established patterns. Look at the supermarkets and the odd and interesting kinds of food that they make available to everyone who wants to experiment. And so on. The coin of conformity seems to have heads on both sides.

The promise of our culture seems to lie somewhere between the alarm of the Pain group and the euphoria of the Joy group. In my opinion, and in the opinion of a good many other observers, if you add up the pro and con columns of our cultural effort, the pro column has the edge.

In the con column, in addition to the attacks against mass culture that I have mentioned, you will find wasted educational effort. You will find cluttering up our educational institutions many thousands of young men and women to whom education is not an intellectual exercise or an expansion of horizons but a waiting game. B. A. and Ph. D. degrees, instead of being intellectual achievements, are only job tickets.

IN his same column, you will find "projectitis" among scholars: that is, the scholar with the biggest project involving the most people and for which he can get the most money from a foundation achieves a kind of preferred academic status. It substitutes group-thinking for individual exploration. You will find, in spite of concerted effort to the contrary in recent months, the sacrifice of the bright, eccentric student to the standards of achievement of the average and below-average student. The premium is on "well-roundedness." You will find group journalism in which "slant" takes the place of opinion and is passed off as truth. You will find a great deal of what passes for cultural activity to be merely social climbing.

But in the pro column you will find genuine enthusiasm, excitement and curiosity. People have been getting up at the crack of dawn to listen to television lectures on literature. They have been going out evenings to extension courses in everything from the Art of the Short Story to Paleontology. Record companies can scarcely find enough music, new or old, to satisfy the tremendous range (from pre-Palestrina to post-Bartók) of the public taste.

In much the same kind of dilemma, publishers of paperback books comb libraries for more "significant" books of philosophy, sociology, history, the physical sciences and the arts with which to satisfy a public that is hungry for something more than whodunits.

The current boom in the art market is more than just a hedge against inflation; it reflects a reaction against what sometimes seems like the tyranny of machine-made materialism. The growth of our colleges and universities is not just a demographic phenomenon; at least part of it is a genuine search by the young for intellectual values in an era when such values seem to have been overrun by what the sociologists call status symbols. Three-hundred-horse-power parlors bedecked with tinsel are not enough.

There is no question that we create much that is tawdry, flashy and phony—as what nation doesn't? But there is also no question that our arts—fine and popular—are enjoying a new kind of vitality. It comes, I believe, from a new self-confidence. We no longer worry about being the stepchild of Europe. For a long time, it seemed as though we were connected with European culture by a one-way street with all the ideas coming our way.

NOW ideas seem to flow out rather more than they flow in. Our novelists are eagerly read everywhere. Our painting and sculpture and our architecture not only command respect but strongly influence the visual arts of other countries. Our playwrights fill foreign theatres and our musicians fill foreign concert halls and opera houses. Our ballet plays to respectful and enthusiastic audiences, and above all, our jazz has become a universal language. Our present danger is not that we underestimate the vitality of our cultural production as we once did, but that we become complacent and chauvinist about it.

Anyone can add his own columns and arrive by his own arithmetic at almost any conclusions he pleases about the state of our culture. But he cannot truthfully say that our culture is any one thing or that it is dominated by any one group. No one can honestly contend that materialism has driven out humanism or that science in one of its greatest ages of exploration has slammed the door on the arts. No one can say that mass audiences have silenced the intellectuals any more than he can demonstrate that high-brows control the public taste.

OURS is a "You-name-it-we-have-it" kind of culture. It is a vast market place of conflicting tastes, conflicting ambitions and conflicting needs. In guaranteeing "the pursuit of happiness," we recognize that not every man's happiness is measured by the same yardstick. We may do our damnedest to convince him that our yardstick is better than his, but we do not beat him over the head with it.

We cajole and seduce, but we do not coerce or command. Out of the crowd that the voyeurs of culture call "the mass," many single voices are heard. So long as this is true, what we have is not a "mass culture," but neither is it an aristocratic culture. It is a highly competitive culture, perhaps the first of its kind, and unless it succeeds, perhaps the last.

just a demographic phenome-haps the last.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

JUL 6 1958

(Continued from Preceding Page).

the creative artist. The middleman in this "pandering to popular taste" is the editor of the mass magazine, the agency that handles the account of the big television sponsor and the network and movie moguls who, out of greed, encourage such cheapening of standards.

THE Joy group looks at mass culture from a quite different point of view. In the past, they say, most Americans had no opportunity whatever to enjoy the talents of our most able performers, dramatic artists and musicians. Not only do the mass media bring to millions of Americans first-rate talent and exposure to the arts (as, for example, in mass magazines that publish our ablest writers and all sort of paintings, including the most avant-garde), but they also provide a certain amount of exposure to the experimental and the exotic through such television shows as "Omnibus," "Sunrise Semester" and an increasing number of unsponsored educational programs and stations.

The fact that such shows do not have the ratings of Ed Sullivan and Steve Allen is not a reflection on American taste. The fine arts have never commanded the same audiences as the popular arts and the wonder of it is that there are so many millions of Americans who enjoy the good things set before them.

Somewhere in every discussion about American culture today the word "conformity" is bandied about. The Pain group views with alarm the conformity which it sees everywhere—in dress, in the kinds of houses people live in, in the kinds of food they buy from supermarkets, in their cars and in their consciences. The Joy group construes the same manifestations of our culture in a diametrically opposite manner. There is a difference, they say, between conformity and individualism. Conformity of a sort is essential to making the wheels of our civilization turn; people must conform somewhat or they wouldn't be able to work together in harmony.

INDIVIDUALISM, on the other hand, is in evidence everywhere. Look, they say, at what is happening in the mass-produced suburbs; everyone is making changes in his house to defeat the established patterns. Look at the supermarkets and the odd and interesting kinds of food that they make available to everyone who wants to experiment. And so on. The coin of conformity seems to have heads on both sides.

The promise of our culture seems to lie somewhere between the alarm of the Pain group and the euphoria of the Joy group. In my opinion, and in the opinion of a good many other observers, if you add up the pro and con columns of our cultural effort, the pro column has the edge.

In the con column, in addition to the attacks against mass culture that I have mentioned, you will find wasted educational effort. You will find cluttering up our educational institutions many thousands of young men and women to whom education is not an intellectual exercise or an expansion of horizons but a waiting game. B. A. and Ph. D. degrees, instead of being intellectual achievements, are only job tickets.

IN his same column, you will find "projectitis" among scholars: that is, the scholar with the biggest project involving the most people and for which he can get the most money from a foundation achieves a kind of preferred academic status. It substitutes group-thinking for individual exploration. You will find, in spite of concerted effort to the contrary in recent months, the sacrifice of the bright, eccentric student to the standards of achievement of the average and below-average student. The premium is on "well-roundedness." You will find group journalism in which "slant" takes the place of opinion and is passed off as truth. You will find a great deal of what passes for cultural activity to be merely social climbing.

But in the pro column you will find genuine enthusiasm, excitement and curiosity. People have been getting up at the crack of dawn to listen to television lectures on literature. They have been going out evenings to extension courses in everything from the Art of the Short Story to Paleontology. Record companies can scarcely find enough music, new or old, to satisfy the tremendous range (from pre-Palestrina to post-Bartók) of the public taste.

In much the same kind of dilemma, publishers of paperback books comb libraries for more "significant" books of philosophy, sociology, history, the physical sciences and the arts with which to satisfy a public that is hungry for something more than whodunits.

The current boom in the art market is more than just a hedge against inflation; it reflects a reaction against what sometimes seems like the tyranny of machine-made materialism. The growth of our colleges and universities is not just a demographic phenomenon; at least part of it is a genuine search by the young for intellectual values in an era when such values seem to have been overrun by what the sociologists call status symbols. Three-hundred-horsepower parlors bedecked with tinsel are not enough.

There is no question that we create much that is tawdry, flashy and phony—as what nation doesn't? But there is also no question that our arts—fine and popular—are enjoying a new kind of vitality. It comes, I believe, from a new self-confidence. We no longer worry about being the stepchild of Europe. For a long time, it seemed as though we were connected with European culture by a one-way street with all the ideas coming our way.

NOW ideas seem to flow out rather more than they flow in. Our novelists are eagerly read everywhere. Our painting and sculpture and our architecture not only command respect but strongly influence the visual arts of other countries. Our playwrights fill foreign theatres and our musicians fill foreign concert halls and opera houses. Our ballet plays to respectful and enthusiastic audiences, and above all, our jazz has become a universal language. Our present danger is not that we underestimate the vitality of our cultural production as we once did, but that we become complacent and chauvinist about it.

Anyone can add his own items to the pro and con columns and arrive by his own arithmetic at almost any conclusions he pleases about the state of our culture. But he cannot truthfully say that our culture is any one thing or that it is dominated by any one group. No one can honestly contend that materialism has driven out humanism or that science in one of its greatest ages of exploration has slammed the door on the arts. No one can say that mass audiences have silenced the intellectuals any more than he can demonstrate that highbrows control the public taste.

OURS is a "You-name-it-we-have-it" kind of culture. It is a vast market place of conflicting tastes, conflicting ambitions and conflicting needs. In guaranteeing "the pursuit of happiness," we recognize that not every man's happiness is measured by the same yardstick. We may do our damnedest to convince him that our yardstick is better than his, but we do not beat him over the head with it.

We cajole and seduce, but we do not coerce or command. Out of the crowd that the voyeurs of culture call "the mass," many single voices are heard. So long as this is true, what we have is not a "mass culture," but neither is it an aristocratic culture. It is a highly competitive culture, perhaps the first of its kind, and unless it succeeds, perhaps the last.

[264]

Republican (m)
WATERBURY, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 21,034

AUG 13 1958

Perversion Of Democracy

By GEORGE SOKOLSKY

An undeniable fact is made evident everyday here in the Berkshires, at Tanglewood, namely that there is genius among human beings and that some are more skilled than others. For instance, such a pianist as Byron Janis is not be found by the million or even by the thousands and such conductors of orchestras as Charles Munch or Pierre Monteux are rare indeed and one applauds their work in awe.

But Dr. A. Harry Pasow of Columbia University thinks differently. He is reported to have said:

George Sokolsky

"It is a perversion of democracy, to set aside certain youngsters and give them privileges which automatically set them apart as an elite group of society. It goes against the basic idea of American education, which is to give all children an equal opportunity for the best possible education."

This is, of course, stuff and nonsense. When a genius is found, in any country, he should be set aside to work at his own speed—usually, he does. Such an institution as the Bronx High School of Science is as hard to get into as some colleges, because otherwise the time and effort of the brilliant students and the competent teachers would be wasted on those who cannot remember a chemical formula or a mathematical concept. A man may be an excellent bricklayer without having read Milton. Why not leave him to his own devices to be a bricklayer? Why impose Milton upon him?

Prof. Passow says further:

"The selective system of education common in Europe tends to wash out at an early age many sutdents who would like to go into the professions. Instead, unless they are among the brightest sutdents in the schools, they are forced into some other line of work."

Why should those who cannot serve in the professions not go into the trades? Is it sound for a clumsy person to be a surgeon and kill his patients, just because he wants to be called doctor? Is it right for one who has no aptitude for study to be a teacher and to wreck the minds of young children?

No matter what else Prof. Passow learned in his courses at Columbia, logic does not seem to be one of the disciplines which education brought to him, because it is illogical not to recognize superior talents, more competent minds, greater capacity for learning. Mozart started at some such age as three to play the piano and was composing while still a child. Does one send such a child to a school to be bored by learning in a semester what his mind can encompass in a few days?

To recognize a fact is not to assign a privilege. The fact is that some human beings possess greater skills in some fields than others. Van Cliburn went from Texas to Moscow and won the Tchaikowsky prize because he could play Tchaikowsky's Piano Concerto with superior technical skill and feeling. He possesses the training, skill and emotional balance to play this very difficult composition. Not half a hundred boys or girls in the United States, out of a population of more than 170 million can do as well—perhaps fewer. When he shall have shown equal skill in the works of Mozart, Bach, Beethoven, etc., we shall know that he is in a very small group of extraordinary human beings, such as Horowitz and Arthur Rubenstein, who have been graced with genius.

None of this has anything to do with democracy. It has to do with genius. The cry today is for mathematicians and scientists. A few will be outstanding—so few that their names go down in history. Some will be very good. Some will be mere technicians who will do a craftsmanlike job. Some will be louts, not worth house room. None will be equal to each other.

The trouble with such educators as Prof. Passow is that they fail to recognize that democracy is a political term and has nothing to do with education. Columbia University is an excellent institution of learning but it has not produced an Aristotle, although it has produced a MacDowell. Aristotles appear rarely in human history, and although Columbia is proud of its John Dewey, no one would think of Dewey as an Aristotle.

In the development of the human mind there is no equality. Some minds start being better very early in life.

(Copyright, 1958, King Features)

Burrelle's
ESTABLISHED 1
BArclay 7-5371
PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU
165 Church Street - New York

HOLLAND, MICH.
SENTINEL
D. 12.638
AUG 15 1958

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.
POST-JOURNAL
Circ. D. 26,661
AUG 14 1958

MOBILE, ALA.
REGISTER
Circ. D. 34,611
AUG 13 1958

JAMAICA, N. Y.
Long Island Press
Circ. D. 335,607
AUG 13 1958

BATON ROUGE, LA.
STATE TIMES
D. 32,380
AUG 16 1958

FLORENCE, ALA.
TIMES
Circ. D. 9,987 - S. 9,791
AUG 13 1958

Herald (e)
NEW BRITAIN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 29,250
AUG 13 1958

PASCO, WASH.
HERALD
Circ. D. 13,425 - S. 14,304
AUG 10 1958

Sentinel (m)
WATERVILLE, Me.
Independent
Circ. 17,600
AUG 13 1958

Register (e)
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 94,453
AUG 13 1958

Press (e)
MIDDLETOWN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 16,139
AUG 13 1958

Post (e)
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 78,913
AUG 13 1958

Journal (e)
MERIDEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 9,604
AUG 13 1958

Chronicle (e)
WILLIMANTIC, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 6,225
AUG 13 1958

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N.Y.
MONTHLY
OCT 1958

[265]

Summer Series Gain Ground

THOSE who have read the August and the September issues of MUSICAL AMERICA with an analytical eye are aware that something of major significance on a national scale took place in summer music festivals and outdoor concerts in the season just concluded.

We refer to the almost unanimous reports from coast to coast of notably increased public interest and attendance and bigger box-office receipts. Among the 15 or more major series, only two ran into difficulties, and in both cases these came under the heading of "acts of God". The Empire State Festival at Ellenville, N. Y., was canceled when a storm destroyed its tent less than two hours before curtain time on opening night; two of the four events of the expanded Caramoor Festival at Katonah, N. Y., were disrupted by rain.

BUT from here on the picture was bright indeed. Chautauqua, which is the oldest summer series of its kind in the country, had one of the biggest seasons in its history, with sold-out houses the rule for all events. Hollywood Bowl broke all previous records with a total attendance of 331,217 and the first sold-out opening concert in its history. Virtually all of the Saturday night Pop concerts were sell-outs as were the two Rodgers and Hammerstein nights and the two appearances of Van Cliburn as soloist.

Van Cliburn was, of course, a bonanza wherever he appeared. In two concerts at Grant Park, Chicago, he drew a total of 150,000, and at Lewisohn Stadium in New York he established a 41-year record of 22,500. Actually this record was exceeded by Ezio Pinza's 27,000 in 1951 and Harry Belafonte's 25,000 in 1956. But, since 1956, public safety restrictions have limited the size of audiences in the stadium and thousands had to be turned away when legal capacity was reached. Gate receipts, however, were the largest in Stadium history, since all ticket prices were substantially increased (actual figures are not available).

THE Berkshire Festival, which, like Chautauqua, is a widely diversified affair, showed marked increases in almost all of its activities. The total number of visitors was 168,773 as against last year's 162,936. Student and other concerts drew an additional 25,235. Total ticket sales were $376,117, as against $366,943 in 1957 and $297,956 in 1956—a heartening improvement.

Both Grant Park and the Ravinia Festival, Chicago, showed sizable increases in attendance. Ravinia drew 102,302 for 44 performances compared to 103,693 for 60 performances in 1957. An estimated 403,000 attended the Grant Park concerts, an increase of 125,000 over last year.

Overflow crowds were commonplace at Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell, although rain forced six postponements. Huge crowds greeted the pinch-hitting Cleveland Orchestra at the beginning of the season, and some 25,000 turned out for the return of the Philadelphia Orchestra after its European tour.

DESPITE persistent bad weather, the Summer Opera at the Zoo in Cincinnati made important gains. Attendance was up 22 per cent, the box office ten per cent, over last season. Audiences, it is estimated, have grown from an average of seven or eight hundred to about 2,400. In Washington, D. C., Van Cliburn's appearance and a concert version of "The Merry Widow" brought standing-room-only crowds of over 10,000.

A happy novelty of the 21st annual Bach Festival at Carmel, Calif., was the fact that the entire week of concerts was completely sold out almost a month in advance, while at Miami Beach the ten weekly concerts of the University of Miami Summer Symphony attracted a total of 35,000, a substantial increase over last year.

SUMMER events at Red Rocks, Colo., are described as "the most brilliant and successful" to date, and the opera festival at Santa Fe, N. M., in its second year, reports a 25 per cent increase in attendance. The Marlboro Festival in Vermont, in its ninth year, has enjoyed audiences more appreciative and larger in numbers than in past years. And the Peninsula Music Festival, at Fish Creek, Wis., featuring five world and five United States premieres, attracted large crowds in its sixth season.

A new enterprise that made a deep impression in its unveiling this summer was the International Festival at Vancouver, B. C., which can be counted upon to make a strong bid for first place among music festivals in this hemisphere. Although figures have not been made available, the initial reception was so good locally and afield that plans already are under way for another festival next summer.

AMSTERDAM, N.Y.
RECORDER
D. 13,783
AUG 5 1958

Tanglewood Provides Unusual Experience in Serenity, Charm

By ROBERT A. WISCHMEYER

Tanglewood is a place where you can listen to the music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and watch people drink champagne as part of their picnic lunch.

It is a place where Bermuda shorts, bare-footed lasses and cultured gentlemen in knee socks mix with more conventionally-dressed lovers of music to enjoy the best of the great composers.

The heavy strains of Wagner drifted out over some eight or nine thousand persons Sunday at the well-manicured Tanglewood Music Center, just outside Lenox, Mass., about two and one-half hours' drive from Amsterdam.

Wagner Strains Enchant

In the pie-shaped music shed where 6,000 sit in cool shade, on the soft lawn which surrounds the shed, and beneath wide-spreading trees on the fringe of the lawn, men and women of all ages, with a few children alongside, soaked up music and seemed to the last person to be enchanted by the place and the strains of Wagner.

Hidden behind a row of tall pines overlooking lovely Lake Mahkeenac in the green Berkshire Hills, Tanglewood is a thoroughly enchanting experience in culture.

But whether or not you claim to be cultured, to see, feel and hear the charm that Tanglewood has is well worth the drive from Amsterdam to this music center south of Pittsfield.

Closes on Sunday

Tanglewood closes Sunday with a Festival Concert featuring the music of Walton and Beethoven. This Thursday is "Tanglewood on Parade" with Arthur Fiedler conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra.

If you are one who knows and loves classical music, Tanglewood is for you. If you just like to listen to classical music for its beauty, without understanding it, Tanglewood is also for you.

How to Get There

To drive there, your best route is the Thruway to Albany, Rt. 20 to Pittsfield, and down Rt. 7 to Lenox. If you wish a pretty drive along winding roads, turn right off Rt. 20 in New Lebanon onto Rt. 22, which you follow for a few miles to Rt. 295. Turning right on Rt. 295, you cross into Massachusetts and hit Rt. 41, which takes you into Tanglewood. A couple of signs help show the way

The drive itself is through beautiful country and the area surrounding Tanglewood—the Berkshires, Lenox and Pittsfield—is pleasant viewing. Attractive eating spots abound in Lenox and Pittsfield, but you can bring or buy a picnic lunch, if you wish.

In the music center itself, quietness and a common love of music cast a spell of beauty that the green trees and grass hold tight You cannot fail to come away impressed and anxious for another visit.

It is a study in Ivy League clothing, a view of inner serenity, an experience in charm.

C-10 THE SUNDAY STAR, Washington, D. C.
SUNDAY, AUGUST 17, 1958

JOHN McCOLLUM IN TANGLEWOOD—John McCollum, tenor, who is well known in Washington in productions of the Opera Society, is shown on the right in the title role in Rossini's opera "Le Conte D'Ory," produced recently at the Berkshire Music Festival.

TURNTABLE TALK

Vocal Discs Offer Brahms, Sibelius

By JAMES G. DEANE
Star Record Critic

* * * *

CONFIRMATION

This column's favorable reaction to the recent Angel issue of Rossini's "Le Comte Ory" has been pleasantly confirmed by a visual as well as aural encounter.

Rossini's opera was the main presentation this summer by the opera department at Massachusetts' Berkshire Music Center. A cast featuring John McCollum, tenor stalwart of Washington's Opera Society, and some talented student principals was responsible for the two-night stand, staged under the able direction of Tanglewood veteran Boris Goldovsky and conducted by a promising young Welshman, Wyn Morris.

The event included the public unveiling of a new gimmick in stagecraft, the use of backstage slide projectors and translucent screens in lieu of standard sets—a matter of no concern to record companies but of possibly compelling interest to such ambitious but impecunious opera companies as Washington's.

Rossini's melodies babbled merrily and, to all appearances, irresistibly in the ears of Tanglewood's operagoers.

MUSICAL AMERICA
NEW YORK, N.Y.
MONTHLY
OCT 1958

[265]

Summer Series Gain Ground

THOSE who [illegible] August and the September [illegible] MUSICAL AMERICA with an analytical eye, are aware that something of major significance on a national scale took place in summer music festivals and outdoor concerts in the season just concluded.

We refer to the almost unanimous reports from coast to coast of notably increased public interest and attendance and bigger box-office receipts. Among the 15 or more major series, only two ran into difficulties, and in both cases these came under the heading of "acts of God". The Empire State Festival at Ellenville, N. Y., was canceled when a storm destroyed its tent less than two hours before curtain time on opening night; two of the four events of the expanded Caramoor Festival at Katonah, N. Y., were disrupted by rain.

BUT from here on the picture was bright indeed. Chautauqua, which is the oldest summer series of its kind in the country, had one of the biggest seasons in its history, with sold-out houses the rule for all events. Hollywood Bowl broke all previous records with a total attendance of 331,217 and the first sold-out opening concert in its history. Virtually all of the Saturday night Pop concerts were sell-outs as were the two Rodgers and Hammerstein nights and the two appearances of Van Cliburn as soloist.

Van Cliburn was, of course, a bonanza whereever he appeared. In two concerts at Grant Park, Chicago, he drew a total of 150,000, and at Lewisohn Stadium in New York he established a 41-year record of 22,500. Actually this record was exceeded by Ezio Pinza's 27,000 in 1951 and Harry Belafonte's 25,000 in 1956. But, since 1956, public safety restrictions have limited the size of audiences in the stadium and thousands had to be turned away when legal capacity was reached. Gate receipts, however, were the largest in Stadium history, since all ticket prices were substantially increased (actual figures are not available).

THE Berkshire Festival, which, like Chautauqua, is a widely diversified affair, showed marked increases in almost all of its activities. The total number of visitors was 168,773 as against last year's 162,936. Student and other concerts drew an additional 25,235. Total ticket sales were $376,117, as against $366,943 in 1957 and $297,956 in 1956—a heartening [illegible]ment.

Both Grant Park and the [illegible] Festival, Chicago, showed sizable increases in attendance. Ravinia drew 102,302 for 44 performances as compared to 103,693 for 60 performances in 1957. An estimated 403,000 attended the Grant Park concerts, an increase of 125,000 over last year.

Overflow crowds were commonplace at Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell, although rain forced six postponements. Huge crowds greeted the pinch-hitting Cleveland Orchestra at the beginning of the season, and some [illegible],000 turned out for the return of the Philadelphia Orchestra after its European tour.

DESPITE persistent bad weather, the Summer Opera at the Zoo in Cincinnati made important gains. Attendance was up 22 per cent, the box office ten per cent, over last season. Audiences, it is estimated, have grown from an average of seven or eight hundred to about 2,400. In Washington, D. C., Van Cliburn's appearance and a concert version of "The Merry Widow" brought standing-room-only crowds of over 10,000.

A happy novelty of the 21st annual Bach Festival at Carmel, Calif., was the fact that the entire week of concerts was completely sold out almost a month in advance, while at Miami Beach the ten weekly concerts of the University of Miami Summer Symphony attracted a total of 35,000, a substantial increase over last year.

SUMMER events at Red Rocks, Colo., are described as "the most brilliant and successful" to date, and the opera festival at Santa Fe, N. M., in its second year, reports a 25 per cent increase in attendance. The Marlboro Festival in Vermont, in its ninth year, has enjoyed audiences more appreciative and larger in numbers than in past years. And the Peninsula Music Festival, at Fish Creek, Wis., featuring five world and five United States premieres, attracted large crowds in its sixth season.

A new enterprise that made a deep impression in its unveiling this summer was the International Festival at Vancouver, B. C., which can be counted upon to make a strong bid for first place among music festivals in this hemisphere. Although figures have not been made available, the initial reception was so good locally and afield that plans already are under way for another festival next summer.

AMSTERDAM, N.Y.
RECORDER
D. 13,783
AUG 5 1958

Tanglewood Provides Unusual Experience in Serenity, Charm

By ROBERT A. WISCHMEYER

Tanglewood is a place where you can listen to the music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra and watch people drink champagne as part of their picnic lunch.

It is a place where Bermuda shorts, bare-footed lasses and cultured gentlemen in knee socks mix with more conventionally-dressed lovers of music to enjoy the best of the great composers.

The heavy strains of Wagner drifted out over some eight or nine thousand persons Sunday at the well-manicured Tanglewood Music Center, just outside Lenox, Mass., about two and one-half hours' drive from Amsterdam.

Wagner Strains Enchant

In the pie-shaped music shed where 6,000 sit in cool shade, on the soft lawn which surrounds the shed, and beneath wide-spreading trees on the fringe of the lawn, men and women of all ages, with a few children alongside, soaked up music and seemed to the last person to be enchanted by the place and the strains of Wagner.

Hidden behind a row of tall pines overlooking lovely Lake Mahkeenac in the green Berkshire Hills, Tanglewood is a thoroughly enchanting experience in culture.

But whether or not you claim to be cultured, to see, feel and hear the charm that Tanglewood has is well worth the drive from Amsterdam to this music center south of Pittsfield.

Closes on Sunday

Tanglewood closes Sunday with a Festival Concert featuring the music of Walton and Beethoven. This Thursday is "Tanglewood on Parade" with Arthur Fiedler conducting the Boston Pops Orchestra.

If you are one who knows and loves classical music, Tanglewood is for you. If you just like to listen to classical music for its beauty, without understanding it, Tanglewood is also for you.

How to Get There

To drive there, your best route is the Thruway to Albany, Rt. 20 to Pittsfield, and down Rt. 7 to Lenox. If you wish a pretty drive along winding roads, turn right off Rt. 20 in New Lebanon onto Rt. 22, which you follow for a few miles to Rt. 295. Turning right on Rt. 295, you cross into Massachusetts and hit Rt. 41, which takes you into Tanglewood. A couple of signs help show the way.

The drive itself is through beautiful country and the area surrounding Tanglewood—the Berkshires, Lenox and Pittsfield—is pleasant viewing. Attractive eating spots abound in Lenox and Pittsfield, but you can bring or buy a picnic lunch, if you wish.

In the music center itself, quietness and a common love of music cast a spell of beauty that the green trees and grass hold tight. You cannot fail to come away impressed and anxious for another visit.

It is a study in Ivy League clothing, a view of inner serenity, an experience in charm.

C-10 THE SUNDAY STAR, Washington, D. C.
SUNDAY, AUGUST 17, 1958

JOHN McCOLLUM IN TANGLEWOOD—John McCollum, tenor, who is well known in Washington in productions of the Opera Society, is shown on the right in the title role in Rossini's opera "Le Conte D'Ory," produced recently at the Berkshire Music Festival.

TURNTABLE TALK

Vocal Discs Offer Brahms, Sibelius

By JAMES G. DEANE
Star Record Critic

* * * *

CONFIRMATION

This column's favorable reaction to the recent Angel issue of Rossini's "Le Comte Ory" has been pleasantly confirmed by a visual as well as aural encounter.

Rossini's opera was the main presentation this summer by the opera department at Massachusetts' Berkshire Music Center. A cast featuring John McCollum, tenor stalwart of Washington's Opera Society, and some talented student principals was responsible for the two-night stand, staged under the able direction of Tanglewood veteran Boris Goldovsky and conducted by a promising young Welshman, Wyn Morris.

The event included the public unveiling of a new gimmick in stagecraft, the use of backstage slide projectors and translucent screens in lieu of standard sets—a matter of no concern to record companies but of possibly compelling interest to such ambitious but impecunious opera companies as Washington's.

Rossini's melodies bubbled merrily and, to all appearances, irresistibly in the ears of Tanglewood's operagoers,

[266]

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.

AUG 1958

New York

N. Y. Editor and Critic: WALTER F. LOEB, 445 West 23rd Street, New York City 11. Tel: WAtkins 4-5386
Other Critics: Shirley Cecille Cash (Orchestras), Harry L. Fuchs, Sherman Gottesman

With The Orchestras

By Shirley Cecille Cash

New York Philharmonic

Five soloists will make their Philharmonic debuts next season: Kentuckian Lee Luvisi, now living in Philadelphia, and New York-born Russell Sherman, pianists; Berl Senofsky, Philadelphia-born violinist; Maurice Gendron, French 'cellist; and Gyorgy Cziffra, Hungarian-born pianist.

Of the 30 instrumentalists announced, 18 are U.S.-born or have received their major musical training in the United States.

Bruno Zirato, Managing Director of the New York Philharmonic, will retire from his post at the end of next year's concert season, May 1959. In his letter of resignation, Mr. Zirato revealed that he had some time ago discussed with the Philharmonic's President (David M. Keiser) his desire, as a "man of more than Biblical span of years," to terminate his association with the Society after more than 30 years' service to it. In his reply to Mr. Zirato, Mr. Keiser wrote of the "great and lasting value that has come to the Society from your relationship with it" and of the many benefits "too numerous to mention here that have come about through your never ceasing efforts and your ability to overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles."

Mr. Keiser also announced the appointment of George E. Judd, Jr. as Associate Managing Director of the New York Philharmonic. His father is George E. Judd, who was for many years Manager of the Boston Symphony.

Boston Symphony

Since July 5, WQXR has been broadcasting the complete Saturday night concerts of the Boston Symphony from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

The major production of the season for the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department will be Rossini's "Count Ory" which will receive two performances in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Aug. 4 and 5. The English version by Robert A. Simon was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The opera will be under the direction of Boris Goldovsky, head of the Opera Department. The conductor will be Wyn Morris. Mr. Morris, of Llanelly, South Wales, was the winner last year of the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, awarded to an outstanding student conductor. He studied during the past season with George Szell, conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra.

The gala concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood will climax the annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, Aug. 7. Aaron Copland will appear as soloist in his own Piano Concerto for the first time with this orchestra in 31 years. Richard Burgin will conduct the performance.

Ralph Berkowitz, pianist and Dean of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, has been appointed Manager of the Albuquerque Civic Symphony of New Mexico. Mr. Berkowitz starts this fall along with the orchestra's newly appointed conductor, Maurice Bonney, formerly Assistant to Leopold Stokowski in Houston, Tex.

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178

AUG 30 1958

Playbills and Batons

Sifting Souvenirs in Straw

By ORMONDE PLATER

IF there is hayfever in this corner, it is a result of the straw under this desk. And how did the straw get there? Well, on the soles of shoes, most likely, or from cuffs and hatbands and the backs of collars. It was a telltale mark of visits to the country.

Plater

But the visits are finished, and Labor Day, a day of no labor, is upon us. The reports have all been posted from country outposts. My head grows dizzy from counting, but I have counted and found there have been some 57 reports in all—40 relating to summer theater, 15 to music and two to the dance—and that's not counting all the odds and ends that, like ragweed pollen, drifted in.

It's just counting the reviews. My haphazard count also shows that the reviewing was done by some 10 persons (male and female), one of whom caught 18 shows, most of whom caught four or five shows and two of whom just caught one show. A worthy crew.

They caught shows from alpha to omega, from operas to soap operas, from visits on separate tables to waltzing on hot tin roofs. It was inevitable that some theaters, with inspiration and knowledge, should do better than others, and that some plays should be good and others bad. Even so, the experience of seeing a good play, performed beautifully, will always be a surprise.

★ ★ ★

IF ASKED, I would name three theaters for special artistic consideration. The first, the Williamstown Summer Theater is so filled with talent that even an occasional lapse in choice of plays matters little. The executive director, Nikos Psacharopoulos, conducts his theater as if every hatpin mattered. There is nothing slipshod or cheap about his productions. And his company picks up this spirit.

The second, Albany's Arena Theater, always performs plays of deep meaning and high style. The American premiere of Ugo Betti's "Summertime" was an example of Arena's impeccable taste in plays. The casts are seldom professional, but Paul Bruce Pettit, producer and director, guides them with a sure thumb. It's too bad, though, that Arena opperates only three weeks a summer.

The third is the Spa Summer Theater, which brings in "package" touring plays, with stars in the leads. I have found that the star system mostly results in played-down-to-the-hicks performances of worthless plays, and this was so with about three productions at Spa this summer. But the balance this season was with the good works—notably Hermione Gingold in "Fallen Angels," Basil Rathbone and Geraldine Page in "Separate Tables" and Diana Barrymore in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

★ ★ ★

IF AN HONORARY medal were to be cast, it might go to the Colonie Musical Theater, which opened its orange-and-green tent (seating 2,000 persons around a central stage) this summer in Latham. Despite cool nights and adjacent highway construction, Colonie has been presenting colorful productions of musical comedies and has been making its audience, as one critic noted, most happy fellas. "King and I" was especially happy.

EDDIE RICH (producer at Colonie)—"What, me worry?"

Some other spots where our coverage turned up bright examples were Berkshire, with a sensitive performance of "Separate Tables," and Woodstock, which daringly tried its hand at an often raw, often poetic play called "The Rope Dancers."

In all, there were 10 theaters operating within driving distance of Albany (Colonie continues for two more weeks), and as for the number of people who attended, watch this space in two weeks, when I return from vacation, and when the lists are in.

★ ★ ★

LITTLE NEEDS to be said of the music and dance events, which were generally of excellent quality. Certainly nothing need be said for the Berkshire Festival. The Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival started off dully but soon turned gay, climaxing in flashy numbers by the Ximenez--Vargas Ballet Espagnol. At the Berkshire Music Barn, the jazz blew from frigid hills, but there was enough folk music about to remind us that all is not modern.

Chamber music was not to be escaped. Pittsfield, Lenox, Bennington, Woodstock, Rensselaerville—name the town, and there it was. Opera was to be had at Woodstock's Turnau Opera Players and occasionally at the Berkshire Festival.

And now the other of our two seasons, which, by comparison, seems rather chilly. No hayfever from it.

[266]

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.

AUG 1958

New York

N. Y. Editor and Critic: WALTER F. LOEB, 445 West 23rd Street, New York City 11. Tel: WAtkins 4-5386
Other Critics: Shirley Cecille Cash (Orchestras), Harry L. Fuchs, Sherman Gottesman

With The Orchestras

By Shirley Cecille Cash

New York Philharmonic

Five soloists will make their Philharmonic debuts next season: Kentuckian Lee Luvisi, now living in Philadelphia, and New York-born Russell Sherman, pianists; Berl Senofsky, Philadelphia-born violinist; Maurice Gendron, French 'cellist; and Gyorgy Cziffra, Hungarian-born pianist.

Of the 30 instrumentalists announced, 18 are U.S.-born or have received their major musical training in the United States.

Bruno Zirato, Managing Director of the New York Philharmonic, will retire from his post at the end of next year's concert season, May 1959. In his letter of resignation, Mr. Zirato revealed that he had some time ago discussed with the Philharmonic's President (David M. Keiser) his desire, as a "man of more than Biblical span of years," to terminate his association with the Society after more than 30 years' service to it. In his reply to Mr. Zirato, Mr. Keiser wrote of the "great and lasting value that has come to the Society from your relationship with it" and of the many benefits "too numerous to mention here that have come about through your never ceasing efforts and your ability to overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles."

Mr. Keiser also announced the appointment of George E. Judd, Jr. as Associate Managing Director of the New York Philharmonic. His father is George E. Judd, who was for many years Manager of the Boston Symphony.

Boston Symphony

~~Since July 5,~~ WQXR has been broadcasting the complete Saturday night concerts of the Boston Symphony from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

The major production of the season for the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department will be Rossini's "Count Ory" which will receive two performances in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Aug. 4 and 5. The English version by Robert A. Simon was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The opera will be under the direction of Boris Goldovsky, head of the Opera Department. The conductor will be Wyn Morris. Mr. Morris, of Llanelly, South Wales, was the winner last year of the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, awarded to an outstanding student conductor. He studied during the past season with George Szell, conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra.

The gala concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood will climax the annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, Aug. 7. Aaron Copland will appear as soloist in his own Piano Concerto for the first time with this orchestra in 31 years. Richard Burgin will conduct the performance.

Ralph Berkowitz, pianist and Dean of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, has been appointed Manager of the Albuquerque Civic Symphony of New Mexico. Mr. Berkowitz starts this fall along with the orchestra's newly appointed conductor, Maurice Bonney, formerly Assistant to Leopold Stokowski in Houston, Tex.

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178

AUG 30 1958

Playbills and Batons

Sifting Souvenirs in Straw

By ORMONDE PLATER

IF there is hayfever in this corner, it is a result of the straw under this desk. And how did the straw get there? Well, on the soles of shoes, most likely, or from cuffs and hatbands and the backs of collars. It was a telltale mark of visits to the country.

Plater

But the visits are finished, and Labor Day, a day of no labor, is upon us. The reports have all been posted from country outposts. My head grows dizzy from counting, but I have counted and found there have been some 57 reports in all—40 relating to summer theater, 15 to music and two to the dance—and that's not counting all the odds and ends that, like ragweed pollen, drifted in.

It's just counting the reviews. My haphazard count also shows that the reviewing was done by some 10 persons (male and female), one of whom caught 18 shows, most of whom caught four or five shows and two of whom just caught one show. A worthy crew.

They caught shows from alpha to omega, from operas to soap operas, from visits on separate tables to waltzing on hot tin roofs. It was inevitable that some theaters, with inspiration and knowledge, should do better than others, and that some plays should be good and others bad. Even so, the experience of seeing a good play, performed beautifully, will always be a surprise.

* * *

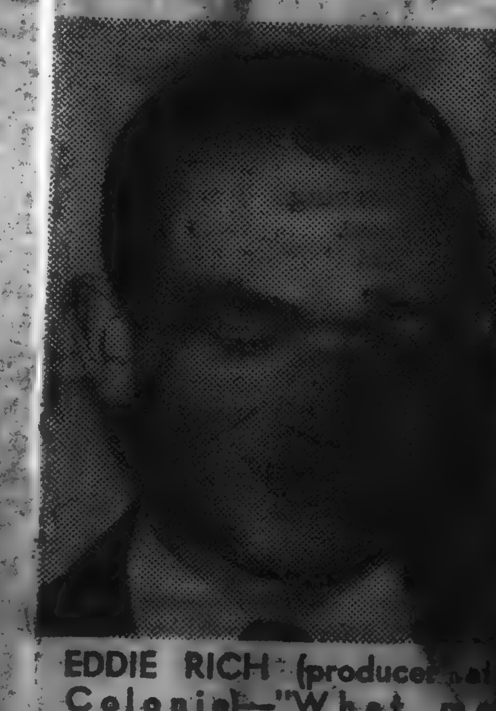
IF ASKED, I would name three theaters for special artistic consideration. The first, the Williamstown Summer Theater is so filled with talent that even an occasional lapse in choice of plays matters little. The executive director, Nikos Psacharopoulos, conducts his theater as if every hatpin mattered. There is nothing slipshod or cheap about his productions. And his company picks up this spirit.

The second, Albany's Arena Theater, always performs plays of deep meaning and high style. The American premiere of Ugo Betti's "Summertime" was an example of Arena's impeccable taste in plays. The casts are seldom professional, but Paul Bruce Pettit, producer and director, guides them with a sure thumb. It's too bad, though, that Arena operates only three weeks a summer.

The third is the Spa Summer Theater, which brings in "package" touring plays, with stars in the leads. I have found that the star system mostly results in played-down-to-the-hicks performances of worthless plays, and this was so with about three productions at Spa this summer. But the balance this season was with the good works—notably Hermione Gingold in "Fallen Angels," Basil Rathbone and Geraldine Page in "Separate Tables" and Diana Barrymore in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

* * *

IF AN HONORARY medal were to be cast, it might go to the Colonie Musical Theater, which opened its orange-and-green tent (seating 2,000 persons around a central stage) this summer in Latham. Despite cool nights and adjacent highway construction, Colonie has been presenting [illegible] productions of musical comedies and has been making its audience, as one critic noted, most happy fellas. "King and I" was especially happy.



EDDIE RICH (producer at Colonie)—"What, me worry?"

Some other spots where our coverage turned up bright examples were Berkshire, with a sensitive performance of "Separate Tables," and Woodstock, which daringly tried its hand at an often raw, often poetic play called "The Rope Dancers."

In all, there were 10 theaters operating within driving distance of Albany (Colonie continues for two more weeks), and as for the number of people who attended, watch this space in two weeks, when I return from vacation, and when the lists are in.

* * *

LITTLE NEEDS to be said of the music and dance events, which were generally of excellent quality. Certainly nothing need be said for the Berkshire Festival. The Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival started off dully but soon turned gay, climaxing in flashy numbers by the Ximenez-Vargas Ballet Espagnol. At the Berkshire Music Barn, the jazz blew from frigid hills, but there was enough folk music about to remind us that all is not modern.

Chamber music was not to be [illegible] Pittsfield, Lenox, [illegible], Woodstock, [illegible]—name the town, and there it was. Opera was to be had at Woodstock's Turnau Opera Players and occasionally at the Berkshire Festival.

And now the other of our two seasons, which, by comparison, seems rather chilly. No hayfever from it.

MUSICAL LEADER
CHICAGO, ILL.

AUG 1958

New York

(Continued from pag

trip. M Angeles Hollywoo

Comme "The memb the audien thusiastic local music followe tion a

Mrs. Ormandy flew 6. Plans includ l as well as on one of the in year's gnation, Mr. discussed with the Mr. Keiser) his desire, as a span of years," to terminate his Society after more than 30 years' service reply to Mr. Zirato, Mr. Keiser wrote of the "great lastin value that has come to the Society from your relationshi with it" and of the many benefits "too numerous to mentio here that have come about through your never ceasing efforts and your ability to overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles."

LEADER

AUGUST 1958

Mr. Keiser also announced the appointment of George E. Judd, Jr. as Associate Managing Director of the New York Philharmonic. His father is George E. Judd, who was for many years Manager of the Boston Symphony.

Boston Symphony

Since July 5, WQXR has been broadcasting the complete Saturday night concerts of the Boston Symphony from the Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood.

York

West 23rd Street, New York City 11. Tel: WAtkins 4-5386
chestras), Harry L. Fuchs, Sherman Gottesman

The major production of the season for the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department will be Rossini's "Count Ory" which will receive two performances in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Aug. 4 and 5. The English version by Robert A. Simon was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The opera will be under the direction of Boris Goldovsky, head of the Opera Department. The conductor will be Wyn Morris. Mr. Morris, of Llanelly, South Wales, was the winner last year of the Koussevitzky Memorial Scholarship, awarded to an outstanding student conductor. He studied during the past season with George Szell, conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra.

The gala concert in the Music Shed at Tanglewood will climax the annual benefit for the Berkshire Music Center, Aug 7. Aaron Copland will appear as soloist in his own Piano Concerto for the first time with this orchestra in 31 years. Richard Burgin will conduct the performance.

Ralph Berkowitz, pianist and Dean of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, has been appointed Manager of the Albuquerque Civic Symphony of New Mexico. Mr. Berkowitz starts this fall along with the orchestra's newly appointed conductor, Maurice Bonney, formerly Assistant to Leopold Stokowski in Houston, Tex.

ALBANY, N. Y.
Knickerbocker News
Circ. D. 53,178

AUG 30 1958

Playbills and Batons

Sifting Souvenirs in Straw

By ORMONDE PLATER

IF there is hayfever in this corner, it is a result of the straw under this desk. And how did the straw get there? Well, on the soles of shoes, most likely, or from cuffs and hatbands and the backs of collars. It was a telltale mark of visits to the country.

Plater

But the visits are finished, and Labor Day, a day of no labor, is upon us. The reports have all been posted from country outposts. My head grows dizzy from counting, but I have counted and found there have been some 57 reports in all—40 relating to summer theater, 15 to music and two to the dance—and that's not counting all the odds and ends that, like ragweed pollen, drifted in.

It's just counting the reviews. My haphazard count also shows that the reviewing was done by some 10 persons (male and female), one of whom caught 18 shows, most of whom caught four or five shows and two of whom just caught one show. A worthy crew.

They caught shows from alpha to omega, from operas to soap operas, from visits on separate tables to waltzing on hot tin roofs. It was inevitable that some theaters, with inspiration and knowledge, should do better than others, and that some plays should be good and others bad. Even so, the experience of seeing a good play, performed beautifully, will always be a surprise.

* * *

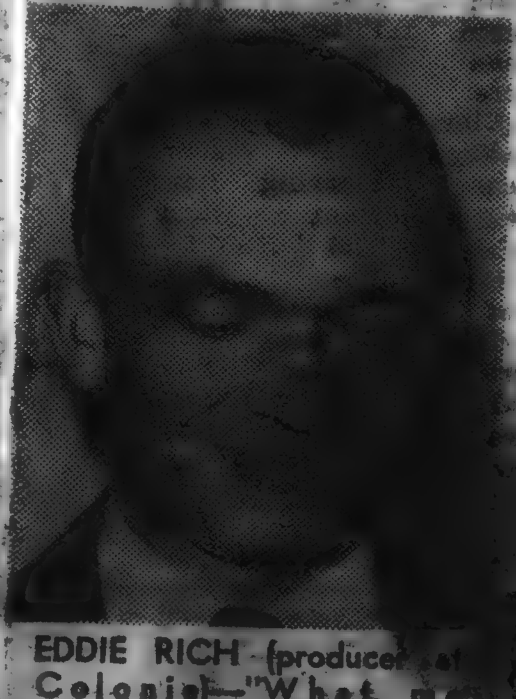
IF ASKED, I would name three theaters for special artistic consideration. The first, the Williamstown Summer Theater is so filled with talent that even an occasional lapse in choice of plays matters little. The executive director, Nikos Psacharopoulos, conducts his theater as if every hatpin mattered. There is nothing slipshod or cheap about his productions. And his company picks up this spirit.

The second, Albany's Arena Theater, always performs plays of deep meaning and high style. The American premiere of Ugo Betti's "Summertime" was an example of Arena's impeccable taste in plays. The casts are seldom professional, but Paul Bruce Pettit, producer and director, guides them with a sure thumb. It's too bad, though, that Arena opperates only three weeks a summer.

The third is the Spa Summer Theater, which brings in "package" touring plays, with stars in the leads. I have found that the star system mostly results in played-down-to-the-hicks performances of worthless plays, and this was so with about three productions at Spa this summer. But the balance this season was with the good works—notably Hermione Gingold in "Fallen Angels," Basil Rathbone and Geraldine Page in "Separate Tables" and Diana Barrymore in "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof."

* * *

IF AN HONORARY medal were to be cast, it might go to the Colonie Musical Theater, which opened its orange-and-green tent (seating 2,000 persons around a central stage) this summer in Latham. Despite cool nights and adjacent highway construction, Colonie has been presenting colorful productions of musical comedies and has been making its audience, as one critic noted, most happy fellas. "King and I" was especially happy.



EDDIE RICH (producer at Colonie)—"What, me worry?"

Some other spots where our coverage turned up bright examples were Berkshire, with a sensitive performance of "Separate Tables," and Woodstock, which daringly tried its hand at an often raw, often poetic play called "The Rope Dancers."

In all, there were 10 theaters operating within driving distance of Albany (Colonie continues for two more weeks), and as for the number of people who attended, watch this space in two weeks, when I return from vacation, and when the lists are in.

* * *

LITTLE NEEDS to be said of the music and dance events, which were generally of excellent quality. Certainly nothing need be said for the Berkshire Festival. The Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival started off dully but soon turned gay, climaxing in flashy numbers by the Ximenez-Vargas Ballet Espagnol. At the Berkshire Music Barn, the jazz blew from frigid hills, but there was enough folk music about to remind us that all is not modern.

Chamber music was not to be [illegible] Pittsfield, Lenox, [illegible] Woodstock, [illegible]—name the town, and there it was. Opera was to be had at Woodstock's Turnau Opera Players and occasionally at the Berkshire Festival.

And now the other of our two seasons, which, by comparison, seems rather chilly. No hayfever from it.

Berkshire Festival Returns To Traditional Patterns

MUSICAL AMERICA
AUG, 1958

Lenox, Mass.—That "Bach madness" of the 'twenties and 'thirties persists in the first weekend concerts of the Berkshire Festival. Charles Munch opened the [illegible] season July 4 following tradition closely. For a time he had deviated from the Bach pattern established by Serge Koussevitzky in ranging through 18th Century music. Having set up the Great Composers plan again this year, he found it logical to begin wtih Bach.

The first program concentrated on the four orchestral suites, played in numerical order. This brought Suite No. 2 before the intermission and provided a soloist in Doriot Anthony Dwyer, who has made this work a specialty. The concert gained momentum progressively from suite to suite so that Nos. 3 and 4 fared better than Nos. 1 and 2. Mr. Munch's highly vigorous way with Bach sometimes leads him to drive too hard early in the evening. More relaxed after intermission, he achieved better artistic balances and the Boston Symphony chamber group played more precisely and more musically.

"Art of Fugue" in Second Program

The "Art of Fugue" became the focal point of the second program. Mr. Munch's highly energized account of this, quite untraditional in most performances, kept the audience much more absorbed than is customary with this "theoretical" craftsmanship. The concert included the Piano Concerto in D Minor with Lukas Foss as soloist. As on the night before, rain cut the size of the audience to just below 3,000.

G. Wallace Woodworth, conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, conducted the performance of the B Minor Mass in the Music Shed on July 6. The occasion was his retirement after 25 years in this position. The choruses were also observing their 100th anniversary. It was a sentimental occasion for them and their alumni. Some [illegible] people attended.

About a third of the Mass had been cut. Mr. Woodworth's approach was choral in the glee club sense. He achieved brilliant singing when the score allowed him to capitalize on youthful exuberance and radiant voices. He did not probe the depths of feeling elsewhere. The soloists included Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern, and Donald Gramm. Miss Addison and Mr. Gramm made the most satisfying contributions.

Three Mozart Programs

Of the three Mozart programs that characterized the following weekend, the last received the most rewarding treatment. Again, Mr. Munch's conducting can become problematical, but he appeared happily adjusted to the "Haffner" Symphony and the Piano Concerto K. 467 with Seymour Lipkin as soloist. Mr. Lipkin proved himself a fine musician not only in his interpretation of the work but also in his own cadenzas. His fastidious playing, however, did not always communicate [illegible].

Hugh Ross conducted the second half of the concert given over to such choral works as the Kyrie, K. 341, the "Graduale ad Festum Beatae Mariae Virginis" K. 273, and the "Coronation" Mass K. 317. These were a great treat both in content and in performance because of Mr. Ross's interpretative gifts and the Festival Chorus's generally excellent singing, to say nothing of their infrequent appearances on concert programs. Sarah Fleming, Doris Okerson, Richard Gilley and Lawrence Chelsi made a fine quartet of soloists.

(Continued on page 9)

Tanglewood

(Continued from page 7)

The other concerts offered less satisfying moments with Mr. Munch not quite in the vein as he was for the Sunday program. The weekend began with "A Musical Joke", the Sinfonia Concertante for violin and viola in which Joseph De Pasquale played the viola with far more distinction than Ruth Posselt the violin, and the "Linz" Symphony. The Saturday program included "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik", the two-piano Concerto K. 365, the Serenade in B flat for 13 Winds, K. 361, and the G Minor Symphony. Mr. Lipkin and Mr. Foss played the concerto with some discrepancy in the polish of their performances. Mr. Lipkin was the better adjusted.

An overall attendance of 12,771 people did not necessarily suggest that Mozarteans wax more enthusiastic than Bachites, but audiences for these Mozart concerts have been increasing in size yearly.

Munch Conducts Brahms Weekend

Moving into the Music Shed for the Brahms weekend, Mr. Munch and the full Boston Symphony turned their attention to the Serenade No. 1 Op. 11 and the Fourth Symphony, Op. 98. Hearing these works in juxtaposition revealed the seeds of greatness in the youthful one and their fruition in the symphony. The focal point of the concert, however, was the first performance here of Copland's Orchestral Variations, an old-new work since he has orchestrated his Piano Variations of 1930. The orchestral dress so preoccupies the attention, however, that the music sounds different, at least on a first hearing. It has been done boldly with generally stimulating results. The audience followed it alertly.

For the annual concert in memory of Koussevitzky, Mr. Munch conducted the Brahms Requiem with Hilde Gueden, Mr. Gramm and the Festival Chorus. His vitalized approach quite fascinated all but some traditionalists who pointed out that the work called for less colorful treatment. There were many interesting departures from "tradition".

Pierre Monteux made his regular appearance at Tanglewood in the Sunday program. The Brahms works included the "Academic Festival" Overture and the D Minor Piano Concerto with Leon Fleisher as soloist. Since he appeared somewhat driven in his playing, the performance acquired no distinction. Mr. Monteux's notable interpretation of Stravinsky's "Petrouchka" injected the contemporary element which always enters the programs of each weekend.

Debussy and Ravel in Fourth Week

The hyphenation of Debussy-Ravel created a unique great composer for the Festival's fourth weekend. On the first program highlighting their music, Mr. Monteux played Glinka, Tchaikovsky (the Fourth Symphony), and Milhaud. Then came Debussy's Nocturnes, with "Sirenes" included since the Festival Chorus was available, and Ravel's "La Valse". All this was interpreted in the Monteux "tradition."

Only Debussy's "La Mer" centered the Saturday program. Mr. Munch began with a repeat performance of Stravinsky's "Canticum Sacrum" from last year, though why remained the speculation of many in the audience of 9, 736. Mr. Stern and Mr. Gramm were the soloists. The Festival Chorus participated. The work does not gain strength on further acquaintance except as a piece of antiquarianism grown more historic. Byron Janis played the Rachmaninoff Third Piano Concerto with technical brilliance and drive but not with all the clarity or architectural splendor required. "La Mer" contended with rain, lightning, and thunder more or less properly in pitch and mood.

Mr. Munch's famous interpretation of Ravel's "Daphnis and Chloe" Suite [illegible] of the great-composer element in the Sunday program. Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion, and Celesta became the contemporary entry. Zino Francescatti played the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto in his usually elegant manner. This concert attracted the largest crowd to date, 10,379, making a total of 26,552 for the weekend in spite of overcast and precipitate skies.

—Miles Kastendieck

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL

■ Will music take the place of baseball as New England's spring and summer leisure-time activity? Taking the leading organization in each category, one arrives at some rather startling figures. If these figures may appear to be significant, it is not that we wish baseball ill but rather that we wish music well. The Boston Red Sox have not been doing too badly this season and, as of the date of this writing (Aug. 17), have had a good home attendance of 850,000. Now let us see what the Boston Symphony Orchestra has done in a considerably shorter season from Pops opening, May 1, to the Berkshire Festival closing at Tanglewood, Aug. 10.

Using round numbers and conservative estimates when exact figures are not available, we find the sell-out Pops season at Symphony Hall accounting for some 125,000 admissions. Then comes the Boston Symphony Esplanade Series of eighteen evening and three children's concerts split two weeks before Tanglewood and one week after. For these concerts, the total attendance is estimated at 200,000. Turning now to the Tanglewood season marked by some disastrous weather during most of the four final weekends, total attendance for all Festival events together with figures for the BSO-sponsored Berkshire Music Center give a total this year of close to 200,000 admissions. A little addition now shows the grand total of admissions to concerts presented or sponsored by the orchestra during fourteen weeks come to [illegible], or let us call it a round half-million admissions!

■ These are staggering figures and this interest in music probably goes far to explain the marked progress made in recent years by more and more American composers and performers. This trend was particularly evident during the whole Berkshire Festival. All six of the piano soloists were American-born and largely American-trained. In each case excellent performances were turned in by Lukas Foss, Seymour Lipkin, Leon Fleisher, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario and Eugene Istomin. As a matter of fact, Byron Janis received one of the lengthiest and most tumultuous ovations in Festival history for this remarkable performance of the Rachmaninoff Third Concerto on July 26.

Among the string soloists, only Zino Francescatti was not "made in America," so to speak. Berl Senofsky impressed with his sure artistry and poise in the Beethoven Violin Concerto, Aug. 9, and Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the orchestra, scored again in the new Piston Viola Concerto. Ruth Posselt rounded out this quartet of fine soloists.

Among the vocal soloists it was the same story, with the highly esteemed Hilde Gueden the only non-American singer in a list that produces notable results from Margaret Harshaw, Donald Gramm, Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Florence Kopleff and Blake Stern.

■ But if all this recognition goes to our heads, and lest we become too chauvinistic, let us not forget the brilliant readings of Charles Munch who conducted thirteen concerts and the reliable assistance of Pierre Monteux, who relieved the Boston Symphony conductor for one concert in each of the final four week-ends. Other conductors were G. Wallace Woodworth, Hugh Ross and, for "Tanglewood on Parade," Eleazar de Carvalho, Richard Burgin and Arthur Fiedler.

To do full justice to all the events, including the fine chamber music concerts, the outstanding student events, and the activities of Boris Goldovsky's Opera Department, becomes an impossibility in a report of this kind. We must be content with the observation that rarely, if ever, has so much good music been performed in any six-week period. Dr. Munch seemed completely recovered from his mild heart attack. His Beethoven Seventh, particularly, stands out in memory, together with his wonderfully sympathetic accompaniment to Janis in the Rachmaninoff Concerto.

The custom of including a contemporary work on most of the programs must be applauded. These were: July 18, Copland's Orchestral Variations; July 20, Stravinsky's "Petrouchka"; July 25, Milhaud's Overture to "Les Eumenides"; July 26, Stravinsky's "Canticum Sacrum"; July 27, Bartok's Music for Strings, Percussion and Celesta; Aug. 1, Piston's Viola Concerto; Aug. 2, the Williams Symphony No. 8; Aug. 8, Honneger's Prelude, Fugure and Postlude; Aug. 9, Hindemith's "Nobilissima Visione"; and Aug. 10, Walton's "Johannesburg Festival" Overture.

JULES WOLFFERS

Musical Courier, Sept. '58

BLANK PAGE

[269]

Berkshire Courier
GT. BARRINGTON,
Mass.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 2,443
JUL 10 1958

THURSDAY, JULY 10, 1958

Plenty of Things to Do

If you are going to have guests staying with you for a week or two are you wondering how on earth you are going to keep them and yourself occupied with "things to do"? Have you fallen for that old line that there's nothing to do in Southern Berkshire except to sit and look at the scenery?

True, we don't have a zoo, an aquarium or a Coney Island to help visitors pass the time. But perhaps one of the reasons they have come to the Berkshires is to see and do things that are not available to them in the cities. If that's what they want, the Berkshires offer plenty of variety.

There is Tanglewood at Lenox, the summer home of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, which makes Southern Berkshire the seasonal music capital of the East and perhaps of the country. Also at Lenox is the Music Barn which has specialized in popular music for several years. South Mountain at Pittsfield and Music mountain at Falls Village, Conn., both offer fine concerts, and there is the Theatre of the Dance at Lee.

For the theatre-goer there is the Berkshire Playhouse at Stockbridge, one of the oldest and best summer theatres in the East. Summer stock also is offered at Sharon, Conn., and at Malden Bridge in nearby New York state. And these are both indoor and outdoor movie houses in the area which always have first-run films. Several of the camps in the area, notably the Ted Mack Camp at Lake Buel, offer weekly or occasional public concerts and other entertainment.

For the outdoor type there are fishing, swimming and boating at numerous lakes and streams; horseback riding along wooded trails; hiking on the Appalachian Trail, on old wood roads and to the tops of Monument Mountain and Mount Everett. Fine Views from these two peaks, as well as abundant hills and valleys provide all kinds of opportunities for the photographer. There are golf courses in the area, the bird sanctuary in Lenox, a fine museum in Pittsfield, the Mission House at Stockbridge and excellent libraries here and in Stockbridge.

There are fine highways for automobile trips to historic spots as well as to country auctions, church suppers and sales, and to many excellent restaurants. And Bartholomew's Cobble in Ashley Falls should not be forgotten, if one is interested in botany. There will be found a collection of ferns not to be seen anywhere else in the world.

These by no means exhaust "things to do" in Southern Berkshire. Readers undoubtedly will think of many others. But we believe the above suggestions will help readers to keep their guests busy for a good part of their stay in Southern Berkshire.

Burrelle's
ESTABLISHED 1888
BArclay 7-5371
PRESS CLIPPING BUREAU
165 Church Street - New York

SAVANNAH, GA.
PRESS
Circ. D. 23,724
JUN 9 1958

Musical Vacations

American vacations are becoming more and more musical, according to Variety and The New York Times.

This summer, more than 20 "musical tents" will be in action in East Coast resort areas and other vacation spots. The musical tent business originated in 1949 at Lambertville, N. J., which still has one of the leaders in the field, this June offering a version of the hit Broadway musical, The Most Happy Fella.

In addition, close to a hundred musical festivals are slated for the United States and Canada this summer. Leaders in this area are the 23-year-old Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass, and the Berkshire Music Barn, featuring jazz headliners.

Soothing or stimulating music for vacation enjoyment is all right, we suppose, but we'll stick with the muted sound of a quiet beach, a gurgling trout stream or the swish of wind in pines over some quiet mountain lodge.

LOUISVILLE, KY.
COURIER JOURNAL
Circ. D. 215,483 - S. 313,598
JUN 1 1958

MUSIC IN KENTUCKIANA By William Mootz

Summer Festivals Are Springing Up All Over

SO RAPID has been the growth of summer music festivals in this country since the end of World War II that the summer vacationer may now have music wherever he goes. Alluring brochures from practically every section of the country lie beckoning on this cluttered desk.

The festival closest to Louisville now is the French Lick Music Festival, a mere hop, skip and jump across the Ohio River. The French Lick-Sheraton Hotel has plans for every week-end in August, as outlined in this column several weeks ago.

But even as far afield as Anchorage, Alaska, where Robert Shaw will conduct a festival from June 6 through June 19, summer music is big business.

Old Masters on Bill

The Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony, which probably is the best established of the many summer musical enterprises, will be solidly based upon the old masters this year. The schedule reflects how the big musical public, which supports summer festivals, feels about composers. The old masters draw, the new masters don't.

Lenox, Mass., is the small town where the Boston holds forth on summer weekends. The festival starts this year on July 4 and ends August 8. The first weekend it will be Bach, the second Mozart, and the third Brahms. Debussy, Ravel, Tchaikowski and Rachmaninoff appear later, with a bare smattering of Stravinsky, Milhaud and Bartok.

A July 6 concert celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Harvard Glee Club will feature a performance of Bach's B-minor Mass, with the Radcliffe Choral Society joining in to round out the chorus.

Where To Write

Charles Munch will be the main conductor of the festival, with Pierre Monteux relieving him for several concerts. For complete information, write Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15, Mass.

Chicago's Ravinia Park Festival will open on July 1, and alternate symphony concerts, chamber music, jazz, ballad concerts and ballet through August 10.

Fritz Reiner and the Chicago Symphony are the mainstay of the Ravinia Festival, and an exciting list of guest artists, including Elizabeth Schwarzkopf, Guiomar Novaes, Benno Moiseiwitsch and Eugene Istomin will appear.

William Steinberg, Igor Markevitch, Georg Solti and Edouard van Remoortel, new St. Louis conductor, will share the podium with Reiner. For complete details, write Ravinia Festival Association, 11 S. LaSalle Street, Chicago 3.

Harth To Be Soloist

The Peninsula Music Festival at Fish Creek, Wis., will present nine concerts from August 9 through August 24. Thor Johnson once more will conduct programs that specialize in novelty appeal. Among the soloists will be Louisville's Sidney Harth, who will give the first U.S. performance of Six Humoresques for Violin and Orchestra by Sibelius. For information write Peninsula Arts Association, Ephraim, Door County, Wis.

The Aspen, Col., Festival, which has come up in the last few years to be a formidable rival of the Berkshire Festival, has been faced with the problem of audience preference for the old masters. A compromise resulted, and Aspen will give equal emphasis to the work of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith this year.

Premiere of Cantata

The Aspen festivities open on June 25.

Anyone traveling west might also want to investigate the Red Rocks Music Festival at Denver. It opens July 9, and closes July 31.

The 37th season of Cincinnati Summer Opera will open on July 5 with "Der Rosenkavalier." Such stars as Eleanor Steber, Dorothy Kirsten, Roberta Peters, Salvatore Baccaloni, Eugene Conley and Italo Tajo will appear. "Boris Godunoff" and Elixir of Love" are slightly off-beat items in a generally standard repertory. Complete details and tickets are available at the box office of Shackleton Piano Company, 621 S. Fourth, Louisville.

Free Concert

AN ADMISSION-FREE concert commemorating the 10th anniversary of the State of Israel will be presented tomorrow at 8:15 p.m. by the Louisville Civic Orchestra at the Jewish Community Center.

Joseph Horvath will lead the orchestra, now concluding its 41st season, in compositions on Hebrew, Jewish and Israeli themes.

Tenor Judah Goldring and his soprano-pianist wife, Florence Goldring, will be soloists. Goldring holds the cantorial post at Indianapolis' Beth-El Zedeck Synagogue, and Mrs. Goldring is organist and chorimaster at Beth-El Zedeck. They will perform solos and duets of Hebrew liturgical music, Jewish folk songs and Israeli songs. Louisville's Rose Bein Lerman will be accompanist.

"Israeli Overture," by Louisville's William Taylor, is included on the orchestral part of the program. Other works will be by Horvath, Gould, Jacques Press, Rimski-Korsakov, Karganov and Moussorgsky.

Music Notes

THE UNIVERSITY of Louisville School of Music will present Heather Hannam, flutist, in recital today at 4 at Gardencourt. Miss Hannam is a pupil of Marjorie Jackson, and will be accompanied by Grant Graves. Miss Hannam will be assisted in Mozart's Quartet in D major, K. 285, by Kristine Beck, violin, Gwyn Mills, viola, and Brooke Hearons Hicks, cello. The recital is given in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of master of music.

THE OUTDOOR Art League will present Nancy Randel Newman, soprano, and Helen Wich, pianist, in a program at the Pendennis Club on Friday at 1 p. m.

MRS. MADGE TERRY LEWIS will present students from the St. Matthews School of Music in recital at the Speed Music Room at 8 p.m. tomorrow. The Hi-Fi Quintette, from the Cot Haynes Music School, will be guest artists.

STUDENTS from the brass ensemble class of Leon Raper at the U. of L. School of Music will present a program Tuesday at 8:30 p. m. at Gardencourt.

GEDEAO MARTINS, a violin pupil of Sidney Harth at the University of Louisville School of Music, will be presented in recital at Gardencourt Wednesday night at 8:30. He will be accompanied by Evelyn Aldrich. This recital is in partial fulfillment of requirements for the degree of master of music. Composers to be represented are Bach, Bartok, Mozart and Ravel.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.
BROOKLYN DAILY
Circ. D. 36,575
JUL 18 1958

Tips on Touring

By Carol Lane
Women's Travel Authority

Music In The Air

For more fun on your summer vacation, take in some of the music festivals held throughout the country. Hot or cool, long hair or crew cut, indoors or out under the stars, they'll all add pleasure to any outing.

Here are some you may want to consider:

New York: New York City, July 1 – August 5, "Evenings-by-the-River" presented by Lower East-side Neighborhoods Association. Islip, L. I., July 26, 27, Aug. 1-3, Great South Bay Jazz Festival.

New Jersey: Ventnor, Aug. 5-26, Ventnor Music Festival. Recitals at Ventnor Pier.

Massachusetts: Lenox, July 2 – Aug. 10, Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Maine: Blue Hill, July 20–Aug. 24, Chamber music concerts at Kneisel Hall.

Indiana: French Lick, Aug. 8-31, Symphonic, choral, jazz and country music programs.

Wisconsin: Fish Creek, Aug. 9-24, Peninsula Music Festival. Symphonic concerts; five world premieres.

Florida: Miami Beach, July 8 – Aug. 10, Pop concerts. University of Miami Summer Symphony.

California: Carmel, July 14-20, Bach Festival. Redlands, July 1 – Aug. 29, Redlands Bowl Festival. Twenty-one programs of symphonic music, grand and light opera, and ballet.

Canada: Stratford, Ontario, July 22 – Aug. 16, Orchestral concerts, folk music, jazz and "The Beggar's Opera".

GREENSBORO, N. C.
NEWS
Circ. D. 95,632
JUL 14 1958

MUSIC NOTES

BY HENRY S. WOOTTON JR.

UNDER THE STARS

Summer has been given a new dimension through music. Here are a few of the many centers, both rural and urban, in which music has become the focus and the regenerator.

From 1918 to 1958, the length of time the New York Stadium concerts have been in operation, may seem a short time in an atomic age, but in the annals of music in America it is very long indeed. It has been a period of difficulties and successes. It has also been a period of enrichment during the summer months for a multitude of New Yorkers and the city's many summer visitors. Guest conductors during this New York season will be Leonard Bernstein, Pierre Monteaux, Joseph Krips, Thomas Scherman and Max Rudolph. Four artists making their stadium debuts will be Elisabeth Schwartzkopf, Hilde Gueden, Guiomar Novaes and Benno Moiseiwitsch.

The Hollywood Bowl's 37th season opened last week with Jascha Heifetz as soloist and Eugene Ormandy conducting the Los Angeles Philharmonic. Other guest conductors will include George Solti, William Steinberg, Johnny Green and Andre Kostelanetz. The famous Berkshire Festival opened on July 4 and will continue through Aug. 10. This year marks the 16th session of the Berkshire Music Center founded in 1940 by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The Grant Park series in Chicago continues through Aug. 17. Van Cliburn, the 23-year-old American pianist who recently created such a sensation in the Soviet Union's International Tchaikovsky Piano Competition, will be making his debut in the series at its July 16 and 18 concerts.

When its "pay dirt" was paying off at the rate of a fortune a square foot, Central City, Colo., built its famous opera house—the most elaborate west of the Mississippi. In 1932, after an extended period as a ghost town, Central City formed an Opera House Association, repaired the opera house, and started the Central City Opera Festival. This unusual festival will continue through July 26 with all operas being sung in English.

Music In Mountains

Circled by some of the highest peaks on the western slopes of the Rockies, Aspen Music Festival got off to a good start in 1954 on the basis of its scenic attractiveness. Since then it has increased its prestige through the value of its cultural program. Aspen concerts will continue until Aug. 31. Led by Izler Solomon, programs this year will feature the works of Franz Schubert and Paul Hindemith. Of special interest will be the American premiere of Hindemith's Cantata "Ite Angell Veloces."

Back in North Carolina the Brevard Music Festival has planned an innovation in this season's concerts at Brevard. A "Week of Music" with concerts every night, beginning Aug. 3 through Aug. 10, has been announced. Students who have done outstanding orchestral work during the camp season stay an extra week to participate in the concerts. This extra session for them is a graduate school reward for hard work done during the summer. They play side by side with their instructors. One of the highspots of the "Week of Music" will be the fine pianist, Ruth Slenczynska, who will be soloist with the Festival Orchestra conducted by James Christian Pfohl.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354
JUN 17 1958

Tanglewood Student Wins Recording Honor

Two symphonic works by young American composers, Easley Blackwood's First Symphony and Alexei Haieff's Second Symphony, as performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, have been selected to be recorded commercially under the Recording Guarantee Project of the American International Music Fund Inc., Mrs. Serge Koussevitzky, president of the fund, announced today.

The works were chosen by a jury which included Nadia Boulanger of Paris, Carlos Chavez of Mexico City and Alfred Frankenstein, music critic of the San Francisco Chronicle.

Easley Blackwood, 25, was born in Indianapolis, Ind., and studied composition at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood in 1949 and 1950. He was awarded a Fulbright grant for study in Europe.

Alexander City, Ala.
OUTLOOK
Circ. Semi-W. 2,832
JUL 11 1958

Boston Symphony To Be On TV Hook-Up

The Boston Symphony orchestra will make its second television appearance nationally July 18 at 7:30 p.m. It will be seen locally over channel 7, and the entire Alabama Educational TV network.

Under the direction of Charles Munch, the Symphony will include the delightful "Mother Goose Suite" by Maurice Ravel, Ibert's "Chamber Concertino," with Marcel Mule, soloist and "Ballade for Saxophone and Orchestra" by Tomasi.

The second half of the telecast will be Mendelssohn's "Symphony Number 4 in A, OPus 90," known as the "Italians."

Appearance of the Boston Symphony on educational TV channels marks the first time one of the nation's major orchestras can be appreciated across the United States by a vast audience who enjoy classical music presented by an outstanding musical unit.

AMARILL
GLOBE
Circ.
JU

You rick

"Where er?" is uestion fo ust as the mself to nrise to nony, cha st, but by appiest ummer
And hi
most un

Formu

When long to has alway peculatio nswer.
oes anot
It is a li
ctually,
iant con
nstitute p with he object nd maki alues o
he compe
r trade-in t balance ts value operating probability three mont
The ans
to buy and keep one-half ye you get th
that is if yo mechanism best time t
you can and keep little detail
do not bot
(W. VA.)

E. F. HUT

Think

NEW YO man Adam brought int gifts of pr farm equipm dent Eisenh ceived.
The Presid
no attempt gifts secret said at a pr that the had given him
It has al
news item
ty fair was
It is worth say that its President's f
Or to a Ca
one of their Except for gifts are free
tion of bene given by grou
not by indivi
This practi and there is desire of pe prize apples what hav
Neverthe
nocent peopl
President
turn them o
It must we his accepta influenced o same.
"Beware of

AMARILLO, TEX.
GLOBE-TIMES
Circ. D. 36,511
JUL 16 1958

If You Want To Mix Music and Vacation, It's No Trick Whether You Are City or Country Bound

"Where to go for a vacation this summer?" is becoming an easier and easier question for a music lover to answer. Just as the Izaak Walton disciple hies himself to where he can wet a line from sunrise to sunset, the devotee of symphony, chamber music, opera, vocal and last, but by no means least, jazz will be happiest vacationing at or near some summer music center.

And his (or her, or their) choice is almost unlimited. For these days there's more summer music than you can shake a stick at. The Ivy League area hasn't had a monopoly of it for a long time.

The Hollywood Bowl has opened its 37th annual "Symphonies Under the Stars" and gets no inferiority complex from New York City's Lewisohn Stadium. Summer vacationists at Miami Beach troop into the first 1958 Pop Concert by the University of Miami symphony orchestra. The Aspen (Colo.) music festival plays no second fiddle (oops!) to the Boston Symphony's 23rd Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Miss.

In certain big cities you can take your musical vacation right at home. In addition to the Lewisohn Stadium and the Hollywood Bowl, there are, among others, Avinia and Grant Park in Chicago, Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, the Cincinnati Zoo (opera), summer concert sites in Cleveland and Pittsburgh, the music barge moored on the Potomac at Washington.

Just as the fast expanding summer theatres have ended lean days for many an actor and actress, the hundred or so summer music festivals in the United States and Canada now give a much needed economic fillip to many a musician. A winter symphony orchestra may provide him less than 30 weeks' work at less than $3,000. Summer festivals, eking out, may enable him to retain music as his vocation instead of going into his uncle's business and downgrading Euterpe to an avocation.

Formula Offered

When to buy an automobile, how long to keep it and when to trade has always been a fruitful subject for speculation. At 30,000 miles runs one answer. When it needs new tires goes another.

It is a little more complicated than that, actually, complicated enough for the giant computer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which has come up with an answer. Assuming that the object is to keep total costs low and making no allowances for prestige values or the pride of ownership, the computer juggled 41 possible keep or trade-in possibilities. That is to say that it balanced the cost of the car, and its value as a trade-in against increased operating expenses and the decreasing probability that it would last another three months.

The answer: The optimum deal is to buy a three-year old automobile and keep it until it is six and one-half years old. Within that period you get the most for your money — that is if you believe in these computing mechanisms at M. I. T. Otherwise the best time to buy an automobile is when you can make the down payment and keep up the installments, a little detail which M. I. T. wizards do not bother with at all.—CHARLESTON (W. VA.) DAILY MAIL

E. F. HUTTON

Think It Through

HUTTON

NEW YORK—The Sherman Adams case has brought into notice the gifts of prize cattle and farm equipment that President Eisenhower has received.

The President has made no attempt to keep these gifts secret. He recently said at a press conference that the news reporters had passed the hat and given him a heifer.

It has always been an interesting local news item that the prize turkey at the county fair was being sent to the White House. It is worth something to a manufacturer to say that its tractor is the one used on the President's farm.

Or to a Cattle Breeders' Association that one of their bulls is owned by the President.

Except for the advertising value, these gifts are free from any taint of the expectation of benefits to come. They are mostly given by groups, like the news reporters, and not by individuals.

This practice has gone on for many years, and there is something commendable in the desire of people to send the President their prize apples, pumpkins, watermelons, or what have you.

Nevertheless, at the risk of offending innocent people, it would be better for the President to decline all valuable gifts, or to turn them over to charities.

It must weigh on the President's mind that his acceptance of any gifts of value may have influenced others in Government to do the same.

"Beware of Greeks bearing gifts."

Somebody Goofed

USSR is the LIFE-like magazine through which Russia attempts to convince subscribing Americans that things in the Soviet Union are practically paradisiacal. We buy the book, though not the message. And we're tempted to pen a letter to the editor of the latest edition because of a back-page cover (in four colors) that shows two Soviet teachers doing (together) their homework.

Both wear (conspicuously) modern watches. Nina's watch reads 3:29. Rimma's watch says 2:48. We are almost forced to conclude that: (1) Soviet watches don't run on synchronized schedule, or (2) the Swiss are gonna catch hell, or (3) Nina's got plans for a premature breakaway. In any case, it's crystal-clear that somebody goofed. Likely forgot what time it was, which is later than we think.—THE CHARLOTTE OBSERVER

Polk Street Professor

Holmes Alexander, the syndicated columnist on this page most every day, let out a few miscellaneous squawks on July 3. Somebody in Congress proposed doin' away with the excise tax on autos.

And Holmes didn't favor it. He seemed to believe that if Congress removed the federal tax on autos, it would be the same as subsidizin' the automobile industry. His idea was that a car costin' around two thousand bucks has a federal excise tax on it of about 200 simoleons. And if the buyer of the car was excused from payin' that tax, the rest of us would have to pay that 200 in some other form on some other article.

It sounded to me at first like he's just plumb correct. But another way of lookin' at it makes it sound like left handed logic. In a manner of speakin' Holmes says, "If you don't tax the dickens out of every manufactured item, you're subsidizin' that industry."

I favor takin' the excise tax off cars. You buy the car. You pay the excise taxes. You pay state taxes. You buy a car license. You buy a drivers' license. Gas is taxed. Oil is taxed. Tires are taxed. Then just when you get to where you think you're plumb through payin' taxes, the mail man brings you a notice the personal property taxes are due on the old family buggy.

Just between us girls, if anybody in the Federal government can lower the taxes on cars or almost anything else, then he's my man. And I'll worry about the technicalities of subsidies tomorrow.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.
PRESS
Circ. D. 65,169 - S. 66,931
JUL 10 1958

Music Everywhere for Vacationers

Music lovers are finding fare that delights them all over the map this summer. Devotees of symphony, chamber music, opera, vocal and not least, jazz, are taking musical vacations in all directions, for choice is almost unlimited.

The Hollywood Bowl opened its 37th annual "symphonies under the stars" this week. Vacationers at Miami Beach are treated to concerts of the University of Miami symphony orchestra. At Aspen, Col. the music festival compares with the Boston Symphony's 23d Tanglewood festival at Lenox, Mass.

In certain large cities musical vacations can be taken at home. In addition to the Lewisohn Stadium (New York City) and the Hollywood Bowl, there are, among others, Ravina and Grant Park in Chicago, Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, the Cincinnati Zoo (opera), summer concert sites in Cleveland and Pittsburgh and the music barge moored in the Potomac at Washington.

Just as the fast proliferating summer theaters have ended lean days for many actors and actresses, the scores of summer music festivals in the United States and Canada have helped the economic lot of many musicians.

Judging from sounds passing for music on radio and TV, you might believe that good music has few followers. Americans are actually a music-hungry people, not satisfied with the noise that is popular.

Those whose tastes run to good music go where they can find it. This is attested by the growing popularity of music festivals and by the increasing sales volume of classical records.

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 28,708

JUL 24 1958

The New England Scene . . .

The Arts Flourished In Rural Surroundings

By CAL CAMERON

A New England vacation means different things to different people. Some prefer to make a circuit tour, driving 200 or more miles daily. Others go to some place they like and spend their entire holiday there. Some go hiking, others want to swim or loaf on a beach.

There are those who feel that once outside the environs of their native city, there is little to be found in the country except scenery and quaint rustic characters. They are like the elderly Bostonian who was astounded when asked if she had ever traveled. She understood why many visited Boston, but could not imagine why anyone having had the good fortune to be born there, would ever have reason to go anywhere else.

If you enjoy some of the finer things such as good music, ballet, the theater, or art, there is much of this to discover as you tour the vacation country.

Many artists and sculptors live there and exhibit their works at local shows. These are of a caliber that attract buyers from museums and art connoisseurs. Williamstown, Mass. has an outstanding new art museum and several of the colleges have noteworthy displays.

You probably know that the Boston Symphony takes up summer quarters at Tanglewood in the Berkshires where, besides giving concerts, a school is maintained.

At Jacob's Pillow, near Lee, Mass., Ted Shawn has long had a school where many well known dancers have been trained. There is also a theater there, reputed to be the only one ever built exclusively for presentation of the dance. Here, since 1942, some of the best known dancers from this country and abroad have been performing summers.

THERE ARE summer theaters scattered all over the vacation area where good plays are presented by really capable actors. Unfortunately many of these are not well patronized as people tend to flock to a place advertising a well known glamor gal who may not present nearly as finished a performance as those hard working groups who cannot depend on a name star to draw the audience.

A newer and much less publicized group dispenses fine music undef the name of The New Hampshire Music Festival, Inc., in the Lake Winnipesaukee area of New Hampshire.

This had its origin many years ago when Jules Epailly and Hady Spielta, who taught piano winters in New York and summered on Melody Island in Lake Winnipesaukee, had some of their pupils come up to give concerts.

Eventually this grew to be too large and burdensome a proposition for individual support; so others who live in that region and enjoy good music decided to carry on and expand the program.

A corporation was formed well known conductors and musicians engaged, and now for the sixth year this group will hold a series of summer concerts at Wolfeboro and the Belknap Mountains Recreational Area.

Dean Ryan, who has been studying in Italy on a Fulbright Fellowship, returns as conductor and director of this season's symphony orchestra. There is also a choral group of over 60 which, with the exception of the soloists, is recruited from members of church choirs in the area. They appear with the orchestra the latter part of August.

CONCERTS ARE given Thursdays through Aug. 21. In the following (and final) week there are three. Besides these the orchestra gives two especially for children, as well as one youth concert. You may run across them in other places as you travel; for they will appear in at least two other parts of New Hampshire during the season.

So, as you leave your familiar city surroundings to venture into rural New England for a couple of weeks, you need not feel you are leaving all the finer things behind. On the contrary, you will find it well worth while to go out of your way to attend these outstanding offerings.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.
POST-HERALD
Circ. D. 96,588

JUL 18 1958

TV Scout—

Tallulah Will Play Gambler

BEST BET — If anyone can take a syrupy show and lift it out of the doldrums, Tallulah Bankhead can.

She does it tonight on Playhouse of Stars, in a bit about a down - at-the-heels womman gambler who has vowed to keep a promise (giving an electric train) to a grandson.

TALLU

"It's not "Skin of Our Teeth" or "Private Lives" quality, but nevertheless worthwhile. (8:30 p.m., Channel 6).

* * *

7 p.m. (13)—Jefferson Drum, which only began on April 25, is already repeating. This is probably a world's professional record for speed with which a new show begins returns. Tonight, the first of these Drum echoes, is "The Lawless," a moral story of how power corrupts.

* * *

7:30 P.M. (ETV, 10, 7, 2) — The Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch, makes its second appearance of the season. Concert selections will be: "The Mother Goose Suite" by Ravel, Ibert's Chamber Concertino, Tomasi's Ballade for Orchestra, and Symphony Number Four in A, Opus 90 ("The Italian") by Mendelssohn.

MARSEILLES, ILL.
PRESS
Circ. D. 1,340
TIPS ON TOURING
JUL 1 9 1958

GULFPORT, MISS.
PICTORIAL REVIEW
W 810
JUL 24 1958

Sunday Sun
LAWRENCE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 11,055

AUG 24 1958

KING FERRY, N. Y.
Union Springs News
W.

JUL 1 7 1958

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

[271]

JUN 28 1958

BERKSHIRE
VACATION MAP

Golf
Tennis
Swimming
Fishing
0 1 2 3 4 5 Miles
N
W
E
S
V E R M O N T
To Bennington, Rutland
To Heartwellville, Readsboro, Wilmington
White Oaks
Williamstown Summer Theater
CLARKSBURG ST. PK.
Mausert's Pond
CLARKSBURG
Briggsville
NATURAL BRIDGE
To Petersburg, Troy
Williamstown
Houghtonville
Blackinton
HOOSIC
TACONIC TRAIL
Clark Art Institute
Greylock
N. ADAMS AIRPORT
Braytonville
North Adams
Windsor Lake
MOHAWK TRAIL
FLORIDA
DEERFIELD R.
Hoosac Tunnel
WILLIAMSTOWN
NORTH ADAMS
Florida
Hoosac Tunnel
North Pond
Drury
MOHAWK TRAIL
S. Williamstown
Zylonite
Renfrew
Bog Pond
GREYLOCK
Mount Greylock 3491 ft.
ST. FOR.
To Charlemont, Shelburne Falls, Greenfield, Boston
SAVOY MT. STATE FOREST
RESERVATION
ADAMS
Adams
Burnett Pond
North Hancock
NEW ASHFORD
Maple Grove
Arnoldsville
Savoy Center
SAVOY
New Ashford
Cheshire Harbor
Brier
CHESHIRE
Cheshire
Savoy
GREEN MT. DRIVE
To S. Deerfield
Farnams
WINDSOR STATE FOREST
Windsor Pond
HANCOCK
Hancock
To Stephentown, Troy
LANESBORO
Cheshire Reservoir
Hoosac Lake
WINDSOR
Lanesboro
Berkshire
WAHCONAH FALLS STATE PARK
BERKSHIRE TRAIL
Windsor
Latham, N.Y., via Albany or Troy
Colonie Musical Theater
Berry Pond
PITTSFIELD STATE FOREST
Pontoosuc Lake
Dalton
Windsor Res.
East Windsor
To Cummington, Northampton
Onota Lake
Coltsville
Crane Museum
Bryant Homestead
DALTON
Ashmere Lake
To New Lebanon, Albany
Malden Bridge Playhouse
PITTSFIELD
West Pittsfield
Hinsdale
Peru
LAFAYETTE TRAIL
Berkshire Museum
Little Cinema
Plankett Res.
HINSDALE
PERU
To Worthington
Chesterfield Gorge
Shaker Village
Barkerville
PITTSFIELD AIRPORT
South Mountain
SKYLINE TRAIL
HOUSATONIC
Richmond Pond
New Lenox
PERU STATE FOREST
Berkshire Extension of N.Y. Thruway (Under construction)
Stevens Corner
Ashley Lake
To Middlefield, Chester
RICHMOND
To Chatham, Hudson
Shaker Museum
LENOX
Richmond
Pleasant Valley Sanctuary
Washington
Richmond Furnace
WASHINGTON
Tanglewood
Lenox
OCTOBER MT. STATE FOREST
State Line
To New Lebanon
Crane Pond
Music Barn
To Austerlitz
Stockbridge Bowl
Lenox Dale RIVER
Becket
West Stockbridge
INTERCHANGE #1
Interlaken
Laurel Lake
INTERCHANGE #2
Bancroft
Yokum Pond
MASSACHUSETTS
Berkshire Garden Center
Lee
Center Pond
WEST STOCKBRIDGE
STOCKBRIDGE
LEE
East Lee
Rudd Pond
Becket Center
BECKET
Glendale
Mission House
Goose Pond
Greenwater Pond
To Chester, Springfield, Boston
Chesterwood Studio
Stockbridge
S. Lee
Jacob's Pillow
LADDER
JACOB'S
Berkshire Playhouse
Williamsville
Shaw Pond
TURNPIKE
Tyringham
Housatonic
ALFORD
Monument Mountain
TYRINGHAM
To Green River, Chatham
Risingdale
North Otis
White Lily Pond
To Springfield, Boston
Alford
Van Deusenville
BEARTOWN STATE FOREST
Hayes Pond
OTIS
GREAT BARRINGTON
Mansfield Pond
SWANN ST. FOR.
OTIS STATE FOREST
North Egremont
Benedict Pond
Otis
Big Pond
Prospect Lake
Great Barrington
MONTEREY
West Otis
Benton Pond
Lake Garfield
To Hillsdale, Hudson
Egremont Plain
AIRPORT
KNOX TRAIL
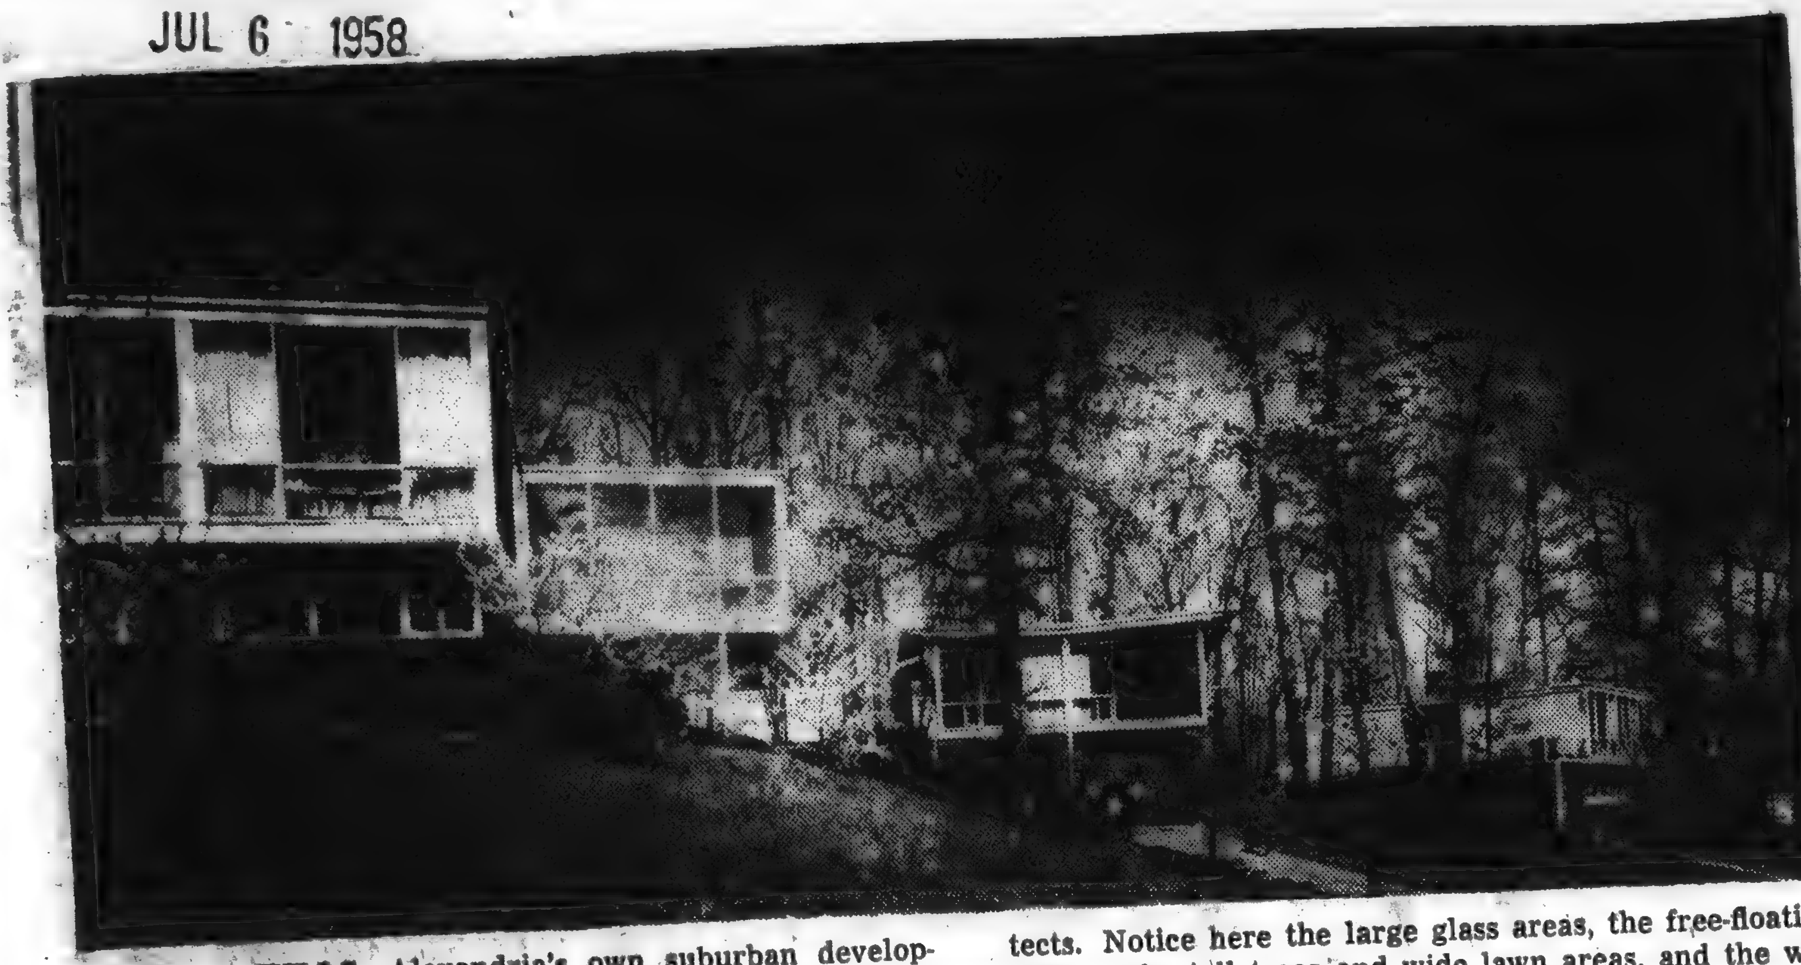
East Otis
To Blandford, Westfield, Springfield
Barrington Fair
Monterey
Spectacle Pond
EGREMONT
EAST MT. STATE FOREST
Lake Buel
Otis Reservoir
HOUSATONIC R.
Hartsville
Cold Spring
South Egremont
TOLLAND STATE FOREST
FARMINGTON
New Marlboro
Montville
Mt. Washington
Sheffield Plain
Mill River
SANDISFIELD STATE FOREST
Sandisfield
BASH-BISH STATE FOREST
MT. EVERETT RES.
Sheffield
Southfield
York Lake
W. New Boston
New Boston
Mount Everett 2602 ft.
SHEFFIELD
SANDISFIELD
To Tolland, Southwick
MOUNT WASHINGTON
NEW MARLBORO
Konkapot
S. Sandisfield
RIVER
Bartholomew's Cobble
Ashley Falls
Clayton
CAMPBELL FALLS ST. FOR.
To Salisbury, Lakeville
To Canaan, Hartford, New Haven, New York
To Winsted, Hartford, New Haven
Sharon Playhouse
Music Mountain
N E W Y O R K
C O N N E C T I C U T
by Vaughn Gray

[272]

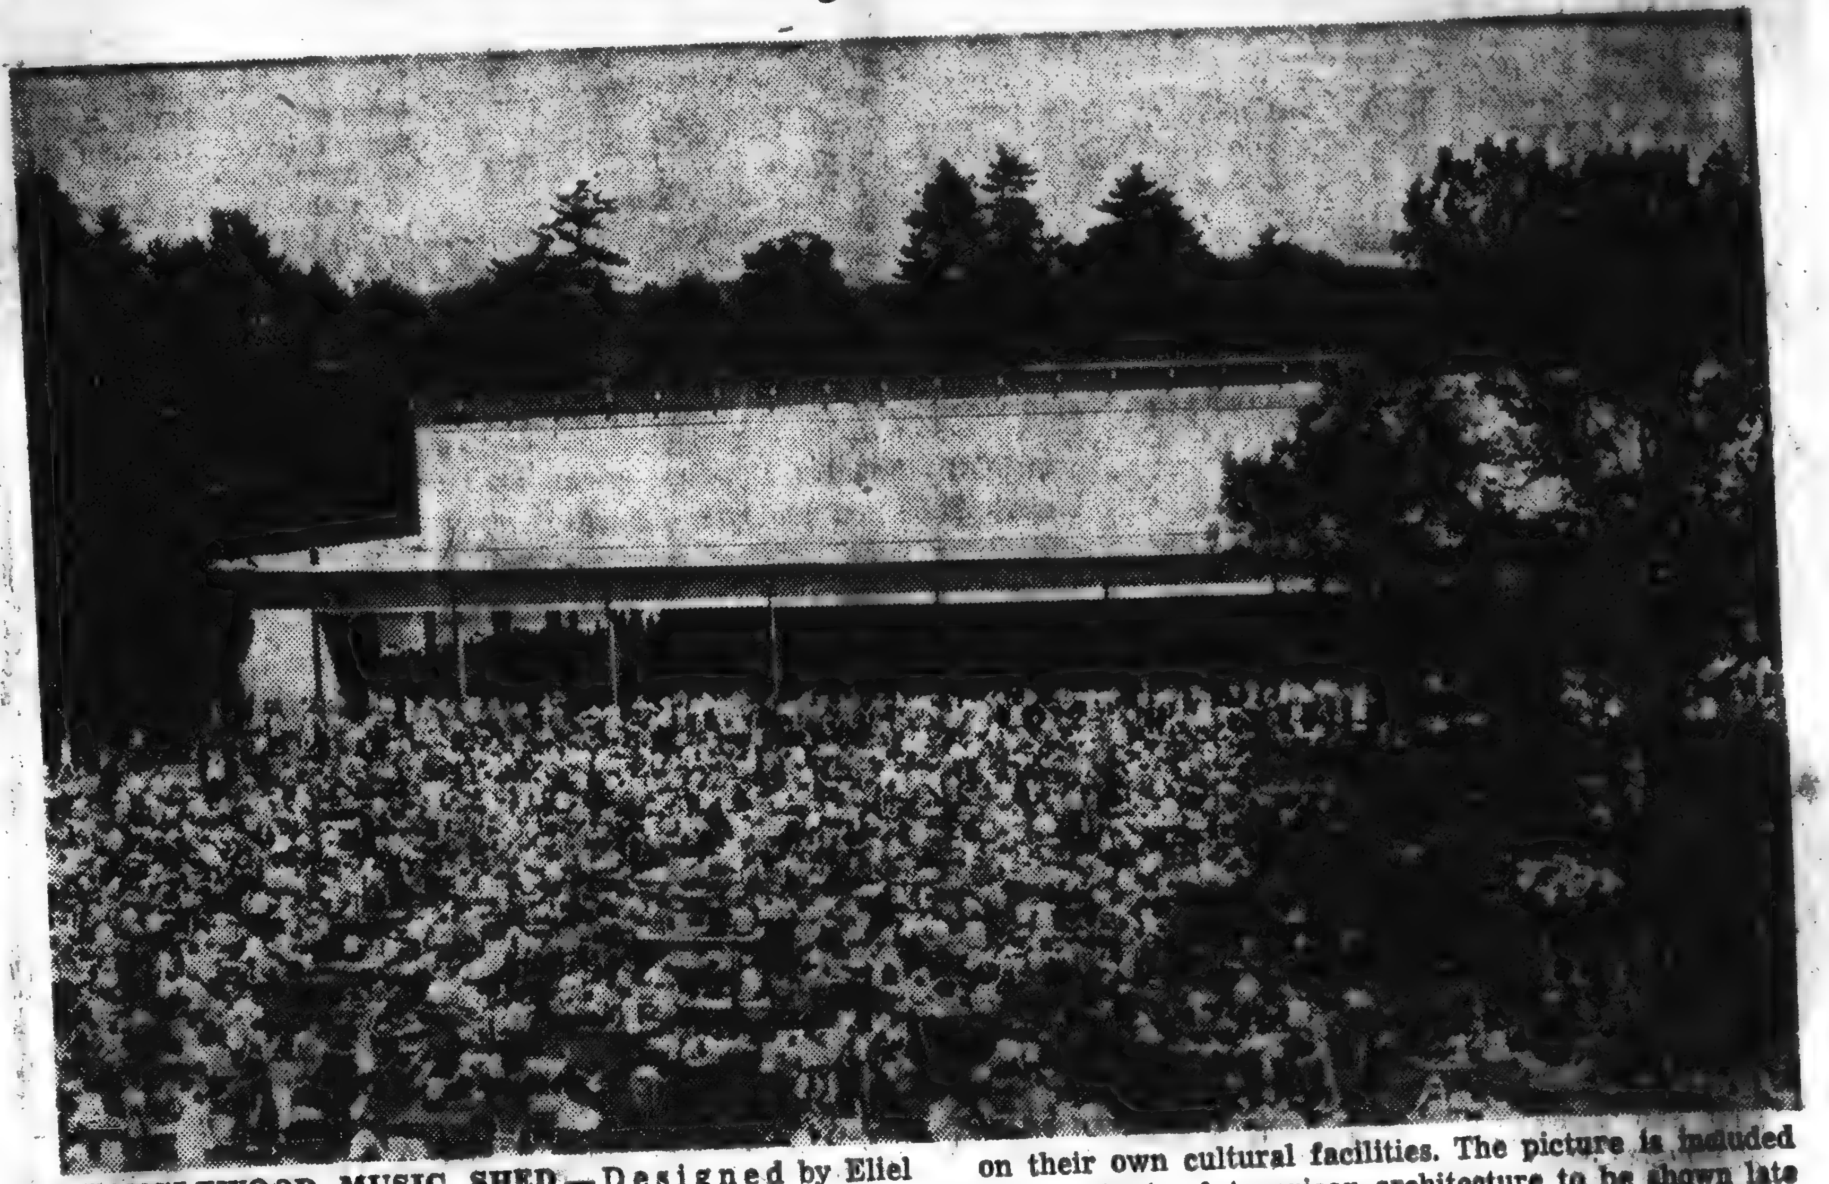
WASHINGTON, D. C.
Post & Times Herald
Circ. D. 382,456 - S. 415,810

JUL 6 1958

Mirror of America



HOLLIN HILLS—Alexandria's own suburban development designed by local architect Charles Goodman is one of the most outstanding pictures in the AIA exhibit, on its way to Russia for an international congress of architects. Notice here the large glass areas, the free-floating feeling, the tall trees and wide lawn areas, and the way the houses have been planned to respect the land,, and the landscape.



TANGLEWOOD MUSIC SHED—Designed by Eliel Saarinen and his son Eero, this building should help impress the Russians, since they put such a high value on their own cultural facilities. The picture is included in an exhibit of American architecture to be shown late this month in Moscow.

Architectural Exhibit

U. S. Garden Cities Go to Moscow

By Sarah Booth Conroy

THE BRUSSELS FAIR is not the only place where the United States is showing itself to the world.

The United States—as it looks with our buildings and their surroundings—is mirrored in 82 panels of photographs which are now on their way to Moscow. The exhibit will be shown at the Fifth Congress of the Union Internationale des Architectes from July 20 to 28. Professional societies of 35 to 40 countries will be represented.

~~Henry Stern Churchill, a~~ Philadelphia architect, assisted by Chloethiel Woodard Smith, Washington architect, headed the committee which arranged the show. Peter Blake and Julian Neski of New York designed the exhibit. Captions are in English, Russian, Spanish and French.

Theme of the international meeting is urban construction from 1945 to 1957.

Our section presents what the catalog calls an "interim report" what we are trying to do at this moment in our development. It shows "the great new garden cities for America's workers and their families, the new office buildings and factories in the country, the new parks and playgrounds in our cities, the new shopping centers in our suburbs. These are the first steps in what we think is the right direction."

WHAT will these world architects learn about us, from what we have chosen to show them?

Well, for one thing, they'll learn—a fact that always surprises visitors to this country no matter what they've heard before they came—we are on wheels.

Though, like one visitor to this country, they may take a look at all the cars and think, "They belong mostly to the loan companies," they can't help but see that most people have cars.

The photographs show great numbers of cars—parked outside of office and apartment buildings, waiting for service at filling stations, traveling along great swoops of super highways. The exhibit says that the U. S. ratio of automobiles is 1 to 2.6 (1 to 2.2 in California) persons.

Those international architects won't be told point blank about our traffic jams. But they'll learn that Los Angeles' 4.4 million inhabitants are so spread out that the vast highway system is large enough to service a country the size of Switzerland, but it still needs improvement. They'll learn that because of the car, most people measure where they live not by miles, but in time —"I live about 20 minutes away from work," an American will often say.

To the people at the congress, it may well seem that everybody's houses are about as much alike as everbody's cars. The exhibit doesn't show any custom houses—none of our remarkable esthetic achievements like Philip Johnson's glass cube home for himself or Frank Lloyd Wright's "Falling Water" house.

It does show the sort of house that most people live in—Levittown with its neat not-too-contemporary, not-too-traditional compromises with many kitchen cabinets and glass walls in the living room. The floor plans displayed along with the pictures show the open planning between living room and kitchen which will suggest that Americans can seldom afford extra kitchen help. The open-planned kitchen goes with the hostess who is also the cook.

That Americans live in the suburbs — 30 million have moved outside the city since 1945—is demonstrated in these photographs of housing developments.

The viewers should be impressed with the Charles Goodman-designed houses in Hollin Hills, Alexandria, Va. They can tell, just by looking, that here a sensible man built houses which have respect for the land and the landscape. The picture shows tall trees interspersing wide lawn areas, houses sometimes snuggled into the ground, other times riding high on the hillside on tall thin posts or cantilevered free above the slope.

Europeans, used to apartment buildings, will see our medium-income garden apartment projects such as the one in New Haven, Conn., and another in Los Angeles, Calif. They'll see that American children, like children in other countries, are fond of playing on sidewalks, in a picture made outside a low-cost housing project in Philadelphia, Pa.

The people attending the exhibit won't know from the pictures about our overcrowded schools, but they will have a chance to see what our schools look like at best, with a classroom filled with eager faces and hands held up for the teacher's attention. The classroom is integrated.

There's no doubt as to how we shop. An airview of a shopping center near Detroit, designed by Victor Gruen & Associates, shows an octagonal area centered with a wide, mostly one-story building, completely surrounded by cars. To Europeans who buy their lettuce in one store and then walk to three or four others for milk, meat, fish and staples, this picture should be surprising.

Lest they think we have little cultural appreciation, there is a picture of the Tanglewood Music Shed in Lenox, Mass., with a vast audience sitting outside to hear the Boston Symphony in the shed. The building is by the late Eliel Saarinen and his son Eero.

Architects of war-torn countries will be particularly interested in our pre-fabrication of buildings. One panel shows a prefabricated plumbing "tree," kitchen unit, curtain wall panels designed to interlock with exterior and interior finish, glass and insulation complete. An interior of a prize winning prefabricated house, Carl Koch's Techbilt, is shown.

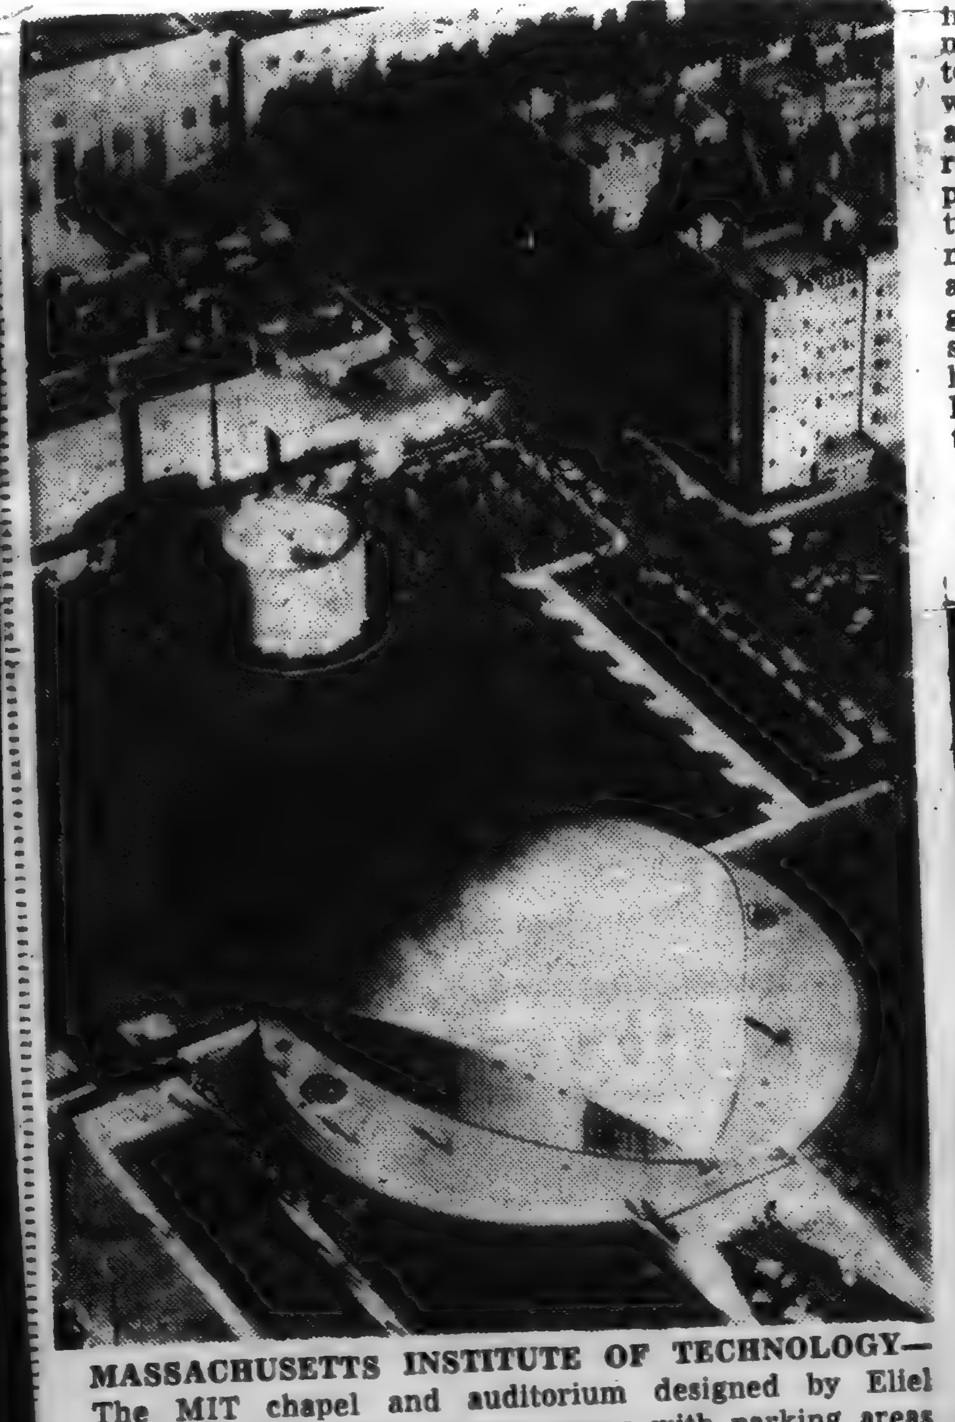
Having seen Americans enjoying European facilities, the exhibit visitors are bound to be curious about our own holiday attractions. They should like our American invention: the motel, as designed around a swimming pool by Neutra and Alexander, the plaza at Rockefeller Center which is an outdoor skating pond in winter and a promenade cafe in summer, as well as the sitting and strolling plazas of Lever House and the Seagram building, and that most-beautiful-of-all-to-many, the Museum of Modern Art's sculpture garden.

The exhibit has obviously not neglected the building form considered by many our trademark. It shows Frank Lloyd Wright's unusual Price Tower combining offices and apartments, the skyline of New York, and a skyscraper under construction.

Of course there's a great deal more shown—an airport by Helmuth, Yamaski, Leinweber at St. Louis, Detroit's new civic center, and a night view of Los Angeles.

It looks like quite a country.

AS OTHERS SEE US—The display of American architecture, seen in the background here, is on its way to Moscow to be exhibited from July 20 to 28. Attending a preview showing of the photographs held at Octagon House here, June 19 through 22, were, from left, Peter Blake of New York, designer of the show, and Russian Embassy Counselor Vladimir Lavrov and Madame Lavrov.



MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY—The MIT chapel and auditorium designed by Eliel Saarinen, is set into an open space with parking areas well separated from walking areas.

'Have Cash, Will Travel' New Motto Of Americans

Americans are spending more money than ever on vacations.

Their plans encompass everything from a pup tent in a state park to a luxury hotel abroad; from the Tanglewood Festival in Lenox to the Brussel's World's Fair.

For the first time in history, planes have carried more vacationers abroad than steamship lines.

Altogether, the European Travel Commission in the United States estimates, some 675,000 Americans will visit foreign lands—14 per cent more than last year.

And they are expected to spend approximately $1.6 billion.

"A greater percentage of New Englanders are traveling abroad now than ever before," said Mrs. Billie Rigby.

Her husband, Arnold, is New England president of the American Society of Travel Agents. Together, they operate the Arnold Tours Travel Agency of Boston.

"There also is a larger percentage traveling throughout the United States—and now—Alaska.

"This isn't another gold rush—it seems a new interest developed in the area by the news of statehood."

The travel boom is not a local phenomenon. The optimistic note has been sounded by travel agents throughout the country.

PEOPLE GIVE UP PLEASURE LAST

"The last thing people want to give up is pleasure," said Charles Stanton, New England manager for Thomas Cook & Sons, travel bureau.

"And we're a 99 per cent pleasure business. The travel increase abroad this year is not due solely to the World's Fair, or the Lourdes Centennial. I think it's a trend.

"Many more persons are traveling now under the various economy plans."

He said war threats did not too seriously affect the business. Many tense situations have existed during the past few years and tourists still traveled abroad.

But the average American will not visit foreign lands. His vacation will be spent touring some part of this country, or nestling in his favorite vacation spot.

Last year, the country's 2,200 state parks received 217 million visitors and are ready for a greater number this year. The states have dressed up these parks, adding some facilities and improving others, in the effort to attract more travelers.

The economic factor of the travel and tourist industry is so great many states have official and quasi official groups touring the country beating the drum for more tourists.

BAY STATE TOP VACATION SPOT

Massachusetts is considered one of the top vacation spots.

Cape Cod attracts thousands of visitors every year.

"We're having a 28 per cent increase in business over last year," said Norman Cook, president of the Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce.

The organization covers 15 towns in a 400-square mile area, and includes some 500 resort accommodations.

"The Cape has become a family haven during the past 10 years," he said. "Motels under construction are two and three-bedroom accommodations for the traveling family.

"Some 20,000 families come here every year—they are the 'seasonals.' Some of the families have been coming for generations."

The majority of the guests are from Massachusetts and the East Coast, Cook said.

The rates for cottages, depending upon size, location and facilities, range from $50 to $200 weekly. Hotels charge from $11 to $50 daily on the American plan. Motels cost from $10 to $50 for two daily.

VACATION SEASON EXTENDED NOW

The season now extends well into October instead of ending abruptly after Labor Day.

The area has nine summer theaters, the million dollar Chrysler Art Museum in Provincetown, jazz in Harwichport's Storyville, fishing and golf tournaments, as well as good relaxation, Cook said.

In Western Massachusetts there is the music festival at Tanglewood in Lenox and the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee.

These are two of the many attractions that capture travelers every year.

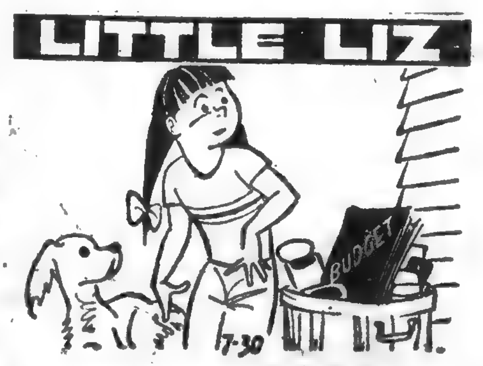
And with the season half over, it is plain the motto of the summer vacationer is:

"Have Cash, Will Travel."

PROVINCETOWN
PLAYHOUSE

THE SUMMER THEATER AT PROVINCETOWN

AT TANGLEWOOD FOR THE MUSIC



Keeping a budget causes you to face facts—such as the fact that you don't have enough money.

©NEA

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - Sat. 271,019

JUL 8 1958

NHRR Excursion To Music Festival

Excursions to the Sunday afternoon Tanglewood concerts of the Berkshire Festival at Lenox, Mass., will be run for five successive Sundays this summer by the New Haven RR, starting Sunday, July 13.

For the single price the railroad sells a round-trip ticket, general admission to the music shed, and round-trip tickets on the bus between the railroad station and the scene of the concerts.

Tickets are limited and must be purchased in advance to secure accommodations.

[274]

DETROIT, MICH.
FREE PRESS
Circ. D. 444,193 - S. 469,816

JUL 6 1958

SEASON OPENS JULY 2

Berkshire Fete Lists Highlights

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has announced some of the program highlights for this summer's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Mass. The season is July 2 to Aug. 10.

Soloists will include six outstanding young pianists appearing on the festivals six successive weekends.

Concerts will be conducted by Munch and Pierre Monteux.

During the Bach and Mozart weekends in the Theatre-Concert Hall, Lukas Foss will appear in the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor on July 5. Seymour Lipkin of Detroit, will perform the Piano Concerto in D minor by Mozart on July 13.

* * *

ON JULY 12, Foss and Lipkin will be soloists in Mozart's Two-Piano Concerto in E-flat.

The next four weekends' pianists will be Leon Fleisher July 20, performing Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1 in D minor; Byron Janis performing Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 3 on July 26 and Leonard Pennario on Aug. 2, in Liszt's Piano Concerto No. 1 in E-flat.

Over the closing weekend, devoted to music of Beethoven, his Piano Concerto No. 5, the "Emperor" Concerto, will be performed by Eugene Istomin.

Zino Francescatti will appear at the concert of July 27 as soloist in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto.

Choral works will include a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on July 6.

G. Wallace Woodworth, director of the Harvard Glee Club for 25 years, will conduct the concert, performed by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Harvard Glee Club and the Radcliffe Choral Society.

Soloists will be Adele Addison, soprano; Eunice Alberts, contralto; Blake Stern, tenor, and Donald Gramm, bass. Gramm also will be soloist in the performance July 19, of Brahms' Requiem. The soprano soloist will be Hilde Gueden of the Metropolitan Opera.

* * *

THE FESTIVAL Chorus will perform Beethoven's Ninth Symphony under Munch's direction at the final concert of the season Aug. 10.

A choral work by Mozart conducted by Hugh Ross, will be heard July 13, in the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Further information may be obtained from the Festival Office, Symphony Hall, Boston 15.

Sentinel (e)
KEENE, N. H.
Independent
Circ. 6,575

JUL 26 1958

Let's Go Driving

Why Not Combine Vacations With Culture?

By CAL CAMERON

In spite of Florida, summer is the traditional vacation time. To most it means a change. It is a short release from the daily grind of office or factory and most of us either plan to play hard or go somewhere and loaf through the short allotted time.

That of course, is a change from what we do the other 50 weeks, but there is a different kind of vacation that we New Englanders could have that would be just as great a change.

If you enjoy the finer things, such as good music, ballet, the theater, art or sculpture, there is much of this all around us. Why not devote your vacation to seeking it out and enjoying things we are not able to have in our daily life here?

There is a tremendous number of artists and sculptors who live in Vermont and New Hampshire. Many exhibit their work at local shows. These are of a caliber that attract buyers from museums and art experts.

Saint Gaudens Memorial

Williamstown, Mass., has an outstanding new art museum. Several of the colleges have noteworthy displays that are open during the summer. Saint Gaudens Memorial, between Cornish and Plainfield, not only has some of that great sculptor's work, but also offers, in addition, a different exhibition of contemporary artists each month throughout the summer.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has summer quarters just outside Lenox, Mass., where concerts are given that many feel are more to be enjoyed in the sylvan setting than at their home in Boston.

Just outside Lee, Mass., at Jacob's Pillow, is the only theater ever built exclusively for the dance. For 16 years some of the finest dancers in the world have appeared here.

Straw Hat Circuit

Summer theaters are scattered all over New England. Some depend on a well known star to boost ticket sale, while other hard working groups just put on good plays.

A newer and much less publicized group offers the opportunity to hear fine music. This is The New Hampshire Music Festival located in the Winnipesaukee area.

It had its origin many years ago when Jules Epailly and Hady Spielta, who taught piano in New York and summered on Melody Island in Lake Winnipesaukee, had some of their pupils appear there in recitals.

Later they felt that their pupils would display their skill better if they had orchestral accompaniment. As summer is a slack time for many musicians, they invited several to come to Melody Island for the summer and enjoy a vacation in return for their appearance at the recitals.

Expanded Program

It soon grew to such proportions that it was no longer possible for an individual to underwrite such an ambitious venture. So others who live in the region and enjoy good music decided to carry on and expand the program.

This year Dean Ryan directs and conducts an orchestra of 40 pieces. There is also a choral group of 60 voices that appears with the orchestra in two concerts, in the latter part of August.

Concerts are given Thursday, either at Wolfeboro or the Belknap Mountains Recreational Area, through Aug. 21. In the following (and final) week there are three. There will also be one at Sunapee State Park although the date for that had not been set at this writing.

There is indeed a wealth of fine things available to you during the summer. Try combining appreciation of these fine arts with pleasant drives for your vacation this summer.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306

JUL 30 1958

CABIN CAMPING AT SAVOY MOUNTAIN STATE FOREST

EASTON, PA.
EXPRESS
D. 46,512

JUL 12 1958

For Riverbank Concerts, No Patent Pending

Assorted workmen have been patting Riverside Park back into shape so skillfully that it begins to seem a little unlikely that it ever served as an entrance to the Bailey bridge. It looks neater than it looked before the flood, probably becase it is, but it seems to lack something, and any passerby who thinks it needs a band shell could have a sound idea. Easton's waterfront is one of its most neglected assets, and there are those who hold that outdoor music is past the pioneering stage.

New York's Lewisohn Stadium concerts and Philadelphia's Robin Hood Dell concerts are, to be sure, institutions, but they are not novelties. The Hollywood Bowl this week opened its 37th annual "Symphonies Under the Stars" season. The University of Miami Symphony's pop season is new this year, but outdoor music is traditional in Chicago's Ravinia Park and Grant Park, at the Cincinnati Zoo (where opera is presented), and at summer concert sites in Cleveland and Pittsburgh.

The Boston Symphony's current Tanglewood Festival, at Lenox, Mass., is its 23rd, but in this field, too, monopoly is gone. Between them, the United States and Canada now have about a hundred music festivals, including the noted festival at Aspen, Colo.

And now we come back to this river angle. Music on or beside a river is not unprecedented. One of the most elaborate series of outdoor concerts is staged on a riverbank, not in some upstart frontier village, but in Boston, which has done pretty well as an outpost and probably thinks it is going to go on holding out against the Indians. Another outdoor concert presents musicians seated on a barge moored in the Potomac, and despite the Harris committee, maybe Washington will survive, too.

NEW YORK MOTORIST
NEW YORK, N.Y.
MONTHLY 333,812

JUL 1958

Outdoor Settings Blend With Berkshire Music

Good music, played under any conditions, will always draw crowds. But when some of the world's finest music is presented in a setting which, by itself, would be an attraction—then the charm becomes irresistible. This is the key to the popularity of the annual Berkshire Music Festival at Tanglewood, Mass.

From July 2 through August 10, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux, will hold a series of regular concerts and recitals in the Music Shed and the Theatre-Concert Hall.

Almost anyone who has ever attended the Music Festival knows that this is classical music at its most informal best. Even those who don't hold tickets for seats can enjoy the music while relaxing on spacious lawns.

All is not classical at Tanglewood, though. Jazz sessions will also be held—and the quality of the music is equally superlative.

Only a short drive from Tanglewood are such attractions as the Mohawk Trail and the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival at South Lee, Mass.

Tickets and schedules for any of the Berkshire concerts may be obtained by writing to the Festival at Tanglewood, Mass., or by phoning the ticket office, Lenox 600.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
POST
Circ. D. 408,150 - Sat. 271,019

JUN 30 1958

New Haven to Run Five Tanglewood Excursions

The New Haven Railroad will run five successive Tanglewood excursions starting Sunday, July 13. The package includes a round-trip ticket, general admission to the Music Shed and round-trip ticket on the bus between the station and Tanglewood.

Leaving New York at 8:20 a.m., the train will arrive in Stockbridge at 12:14 p.m. The return train is due back at Grand Central at 10:12 p.m.

Friday, June 13, 1958 AUFBAU

Musik im Sommer

um und in New York

Die schnellste Entwicklung hat das amerikanische Musikleben auf dem Gebiet der Sommerkonzerte. In den lezten Jahrzehnten sind weite Kreise der Bevölkerung unmittelbar an ernste Musik herangeführt worden, für die sonst die mechanische Uebertragung das weit bevorzugte Medium gewesen wäre. Auch die Oper hat von der Möglichkeit, gute Musik im Freien zu geniessen, erhebliche Vorteile gehabt.

Den Aufführungen des "Berkshire Festival" in Tanglewood, Mass., dessen Ausbau aus bescheidenen Anfängen das Verdienst Serge Koussevitzkys gewesen ist, wohnen Abertausende bei. Viele beginnen oder schliessen ihre Ferien in dieser landschaftlich bevorzugten Gegend und finden geistige Erholung in Veranstaltungen, deren Qualität schwerlich überboten wird. Die diesmal ausschliesslich von Charles Munch und Pierre Monteux dirigierten Konzerte vom 4. Juli bis 10. August haben als Höhepunkte Bachs H-moll-Messe, das "Deutsche Requiem" von Brahms und die IX. Symphonie von Beethoven. Die traditionellen Bach-Mozart-Konzerte, Opernaufführungen und Kammermusiken im Theatersaal tragen mit vielen Sonderveranstaltungen der Studierenden des "Music Center" weitere Farben in das bunte Bild der Zyklen.

Die Befürchtung, dass das mit gutem Gelingen begonnene "Empire State Music Festival" in Ellenville, N. Y., nicht fortgesetzt würde, hat sich erfreulicherweise nicht bewahrheitet. Während die Programme mit Auffürungen ernster Musik, 7.—10. August, noch in Vorbereitung sind, werden die ihnen im Juli und August vorausgehenden Broadway - Schlager bereits bekanntgegeben. Es kommen zur Aufführung: "Most Happy Fella", "Brigadoon", "Carousel", "Where's Charlie?", "Guys and Dolls" und "Damn Yankee". Gerade für die Gäste in den zahllosen Hotels der Catskills wird hier eine künstlerische Unterhaltung unalltäglicher Art geboten.

Die von Walter Rosen auf seinem grossen Besitztum Caramoor bei Katonah, N. Y. gegründeten Konzertserien werden von seiner Frau, in Form der "Walter and Lucie Rosen Foundation", mit ähnlichen Tendenzen weiter ausgebaut fortgesetzt. In dem inmitten herrlicher Parkanlagen neu erbauten "Venetian Theatre" wird am Sonnabend, 21. Juni, unter Alfred Wallenstein der II. Akt aus "Orfeo" von Gluck mit Marian Anderson als Euridice gegeben. Jan Peerce singt die Tenorpartie in der "Serenade" für Tenor, Horn und Streicher von Benjamin Britten. Das erste Programm am 14. Juni wird von der "New York Pro Musica Antiqua" unter Noah Greenberg mit spanischer Musik des Mittelalters und der Renaissance im Spanischen Hof des Haupthauses bestritten. In zwei weiteren Aufführungen am 28. Juni und 5. Juli werden Werke von Monteverdi, Barber, Haydn und Haendel unter Wallenstein gespielt.

Das Leben der Künstlerkolonie in Woodstock (Catskills) wird auch in diesem Sommer durch Aufführungen der Turnau Opera Association im Byrdcliffe Theatre bereichert. Opernfreunde haben Gelegenheit, alte und moderne Werke in abgerundeten Vorstellungen zu geniessen. Wer sich während der Ferienmonate aktiv der Musik zu widmen wünscht, kann in Chatauqua, N. Y., die seinen Anlagen entsprechenden künstlerischen Einrichtungen finden. Die unter der Leitung des früheren Mitgliedes der Met, Julius Huehn stehende "School of Music" besitzt durch angesehene Lehrkräfte den Charakter eines Konservatoriums. Mit den Kursen sind Veranstaltungen verknüpft, in denen die Orchesterserie von Walter Hendl geleitet wird.

*

Wer während der Sommermonate New York nicht verlässt, braucht keineswegs auf musika-

(Fortsetzung auf Seite 26)

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUN 22 1958

SUMMER SEASON OPENS TOMORROW IN BERKSHIRES

Playhouse Curtain to Go Up for 27th Year in Stockbridge

Pittsfield, June 21—The Berkshire Hills' summer schedule of entertainment will open Monday when the curtain goes up for the 27th season at the Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge. The opening bill, "No Time for Sergeants," will bring back to the Berkshires Bruce Hall, John Straub and William Sharon in the recent stage success.

Music Barn

The Berkshires' other summer theater, the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will open its season July 3 with Mildred Dunnock in "The Madwoman of Chaillot."

Next Sunday, the 29th, Music Barn in Lenox will open its 1958 season with a barbershop quartet festival featuring The Buffalo Bills from "The Music Man," the Tangle Aires, the Valley Four and the Clip Cords. Included on the agenda at the Music Barn folk music and jazz concerts this season will be the Dave Brubeck Quartet, Duke Ellington, Lionel Hampton, Mahalia Jackson, Tom Lehrer and Richard Dyer-Bennet.

The 20th season of the Boston Symphony O~~rchestra's Berkshire Festival con~~certs at Tanglewood in Lenox will take place during the six weeks between July 3 and Aug. 11, with concerts each Friday and Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival will start its nine-week schedule July 1 with Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky and Pauline Koner and Dance Company.

Annual Event

Another upcoming annual attraction in the Berkshires is the Fourth of July Firemen's Muster in Pittsfield. Thirty volunteer fire companies from throughout New England and New York, 15 drum corps and five bands will take part in a gigantic three-hour parade through downtown Pittsfield the morning of the Fourth. In the afternoon the volunteer fire fighters will compete in old-fashioned hose cart, pumping and ladder races and the bands and drum corps will also participate in competitions.

UTICA OBSERVER - DISPATCH 6/28

TANGLEWOOD, JACOB'S PILLOW, MUSIC BARN

Berkshires Artists Begin Seasons

movies, theaters

The Berkshire neighbors, Tanglewood, Jacob's Pillow and the Lenox, Mass., Music Barn, have announced their schedules for the season. Tanglewood again will present classic programs; Jacob's Pillow dance festival has scheduled two full months of ballet, guest artists and representative soloists and groups from many lands. In lighter mood, the Berkshire Music Barn will feature barbershop quartets, jazz and folk singers. Scores of Uticans visit the Berkshire festivals each summer.

"The Buffalo Bills," barbershop quartet of the Broadway musical of the year, "The Music Man," will open the Barn at 8:30 p. m. Sunday. The opening concerts of the Berkshire festival at Tanglewood will be on July 4.

Dr. Charles Munch, director of the Berkshire Music Center, that the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school will open Sunday afternoon. Events there will include a student program each week under professional conditions. The faculty will include many principals of the Boston Symphony.

The festival bookings:

At Jacobs Pillow, July 1-5, Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and her dance company and Shrimath Gina in dances of India.

July 8-12, Tania Karina and Oleg Sabline; Donald Sadler and company with Maria Karnilova in modern ballets; and Lotte Goslar, famous mime.

July 15-19, Geoffrey Holder and company; Ram Copal India's famous dancer and Sahomi Tachibana, in dances of Japan.

July 22-26, Ximenez-Vargas Spanish Ballet.

July 29-Aug. 2, the Atlantic Civic Ballet; also Mata and Hari.

Aug. 5-9, Nina Novak and George Zorich; Irina Kovalska and Edmund Novak; Myra Kinch and company with Jean Cebron as guest artist.

Aug. 14-16, Irina Borowska and Alan Howard; Daniel Nagrin; Carola Goya and Matteo. (The Goya-Matteo team appeared here this spring.)

Aug. 22-23, Nora Kaye and Erik Bruhn; Jean Cebron and, in U. S. debut, Maria Dolores Garcia.

Aug. 29-30, Barbara Fallis and Royes Fernandez; Myra Kinch and company and Ted Shawn and the American debut of Kandyan dancers from Ceylon.

The Tanglewood opening, on July 4, 5, 6 will feature Bach programs.

The 4 and 5 July events will be at 8:30 p. m. in the theater concert hall. Doroiot Anthony Dwyer, first flutist, will be soloist. On July 6 at 2:30 in the Music Shed G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society with the orchestra in Bach's E Minor Mass.

Tanglewood's first concert of its Wednesday evening chamber music series will be on July 2 in Theater Concert Hall. The Budapest String Quartet, well known here, will make its first appearance there.

The Music Barn bookings: Beginning Sunday, the Buffalo Bills; July 4, 8:30 p. m., the Dave Brubeck Quartet; July 5, folk singer Odetta; July 5, Duke Ellington and orchestra and July 6, West Indian Night.

July 26, Marais and Miranda; 27, Bobby Hackett and his quartet; 29, Dakota Station; 31, Stan Rubin and his Tiger Town Five; Aug. 2, Tom Lehrer and Aug. 3, the Modern Jazz Quartet.

On Aug. 5 Max Roach and the orchestra with Harold Farberman directing; Aug. 9, Richard Dyer-Bennett.

Aug. 10, The George Shearing Quintet; Aug. 12, the Four Freshmen; Aug. 17, Oscar Peterson Trio with Jimmy Rushing. Aug. 23, Mahalia Jackson. Aug. 24, Chris Connor with All-Star Jazz Ensemble; Aug. 30, School of Jazz benefit; Aug. 31, the Modern Jazz Quartet.

Post
WALLINGFORD, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 3,408

JUL 17 1958

PAGE FOUR

Thursday, July 17, 1958

Togetherness

McCall's magazine has popularized the term Togetherness and the summer season is a good time to put the meaning of the word to work. With balmier weather the family can get together for relaxation, enjoyment and comradery.

Wallingfordites, centrally situated in our state, have a good jumping off point for family excursions that take little money and afford some really interesting times. In less than two hours a carful of family can travel up through the Litchfield hills, in itself an experience, and cross over the Massachusetts state line to the Tanglewood Music Festival. For the next four weekends—Friday, Saturdays and Sundays—you can find the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra playing delightful, wonderful music in the open air.

This wonderful setting will be in itself sufficient reason to [illegible] the family. We have noted that even people who are not very enthusiastic about long hair music really enjoy themselves at [illegible] Tanglewood Music concert. Literally thousands of families find their way to this spot and return time, after time.

Another enjoyable place to take the family, and this only about 45 minutes away, is the marvelous Stratford Shakespeare Theater. It's a small trip from Wallingford on the parkway. The cost of tickets is not really very great and the productions are a must, especially for high school age sons and daughters.

Another readily accessible togetherness excursion is a trip down to Mystic and the fabulous reconstructed Mysic seaport.

The family car will serve as a fine place to get to know our sons and daughters and for them in turn to know you. A half hour away is Hammonassett Beach with its picnic tables and sandy beach. Ten minutes on South Colony Rd., is Wharton Brook State Park with wooded picnic area and just within walking distance is the Community Pool off North Main St. Summertime is a togetherness time and even an outdoor movie and for that matter an indoor movie is a good place to spend a family evening.

VARIETY
NEW YORK, N. Y.

JUL 2 1958

IN BOSTON . . .

WBZ-TV hosted press party at Jack & Marion's for "Russian Revolution" film televised Monday (30) . . . Louise Morgan, WNAC-TV personality, has chalked up 2,340 telecasts in nine years here and nabbed citation from Winslow Chip Co. via Tom Hussey, former WNAC announcer . . . H. P. Hood & Sons, Inc. inked for sked of one min. and 10 sec. film spots on WBZ-TV . . . WGBH-FM for fifth year presents broadcasts of all Boston Symphony Orch summer concerts at Tanglewood starting Saturday (5) . . . "Ray Dorey Show" on WNAC-TV running promosh with giveaways of water skis and model speed boats. Contestants have to guess the combo weight of the orch . . . Versitones making rounds of Hub deejays . . . Hub disk jocks partied with Dolores Hart in for promosh on Elvis Presley's "King Creole" set for Met . . . Habitant Soup Co. inked for sked of 10 sec. spots on WBZ-TV . . . WBZ radio "Live Five" disk jocks participated in a fashion show at Somerset pool . . . Boston Local (N. E. Council) of AFTRA will send five delegates to the AFTRA national convention skedded for Hotel Biltmore, New York, July 17-20. Delegates, elected at a special meeting of the Boston AFTRA local: Bob Segal, N. E. rep AFTRA; Jack Chase, WBZ-TV; Bill Hahn, WNAC; Fred B. Cole, WHDH; Ross Miller, WTIC, Hartford, Conn. Alternates are freelance actors Connie Jameson and Dick Kilbride.

[275]

[270]

Christian Science
Monitor (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Non-partisan
Circ. 161,566
JUL 24 1958

Bay State What-Where

For the benefit of tourists, vacationists, and others who may be planning to spend a few days or weeks in New England, various state organizations have issued calendars of events which are scheduled for this summer. Each state will be covered in separate articles.

The Massachusetts Department of Commerce, Boston, Mass., has issued its calendar of events for 1958, from which the following are taken:

BOSTON AREA

Through Nov. 30: Saugus Ironworks Restoration—Saugus.

Through Sept. 2: Boston-Nantasket cruises, daily on "Sea Belle."

Through Sept. 2: Boston-Provincetown, daily on "Boston Belle."

July-August: Theater on the Green, Outdoor Theater, Wellesley.

BERKSHIRE HILLS

Through September: Stockbridge, Berkshire Playhouse.

Through Sept. 1: Lenox, Berkshire Music Barn at Music Inn.

Through Aug. 10: Lenox, Berkshire Music School, Tanglewood.

Through Aug. 10: Lenox, Berkshire Music Festival Friday and Saturday evenings and Sunday afternoons.

July-September: Pittsfield, South Mountain concerts, recitals, and chamber music by famous artists.

July-August: Lee, Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, Ted Shawn Theater.

July-September: Lenox, Pleasant Valley Wildlife Sanctuary. Trailside museum, eight miles of nature trails.

July August: Williamstown, summer playhouse.

All summer: North Adams, Natural Bridge, only water-eroded marble bridge in the world.

July-October: Dalton, Crane Museum , historic exhibits of fine papermaking since 1801. Open Monday-Friday, 2 to 5 p.m.

All summer: Williamstown, Clark Art Institute, outstanding collections of American, European, and French paintings, sculpture, and silver.

MOHAWK TRAIL

Through July 27: "Colonial Culture" featuring Poet's Seat Tower. Nathaniel Hawthorne, "Boys of the Border," Cole Porter, etc.

July 25-26: Buckland Players annual musical play and Trail Music Festival.

July 28: "State Forests," featuring first state forest.

Aug. 4-10: "Yankee Doodle Week" featuring Trail Queen selection.

Aug. 8-9-10: Charlemont: "Yankee Doodle Days."
Aug. 11-17: Williamstown, "Williamstown Week."
Aug. 18-24: "Trail Art," honoring artists and art along the Trail.
Aug. 22-24: Shelburne Falls, Bridge of Flowers Art Festival.
Aug. 25-Sept. 1: "Susan B. Anthony Week."
Sept. 1: Labor Day Celebration.
Sept. 2-7: Salem Falls, Charlemont, "Indian Week."
Sept. 8-14: County fairs, featuring Historic Oak, Old Meeting Grounds, etc.
Sept. 7-12: Greenfield, Franklin County Fair.
Sept. 15-21: North Adams, Mt. Greylock, featuring Natural Bridge, Magnetic Hill, Forbidden Mountains, etc.
Oct. 6-13: Mohawk Trail, fall foliage, featuring all areas and special drives.

PLYMOUTH EVENTS

Through Thanksgiving: Mayflower shallop available for rides in harbor.

Aug. 31: Pilgrim Breakfast, Harlow Old Fort House.

Throughout summer, other events will take place, such as horse shows, harbor regattas, fishing rodeos, square dancing, music festivals, pageants.

NORTH SHORE

Through Sept. 30: Beauport Mansion, Eastern Point Boulevard, Gloucester.

Through Sept. 15: Cape Ann Historical Association, Capt. Elias Davis House, Gloucester. Ship models, tools, and nautical instruments used in 300 years of fisheries.

July-August: Hammond Castle Museum, Hesperus Avenue, Gloucester. Conducted tours weekdays.

July 26: Annisquam, Annisquam Sea Fair.

July 29: Gloucester, Series of recitals on Hammond Museum organ.

CAPE COD

Special Events:
Every Wednesday: Army tour, with anti-aircraft target practice at South Wellfleet, Route 6, 2 p.m.
Every Thursday—Coast Guard tour, exhibits and breeches buoy drills at Eastham, 2 p.m.
Every Friday—Tour of Cape Cod Light, North Truro, 1-5 p.m., through Sept. 20.
Every Friday: Duplicate bridge tournament, Jacob Sears Hall, East Dennis.
Daily Events:
Salt water cruises to Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket from Woods Hole and Hyannis.
Beach buggy tours of the sand dunes, from Orleans and Provincetown.
Fresh water fishing in 54 recommended lakes and ponds.
Summer Theaters:
Actors Workshop, Buzzards Bay.
Cape Playhouse, Dennis.
Cape Cod Melody Tent, Hyannis.
Cross Right Stage, Falmouth.
Falmouth Playhouse, Falmouth.
Harwich Junior Theater, Harwich.
Oberlin Gilbert & Sullivan Players, Memorial Auditorium, Falmouth.
Orleans Arena Theater, Orleans.
Provincetown Playhouse, Town Wharf, Provincetown.

NANTUCKET

Through Oct. 30: Striped Bass and Blue Fish Tournament.
Month of July: Broad Street Sidewalk Art Exhibit.
Early August: Yacht Club Regatta.
Fairs:
Aug. 3-9: Lakeville, Middleboro Fair.
Aug. 10-16; South Weymouth, Weymouth Fair.
Aug. 17-23: Marshfield, Marshfield Fair.
Aug. 21-23: West Tisbury, Martha's Vineyard Fair.
Aug. 22-24: Cummington, Hillside Fair.
Aug. 29-30: Middlefield, Highland Fair.
Aug. 29-Sept. 1: Spencer, Spencer Fair.
Aug. 31-Sept. 1: Blandford, Union Fair.
Aug. 21-Sept. 6: Northampton, Tri-County Fair.
Aug. 31-Sept. 6: Topsfield, Essex County Fair.
Sept 7-14: Brockton, Brockton Fair.
Sept. 7-10: Greenfield, Franklin County Fair.
Sept. 7-13: Great Barrington, Barrington Fair.
Sept. 13-21: West Springfield, Eastern States Exposition.
Sept. 27-28: Littleville, Littleville Fair.

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 41,945
JUL 24 1958

The New England Scene:

Concerts, Plays Given In Rural Settings

By Cal Cameron

Patriot Ledger Correspondent

MARLOW, N.H.—A New England vacation means different things to different people.

Some prefer to make a circuit tour, driving 200 or more miles daily. Others go to some place they like and spend their entire holiday there.

Some go hiking, others want to swim or loaf on a beach.

More Than Scenery

There are those who feel that once outside the environs of their native city, there is little to be found in the country except scenery and quaint rustic characters.

They are like the elderly Bostonian who was astounded when asked if she had ever traveled. She understood why many visited Boston, but could not imagine why anyone having had the good fortune to be born there, would ever have reason to go anywhere else.

If you enjoy some of the finer things such as good music, ballet, the theater, or art, there is much of this to discover as you tour the vacation country.

Many artists and sculptors live there and exhibit their works at local shows. These are of a caliber that attract buyers from museums and art connoisseurs.

Williamstown, Mass. has an outstanding new art museum and several of the colleges have noteworthy displays.

You probably know that the Boston Symphony takes up summer quarters at Tanglewood in the Berkshires. There is also a music school there.

At Jacob's Pillow, near Lee, Mass., Ted Shawn has long had a school where many well known dancers have been trained.

There is also a theater there, reputed to be the only one ever built exclusively for presentation of the dance. Here, since 1942, some of the best known dancers from this country and abroad have been performing summers.

There are summer theaters scattered all over the vacation area where good plays are presented by capable actors.

Unfortunately many of these are not well patronized as people tend to flock to a place advertising a well known glamor gal who may not present nearly as finished a performance as those hard working groups who cannot depend on a name star to draw the audience.

A newer and much less publicized group dispenses fine music under the name of The New Hampshire Music Festival, Inc., in the Lake Winnipesaukee area of New Hampshire.

This had its origin many years ago when Jules Epailly and Hady Spielta, who taught piano winters in New York and summered on Melody Island in Lake Winnipesaukee, had some of their pupils come up to give concerts.

In the years that followed, they felt that an orchestral accompaniment would permit their students to show their skill to better advantage.

As the summer is a slack time for many musicians, they invited several to come to Melody Island and enjoy a vacation in exchange for their participation in the recitals.

Eventually this grew to be too large and burdensome a proposition for individual support; so others who live in that region and enjoy good music, decided to carry on and expand the program.

A corporation was formed, well known conductors and musicians engaged, and now, for the sixth year this group will hold a series of summer concerts at Wolfeboro and the Belknap Mountains Recreational Area.

Dean Ryan Conductor

Dean Ryan who has been studying in Italy on a Fulbright Fellowship, returns as conductor and director of this season's symphony orchestra.

There is also a choral group of over 60 which, with the exception of the soloists, is recruited from members of church choirs in the area. They appear with the orchestra the latter part of August.

Concerts are given Thursdays through Aug. 21. In the following (and final) week there are three. Besides these, the orchestra gives two especially for children, as well as one youth concert.

You may run across them in other places as you travel; for they will appear in at least two other parts of New Hampshire during the season.

So, as you leave your familiar city surroundings to venture into rural New England for a couple of weeks, you need not feel you are leaving all the finer things behind. On the contrary, you will find it well worth while to go out of your way to attend these outstanding offerings.

(Mr. Cameron's column appears on Thursdays)

Express (e)
PORTLAND, Me.
Independent Republican
Circ. 28,708
JUL 15 1958

Summer Music

"Where to go for a vacation this summer?" is becoming an easier and easier question for a music lover to answer. Just as the Izaak Walton disciple hies himself to where he can wet a line from sunrise to sunset, the devotee of symphony, chamber music, opera, vocal and last but by no means least, jazz, will be happiest vacationing at or near some summer music center.

And his choice is almost unlimited. For these days there is more summer music than you can shake a stick at. The Ivy League area has not had a monopoly of it for a long time.

The Hollywood Bowl's 37 annual "Symphonies under the Stars" gets no inferiority complex from New York's Lewisohn Stadium. Summer vacationists at Miami Beach have been enjoying pop concerts by the University of Miami Symphony Orchestra. Also in competition as top musical attractions are the Aspen, Colo., music festival and the Boston Symphony's 23rd Tanglewood festival at Lenox, Mass.

In certain big cities you can take your musical vacation right at home. In addition to the Lewisohn Stadium and the Hollywood Bowl, there are, among others, Ravinia and Grant Park in Chicago, Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, the Cincinnati Zoo (opera) summer concert sites in Cleveland and Pittsburgh, and the music barge moored on the Potomac in Washington.

Just as the fast expanding summer theaters have ended lean days for many an actor and actress, the hundred or so summer music festivals in the United States and Canada now give a much needed economic fillip to many a musician.

A winter symphony orchestra may provide him with less than 30 weeks of work at less than $3,000. But work at a summer festival may make it possible for him to retain music as a vocation instead of going into his uncle's business and downgrading music to an avocation.

GARDEN CITY, N. Y.
NEWSDAY
Circ. D. 258,364
MAY 20 1958

What Do You Dream of Doing This Vacation . . .

- Absorbing Culture at Festivals?
- Sight-seeing After the Brussels World's Fair?
- Fishing for Salmon in New Brunswick?
- Exploring Our National Parks?
- Cruising Our Inland Waterways?
- Visiting Religious Shrines?
- Panning Gold in the Klondike?

Summer is festival time throughout this country and ~~Canada. Growing in number and scope are the presen~~tations of the works of William Shakespeare. And 1958 is an especially propitious year for studying history where it was made. Centennials, folk song festivals and the arts are on the agenda for vacationists.

The American Shakespeare Festival at Stratford, Conn., runs from June 19-Sept. 1. Three plays are scheduled, "Midsummer Night's Dream," "Hamlet," and "Winter's Tale."

The Shakespeare Festival of Canada, at Stratford, Ont., will be held June 23-Sept. 13. The repertoire includes "Much Ado About Nothing," "Henry IV," and "Winter's Tale."

(The International Film Festival will present premiere Canadian showings of new films from all over the world June 30-July 12. Stratford Festival of Drama will be held June 23-Sept. 13, and the Festival of Music is scheduled July 22-Aug. 16.)

Other Shakespeare Festivals will be held at Ashland, Ore., and San Diego, Calif. In Oregon, "Much Ado About Nothing," "King Lear," "Merchant of Venice," and "Troilus and Cressida," will be given July 28-Sept. 4, and in San Diego, "Antony and Cleopatra," "Much Ado About Nothing," and "Macbeth," July 18-Aug. 31.

Famed music festival is the one held annually in the Berkshires at Lenox, Mass. This year Brahms, Bach and Mozart compositions will be featured July 2-Aug. 10. The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox holds concerts Saturday afternoons and Sunday nights, June 29-Sept. 1.

In Chicago, the Ravinia Music Festival is scheduled for July 1-Aug. 10.

In Kentucky, the "Stephen Foster Story," will be given in Bardstown, July 4-Sept. 1. And one of the oldest folk song events in the country is the American Folk Song Festival at Ashland, June 8.

In Colorado, the Music Festival at Aspen always attracts many visitors. This year the works of Schubert and Hindemuth are scheduled for June 25-Aug. 31.

In Santa Fe, N. Mex., the opera "Wuthering Heights" will have its world premiere at the Opera Festival that is held from June 25-Aug. 19.

Jacob's Pillow Festival, Ted Shawn's renowned summer dance program will be held at Lee, Mass., July 1 Aug. 30.

American Indian celebrations attract hundreds of thousands of tourists every year. Best-known, perhaps, is the Inter-Tribal Indian Ceremonial at Gallup, N. Mex., Aug. 14-17, where some 30 tribes camp and put on exhibitions of crafts and dances. In Pawnee, Okla., the annual Pow-Wow of the Pawnees will be held July 10-13.

One of the most exciting events of the season is the Calgary Stampede, Calgary, Alberta, Canada. This world-famous rodeo and exhibition will be held July 7-12.

The Garlic Mod, at St. Ann's, Nova Scotia, an authentic Highland Gathering, with Scottish dance competitions and games, colorful traditional tests of strength and skill, is scheduled for Aug. 5-10.

In Virginia, the State Festival of Arts at Abingdon, known as the Highland Festival, will be held Aug. 1-15.

Festival of Arts at New Haven, Conn., June 24-28.

In Minnesota, the 100th anniversary of statehood is being celebrated in a year-long party that includes folk festivals, pageants, art and music festivals, sports programs and other events honoring the many "firsts" the North Star State boasts. Among them are production of iron ore, butter manufacture and sweet corn processing, production of calendars, window and door frames, hoisting machinery and linseed oil. Minnesota is known as the Land of 10,000 Lakes.

SIGHT-SEEING

Unprecedented numbers of Americans will tour the Brussels World's Fair, then go on to visit some of Europe's and Great Britain's outstanding attractions and events, and to explore places off the beaten track.

Among the events scheduled in Belgium is "Le Lumecon," at Mons, in June. It is the re-enactment of the legendary battle between St. George and the Dragon. Procession of the Golden Cart is highlight of the observance.

On July 21, the Belgian National Holiday is celebrated throughout the country.

In France, music and drama festivals are held from May through August from Nantos to Dieppe. One of the famous is at Aix-les-Bains, July 21-Aug. 1. Fountain displays are put on at Versailles, usually three Sundays a month, from June to September. In Paris, the Fashion Salon will be open July 8-22.

Wakefield Fortune Tours of New York and London has arranged short, seat-in-a-private car trips of four-to-six days duration covering picturesque and out-of-way places in England, Wales and Scotland. Six departures weekly from London and Edinburgh throughout the season, May through September. Additional weekly departures from Southampton terminating in London, and vice versa, are scheduled in connection with trans-Atlantic arrivals and departures.

There are combined rail, motor coach and steamer "Circular Tours," which enable you to explore Scotland. A typical one, "Freedom of Scotland" ticket, is available for seven consecutive days' unlimited rail travel between stations in Scotland, also for steamer trips of the Caledonian Steam Packet Co. on the River Clyde and Loch Lomond, for $25.38, first class; $16.92, second class.

The Shakespeare Festival, Stratford-upon-Avon, is held through November. The Derby is run at Epsom Downs, June 4. Colorful and inspiring is the National Gaelic Mod in Glasgow, Sept. 25-Oct. 4.

Viking Ship Cruise

Nostalgic Americans will find Independence Day (U.S.) celebrated in two Scandinavian countries. In Denmark, at Rebild Danish-American Park, the Fourth of July has been observed annually since 1912. At Skansen near Stockholm, Swedes mark American Independence Day. The Soccer World Championship meet will be held in Stockholm, June 7-30. The 700th Anniversary Exhibit at Trelleborg has been set for July 4-13.

The Midsummer Night Festival is celebrated nationwide in Norway on June 23. Visitors to this land of majestic beauty will find a replica of a Viking ship, manned by 22 bearded oarsmen, carrying sight-seers to the fjords around Stavanger. Tourists dine Viking-style on oxen, roasted on a spit, at Molla fortress before embarking. During the voyage, passengers can sample mead, served in old drinking horns.

In Finland, the Sibelius Festival will draw music lovers to Helsinki, June 8-15. In Finnish Lapland, June 20-21, the Midnight Sun Festival marks the start of daylight around the clock.

In The Netherlands, Opening of Parliament, The Hague, on Sept. 17, is always an historic event. Tilting the Ring, a display of horsemanship, will be held Aug. 15 in Middleburg. The Passion Plays at Tegelen are given May through August.

Austria's renowned Salzburg Festival will run July 26-Aug. 31. From July 17-20, the 130th anniversary of the death of Franz Schubert will be marked by a music festival in Vienna.

Greek Theater Dramas

Other music festivals are to be held in Germany, notably the Mozart Festival in Berlin, May 31-June 8; the Wagner Festival in Bayreuth, July 23-Aug. 25, and the Berlin Festival, Sept. 21-Oct. 7.

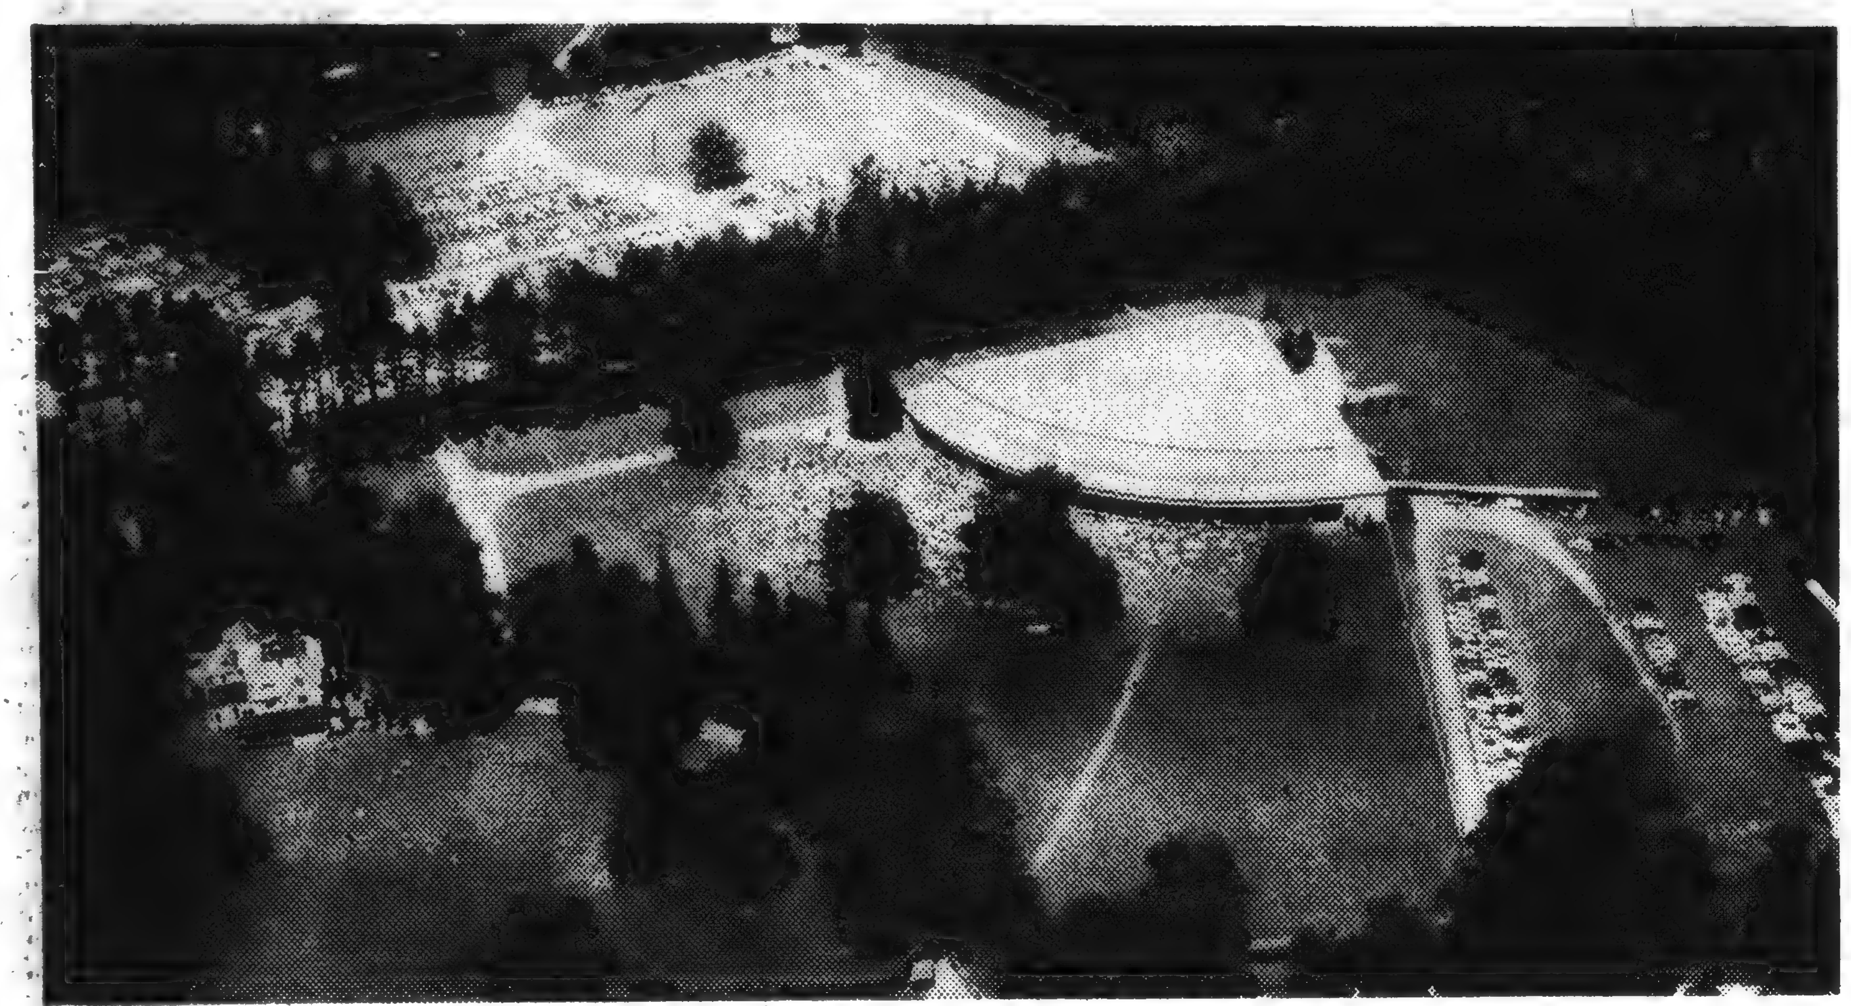
In Greece, the Festival of Epidaurus in June will revive ancient works of Sophocles, Euripides, Aeschylus and Aristophanes. Dramas will be presented in the old theater seating 14,000.

The Fashion Show in Florence, July 22-26 at Petti Palace and the Film Festival in Venice, Aug. 22-Sept. 10, are highlights of Italy's summer season. Game of the Bridge, in Pisa, June 1, dates back to the 13th Century. Also in Pisa, June 17, the Historical Regatta takes place.

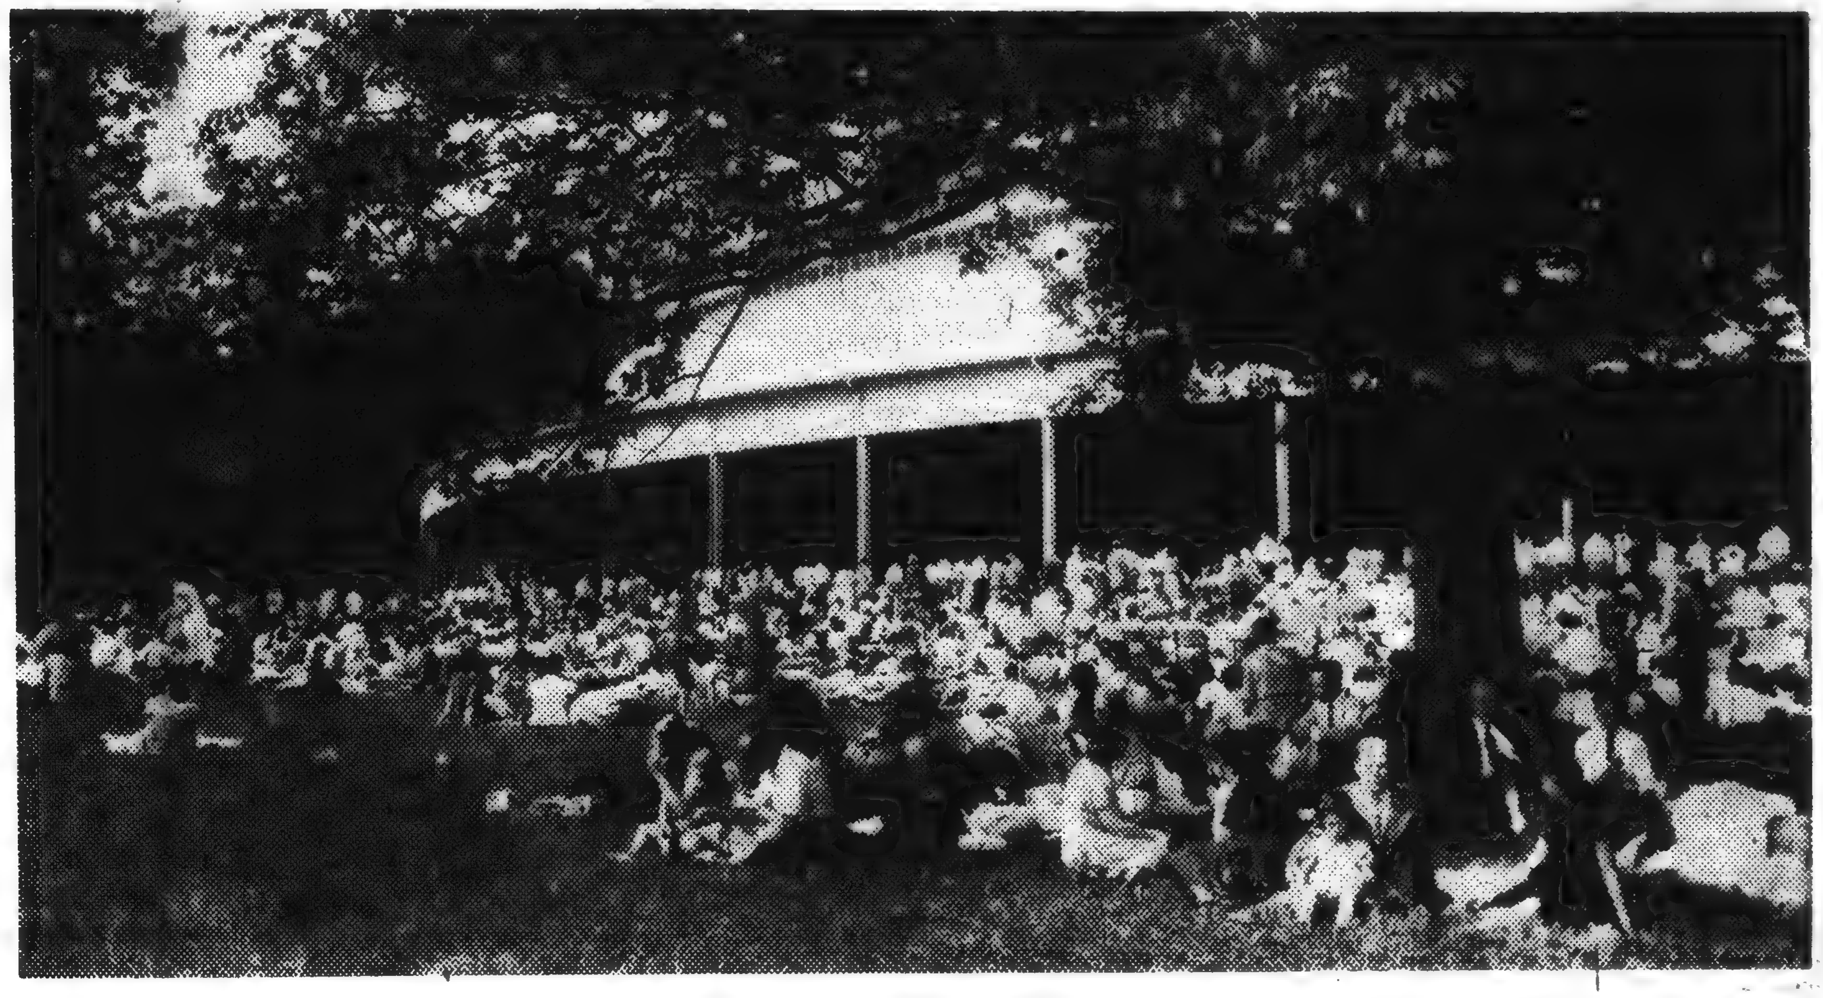
In Switzerland, the Berne Festival dates are June 21-22; the music festivals, Lucerne, June 28; Braunwald, July 13-23; Engelberg, July 15-Aug. 17; Lucerne, Aug. 14-Sept. 7; Montreux-Vevey, Sept. 5-25.

The Yodeling Festival at Olten is set for July 18-20.

[274]



This pleasant, wooded green at Lenox, Mass., is called Tanglewood and is the scene of the annual Berkshire Music Festival. Music students and musicians of the Boston Symphony perform a six-week series of programs.



Since the concerts began in 1934 in a tent, a permanent concert hall has been erected. It is called "The Shed" and is partially open so that the music may flow out across the lawns where many concert-goers like to sit.

Tanglewood—Music In The Making

By GEORGE ELLIOTT 3D

LENOX, MASS.

DO, Re, Mi, Fa, Sol, La, Ti, Do.

Two pianos trip discordantly through the diatonic scales. A violin, muted by broad expanses of lawn, stately birches, elms and pines, squeals a theme.

Or a young Baltimorean, with a long pull ahead, nervously bows at a chamber music concert. Or, magnified in dimension, the music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra cascades in splendor down to the shores of Lake Mahkeenac.

For this is famed Tanglewood—scene of the 1958 Berkshire Music Festival. This is where musical history is being written or, budding, is still untold.

The twenty-first season of the traditional festival in western Massachusetts will end August 10. Until then, major concerts will be held Friday and Saturday nights and in the afternoon on Sundays during the six-week program. Other events are scheduled on most weekdays.

In European Tradition

The Boston Symphony, conducted by Charles Munch (or Pierre Monteux, its "conductor emeritus"), will feature works by Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Tchaikovsky, Wagner and Beethoven in remaining concerts. The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert, with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra, will be given August 7. There will be many soloists and guest programs.

Here, where Nathaniel Hawthorne planned his "Tanglewood Tales," is the gathering place of music lovers in the tradition of the great European festivals. The crowds, which have exceeded 15,000 at one concert, may surpass last year's total of some 162,936 persons.

But Tanglewood is more than a summer showplace for Dr. Munch and his Bostonians. It is also a noted campus of musical learning.

There are, for instance, 70 pianos on the "campus" of the Berkshire Music Center.

A Farewell Concert

The gloomy, overcast Sunday, July 6, rather typified the operation of Tanglewood's festival and school. That afternoon a crowd of 4,232 applauded the artistry of G. Wallace Woodworth, leading his farewell concert after 25 years as conductor of the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society. History was unfolding at Tanglewood.

That morning a smaller, yet sizable, crowd heard Ronald Knudsen, one of three Baltimoreans among 325 students at the Berkshire Music Center, perform in the first of a series of Sunday morning chamber music concerts.

The students come from 36 states and 17 foreign countries for study, concurrent with the festival, under some of the world's top artists.

"When music means so much to so many people," says Thomas D. Perry, Jr., manager of the Boston Symphony, "a place like this is justified."

The history of both festival and school are wrapped around the personality of the late Serge Koussevitzky, the long-time conductor of the Boston orchestra who died in 1951. The school, opened in 1940, was the realization of one of the maestro's fondest dreams.

Inaugurated In 1934

Actually, the festival was inaugurated in 1934 when a committee of citizens erected a wooden concert shell on a nearby estate to start a program.

Some 5,000 persons that summer heard Henry Hadley lead 65 players from the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society in three concerts. In 1935 the same cast performed in a hired tent. The site was shifted in 1936 and, with the shift, Dr. Koussevitzky entered the picture.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra "moved" to the Berkshires. In the Winter of 1936 the historic, 210-acre estate called Tanglewood was presented to the orchestra by Mrs. Gorham Brooks (later Mrs. Andrew Hepburn) and her aunt, Miss Mary Aspinwall Tappan. Then came a storm.

Charles Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in a series of programs at the festival.

In the Summer of 1937, Dr. Koussevitzky was conducting an all-Wagner program in the tent. The storm struck, halting the music several times and drenching many in the audience.

It is said that Dr. Koussevitzky insisted that a permanent auditorium be erected if the orchestra was to stay at Tanglewood. The result was a campaign that raised $80,000. The present main concert hall, called "The Shed," which seats 6,037 persons, was completed for the 1938 season.

The Shed was designed by Eliel Saarinen, a Finnish architect, while the remarkable acoustics for the partially-open structure were planned by Prof. Richard D. Fay, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. So fine are the acoustics that the slightest pianissimo carries clearly across the lawn.

And so, the Shed was opened on August 4, 1938, with Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony." There was more rain—but the roof was soundproof and the setting dry.

Season Is Extended

The 1938 season of six concerts in two weeks drew some 38,000 persons. Dr. Koussevitzky increased the season steadily over the years until World War II brought the program to a temporary halt. When it resumed, the crowds swelled again.

In addition to the Shed, facilities at Tanglewood include a 1,200-seat theater-concert hall; a barn, a garage and rehearsal stage, all used for studies, and ten small studio buildings. The rambling mansion house, completed in 1865 and used by the school, harks back to Tanglewood's beginning.

The distant past is clouded, although a tribe of Mohican Indians reputedly lived by the lake. The present estate was laid out in 1849 by William Aspinwall Tappan, a Boston merchant and banker, whose daughters lived there many years and entertained many literary celebrities.

Nathaniel Hawthorne lived at Tanglewood in a little red cottage from 1851 to 1853. He also wrote "The Wonder Book" and assembled material for "The House of Seven Gables" in those years. A reproduction of his cottage stands on the original site.

His creativity is the heritage of students at the Berkshire Music Center. Such is the record of the school that its alumni make up more than 10 per cent of all major United States symphony orchestras.

In addition to Dr. Koussevitzky and Dr. Munch, the director, the school's faculty has included Aaron Copland, assistant director, and Paul Hindemith as teachers of composition; Dr. Herbert Graf and Boris Goldovsky, as opera instructors; Eleazar de Carvalho, the eminent Brazilian conductor who is also an alumnus, and the principal and solo players of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Baltimoreans At Center

The Baltimoreans at the center are Mr. Knudsen, of 12 East Centre street, and Joanne Cohen, of 3714 Springdale avenue, both members of the violin section of the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, and Philip Eisenberg, of 3100 Gibbons avenue, a student in the Opera Department.

Their school routine is a 9 to 5-plus combination of classes, rehearsals, individual instruction, after-hours practice and attendance at concerts. But there are also informal parties, dances, swimming, boating and other events.

Climaxing the noncredit course is the final student concert on August 9 when various awards are given, including the Koussevitzky Award to the most promising conductor.

Perhaps the most unusual offering of the school is the Tanglewood Study Group, an informal program conducted chiefly for amateur musicians. These music devotees may spend two-week periods or longer at Tanglewood. They share all facilities and perform together. If there happens to be twenty pianists at one time, all twenty may play in one concert session.

The Mood Is Informal

With the clanging of an ancient railroad bell, a crowd begins to file into the Shed for a typical concert. They sit on folding seats under the bare, gray girders of the suspended ceiling.

But this is Tanglewood—best known for those hundreds more who recline on the grass. The mood is informal. Under the trees they spread blankets, open picnic lunches, stare at the sky. The baton raps for quiet.

The music of the Boston Symphony Orchestra surges across the lawn and rings forth its splendor.

This is Tanglewood—1958.

Two of the three Baltimoreans at the festival are Ronald Knudsen, of East Centre street, and Joanne Cohen, of Springdale avenue. Both are violinists.

[279]

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.
REPORTER DISPATCH

JUN 1 6 1958

Down the Scale

Fry Studio Opera Program Is Scheduled for Tonight

By RUTH K. NOLAN

The annual opera night of the studio of Caroline Beeson Fry, 2 Orchard Parkway, will take place tonight at 8 o'clock. Featured on the program will be scenes from "La Serva Padrona" (Pergolesi); "Faust" (Gounod); "The Barber of Seville" (Rossini); and "Madame Butterfly" (Puccini).

Those taking part will include Franklin Menkin, Franne Levine, Ferdinand Kersten, Jr., Alice Ricaud, Luther Davis, Alice Castle, Gloria Boni, Annie Mae Allen, Anne Pretzat, Irving W. Reid, and Jeanne Stoloff.

The program will also feature arias and recitatives from "The Marriage of Figaro" (Mozart); "Lakme" (Delibes); "Romeo and Juliet" (Gounod); and "Rigoletto" (Verdi).

Mary Gervasi is dramatic director and Mildred Paynes is in charge of costumes.

Tanglewood Reservations

Westchester residents who plan to attend the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood this Summer may obtain reservations now. For this season's festival, from July 2 to Aug. 10, Charles Munch will emphasize the music of one of the great composers on each weekend and will include important contemporary works on the programs of the last four weeks. Dr. Munch will conduct the concerts of the first two week-ends in the Theater Concert Hall devoted to Bach and Mozart.

During the last four weeks, he will be joined by Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood as guest conductor. Composers featured on the last four weeks in the Music Shed will be Brahms, Debussy, Ravel, Wagner, and Beethoven.

Soloists will include a number of outstanding young American pianists, featuring Eugene Istomin, Lukas Foss, Byron Janis, Leonard Pennario, Seymour Lipkin, and Leon Fleisher, appearing in concertos by Bach, Mozart, Rachmaninoff, Brahms, and Beethoven.

There will also be a special performance by the Boston Pops Orchestra, under the direction of Arthur Fiedler on Aug. 7, and a performance of Bach's "B Minor Mass" on July 6 by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society under the direction of G. Wallace Woodworth.

Horowitz Elected

Alan P. Horowitz of 11 Normandy La., Scarsdale, has been elected president of the Orchestral Society of Westchester. The organization, entering its 12th season, is under the musical direction of Simon Asen, and annually presents a series of Sunday evening concerts in various Westchester communities. The soloists for next season will include Van Cliburn, pianist; Leontyne Price, soprano; Berl Senofsky, violinist and The Budapest String Quartet.

Other officers electer to serve with Mr. Horowitz are Randolph Guggenheimer, of Purchase, chairman of the board; Samson Gordon of New Rochelle, vice-president; Mrs. Abe Hackman of Scarsdale, secretary; Mrs. Jules Backman of Scarsdale, treasurer.

Other board members include Sol G. Atlas of Yonkers; Merrill Folsom of this city; Mrs. Charles A. Hogan, Walter L. Slezak, Mrs. Edward E. White of Larchmont; Bennett Cerf of Mount Kisco; Mrs. Bliss Woodward of Mamaroneck; Mrs. Oliver W. Merchoir, Irving Mozkovitz, Mrs. Backman, Mrs. Harold S. Lynton of Scarsdale; and Jack Stadler of New Rochelle.

BLUEFIELD, W. VA.
TELEGRAPH
Circ. D. 27,748 - S. 36,709

JUL 9 1958

Good Morning

* * *

Because the law worketh wrath: for where no law is, there is no transgression.—Romans 4:15.

* * *

When men are pure, laws are useless; when men are corrupt, laws are broken.—Lord Beaconfield.

—o—

Music, Music Everywhere In Summer

"Where to go for a vacation this summer?" is becoming an easier and easier question for a music lover to answer. Just as the Izaak Walton disciple hies himself to where he can wet a line from sunrise to sunset, the devotee of symphony, chamber music, opera, vocal and last, but by no means least, jazz will be happiest vacationing at or near some summer music center.

And his (or her, or their) choice is almost unlimited. For these days there's more summer music than you can shake a stick at. The Ivy League area hasn't had a monopoly of it for a long time.

The Hollywood Bowl, opening its 37th annual "Symphonies under the Stars" on Tuesday, gets no inferiority complex from New York City's Lewisohn Stadium. On the same day summer vacationists at Miami Beach troop into the first 1958 Pop Concert by the University of Miami symphony orchestra. The Aspen (Colo.) music festival plays no second fiddle (oops!) to the Boston Symphony's 23d Tanglewood Festival at Lenox, Mass.

In certain big cities you can take your musical vacation right at home. In addition to the Lewisohn Staduim and the Hollywood Bowl, there are, among others, Ravinia and Grant Park in Chicago, Robin Hood Dell in Philadelphia, the Cincinnati Zoo (opera), summer concert sites in Cleveland and Pittsburgh, the music barge moored on the Potomac at Washington.

Just as the fast expanding summer theatres have ended lean days for many an actor and actress, the hundred or so summer music festivals in the United States and Canada now give a much needed economic fillip to many a musician. A winter symphony orchestra may provide him less than 30 weeks' work at less than $3000. Summer festivals, eking out, may enable him to retain music as his vocation instead of going into his uncle's business and downgrading Euterpe to an avocation.

Journal-Courier (m)
NEW HAVEN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 23,885

JUL 1 0 1958

Press (e)
MIDDLETOWN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 16,139

JUL 1 5 1958

AUSTIN, TEX.
AMERICAN
Circ. D. 34,999

JUL 18 1958

SAVANNAH, GA.
PRESS
Circ. D. 23,724

JUL 1 9 1958

ST. CLOUD, MINN.
TIMES
Circ. D. 16,581

AUG 4 1958

PIQUA, OHIO
CALL
Circ. D. 9,875

JUL 1 4 1958

'Yankee' Means New England—a Six-State Area That Has Everything

(Continued from Page 6)

known as Cape Cod. Here are miles of pleasant beaches, old homes, charming hotels and inns and guest houses, wonderful fishing and summer theaters. The Cape Ann area likewise is a favorite with vacationists who love the tang and refreshments of salt water bathing. Artists also favor the area.

Vacation Islands Of Massachusetts

As Yankee as can be, part of Massachusetts yet away from it, are the Bay State's vacation islands of Cuttyhunk, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket. Here by law time has been ordered to stand still. No new building or renovation is allowed that is not in keeping with colonial style of architecture. Most of the islands' summer visitors are old friends who have been coming back for years, but the resort business is expanding and newcomers are being eagerly sought.

Nantucket and Martha's Vineyard have fine beaches, a rugged landscape of bluffs and sand dunes that prove irresistible to artists, and numerous guest houses, small hotels and motels. They offer a quiet, relaxed way of life hard by the sea.

Rhode Island, although the smallest state in the country, has never suffered any nuerosis over the fact of its size. Split in many pieces by water, Rhode Island happily boasts of a 400-mile-long ocean shoreline. The recreational possibilities, of course, are unlimited and the state has some of the finest ocean bathing in the country, particularly along sheltered Narrangansett Bay. By cutting deep inland away from the Sound, the Bay with its coves and inlets is an excellent locale for scores of fine marinas.

Rhode Island was an early refuge for those oppressed by the stern Puritans of Boston. It was founded by Roger Williams, who fled from Boston, and one of the state's prime landmarks to religious freedom is its First Baptish Church in Providence, founded by Williams and mother church to the denomination.

The Jews likewise found refuge in Rhode Island and their Touro Synagogue in Newport, the oldest in the United States, is in its interior an exquisite example of colonial architecture blended with the Hebraic tradition. The exterior is not particularly impressive. Still in use, the synagogue is open to visitors. The United States Department of Interior has declared it a national shrine.

Vacation Satellite Of Block Island

Rhode Islands vacation satellite of Block Island, like its Massachusetts counterparts, is ideal for rest and relaxation by the beach. Fishing is excellent off the island and bicycle riding is popular.

New England is neatly divided into two distinct sections. The three lower tiers of states are highly industrialized and expanding. When you cross the northern border of Massachusetts, you enter a new world, a quiet world of hills and valleys and many lakes that was sort of by-passed by the industrial revolution. There is some industry, of course, and almost as many handcrafts, farming where it's feasible, commercial fishing on the coast, and the great outdoors.

And this is the lure of Vermont, Maine and New Hampshire — its wilderness, trees, lakes and quiet valleys.

Mt. Mansfield, Queen Of Vermont Hills

For 255 miles from Massachusetts to Canada hikers may clamber over Vermont's mountain chain following the marked trees on the Long Trail. Lean-tos or closed cabins have been erected strategically along the trail by the Green Mountain Club of Rutland. Queen of Vermont's hills and a leading recreational area is Mt. Mansfield. From its summit, accessible by chair lift, can be seem Smuggler's Notch. In winter the area is one of the top skiing resorts in the United States.

Boating, swimming, water skiing are available on nearly all of Vermont's smaller inland lakes. Unique to the New England states is Vermont's coastline along the shores of Lake Champlain, which is just over a 100 miles in length.

Sightseers will want to visit the Calvin Coolidge Homestead in Plymouth. The house was occupied by the Coolidge family housekeeper until her death in 1956 and was only opened to the public last July. It was in this house that John C. Coolidge administered the oath of President of the United States to his son early on Aug. 3, 1923.

New Hampshire Has Three Parts

Caesar would be right again were he able to visit New England and say, "All New Hampshire is divided into three parts." Like Vermont, New Hampshire has an outlet on water—salt, in this case—on its southeastern border. Here along a short stretch of seacoast is Portsmouth with its huge U. S. Naval installation; Hampton Beach, a family bathing resort with two-and-a-quarter miles of sandy shore, and several quiet, typical inland New England towns such as Peterborough. Hampton Beach offers deep-sea fishing, entertainment with name bands, theaters and numerous hotels, motels and cottages. Historic homes, monuments and museums abound in the area.

Fresh water sports are a prime activity in New Hampshire in the summer and numerous boating facilities are available in the lake region on such lakes as Winnipesaukee, Sunapee, Ossipee, Mascoma and Newfound, to mention a few. The popularity of water sports has given rise to a full slate of special water events in this part of the state—regattas, swimming races, boat races, and water ski races.

The craggy White Mountains comprise New Hampshire's third major area. Outdoorsmen — hunters, fishermen, campers, hikers and mountain climbers and family groups, too —have enjoyed the majestic scenery of these mountains since our country began. Here the visitor must see the Old Man of the Mountains, the rock profile of a man that's undergoing a face lifting. Less well-known are profiles of an Indian and an old woman.

Highest Mountain In New England

King of the White Mountains is Mount Washington, highest in New England at 6,293 feet. The celebrated cog railway takes you to the top as does an eight-mile auto road on the other side of the mountain.

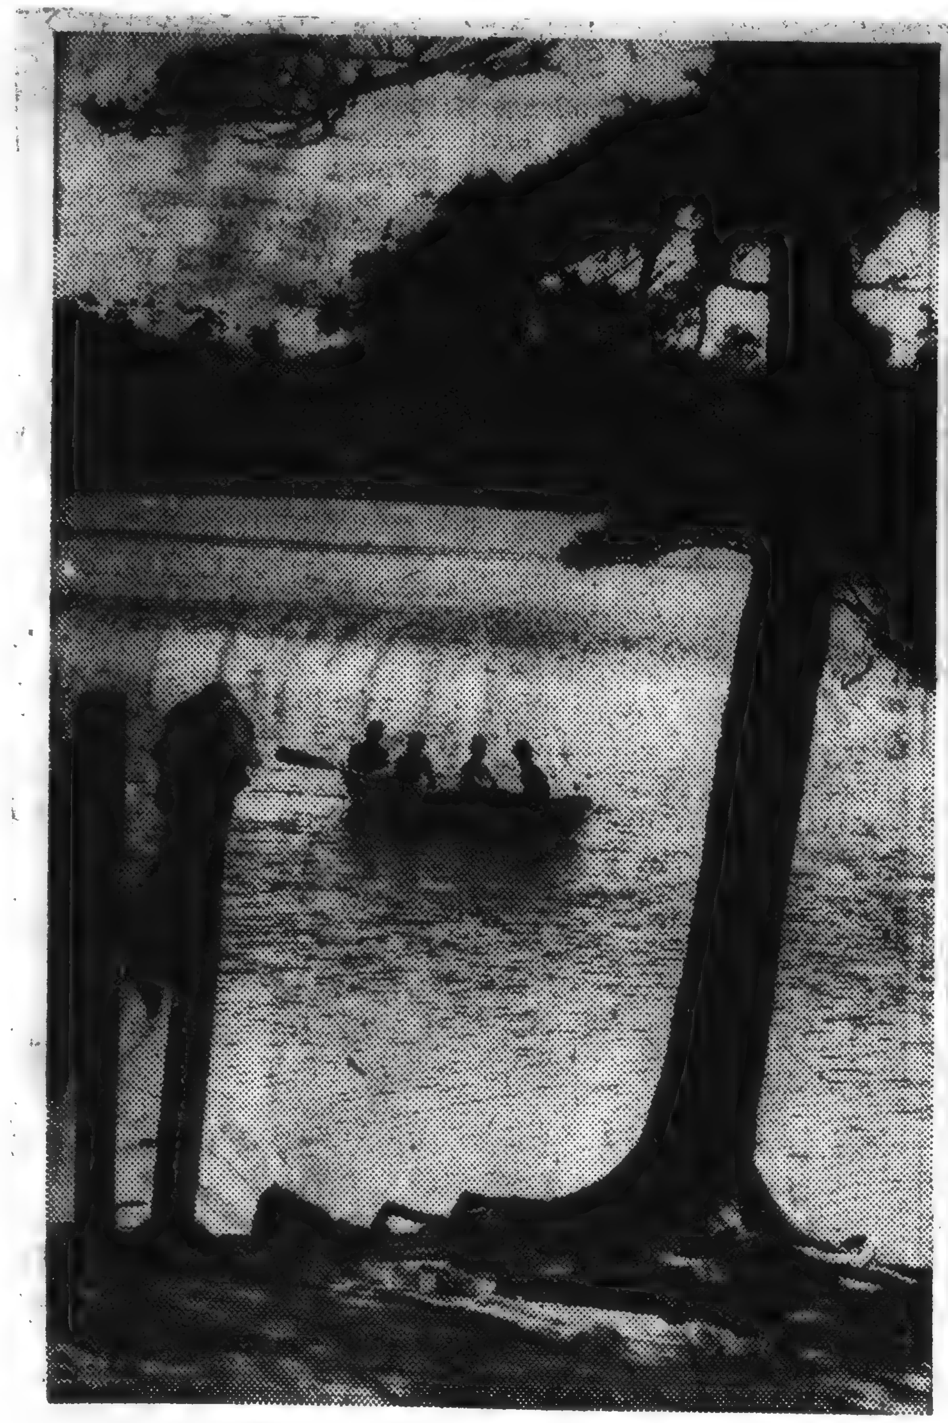
In turning to Maine, we might well once again hearken to a few of the words laid down in the New England Guide:

"The official name for this area is not Maine, but 'The State of Maine,' and at first glance this might appear to crystallize the character of things: big, blunt and definite. These qualities the state has in brimming measure, being as large as the five other New England states combined, the most densely-forested area in the country, the leader in potatoes, with 5,000 streams and 2,500 lakes. If all the crooks and bends in the coastline were straightened, it would stretch from Portland to London.

"Hugeness is also conspicuous in more than human terms. Farmers till over a million acres, lobstermen trap 20,000,000 succulent pounds yearly and diggers pry up most of the nation's soft-shell clams.

Much has been said about the New England States in these pages. Much more has been omitted—only for lack of space. Little has been noted of the numerous fine golf courses throughout the six-state area, the excellent summer theaters, the clambakes and square dances, the choice New England cuisine, the covered bridges and lighthouses, the facilities for tennis, the magnificent state and other public parks and a host of historic landmarks that help tell the story of the birth of America.

But come to New England yourself. Enjoy its hospitality, share in its games and recreation. There's no place quite like it anywhere else in the world. Real Yankees call it "God's country."



The bridge at Concord where the "embattled farmers" fired the shot heard around the world. Historical markers abound throughout the New England states.

Boating on quiet lakes, swimming and fishing—these are some of the charms of a Yankee vacation.

New England's coastline is a combination of sandy beaches, quiet coves and sheer bluffs offering spectacular views of the ocean.

All the Adjectives Apply In New England's 6 States

By BARNETT D. LASCHEVER

Resort and Travel Editor

Laschever

New England is much like an old Vermont barn—it has just about everything. Scrape together all the adjectives you can lay your hands on and throw them broadside at New England. Bizarre, quaint, picturesque, charming, forboding, hospitable, reserved, stimulating, maddening, soothing and even irritating—each one will apply somewhere in the six-state area.

When you say "Yankee" and you mean New England, you can mean Connecticut's Fairfield County, the bedroom annex of New York City; or you may refer to the dinosaur tracks found near Hadley in Massachusetts or the hundreds of restaurants that feature pizza. Like the covered bridges and the white-steepled churches and the flaming maple leaves in the fall, these too are part of New England.

Yankee means other things. It means ties and roots and heritage; it means principles and convictions and fairness and decency. And it also means ingenuity — and then there's the wooden nutmegs of Connecticut. And you can call that what you will.

'Yankee Homecoming' The Strongest Pull

But the strongest pull, the magnet that year in and out attracts Americans from the farthest points in our country, may be summed up in the phrase "Yankee Homecoming," theme for this year's vacation season in New England. Throughout the vast reaches of the United States, the call of New England touches responsive chords in millions of breasts.

For scattered about the country are people descended from old Yankee families that were forced to forsake the rocky soil of New England and strike out across the plains in search of fertile land. The impact of New England thinking, customs and mores is strong upon America and is in good measure responsible for the moral and ethical codes that shape our lives today.

What will the visitor find who comes home to Yankeeland, perhaps to visit the town in which his forebears were born?

In addition to its historic relics, the Yankee visitor finds a beautiful land whose charms include recreation of every variety.

Connecticut, Nation's 'Gadget Maker'

Gateway to New England is Connecticut, a state of rolling hills, elm-tree shaded small towns, busy industrial cities. Like the state itself, Connecticut's industrial products for the most part are small, albeit of extraordinary variety. This had earned the state the additional title of "Gadget Maker to the Nation."

Connecticut is rich in history and in historical old Colonial homes. In an article such as this it is not possible to pinpoint every facet of historical interest nor describe every attraction and recreation area. What is true for Connecticut follows for the other New England states.

Here then is a sampling of the sights and attractions in Connecticut—and elsewhere in New England.

'Gun That Won West' Displayed

In Hartford, the Old State House, designed by Charles Bulfinch, is one of the most perfect examples of Colonial architecture. It is being preserved as a museum. The Colt 45 revolver, the "gun that won the West," was made in Hartford and a collection of Colt guns is on display at the State Library and Museum across the street from the State Capitol.

Mark Twain's home for twenty-five years, shaped much like a Mississippi riverboat, is in Hartford while in near-by Wethersfield visitors may tour the Webb House, where General Washington and Count de Rochambeau determined the strategy for the decisive Battle of Yorktown.

The Connecticut shore, protected by Long Island, which acts as a natural breakwater, is excellent for family bathing with its absence of breakers. Most of the shoreline is occupied by private and rented cottages and small inns and hotels. In addition, at New London there's a superb municipal resort, Ocean Beach, and the swimming is tops at Hammonasset State Park near Madison. Inland there are numerous lakes where vasation cottages are rented.

Early Whaling At Mystic Seaport

Near Groton is the famed Mystic Seaport, a re-created early whaling and sailing village which also features a museum, and two full-size ships, the Joseph Conrad and the old wooden whaling vessel, the Charles W. Morgan.

Along the shore are numerous fishing centers and excellent seafood restaurants.

By superhighway—the Connecticut Turnpike is one of the nation's newest—or winding backroad, by train or plane, Connecticut is pleasant to travel in.

In Massachusetts history looms even larger, for here are the names and events that occupy so many of the pages in our early American history book: Plymouth and Thanksgiving; the Boston Tea Party; the Salem Witch House; the massacre at Old Deerfield, not to mention the ride of Paul Revere, and the battles of Bunker Hill, Lexington and Concord.

Old Sturbridge In Woods and Hills

Old Sturbridge, on the southern border of the state near Worcester, is a re-created post-Revolutionary War village in a lovely setting of rolling hills and woods. Nearly all the buildings are authentic, having been moved to the village from other parts of New England. On a smaller scale but equally interesting is Storrowton, a collection of Colonial buildings, including a splendid tavern grouped around a commons on the grounds of the Eastern States Exposition in West Springfield.

The new Massachusetts Turnpike, which cuts across the state from Lenox in the west to Weston, ten miles from Boston, opens up all the state's varied vacation regions to car travelers. One of the most popular with New York visitors is the Berkshires, where at Lee every summer the Boston Symphony Orchestra performs in the famed Tanglewood festival.

Sightseers in Massachusetts, and in all New England, will enjoy visiting the numerous schools and colleges that have taken root in Yankeeland. In the Pioneer Valley area of Massachusetts around Northampton, for example, are Mt. Holyoke, Smith College, Amherst, Deerfield Academy and the University of Massachusetts.

Fresh water fishing and lake vacations are popular in Massachusetts, but certainly one of its best known recreation areas is a crooked arm of land

Continued on page 7, column 1

News (e)
AMESBURY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 2,500

JUN 24 1958

[281]

Rock and Roll to Rachmaninoff Will be Offered in New England

047

BY JOHN A. HAHN
United Press International

BOSTON (UPI)—Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893—seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singing Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio duo-pianists Pierre Iuboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R. I., jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorrillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language.

"But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck and Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three-day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season, time out fo. World War II, the Berkshire Music Center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5,893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surounding the shed.

General admission to the center grounds is $2 per person. Seats within the shed cost up to $6.50 each per concert.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

L

Sunday Standard-Times
NEW BEDFORD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 50,969

JUN 8 1958

Tanglewood Chamber Music Programs Are Announced

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, have been announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The eponing concert on July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and August 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahm's Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1 On Aug. 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Cen-

---

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUN 8 1958

Culture and Nature Share Spotlight in Berkshires

Natural Azalea Garden in Full Bloom Around Berry Pond Atop Taconic Range

Pittsfield, June 7—Culture and nature again will share the spotlight in the Berkshires' vacation-travel attractions this season.

Natural Show

One of the most colorful of the natural shows currently is at its peak in the Pittsfield State Forest where 100 acres of natural azalea gardens are in bloom. The pink, flowering trees surround Berry Pond, an 11-acre body of water atop a 2000-foot peak in the Taconic Range. The azalea gardens are the largest in New England and the pond is the highest natural body of water in Massachusetts.

Top billing in the cultural field will go, of course, to the Boston Symphony Orchestra's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood in Lenox. The Tanglewood season will run from July 2 to Aug. 10. Guest conductor Pierre Monteux, making his seventh annual visit to Tanglewood, will share the concerts with Dr. Charles Munch, BSO conductor.

Regular Star

Also, a regular star in the Berkshires' cultural attractions will be Ted Shawn's Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket. The Pillow will open its 26th season June 26. One of the feature attractions at the Pillow this season will be the appearance by the Ximenes-Vargar Spanish Ballet the week of July 21. Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky will be featured in the opening program.

Jazz and folk music are the cultural offerings at the Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox. Music Barn will open its season June 29 and run through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts Saturday afternoons at 3.30 and jazz concerts Sundays at 8.30 p. m.

Summer Theater

Two summer theaters round out the major cultural offerings. The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge will run from June 23 to Aug. 30, featuring Broadway and Hollywood stars. The Berkshires' other summer theater, the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, will run from July 3 to Aug. 30 with evening performances Tuesday through Saturdays and Saturday matinees. The Berkshire Playhouse will run evenings except Sunday, and will present matinees on Wednesdays and Saturdays.

Visitors to the Berkshires don't have to worry about what to do on a rainy day. The entire family will find something of interest in one of the many museums in the area. The Berkshire Museum in Pittsfield is one of the finest small museums of art and natural history in the country.

Also in Pittsfield, the Berkshire Athenaeum, the city's public library, has a Herman Melville Memorial Room which contains a collection of the works, personal effects and pictures of the author of Moby Dick. Melville wrote the epic novel in Pittsfield in 1850.

Newest Addition

Of special interest in the artistic line is Chesterwood in the south Berkshire village of Glendale. This is the studio used by the late great American sculptor, Daniel Chester French, from 1898 until his death in 1930. Displays include the model of the seated Lincoln which Mr. French made for the Lincoln Memorial.

Newest addition in the Berkshire-family of museums and art institutes is the Clark Art Institute in Williamstown. It was first opened in 1955 and is already rated one of the tops in the nation. Its hangings include 33 Renoirs and the displays include matchless silver from the 16th through 19th Centuries and 19th and 20th Century bronzes.

A visit to the Berkshires is never complete without a trip to Mount Greylock in north Berkshire. The 3491-foot peak is the highest in the state and may be reached by automobile. Mount Greylock is one of six suggested circle tours outlined in a brochure available on request from the Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South St., Pittsfield.

The Berkshires also have Massachussetts' only year-round resorts which are located on what formerly were vast private estates in these hills. Such resorts as Eastover in Lenox, Jug End Barn in South Egremont and Oak N' Spruce in South Lee, all have swimming pools and other modern facilities for their guests.

Also available on request from the Berkshire Hills Conference is a list of Berkshire lakes and ponds with information on what fish may be caught in each location.

MADEMOISELLE
NEW YORK, N. Y.
Circ. Mo. 533,563

APR 1958

Aspen and Tanglewood

Fast becoming one of America's two major music festivals and summer schools: the Aspen (Colo.) Music School and Festival. Its East Coast co[illegible]. 21 years old this summer: Berks[illegible]l, Tanglewood, Mass. Latter is one o[illegible] great musical events. But former is g[illegible]ing: what with faculty and performers including Tourel, Curtin, Milhaud, Juilliard String Quartette.

by Leo Lerman

CHICAGO, ILL.
AMERICAN
Circ. D. 524,823 - S. 706,407

MAR 1 6 1958

MAGAZINE DIGEST

Esquire, April

What's happened to humor? asks Malcolm Muggeridge, former editor of "Punch," the British humor magazine. Both in England and America, humor seems to be going out of fashion; the areas in which ridicule is permitted seem to be steadily shrinking.

He himself, says Muggeridge, is in trouble with a large part of the British population because of some "lighthearted remarks" about the monarchy. The outcries of rage are something entirely new; Max Beerbohm and Kipling made fun of royalty in a way that would be inconceivable now.

In totalitarian societies, humor is virtually abolished.

Americans, Muggeridge finds, "overflow with humorous comment and acid observations" in private. You'd expect to find plenty of social satirists in the U.S. Where are they? TV and the newspapers grow ever more solemn, the movies have lost their sparkle.

Muggeridge blames insecurity for the decay of humor on both sides of the Atlantic. "When people are fearful, they want everyone to be the same . . . In a conformist society, there is no room for a jester." He concludes:

"It may well be that those who seek to suppress or limit laughter are more dangerous than all the subversive conspiracies . . . Laughter is the most effective of all subversive conspiracies, and it operates on OUR side."

Holiday, March

Anywhere west of the Berkshire Music Festival, says Roger Angell, people are likely to think of Easterners as affected, condescending, a mite preoccupied with money, and a bit self-assured—as if their family or education or occupation were more exalted than yours.

Most Americans away from the Atlantic Coast area also feel the East is effete, no longer vigorous, not truly American, snobbish, foreign-dominated, money-grubbing. The charges are true, says Angell, but instead of being causes for distrust they make the East the most vigorous, interesting and influential area of the U. S.

The East is richer than even a Texans' wildest dreams. The six states of Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania have almost $90,000,000,000 tucked away in bank deposits; Massachusetts alone has some $100,000,000 more savings than Texas.

The Broadway theater today is about ready for the wheelchair. But what promises to save it is no energetic Western city—it's the Off-Broadway theater. In great orchestras, museums and libraries, universities and publishing houses, the East leads the country; a publisher has estimated that 43 per cent of all nontechnical books are bought in the area bounded by Maine, Washington, D. C., and Pittsburgh.

The Effete East, says Angell, is an American aristocracy—but one of accomplishment, not inheritance.

★ ★ ★

Coronet, March

Custom-built bone is now available to doctors and dentists. The development of Dr. Fred Losee, a dental researcher at the Naval Research Institute, it not only replaces crushed or malformed bones, but allows the body to build new ones in their place.

Dr. Losee's chemical process results in a chalk-white, lightweight solid, anorganic bone. The first human subject to benefit from it was a miner whose heel had been crushed; after an operation to replace the damaged bone with anorganic bone, he can walk again.

Research shows that the body fills the anorganic bone with blood vessels and brings new bone-building cells to it. As living tissue grows in its place the anorganic bone dissolves.

Scientists at the University of Michigan have found that a powder made of anorganic bone, sprinkled on the gum after a tooth extraction, quickly stops the bleeding. Armour & Co. is now providing doctors all over the world with anorganic bone for further study.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 295,512

JUL 6 - 1958

Tanglewood Concerts on WGBH-FM

For the fifth consecutive year, WGBH-FM is presenting broadcasts of all the Boston Symphony Orchestra summer concerts at Tanglewood Saturdays at 8:25 p.m. Charles Munch, music director, will conduct most of the concerts.

Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass, broadcast on July 19, with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists: Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramm.

WGBH-FM broadcast dates for the following outstanding American pianists performing this year are Leon Fleisher (Aug. 9), Byron Janis (Aug. 23), Seymour Lipkin (Sept. 8), Eugene Istomin (Sept. 15), and Leonard Pennario (Sept. 20), performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti (Aug. 30), Rugh Posselt (Sept. 1) and Bert Senofsky (Sept. 22). Joseph de Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto (broadcast Sept. 13) which was written especially for his performance.

In addition, chamber music by the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York and the New York Pro Musica Antiqua will be recorded. Performances by student ensembles will be presented throughout the coming WGBH-FM season.

[2P2]

Patriot-Ledger (e)
QUINCY, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 41,945

JUN 24 1958

From Jazz To Rachmaninoff:

New England Music Heads Outdoors

BOSTON (UPI)— Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893 - seat covered amphitheater.

Esplanade Concerts

With the close of the Boston Pops conoerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New Engalnd. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singing Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo - pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

R.I. Jazz Festival

The fifth annual Newport, R. I., jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck and Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three - day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season (time out for World War II) the Berkshire Music Center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5,893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed. General admission to the center grounds is $2 per person. Seats within the shed cost up to $6.50 each per concert.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer weekend jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South Mountain, Pittsfield.

Sunday Post
BRIDGEPORT, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 66,613

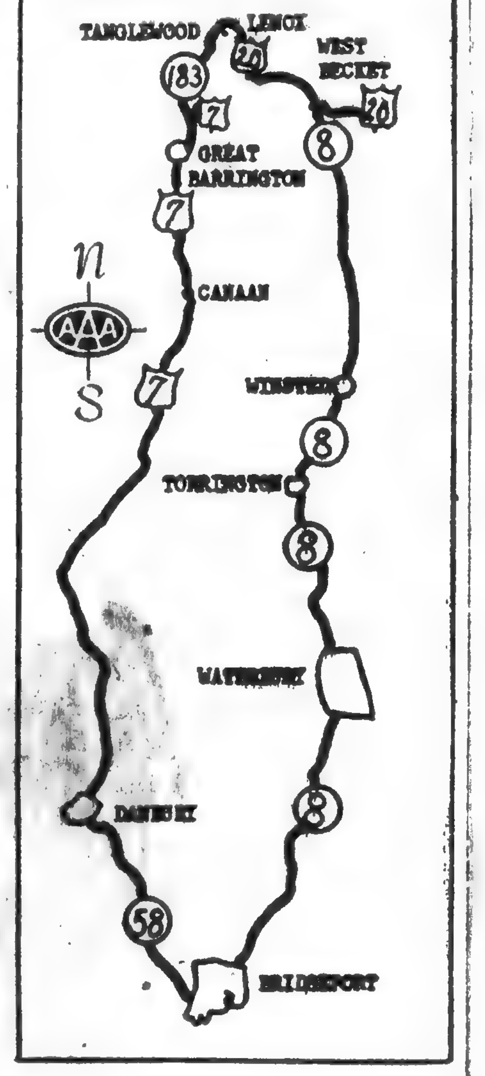
JUN 29 1958

Short Trips For

The Weekend Traveler

TANGLEWOOD

Suggested for weekend travelers is a pleasant trip to a spot with literary and musical overtones, Tanglewood in the Berkshires. Here the Boston Symphony appears every Summer in a series of concerts.



A round trip of 200 miles is involved for Bridgeport residents who take Route 58 to Danbury and then U. S. Route 7 north through Canaan to Great Barrington, Mass. This is both a summer and a winter resort center and, just before entering town, the party passes the fair grounds where the annual fair in September is one of the state's biggest.

A FEW MILES beyond town Route 183 angles off to the left. After a few more miles it crosses Route 102 and curves around the Stockbridge Bowl, about three miles out of Lenox. Now the group approaches the Dixey Estate, site of the Berkshire Music Festival and the location of the little red house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote his famous book, "The House of the Seven Gables," and collected material for his "Tanglewood Tales."

On this estate is the music shed where the concerts are given. Two types of accommodations are available. Some prefer to be in the music shed itself, closer to the music and seated, but many like the beautiful grounds outside where they may loll at ease or even walk around if it pleases them.

A visit offers an entertaining spectacle, even in addition to the music. Those who prefer to be outside the shed present an amazing contrast in costumes covering almost the entire field of attire. The first time visitor is apt to get the impression that this is a giant "come as you are" party where everyone arrives garbed as they were when the invitation was received.

THE VIEW from the grounds is close to spectacular, and the visitor might be advised to attend the concert, picnic on the grounds after it, and then take a short tour. The formal garden is a must on the list.

Leaving, the party heads into Lenox and then south on U. S. Route 20 for a dozen miles to West Becket where U. S. 20 cuts east, but the party heads south on Route 8. About 13 miles from here near New Boston is a view of Hanging Mountain, a perpendicular cliff about 300 feet high. Jutting out above the base are masses of rock that appear ready to plunge into the Famington river. Fragments loosened by the rain and frost do sometimes come crashing down with tremendous force.

Route 8 continues south, passing through Winstead, Torrington, Waterbury, Naugatuck, Derby and Seymore before bringing the party back to Bridgeport.

Empress Anna Ivanova of Russia was a niece of Peter the Great.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 111,788

MAR 16 1958

SUMMER MUSIC CAMP AT LENOX WILL BE OPENED

Ruth Hurwitz Is Founder And Director of Merrywood

West Hartford, Conn., March 15 — A new summer music camp and school featuring as instructors members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra has been launched by a West Hartford pianist and teacher. Mrs. Ruth Hurwitz, who has been teaching piano in the Hartford area for 25 years, is the founder and director.

The school, which goes by the name of Merrywood, is located in Lenox, Mass., not far from Tanglewood, where the Boston Symphony participates in the Berkshire Music Festival each summer. It will be open to boys and girls 13 to 17 years of age, and will go from June 28 to Aug. 10.

BSO Instructors

Available for teaching will be violinists Alfred Krips, George Zazofsky, Harry Dickson, Victor Manusevitch, first violist Joseph DePasquale, violist Eugen Lehner, first cellist Samuel Mayes, cellist Mischa Nieland, flutist Phillip Kaplan, and many other members of the orchestra.

Piano students will be taught by Mrs. Hurwitz, a graduate of the Institute of Musical Art of the Juilliard Foundation and a former student of Bruce Simonds of Yale University. Mrs. Hurwitz has done much chamber music and solo playing and has conducted classes for teen-agers in her West Hartford studio. She was for seven seasons associated with a summer music school in Maine.

The summer program will include frequent attendance at the Berkshire Festival, the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival, the theater and movies. Students will be encouraged to practice their instruments seriously, and there will be group singing, instrumental ensembles, and weekly musicales. Recreational activities include tennis, badminton, ping-pong, swimming, social dancing, and trips to places of interest.

Mrs. Hurwitz will accept a select group of about 20, who will live in a 17-room mansion, the atmosphere to be homelike and informal. For information write her at Merrywood, 27 Bishop Rd., West Hartford 7, Conn.

Recorder-Gazette (e)
GREENFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 12,393

JUN 21 1958

Around The Clock

Tanglewood Festival Attains Its Majority

By WAYNE A. SMITH

The most significant musical achievement in Western Massachusetts in the entire country, in fact — this year becomes of age. Tanglewood Festival will be 21.

It was in 1937 that Mr. Gorham Brooks, a pattern of the arts and sponsor of New England as a music center, offered to the Boston Symphony Orchestral Society, the famous estate where Hawthorne wrote his "Wonder Book" and "House of Seven Gables" as a permanent home for the Berkshire Festivals.

The music idea, however, is four years older. In 1934 Dr. Henry Hadley, a famous conductor and composer, on one of his many visits to the Berkshire Hills, conceived the idea of a Berkshire Musical Festival. Inspired by the cultural developments of the area, Dr. Hadley chose it for a festival setting. He proposed his plan to Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, a patroness of the arts, who in turn agreed with Owen Johnson and other leading citizens of New England interested in advancing the Berkshire Hills as an art center, to sponsor the fete.

First Series In 1934

The first series of concerts consisted of three and were given under bright skies on the evenings of Aug. 23, 24 and 25, 1934; Said the press:

"The sponsors of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival made good their promise of music under the moon last night when they presented 65 members of the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra under the eminent conductor, Henry Hadley, in a program on the grounds of the Dan R. Hanna farm in Stockbridge as the first of the annual Berkshire Symphonic Festivals of three concerns. An audience which must have numbered more than 3000 filled the well-planned auditorium. As the concert began a full moon was poised quarter way up in the eastern heavens, shining directly and refulgently on the field of eager faces. The acoustic properties of the shell were excellent, all things considered. The music carried to the last bench".

The first Festival attracted from 1,800 to 3,000 patrons at each performance, and the board of directors shared the responsibility for a small deficit.

The Berkshire Symphonic Festival, now a non-profit organization with no capital stock, was incorporated under laws of the state with broad provisions to encourage education in the arts; to organize, conduct and support an annual music festival; and to provide opportunities for developing musical and artistic talents.

Chorus Added

A second season was arranged a year later at the same location with Dr. Hadley again leading the orchestra of increased personnel. To make a more complete festival the Berkshire Music Association of 200 voices was chosen to augment the orchestral performance and Rudolph Ganz, pianist, was engaged as soloist for one concert. As a precaution against rainy weather a large circus tent was erected to house the fete in addition to the open air arrangement. A rainstorm proved its value.

It proved also that a tent was not sufficient. This eventually led later to transfer of the festival to the current site at Tanglewood and construction of the great music shed capable of seating thousands in comfort. The old tent served its purpose, but not well enough. Dampness raised havoc with sensitive tuning of violins and cellos to say nothing of the disposition of patrons who had paid to hear the music. Sometimes the concert was severely muffled by the sound of rain on the great canvas.

Several times we were among audiences crouched within the tent striving to catch muted tones and delicate phrasing. The situation with the performers must have been much worse. It was with mutual delight that news of the prospective permanent shed fell upon ears of musicians and music lovers.

Boston Adds Prestige

It was the third season that brought Boston Symphony Orchestra into the festival scene. Dr. Serge Koussevitzky accepted the invitation with great enthusiasm and on Aug. 13, 1936, he led his group in their Festival debut. Three concerts were given this time on the estate of Margaret Emerson between Stockbridge and Lenox on the west shores of Laurel Lake under a tent with seating capacity of 5.000. It was this year also that the Festival become known through the nation and brought new recognition to Western Massachusetts.

Thereafter the scene shifted to Tanglewood, the beautiful estate on a bluff to the north of Lake Mahkeenac. Mrs. Brooks' gift was accepted and the tent used again in 1937, but with an additional section added to handle increased clientele. It was during the second concert that a cloud burst broke upon the crowd with such a din that the music was all but wiped out. Dr. Koussevitsky made three attempts to proceed with the program, but not until late in the evening did the tempest abate.

By early the following winter enough money had been subscribed to give the trustees confidence to plan for a new pavilion and to begin work on Jan. 1, 1938 on the great project which was to become the world famous Tanglewood Shed as it is known today. This is a building of simplicity. Said the 1938 Berkshire Symphonic Festival program:

"It is believed to be the larges and most unique structure fo symphonic music in the Unite States. It covers an acre and half of ground. It is fan-shap and seats 5.700 people, includin 80 boxes. The outer curve of th fan measures 404 feet, more tha two New York City blocks. Th height of the structure is over 4 feet and the distance from th stage to the last bench is 1 feet, beyond which is a su rounding arcade 20 feet hig When you see the small concre caps around the base of eac column it is hard to realize th down deep in the ground is block of concrete over eight fe square, weighing 14 tons.

Illusion of Outdoors

"The result is that the aud ence, while entirely protecte from sun and rain, still has th illusion of being out of doors. Th stage is as large as Symphon Hall in Boston. On one side i a 'green room' for Dr. Kouss vitsky and on the other, one fo guest artists, while at the bac is a large tuning room full equipped for the musicians".

This is the beginning of Tanglewood Festival as it has become known to millions. Toda it attracts more than 10,000 a a single program. And since Dr. Koussevitsky's death the same high standard of performance has been maintained by his successor, Dr. Charles Munch.

Next week we will tell you what is in store for the 1958 season.

[283]

Press (e)
MIDDLETOWN, Conn.
Independent
Circ. 16,139

JUN 24 1958

Wide Variety of Music Awaits New England Summer Visitors

By JOHN A. HAHN

BOSTON, June 24 — (UPI) — from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rythems will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893-seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony hall this week, music moves out of doors. The Pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire Music center in Tanglewood, beauty sspot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, Mass., starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in Southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk Singer Odetta and "Ethnic Dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts trio, duo-pianists Pierre Lubeshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The Esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire Festival concerts at Lenox, Mass.

The fifth annual Newport, R.I. Jazz Festival opens July 3 at Freebody park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz Festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck, Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening-night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three-day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season (time out for World War II) the Berkshire Music center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5,839 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed. General admission to the center grounds is $2 per person. Seats within the shed cost up to $6.50 each per concert.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston Symphony orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer weekend jazz concerts at the Music inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South mountain, Pittsfield.

News (e)
NEWBURYPORT, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 6,366

JUN 26 1958

Rock 'n' Roll to Rachmaninoff Awaits New Eng

By JOHN A. HAHN
United Press International

BOSTON (UPI)— Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893 - seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singing Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo - pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R. I., jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck and Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three - day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season (time out for World War II) the Berkshire Music Center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5,893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed. General admission to the center grounds is $2 per person. Seats within the shed cost up to $6.50 each per concert.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer weekend jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera

---

Times (e)
GLOUCESTER, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 9,351

JUN 24 1958

New England Music Moving Outdoors

By JOHN A. HAHN
United Press International

BOSTON (UPI)— Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893 - seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singing Odetta and ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo - pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R.I. jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck and Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three - day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkhsire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season (time out for World War II) the Berkshire Music Center offers classes for young musicians taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed.

General admission to the center grounds is $2 per person. Seats within the shed cost up to $6.50 each per concert.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer weekend jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South Mountain, Pittsfield.

Herald News (e)
FALL RIVER, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 39,701

JUN 24 1958

All Types of Music Are Available To New Englanders This Summer

BOSTON, (UPI)—Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this Summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893-seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the ~~Boston~~ Pops Concert in Symphony Hall this week, music moves outdoors. The Pops musicians give five free concerts on the Charles River Esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire Music Center in Tanglewood.

Starts This Week

Castle Hill in Ipswich starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the Great House, part of the former Crane estate.

Folk singer Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo-pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden Dance Quartet.

The Esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire Festival concerts at Lenox.

Jazz at Newport

The fifth annual Newport Jazz Festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz Festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck, Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening-night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three-day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Concerts and Classes

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitsky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire Festival is perhaps the most ambitious Summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season (time out for World War II) the Berkshire Music center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5,893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer weekend jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South Mountain, Pittsfield.

Berkshire Eagle (e)
PITTSFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 28,354

JUN 19 1958

Information Booth Registrations Lag

LENOX — Registration of homeowners who wish to rent rooms during the Tanglewood season is lagging, the information booth at the Community Center announced today.

Mrs. John M. O'Brien, who runs the booth for the Kiwanis Club, said she hoped persons with rooms to rent would notify her before the seasonal rush of tourists starts. She said she has received many inquiries so far asking about accommodations in town.

The Kiwanis service does not make reservations for guests. It gives summer visitors names of local residents who will rent rooms. The service carries informatio only about rooms in Lenox proper

The informations booth is ope every day, including Saturday from 9:30 to 5. It opened for th season June 9.

[284]

Enterprise
BEDFORD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Comb. Circ. 4,700

JUN 26 1958

Sun (e)
HUDSON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 2,220

JUN 24 1958

Enterprise
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Comb. Circ. 4700

Music Reigns Supreme In New England During Long Summer Period

By JOHN A. HAHN
United Press International

Boston UPI — Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893-seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singing Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo-pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bem enoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R. I. jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson Dave Burbeck and Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three-day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season time out for World War II the Berkshire Music Center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5,893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer week end jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South Mountain, Pittsfield.

Advocate (e)
STAMFORD, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 25,059

JUN 18 1958

Tanglewood Offers Wealth Of Attractions To Visitor

This suggestion by the American Automobile Association involves a pleasant trip to a spot with literary and musical overtones, Tanglewood in the Berkshires. Here the Boston Symphony appears every summer in a series of concerts.

A round trip of 235 miles is involved for Stamford residents who head east on the Merritt Parkway and then north on U. S. Route 7 through Danbury and Canaan to Great Barrington, Mass. This is both a summer and a winter resort center and just before entering town, the party passes the fairgrounds where the annual fair in September is one of the state's biggest.

A few miles beyond town, Route 183 angles off to the left. After a few more miles it croses Route 102 and curves around a beautiful lake known as the Stockbridge Bowl, about three miles out of Lenox. Now the group approaches the Dixey Estate, site of the Berkshire Music Festival and the location of the little red house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote his famous book, "The House of the Seven Gables," and collected material for his "Tanglewood Tales."

On this estate is the music shed where the concerts are given. Two types of accommodations are available. Some prefer to be in the music shed itself, closer to the music and seated, but many like the beautiful grounds outside where they may loll at ease or walk around.

A visit offers an entertaining spectacle, even in addition to the music. Those who prefer to be outside the shed present an amazing contrast in costumes covering almost the entire field of attire. The first-time visitor is apt to get the impression that this is a giant "come as you are" party where everyone arrives garbed as they were when the invitation was received.

The view from the grounds is close to spectacular, and the visitor might be advised to attend the concert, picnic on the grounds after it, and then take a short tour. The formal garden is a must on the list.

Leaving the party heads into Lenox and then south on U. S. Route 20 for a dozen miles to West Becket where U. S. 20 cuts east, but the party heads south on Route 8. About 13 miles from here near New Boston is a view of Hanging Mountain, a perpendicular cliff about 300 feet high. Jutting out above the base are masses of rock that appear ready to plunge into the Farmington River. Fragments loosened by the rain and frost do sometimes come crashing down with tremendous force.

Route 8 continues south, passing through Winsted and entering Torrington. From here it's Route 25 southwesterly 25 miles to New Milford at the junction with U. S. Route 7. Then it's U. S. 7 south to the Merritt Parkway and home.

Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 41,960

JUN 24 1958

New England Scene

Music Goes Out-of-Doors

By John A. Hahn

BOSTON, June 24 (UPI)—Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5893-seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The Pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River Esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill, in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singer Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo-pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R. I., jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

GOSPEL SINGER Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck, Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening-night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three-day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitsky, then conductor of the Boston symphony orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season (time out for World War II) the Berkshire music center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25, and continue on three successive week-ends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed. General admission to the center grounds is $2 per person. Seats within the shed cost up to $6.50 each per concert.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston symphony orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer week-end jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South mountain, Pittsfield.

Record-Lending Service Opens July 1 at Library

Eagle
June 27
'58

LENOX—The first record-lending service to be offered by a public library in Southern Berkshire will be started here July 1.

The record-lending division of the library will open, with approximately 200 long-playing classical albums available. Mrs. C. D. Jackson, chairman of the library's music committee, said the record library was made possible through grants by the committee. The project will be sustained in part by a gift from Mrs. Bruce V. Sanborn of Stockbridge Road. The gift of money was placed in trust last winter and the earned interest will be put into the record library.

About 150 of the albums to be loaned are new. The other 50-odd are gifts from Mrs. Frederic J. De Veau of Sunset Street, presented from her late husband's collection.

Mrs. Jackson said the record albums will cost 10 cents each per week to borrow. There will be an additional charge of five cents a day for records kept more than a week. During the Tanglewood season recordings of the works featured there will not be loaned. These records will not be allowed outside the music listening room of the library.

Shelves for the new volumes have been added to the library stacks by John J. Novo, building superintendent. The wooden racks can hold more than 400 albums.

Mrs. Jackson said the library has as its immediate goal 500 classical record albums. She said a popular and children's record subdivision may be added later.

Any record album donations will be accepted as well as gifts of musical scores.

West Street Work Finished in Time For Tanglewood

LENOX — The West Street approach to Tanglewood from the center of town is now ready for the heavy motor travel during the next six weeks.

From the monument opposite the Curtis Hotel to the first entrance to Tanglewood, West Street has been widened about four feet to two full lanes, resurfaced, and bordered with curbing painted white. Work started on the road in April and was finished last week.

The grass lanes were retained between the street and the sidewalk.

The job is estimated to have cost about $45,000. Of this amount, $35,000 was given by the state as a Chapter 90 project and $5,000 was used by the town-granted Chapter 718. These amounts were supplemented by $2,500 from the county and a similar amount appropriated by the town at the 1956 town meeting.

Only one tree was cut along the right of way. Nat Beacco & Sons of Stockbridge were the contractors.

New Englander
BOSTON, Mass.
Circ. 9,500

JUN 1958

EDUCATION

New Summer Study Guide

The New England states once more are offering the opportunity to combine study and vacation in one summer trip.

The New England Council's Education Committee has released its annual directory of Summer Study in New England with an extensive listing of courses ranging from art to zoology along with their cost, location and duration.

The 43-page booklet covers the offerings of 76 colleges, universities, junior colleges, prep schools, and adult education centers. There are an additional 48 institutions listed including schools for arts and crafts, dance, drama, music and other special studies such as Audubon camps, optometry, leadership training, sacred theology, Cape Cod secretarial school and the famed Bread Loaf Writers' Conference of Middlebury College.

Apprenticeships are offered by the Provincetown, Mass., Playhouse; there's the Haystock Mountain School of Crafts at Liberty, Me.; the Worcester Foundation For Experimental Biology conducts a co-educational precollegiate science summer school at St. Mark's School, Southboro, Mass.; and the Berkshire Music Center at Lenox, Mass., holds classes concurrently with the Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUN 8 1958

DETAILS GIVEN FOR WEDNESDAY NIGHT CONCERTS

Kroll Quartet to Appear In Last Two at Tanglewood

Boston, June 7—Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Program of Sonop

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1; Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120; Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66. The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On Aug. 6, the quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the festival office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

[284]

Enterprise
BEDFORD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Comb. Circ. 4,700

JUN 26 1958

Music Reigns Supreme In New England During Long Summer Period

By JOHN A. HAHN
United Press International

Boston UPI — Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5,893-seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singing Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo-pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R. I. jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody Park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson Dave Burbeck and Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three-day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season time out for World War II the Berkshire Music Center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25 and continue on three successive weekends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5,893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer week end jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South Mountain, Pittsfield.

[illegible]
Circ. [illegible]

JUN 2[illegible] 1958

Enterprise
CONCORD, Mass.
Weekly Ind. Rep.
Comb. Circ. 4700

Advocate (e)
STAMFORD, Conn.
Independent Republican
Circ. 25,059

JUN 18 1958

Tanglewood Offers Wealth Of Attractions To Visitor

This suggestion by the American Automobile Association involves a pleasant trip to a spot with literary and musical overtones, Tanglewood in the Berkshires. Here the Boston Symphony appears every summer in a series of concerts.

A round trip of 235 miles is involved for Stamford residents who head east on the Merritt Parkway and then north on U. S. Route 7 through Danbury and Canaan to Great Barrington, Mass. This is both a summer and a winter resort center and, just before entering town, the party passes the fairgrounds where the annual fair in September is one of the state's biggest.

A few miles beyond town, Route 183 angles off to the left. After a few more miles it croses Route 102 and curves around a beautiful lake known as the Stockbridge Bowl, about three miles out of Lenox. Now the group approaches the Dixey Estate, site of the Berkshire Music Festival and the location of the little red house in which Nathaniel Hawthorne wrote his famous book, "The House of the Seven Gables," and collected material for his "Tanglewood Tales."

On this estate is the music shed where the concerts are given. Two types of accommodations are available. Some prefer to be in the music shed itself, closer to the music and seated, but many like the beautiful grounds outside where they may loll at ease or walk around.

A visit offers an entertaining spectacle, even in addition to the music. Those who prefer to be outside the shed present an amazing contrast in costumes covering almost the entire field of attire. The first-time visitor is apt to get the impression that this is a giant "come as you are" party where everyone arrives garbed as they were when the invitation was received.

The view from the grounds is close to spectacular, and the visitor might be advised to attend the concert, picnic on the grounds after it, and then take a short tour. The formal garden is a must on the list.

Leaving the party heads into Lenox and then south on U. S. Route 20 for a dozen miles to West Becket where U. S. 20 cuts east, but the party heads south on Route 8. About 13 miles from here near New Boston is a view of Hanging Mountain, a perpendicular cliff about 300 feet high. Jutting out above the base are masses of rock that appear ready to plunge into the Farmington River. Fragments loosened by the rain and frost do sometimes come crashing down with tremendous force.

Route 8 continues south, passing through Winsted and entering Torrington. From here it's Route 25 southwesterly 25 miles to New Milford at the junction with U. S. Route 7. Then it's U. S. 7 south to the Merritt Parkway and home.

Sun (e)
LOWELL, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 41,960

JUN 24 1958

New England Scene

Music Goes Out-of-Doors

By John A. Hahn

BOSTON, June 24 (UPI)—Music from rock 'n' roll to Rachmaninoff awaits the visitor to New England this summer.

Rhythms will be heard from sea coast to mountains, from intimate garden settings to a 5893-seat covered amphitheater.

With the close of the Boston Pops concerts in Symphony Hall this week, music moves out of doors. The Pops musicians give free concerts on the Charles River Esplanade in Boston between assignments at the Berkshire music center in Tanglewood, beauty spot of the Berkshires.

Castle Hill, in Ipswich, starts off the formal rounds of outdoor music in southern New England. Programs, ranging from Duke Ellington to the Beaux Arts Trio, are held in a formal garden, weather permitting. If it rains the audience moves inside to the great house, part of the former Crane estate known as Castle Hill.

Folk singer Odetta and "ethnic dancer" Pearl Primus open the Castle Hill series Friday and Saturday. Following will be Ellington and his band, 'cellist Leonard Rose, pianist Jean Dancereau, soprano Adele Addison; the Beaux Arts Trio, duo-pianists Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Bemenoff, and the Melissa Hayden dance quartet.

The esplanade concerts will be given June 29 through July 11 and Aug. 11-16, following the Berkshire festival concerts at Lenox.

The fifth annual Newport, R. I., jazz festival opens July 3 at Freebody park. The 1958 edition will have a "foreign" beat, including a unique band with one jazz musician from each of 17 nations.

Jazz festival President Louis L. Lorillard said most of the members of the band, which has an average age of 23, cannot even understand each other's language. "But music is proving to be a universal medium of communicating between them as it should for people everywhere," he said.

GOSPEL SINGER Mahalia Jackson, Dave Brubeck, Gerry Mulligan will take part in an opening-night tribute to Ellington. Other stars of the three-day jazz session will include Louis Armstrong, Benny Goodman, Jack Teagarden, Buck Clayton, Pee Wee Russell, Bobby Hackett and Chris Connor.

Established in 1940 by the late Serge Koussevitzky, then conductor of the Boston symphony orchestra, the Berkshire festival is perhaps the most ambitious summer music project in the northeast. Now in its 16th season (time out for World War II) the Berkshire music center offers classes for young musicians, taught by masters of the profession, in addition to the concert series.

The formal concerts begin Friday, July 25, and continue on three successive week-ends through Aug. 10. Many of the 5893 seats in the huge outdoor music shed were subscribed in advance but there will be plenty of room outside on the lawns surrounding the shed. General admission to the center grounds is $2 per person. Seats within the shed cost up to $6.50 each per concert.

Charles Munch and Pierre Monteux share the baton as conductors of the Boston symphony orchestra in the shed.

The Berkshires also offer week-end jazz concerts at the Music Inn in Lenox; dance programs at the Jacob's Pillow dance festival in Lee; chamber music and opera in concert form at South mountain, Pittsfield.

Record-Lending Service Opens July 1 at Library

Eagle June 27 '58

LENOX—The first record-lending service to be offered by a public library in Southern Berkshire will be started here July 1.

The record-lending division of the library will open, with approximately 200 long-playing classical albums available. Mrs. C. D. Jackson, chairman of the library's music committee, said the record library was made possible through grants by the committee. The project will be sustained in part by a gift from Mrs. Bruce V. Sanborn of Stockbridge Road. The gift of money was placed in trust last winter and the earned interest will be put into the record library.

About 150 of the albums to be loaned are new. The other 50-odd are gifts from Mrs. Frederic J. De Veau of Sunset Street, presented from her late husband's collection.

Mrs. Jackson said the record albums will cost 10 cents each per week to borrow. There will be an additional charge of five cents a day for records kept more than a week. During the Tanglewood season recordings of the works featured there will not be loaned. These records will not be allowed outside the music listening room of the library.

Shelves for the new volumes have been added to the library stacks by John J. Novo, building superintendent. The wooden racks can hold more than 400 albums.

Mrs. Jackson said the library has as its immediate goal 500 classical record albums. She said a popular and children's record subdivision may be added later.

Any record album donations will be accepted as well as gifts of musical scores.

West Street Work Finished in Time For Tanglewood

LENOX — The West Street approach to Tanglewood from the center of town is now ready for the heavy motor travel during the next six weeks.

From the monument opposite the Curtis Hotel to the first entrance to Tanglewood, West Street has been widened about four feet to two full lanes, resurfaced, and bordered with curbing painted white. Work started on the road in April and was finished last week.

The grass lanes were retained between the street and the sidewalk.

The job is estimated to have cost about $45,000. Of this amount, $35,000 was given by the state as a Chapter 90 project and $5,000 was used by the town-granted Chapter 718. These amounts were supplemented by $2,500 from the county and a similar amount appropriated by the town at the 1956 town meeting.

Only one tree was cut along the right of way. Nat Beacco & Sons of Stockbridge were the contrac-

---

New Englander
BOSTON, Mass.
Circ. 9,500

JUN 1958

EDUCATION

New Summer Study Guide

The New England states once more are offering the opportunity to combine study and vacation in one summer trip.

The New England Council's Education Committee has released its annual directory of Summer Study in New England with an extensive listing of courses ranging from art to zoology along with their cost, location and duration.

The 43-page booklet covers the offerings of 76 colleges, universities, junior colleges, prep schools, and adult education centers. There are an additional 48 institutions listed including schools for arts and crafts, dance, drama, music and other special studies such as Audubon camps, optometry, leadership training, sacred theology, Cape Cod secretarial school and the famed Bread Loaf Writers' Conference of Middlebury College.

Apprenticeships are offered by the Provincetown, Mass., Playhouse; there's the Haystock Mountain School of Crafts at Liberty, Me.; the Worcester Foundation For Experimental Biology conducts a co-educational precollegiate science summer school at St. Mark's School, Southboro, Mass.; and the Berkshire Music Center at Lenox, Mass., holds classes concurrently with the Berkshire Festival of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUN 8 1958

DETAILS GIVEN FOR WEDNESDAY NIGHT CONCERTS

Kroll Quartet to Appear In Last Two at Tanglewood

Boston, June 7—Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

Program of Scope

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1, No. 1; Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120; Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66. The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. and Brahms' Quartet No. 1 in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On Aug. 6, the quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the festival office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

[285]

WEEK-END IN THE BERKSHIRES

B Globe - June 8

Come This Month and View All the Natural Beauty

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—June is the month for Boston area residents to make a day or week-end trip to the Berkshire Hills to plan a Summer vacation in this western Massachusetts playland.

★ ★ ★

Although the regular schedule of Berkshire cultural attractions will not open until late this month, the natural attractions will make an early June trip to these hills rewarding and give you an opportunity to window shop for your full Summer vacation.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South st., Pittsfield, will provide on request informational literature on in the Berkshires A new things to do and places to see edition of a circle tour folder contains a large map of the area with six circle tours outlined. On the reverse side of the map are detailed driving directions for the tours.

A must stop for all June visitors here are the natural azalea gardens in Pittsfield State Forest on the outskirts of this central Berkshire city. These are the largest of their kind in New England, with the pink flowering trees covering 100 acres surrounding Berry Pond. This 11-acre pond, highest natural body of water in Massachusetts, is atop Berry Mountain, a 2000-foot peak in the Taconic Range. This area can be reached by car over a good road.

Another popular attraction is the Pleasant Valley Wildlife Sanctuary on Route 20 in Lenox. A trailside museum and a real beaver pond are included in this mile-square preserve.

Right Next Door

Thanks to the new Massachusetts turnpike, the beauties of the Berkshires are just a short 2½-hour drive from Boston's backyard. For a one-day family outing, there are excellent picnic facilities at many roadside facilities provided by the state or at the many state parks.

If inland fishing is your sport, the trout are at their hungriest this month in the more than 100 streams and dozen ponds and lakes. A heavy schedule of Spring stocking by the state is giving the Berkshires its most productive trout season in many years. And even the youngest or most inexperienced of anglers can catch scrappy blue gills without cease at such places as Hoosac Lake in the Berkshire town of Cheshire.

Cheshire is one of the spots covered in the circle tour folder. One of Cheshire's bids for fame dates from 1801 when the hamlet's farmers made a huge wheel of cheese and sent it to President Jefferson. A life-size replica of the cider press in which the 1235-pound cheese was made is located in the center of the town.

Art, Music

A short trip to the Berkshires this month also will provide time for a look at some of the cultural spots which soon will be teeming with lovers of the arts. In Lenox, the Tanglewood grounds are at their Spring peak of beauty. It is here that the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open the annual six-week Berkshire Music Festival July 2.

The Berkshires have two Summer theaters which are rated among the top in the straw hat circuit. The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge will run from June 23 to Aug. 30, and the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, July 3 to Aug. 30.

July 1 is the opening date for the 26th year at Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket. Ted Shawn will offer Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Dance Company, and Shrimathi Gina of India for the opening week at the Pillow.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox will open its season June 29. The Music Barn will operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts every Saturday at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

And, you never have to worry about what to do in the Berkshires if it rains. The entire family will find something of interest in one of the many museums in the area. Right in Pittsfield is the Berkshire Museum, one of the finest small museums of art and natural history in the county.

In the southern Berkshire town of Stockbridge is an historic museum called the Mission House. It was built in 1739 by Rev. John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians. The Mission House is furnished with priceless American antiques.

Newest addition to the Berkshire museum family is the Clark Art Institute in Williamstown. It was first opened in 1955 and already is one of the best of its kind in the nation. Its paintings include 33 Renoirs and the displays cover matchless silver and sculpture.

Hotel & Rest. News
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly

1 1958

Berkshire County Region Promoted In Sunday Globe

A 16-page magazine supplement in color, originated by and promoting the Berkshire County region appeared in the Boston Globe, May 11.

Endorsed and underwritten by firms and associations in the County, the supplement featured the slogan "Where Your Daily Work Is Fun And Where Living Is Unexcelled."

The opening story featured John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference, Pittsfield. Developing the two themes of recreation and industry, the supplement featured stories on the Clark Art Collection, Williamstown; Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, Tanglewood Music Festival, Lenox; the Mohawk Trail and other attractions.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886
JUN 1 - 1958

Second Thoughts On Music

Chamber Music Ensembles To Open Berkshire Festival

Budapest, Beaux Arts, Pro Musica Antiqua, Kroll Groups Booked at Tanglewood On Wednesday Nights; Bach-Mozart Series Starts July 4

By WILLARD M. CLARK

The 1958 Berkshire Festival put on by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood will open Wednesday, July 2, in aristocratic fashion with a concert by the Budapest String Quartet. These Wednesday night chamber music programs draw a distinguished audience. Other ensembles to be heard during the series will be the Beaux Arts Trio, New York Pro Musica Antiqua, the Kroll Quartet and, for added interest, a recital by Wagnerian soprano Margaret Harshaw and others.

Thursday nights will be given over to a series of concerts by the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, and a very good one it usually turns out to be. It is during these concerts that the young conductors show their wares.

Bach-Mozart Series

Beginning Friday, July 4, Charles Munch will launch the usual week end Bach-Mozart series. The opening concert will be given over to the Bach suites, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4. A week later, the 11th, we shall hear Mozart's "Musical Joke" and the "Sinfonia Concertante," with Ruth Posselt and Joseph DiPasquale, as soloists. On Friday, July 18, the program to Brahms' "Serenade No. 2" in A; Copland's "Variations for Orchestra" and Brahms' fourth symphony.

Music by Glinka, Tchaikowsky, Milhaud, Debussy and Ravel will feature the program of Friday, July 25, and the venerable Pierre Monteux will be on the podium on Aug. 1. Dr. Munch will direct a program devoted to works by Wagner and Walter Piston's viola concerto. Joseph DiPasquale will be soloist in the concerto and Margaret Harshaw will be heard in the Immolation scene from "Die Gotterdamerung."

The Saturday night programs range far and wide. The first Saturday program will introduce one of the Center's favorite pianist, Lukas Foss, who will play the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor. Dr. Munch will conduct the mighty "Art of the Fugue." The following Saturday brings an all-Mozart program which includes the "Eine Kliene Nachtmusik." Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss playing the two-piano concerto, K. 365, "Serenade No. 10 for Winds" and Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Saturday, the 19th, Charles Munch will conduct a performance of the Brahms' "Requiem" with Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, as soloists and the Festival chorus.

Young Pianists

The next week brings the first of a group of young piano soloists. The first will be Byron Janis, who will be heard in Rachmaninoff's third piano concerto. The program will also include Stravinsky's "Agon" and Debussy's "La Mer." On Saturday, Aug. 2, Leonard Pennario will play the Liszt Concerto No. 1 in E flat. Vaughan Williams' eighth symphony is also programmed, along with Wagner excerpts.

Saturday, Aug. 9, Berl Senofsky makes his debut in Beethoven's violin concerto, Pierre Monteux conducting. Other works programmed include "Nobilissima Visione" by Hindemith and Beethoven's music from "Prometheus."

Sunday, July 6, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, will perform the Bach "B-Minor Mass." Soloists include Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramm. The following week, July 13, Seymour Lipkin will play the Mozart Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467. There will also be choral works of Mozart directed by Hugh Ross. The distinguished pianist Leon Fleisher and Pierre Monteux will join in a performance of Brahms' first piano concerto Sunday, July 20, and the program will also include Stravinsky's ballet 'Petrouchka.'"

On the 27th Zino Francescatti returns to Tanglewood to play the Tchaikowsky violin concerto under the direction of Mr. Munch. The program also includes Bartok's "Music for Strings" and Ravel's "Daphnis et Chloe." On Aug. 3 Margaret Harshaw and Pierre Montuex join forces in an all-Wagner program, and the final concert, Aug. 10, will be given over to a performance of Beethoven's ninth symphony and Walton's "Johannesburg Festival" overture.

CLIBURN TO PLAY AT BRUSSELS FAIR

New York, May 31 — The recent Van Cliburn luncheon, introducing his parents to the musical world, provided two pieces of spot news. One was the information that he has been selected to participate in the Brussels Fair as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy on July 5, the other that he would be among the summer's soloists at the Lewisohn Stadium. (This was a foregone conclusion for those who know the management's interest in anybody with his kind of current "name" value.)

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937
JUN 5 - 1958

Chamber Music Programs Listed For Tanglewood

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The concert, Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard July 9 in Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C. major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On Aug. 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 295,512
JUN 8 1958

Music Festival At Tanglewood In the Berkshires

B Globe

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to Aug. 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts; Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6, with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky, and Ruth Posselt and Joseph de Pasquale, viola. De Pasquale will be soloist in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him. Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahms' "Requiem." The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on Aug. 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week-ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theater-Concert Hall); July 11-12-13 (devoted to the music of Mozart and also held in the Theater-Concert Hall), and the final four week-ends by the full Boston Orchestra in the 6000 seat Music Shed. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; Aug. 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital.

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theater-Concert Hall or in the Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns. Many events of the Boston Symphony's Summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performance of orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera. Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attractions to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike, the New York Thruway and Route 7 from New York city. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the festival office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

TOWERING PINES line the entrance to Tanglewood, summer headquarters of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Berkshire Festival will run from July 2 to August 10. Charles Munch will conduct.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box 2078, Boston 6 • RIchmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 295,512

JUN 8 1958

Boston Symphony Program on Channel 2

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform three major works tonight at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

The concert, which was recorded on kinescope film earlier this year, is conducted by Charles Munch, music director. The program consists of Brahms, Academic Festival Overture, Op. 80; Mendelssohn, Symphony No. 5 in D minor, Op. 107, "The Reformation"; and Beethoven, Symphony No 3 in E flat, Op. 55, "The Eroica."

Channel 2 filmed five Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts at Sanders Theatre, Harvard University, this past season for national distribution to more than 30 educational stations

[285]

WEEK-END IN THE BERKSHIRES

Globe - June 8

Come This Month and View All the Natural Beauty

PITTSFIELD, Mass.—June is the month for Boston area residents to make a day or week-end trip to the Berkshire Hills to plan a Summer vacation in this western Massachusetts playland.

★ ★ ★

Although the regular schedule of Berkshire cultural attractions will not open until late this month, the natural attractions will make an early June trip to these hills rewarding and give you an opportunity to window shop for your full Summer vacation.

The Berkshire Hills Conference, 50 South st., Pittsfield, will provide on request informational literature on in the Berkshires A new things to do and places to see edition of a circle tour folder contains a large map of the area with six circle tours outlined. On the reverse side of the map are detailed driving directions for the tours.

A must stop for all June visitors here are the natural azalea gardens in Pittsfield State Forest on the outskirts of this central Berkshire city. These are the largest of their kind in New England, with the pink flowering trees covering 100 acres surrounding Berry Pond. This 11-acre pond, highest natural body of water in Massachusetts, is atop Berry Mountain, a 2000-foot peak in the Taconic Range. This area can be reached by car over a good road.

Another popular attraction is the Pleasant Valley Wildlife Sanctuary on Route 20 in Lenox. A trailside museum and a real beaver pond are included in this mile-square preserve.

Right Next Door

Thanks to the new Massachusetts turnpike, the beauties of the Berkshires are just a short 2½-hour drive from Boston's backyard. For a one-day family outing there are excellent picnic facilities at many roadside facilities provided by the state or at the many state parks.

If inland fishing is your sport, the trout are at their hungriest this month in the more than 100 streams and dozen ponds and lakes. A heavy schedule of Spring stocking by the state is giving the Berkshires its most productive trout season in many years. And even the youngest or most inexperienced of anglers can catch scrappy blue gills without cease at such places as Hoosac Lake in the Berkshire town of Cheshire.

Cheshire is one of the spots covered in the circle tour folder. One of Cheshire's bids for fame dates from 1801 when the hamlet's farmers made a huge wheel of cheese and sent it to President Jefferson. A life-size replica of the cider press in which the 1235-pound cheese was made is located in the center of the town.

Art, Music

A short trip to the Berkshires this month also will provide time for a look at some of the cultural spots which soon will be teeming with lovers of the arts. In Lenox, the Tanglewood grounds are at their Spring peak of beauty. It is here that the Boston Symphony Orchestra will open the annual six-week Berkshire Music Festival July 2.

The Berkshires have two Summer theaters which are rated among the top in the straw hat circuit. The Berkshire Playhouse in Stockbridge will run from June 23 to Aug. 30, and the Williamstown Theater in Williamstown, July 3 to Aug. 30.

July 1 is the opening date for the 26th year at Jacob's Pillow Dance Festival in Becket. Ted Shawn will offer Mia Slavenska and Andre Eglevsky, Pauline Koner and Dance Company, and Shrimathi Gina of India for the opening week at the Pillow.

The Berkshire Music Barn in Lenox will open its season June 29. The Music Barn will operate through Aug. 31 with folk music concerts every Saturday at 4 p.m. and jazz concerts Sunday at 8:30 p.m.

And, you never have to worry about what to do in the Berkshires if it rains. The entire family will find something of interest in one of the many museums in the area. Right in Pittsfield is the Berkshire Museum, one of the finest small museums of art and natural history in the county.

In the southern Berkshire town of Stockbridge is an historic museum called the Mission House. It was built in 1739 by Rev. John Sergeant, first missionary to the Stockbridge Indians. The Mission House is furnished with priceless American antiques.

Newest addition to the Berkshire museum family is the Clark Art Institute in Williamstown. It was first opened in 1955 and already is one of the best of its kind in the nation. Its paintings include 38 Renoirs and the displays cover matchless silver and sculpture.

Hotel & Rest. News
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly

MAY 31 1958

Berkshire County Region Promoted In Sunday Globe

A 16-page magazine supplement in color, originated by and promoting the Berkshire County region appeared in the Boston Globe, May 11.

Endorsed and underwritten by firms and associations in the County, the supplement featured the slogan "Where Your Daily Work Is Fun And Where Living Is Unexcelled."

The opening story featured John F. Downing, executive director of the Berkshire Hills Conference, Pittsfield. Developing the two themes of recreation and industry, the supplement featured stories on the Clark Art Collection, Williamstown; Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, Tanglewood Music Festival, Lenox; the Mohawk Trail and other attractions.

Sunday Republican
SPRINGFIELD, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 113,886

JUN 1 - 1958

Second Thoughts On Music

Chamber Music Ensembles To Open Berkshire Festival

Budapest, Beaux Arts, Pro Musica Antiqua, Kroll Groups Booked at Tanglewood On Wednesday Nights; Bach-Mozart Series Starts July 4

By WILLARD M. CLARK

The 1958 Berkshire Festival put on by the Boston Symphony Orchestra at Tanglewood will open Wednesday, July 2, in aristocratic fashion with a concert by the Budapest String Quartet. These Wednesday night chamber music programs draw a distinguished audience. Other ensembles to be heard during the series will be the Beaux Arts Trio, New York Pro Musica Antiqua, the Kroll Quartet and, for added interest, a recital by Wagnerian soprano Margaret Harshaw and others.

Thursday nights will be given over to a series of concerts by the Berkshire Music Center Orchestra, and a very good one it usually turns out to be. It is during these concerts that the young conductors show their wares.

Bach-Mozart Series

Beginning Friday, July 4, Charles Munch will launch the usual week end Bach-Mozart series. The opening concert will be given over to the Bach suites, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4. A week later, the 11th, we shall hear Mozart's "Musical Joke" and the "Sinfonia Concertante," with Ruth Posselt and Joseph DiPasquale, as soloists. On Friday, July 18, the program to Brahms' "Serenade No. 2" in A; Copland's "Variations for Orchestra" and Brahms' fourth symphony.

Music by Glinka, Tchaikowsky, Milhaud, Debussy and Ravel will feature the program of Friday, July 25, and the venerable Pierre Monteux will be on the podium on Aug. 1. Dr. Munch will direct a program devoted to works by Wagner and Walter Piston's viola concerto. Joseph DiPasquale will be soloist in the concerto and Margaret Harshaw will be heard in the Immolation scene from "Die Gotterdamerung."

The Saturday night programs range far and wide. The first Saturday program will introduce one of the Center's favorite pianist, Lukas Foss, who will play the Bach Piano Concerto in D minor. Dr. Munch will conduct the mighty "Art of the Fugue." The following Saturday brings an all-Mozart program which includes the "Eine Kliene Nachtmusik," Seymour Lipkin and Lukas Foss playing the two-piano concerto, K. 365, "Serenade No. 10 for Winds" and Symphony No. 40 in G minor.

Saturday, the 19th, Charles Munch will conduct a performance of the Brahms' "Requiem" with Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, as soloists and the Festival chorus.

Young Pianists

The next week brings the first of a group of young piano soloists. The first will be Byron Janis, who will be heard in Rachmaninoff's third piano concerto. The program will also include Stravinsky's "Agon" and Debussy's "La Mer." On Saturday, Aug. 2, Leonard Pennario will play the Liszt Concerto No. 1 in E flat. Vaughan Williams' eighth symphony is also programmed, along with Wagner excerpts.

Saturday, Aug. 9, Berl Senofsky makes his debut in Beethoven's violin concerto, Pierre Monteux conducting. Other works programmed include "Nobilissima Visione" by Hindemith and Beethoven's music from "Prometheus."

Sunday, July 6, the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, directed by G. Wallace Woodworth, will perform the Bach "B-Minor Mass." Soloists include Adele Addison, Eunice Alberts, Blake Stern and Donald Gramm. The following week, July 13, Seymour Lipkin will play the Mozart Piano Concerto in C major, K. 467. There will also be choral works of Mozart directed by Hugh Ross. The distinguished pianist Leon Fleisher and Pierre Monteux will join in a performance of Brahms' first piano concerto Sunday, July 20, and the program will also include Stravinsky's ballet 'Petrouchka.'

On the 27th Zino Francescatti returns to Tanglewood to play the Tchaikowsky violin concerto under the direction of Mr. Munch. The program also includes Bartok's "Music for Strings" and Ravel's "Daphnis et Chloe." On Aug. 3 Margaret Harshaw and Pierre Montuex join forces in an all-Wagner program, and the final concert, Aug. 10, will be given over to a performance of Beethoven's ninth symphony and Walton's "Johannesburg Festival" overture.

CLIBURN TO PLAY AT BRUSSELS FAIR

New York, May 31 — The recent Van Cliburn luncheon, introducing his parents to the musical world, provided two pieces of spot news. One was the information that he has been selected to participate in the Brussels Fair as soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy on July 5, the other that he would be among the summer's soloists at the Lewisohn Stadium. (This was a foregone conclusion for those who know the management's interest in anybody with his kind of current "name" value.)

Transcript-Telegram (e)
HOLYOKE, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 26,937

JUN 5 - 1958

Chamber Music Programs Listed For Tanglewood

Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theatre-Concert Hall at Tanglewood, Lenox, are announced by the Boston Symphony orchestra.

The concert, Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op. 64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard July 9 in Beethoven's Trio in E-flat, Op. 1, No. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua under the direction of Noah Greenberg will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Pres, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahm.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C. major, K. 465, Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1, in C minor, Op. 51 No. 1. On Aug. 6, the Quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Music Festival At Tanglewood In the Berkshires

Globe

This year's Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., will run from July 2 to Aug. 10. Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will conduct most of the concerts; Pierre Monteux will be guest conductor at four concerts, and G. Wallace Woodworth will conduct a special performance of Bach's B Minor Mass on Sunday, July 6, with the Harvard Glee Club, Radcliffe Choral Society and soloists.

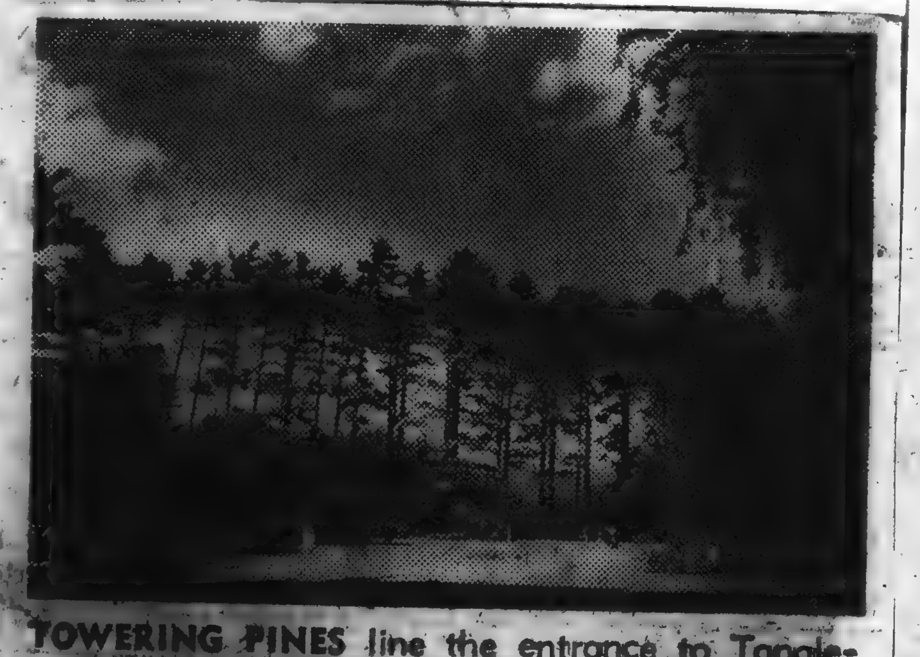
Festival soloists will include six outstanding young American pianists: Leon Fleisher, Lukas Foss, Eugene Istomin, Byron Janis, Seymour Lipkin and Leonard Pennario, performing concertos by Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Liszt and Rachmaninoff. Violinists will include Zino Francescatti, Berl Senofsky, and Ruth [illegible] and Joseph de Pasquale [illegible]. De Pasquale will be [illegible] in the Piston Viola Concerto which was written especially for him. Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will appear in two Wagner concerts and Hilde Gueden, soprano, and Donald Gramm, bass, will be soloists in a performance of Brahms' "Requiem." The annual Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit concert will take place on Aug. 7 and will feature Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Orchestra.

Concerts are given on six week-ends: July 4-5-6 (devoted to the music of Bach and held in the Theater-Concert Hall); July 11-12-[illegible] (devoted to the music of [illegible] and also held in the [illegible]-Concert Hall), and [illegible] four week-ends by [illegible] Boston Orchestra in [illegible] seat Music Shed. The concerts of July 18-19-20 will feature music of Brahms; July 25-26-27 music of Debussy, Ravel and Tchaikovsky; Aug. 1-2-3 music of Wagner; and Aug. 8-9-10 music of Beethoven. Six concerts of chamber music will be presented on Wednesday evenings and will include the Budapest and Kroll String Quartets, the Beaux Arts Trio of New York; the New York Pro Musica Antiqua, and Margaret Harshaw, soprano, in a song recital.

Visitors to the Berkshire Festival may attend concerts in the intimate Theater-Concert Hall or in the Music Shed, or may enjoy the music from Tanglewood's spacious lawns. Many events of the Boston Symphony's Summer school of musical performance, the Berkshire Music Center, are open to Friends of the Center, including student performance of orchestra, chamber music, choral music and opera. Tanglewood and the surrounding area of the Berkshire Hills, which offer many attractions to the visitor, is easily reached by the Massachusetts Turnpike, the New York Thruway and Route 7 from New York city. Single tickets to all concerts and further information about events open to the Friends are available at the festival office, Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass.

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 295,512

JUN 8 1958



TOWERING PINES line the entrance to Tanglewood, summer headquarters of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Berkshire Festival will run from July 2 to August 10. Charles Munch will conduct.

New England Newsclip Agency, Inc.
Box [illegible], Boston 6 - Richmond 2-4200

Sunday Herald
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent Republican
Circ. 295,512

JUN 8 1958

Boston Symphony Program on Channel 2

The Boston Symphony Orchestra will perform three major works tonight at 6:30 p.m. on Channel 2.

The concert, which was recorded on kinescope film earlier this year, is conducted by Charles Munch, music director. The program consists of Brahms, Academic Festival Overture, Op. 80; Mendelssohn, Symphony No. 5 in D minor, Op. 107, "The Reformation"; and Beethoven, Symphony No 3 in E flat, Op. 55, "The Eroica."

Channel 2 filmed five Boston Symphony Orchestra concerts at Sanders Theatre, Harvard University, this past season for national distribution to more than 30 educational stations

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,590

JUN 1 - 1958

/ Music

Goldovsky to Direct 'Ory' at Tanglewood

By RAYMOND MORIN
Telegram Music Critic

It is of historical interest that Boris Goldovsky will direct Rossini's "Count Ory" as the major production this summer of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department at Tanglewood.

Whether it will be of potent musical interest remains to be seen.

Having the Goldovsky trademark, it naturally will be given in English. The translation is by Robert A. Simon.

This English version was commissioned by the Juilliard Opera Theater and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center. The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Acts 2 and 4 of Verdi's "La Rondine" by Puccini.

Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28, and Aug. 4) in the Theater Concert Hall at 8:30.

"Count Ory" was first produced in Paris in 1825. Rossini was 33. Apparently he wasn't overly pleased with it because an augmented and revised version was given at the Paris Opera three years later.

Anticipating the Goldovsky touches, this will be the third refurbishing of the original.

Judges Announced

Judges are announced for the Young Artists Awards auditions to be held Thursday. Organists will be heard at Wesley Methodist Church, and others at M. Steinert & Sons Co.

The judges are Harry Levenson, conductor of The Worcester Orchestra and the Worcester Youth Orchestra; Relly Raffman, professor of music Clark University; and Raymond Morin, chairman.

Cliburn Prays

In his interesting talk the other night before the board of directors of the Worcester Orchestral Society, Ralph Black stressed the tremendous uplift that serious performing musicians have received through Van Cliburn's winning of an international piano contest in Moscow, April 13.

Black is manager of the National Symphony in Washington, D.C.

An inspiring insight into the 23-year-old Texan pianist's religious-musical concept was given last week by Howard Harrington, manager of the Detroit Symphony, who was visiting in Worcester. The Detroit Orchestra will play at the 99th Worcester Music Festival in October.

Cliburn appeared with the Detroit orchestra three years ago. He played both concertos that won him the recent contest — the Rachmanioff Third and the Tchaikovsky.

Manager Harrington knocked on Cliburn's dressing-room door as the time neared. The young man came to the door and asked if he could speak with Paul Paray, the conductor.

He was shown to Paray's dressing room and asked an astonishing question:

"Monsier Paray, I always say a prayer before I play. Will you join me?"

Paray knelt and they prayed together. He later said that the incident explained many things about this immensely talented young artist.

Incidentally, Cliburn's fee was then $500. For a forthcoming appearance at Dallas, Tex., he is to receive $9,000.

News and News

Response has been such for the appearance of the Moiseyev Dance Company of Moscow at the Boston Garden on the evenings of June 13 and 14 that an extra performance has been added for Saturday afternoon, June 14, at 3:30.

While the Eastern summer music festivals are about to thrive again, the one at Boise, Idaho, has folded. It's been going since 1919. During one of its weeks 35,000 persons attended, and that happens to be the population of Boise. This year's festival brought nightly attendance of 200. The reasons given for loss of interest—television, bad weather, just plain apathy.

The Hartt School of Music in Hartford has been instrumental in organizing the "University of Hartford Trio in Residence." The players are faculty members at Hart — Artur Balsam, pianist; William Kroll, violinist; and Luigi Silva, cellist.

Those who remember the dynamo choral conductor, Augusto Rodriguez, who conducted the University of Puerto Rico Chorus at the Little Theater a few seasons ago, will be interested to know that choral work is in his hands for next week's fifth opera festival at San Juan.

The incurable "long-haired" devotees had better not get their dates confused for the 23rd Ravinia Park (Chicago) Festival that begins July 1.

For two of the evenings Fritz Reiner' place on the podium will be taken by Lionel Hampton, who does not play Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

MAY 3 0 1958

"Berkshire Nights" Series Announced

Special Concerts Planned At Tanglewood, Mass.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, recently announced the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood advisory committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts, on July 18-25 and August 1-8, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

For the first Friday evening concert, July 18, Dr Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday evening concert, July 25, in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla", Tchaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program, August 1, will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw who is well known to Tanglewood audiences from her previous appearances, will perform two Wagner excerps. The "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung". Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the Siegfried Idyll. Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston, which was written for and dedicated to Mr de Pasquale.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Mr Istomin made his first appearance at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the 1955 season. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Heading the Berkshire Nights committee this season will be Mrs John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield and requests for Berkshire Nights subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick Street, Pittsfield. Mrs Mahanna will shortly announce the members of a committee of area residents who will assist in the subscription campaign.

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 2 8 1958

Opera Plans Set For The Summer At Tanglewood

Boris Goldovsky, director of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and August 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Acts II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings, July 21, 28 and August 4, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theatre. This program has benefitted from a generous Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

[2Pc]

MAY 26 1958

Goldovsky Lists Berkshire Music Center Opera Plans

Boris Goldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, has announced his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theater and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet Acts. II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings, July 21, 28 and Aug. 4, in the theater-concert hall at 8.30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the leadership training program of the New England Opera Theater. This program has benefited from a Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 - S. 1,189,293

MAY 1 8 1958

ROSSINI'S 'ORY'

Rossini's "Count Ory" will be the major opera to be presented this summer by the Berkshire Music Center. It will be given in a new English version by Robert A. Simon.

The fact that there will be opera again at Tanglewood is cheering. Last summer full-scale opera was eliminated from the Berkshire Festival because of the expense involved.

Friends Office at Tanglewood To Be Headed by Margo Miller

Kanter
Miss Margo Miller

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced that during the coming summer the office of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will be headed by Miss Margo Miller of this city.

Miss Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence K. Miller of 500 Williams St., was first affiliated with the BSO at Tanglewood in 1954 when she was assistant in the press department. In the succeeding three summers she was assistant in the Friends office, and in each of the four years was secretary for the Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit.

Accompanied BSO on Tour

In 1956 Miss Miller accompanied the Boston Symphony on its European tour and described the tour in articles published in The Eagle.

A graduate of Miss Hall's School in 1953 and Vassar College in 1957, Miss Miller has just returned from a winter in Paris, where she studied oboe with Gaston Longatte, professor of oboe at the Versailles Conservatory and English horn in the Concerts Collone, and solfege with Maurice Speyer, brother of Louis Speyer, English horn of the BSO. Last summer Miss Miller studied with Louis Speyer at Tanglewood.

Started Duties Yesterday

Miss Miller assumed her new duties as head of the Friends yesterday.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend performances by students at the Boston Symphony's summer school at Tanglewood during its six weeks' season between June 30 and Aug. 10.

Programs are presented by students of orchestra, chorus, student composition and chamber music. Contributions to the Friends may be sent to Tanglewood, Lenox.

BERKSHIRE June 9, 1958

Chamber Music Programs At Tanglewood Announced

TANGLEWOOD — Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood were announced today by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op.64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert of July 9. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1; Fauré's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, and Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Prés, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465; Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1 in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1. On August 6, the quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306

JUN 2 - 1958

HEADS FRIENDS

Margo Miller of Pittsfield will head the office of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, this summer. A Vassar graduate, she was first affiliated with the orchestra in 1954.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

MAY 24 1958

THINGS TO COME

Theatre

American Shakespeare Festival—Repertory season at Stratford, Conn. will begin on June 19th this year with "Midsummer Night's Dream."

George Hamid Aquacircus—New 1958 aqua show at Flushing Meadow Amphitheatre. Opens June 27.

Song of Norway—Musical based on life of Edvard Grieg will be presented by Guy Lombardo at the Jones Beach Thea. beg. June 20.

Lewisohn Stadium Concerts—Six week season opens Mon. June 23. Leonard Bernstein will conduct the Stadium Symphony Orchestra opening night.

Tanglewood — Lenox, Mass. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, cond. Opening concert July 4.

The Dance

Moiseyev Dance Company—Return engagement for this wonderful Russian troupe. Will play Madison Sq. Garden on June 20-22 & June 24, 25 & 28. (Tickets available from CO 5-6811).

Sunday Telegram
WORCESTER, Mass.
Republican
Circ. 104,590

JUN 1 - 1958

Music

Goldovsky to Direct 'Ory' at Tanglewood

By RAYMOND MORIN
Telegram Music Critic

It is of historical interest that Boris Goldovsky will direct Rossini's "Count Ory" as the major production this summer of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department at Tanglewood.

Whether it will be of potent musical interest remains to be seen.

Having the Goldovsky trademark, it naturally will be given in English. The translation is by Robert A. Simon.

This English version was commissioned by the Juilliard Opera Theater and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center. The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romee and Juliet," Acts 2 and 4 of Verdi's "La Rondine" by Puccini.

Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings (July 21, 28, and Aug. 4) in the Theater Concert Hall at 8:30.

"Count Ory" was first produced in Paris in 1825. Rossini was 33. Apparently he wasn't overly pleased with it because an augmented and revised version was given at the Paris Opera three years later.

Anticipating the Goldovsky touches, this will be the third refurbishing of the original.

Judges Announced

Judges are announced for the Young Artists Awards auditions to be held Thursday. Organists will be heard at Wesley Methodist Church, and others at M. Steinert & Sons Co.

The judges are Harry Levenson, conductor of The Wercester Orchestra and the Worcester Youth Orchestra; Relly Raffman, professor of music Clark University; and Raymond Morin, chairman.

Cliburn Prays

In his interesting talk the other night before the board of directors of the Worcester Orchestral Society, Ralph Black stressed the tremendous uplift that serious performing musicians have received through Van Cliburn's winning of an international piano contest in Moscow, April 13.

Black is manager of the Na- ional Symphony in Washington, D.C.

An inspiring insight into the 3-year-old Texan pianist's relig- ous-musical concept was given ist week by Howard Har- ngton, manager of the Detroit mphony, who was visiting in orcester. The Detroit Orches- will play at the 99th Worcester Music Festival in October.

Cliburn appeared with the Detroit orchestra three years ago. He played both concertos that won him the recent contest — the Rachmanioff Third and the Tchaikovsky.

Manager Harrington knocked on Cliburn's dressing-room door as the time neared. The young man came to the door and asked if he could speak with Paul Paray, the conductor.

He was shown to Paray's dressing room and asked an astonishing question:

"Monsier Paray, I always say a prayer before I play. Will you join me?"

Paray knelt and they prayed together. He later said that the incident explained many things about this immensely talented young artist.

Incidentally, Cliburn's fee was then $500. For a forthcoming appearance at Dallas, Tex., he is to receive $9,000.

News and News

Response has been such for the appearance of the Moiseyev Dance Company of Moscow at the Boston Garden on the evenings of June 13 and 14 that an extra performance has been added for Saturday afternoon, June 14, at 3:30.

While the Eastern summer music festivals are about to thrive again, the one at Boise, Idaho, has folded. It's been going since 1919. During one of its weeks 35,000 persons attended, and that happens to be the population of Boise. This year's festival brought nightly attendance of 200. The reasons given for loss of interest—television, bad weather, just plain apathy.

The Hartt School of Music in Hartford has been instrumental in organizing the "University of Hartford Trio in Residence." The players are faculty members at Hart — Artur Balsam, pianist; William Kroll, violinist; and Luigi Silva, cellist.

Those who remember the dynamo choral conductor, Augusto Rodriguez, who conducted the University of Puerto Rico Chorus at the Little Theater a few seasons ago, will be interested to know that choral work is in his hands for next week's fifth opera festival at San Juan.

The incurable "long-haired" devotees had better not get their dates confused for the 23rd Ravinia Park (Chicago) Festival that begins July 1.

For two of the evenings Fritz Reiner' place on the podium will be taken by Lionel Hampton, who does not play Bach, Beethoven, and Brahms.

Bee
NEWTOWN, Conn.
Weekly Independent
Circ. 6,159

MAY 30 1958

"Berkshire Nights" Series Announced

Special Concerts Planned At Tanglewood, Mass.

Charles Munch, music director of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, recently announced the programs and soloists for the 1958 series of Berkshire Nights of the Berkshire Festival at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass. Inaugurated last season at the suggestion of the Tanglewood advisory committee and designed especially for Berkshire residents and those within easy driving distance of Tanglewood, the Berkshire Nights series offers again this season a subscription to four Friday evening concerts, on July 18-25 and August 1-8, in the Music Shed at Tanglewood at a price equivalent to the regular cost of three such concerts.

For the first Friday evening concert, July 18, Dr Munch will conduct the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Brahms' Serenade No. 2 in A, Opus 16, Aaron Copland's Variations for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony No. 4.

Pierre Monteux will direct the second Friday evening concert, July 25, in a program including Glinka's overture to "Russian and Ludmilla", Tchaikowsky's Fourth Symphony, Overture to "Les Eumenides" by Darius Milhaud, Debussy's Three Nocturnes and Ravel's "La Valse."

A featured soloist for the third Berkshire Friday program, August 1, will be the noted Wagnerian soprano, Margaret Harshaw. Miss Harshaw who is well known to Tanglewood audiences from her previous appearances, will perform two Wagner excerps. The "Love Death" from "Tristan and Isolde" and the Immolation Scene from "Gotterdammerung". Other Wagner excerpts on the program, which will be under the direction of Dr Munch, are the Prelude to "The Mastersingers" and the Siegfried Idyll. Joseph de Pasquale, first violist of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will be soloist in the new Viola Concerto by Walter Piston, which was written for and dedicated to Mr de Pasquale.

The young American pianist, Eugene Istomin, will be soloist on the final Friday evening program, performing Beethoven's "Emperor" Concerto No. 5. Mr Istomin made his first appearance at Tanglewood with the Boston Symphony Orchestra on the 1955 season. Charles Munch will also conduct Honegger's Prelude Fugue and Postlude and Beethoven's Seventh Symphony.

Heading the Berkshire Nights committee this season will be Mrs John G. W. Mahanna of Pittsfield and requests for Berkshire Nights subscriptions may be mailed to her at 20 Warwick Street, Pittsfield. Mrs Mahanna will shortly announce the members of a committee of area residents who will assist in the subscription campaign.

Back Bay Ledger &
Beacon Hill Times
BOSTON, Mass.
Weekly Non-Partisan
Circ. 10,000 Free

MAY 28 1958

Opera Plans Set For The Summer At Tanglewood

Boris Goldovsky, director of the Opera Department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, Mass., announces his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer ~~school between~~ June 30 and August 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theatre and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," Acts II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings, July 21, 28 and August 4, in the Theatre-Concert Hall at 8:30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the Leadership Training Program of the New England Opera Theatre. This program has benefitted from a generous Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

Transcript (e)
NORTH ADAMS, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 13,138

MAY 26 1958

Goldovsky Lists Berkshire Music Center Opera Plans

Boris Goldovsky, director of the opera department of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, has announced his plans for the coming summer session of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's summer school between June 30 and Aug. 10.

The major production of the season will be Rossini's "Count Ory" in an English version by Robert A. Simon. The English version was commissioned by the Juilliard School of Music for the Juilliard Opera Theater and has been released to the Berkshire Music Center for performance at Tanglewood. The Opera Department will also present a condensed version of Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet Acts. II and IV of Verdi's "La Traviata" and Act III of "La Rondine" by Puccini. Opera performances will take place on three Monday evenings, July 21, 28 and Aug. 4, in the theater-concert hall at 8.30.

The support of the Berkshire Music Center Opera Department has been undertaken by the leadership training program of the New England Opera Theater. This program has benefited from a Ford Foundation grant to be used in developing the new scenic materials, a program started by Mr. Goldovsky last season at Tanglewood. The new materials will be used in all opera productions.

NEW YORK, N. Y.
TIMES
Circ. D. 557,244 — S. 1,189,293

MAY 18 1958

ROSSINI'S 'ORY'

Rossini's "Count Ory" will be the major opera to be presented this summer by the Berkshire Music Center. It will be given in a new English version by Robert A. Simon.

The fact that there will be opera again at Tanglewood is cheering. Last summer full-scale opera was eliminated from the Berkshire Festival because of the expense involved.

BERKSHIRE June 9, 1958

Chamber Music Programs At Tanglewood Announced

TANGLEWOOD — Programs for the six Wednesday evening chamber music concerts of the Berkshire Festival in the Theater-Concert Hall at Tanglewood were announced today by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The opening concert on Wednesday, July 2, will feature the Budapest String Quartet in a program including Haydn's Quartet in D major, Op.64 No. 5; Bartok's Quartet No. 1 in A minor, Op. 7, and Beethoven's Quartet No. 8 in E minor, Op. 59, No. 2.

The Beaux Arts Trio of New York will be heard at the concert [illegible] July. The program will be Beethoven's Trio in E flat, Op. 1, Faure's Trio in D minor, Op. 120, and Mendelssohn's Trio No. 2 in C minor, Op. 66.

The New York Pro Musica Antiqua, under the direction of Noah Greenberg, will present a program of music of Flanders and Spain, with works by Isaac, Des Prés, Morales and others on July 16.

On July 23, Margaret Harshaw, soprano, will present a program of German and English songs including works of Schubert, Schumann and Brahms.

The two final concerts of the series will be given by the Kroll Quartet on July 30 and Aug. 6. The program for July 30 includes Mozart's Quartet in C major, K. 465; Blackwood's Quartet No. 1 and Brahms' Quartet No. 1 in C minor, Op. 51, No. 1. On August 6, the quartet will present Haydn's Quartet in G minor, Op. 74, No. 3, Bartok's Quartet No. 2, Op. 17 and Beethoven's Quartet No. 15 in A minor, Op. 132.

Tickets for all the concerts, the proceeds of which benefit the Tanglewood Revolving Scholarship Fund of the Berkshire Music Center, are available at the Festival Office, Tanglewood, Lenox.

Traveler (e)
BOSTON, Mass.
Independent
Circ. 186,306
JUN 2 -

47

HEADS FRIENDS

Margo Miller of Pittsfield will head the office of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Lenox, this summer. A Vassar graduate, she was first affiliated with the orchestra in 1954.

CUE
NEW YORK, N. Y.

MAY 24 1958

THINGS TO COME

Theatre

American Shakespeare Festival—Repertory season at Stratford, Conn. will begin on June 19th this year with "Midsummer Night's Dream."

George Hamid Aquacircus—New 1958 aqua show at Flushing Meadow Amphitheatre. Opens June 27.

Song of Norway—Musical based on life of Edvard Grieg will be presented by Guy Lombardo at the Jones Beach Thea. beg. June 20.

Lewisohn Stadium Concerts—Six week season opens Mon. June 23. Leonard Bernstein will conduct the Stadium Symphony Orchestra opening night.

Tanglewood — Lenox, Mass. Boston Symphony Orchestra. Charles Munch, cond. Opening concert July 4.

The Dance

Moiseyev [illegible] engagement for this wonderful Russian troupe. Will play Madison Sq. Garden on June 20-22 & June 24, 25 & 28. (Tickets available from CO 5-5811).

Friends Office at Tanglewood To Be Headed by Margo Miller

Kanter
Miss Margo Miller

The Boston Symphony Orchestra has announced that during the coming summer the office of the Friends of the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood will be headed by Miss Margo Miller of this city.

Miss Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence K. Miller of 500 Williams St., was first affiliated with the BSO at Tanglewood in 1954 when she was assistant in the press department. In the succeeding three summers she was assistant in the Friends office, and in each of the four years was secretary for the Tanglewood-on-Parade benefit.

Accompanied BSO on Tour

In 1956 Miss Miller accompanied the Boston Symphony on its European tour and described the tour in articles published in The Eagle.

A graduate of Miss Hall's School in 1953 and Vassar College in 1957, Miss Miller has just returned from a winter in Paris, where she studied oboe with Gaston Longatte, professor of oboe at the Versailles Conservatory and English horn in the Concerts Collone, and solfege with Maurice Speyer, brother of Louis Speyer, English horn of the BSO. Last summer Miss Miller studied with Louis Speyer at Tanglewood.

Started Duties Yesterday

Miss Miller assumed her new duties as head of the Friends yesterday.

Friends of the Berkshire Music Center are invited to attend performances by students in the Boston Symphony's summer school at Tanglewood during its [illegible] weeks' season between June [illegible] and Aug. 10.

Programs are presented by students of orchestra, chorus, student composition and chamber music. Contributions to the Friends may be sent to Tanglewood, Lenox.

SWANSEA, WALES. APRIL 1959

Music-making in Massachusetts

by MURIEL DAVIES

FINDING an envelope headed the Berkshire Music Center at my door this week reminded me of one of my exciting experiences in the United States.

The envelope contained the brochure for 1959 of the Music School at Tanglewood, Massachusetts, established in 1940 by Koussevitzky and the Boston Symphony Orchestra, and reading it I recall my stay of two weeks last year.

Tanglewood is a magic name to young musicians in U.S., and all try to spend at least one summer there. It was my good fortune to be accepted as a student—one of 300 or so of varying ages.

Six weeks

WE had come from many countries—some by invitation and helped by scholarships and grants.

There were two English girls and Wyn Morris the Llanelly conductor, who is now in Cleveland.

I also met a young conductor who told me how very much his orchestra in Toronto had enjoyed playing Alun Hoddinott's Clarinet Concerto

The school offers tuition in many subjects — composition, conducting orchestral playing, chamber music, choir singing and opera. The course lasts six weeks and the tutors are mostly members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Aaron Copland heads the composition department.

Besides attending lectures and demonstrations most students sang with the Festival Chorus, and instrumentalists received training in ensemble playing. Many studios were provided for practice purposes and our daily schedule was very full.

Groups

THE estate of Tanglewood lies some miles away from Lenox School where we were boarded, and we travelled to and fro in school buses. It is in a beautiful setting among the Berkshire Hills and within sight of Lake Mahkeenac.

In the grounds are wooden buildings and the various student groups met in the Barn, the Chamber Music Hall or the garage, while concerts were held in a concert hall that seated 6.000.

All the buildings were partly open at the sides, so that at times the very air was full of music and like Caliban "sometimes a thousand twangling instruments would hum about mine ears, and sometimes voices."

Enthusiasm

THERE was music-making continuously. The Festival Chorus sang one major choral work each weekend with the Boston Symphony Orchestra under its conductor Charles Munch, and what intensive work we had to put in on Brahm's Requiem (in German) and the Canticum Sacrum by Stravinsky.

The orchestra rehearsed daily and it was possible to hear the music for the weekend three or four times, and how necessary this was when Milhaud's Overture to "Les Eumenides" and Aaron Copland's "Variations for Orchestra" were items.

I was impressed by the intense enthusiasm of the students, their almost dedication to their work, and the keen competition to play in the student orchestra or sing a role in opera.

For me too it was an exhilarating musical experience and how I wish I could be there again this year

END OF VOLUME

END OF REEL

PLEASE

REWIND